"Sir, I am perfectly sensible that you are not answerable to any person for any thing you may deem it your daty to state in the House of Commons, provided what you say is true; but, Sir, I trust I may be allowed to say, that you are answerable for an attack upon an individual, tending to injure his reputation, and especially when the assertions you make are false and unfounded, and calculated to expose the individual, of whem you speak, to the vengeance of a deluded and infuriated populace. In this situation, unless I am not the individual you allude to, I feel that you stand towards me; and I distinctly state to you, that I consider I have a right to expect you to repair the injury you have done me: and I am the more confirmed in that opinion, from finding that the forms of the House preclude me from having the expunged part of my evidence laid upon the table, as I. wished to have done in my own vindication; but, as the Speaker has declared, this is impossible,—because, having been expunged, it is to be considered as never having extend it is obvious that you in advantage to excell having existed; it is obvious that you, in adverting to it, noted contrary to the rules and orders of the House, and cannot plead the protection of privilege in so doing.

"After what I have stated, should you still refuse me the justice I require, it will remain with myself to obtain repara-tion by other honourable means. I will expect your answer, and I beg it may be to the point.

(Signed) "R. M'KERRELL."

"R. M'KERRELL, Esq. "Temple, June 27, 1812.
"Sir,—I have received your letter of this date, and I can only refer you to my former letter for a statement of my reselution to enter into no further correspondence with you upon this subject.

"I regret that you have been so ill-advised as to write this "I regret that you have been so ill-advised as to write this second letter, because it may possibly impose upon me the painful necessity of applying to the House of Commons upon the contents of it. If I refrain from doing so, it will only be from a wish, which I have always felt, to discharge my public duty with as little injury as possible to any individual; and a continuance of the same disposition may still prevent me from taking such steps as would make your name known.

"I recommend to you again to obtain, if you can, a copy of the notes, and I must decline all further intercourse upon this matter.—I am, Sir, your obedient humble servant, matter.—I am, Sir, your obedient humble servant,

(Signed) "HENRY BROUGHAM."

"From the foregoing it will be seen, that after writing my first letter to Mr. Brougham, I allowed him a week for reflection, and to make me the reparation I was entitled to. I then wrote him another letter, in his answer to which he avows, that I am the person he alluded to in his speech; but instead of making any atonement for an injury of such magnitude, or even an ang any atomement for an mury of such magnitude, or even an apology, he adds insult to the injury.

"On the 29th, he called upon an Honourable Member of the House, to whom I have the advantage of being known— to whom he stated, for my information, that he would not make any reparation; and that if I went any further in the business, he would complain of me for a breach of privilege, and proceed against me in the Court of King's Bench.

"No person can be impressed with greater reverence for the laws of their country than I am; nor is there any individual in the State, who respects more the House of Commons, knowing as I do, that it will not allow any individual to be trampled upon, whom it is its province to protect.

"But being precluded from having my case brought before the Honourable House, it becomes a duty I owe to myself, to declare to the world, before whom I have been accused, that the whole of those calumnious assertious which have been the chief of my correspondence with R. Respectives. that the whole of those chainfineds assertions which have been the subject of my correspondence with Mr. Brougham, ARE PALSE and MALEVOLENT. Mr. Brougham has had access to the expunged part of the evidence, of which the shorthand writer has furnished him with a copy. I also have obtained and writer has furnished him with copy. I also have obtained a copy from the same authority, wherein what I am asserted to have attered is not to be found. What has been the intention in making such charges, as I can only judge from the consequences, I forbear to attempt to explain; but must leave that task to the public. What those consequences have been is notorious. At a period of peculiar agitation and ferment, I have been held up to the resentment, if not to the vengeance, of a deluded, exasperated populace.

"I shall now take leave of Mr. Brougham. In my conduct "I shall now take leave of Mr. Brougnam. In my conduct at the bar of the House of Commons, I feel that I acquitted myself candidly, conscientiously, and honourably; and I trust an impartial public will feel that there has been nothing in my proceedings towards Mr. Brougham that should induce me to submit in sileace to be the victim of his cool, DELIBERATE MISREPRESENTATION AND FALSEHOOD.—I am, Sir, your most ebedient servant,

"ROBERT M'KERRELL." And here, gentle reader, THE AFFAIR TERMINATED. (To be continued.)

THEATRES.

SEVERAL of our correspondents inquire why, of all weekly papers, we omit to notice the Theatres; and one of our readers, in a very angry tone, calls our conduct invidious: he says "We have never mentioned Miss Wilson since her first appearance;" to which is superadded, so much about "native talent," that we cannot but attribute his letter to the author of the little poem, on the same subject, which we declined inserting some weeks ago. The truth is, our silence has proceeded from a feeling of good nature towards both establishments, and more particularly towards Drury-lane.

It is known too well to be doubted, that not one out of five hundred, of those who are called the public, takes the trouble of thinking for himself; and that it is sufficient to tell the town, day after day, in every newspaper, that a thing is excellent, and beautiful, and deightful, to make them firmly believe that it is so. In this happy state of delusion the play-goers of London have been living ever since Miss Wilson made her first appearance. In that first appearance there was great promise; and the sanction she had received from the approbation graciously given to a young beginner, from the highest quarter, having been ingeniously misconstrued into unqualified applause, she was pronounced one of the prodigies which occasionally illumine the theatrical hemisphere; and really, had she followed up her debut, taking that as the premier pas, she might have been what the Drury-lane play-bills tell us she is.

Miss Wilson has a good, if not a pleasant voice, but she is no singer; and the best proof of the truth of this assertion is, that after she has delighted and astonished the London audience with her native talent, she is to go to Italy to learn to sing. All this we saw, upon her repetition of Mandane, and still more evidently saw, in Rosetta.—But Drury-lane was retrieving the losses of an unprosperous season, and why should we interfere? It would have been uugracious both to the lady and the public. Nothing mortifies an affected connoisseur in wine more, than to tell him he has been guzzling Perry, just as he has finished what he thinks a bout of Champagne: and even now, it is with pain we are compelled to tell the good easy people of the east end of the town, with whom our play-houses are filled, that they have been listening with rapture to a person wholly unskilled in the art, in which they have been made to believe her to be a proficient.

Then Mr. Braham's Hawthorn—the hale-sportsman. with "his dog and his gun," the fine specimen of an English country squire—can any thing be more abominable?—Kean, in Romeo, might have been as absurd to look at, but Kean could never have made Romeo as ridiculous as Braham makes Hawthern, unless he had introduced a hornpipe, or waltzed with the nurse, as the Queen did at Wood's, with Billy Austin; for, superadded to the little doll-like figure of Mr. Braham, which, as it never hittle doll-like figure of Mr. Braham, which, as it never could look like any thing but what it is, might be suffered to pass unnoticed, we are treated with—"Friend of my soul, this goblet sip," one of the few of Moore's delicate songs; "Together let us range the Fields," (which should, in the true spirit of the part, be sung by Hawthorn and his dog.) and a modern song about "waving trees," in which there is a mixture of quavering and roaring, as incongruous to the subject as the style of the song is to the piece in which it is introduced. song is to the piece in which it is introduced.

At the other house, the "Chances," mutilated, and almost murdered, is produced as an Opera, in which, to be sure, Miss Stephens sings, and whenever she sings, she de-lights us. In this piece, a Miss Hallande made her appearance, of whom we can only say, that she will either. turn out to be the first singer of the age, or nothing. We confess, at present, it seems to us quite an even chance which; but her voice has a powerful and extraordinary quality.

Then we have to find fault with a system of running races in translating and adapting, now so universal. A Melo-Drame, started at one of the Minor Parisian Theatres, is put up, and away go all the writers, composers, scene-painters, and carpenters after it; each hopes to be first, and although six or seven of them must be disappointed, still they persist in producing their works, and the whole town is filled with different versions of the same piece.

And then again, we have to find fault with the adaptation of the popular Novels to the stage. The injustice done to the mighty talent which originally produces these works is incalculable. The magical descriptions of one of the most highly-gifted minds that ever was bent to the purpose, are reduced to pieces of painted earwas, and the beau-ideal, which the author has contrived, by his unequalled power, to give of his characters, is destroyed in an instant, by the transfer of the mental portrait to real life, in the shape of some awkward ill-favoured man, or some dowdy-looking, vulgar woman.

Thus it will appear, that having had no reason to be pleased with any thing which has been done at either theatre, we have abstained from adding our influence, to that of fashion, to keep people away from plays. We cordially wish, for the sake of the arts, that playgoing were more in vogue than it is; but we must observe, that some other mode must be discovered, to bring people of fashion, taste, and respectability, into Covent Garden and Drury Lane, than metamorphosing an obsolete Play into a very bad Opera; translating a Melo-Drame, previously done at all the tumbling-places in and about London; or murdering the works of an immortal author, by metamorphosing them into uncommonly dull

ORIGINAL POETRY.

THE CITY CONCERT. " Paulo Minora canemus." Tune-ALLEY CROKER.

When CAROLINE, the great and big, Was feasted in the city, Sir, United Radical and Whig, In malice or in pity, Sir, Invited ev'ry cockney dame The Royal cause to lift on; No matter what her rank or name

If she had but a shift on. Oh! such shifts! the flaunting belles of Drury Are neat to those of Crooked Lane, Ram Alley, and Old Jewry.

A few there were, not so obscure, Who boasted of clean linen; But they, as all their friends assure, Were driven by their men, in; Who thought that after such delay The Queen would be extinguished, Unless the blustering TIMES could say, That some few were "distinguished." Oh poor Times! how sad a scrape you have got in, Whose proud distinction is at best, 'twixt addled eggs and retten.

To face at once so renk k crowd The Queen was thought anable, So Thone, he begged to be allowed To hand her to a table, Where wine, and something better still, That smelt like Marasching Might, if administered with skill Give courage to the Queen Oh. Oh the Queen! the sober Queen of Britain. She very seon was in a state an armed chair to sit on.

When safely seated in this chair, The females were paraded, And like a showman, the Lord Mayor, The honours of the day did. Mrs. THORP herself came first, (" Her maiden name was Twies ma'am") Who curtsying low, cried, " May I burst "But I adore your wig, Ma'am." "Oh your wig! your wig so black and curl'd, Ma'am, That like the whiskers of a Jew it looks for all the world,

> The Queen, who thought this speech a scoff, Exclaimed " Mon Dien quel fardeau." Se Mrs. Mayer was hurried off, And up flounced Dame Ricardo. Quoth THORP, "This lady whom you view "Her head so lofty carrying, " Is one, whom an Oporto Jew Ma'am."

"Cut off his son for marrying." Oh the son! his figure would not please ill One whose taste might chance to lie between an owl and

> The Queen, at seeing Mrs. Syngs. Was ready to affront her; No German Princess more dislikes These gentry of the counter. " But mean and vulgar as you think her," Said THORP, " you needs must thank her, " Because her dad, though once a tinker. " Did become a banker."

Oh, the dad! fit sire of such a filly, At the race ball at Doncaster they called her orange-lily.

> Next Mrs. WILDE the presence graced, The splendour to increase, Ma'am; "Tho' lowly born, she has a taste, "And been, like you, in Greece, Ma'am; "And tho' she wed a peaceful squire, "Was for a tar more fitted, " For she is used to standing fire, "And was brought up at Spit-head."

Oh, the fire of poor Devaynes's kitchen, From whose hot coals she stole the blush that makes her so bewitching.

Scowling WILLIAMS next produces What he calls his family; It is a mode he oddly chooses Down our throats to cram a lie; His real wife is safe in bed, Not dreaming of such folly; Perhaps the fellow, in her stead, Has brought his Vauxhall dolly. Oh, the drab! her crime is doubly heinous,

Who could condescend to be that yellow Vulcan's Venus.

So far so well, but now the Quire For harmony enlisted, "Threw all the fut into the fire," (As Mrs. Wilde expressed it.) The blundering dogs began to sing. With all their might and energies, "Ged preserve our noble King, "And confound his enemies."

Oh, the Brutes! the Queen was well nigh fainting, And would have blushed, if one could blush beneath three coats of painting.

In anger, for her coach slie roar'd, And into it, when ready. She trundled, handed by my lord, And followed by my lady. And so they drove home in the dark, The beau and his two graces Like (as a florist might remark) Under a Hood two faces. Oh, the Hood! convenient garb for lovers,

For none but they can truly say how many sins it covers.

THE EXCLAMATION OF "UNSUNNED SNOW" On seeing William Cobbett use a Pocket Homthorchief stamped with ker Portrait.

> " No mortal sure was e'ex reserv'd, "To sink so low as me,
> "I'm daub'd with praises undeserved,

"And-blown upon by thee!!!"

TO THE VISCOUNT HOOD.

My Lond,—It is oute right that errors in works published (as they profess to be) by authority, should be corrected lest the public should be deceived, and the characters and reputations of estimable individuals in-

The mistake to which I wish to call your Lordship's attention, is to be found in page 172, of The BRITISH IMPERIAL CALENDAR for the present year, published by John Debrett.

At that page under the Head of RECEIVERS GENERAL of Taxes, we find-"Receiver General for part of Middlesex, Long Hood-Office, 12, Birchin Lane.

In the official circular from Brandenburgh House, it appears, published by authority, that " Lady Hood is gone into waiting upon the Queen."

That one of these printed assertions must be erroneous, there can be little doubt, for your Lordship has too much generosity of principle, and too much honorable feeling to allow them both to be correct.

Either the story of your Lady's appointment under the Queen is a fabrication, or you have doubtless resigned your sinecure office, held by special grace from the Crown. It cannot be supposed, that while you consented to receive a large salary from the King's Government, for duties done by your bankers, that you would have suffered Lady Hood to have engaged herself to an individual whose whole conduct has gone to insult and injure His Majesty, and harrass and thwart the existing Government.

I should advise your Lordship to get Denman to move for a criminal information against one or the other of the publications I have noticed, for there cannot be a greater libel put forth to the world against your Lordship's character and feelings, than the insinuation they convey.

I am, Sir, yours,

THE GREEN MAN.

Blackheath, Murch 14, 1821.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

PARIS, March 9.—It is confidently said, that many Officers of English merchant ships have solicited and obtained letters de marque from the Neupolitan Government, to fit out privateers to ornise in the Adriatic sen.

Advices from Paris of the 8th convey the important fact, that the Franch Government, through their Minister in Madrid, have declared to the King and Government of Spain, they will not in any way interfere with the Constitutional system established in that country," further adding, "that the French territory or frontiers shall not be made use of by any power whitever for the purposes of hostility, or with a view to disturb the order established by an independent nation for the management of its own local concerns?

The Paris Journals received on Priday state, that an affair of outpose took place, in which Gen. Pepe dispersed, with great loss, a regiment of Hungarian Cavalty—that Gen. Frimont was waiting on the defensive for the arrival of a force of reserve from Milan-that insurrection had actually broken out in the marches—and that the rest of Italy was in a ferment—that a conspiracy to establish a constitution in Piedmont, and revolutionize Lombardy, with Prince Carignan (of the Royal Family) at its head, was discovered at Turin; that the Deputy Borelli proposed in the Parliament of Naples to vest in the Prince Regent conjointly, with eight persons possessing the confidence of the nation, a dictatorship—and fastly, that embarrassment and confusion had been caused at Laybuch by the presentation of a note from the British Minister respecting the war in Italy.—A second express brings the still more important news, "that travellers arrived at Paris from Italy, had been overtaken by a courier, who informed them that a great battle had taken place at the foot of Mount Broxo, near Term (in the Papal territory), in which the Neapolitans had been vic-

This latter intelligence wants confirmation. We expect, however, accounts hourly of the first onset of the two opposing armies. The Austrian forces were concentrated upon the western frontier of the Abrugzi, about the 21st or 22nd ult. The division of Walmoden, which had marched along the Adriatic, by Rimini and Sinigaglia, came into communication on the former day, near Foligno, with the vanguard of the General in Chief, Baron Frimont, which thus reinforced, advanced on the 24th in the direction of Spoleto. The right wing of General Frimont, who had murched upon Foligno, by Florence, Arezzo, and Perugia, was covered by the division of Sturterheim, which remained at Civita Castellana, and kept open a communication by the way of Namie and San Geneva. The Neapolitans meanwhile were failing back within their own frontiers, and seemed to be collecting their strength at Aquila.

An Express from Paris arrived yesterday with the following Bulletin, issued by the French Government, on Thursday, announcing the important intelligence of the revolution in Piedmont in favour of the Spanish Constitution:

BULLETIN.—" March 15, 1821.—It has been impossible for the Government longer to conceal the events at Turin, of which it received information by a telegraphic despatch.

"It was on the 10th that the garrison of Alexandria, 10,000 strong, proclaimed the Constitution of Spain. At this news the King of Sardinin wished to march the troops that were at Turin, but they refused, crying, 'The Constitu-tion of the Cortes for ever!' The Prince of Carignan and General Giffenga were sent to Alexandria, but on their arrival they cried, 'The Constitution of the Cortes for ever!' and placed themselves at the head of the movement. In this crisis the King of Sardinia thought to calm the ferment by offering to grant the French charter, but it has been refused. All the garrisons in Piedmont have followed the example of that of Alexandria. We have certain information that the Prince of Crrignan, and General Giffanga, at the head of 25,000 men, have marched for Milan, and it is believed that they would enter that city this day, the 15th of March."
NAPLES, Feb. 20.—The Address of the Parliament to the Prince Regent, on the 16th, in which the King was declared in a state of constraint, contained the following sentence:—" It was a question whether, in such a crisis, we ought to receive fresh powers from our constituents; but the Congress at Lay-bash having signified to us that its resolutions were invevocable, we are bound also to regard the onth that we have taken, to defend the Constitution whilst breath remains to us as irre-

A private letter received in town yesterday, states that the Fiedmontese army have revolted in favour of the Neapolitan

This intelligence is contained in a private letter. s dated the 14th inst. and states that "A telegraphic despatch has been received by the Government, aunouncing that the whole of the Picdmontese troops have risen, and have demanded a free representative Government, and that they should be allewed to march against the Austrians. It was concluded that the reply of the Sardinian Government had not been satisfactory, for the despatch distinctly stated, that the Piedmontese army, amounting to 40,000 men, had marched. Prince Carignan was sent to bring them back; but with little prospect of success." The account adds—"All Italy is in a flame."

A letter from Lisbon, dated March 1, says—"We had an arrival from Madeira yesterday morning, which created the greatest sensation here; no less than the Bishop of the Island, and several other persons of distinction, prisoners, on board an English brig, who were suspected of being inimical to the new order of things."

Madrid, March 2.—Yesterday his Majesty, accompanied by a strong escort, proceeded to the Hall of the Cortes, and pronounced a discourse of which the following are interesting extracts, as they contain a charge against the Spanish Ministry:"However, it is necessary I should inform you, though with much regret, that the ideas of some disaffected person seek to delude the credulous into a notion that I am hostile to the constitutional system, are not unknown to me. Their object is to inspire distrust of my pure intentions and upright conduct. I have sworn to the Constitution, and I have always observed my onth, as far as it depended upon myself. I wish to God every one else had done the same. The outrages and indignities of every kind which have been committed towards me, to the utter disregard and contempt of what is due to order, and to my person, as a constitutional Monarch, are public. I have no fears as to my life, or my safety. God, who reads my heart, watches over one and the other, and will take care of them, as also of the greater and better part of the nation.

"But I cannot, this day, conceal from the Cortes, as princi-pally entrusted with the care of that inviolability which beongs to a Constitutional King, that these insults could not have been repeated if the executive power had displayed all that energy which the Constitution prescribes, and the Cortes de-sire. Want of firmness, and the indifference of many of the Authorities, have occusioned the renewal of such excesses. Should they continue, it will not be surprising if the Spanish nation finds itself engulphed in innumerable evils and mis-

Jamaica Papers to the 20th January, have arrived, and we are happy to learn from them that his Grace the Duke of Manchester continued to gain strength after his severe acci dent. His wound was almost entirely healed, and on the January, he was able to transact business at a Board of Forts and Fortifications which was held. Public meetings were about to be called for the purpose of addressing his Grace, and congratulating him upon his recovery.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

COURT OF CHANCERY, MARCH 13. National Fire Union Society v. Bignold.

Mr. Wetherell asked the Lord Chancellor whether he was to anderstand from what his Lordship said on Saturday that the injunction restraining Mr. Bignold from interfering with the affairs of the above company was to be dissolved. The Lord Chancellor said he was opinion that before the Directors would be entitled to claim an Injunction against the defendant, they must show that they had acted in conformity with the provisions of the deed by which the Company was established. As they had not done so in the present instance, the injunction against Mr. Bignold must be discharged.

By this decision, Mr. Bigonld is re-instated in his office of Secretary to the Institution.

Rowe v. Malthew and Philip Wood.

Mr. Heald was heard at considerable length in opposition to the motion which the Attorney-General made in this case on Saturday. The learned Gentlemen contended, that whether Mr. M. Wood was to be considered in the character of a mortgague or a partner, a large balance was due to him from the plaintiff. The counsel for the plaintiff had asserted, that some of the sums which composed this balance were improperly credited to the defendant. In contradiction to this, Mr. Heald read a variety of facts trom affidavits, which, he contended, proved beyond dispute, that every item of the balance was fairly accounted for. He said that the conduct of Alderman Wood towards the plaintiff had been of the most liberal description. His first connection with the plaintiff commenced in 1812, when, at the solicitation of his brother, Mr. Benjamin Wood, he was induced to afford him pecuniary assistance to a very large amount. The defendant afterwards, deceived by false statements of the plaintiff, who pretended that the mines were capable of yielding a profit of 100,0001., when it was proved they could not return a single shilling, became a pur-clineer of some shares of the mines. Having discovered the deception which had been practised towards him, and being also well assured that the plaintiff, was miscenducting himself in the management of the mines, Mr. Matthew Wood took pos-session of them as mertgagee. The plaintiff now wished to remove Mr. Wood from all controll over the mines, but he, Mr. Heald, trusted the Court would not sanctio, ais demand.

SATERDAY.—This important case was resumed this morning, when Mr. Sidebotham concluded for the defendants.

The Lord Chancellor then observed that he wished to throw out some remarks in the present stage of the case, for the con-tideration of the Attorney-General. He took this to be an appli-cation on the part of the Plaintiff for the Court to appoint a receiver and manager on the mines in question; which application was supported by two affidavits. The case itself was of the nature of an indenture on mortgage, to secure certain menies for which acceptances had been given; and it appeared that the Defendants must abide by their agreement, till Mr. Matthow Wood was freed by some judgment of the Court from the effect of his own act. With respect to the power of sale, it remained as by assignment to Wood, and might be used by him. But the Court was in a singular situation on many points; and it was material to ascertain if the grounds upon which application was made to the Court in 1815 were sufficient grounds for the application now made in 1821. With respect to the bills issued on behalf of the mining firm as alledged by the plaintiff, he understood them to have been blank bills, and he was sorry for it; for he was old enough to remember the time when such blank acceptances would have amounted to nothing in a court of Law; but, unhappily, the Courts at Westminster Hall thought differently, and so it had been ruled in the King's Bench, in order, it must be supposed, to prevent persons from evading bills in any case, which decision, he was sorry to say, had led to the production of much false capital, to the ruin of confiding and unemspecting men, and to the increase of Law

Now there was nothing more to do but to send blank expences. bills up to London, if accredited by any suppo mine, where they were filled up and circulated as the parties haw fit, though such bills were really of no more worth than pieces of paper to be twirled round the thumb. Mere his Lordship went over the particulars of the present case, and remarked on the circumstance of nearly eight thousand pounds charged for commission and agency, for the benefit of Mr. Benjamin Wood, who might certainly be deserving of it, though it must be inferred that they paid better in Cornwall than at some other places he knew. (We regret that our limits will not permit us to follow the Learned Lord in detail.) It was evident, by the agreement, that the Defeadants knew they were partly purchasers in the mines; and, on the other side, with respect to the allegations of the Biaintiff, that the mines were not properly worked, it would be moressury to have the working of mines explained in evidence; for though be had lived, in early life, among mises, be must comfess be did not know what was meant by working them. There was also an account of balances on the mortgage, signed by all parties, the whole including a contract with reference to the supplemental bill. Mortgagees were certainly not bound to risk their fortunes for the benefit of mortgagors. If mismanagement was complained of, the question would be, what that mismanagement was; and if the present case were put upon that, it must be extremely clear, or it would amount to nothing at all. Again, was the decree to be issued on the mortgages as such, or on the partner as such, or on the defendants in capacities? No man, as a partner in such concerns, had a right to have a receiver put upon him, while he continued to fulfil his duty to the copartnership; and, therefore, he doubted whether, in this stage of the business, a receiver could be put on, though regard must be had to what passed in 1816, in connexion with matters since stated to the Court.

ASSIZES.

NORTHAMPTON. Philip Haynes and Mary Clark were tried for the murder of Mr. J. Clark, (husband to the female princer) a farmer at Charwelton with whom Huynes had formerly lived, by shooting him in his yard while cutting some hay. Mrs. Clark was indicted for being accessory to the marder. Haynes fired at his victim from undermeath the thatch of a barn where he lay concented, and on his person was found several letters written by Mrs. Clark to him, urging him to the horrid dead, and promising him marriage if he was not discovered. They were both found guilty on the clearest evidence. Mr. Clark was a man of very considerable property, which he has left wholly to his children, a boy and a girl. The prisoners were sentenced to be hung and their bodies to be dissected. They were executed on Saturday sen'night.

Essex.—The following prisoners were capitally convicted: William Bowtle, Mary Cooke, Thomas Finch, and Thomas Jude, for burglary. The last mentioned prisoner had been a servant to the Rev. John Deedes, of Willaugale Doe, and had broken and entered his master's house after he had been discharged, and stole therein eight shirts and other articles.

John Paul Gooch and Joseph Cooper were convicted of hosse stealing, and William Carter, of stealing a cow.

Charles Lingard, William Hambleton, and William Sans, were indicted for burglariously breaking and entering the dwelling-house of Elzabeth Smith, a widow Lady, residing at Springfield, near Chelmsford, in the night of the 5th inst., and stealing a considerable quantity of silver plate, and other valuable property. Guilty—Death.

Civil Side.—Sifkin and another v. Lambert and another.

—This was an action on the statute 17 Geo. 3. c. 19. against the defendants, as inhabitants of the Hundred of Becontree, for damage done to the house of the plaintiffs, young ladies, keeping a boarding school at Ilford, by a riotous mob, for refusing to illuminate on the 13th November, in favour of the Queen.

Verdicts for the plaintiffs.—Damages 81, 17s.
Verdicts were also obtained by three other inhabitants of llford, namely, Mr. Thompson, the Rev. Mr. Glover, and Mr. Wilcox, for similar injuries.

MISCELLANEOUS.

His Majesty will come to town on Monday, and, it is said, honour the Opera of Tuesday with his presence. On Wednesday his Majesty goes to the Concert of Ancient Music.

The cushion on which the royal crown is to be borne at the coronation has just been completed. It is of rich crimson Genoa velvet, with a border of gold embroidery inlaid with precious stones, from which depends a superb deep bullion fringe of gold, with tassels en suite.

HIS MAJESTY'S INTENDED VISIT TO IRELAND.—(From the Dublin Evening Post)-"We can state, at length, and we believe upon the most unquestionable authority, that there is no longer any reason to doubt the accuracy of the report of the intended visit of his Majesty to Ireland. The officers of his Majesty's Household have declared that orders have been already issued for the necessary preparations to be made. It is said that Dublin Castle is to be fitted up for the residence of his Majesty; that all the Foreign Ministers will be required to attend the Court to be held in Dublin; and that it will be signified to those noble families who are most in the habit of being in the society of His Majesty, that their presence will be acceptable to his Majesty. Thus there will be the most numerous, opulent, and splendid assemblage of great per-sonages in Dublin that has ever yet appeared in Ireland.— This royal visit will, in every way, be attended with great public advantages; it will tend to conciliate the feelings of the people to the British throne and connection; to elevate the rank which His Majesty's Irish subjects hold in the United Empire; to gratify the more opulent ranks; and to relieve, by a great expenditure, much of the distress which prevails in Dublin. We cannot forbear again congratulating the city of Dublin and the kingdom of Ireland upon this most gratifying and important occasion. The advantages to the country, and and important occasion. The advantages to the country, and we presume humbly to add, to the King, will be invaluable. More than a hundred years have elapsed since Ireland saw a King, and then she witnessed her fields laid in blood, and her liberties were smote to the earth. The King of Ireland will now arrive in all the pomp and circumstance of glorious peace—he will be attended by most of his Ministers, by a great body of the English nobility and gentry, by the great officers of his Household, and by the representatives of all the sovereigns in Europe—he will come like a great King amongst the most warm-hearted and enthusiastic of his subjects—he will witness. their loyalty-with a truly royal magnanimity he will confer upon them those rights which have been so long delayed. Such a King will live for ever in the hearts of a brave and grateful people."

We are desired by a Lady of rank, connected with one of the first estimable families in this country, to communicate to our readers the following gratifying particulars: - As a demonstration of unaffected attachment, as a tribute of the pro-foundest respect and duty, towards our dear and venerable Sowereign, a number of personages of high rank, among whom the ladies are completious, are determined upon giving a most distinguished reception to His Majesty, on the occasion of his auspicious visit to Ireland; and they felt persuaded that their arrangements will be universally concurred in.—On the Sovereign's arrival, they will be in attendance on His Majesty in their carriages; and immediately on his Majesty coming on shore, they will alight, and form an avenue, lining the read in a deep, and compact hody, for his passage. The Ladies will form a line in front, and will be dressed in gay and splendid tabinets, the manufacture of their own city, and each will wear, in a white silk hat, a plume of four ostrich feathers. As His Majesty advances, the Nobility and Gentry will return to their carriages, and follow His Majesty in his progress to Dublin-joining in the cheers of the myriads who will doubtless assemble to hail the arrival of their good and gracious Monarch Gentlemen, it is requested, may be dressed on the occasion in Irish manufacture; and, as it will be gratifying to our beloved King, that the humblest artisan may benefit by His Majesty's visit to this country, the ladice dresses will, in every article, except feathers, consist of the produce of the national industry.— Dublia Patriot.

111.

It is reported that the Crown of Christophe was stolen by some of his subjects and sold to an American captain for 12,000 dollars. It has not yet been recovered, MAGISTERIAL APPOINTMENT. - J. Hardwicke, Esq. late Barrister of the Oxford Circuit, has been appointed as Magistrate at Shadwell Police Office, in the room of George Storey, Esq. lately retired.

The Lords of the Admiralty have, by order, bearing date the 10th instant, signified to the Commander in Chief at Portsmouth, that his Majesty has been most graciously pleased to command that in future the Union Jack, or Flag Colour of the United Kingdom, when hoisted on board any of His Majesty's ships or vessels of wor, in the ports or barbours of Ireland, and having on board the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, shall bear in the centre of it the escutcheon of the arms of Ireland, viz. a

It will be seen by the list of Dover departures, published in the Morning Papers, that the Hon Keppell Craven has left England for the continent.

A Bill is now pending in the Commons to enable the Judges of the Court of King's Benek to sit before the Term, and to empower the Lord Chancellor to nominate any two Barons of Exchequer to sit in the Chancery Court, while his Lordship attends appeal cases in the Peers.

A suit was commenced during the last year in the Consistory Court, at York, against the Rev. T. Cotterill, Minister of St. Paul's, Sheffield, for having introduced into that church a selection of Psalms and Hymns. The declared object of the suit was to prevent the use of any other metrical compositions than fhose of Sternhold and Hopkins, and Tate and Brady. After a long and impurtial hearing, the Judge of the Court recommended a reference of the whole matter in dispute to the Archbishop of York, in which recommendation, Mr. Cotterill most readily acquiesced, thinking it a point of great importance to obtain the sanction of such high autilority, and knowing from an interview with His Grace, that he was friendly to the use of Hymns. His Grace most readily undertook, and most promptly executed, the work of mediation: and not only prepared a selection of Psalms and Hymns for public worship, but like-wise presented a thousand copies for the use of the congregation of St. Paul's Church. A similar process to that instituted against Mr. Cotterill, was threatened against the Ministers of two other congregations, who had introduced Mr. Cotterill's selection, unless they would adopt thus recommended by His Grace. In order to prevent the possibility of dissatisfaction in those congregations, it was found necessary to present copies gratuitously to those likewise. The selection was thus introduced into the three churcles with the most perfect good understanding of all parties; and, it is hoped, that the manner in which this important suit has terminated will be the means of essentially promoting the general good of religion, and the best interests of the Church of England.

THE ARMY .- BOMBAY GENERAL ORDERS .- General Order's of the Hon. the Governor in Council, Bombay Castle August 16th, 1820 .- The Hon, the Governor in Council announces to the army, the appointment, on the Lith ult., by His Excellency the Most Noble the Commander-in-Chief in India, of Major-General Lionel Smith, C. B. to the Staff of the army of this Presidency, in the room of Major-General Sir William Grant Keir, K. M. T. transferred to the Staff at Fort William. Major-General Sir Wm. Grant Keir was placed on the Bombay Staff on the 24th of Jun. 1817, since which period the Governor in Council has had occasion to avail himself of his professional talents in the command of the Field force in Guzerat, in 1817; on an expedition against the Sawant Warre Principality, in 1810; in Cutch, in the same year, and recently against the Jeasmee Pirates, in the Gulph of Persia; in all of which important services the Government expressed its applause of the ability and zeal which marked the Major-General's qualifications for command. In adverting to those testimonials of approbation which have been bestowed on Major-General Sir Wm. Grant Keir, while in command of desachments of the Bombay army, the reputation of which he has contributed so materially to enhance, the Governor in Council cannot allow of the Major-General's removal from the Bembay Staff without an assurance of his high respect and esteem for the private and the public character of that distinguished officer, and recording his sense of the gallantry and order with which he has uniformly devoted his exertions to the promotion of the public interests.—By order of the Governor in Council, (Signed). J. B. SIMSON, Sec. to Government.

Thursday morning another detachment of the 6th Royal Veteran Battalion landed at Leith from Harwich, and marched into Pdinburgh Castle. Seven companies are now there, the other three are stationed at Landguard Fort, Heligoland, and the Isle of Man.

Wednesday, the 12th Regiment embarked at Gosport for Guernsey.

The 73d Regiment are daily expected home from the Island of Ceylon; they are to march, on debarking, to their depote at the Regiment is the Broyle Barracks, where recruiting for the Regiment is going on briskly.

e Nautilus transport is arrived at Portsmouth from Corfu and Malta, with about 200 troops, detachment of different Regiments, to be dishanded.

The 1st Battalion of the 3d Regiment of Foot Guards, commanded by Lieut.-Colonel Cotton, arrived at Plymouth on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and are gone into Mari-borough, and New and Old Granby Barracks.

THE QUEEN. The following is Account of all "an Mories expended, touching any proceedings had respecting her Majesty the Queen, from the year 1817 to the present time." It was presented to the House of Lords, and ordered to be printed, on the 12th inst .--

18,100 15 0 46,000 0

60,000 0 0

on the 12th inst.—

The Total Sum supplied out of the Scoret Service Money, from the commencement of the proceedings, is.

The Total Sum issued to Mr. Maule, the Solicitor of the Treasury, out of the Grant of Parliament for Civil Contingencies, for the expence of the proceedings, is.

The Total Sum issued to Mr. Vizard, her Majesty's Solicitor, out of the Grant of Parliament for satisfying certain Charges upon the Consolidated Pand, or Civil List, for the expence of those proceedings, is.

To his Majesty's Great Chamberlain (Lady Willoughby de Bresby, acting by her deputy, D. W. Fellowes, Esq.) out of the said Grant for Civil Contingencies, for extraordinary expences incurred by him on this occasion.

To Sir Robert Baker (Chief Magistrate of the Howstreet Police and Horse Patrole) out of the said Grant for Civil Contingencies, towards the extra expences of preserving the peace during those proceedings. 2,250 0 0 3,103 10 0

Whitehall Treasury Chambers, Feb. 15, 1821, (Signed) £129,454 5 6 R. LUSHINGTON. The Spanish General Morillo arrived in town on Sunday, on his way to Spain.

Mr. Alderman Garrett was returned on Monday, by the Lord Mayor, as duly elected Alderman of Bridge Ward; the Monu-ment was illuminated in consequence, a thing that has not occurred for the last forty years.

Wednesday a Court of Directors was held at the East India when Capt. J. Blanshard was sworn into the command of the Marquis of Wellington, consigned to Madras and

One of the chapels near the western entrance of St. Paul's Cathedral is fixed upon for the erection of the cenotaph to the Princess Charlotte.

A paragraph appeared in the Morning Chronicle, on Monday last, stating that "copies of a letter from a gallant Marquis, who distinguished biaself at the battle of Waterloo, addressed to the highest personage in the kingdom, on the subject of the Queen, are handed about in fashionable circles, and it is said, has excited considerable surprise in the quarter to which it is addressed." We have authority to contradict, most unequivocally, the whole of the above paragraph. Not any letter whatever upon the subject of the Queen, has been written by the Noble Marquis alluded to.

We are much gratified with the performances of Mr. Alexandre, the most astonishing ventriloquist we have heard. gentleman performed on Thursday to a private party at the Mansion House; and the variety of his performances, and the illusion which he practised, not only surprised but delighted the company assembled. We have heard him with pleasure in private company, and really his powers of ventriloquism are such as to create indescribable sensations. Indeed he has, we understand, received testimonials from most of the crowned heads on the continent, among whom may be enumerated the Kings of Prussia, Saxony, and Buvaria; the Prioce of Orange, and Prince Wrede; the Dukes of Cumberland and Cambridge the Archbishop of Vienna, &c. &c. have honoured him with their approbation. Meduls have been presented to him from many of those powers, which furnishes the best testimonials of his capabilities, but the public will have an opportunity of judging of his powers on Wednesday next, at the London Tavern, where, we understand, he means to display the astonishing gifts with which he has been favoured.

ADVERTISEMENT,]—LITERATURE.—THE RETROSPECTIVE REVIEW, No. 5.—We took occasion to advert, a short time age to the merits of this valuable periodical. A new Number has just appeared, no way inferior to its predecessors; and containing, among several excellent articles, a review of a very curious Latin work, which had never before fallen under our observation. It is a funciful classification of the Orders of Monks, after the manner of Linnaus, and is written with much point and spirit. The following is the selentific definition and description of the Genus Monachus, its difference from man, and its apparent use.

Definitio. -- An animal, authropomorphic-hooded-howling by night —thirsting.

Descriptio.—Body erect, biped—back curved—head pressed—always hooded, and clothed in every part, (si in speciebus quibusdam caput, pedes, anum, manusque andas covetous, fetid, filthy, dranken, lazy, more patient of want than lubour. At the rising and setting of the sun, and especially at night, they congregate, and when one ories out, all cry—run together at the sound of a bell—walk always in couples—are clothed in wool—live by rapine and plunder—assert that the world was made for them alone—carry on their amours clandestinely—do not marry—expose their youngfight with their species, and attack their enemies unawares from.

The female differs little from the male, except in having her head always veiled- is cleaner, less drunken, and never leaves her home, which she keeps clean. When young, she grasps at all sorts of playthings, stares about her on all sides, and salutes the males by nodding. When older, she becomes spiteful and malignant; and when angry, agitates her jaw-bones incessantly, with open mouth. When called, the females answer "Ape,"
When allowed, they chatter promiscuously; and if a bell rings,

Differentia-Man speaks, reasons, wills. The monk is often mute, has no reason or will, is governed solely by the orders of his superiors. The head of man is erect,
Os homini sublime dedit, columque tueri

Justit. et erectos ad sidera tollere vultus.

The head of the monk is depressed, with the eyes turned to the ground—man seeks his bread by the sweat of his brow, the monh grows fat by laniness—man dwells among men, the monk seeks solitude, and hides himself, avoiding the light. it follows, that the monk is a genus of mammatia distinct from man, intermediary between him and the ape; approaching chich it from s manner of living.

"Simia quam similis turpissima bestia vobis!"
Usus.—An useless burthen to the earth. " Fruges consumere nati."

POLICE.

Bow-Starkt.—A foreigner, named Kolpfb, accompanied by an aged woman, was brought to this office late on Tuesday night, by Lavender and a party of foreign officers, with a great quantity of luggage, in two postchaises with four horses He is a partner in a banking and mercantile house at Leipsic; and during the absence of the partners, he ab sconded with all the negotiable bills placed with them a bankers, which he converted into gold at Hamburgh, Amster dam, thotterdam, &c. to the amount of 30,000t. and with this treasure he sailed for England.—Persons properly authorized to detain him, were despatched to this country with instructions to apply for aid to our Magistracy. Lavender was oedered to afford them every assistance; and he having ascertained that he was expected to land at Gravesend, on Saturday, immediately proceeded thicker, where he found that the object of bis persuit had left for Liverpool the evening before. He followed directly, and apprehended M. Kolpfh on board an American vessel, in which be had taken a passage for himself and mother, to New York. He was also fortunate enough to accure the whole of the property carried off. The whole of the par-ties went before the Saxon Minister, Baron de Just, when M. Kolpfn gave up the property; but he, nevertheless, still remains in custody.

MARLBOROLOH-STREET .- Wednesday, T. Gammon, a coachman, was charged with the wilful marder of a woman, aged 70, at Seven Dials. It appeared that the prisoner, accompanied by another man on the box, was driving on at a brisk rate, when the deceased was knocked down by the horses. about eleven o'clock on Saturday night. The wheels passed over her head, and two young men conveyed her to the Mil-dlesex Hospital, where she died in about twenty-four house after.—He was remanded.

PROVINCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

GLASGOW.—We are happy to observe that the effects of the late improvement in trade has been again experienced in the Bazzar. Phough this is the senson in which eggs become plentiful, they rose last market day sixpence a handred. Fresh butter rose a penny a pound. Cheese rose from one shilling to one and fourpence a stone, and salt butter sold as high twenty shillings a stone, being a rise of 23. a stone sin market-day.

Hull.—The manufactured cotton and cotton twists sent from here yearly from 1814 to the present time has much increased in amount. The quantity of twist exported has increased from seven to seventeen millions of pounds; and that of cotton goods, from nine millions to nearly fifty millions of yards! the quantity of the latter being bulf as much more in 1820, than in any other year!

INVERNESS.—We are truly happy to understand that those indications of returning prosperity, which are now visible in Manchester and Glasgow, and also in the principal seats of the great woollen manufactories, are felt even in this remote narter. It is remarked, both by commercial travellers, and those connected with agriculture, that they recollect of no season in which the payment of accounts has been more prompt, or fresh orders more liberally given.

MANCHESTER.—We received on Thursday the following communication:—I am happy to inform you that several large orders have been received from the Continent within flues few days, and, on the whole, business is certainly improving.

Paisagy.—Perhaps a more general and extensive demandar for such a variety of elegant and durable fabrics was never ex-perienced. It is certain that more hunds were never employed. and engaged with so much industry in the manufacturing of these goods. An additional increase of workmen is still re-, , quirel, and an uncommon vivacity is every where manifemed. A Sherrows.—The dirty tide of political infatuation is completely turned in this neighbourhood. We now hear nothing; of Majocchis and Demouts, but all join in one common cause, breathing forth loyalty and attuchment to our beloved Sovereign.

The foundation stone of the new market about to be built in this town, was laid last week by Colonel Tynte, M. P. Provincial Grand Master of Somersetshire, assisted by a large body of freemasons, with much ceremony.

Suicide. - A Coroner's Inquest was held on Monday night, at the house of Robert Dalrymple, Bsq. in Manchester-square, who put a period to his existence with a large pistol. The deceased had dressed himself or Sunday to go to Church. While the butler was waiting to lat his master out, he heard the report of a pistol. He ran up and found the deceased lying on the floor with the pistol firmly grasped in his hand, and his head dreadfully fractured. He died about two o'clock. The Rev. Mr. Wright had known the deceased for nineteen years; he spoke to the deraugement of his inind, evidenced when on a visit to him at his seat in Bucks, in September liss; he used to mutter to himself, and exclaim "Oh, God!" He could question in conversation nor enjoy the sports of the field.—.
General Poyntz gave similar testimony.— The Jury returned at werdlet of Mexial derangement.—The decensed was described a gentleman of a most pious and amiable mind .- Mr. Robert' Dairymple was the only son of Admiral Dairymple, a gentles man who distinguished himself in the naval service. At an early age young Dulrymple showed considerable powers of mind; he was placed by his father with an eminent conveyancer, under whom he made considerable improvement in than branch of the profession: at the age of twenty he married his first cousin, Miss Browning, the grand-daughter of a gentle-man of property, residing near Epsom, in Surrey; to this lade, he was most affectionately attached; but before they had beed married twelve months she died of a decline. His grief for the loss of this young lady is not to be described, and little doubt but that his excessive melancholy for her loss (although after the lapse of more than twenty years) was the cause of his lamentable death. He has often been observed to gaze on her picture for hours together, and at last has been beard to exclaim, "O God! what a loss I've had!." He always wore her miniature in his beaom, and in his will he ordered, that whenever he died, his body should be opened, and that the miniature of his wife should be tied round his heart, which has been done. He has not left a legrey, or even a remembrance, to one of his relations, connections, or friends, but has bequeathed the whole of his considerable property to an elderly lady, who is in no ways either related or connected with him, and with whom he was but slightly acquainted.

ADVERTISEMENT .- SPRING FASHIONS .- Curling the bairstill continues to prevail, indeed, it may be called an universal fashion, the effect of a fine head of bair strikes every beholder with admiration, and has always been a favorite theme for the artist's peneil, and the poet's muse, and of all modern inventions for displaying it in the most fascinating manner, Atkinson's Curling Fluid has long stood pre-eminent, by applying it after curling the hair, it counteracts the harshness which her irons produce, makes it soft and glossy as silk, and keeps the curl firm during exercise in dancing or walking, or in damp weather. It also removes the dandriffe, prevents the hair falling off or turning grey, and is perhaps the greatest regenerator of hair in the whole areans of nature. It is sold by most respectable Perfumers, but as there are some very near indistions, the following signature is on the label of the genuine, "James Atkinson, 44, Gerrard Street, London."

ADVERTISEMENT .... "The British Review." ANYBRILEMENT.... The British Review," "The Antijacobin," "The Loyalists' Magazine," &c. have duly apreciated the spirited and loyal efforts of Mr. Harral, who in his
"Henry the Eighth, and George the Fourth," now in its second edition, has placed the Queen's case in its most correct and striking point of view. This volume is admirably adapted for the use of Colonial readers, is also, from its legal, historical, and chronological display, essential to every possessor of the detailed and official reports of the trial.—Mr. Harral, it is scarcely necessary to add, is also the nuthor of "Anna Boleyn and Caroline of Brunswick," the "Demon of the Age, byc.

	SHIP N	EWS.
Arrived Mails	Pue	Arrived	Mails	Due
(Dublin			.Lisben
l Waterford			.Malta
l Guernsey			France
Holland			.Hamburg	b 1
Gottenbur	gh 2		.Flanders

DEAL, March 16.—Wind S.—Arrived and sailed for the River, the Isabella, McNiel, from Charleston—sailed 17th February; and Hottentet, Hawes, frem Jamaica Came down from the River and remain, the Gritteries, Avery, for New York: Demerara packet, Venables, for Demerara; Astrea, Hedgeon, for Trieste; Agnes, Cundy, for Lisbon; Gleaner, Burdwell, for Bourdeaux; and Williams, Petty, for St. Michael's.

Michael's.

HARWICH, March 16.—Arrived the Prince of Orange packet from Holland; Lord Nelson and Beaufoy ditto, from Cuxhaveu, all with PLYMOUTH, March 15.—Wind S.E.—Arrived the Isabella, Niekols, from Rio Janeire for London. Sailed the Hannah, Webber, for Brest; John, King, for Jamaica; and Pelter and Anna, Chambers, for Batavia.

Batavia. FraLMOUTH, March 14.—Wind S.—Arrived the Enterprise, Hosken; Two Brothers and Sisters, Birch; and Bideford, McDenald, from London. Sailed the Romulus, Crawford, for Barbadoes and St. Vincont; Nettingham, Hilvard, for Gibraltar; and Isabella, Gregson, for Bourdeaux.

NORWICH UNION FIRE INSURANCE SOCIETY,

NORWICH UNION FIRE INSURANCE SOCIETY,

Established 1797.

PATRONS:

The Mest Neble the Duke of BEAUFORT.

The Most Noble the Duke of BEAUFORT.

The Right Hon. Eatl CRAYEN.

The Right Hon. Lord SALTOUN, &c. &c.

TRUSTEES:

Sir GEORGE JERNINGHAM, Bart. Cestesay, near Norwich.

Sir JOSEPH SCUTT, Bart. Great Barr Hall, Staffordshire.

RALPH CALDWELL, Esq. Hilborewe, Norfolk.

EDW. W. MARTIN, Esq. 34, Upper Seymout-st. London, &c. &c. &c.

DIRECTORS:

PETER LE NEVE FOSTER, Esq. Great Witchingham, Norfolk.

HAMMOND FISK, Esq. Norwich.

ALEXANDER THWAITES, Esq. Norwich.

JAMES ADAMS, Esq. Norwich, &c. &c. &c. &c.

TREASURERS:

THOMAS, HENRY, and WILLIAM DAY, Esqrs. Bankers, Norwich.

SECRETARY:

SAMUEL BIGNOLD, Esq. Sarrey-street, Norwich,

"TYHIS SOCIETY insures Buildings, Goods, Merchandize, and Effects, from Loss by Fire. Insurances are affected in all parts of the United Kingdom, except in the City of London, or within the Bills of Mortality.

The present yearly income exceeds 60,0001, and is rapidly increasing.
The new Insurances effected within the last year amounted to 2,000,000 and a half of Proporty.

The distinguishing feature of the Suciety's Plan is, that at the expiration of Seven Years, every Member becomes entitled to an aliquot Share of the Surplus Fremiums which remain after discharging all claims on Cal Society. The Gurplus has never fallen below 251, per Cent. on the Premiums pale by the Parties inauring.

The This Society never had any connexion with the National Union Fire Office, Bridge-street, Blackfriars, or with any other Fire Insurance

Office.

NORWICE UNION LAPE INSURANCE SOCIETY,

NORWICH UNION LIFE INSURANCE SOCIETY.

PATRONS:
The Most Noble the Duke of BEAUFORT.
The Right Hen. Earl CRAVEN.
The Right Hen. Earl CRAVEN.
The Right Hen. Earl SALITOUN, &c. &c. &c. &c.
TRUSTEES:
Sir GEORGE JERNINGHAM, Bart, Costessy, near Norwich.
Bir JOSEPH SCOTT, Bart, Great Barr Hall, Staffordshire.
RALPH CALDWELL, Esq. Hilberowe, Nerfolk.
EBW. W. MARTIN, Esq. 28, Upper Seymeur-st. Lendon, &c. &c.
DIRECTORS:
PRESIDENT—JOHN PATTESON, Esq. Alderman, Norwich.
JOHN S. PATTESON, Esq. Alderman, Norwich.
HAMMOND FISK Esq. Norwich
ALEXANDER THWAITES, Esq. Nerwich.
JAMES NOSWORTHY, Esq. Norwich, &c. &c. &c.
TREASURERS:
CMARLES THOMPSON, Esq. CHARLES BARCLAY, Esq.
JEREMIAH IVES, Esq. Parkers, Norwich.
ACTEARY:
RICHARD MORGAN, Esq. Norwich.
THIS SOCIETY, although only established in 1808, ha

RICHARD MORGAN, Esq. Norwich.

THIS SOCIETY, although only established in 1808, has embodied 5,000 Lircs, and is in the annual receipt of 100,000l. from I remiums on Insurance, besides 30,000l. per annum from the produce of six Capital, which is invested part in the Public Funds, and part on approved real Secarity.

The institution is founded on the equitable principle of mutual guarantee. A Benus of 20 per cent, on the Premium paid by each Member was declared in 1815; and, from the present prosperous state of the leathlishment, the next Boaus in 1822, may be expected to be much more considerable.

Tatanisment, no next sources of the National Union Insurance considerable.

This Society has no connexion with the National Union Insurance foosiety, Bridge-street, Blackfriars, and the only Offices in London at which it transacts business, are 16, Waterloo-place, Pall Mall; and 21, Breahn-lane, Cornbill.

The London Committee sit every Friday, from 12 till 2 o'clock, at the Office, 16, Waterloo-place, Pall Mall.

The Contract of the Contract

TAYS and BELTS.—ROBINSON and VISTIRIN submit to the free inspection of Ladies their numerons Patterns in fashionable CORBETS & CHILDREN'S STAYS, appropriate to every shape, which they engage to fit and set well, however difficult the figure. ELASTIC IBELTS, which reduce corpulence, visceral culargement, umbilical sternia, local dropsy, and other accidents, relieve and strengthen abdominal debility, lassitude, and relaxation, and afferd beneficial support after accountsement. PATENT STAYS, to prevent and cure deformatics, improve defective figures, counteract and remove spinal contortious, vartebral weakness and irregularities, and support and cure persons away, invisibly rendering them perfectly straight and shapely, without any perniebous steel, pudding, or pressure. Ladies in any part of the Kingdom instructed by letters to send measures.

Observe the names and direction, as this Advertisement is quoted, imitated; and even unblushingly copied verbatin by unskifful and incatable persons.—T. Vork-street, Cavent Garden, London.

A ROWLAND and SON respectfully causion the Public

A. ROWLAND and SON respectfully caution the Public against spirious Articles. Under their Names Impostors have used their Imitations, A. Rowlandson, which deception renders in recessary to observe the true signature. A. ROWLAND and SON, in feed Ink, which is wrote on each Bottle of their Genuine Articles, as reliques:

ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL, the Original and Genuine, which for many years has been universally admired, and is acknowledged to be the best and cheapent article for naurishing the Hair, promoting a luxuriant growth, and rendering it clegant and beautiful. Its superior and tried virtues have gained it the patronage of Royalty and many Noble Personages, and is attested by an immense multitude of witnesses. Price 3s. 6d.; 7s.; 10s. 6d.; and patronage of Royaty and many Price 3s. 6d.; 7s.; 10s. 6d.; and One Guinea per Bottle.

Also, ROWLAND's ESSENCE OF TYRE.

By merely wetting the Hair with this Preparation, the Proprietors Parrant to produce immediately a perfect change in RED or GREV HAIR, WHISKERS, EYE-BROWS, &c. to a beautiful glossy and permanent Brown or Black, imitating the exact natural colour. Washing makes this Dye the more durable. Ladies or Gentlemen may dye their Itair with ease and secresy. Price 4s.; 7s. 6d.; and 10s. 6d.

Sold, Wholeslae, Retail, and for Exportation, by the Sele Proprietors, A. ROWLAND and SON, corner of Kirby-street, the first turning on the right in Hatton-garden, Holborn, London; and by appealment, by all Perfuners and Medicine Venders throughout Europe.

Ask for Rowland's Oil, or Rewland's Dye, and observe the Signature on the label to sach bettle, "A ROWLAND and SON."

Just published, price is, a new and improved Edition of THE HEROIC EPISTILE from BARTOLOMEO to CAROLINE, to which is now added, THE LADY'S REPLY.

"Furens quid formina passit."—Virg.

"Her Majesty the Queen is in a passion."—Tom Thumb.

By The disgualing details which have averted modest eyes from the Barrative of the late surious proceedings, lose half their grossaces when shaded by the gauze vell of verse; and in this shape an historical record may be preserved from which the most delicate reader need not shrink.

Published by W. Wright 48 Float-street Published by W. Wright, 46, Fleet-street.

Published by W. Wright, 46, Fleet-street.

BURGESS's NEW SAUCE for general purposes, having given such great approbation, and the demand for it continuing to increase, JOHN BURGESS and SON beg most respectfully to offer this their best acknowledgments to the Public for their liberal patronage of the same: its utility and great convenience in all climates, has recommended it to the most distinguished foreign connexious, who have all spoken highly in its recommendation.—It is prepared by them ONLY; and for preventing disappointments to families, all possible care has been resorted to, by each bottle being sealed upon the cork with their firm and address, as well as each label having their signature, without which it eannot be genuine.

JOHN BURGESS and SON'S long established and much-esteemed ESSENCE of ANCHOVIES, continues to be prepared by them after the same manner that has given the greatest satisfaction for many years.—Warehouse, 107, Strand, corner of the Savoy-steps, London.—The original Fish-Sauce Warehouse.

SUPERB BEAVER HATS, of the first Fushion, combining original Fish-Sauce Warehouse.

SUPICRB BEAVER HATS, of the first Fashion, combining beauty of colour which will not change, elegance of shape they cannot lose, and a durability unequalled.—No tissue in London that buys and sells on credit, can offer such a Hat to public notice; Gontlemen, therefore, who have cause to complain of high price and bad quality, may now purchase a hat superior to any other, price 28s manufactured by GALON and CO. 424, Strand, corner of Bedford-street, and 19, Collegegreen, Bublin.

URLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brussels fabric), 147. Strand, near Somerset House, removed from 392. Strand. C. F. URLING and CO. beg to inferre the Fashionable World, that they have prepared for the Seasen a various and extensive Assortment of their PATENT LACE DRESSES, from three Guineas to one hundred Guineas each; some of which, from recent improvements, they humbly presume to compare with the most perfect febriga productions. Alse a great variety of Vells, Scarfs, Squares, Laces, Nets, &c. of every description. This pseudiarity clear and trausparent Article having, is the higher sircles, superseded the use of common Lace, which becomes rough and fall of fibre on the first washing, the Patentees respectfully apprise the Public, that the latter is frequently starched to conceal its defects, and make it resemble Urling's Lace, which, therefore, can only be relied upon as genuine at their Wholesale and Retail Establishmont in Lendon, or of the Country Dealers supplied by them. Every Article is distinguished by a Seal, with the Patentee's Initials, "G. F. U. and Co." and the words, "by the (late) Queen's authority." Specimens, shewing the superiority of Urling's Lace orec common Lace, may be seen in Ackermann's Repessiory, La Belle Assemblee, and other fashionable works, and may be had gratis, by application, post-paid, to G. F. Urling and Co.

Country Dealers supplied apon the next liberal terms.—Manufastory, Basford, Nottinghamshire. URLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brussels fabric), ARTIFICIAL TEETH, on an unprecedented principle, by Mr. GRAY, Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, in London, constructed so as to answer all the purposes of the human Teeth, in mastication, articulation, appearance, &c. and to remain perfectly secure in their places by the pressure of the atmosphere; thereby avoiding planing to stamps, tying, twisting wires, or fastening springs to the adjoining teeth, or any attachment whatsoever to the remaining teeth; and consequently, instead of injuring, afford them support. These Artificial Teeth may be taken out, and replaced by the wearer with the greatest facility. To those who require whole or half stat, Mr. G. undertakes, at his own risk, to furnish pieces which shalf answer all the purposes above described, without the annoying incumbrance of the spiral springs, which are usually attached to such pieces.—25, Old Burlingtonstreet.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES, for LOWNESS of SPIRITS, &c.

THESE LOZENGES have been highly approved, and confidently recommended for some years past, in lowners of spirits, and increased irritability of the nervous system, in the sick or nervous head-ache, inflammatory and putrid sore throats, thirst and drysess of the tungue and palate, and in all cases where the Camphor Julop is advised, these Camphorated Lezenges may be taken with superior advantage; they are also a powerful Antisceptie, and are therefore an admirable preventive against infection, and the effects of damp weather.

Prepared and sold by J. Shepherd, at his Warehouse for the true Ipeacutanha Lozenges, No. 176, Fleet-street, London, in bottles, at 2s. 6d. 4s. 6d. and 18s. each. CAMPHOR LOZENGES, for LOWNESS of SPIRITS, &c.

The Great Restorative to Health is MANN'S APPROVED MEDICINE, sold in Bettles at 2s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. each, Buty included; engraved on the Stamp, "Thos. Mann, Horsham, Sussex," to counterfeit which is Felony.

is Felony.

A S COUGHS and COLDS are so prevalent in this King-A dom, no Family should be a moment without this Medicine, to the virtue of which the most honourable testimeny has been horne, being recommended by Physicians, and patranised by Ladies and Gentlemen of the first distinction; it may be taken by the linfant in the first week, to the 'Aged in any state: it strengthens the Cost off the Steumach, helps ligestien, creates an Appetite, and reminiates the whole Frame. Sold, wholesale and retail, by the Preprietor, Horsham, Susaex; and may be had in London of Hueson and Co. 27, Haymarket; Sutton and Co. 10, Bow Church yard; Newberry and Sens. 43, St. Paul's, and 29, Dame-street, Dablin: Butler, 4, Cheapside: Edwards, 68, St. Paul's, Barclay and Sens, 42, Long-lane, Smithfield; Bacon, 158, Oxford-street; E. Newberry, Curner of St. Paul's; Tutt, Royal Exchange: Clark, 365, High-street, Borough; Ward, 324, Holborn; Vade, 46, Cernhill; and by the principal Vendors of Medicine in the United Kingdom.

269. High-street, Borough; Ward, 324, Holhorn; Vade, 46, Cernhill; and by the principal Vendors of Medicine in the United Kingdom.

[THE First Production in the World for the TOOTH ACHE, and preserving and beautifying the TRETH and GUMS.—Patronized by her Reyal Righness the late DUCHESS of YORK, his Excellency the DUKK of SAN CARLOS, the Spanish Ambassador, and most of the Nobility.—ROWLAND'S ALSANA EXTRACT, or ABYSSINIAN SPECIFIC for the Teeth and Gums.—This invaluable Specific has been in high estimation for many years, and recommended by the first Physicians.—Its properties are truly wenderful; it imme diately relieves the most violent TOOTH-ACHE, cleanses and beautifies the Teeth and Gums, and preserves them from decay; prevents Decayed Teeth-giving pain, removes the Tartar from the Teeth, fastess thous that are leose, and makes the Teeth bandtifully white and uniform; cleanses the Seurry from the Gums, renders them firm and healthy, refershes the muth during Disease after Medicine, and imparts a sweetness to the breath. It is perfectly innesent, 80 THATA CHILD MAY TAKE IT, yet contains those incestimable properties, that if constantly used, will render the Teeth and Guma sound, beautiful, and FREE FROM PAIN to the LATEST PERIOD of LIFE. It is an excellent stomachie.—Price 2s. 9d 4s. 6d. and 10s. 6d, per bottle.

Sold, wholesale, retail, and for exportation, by the sole Proprieters, A. ROWLAND and SON."

"A. ROWLAND and SON."

SELECT ARTICLES for the TOILET.

SELECT ARTICLES for the TOILET.

A TKINSON'S CURLING FLUID, long known to the Nobility and Gentry as an elegant substitute for Oils, Pomatums, and Extracts. It should never be omitted after curling the hair, as it counteracts the dryness which hot irons produce, makes the hair soft and glessy as the finect silk, and keeps the curl firm during exercise in dancing or walking, or in damp weather. It also removes dandriffe, prevents the hair falling off or changing colour, and is so efficacious for restoing its growth, that it is usually prescribed by Physicians, when other means have proved ineffectual. Price 3s. 6d. 10s. 6d. and one Guinea.

Guinea.

ATKINSON'S VEGETABLE DYE, changes gray or red hair on the head or whiskers to a brown or black, which washing, &c. instead of removing, renders more permanent, price 5s. 10s 6d. and 21s.

removing, renders more permanent, price os. 10s od. and 21s.

ATKINSON'S AMBROSIAL SOAP, made by a new process, which divests it of all alkaline impurities; it makes the hands soft and white, and prevents them chapping in cold weather, price 1s. a square.
Sold by Jas. Atkinson, perfumer, 44. Gerard-street, Sohe-square;
Gamie and Pierce, 57. Bond-street; Davison, Fleet-street, Rigge, 65, Chappide, and most Parfumers.
CAUTION.—As there are several imitations, the genuine has the following signature, "James Atkinson, 44, Gerard-street, London."

LUNDON MARKETS

CORN EXCHANGE, FRIDAY, MARCH 16.
WE have had a good supply of Grain in general, both from our own coast and Ireland, since Monday, and the trade on the whole is dull, and rather lower than otherwise.—Fine Wheat fully maintains its price, but for the ordinary qualities there is scarcely any sale, though offered on lower terms.—Barley, of which there has been a plentiful supply from Snffork, is a us per quarter changer.—Beans and Grey Pease remain much as on Monday, but White are from 1s. to 2s. per quarter dearer.

-The ()at trade is dull, and about 1s. per quarter chapper, the supply being large.—In other articles we have no alteration to

RETURN PRICE OF GRA	IN, on board Ship, as under.
	Maple
ine 52s. 56s.
Old
issex White (new) 40s. 54s.	Small Beans 30s. 33e.
Fine	Old
	Tick Beaus (new) 24s. 28s.
Rye 28s. 33s.
Olds. —s. —s. —s,	Feed Oats 165. 158.
Barley	Fine 20s. 21s.
ine
	Fine
Walt	Potatoe ditta
ine	Fine
log Pease27s. 29s.
PRICE .	r Plouk.
Fown made Flour, per sack	to 50s. to 50s.
Ditto seconds per ditto
1.0 .0 15 13/	- barral abia co. An con

1 7	ht.	R	ye.	B	ırl.	O	ıts.	Be	MA.	Pe	ASE.	n	uį.
	d.	8.	d.	s.	d	s.	d.	8.	d.	8.	d.	. 8.	d.
53	51	34	7 }	23	6}	17	7	29	9	33	C3	19	44
53	si	33	104	24	1	20	5 1	33	39	31	111	15	2
53	5	34	6)	23	7	17	104	29	t i 🌡	32	114	19	9
	53 53 53	Wht. s. d. 53 5 53 5	Wht. R s. d. s. 53 51 34 53 81 33 53 54 34	Wht. Rye. e. d. s. d. 53 5} 34 7} 53 8} 33 10} 53 54 84 63	Wht. Rye. B: s. d. s. d. s. 53 51 34 71 23 53 51 33 101 24 53 51 34 62 23	Wht. Ryn. Barl. s. d. s. d. s. d 53 51 34 71 23 65 53 81 33 101 24 1 53 54 34 61 23 7	Wht. Rye. Barl. Or s. d.	Wht. Rye. Barl. Onts. s. d. s. d. s. d. s. d. 53 51 34 71 23 61 17 73 53 81 33 101 24 1 20 5 53 52 84 62 23 7 17 104	Wht. Ryc. Barl. Oats. Bet s. d. s. d. s. d. s. d. s. 53 5½ 34 7½ 23 6½ 17 7½ 29 53 8½ 33 10½ 24 1 29 5 53 53 5½ 84 6½ 23 7 17 10½ 29	Wht. Rys. Barl. Oats. Beand. s. d. s. d. s. d. s. d. s. d. s. d. s. d. 53 5 5 34 7 22 6 17 7 2 29 9 53 8 33 105 24 1 20 5 33 32 1 53 5 3 4 6 2 2 7 17 10 2 29 116	Whit. Rye. Barl. Oats. Beam. Pe s. d. s. d. s. d. s. d. s. d. s. 53 5\; 54 7\; 23 6\; 17 7\; 29 9\; 33 53 8\; 33 10\; 24 1   29 5 3 3 3\; 51 53 5\; 54 6\; 23 7 17 19\; 29 1\; 32	Wht. Ryc. Barl. Oats. Benn. Pense. s. d.	Wht. Rys. Barl. Oats. Benn. Pense. O s. d. s. d. s. d. s. d. s. d. s. d. s. d. s. 53 5\ 54 7\ 23 6\ 17 7\ 23 6\ 17 7\ 29 9\ 33 6\ 31 17 53 5\ 34 6\ 23 7\ 17 10\ 29 1\ 29 1\ 32 11\ 29 1\ 32 11\ 32 11\ 33 10\ 33 11\ 34 6\ 35 7\ 17 10\ 32 11\ 32 11\ 33 11\ 33 11\ 34 6\ 35 11\

	Mutten4s. Od. to 5s. 6d. Pork4s. Od. to 6s.	od.
	Head of Cattle this day.
ı	Beasts 556   Calves	. 140
J	Sheep 3490 Pigs	. 149
	PRICES of HAY and STRAW THURSDAY, MARCH 15.
ı	Smithfield.
Į	May	36 6

		Somithfield.
May31	6s. Od. 1	te 41 8s.	Od Average,	31. 17s. 06.
Inferior2i.	5=. 0d. 1	e 31. es.	ed Average,	21. 12s. 6d.
Strawil.	6s. 6d. 1	to 11. 10s.	ed Average,	11. 8s. 0d.
Clover (best)41.	5s. Od. 1	o 51. 5s.	ed Average.	41. 18s. 0d.
Inferior	15s. 6d. 1	to 41. Os.	ed. — Average,	3ł. 17s. 6d
NEWGAT	E AND	LEADEN	HALL MARKET	Ď.
		the Caron

Farabam, no 41. 10s. to ot. 10s.
	SOAP, &c. per 112lbs.
Fown Tallow54s. ods. od.	Yellow Soap
Yellow Russia 51s. 6d e. 6d.	Mottled94s. 0d.
White ditto 488. ede. 94.	Curd,
Soap ditto 46s. nds. 0d.	Graves
Melting Stuff 39s. eds. 0d.	Good Drogs 9s. ed.
Ditto roughs. od. 26s. od.
COAL MARKE	TMarch 14.

Ships sold. Ships at Market.

PRIC	ES of t	e PUB	LIC FU	NDS.
STOCKS.	Mon.	Tues.	Wed.	Thur.	Fred.	Seri.
Bank Stock	_	-	- -	-		l —
3 per Cent. Reduced	-	-	l	_	l —	1 —
3 per Cent. Consols		72]	72	723	723	714 8
31 per Cent. Consols					- .	_
Consols for Account	73	73	73	73	73 £	718 2
4 per Cent. Consols	-	! —	_	_		I —
5 per Cent. Navy	106	106	1067	106	106	106] }
Bank Long Annuities	-		_	-	-	l —
India Bonds	46 p	40 p	56 p	50 p	50 p	50 p
Exchequer Bills, 2d	3 p	5 9	5 p	5 9	5 p	3 6 p
Ditto, 21d
Omnium	'

On Monday, the 12th inst. at Clarence House, Chelsea, the Lady of the Rev. H. Phillips, of a still-born daughter.
On Thursday, the 15th inst. at Lowesby Hall, Lelecatershire, the seat of Sir Frederick Fowke, Bart. Lady Fowke, of a still-born daughter.
On Sunday last, in Upper Wimpole-street, the Right Hon. Lady Amelia Saphia Boyce, of a daughter.
On the 14th inst. at Shernfold Park, Frant, Sussex, the Lady of John By, Esq. Major in the Corps of Reyal Engineers, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

At Kensington, on the 17th inst. by the Rev. J. C. Wrench, Rector of Stowting, George Stephen, Esq. of Broad-street-buildings, youngest son of the Master in Chancery, to Henrietta, eldest daughter of the late Rev. Wm. Ravenecroft, Prebendary of Rasharkin, and Rector of Finvoy, table souther of Arthur in the country of Antrim.

On Thursday, the 15th inst, at St. Martin's in the Fields, S. Burr, Esq. Luton, Bedfordshire, to Miss Richardsen, of Craven-street, daughter of the late Captain Wm. Richardson, of the Roval Navy.

On the 13th inst. at Southamptou, in the parish Church of All Saints, Wm. Conway Keele, Esq. to Anne Sophia, ridest daughter of the late Ross Moore, Esq. of Monghire, in the East Indies, and grand-daughter to Mrs. General Lang.

DIED.

At Stepney, on the 6th inst. Mrs, Francis Bentley, aged 90.

On the 10th inst. at his house in Foley-place, Major Thomas Gamble, aged 88. On the 14th inst. Charles, son of Charles Borradaile, Esq. of St. Helen's

On the 14th inst. Charles, son of Charles Borradale, 884, 07 St. Reien's. Place, aged 14 months.

At Exmouth, on the 12th inst. Mary, wife of Captain Thomas Young, R. N. and third kaughter of the late Sir Edwin Jeynes, of Cloucester. On Monday last, at her house in Curzon-street, May Fair, the Right Hon. Harriet, Countess Dowager of Essex, in the 87th year of her age. At his house, Stratford-place, early on Friday morning, after a short but severe illuess, most sincerely and truly regretted by his family and friends, Lieut.-Col. P. Douglas, late of the Hon. East India Company's Service on the Bengal Establishment.

Service on the Bengal Establishment.
At his house, Lower Thornhaugh-street, Bedford square. T. Cusac, Esq. universally regretted.
On the 8th inst. at Mildenhall, in Saffolk, in his 78th year, John

On the 8th inst. at annuman, as Samele, Esq. On the 25th of Feb. at Bellair Cottage, near Sidmouth, the son of Capt. Alex. Elphinstone, R. N. aged two mbnth. On the 11th inst. at Swanswick, near Bath, Mrs. Clarke, wife of Edw. Clarke, Esq. and sister to the late Sir George Prevost, Bart. At Berbice, on the 8th of Jan. last, aged four years and a half, Edw. Wm. fourth son of Lieut. Colonel Goodman, Colonial Secretary at that place.

LONDON: Printed and Published by R. T. WEAVER, at No. 11, JOHNSON'S COURT, FLEET-STREET, where only Communications to the Editor, (post paid) ere

No. 15.

Jenera 23

SUNDAY, MARCH 25, 1821.

Price 7d.

NEW PIANO FONTE MUSIC.

Printed and sold by CHAPPELL and Co. Music-sellers to His Majesty, 50, New Bond-street.

CELEBRATED QUADRILLE RONDO, No. 1. by BURROWES—Bitto, No. 2. by MORALT—Eitte, No. 3. by CALKIN.
Each 2s. 6d.—KALKBRENNER'S Three ROMANCES. 4s.—Ditto
WALITZ, as a Duett, 3s.—KIALLMARK'S Two WALITZES and a CHASSE, 3s.—Ditto FANFARE and GERMAN AIR, 2s. 6d.—Ditto
HILLOMBL, 2s.—MORALT'S GIPSEY RONDO, 2s.—KNAPTON'S MERCH MEGAN, 3s.—KLOSE'S 7PANISH FANDANGO, 2s.—And 6c Celebrated OPERATIC AIRS, No. 1 to 6, each 3s. by the following 6cdebrated Composers, viz. No. 1, by KALKBRENNER; No. 2. by 6LEMENTI; No. 3, by LATOUR; No. 4, by RIBS; No. 5, by POTTBR; No. 6, by KALKBRENNER.

MUSIC of ARTAXERXES.—Shorthy will be subbled. In-

MUSIC of ARTAXERXES.—Shortly will be published, by BIRCHALL and CO. 133, New Band-street, the WHOLE of this Celebrated OPERA, composed by Dr. ARNE, arranged by Dr. John Clarke, with a separate aecompanished for the Pianoforte throughout. The Work (consisting of 150 pages of Music) is already in a very forward state, and those who honour the Publishers with their names for Copies previous to publication, on the lat of May, will have them at the subscription price of £1.; to non-subscribers the price will be £1.6s. Several of the favourite Songs may now be had-singly.—Likewise the favourite Music in "La Gazza Ladra," will shortly make its appearance as above.

NEW QUADRILLES for 1821, as performed by Messrs.
Collinet, Michau, and Musard's Band.—The ELEVENTH SET, and the first danced this Season at Almack's, the Argyll Roems, and the Mobility's Ball's; composed for the Plano forte, with an (ad lib.) accompaniment for the Flate, by P. MUSARD, price 4s.—Published by J. Power, 34, Sirand. paniment for the Power, 34, Strand.

Paument for the Flate, by P. MUSARD, price 4s.—Published by J. Power, 34. Strand.

SUPERIOR FINE EDINBURGH ALES.

A LEXANDER BERWICK and CO. Brewers in Edinburgh, having appointed JAMES COWIE, No. 1, Salters' Hall Conrt, Cannon-street, to be their Sole a GBRNT for the sale of their Superior Fine ALES in Lendón, he begs most respectfully to inform the Nobility, Gentry, and Dealers in general, that they can be supplied with it in Casks and in Bottles, at the same price as charged in Edinburgh, exclusive of the freight and cartage from the Leith and Berwick Wharf.

The superiority of Messrs. Berwick and Co.'s Edinburgh Ales has long been established in public opinion, and James Cowie flatters himself that those Gentlemen, who may please to honour him with their commands, will find that he can supply them is the same perfection as at Edinburgh.

will find that he can supply them is the same perfection as at Euinburgh.

A FOREIGNER'S OPINION of ENGLAND, Englishmen, Englishwomen, English Manners, English Morals, English Domestic Life, English Art's and Artists, English Literature, English Criticism, English Education, English Universities, English Clery, English Sectarians, English Nobility, English Parties, English Clery, English Laws, English Commerce, English Charities, English Fashions, English Annusements, and a variety of other interesting Subjects, comprised in a Series of free Remarks, the result of personal Observation during a Residence of Two Years in Great Britain, by CHRISTIAN AUGUSTUS GOTTLIEB GCEDE. Translated from the Original German by THOMAS HORNE. In three vels, Svo. price 15s.

Lendon: published by C. Taylor; and Sherwood, Neely, and Jones.—WORKS NEARLY READY FOR PUBLICATION.

BANNOCKBURN, a Novel, in 3 vols. 12mo.

2. JOURNAL of a RESIDENCE in the BURMHAN EMPIRE, and more particularly at the COURT of AMARAPOORAH. By Capt. HIRAM COX, of the Homourable East India Company's Bengal Native Infantry, with platers, in 8vo.

3. The GARDEN of FLORENCE, and other Poems. By JOHN HAMILTON, in foolscap Svo.

4. Paulis in 1815 a Poem. Second Part by the Rev. G. COOLY,

3. The GARDEN of FLORENCE, and other Poems. By JOHN HAMILTON, in foolscap Svo.
4. PARIS, in 1815, a Poem. Second Part by the Rev. G. COOLY, A.M. 8vo.

A.M. 8vo.
5. CONCEALUENT, a Novel, in 3 vols. 12mo.
6. LAYS on LAND, by ISMAEL FITZADAM, formerly Able Seaman on beard the Figate, and Author of "The Harp of the Desert." In one volume, foolscap 8vo.
7. TABLE TALK; or, ORIGINAL ESSAYS. By WILLIAM

The CELT'S PARADISE, a Peem. By JOHN BANIM, Foelscap 8vo.

9. OLIVER CROMWELL, and his TIMES. By THOMAS CROM-

9. OLIVEIT CIRUM WELD, and his residence of the WELL, with a Portrait, Sco.
10. TAKINGS; illustrative of the LIFE of a COLLEGIAN, a Poem, accompanied by Twenty-six Sketches, from the Designs of R. DAGLEY, Author of "Select Gems from the Antique," &c. In one volume, royal Svo.

11 The Fourth Book of TASSO's "JERUSALEM DELIVERED," being the Specimen of an intended new Translation, in English Spenserian Verse. By J. H. WIFFEN.

12 MACHIN; or, The DISCOVERY of MADEIRA, a Poem. By JAMES BIRD, Author of "The Vale of Slangden," Svo.

13. A MAGAZINE of the FINE ARTS; or, Monthly Review of Painting, Sculpture, Architecture, and Engravings, both separately and in books.

Printed for John Warren, Old Bond-street.

Printed for John Warren, Old Bond-street.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC QUESTION.
The following Works have been published by C. CHAPPLB, Bookseller to the King, and their Royal Highnesses the Dukes of York and Cambridge, Royal Library, Pall Mall:

ASERIES of LETTERS, shewing the Insecurity and Dander of Granting what is termed "CATHOLIC EMANCIPATION;" also giving a short View of the Tenets of the Popish Religion, as affecting a Protestant State; and of the Privileges granted to the Roman Catholics of Ireland, since our late most Gracious Sovereign's Accession to the Throne; together with an Historical Account of their Conduct, from the Reformation to the present period. Writgen and addressed to J. G. Esq.—By A PROTESTANT of IRELAND. With additional Notes, and an Appendix.

"They have whet their tongues as a sword; and shoot out their arrow, even bitter words.

"They have said, With our tongues will we prevail: we are they that ought to speak: who is Lord over us?

"But their own tongues shall make them fall: insomuch, that whose seeth them shall laugh them to scorn."—Psalms.

"We are convinced in our consciences that we shall always tolerate them; but not quite so fully, that they will tolerate us when it comes to their turn."—Dran Swift, Seo. price 12s. in boards.

2. CATHOLIC EMANCIPATION, incompatible with British Freedem, and the existence of the Protestant Church; Svo. price 2s. atitched.

3. The PAPISTICAL CRUSIS, proving that the Catholic Claims cansot be conceded to, without endangering both the Monarchy and the Constituien; 2s. 6d.

4. The POPISH DIVAN: or, Political Sanbedrim; 4s. 6d. boards.

5. CATHOLIC EMANCIPATION DISCUSSED and EXPLODED, in a Series of Letters to Lord Grenville; 3s. 6d.

6. The ALARUM; or, the Tocsin Seunded; a Poem, with Notes humbly dedicated to Britons of soll descriptions, who love their King and in a Series of Letters to Lord Grenville; 3s. 6d.

6. The ALARUM: or, the Tocsin Sounded; a Poem, with Notes; humbly dedicated to Britons of all descriptions, who love their Kling and venerate their Country; 2s. 6d.
7. The CHARACTER of KING GEORGE the THIRD; interspersed with authentic Anecdotes of His Majesty, 2s. 6d.

Positively next Saturday will be published, a New Edition, Corrected and Enlarged, to the end of the First Year of the Reign of His present Majesty,
THE EXTRAORDINARY RED-BOOK, containing an account of all Places, Pensions, Sinecures, Grants, &c. the Expenditure

THE EXTRAORDINARY RED-BROCK, containing an account of all Places, Pensions, Sinecures, Grants, &c. the Expenditure of the Civil List, the Finances and Debt of Great Britain, with a variety of Official Documents never before published; among which are Admiralty Droits, Land and other Crown Revenues to February, 1821. A Derrect List of the New Parliament, &c. &c.

By A COMMONER.

London: Printed for J. Jehnston, 38, Chespeide, and W. Clarke, 92, Royal Exchange.

CATHOLIC QUESTION.

This day is published, price 1s. 6d.

A New Edition of a SERMON on the REFORMATION, preached at St. Ann's Church, Blackfriars, by the Rev. ISAAC Nector.

The genius of Popery changed !—" Can the Ethiopian change his skin, or leopard his spots?"—Vide page 27.

Published by T. Keily, 17, Paternoster Row.

This day is published, price 9s.

VINDICIÆ HEBRAICÆ; or, a DEFENCE of the HEBREW SCRIPTURES, as a Vehicle of Revealed Religion: occasioned by the recent Strictures and Innovations of Mr. J. Bellamy; and in Confutation of his attacks on all preceding Translations, and on the Established Version in particular.

By HYMAN HURWITZ.

London: Published by F. C. and J. Rivington, St. Panl's Church Yard, and Waterloo Place; Boosey and Sons, Old Broad-street; and Luckington and Co. Finsbury-square.

FOREIGN AND ENGLISH LITERATURE.

A CATALOGUE of New and Interesting Works, connected with Foreign and English Literature, the Fine Arts, Commerce, &c. published, or imported in quantities, by Boosey and Sons, 4, Broadstreet, (to be had grais): also Separate Catalogues of their French, German, Italian, Spanish; and Modern Greek Books—Likewise, Just'published,

BIBLIOTHECA RARA ET CURIOSA, Part II; or, a Catalogae

BIBLIOTHECA RARA ET CURIOSA, Part II; or, a Catalogae of a small, but highly-interesting Collection of Books, in various languages; principally in History, Pacetin, Novels, and Poetry, many ornamented with wood-cuts and engravings.

The first part of this catalogue, (which contains a very extensive collection of curious, rare, and interesting works, apon nearly every subject which has engaged the attextion of the Learned and curious,) is nearly out of print, only a very few copies remaining on hand, price 2s. each.

If The Books contained in the above Catalogues have been recently collected on the Continent.

TO THE SPORTING WOLLD, AND LLUSTRATORS OF WORKS ON THE SPORTING WOLLD, AND LLUSTRATORS OF WORKS ON THE SPORTING WOLLD, AND LLUSTRATORS OF WORKS ON THE SPORTS OF THE FIELD.

IMPRESSIONS OF A SERIES OF GAME, and SUBJECTS connected with the SPORTS OF the FIELD, from a Set of Silver Buttons (in the possession of Mr. T. 1608cm), claborately engraved by the celebrated Scott; drawn on the Buttons by A. Cooper, Esq. R. A.; a novel and interesting atricle to Sportsmen, 5s. cach set.

The JOVIAL FOX-HUNTERS, from the original Picture, painted by L. Clennell, in the possession of Mr. T. Gusden, Proofs on India Paper, 5s. and Prints, 2s. 8d.

Four Emblematic engraved Title pages to Walton and Cotton's Complete Angler; printed on fine folio paper, 7s.

The FLY-FISHER, with a CENOTAPH to the Memory of Walton and Cotton; printed on Imperial quarto, Proofs on India Paper, 3s. Prints, 2s.

and Cotton; printed on Imperial quantity, Prints, 2s.
VIEW of MADELEY MANOR, co. Stafford, the Seat of Jahn Offley, Esq. to whom Walton dedicates his Complete Angler; printed on India

Paper, quarte, 3s.

TOTTENHAM CROSS, from an Original Drawing by Shepherd;

Tottenham cross, from an Original Drawing by Shepherd;

TOTTENHAM CROSS, from an Original Advances.

Proofs on quarto Paper, 3s.

The SPORTSMAN, (from the Songs of the Chase.) 1s.

The Same, with an Engraved Border, on quarto Paper, 2s.

A Series of 33 beautiful WOOD CUTS, to illustrate Walton and Cotton's Complete Angler, Daniel's & other publications on Rural Sports.5s.

To be had of Mr. Knights, Printseller, Sweeting's Alley, Cornhill; Martyr and Cato, Ludgate hill; Burn, Maiden-lane, Covent Garden; Molteno, Pall Mall, Mexars, Fuller's, Rathbone-lace; and all respectable Printsellers of London, Oxford, Cambridge, Eton, &c.

In a few days will be published, in 3 vols. 12mo.

WIALERIUS; if Roman stery.

In a tew days will be presented, the VALERIUS; if Roman stery.

"They'll sit by the fire, and presume to know what's done if the Capitol."—Shakespeare.
Printed for William Blackwood, Rdinburgh; and T. Cadell, Strand,

On the 31st will be published,

BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE, No. XLVIII. BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE, No. XLVIII. for March, 1821. Contents—I. Extract from a Lost (and Found) Memorandum Book. No. I. Stric'ures on Political Economy; Love Song, by a Junior Member of the Cockney School, &c.—II. Sketches of Village Chiracter. No. V. Mungo Clark, the Packman; Sutor John; and Adam Harkness.—III. Sonet, written off the Dutch Coast.—IV. Hans Meiling's Rocks, a Bohemian Legend, by Korner.—V. Sonnet.—VI. Sonnet to Robinson Crusoc.—VII. The Steam-Boan. No. II. Voyage First, continued. Tale II The Soldier's Mother; Tale III. The Hurricane.—VIII. Herse Danices. No. IV. Hagbarth and Signa, a Tragetly; by Adam Ochlanschlaeger.—IX. Hubert, or the Veteran of India.—Part II.—X. Lines written in a British Buriat Ground in India.—XI. A Letter from the Man in the Moon.—XII. Letter to Pierce Egan, Esq.—XIII. The Soldier's Puneral.—XIV. Translations from the less familiar Latin Classics. No. V. Ausonius.—XV. Reply to Mr. Barker.—XVI. The British Gallery.—XVII. Remembered Beauty.—XVIII. Stanzas on Visiting a Scene of Childhood.—XIX. The Warder. No. VIII. The King.—XX. Works preparing, for Publication.—XXI. Monthly List of New Publications.—XXIII. Monthly Register, &c.
Printed for William Blackwood, Edinburgh; and T. Cadell and W. Davies, Strand, London.

Davies, Strand, London.

63 New Editions of the early Numbers having been again printed, complete Sets, in 8 Volumes, or any separate Number, may now be had.

Complete sects, in a volumes, or any separate Number, may now be had.

S. WIRKE'S SHAKSPBARE.

On the 10th April will be published,

ILLUSTRATIONS of the TEMPEST. Engraved from Pictures painted expressly for this Work, by ROBERT SMIRKE, Esq. R.A.

R.A. MODE OF PUBLICATION,

I. The Work will be comprised in Thirty-seven Numbers; each Number containing Pive Illustrative Engravings, and a Vignette; the aggregate number, therefore, of the Plates will be Two Hundred and Twentytwo.

II. A Number will be published every Three Months, at the commencement of the Work, and after a short time every Two Months, till completed.

India pages, page 44.

TUESDAY'S GAZETTE.

HORSE GUARDS, March 18, 1271.

GENERAL ORDERS.—It being His Majesty's distermination that no Officer holding a Commission in his service, (whether on full or kalipay) should engage in the service of any of the Powers or Countries which are unfortunately new involved in hestilities, the Commander is Chief has received His Majesty's Commands to caution all Officers who have obtained leave to visit the Continent, as well as three who may hereafter present of the Continent, as well as three who may have previously obtained His Majesty's sametien to serve in any Foreign Army, against engaging, or continuing in the employment of the Armice of any of the contenting parties; and His Royal Highness to duration them, that by divergarding this—caution, they will forfeit their Commissions in the British service.—By His Royal Highness the Commander in Chief's command, H. TORR ENS, Adj. & Commissions signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the Country Busham.

R. M. Diradale, Evg.; W. T. Greenwell, Key.; G. Dramby, Bus, to be Deputy Lieutenants.

Commissions in the 1st Regiment of Loyal Suffolk Yeoman'y Cavalry signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Suffolk.

To be Captains—Sir M. Nightingall, K.C.B. vice Wythe; H. B. Benee, Esq. vice Collett; H. G. Broke, Esq. vice Conperthwaite; P. Bennet, jun. Esq. vice Frost,—To be Lieutenants—W. G. Colehester, Gent. vice Hayle; W. Sawver, Cent. vice Cross,—To be Cornets—W. Rodwell, Gent. vice Fisher; G. Cobbold, Gent. vice Bolton; J. Lake, Gent. vice Sawyer; G. Morgan, Gent. vice Colehester.

Sawker, G. Morgan, Gent. vice Golehester.

G. CROXFORD, jun. Iver, Buckinghamshire, collar maker.

T. BIRD, St. Martin's Court, Leiesster Fields, haberdasher.

J. ACASON, Valentine Farm Ridge, Hertfordshire, cow dealer.

T. FIELD, sen. and T. FIELD, jun. Museovy Court, Trinity Square, flour factors.

T. FIELD, sen. and T. FIELLI, Jun.
Our factors.
M. SEDGWICK, London, warchouseman.
P. MARSHALL, Scarborough, Yorkshire, groeer.
J. BROWNE. Bridgewater, Somersetshire, tailor.
J. CUMMINS, Glouzester, mercer.
J. DIXON, Bishopsthorpe, Yorkshire, coal merchant.
H. M. PARTRIDGE, Newpert, Mommouthshire, frommonger.
J. WILSON, Macclesfield, Clesshire, bookseller.
W. FIRELAND, Bedhampton, Southampton, miller.
W. FIFOOT, Bristol, baker.
B. LANCE, Capel Court, Bartholomew Lane, stock broker.
BIVIDENDS.

B. LANCE, Capel Court, Bartholomew Lane, stock broker.

DIVIDENDS.

April 10, W. and J. Tittensor, Foster Lane, Cheapside, wholesale button sellers.—April 10, J. Bovill and G. J. De Witte, Commercial Chambers, Mincing Lane, merchants.—March 24, G. and S. Robinson, Paternoster Row, booksellers.—May S. J. Cousins, Charlton Street, Somor's Town, cheesemonger.—April 10, W. Scott, late of Whitechapel, dealer.—April 10, W. Sowerby, Fish Street Hill, merchant.—April 10, J. Knight, late of Fore Street, cheesemonger and norkman.—May S. H. Mould, Winchester, Senthampton, cabinet mak r and upholsterer.—April 11, C. Elliett, St. Thomas a Becket, in the Cliffe, near Lewes, Sussex, groeer.—April 14, J. T. Taylor, Merton, Surrey, silk manufacturer.—April 16, G. M. Simpson, Tower Street, merchant.—April 21, T. Sackett, Bermondsey Wall, Bermondsey, shipwright.—April 16, W. Prole, Georgeham, Devonshire, yeman.—April 12, J. Hawthorn, Newsastleugon-Tyne, brass-founder.—April 11, P. Cox, Fairford, machine maker. CERTIFICATES—April 10, C. Coa'es, Stanton Drew, Somersetshire, dealer.—S. Walker, jun. Manchester, groeer.—H. B. Hall, Thames Ditton, Surrey, maltster.—6. Holbrook, Fleet Market, poulterer.—S. Perkins, Milford, dealer.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTE.

WAR-OFFICE, 23d March, 1821.

WAR-OFFICE, 23d March, 1821.

11th Reg. Lt. Drag.—Cornet A. Ahmuty, from 21st. Light Drag. to be Cornet, vice Malet, who retires.—Assist. Surg. B. L. Sandham, from 53d Foot, to be Surg. vice O'Malley, deceased.

17th Ditto—Lieut. W. T. H. Fisk, to be Adjut. vice Suith, dec. 1st or Grenadier Reg. of Foot Guards—Kns. and Lieut. G. Fludyer, to be Lieut. and Capt. by purchase, vice Trelawney, who retires.—Lieut. R. C. Rowley, from half-pay of the Reg. to be Ens. and Lieut. without purchase, vice Fludyer.

3d Reg. Foot Guards—Ens. and Lieut. H. S. Blane, to be Lieut. and Capt. by purchase, vice Tuffnell, who retires.—H. Bowden, Gent. to be Ens. and Lieut. by purchase, vice Blane.

1st Reg. Foot—Lieut. T. Russell, from half-pay 62d Foot, to be Adjt. and Lieut. vice Osborne, who exchanges.

sth Ditto—Lieut. D. V. Macken, to be Gapt, by purchase, vice Moyle, who retires.—Ens. T. R. Thompson, to be Lieut. by parchase, vice Machen.—T. J. Neill, Gent. to be Ens. by purchase, vice Thompson.

1lth Ditto—Lieut. B. S. Prideaux, from 53d Foot, to be Lieut. vice.

J. H. Ketr. who retires.

13th Ditto—Clayton, Gent. to be Easign, without purchase, vice Moyle, who retires are a feat. Lieut. G. J. Bower from the 34th Foot to be Jith Ditto—Clayton, Gent. to be Essign, without purchase, vice MiDonell, superseded.

14th Regiment of Foot, Lieut. G. J. Bower, from the 34th Foot, to be Lieut. without purchase, vice Way, deceased.

17th Ditto, Ensign J. T. Nagel, to be Lieut. without purchase, vice Bensett, deceased.—J. D. O'Brien, Gent. to be Ensign, vice Nagel.

22d Ditto, Surg. E. Black, from the half-pay, to be Surg. vice Bolton.
24th Ditto, Gentleman Cadet R. Bennet, from the Royal Military College, to be Ensign, without purchase, vice School, promoted.

33d Ditto, G. Pigott, Gent. to be Ensign, by purchase, vice Patton.

34th Ditto, Gentleman Cadet R. Airey, from the Royal Military College, to be Ensign, without purchase, vice Adam, who resigns.

45th Ditto,—Urquharf, Gent. to be Emsign, without purchase, vice Wetherall, appointed to the 69th Foot.

48th Ditto, Ensign Donald Start to be Lieutenant without purchase, vice Smith, dec. John Stuart, gent. to be Ensign, vice Stuart.

53d Ditto, Lieut, R. T. Greene to be Captain, without purchase, vice Giles, promoted.

vice Smith, dee. John Stuart, gent to be Ensign, vice Court.

Std Di to, Lieut, R. T. Greene to be Captain, without purchase, vice Giles, promoted.

To be Lieutenants.—Ensign G. Carpenter, vice Greene.—L.W. Kelly, from half-pay 104th foot, vice Prideaux, appointed to the 11th foot, Te be Ensign.—E M. Dodd, gent, vice Carpenter.

To be Assistant-Surgeon.—Assistant-Surgeon C. M'Lean, from half-pay of the Regt, vice Sandham promoted to the 11th light drag.

61st Ditte, Lieut. J. Hall, from half-pay 78th foot, to be Lieut viep J. Patienee.

62th Ditto, Surgeon C. R. Alderson, M.D. from half-pay of the Reyal York Rangers, to be Surgeon, vice Spencer who exchanges.

64th Ditto, Ensign J. Thomas, from half-pay 37th foot, to be Ensign, vice Couper, who exchanges.

65th Ditto, S. H. Widdrington, gent., to be Ensign without purchase, vice Donnitherne, ice Donnitherne, 67th Reg. of Yoot – Lieut. W. Rewan to be Captain, without purchase, ice Gray, decrased. 69th Ditt — Ensign G. L. Boultbee to be Lieut., vice Higginbothase, recased.—Ensign A. Wetherall, from the 45th Foot, to be Ensign, vice Geceased.—Ensign A. Weitersli, from the Sta Foot, to be Ensign, vice Boultbee.

32 Diffto—T. Byrne, Gent. to be Ensign, without purchase, vice Long F. Montagn, prometed in the let Ceylon Regiment.

39th Ditto—Capt. F. Savage, from half-pay of the Ragiment, to be Capt., vice Sanderson, who exchanges, receiving the difference.

92d Diffto—Lieut. J. Clark, to be Lieut. vice Randal, who exchanges, let Ceylon Reg.—Ensign Lord F. Montagu, from the 32d Foot, to be Lieut., by purchase, vice Dely primoted.

Commission signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Flint.

D. F. Jones, Eng. to be Deputy Lieutenant.

Commission in the North Somewest Formanny Concley, signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Somerset.

B. L. Lye, Eng. to be Adjutant and Captain by Brevet, vice Thernish.

displaced.

BANKRUPTCIES SUPERSEDED.

ROBERT WROOTS, of Neaford, Draper.—JOHN KIRKMAN, of Great Bokken, Cotton-Manufacturer.—G. MOTH, Perisea, Visiter.

BANKRUPTS.

JOHN MACLEOD, Cormill, boot and aboo-maker.

ALEXANDER BENZIES, St. Martin's-lane, baker.

JOSEPH GUNNERY. Liverpool, dealer.

JOHN TAYLOR, of the Park, Sheffield, iron founder.

WILLIAM HAYNES, Stoarbridge, Weresster, currier.

JOHN WEILE Ilemanal.

JOHN TATIOR, of the Park, Sasmed, iron tensor.

WILLIAM HAYN'RS, Stourividge, Worsester, currier.

JOHN WELLS, Liverpool, oserchant.

MATTHRW SEDGWICK, Leaden, warshouse man.

JOHN LOVELACE SMITH, Wankhall Walk, coel and potates states.

JOHN SOHINON, Leasington, druggest.

THOMAS CHINN, Stadistess, lives draper.

ANTHON'S HELLMANN, late of Mincing-lase, merchant.

JAMES MORRIS, of Upbolland, Laneaster, Tanuer.

WILLIAM KENNIFECK, Throgmorton-street, theurance breker.

THOMAS CROFT, late of Chatham, hair-dresser.

J. WALKER, Upper Russell street, Barmondset, purchance design.

TFIKD), Walte-barrion-varid, St. John street, in-yard-kreyer.

J. COULSON, & E. LEADBITTER, Gatechrad, glass-manufactored.

O. RICMARDSON, Meckhodargh-square, lide Captain, and Town St. (Successer-street, Parser of the Han. E. I. Company's child are the street, Parser of the Han. E. I. Company's child be supposed and the street, Parser of the Han. E. I. Company's child be supposed as the street, Parser of the Han. E. I. Company's child between the supposed and the supposed as the supposed and the supposed

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS. MONDAY.

Lord Granville presented a petition from the Woollen Ma-nufacturers of the County of Gloucester, praying for a repeal of the existing tax on imported woollens. Petitions were also presented against the Catholic Claims from the Cities of Oxford and Bristol. These petitions were all laid on the table. Adjourned.

TUESDAY.

The Earl of Blessington moved for copies of the correspondence between the Irish Treasury and the Secretary of State, and the money voted for the relief of persons in that

The Earl of Liverpool thought the Noble Earl had better only, more for the accounts—the Noble Lord shaped his motion

On the motion of the Earl of Carnarvon, the Grampound Disfranchisement Bill was ordered to be printed.

The Glass Duties, the Sitk Manufacture Regulation, and the Cochineal Importation Bills were pussed.— Adjourned.

WEDNESDAY.

The Flax Encouragement Bill was passed.

A petition was presented by the Marquis of Lansdowne from the Gentlemen, Merchants, &c. of Dursley, in Gloucestershire, praying for some regulation to facilitate the recovery of debts under 151.—Laid on the table.

THURSDAY.

The Husbandry Horses Duties Bill was read a first time. The Earl of Verulam presented a petition from the parish of St. Mary, Rudcliff, Bristol, against the Roman Catholic Claims.—Adjourned.

FRIDAY.

The Marquis of Lansdown asked whether the report was true that the British squadron had now been withdrawn from the Bay of Naples?—whether the Circular addressed by Russia, Prussia, and Austria to the other powers of Europe, had been renewed or extended since the 12th of Dec. last, or whether it remained the same?—and thirdly, whether Austria had communicated with this Government in respect to interfering in the affairs of other countries than Naples?

The Farl of Liverpool replied, that the instructions sent to Sir Graham Moore, was to preserve the strictest neutrality, with two exceptions, in case any injury should be done to British property, or the Royal Family wanted any protection. As to our squadron having been withdrawn, the fact was not so. In respect of the Austrian paper, that was perfectly correct as it appeared in the Vienna Gazette. As to the next question, he did not believe any menace had been used to Sardinia.

HOUSE OF COMMONS. MONDAY.

Mr. Littleton presented a petition from the Iron Masters in Staffordshire, praying that the roofs of the churches now building, may be made exclusively of iron, as a means of relieving the trade from its present depressed state. The petition was laid on the table.

Petitions from the Woolstaplers of Huddersfield and Gloscoster, praying a repeal of the additional wool duty were pre-

Mr. Baring presented a petition from certain Merchants and Traders of Liverpool, praying some alteration in the ourrency, and to substitute bullion payments in lieu of specie. The ment to substitute united by printed.

Mr. Baring presented a petition from James Fergusson, stereotyper and printer, praying that the House would appoint a Committee to enquire into the practicability of a plan, which hed devised to prevent forgeries on Bank Notes. laid on the table.

Retitions from various places were presented against the Catholic Claims.

Mr. Plunkett after stating his intention to submit some clauses in the Cutholic Bill, which would require discus-sion, noticed certain suggestions which had been made; among them, one was to the effect, that instead of the Oath of Supremacy being detached from the explanation, according to which the Catholic was to take it, it should be incorporated with it. This plan had its difficulties and its conveniences, but at all eyents it would be more agreeable to the Catholic to have the explanation comprehended in the oath itself. He therefore proposed to go into the Committee, pro forma.

Sir J. Nichol thought the Bill should not be pressed on. was in portant that some considerable time should be allowed to inter vene, to give an opportunity for thoroughly understand-ing, in its new shape, a measure which the Right Hon. Gent. and his fri, has must themselves acknowledge, more materially affected the Constitution of the realm than any measure that had been introduced since the restoration, or at all events since the Revolution. It went to effect a most material change in the character o. the Constitution; for the character of the Constitution as now by law established, was to exclude Catho-lies from any share of political power, and of public trusts, whereas the Bill before the House professed to give them (with some very few exceptions) all possible political power and public trust.

Some conversation arose on the necessity for postponing the Bill, in which Mr. Plunkett, Sir W. Scott, Sir T. Lethbridge, e Chancellor of the Exclequer, Mr. Hutchinson, &c. took

Mr. Peel conceived, that the Bill was one which required mature deliberation on account of its proposed enactments; First, there was an alteration in the Oath of Supremacy, as it had been administered for 300 years. The necessary consequence of that alteration was, the admission of some sort of spiritual authority on the part of the Pope. Now, was it not of importance, that the House should have time to consider to what degree the interference of the Pope ought to be legalised?

After some conversation as to the processe day for entering mpon the discussion of the clauses, it was at length agreed to go in to the Committee, pro forma, when the new clauses were introduced, and the Bill was afterwards brought up—it being understand the debate would take place on Friday, on which day the Report was ordered to be taken into consideration.

After some observations on the whole expenses of the Milan Commission, by Lord A. Hamilton, (in which he observed, that it appeared from a paper on the table, that 46,0001. Was the sam charged for the expence of proceedings against her Majesty), he gave notice that on Wednesday se'unight, he should move for the details of those expences, and the funds from which they were paid.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer moved the Order of the Day, for a Committee on the Bills for the issue of cash by the tiens of neutrality, Sir W. A'Court declared, that the British

Bank of England. In the Committee, the Right Hon. Gent. stated the operations of the measures already in force upon this subject. By the Act of 1819, the Bank was imperatively called upon to resume payment of their notes in gold in the year 1823, after a preparatory arrangement to be made by them—this arrangement they had made by reducing their paper circulation, which they announced in February, 1820, taking care to provide an adequate treasure for paying their notes in gold coin. His object was to provide that on the 1st of May, 1822, (one year before it became imperative on the Bank to resume cash payments), it should be optional with the Bank to pay their notes under 51. in cash, in whatever manner and to whatever amount they should deem proper. He also should propose to allow the Bank to make issues in gold in payment of any kind of demand whatever, most conducive to the interest to fithe country. the interests of the country. It was gratifying to state, that the accumulation of treasure in the Bank was considerable; the accumulation of treasure in the Bank was considerable; by returning to cash payments, the circulating medium would be gradually established, and whatever surplus of treasure should then appear, might be re-exported to counteract any prejudicial operation of the Foreign exchanges. He then stated the Bank issues—in the half year ending the 30th Jan. 1819, they averaged 25,600,0001. on the 30th Dec. following 24,700,0001. up to June, 1820, they were 24,000,0001. The Rt. Hon. Gent. then stated his hopes, that some plan might be devised for preventing the forgeries of Bank Notes. With respect to the preventing the forgeries of Bank Notes. With respect to the re-payment of the sum of nine or ten millions of the debt due to the Government from the Bank, the instalments had been regularly paid, only one remained unpaid, which would become due on the 5th of April. He concluded with moving for leave to bring in a Bill, &c.

Mr. Baring thought that the principle of the Right Hon. Gent. was a mistaken one, of relieving the general circulation by accumulating gold in the Bank coffers, and taking it out when it became considerable. He could not see how substi-tuting gold for paper could affect the general circulation of the country, nor that the optional payment in cash could relieve the country from the existing evil of forgeries. He was decidedly of opinion, that the fluctuation of the principles of currency were injurious to the country. The Hon. Gent. went into an examination of the causes of the distressed state of the country. By the operation of the altered currency, they had loaded themselves with an immense debt, which continued to press on the country; the real difficulty to encounter was, to meet the increased amount of debt. The reasen of this was, that the discussion had sometimes turned when points meet remove from the main chiest of incrimes turned. reason of this was, that the discussion had sometimes turned upon points most remote from the main object of inquiry; and he was convinced, that although they might not have produced the plan of an inimitable note, they might have recommended one not easily to be imitated. In other countries, forgeries were scarcely known. In America, the crime was comparatively unknown. In France, the Bank had but one forgery committed, and that was, when the Allies occupied the king-day but that Bank naves issued notes under 2011. The next the standard of the standar dom, but that Bank never issued notes under 201. The next proposition he had to make, was, with reference to a double currency of gold and silver. With good faith, he thought silver might be held at 62d. per oz. or 62s. per lb. Having gone over these points at some length, his object, he said, was to render Ricardo's system perpetual, and to introduce two metals as the standard of currency. He then moved a resolution for resconsidering the provisions of the 59th of his late. tion for re-considering the provisions of the 59th of his late Majesty, with a view to remove the pressure which would result from a strict execution of that Act upon the various branches from a strict execution of that Act upon the various branches of public industry.

Mr. Ricardo observed upon the inconsistency of the Hon. Gent. who was full of theories, and whose opinions were very changeable; the power could not be in better hands than the Directors. To lower the standard would, he thought, be of no consequence in a national point. He should have approved more of the plans of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, had he proposed to hasten the period at which the Bank should regu-larly return to payments in specie, which would be the only way of preventing forgery. Had the Bank followed up their own plan with respect to discounts, they might have had less paper in circulation. They had, however, issued their paper for objects of importance, for Government, and to procure bullion, which would not have been required but for the Act of 1819. He could wish to see the laws against usury in this country repealed. It would be a great advantage to the Bank, if they, instead of discounting bills at all times at five per cent. might vary the rate of interest according to the state of the market.

Mr. Pearse admitted, that the Bank could not be too cautious how they made any great change in the currency of the country.

Mr. Peel thought some better guard might be made to prevent forgeries than the country at present possessed, and he was sorry some plan had not been fixed on as yet.

After some further discussion on the subject, the amendment of Mr. Baring was negatived; and leave was given to bring in the Bill.

On the third reading of the Grampound Disfranchisement Bill, Mr. Sykes moved, that the Bill be read a third time this day six months, which, however, was negatived; and the Bill passed.—Adjourned.

TUESDAY.

On the second reading of the Anti-Mephitic Bill, a Division took place—For it, 24—Against it, 68.—The Bill was lost.

Mr. Pearse moved for an Account of the Bank-notes in circulation, from February to August, in 1796, and those in circulation at the present time, with the price of gold at those periods, which, after some conversation between Mr. Grenfell, Sir J. Newport, Mr. Calcraft, Mr. J. Pearse, &c. was agreed to. A petition from Romeo, a Captain in the Neapolitan service, claiming remuneration for services rendered this country, while serving in a Calabrese regiment was presented.

Lord Castlereagh stated that this individual had been remunerated by a pension of 50l. a year.

Some conversation took place with respect to the petition, which was afterwards laid on the table.

Major-General Wilson called the attention of the House to the letter written by Sir W. A'Court, the British Ambassador resident at Naples, to the Neapolitan Minister for Foreign Affairs, explanatory of the intention of the British Govern-ment in the disposal of a British force in the Bay of Naples, which letter, he contended, contained principles inimical to the law of nations, because, coming from a Power, affecting to be neutral, it spoke the language of war, and not of peace. The Noble Lord had distinctly avowed, that neutrality was the object of this country. How, then, must the House be surprized, after this distinct disavowal of any obligation to protect restored dynastics is any country, to find the Noble Lord giving instructions to the British Minister at Naples to write to the Nonpolitan Minister a letter, in which, after some protesta-

Government would feel itself justified in interfering, if any insult should be offered to any Members of the Royal Family? There could be no doubt as to the bearing of this document, and thus the House saw that it was left optional with the British Minister at Naples, should be conceive that any thing hap-pened to endauger the safety of the Royal Family. Suppose the siege of the city by the Austrians—he could telegraph the fleet in the Bay, and thus batter Naples at that side, whilst the Austrians were bombarding it at the other. Did the Noble Lord forget that this sort of armed neutrality would of itself exasperate the Neapolitans, who saw that their King, who was in fact their property, was taken for protection into the hands of foreigners? He condemned this sort of interference; but it was not his own opinion alone which he would offer to the House. In 1792, after a series of insults had been offered to the French King and Royal Family, it was found necessary to recal Lord Gower, our Ambassador at the Court of France; and a proposition was then made, that this country should give king; but what said Mr. Pitt!—" Whatever," said he, "may be the indignation which we all feel at the indignation which we all feel at the indignation for the French King, yet that cannot be made a justification for in the affairs of that country. I doubt much and a proposition was a second reproduction to the restraints imposed upon the French King; but what said Mr. Pitt?—" Whatever," said he, " may whether we should not accelerate an event which we would all deplore; but, at all events, we must not have a war of vengeance." The Major-General, after commenting at some length on these topics, and justifying the Carbonari, insisted, that the House ought to know from the Noble Lord, in what spirit the letter of Sir W. A'Court was written. He concluded by moving for the letter, &c.

Lord Castlereagh observed, that the Gallant General should have stated some practical reasons for producing the letter. He admitted that the letter which appeared in the newspapers was correct. What the Gallant General's object was, in moving for its production, he could not tell. He surely could not Object to the humane principle of protecting a helpless Royal Family from insult and injury; and in that spirit the letter was written. With respect to general interference, neither Mr. Pitt, nor Mr. Fox, (who was at the head of the Opposition then) ever opposed our interference with France in 1702. The Noble Lord (censured strongly the Gallant General for his defence of the Carbonari.) The people of Naples were not dissatisfied with the letter; they thanked Sir W. A'Court for having written it, and approved of the neutrality which this country was disposed to maintain. The measure did not result from any community of power with the Congress of Troppau, for the orders for strict neutrality were issued long before the meeting of the Congress. The Noble Lerd, in conclusion, said, that, in his opinion, the Allied Powers did not mean to violate any of the Treaties into which they had entered with this country.

Mr. A'Court observed, that the note of his relation, Sir W. A'Court was received by the Government with unmingled approbation, and that the people had received Sir William with the greatest enthusiasm.

Mr. C. Hutchinson, Mr. Ward, and Lord J. Russell sup-

Mr. Canning justified the orders furnished to the British Ambassador at Naples, which were given with the fullest determination of supporting strict neutrality. The object of the Gallant General was, to recommend war, and the question was, to take the sense of the House as to peace or war. Whatever he might think of the conduct of these who had proceeded to ne might think of the conduct of these who had proceeded to hostilities with Naples, he must declare, that to take any part with one side or the other, would be engaging in a struggle of no short duration, and they must indeed be visionary Statesmen, and the Parliament unreflecting, if they suffered their feelings to carry them beyond the interests of their own country. Many gentlemen were of opinion, that the British Constitution was good for nothing, yet they were ready to cry out—"Come, my merry men all less us go and fight for the British Constitution. my merry men all, let us go and fight for the British Constitu-tion."—Spain, Portugal, and Naples had recently adopted Constitutions of their own; they, therefore, did not want the British. It was well known, that the British Constitution was a plant of slow growth, and could never be propagated by the sword. He deprecated the idea of meddling in the contest. sword. He deprecated the idea of meddling in the contest. We had a Monarchy which was sufficient to preserve, by its transcendant authority, just and perfect equality; where there was just as much Democracy as was sufficient to correct its caprices and its undue assumption of power. Let us then preserve a perfect independence and neutrality in the whole of this contest, for this was not the time to contract new alliances; and the time to contract new alliances. our duty was, to proceed in a steady straight forward line, and whatever might be the issue of the contest abroad, the time might come when we should be called in as arbitrators, to settle the raging storm, and, by our superior power and authority, compose the differences existing between foreign nations.

Sir J. Mackintosh supported the motion, and approved of that act of the Government, which provided for the protection of the Royal Family of Naples; but he viewed with indigna-tion and horror the conduct of the Allied Sovereigns to the King of Naples.

Major-General Wilson replied, and expressed himself satisfied with the explanations of the Noble Lord. He then with drew his motion.—Adjourned.
WEDNESDAY.

Mr. H. Sumner moved the further consideration of the re port on the Newington Select Vestry Bill, and wished the House to abandon the order of the Committee, which decided that the standing orders of the House had not been complied. with, by posting up notices on the parish church doors. His object was to induce the House to recommit the Bill.

The motion was opposed by Mr. S. Whitbread, Mr. Denison, Mr. C. Calvert, Sir J. Newport, &c. and supported by Mr. Ellice. The Speaker thought it would be better to appoint a select committee to enquire into the point. Mr. Abercrombie moved accordingly, and the latter motion was agreed to.

Mr. W. Courtenay moved that the address of 1783 to his Majesty setting forth the expediency of providing for the American loyalists be read. This being done, the hon. gent. enumerated the claims which these persons had upon the justices and consideration of the second of the consideration of the second o tice and consideration of this country, and the recognition which had been given to their rights for compensation; and concluded with moving an address to the King for copies of all communications between the Government and American loyalists since April, 1812.

Mr. Dickenson, Mr. W. Smith, and Mr. Wilherforce supported the motion.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer observed, that their claims had never been lost sight of, and he admitted that the time was now arrived when some final decision ought to be come to whether they should have compensation or not.

Dr. Phillimore and Mr. Lockhart were of opinion as the loyalists had sacrificed property and every thing else for the cause of this country, they had a claim upon the House.

The motion was agreed to.

MALT DUTY .- Mr. Western rose to move the repeal of the malt tax of 1s. 2d. per bushel, or 9s.4d. per quarter. The Hon. erved that it had been admitted in 1816 by the Rt. Hon. Gent. (Mr. V.) that there was a necessity for decreasing the duties upon harley, and be took off 2s. per bushel. He had no desire to remove the burthens from one class to lay it on He then proceeded to show the different duties since 1791, in which year the malt duty was 10s. 6d.; in 1802 it was 18s. 8d.; in 1803 it was 11. 14s. In 1791, spirits distilled from barley, were 21. 10s. per quarter; in 1793, 21. 18s. 4d. in 1796, 31. 4s. 4d. There was a duty of 28s. upon barley, exclusive of the malt tax; which, supposing an acre of land to produce four quarters, there would be a duty of 51. 12s. upon very acre of barley that was grown, independent of the tax for distillation and for malt. The effect of these high duties was the reducing the consumption. The consumption of malt in England in 1791, was 27,673,947 bushels; the next average taken in 1804 found the consumption reduced to 23,450,000 and within the last four years it fell to 22,800,000 bushels, comparing these with the consumption of 1791, there would be a deficit of 5,073,947 bushels, which, added to the diminished consumption in Scotland, would make a total of 5,874,000, which, considering our increased population, was alarming. alarming. As the present distress pressed particularly hard upon agriculture, it was the duty of the House to relieve that pressure wherever it could be done, as he contended it could in the present instance. The Act of 1815 had not given that protection to the agriculturist which the House intended it should. He believed that the intention of the Legislature was to protect our own produce up to the price of eighty shillings; and when it exceeded eighty shillings to call in the aid of foreign markets, to prevent its going far beyond that price. But the effect of that Act had not been consistent with the views and intentions of the Legislature. What had that effect been? Why, upon the admission of foreign grain when the ed eighty shillings, such an inundation of corn had been poured into the country, that every market had become absolutely glutted with it. By looking at the returns, it would be seen that in a space little less than twenty months 2,600,000 quarters of foreign wheat had been imported; a quantity five times the amount of the annual imports for the last twenty years. Irish imports had also increased to a great extent. The importations from that country during the period he had alluded to, were 400,000 quarters. There was now in Ireland 733,000 quarters, and in the granaries of England 260,000 quarters. Some measure ought to be adopted to prevent this sort of inusdation upon the country, yet to provide a sufficient check apon the prices of our markets. The Hon. Member concluded by appealing to the justice of the House in calling for their support to his motion; which was, for leave to bring in a Bill to repeal so much of an Act passed in the 59th year of the reign of his late Majesty, entitled, an Act, &c. as related to the imposition of an additional duty of 1s. 4d. per bushel upon British malt; and so much of another Act relating to Ireland, as imposed an additional duty of 4s. 8d. per barrel upon Irish malt."

Mr. Mackenzie seconded the motion.

Mr. Ellice was friendly to the motion, but wished first to ascertain whether it could be repealed with advantage. He thought the House ought to relieve the present pressure, to enable the country to provide an efficient Sinking Fund.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer said the Hon. Gent. (Mr.

Western) had not taken a fair view of the accounts on the table. It was to be remembered that a small increase of duty would not lessen the consumption, because the beverage in question was not likely to be given up by the consumer; the tax fell generally, and not exclusively, on the farmer; he would ask, therefore, what tax could be more fairly divided? He felt no hesitation in saying, that of the two, he would rather consent to a reduction of some foreign tax, than any interference with an internal tax, which fell equally upon all classes; and he therefore should give his decided opposition to the present motion.

Lord A. Hamilton, Lord G. Cavendish, Mr. Wodehouse, Lord Folkestone, Mr. Wilberforce, Mr. Monck, and Mr. Lyttleton supported the motion.

Mr. Huskisson opposed the motion, and moved "the Previous Question." Mr. H. Sumner opposed it.

Lord Castlereagh said, if he were inclined to remit any tax, he certainly should not fix upon this tax, for its repeal would not fall upon the consumer. He conjured the House not to allow its enlarged views of the state of the country, and of this subject, to be shaken by the false arguments which had been advanced that evening.

The House divided. For the Previous Question, 125 - For the Original Motion, 149—Majority for Mr. Western's Macion.

Motion, 24.

Mr. Western was accordingly directed to bring in his Bill.— Adjourned.

THURSDAY.

Mr. Curteis called the attention of the House to the recent conflicts between the smugglers and the men employed on the coast to prevent smuggling. He read several letters on the subject, and moved for a Return of the Inquests on the bodies of the smugglers, killed by the preventive service men.

The Chancellor of the Exchaquer hoped the Hon. Member would withdraw the motion, as a judicial inquiry is about to take place elsewhere.

After some conversation, in which the motion was supported by Mr. Warre, Mr. Lockhart, Mr. Bennett, &c. Mr. Curteis at length withdrew the motion, and wished it to be considered as a

Mr. Hebhouse gave notice, that he would, on Thursday move for leave to bring in a Bill to repeal the Foreign Enlistment Act.

Mr. Hume made a variety of statements respecting the p sent mode of collecting the Land and Assessed Taxes by Re-ceivers General, and the Distribution of Stamps. In England there are 65 Receivers General; one only in Scotland; and 91 Distributors of Stamps, making together 157 situations at the sal of Govern abolished, being nothing less than sinecures. By the accounts made up to the 5th January, 1820, it appeared that the lowest balance in the hands of the Receivers amounted to 367,5741. thus affording a vast benefit to them—the system he considered a bad one, and noticed the case of Mr. Shaw, the Receiver for Surrey, who died in 1805, having a balance of near 70,000l. due to the Crown-of this sum Sir G. Noel, had paid 30,000l. and his other security had been called on to pay the re-mainder. Mr. Ayton, the Receiver for Salop, at his death owed the Crown 100,0001. He thought the office ought to be abolished altogether. He then noticed the benefits which the Distributors of Stamps received from their offices-Mr. Cole, of Norfolk, had an income in the last four years of 3,820l. per annum on an average. Mr. Gray, of York, received 5,8081.
annually. The Hon. Gent. went on enumerating the average incomes of various distributors, and contended, that he could find persons who would take upon themselves the Office of Distributors, so as to save the country 132,000l. He read a string of Resolutions founded on the statements contained in

The Chancellor of the Exchequer expressed his readiness to move by way of amendment the appointment of a Committee to examine into all the circumstances connected with the subject. With respect to the Receiver-Generalship of Land Tax considerable reduction had been made from time to time. 337 millions of money had been expended, and the whole loss thereon was 13,750l. The Right Hon. Gent. moved for the appointment of a Select Committee to consider the duties of Receiver-General of Land and Assessed Taxes, and of the Distribution of Stamps, together with the profits of the same.

Sir J. Mackintosh supported the resolutions, and congratulated the House on this concession of the Right Hon. Gent. which was the consequence of the majority of last night; time was when administration existed only with the confidence of the House, but the Noble Lord would not take the hint and retire.

Lord Castlercagh thought the Hon. Gent. was rather more intoxicated with his majority of 24 than was consistent with his grave and learned character. He had forgotten when Lord H. Petty and his other friends were in office—that Noble Lord received two plain hints, the from tax and the private breweries, with the greatest cooless imaginable. He hoped therefore the Hon. and Learned Gent. would not hallo! before he was out of the wood.

The Committee was then appointed, consisting of Mr. Hume, Mr. W. Smith, Sir C. Long, Mr. Tremayne, Mr. Bankes, Mr. C. Wynne, Mr. Holford, Mr. Wodebouse, Mr. Grenfell, Mr. M'Donald, Sir T. Acland, Mr. Chetwynd, Mr. Smith (Lincoln), Sir H. Parnell, Mr. N. Calvert, and Lord Binning .- Adj.

FRIDAY.

The Irish Trial for Treason Bill was read a second time, and committed for Monday.

Mr. Byng presented a petition from the Trustees of the Bethnal Green Road, against the Metropolis Road Bill.

Mr. Peel presented a petition from R. Hayes, a Franciscan Friar of Wexford, in Ireland, stating that he could prove the majority of the Clergy and Laity were hostile to the Catholic Bills now in progress before the House.

Mr. R. S. Carew knew the petitioner Hayes, a few years ago, and knew him to be always ready to throw opposition in the way of, and excite disturbance at, public meetings of the Catholics. He was a clergyman in Wexford, and preached a sermon which his own hishop (Dr. Ryan) considered of so seditious a nature, and tending to separate the two countries, that Dr. Ryan (the bishop) reprimanded Hayes, and, he believed, silenced him. The petition was laid on the table.

Lord Nugent presented a petition signed by four Roman Catholic Peers,—the only Catholic Peers who happened to be then in London, praying that the Bills now before the House might pass into laws. He need not add, that the petition was most respectably signed. The first signature to it was that of the first, by rank and the precedence of centuries, of the Peerage of the kingdom. The second was the premier Earl of England; the two others were nearly at the heads of their elass. Taey were, the Duke of Norfolk, the Earl of Shrews-bury, and Lords Petre and Arundel. The Bill now before the House was one which, the petitioners said, would relieve five millions of their fellow-subjects from serious disabilities.

Sir J. Newport (in the absence of Mr. Plunkett) moved the House to go into a Committee on the Roman Catholic Bill.

Mr. Croker adverted to the notice which he had given, to submit a proposition for enabling the King to provide for the Reman Catholic Clergy. He was not aware that the proposition would involve any difficulties, or give rise to any differences of opinion. Since that, however, he had reason to think some difference of opinion did exist on the subject, though upon reflection he still thought that the adoption of such a measure would give satisfuction to the Protestant and Catholic. Yetapprehending that proposing it in the Committee would but embarrass the Bill—and seeing at the same time, that it was rather a question of principle than of detail, and that it was better to leave the undivided attention of the House to the details of the Bill as it now stood, he would postpone his proposition until the Report of the Committee was bringing up. He looked upon the emancipation of the Roman Catholics as a second union of his country—us a sure safeguard against the renewal of these disturbances which so long desolated Ireland, and against any future dangers; it was not from any wish to embarrassa Bill for which he was so anxious, but from a long and fixed opinion that it would tend to connect the clergy and laity together, and that is legislating for the emancipation of one class, it was unjust to overlook the relief due to the other.

The House then went into the Committee.

Upon putting the question that the following de stand part of the Bill-

"And whereas it appears from the admonition annexed to the injunction of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, published in the first year of Her Majesty's reign, and sanctioned by the Act passed in the fifth year of her reign, intituled, 'An Act for the assurance of the Queen's regal powers over all estates and subjects within her dominions," that such disclaimer was originally meant only to extend to any such acknowledgment of foreign jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence, or authority, as is or could be incompatible with the civil duty and allegiance which is due to His Majesty and successors from all his subjects.

"And whereas, a legislative explanation to that effect may therefore be properly and safely given and declared;

"May it therefore please your Majesty, that it may be enacted and declared; and be it enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that nothing contained in the said Oath of Supremacy shall be understood express or imply further or otherwise, then that the persons taking the same do thereby unreservedly and unequivocally express and declare, in the presence of ALMIGHTY God, that no foreign Prince, Person, Prelate, State, or Potentate, hath or ought to have any jurisdiction, power, suprepre-eminence, or authority, temporal, ecclesiastical, purpose, conflicts or interferes with the duty of full and undivided allegiance, which, by the laws of this realm, is due to His Majesty, his heirs and successors, from all his subjects, or with the legal rights of His Majesty's subjects, or any of

Sir W. Scott conceived, there were difficulties in the way of the Bill which no ingenuity could get aver—bars insupera-ble and insurmountable. He had no objection to the preamble, until be came to that part where it was said that the Oath of Supremacy might be explained away by putting it in such a shape that the Roman Cutholic could safely take it. He thought that impossible; the Oath of Supremacy, in the obvious and plain import of the words, never could be taken by a Roman Catholic. The clause in the preamble referred to the admonition of Queen Elizabeth, and took an undue advantage of it. It assumed that the terms of that admonitions were directed only against the interference of the Pope in-temporal matters, but that it left an obedience to the Pontif in spirituals consistent with an allegiance in temporals to the Sovereign of this country.

Mr. H. Twiss contended, that the present Bill did not introduce, but removed an anomaly.

Sir J. Nichols Observed, that nothing could be clearer than the Onth of Supremacy. The present Bill proposed a great and important alteration in its substance. He opposed its progress from a sense of danger. The Acts now in force were, he contended, penal in no sense of the word; they were merely self-defensive, for they merely excluded from power. These laws were enacted to avoid the special danger of Catholics being in possession of offices of trust.

Mr. C. Grant thought the simple question was whether, if the Catholics took the oath prescribed, the House would have a sufficient guarantee. He claimed the concession of the rights which the Catholics claimed for the safety of the whole Empire.

Mr. Brown objected to the Bills.

Mr. Wetherell opposed the Bills as dangerous to the existing establishments.

Sir J. Mackintosh supported them.

Mr. Goulbeurn contended that the admission of Roman-Catholics to political power, was an avil against which they were bound to guard. He then proceeded to argue that the oath, as amended, diminished the security which it gave before, and that it was inconsistent that an oath should be administered. to Protestants, which contained a larger security than the oath which was proposed to be administered to the Roman Catholic.

Dr. Phillimore supported the clause; and in answer to his Hon. and Learned Friend, the Member for the city of Oxford, he rend passages from Dr. Parker, Dr. Sams, and Bishop Burnett, to show that the explanation of Elizabeth's meaning as to the oath of supremacy, was not incorrectly cited, and was not connected with any historical untruth.

Mr. Beecher supported the clause. Nothing could tend more to secure the Established Church than to place the Roman Cathelic on a level with the Protestant.

Mr. Peel spoke at some length against the clause, and quoted the opinions of Bishop Bramall and other Divines, with the view of showing that the claims of the Roman Catholics could not be granted with safety to the Constitution

Lord Castlereagh opposed the arguments of the Right Hon. Gent, who had just sat down, and insisted that England was the only country in Europe which did not recognize the amicable intercourse between Catholic and Protestant.

Sir J. Mackintosh supported the clause, as did also Sir J.

The House then divided, and the numbers were—Far the-clause, 230—Against it, 216—Majority, 14.—When the diviis on was made known, loud cheering took place.

Mr. Bankes gave notice that he would, on the occurrence of a certain clause, move to exclude Roman Catholics from soats in Parliament.

The Chairman reported progress, and asked leave to sit again on Monday.—Adjourned.

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

His Majesty beld a Privy Council, on Wednesday, at which C. F. Greville, Esq. was sworn in Clerk of the Council, in the room of Lord Chetwynd, deceased.

The King henoured the Concert of Ancient Music with his sence on Wednesday, for the first time since his accession to the Throne, at the Hanover-square Concert Rooms.

On Wednesday Evening the Anniversary Festival in celebration of the glorious victory of Alexandria, took place at the Freemason's Tavern, Great Queen-street, His Royal Highness the Duke of York in the Chair, supported on the right hand by Prince Leopold, and on the left by the Duke of Argyle. great number of officers of distinction were present.

he active frigate has arrived in sixteen days from the Bay of Naples, bringing papers and letters to the 2nd instant. Sir Henry Lushington, the English Consul-General at Naples, has come home in her. Great preparations for war continued to be made by the Neapolitans, and it is stated, in the letters be made by the Neapolitan, and it is saired, in the letters, brought by this vessel, that in two days the Neapolitan public securities had fallen from 71 to 53.

EAST INDIA HOUSE.—On Wednesday, a General Court of Proprietors was beld at the East India House, when certain. letters were read which passed between the Right Hon, Geo. Canning and the Board of Controll, on his resignation of the office of President of the Board.

The Chairman said, it was due to Mr. Canning to state, that when the Committee of Finance, in their Report, rese mended that a Bill should be brought in to include the President of the Board of Controul in the list of those publicofficers who should be entitled to a pension on retiring from-office, the Right Honourable Gentleman refused to bring in: such a Bill, because he would be the first person to whom. any such pension would come to be due. He mentioned this as a proof of the disinterested feeling of the Right Hon-Gentleman.

Mr. R. Jackson rejoiced to find his Honourable Briends concur so perfectly with him in his conviction of the merits of Mr. Canning. He meant to move his Address of Thanks on the testimony of the twenty-four Directors which had just been -and he conceived that it would not be improper to move also an Address to the Throne, praying His Majesty to recal the Right Hon. Gent. to the situation of President of the Board of Controul.

The Honourable Colonel L. Stanbope said, that before he could concur in the motion of the Learned Gentleman, he must inquire what opinion Mr. Canning had expressed in regard to Liberty of the Press in India.

He was informed that Mr. Canning had cortainly not expressed ny opinion, nor recommended any step unfavourable to the Liberty of the Press in India.

Colonel L. Stanhope then gave notice, that at the next Court. he should move for a Copy of all Instructions that had been sent out, and Correspondence that had taken place relative to the Freedom of the Press in India,

The Hon, Colonel L. Stanhope desired to know whether the prize-money taken in the late war with the Peishwa had been yet divided among the armies?

The Chairman said, that properly speaking, there was no such thing as prize-money, but it lay with his Majesty to order sums taken from an enemy to be distributed among the captors. Owing to circumstances, that order had not yet been given.

we understand that a new periodical work is shortly to appear, conducted by persons of first-rate ability, and on principles of perfect independence. It will be published weekly, and comprise a review of all new books, foreign as well as English; strictures on the arts; criticism on the theatres; and, in short, all subjects which can render it valuable to men of science and genius.

The King left town on Friday morning at eleven o'elock for Brighton.

The Paris papers of Wednesday arrived last night. They state that the city of Genon has hoisted the Independent flag. The Piedmontese army on foot does not exceed 32,000 men.

It was generally supposed that the inflammatory hand bills with which the town was inustated during the Queen's trial, were manufactured by Cobbett. The mystery, however, will soon be developed, as we are informed an action will shortly be tried in one of our Courts against a certain very active Alderman and Co., for the expenses of printing and posting the said bills.—We shall be able to give some more information on this subject in our next.

COURT OF CHANCERY .- Salurday, March 24 .- This morn ing the Court was extremely full at an early hour, in expecta-tion of hearing the judgment in the Queen's College case.

The moment the Lord Chancellor had taken his seat, he informed the parties that he was under the necessity of Tuesday next.

It was understood that this delay was occasioned by the absonce of Mr. Horne, whose brother had been found suddenly dead this morning in his bed.

No motion, or matter of importance was afterwards heard during the sitting of the Court, which the Lord Chancellor left at two o'clock, in order to proceed to the House of Lords.

Yesterday at the rising of the Court the Lord Chancellor observed, that he had re-considered the case, and saw no reason to alter the determination he had come to on the preceding day.

DRURY-LANE and COVENT-GARDEN THEATRES The Private Boxes at the above Theatres are LET by the Night, by J. ANDREWS, Opera Agent, at his New Circulating Library, 167, New Bond-street.

New Bond-street.

N. B. The alternate weeks of an Opera Box on the first Grand Tier, and other Boxes desirably situated, to Let for the Season.—Boxes Let and other Boxes desirably situated, to Let for the Season.—Boxes Let en Commission by the Night or Season.

THE Government having sanctioned the OPBNING of an OFFICE in SOMERSET HOUSE, for the distribution of a new description of BANK NOTE PAPER, invented by Sir William Congreve, for the Security of Country Bank Notes against Forgery, in combination with the change of Stamps, preposed by him for the same pur pose, and new immediately about to take place.—This is to give notice to Bankers and other Persons, whom such matters may concern, that Specimens of this Paper, with Explanations of the nature of its security, and of the Regulations and Checks to be established for the protection of the Country Bankers, by means of this Paper, may be had at the NEW BANK NOTE PAPER OFFICE, SOMERSET HOUSE, on the right hand of the Great Entrance, near the Royal Academy.—Attendance from Ten till Three o'Clock.

FORTY GUINEAS FER ANNUM: NO EXTRAS NOR

THE MASTERS OF GORDON HOUSE ACADEMY, THE MASTERS of GORDON HOUSE ACADEMY, Kentish Town, Middlesex, respectfully inform Gentlemen who wish their Sons to obtain a Superior Classical or Commercial Education, that they PREPARE YOUNG GENTLEMEN for every Department in Life.—The HEBUEW, CHALDAIC, and SYRIAC LANGUAGES TAUGHT.—Gentlemen wishing to acquire a knowledge of the above, may be accommodated with a separate study, and have every facility afforded them necessary to obtain a proficiency in the same — Prospectus, &c. may be obtained, at 17, Oxford-street; 40, Long-acre; 17, New North-street, Red Lious-square; 8, Sun-street, Bishopsgate-street; and 156, New Bond-street.

A SINGLE MAN, advanced in life, having more room than requisite, can accommodate, as an INMATE, an ELDERLY GENTLEMAN, of carrect conduct. Rent of Furnished House, Three Hundred Pounds per Annuar: Living must not exceed Four Randred Pounds a Year: this includes Wines, Cook, and Housemald; in short, every thing but Men Servants, who are on board wages. The situation is airy and healthful, near Pertland-road, west of Fitzroy-square, and north of New Cavandish-street. Early hours cannot be dispensed with. Letters (post-paid), with real name, and stating place of abode, will only be attended to. Direct to F. R. to be left at No. 26, Berners-street, before the Slat of March, 1821.

"Take him for all in all, we ne'er shall look upon his like again."
THE ASTONISHING NEWLY DISCOVERED ANIMAL BONASSUS, taken on the Apalachian Moustains, 2700 miles in the Interior of America, is sixteen months old, five feet eleven inches high, and, when full grown, weighs two tons. None of his kind were ever in this country. He has THE QUEEN and PRINCE LEOPOLD amongst his Patrons; and is proneunced by Men of Science as the most stupendeus Work of Nature's God.—Shortly he is going to Paris, till then is shewn at 287, Strand.

eas Work of Nature's God.—Shortly he is going to Paris, till then is shewn at 287, Strand.

DATENT ECONOMICAL and UNIVERSAL LAMP, adapted to the CONSERVATORY. The same principle on which this Laup acts as a Chamber or Night Light, so universally admired and patronized by thousands of families and persons, is so peculiarly applicable to the Conservatory, that the Patentee is induced to present it to the Public as a protectory of delicate Plants and Flowers from the effects of frusts or cold nights. Two of these Lamps, which add elegance to utility, have been proved, by many experiments made by a respectable Plarist in his own Green-house, to have kept the thermometer at 40 to 41 degrees for twelve hours, during a severe frost, at the small expense is spermacetion of two-pence each; and what adds to its singular admantage is, that its heat can be increased at otherwise at pleasure. The Night or Chamber Lamp gives an invariable light, for twelve hours or more—ready at the moment it is wanted—bearing any motion perfectly safe—and in expence not balf that of a rush-light; price 10s. in nest Japanned Stander, and 20s. in elegant Imperial Stetal, or Bronze, suited to the clambers of the Nobility and afficent; and Co. Agents to the Patentee, 20s, St.Clement's, Strand, who, to secure the reputation of this Invention from the effects of bad oil, are bound to sell none but pure and genuine Spermaceti.—Families in the Country may venture to send their Orders, without the possibility of a disappsintment.—Letters (past-paid) will meet with prompt attention.

NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

"A much injured Party." will see we have attended to his communication, and hope that he will keep his promise.

We are infinitely obliged to M.P.; his communication, by accordant, did not come to hand till too late for insertion last week, and too late for us to notice the receipt of it. We trust he will accept our spology for an apparent inattention, and favour us, as he promised us, on the sas We shall be gled to hear from E. P.

We have not room for Mr. Ex-Sheriff Parkin eation this week.

The Letter to the Duke of Grafton, from Junius, is not in his usual style.

The lapidary's extract (if genuins) is excellent. We con-se our double, and think, as it was said of a deceased dra-

"Whene'er a naughty joke comes pat in, "He wraps it up in Doctor's Latin."

As we never heard of Miss B. Hogsfesh, or her shill in athematics, we must decline the little poem in her praise. Mr. S. shall have his MS, forwarded to him.

As the account of the proposed dud at Canonbury House is not authenticated, we decline inserting the particulars. We eer the Doctor has been sadly quitype on the subject. Our other numerous friends arest expuss our noticing them.

THEATRE ROYAL, COVENT-GARDEN. ay, the Stranger.—Tuesday, Don John.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE. Monday, Artaxerxes.—Fuesday, the English Fleet.—Wednes ratorio.—Thursday, the Duenna.—Saturday, Love in a Village.

PRICE OF STOCKS AT THE CLOSE YESTERDAY.

5 per ct. Div. 21 Mar. 77-60 | Bank Sh. Div. Mar. 21.1470 Recon, Div. 21 Mar. . . 94 | Ex. Lond. lm 25-55 RUSSIAN.

Spr Cut. Bonds, £100, 781 1 Dite, £250 to £1000 SPANISH. -Exchange . . . . 4 3 -5 per Cent. . . . . . AMERICAN. 7 per Cent. 7 per Cent. . . . . . . 6 per Cent. 1812 ... 103 6 per Cent. 1815 ... 107 5 per Cent. . . . 102 3 per Cent. . . . . Bank Shares, £23 1813 ... 104

1814.

A Monday's Edition, containing the latest News, the Stock List, the London Markets, and the State of the Country Markets by that morning's post, is published at Three o'clock.

We must request that Advertisements may be sent early in a week. Many are omitted this week which came too late.

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, MARCH 25.

THE Catholic Question was again under discussion on Friday night, in the House of Commons, and the Catholic party had a majority of fourteen. We confess we should be alarmed at this apparent success of a measure, which has nothing more nor less for its object than a complete change in the BRITISH CONSTITUTION, did we not recollect that a Bill, 'similarly framed in 1813, got through its first stages with a large majority.

That Bill was lost in the Committee upon a clause proposed by Lord Colchester, for the exclusion of Catholics from the House of Commons. Mr. Bankes has given notice of a similar motion, which, we sincerely hope, will meet with similar success.

The dangers to be apprehended to our ecclesiastical establishment, as well as to our civil institutions, are so great and apparent, and the securities proposed so inefficient and uncertain, that we look forward to the passing of this Bill as almost amounting to an overthrow of all that has hitherto been held dear and valuable in our Constitution; and we are only surprised, that these men who profess such reverence for that Constitution, should be amongst the foremost to attack and undermine it.

If the concessions contemplated be made to the Catholics, how can we, with any consistency, refuse to remove all the disabilities under which all Dissenters from the Church of England labour?

We ask, are the supporters of the Catholic Claims prepared to go this length, and throw down all the barriers in which our religious and political safety have hitherto existed? If they are not, do they not commit a manifest injustice to the Protestant, and give the boon to the Catholic at his expence?

For our own parts, warmly attached as we are to the establishment in Church and State as it now stands, and anxious as we are that no change should take place in it, were we called upon, as a matter of necessity, to make any concession, we should infinitely prefer admitting our Protestant brethren to the advantages from which they are excluded, than the spiritual subjects of a foreign dominion, whose characteristic has been, time out of sind, the extension of its power, and the conversion of others to its tenets.

With the Protestant Dissenter we have one guard, which is wanting in the Catholic; namely, an uniformity of belief on the great doctrinal points of our religion; the difference being merely as to points of discipline. With the Catholic there can be no amalgamation, and if he be true to the creed he is taught, he can never act so conscientiously as when he is labouring to destroy that, which the Protestant Dis-senter would unite himself with the Established Church in upholding.

Another objection arises to the proposed measure; it does not give to the [Catholics ALL they demand; we remember that when concessions were originally made to the Catholics, their apparent gratitude was unbounded, and they professed entire satisfaction at what they then received; those who at that time predicted that they would not remain contented, were decided and abused; their prophecies were treated as absurd and calumnious on the character of the Catholics; but have subsequent events falsified their prophecies? Has not every concession been the precursor of a new demand? Has not every gift afforded to them a ground for further encroachment, till at length they rudely demanded as a positive right more, much more, than that which at first they entreated as a grace and favour? If they are admitted to seats in Parliament and in the Cabinet, how can they be excluded from the offices excepted in this Bill, or rather is not the exception a mere cloke? For can it be supposed for a moment that when in possession of the office of prime minister (to which if the Bill passes they will be eligible), a Catholic in that situation will not wirtually, though he may not ostensibly, influence all the ecclesiastical appointments in the same manner as a Protestant would do. We leave our readers to judge what the effect of this would be upon the establishment. It is said that no apprehension need be entertained in giving them seats in Parliament, because the numbers would be so few that the danger would be nothing—but who can calculate what those numbers may kereafter be?

The Catholics even in this country are a wealthy and powerful body, though comparatively few in numbers, and if the concession were confined to them we are free to admit, that the danger would be small; but having now admitted into Parliament an hundred members from the sister kingdom, where the Catholic population is asknowledged to be as four to one, and where the electors at least in the counties and large towns may be fairly estimated in nearly, if not quite the same proportion, is there not good ground to calculate that Catholics will be elected in the same proportion? For it should be recollected, that though the great mass of landed proprietors in Ireland be Protestants, yet their tenantry are Catholics, and from the progress of commercial wealth in that country, a great number of Catholics are now become extensive lauded proprietors, so as in the southern and western counties, to give a great preponderance in the elections to the Catholic body; this we premise, we do not hesitate to affirm, that although the Protestant interest in Ireland, may maintain its present ascendancy for a short period, yet that it will eventually be overpowered by the Catholic population and property, and be driven out of the field: the consequence of this will be, that a great majority of the members from Ireland will be Catholics, and that we may reducted a upon hearing in the House of that we may calculate upon having in the House of Commons, a body of between sixty and seventy Catholic

Now we will fairly put it to our readers, and the supporters of the Bill, whether danger is not to be apprehended from the union and simultaneous movements of such a body, upon all questions which it will be to their personal and individual advantage to support. We know that upon many occasions, the parties in that House are so nicely balanced, that a much smaller number would be capable of turning the scale; may, not, therefore, the Catholic Members from giving their support upon particular questions, vital to either party, receive in return promises of support for their parti-cular objects, and thus by degrees encroachments be made upon all that remains of our Establishment, and the securities now taken for what is left be entirely done away with?

These are a few of the many objections which strike, us-they are sufficient, however, to make us repeat the sentiment which cannot be too strongly urged upon

LET NOT THE LAWS OF ENGLAND BE CHANGED."

It appears by advices from France, that a Bulletin was exhibited at Paris, announcing a complete victory over the Neapolitan rebel forces, by the Austrians, on the 7th inst. at Ricti. The retreat of the Neapolitans is reported to have been of the most disorderly nature. The effect this intelligence had upon the French funds was most striking; they rose in less than an hour, from 73 to 771

It wilt be seen that Lord Liverpool, on Friday, in the House of Lords, clearly and satisfactorily explained the conduct and policy of the English Government, with respect to Naples. It appears, that the strictest neu-trality has been, and continues to be, observed by this country; and we are quite sure that there is no man who considers the question coolly and dispussionately, who will not agree with us, in thinking the line of con duct thus adopted, the only one which England could wisely and safely take.

THE Queen was pleased to address a letter to Lord Liverpool, announcing her intention to be present at the Drawing Room on Thursday. This letter was written with the view to induce a prohibition on the part of His Majesty, of which the peor injured weman might complain, but she was disappointed: it was left. to her own discretion to go or not, and as might be supposed her discretion told her she had better stay at home. It was then reported, that some one of her doze interesting female associates was to present a petition to His Majesty, that he would be pleased to allow her to be prayed for ;—this we never believed, for as she has: got over the difficulty of taking the 50,000l. per annum, without being mentioned in the Liturgy, we believe she cares very little about it, except, indeed, (as she says, herself) that her being excluded from the prayers. will have the effect on the continent of excommunication. When she means to try the air of Italy, we do not know, but we should think if neither self-degradation nor public contempt can drive her out of England, hear known fondness for ease and gaiety; must soon induce her to fly to scenes where she may find companions rather more lively than Lady Anne, or Sir William-Gell, and neighbours more entertaining if not more respectable, than that stupid fellow Wood and his worthy

It has been observed by every man who ever made an observation, that almost all great events turn upon trifling occurrences. A case in point has been transmitted to us, and we cannot resist the temptation of communicating it to our readers. The association of. ideas it conveys to the mind is by no means nice; but it relates to our friend Wood, and we are not so unrese. sonable as to expect to find him and delicacy connected. anywhere; nor can we bring ourselves to reject an illustration of character, merely because it is powerfully and naturally characteristic.

Previously to the successful offer of his hand to his present lady, Matthew felt, or feigned to feel a glowing sentiment of affection for a young lady in Suffolk, and to this fair damsel Matthew devoted all his attention. Matthew, by dint of powder and pomatum, and sundry other little sophistications, then much in use, had contrived to soften the general expression of his countenance, into the "mercantile pensive," and was (if we may believe report) not so of ious to the young lady as to have been quite certain of rejection.

One fatal evening, for
"Music is the soul of love!"

Our hero was leaning over the chair of his fair mistress, whose snowy fingers were kissing the glowing chords, when that event occurred, which suddenly broke off all further acquaintance between the parties.

Here comes our difficulty—how to express, with the greatest possible delicacy, yet with truth, that which happened. It appears, indeed, unwise to set our readers guessing, lest their minds should go hunting on a wrong scent. The truth is—(as the Life of the Alderman says)—"These things happened before he wore whiskers:' the meaning of which allusion is thus, in some degree, made clear. That which con-cluded the treaty between the lady and the swain was, the discovery, on that night, that he had other things running in his head besides love and her. In short, gentle reador—(we will use a Parliamentary phrase)— "From what dropped from the Honours ble Gentleman," or rather, from amidst the powder and pomatum on his head, the lady determined to cut the connexion. When we add, that a notorious punster said, on hearing of the hady's resolution, that they could, after that occur-rence, be married only by "license!" we hope we have said enough to shew, that the young lady was very pru-dent to prefer a respectable Norfolk clergyman for a husband, to a nasty, dirty bagman, who never combed

We are told, that in Suffolk, a fable has been industriously circulated, (particularly in the neighbourhood of Eye), founded on these facts, and called—The Rose and the Woon-Louse.

In settling the law business about Cambridge House, the Queen has not employed Mr. Vizard. Wood recommended his attorney, and Vizard, who has had all the trouble and responsibility of expending sixty thousand pounds for her Majesty. without having reserved a guinea to pay himself for his toil, is sent to the right about on the suggestion of the bag-man.

Her Majesty has taken her account from Coutts's and opened an account at Ransom's, in which firm Douglas Kinnaird is a partner; Douglas Kinnaird is the intimute friend of Hume, and his influence over her Majesty has been exerted to get his crony

It may be remembered that Douglas Kinnaird is a Radical of the first water, and tried his weight in a Westminster Election in 1818, when out of the whole population of that immense oity and its liberties, the following persons only could be found to espouse his cause by giving him their undivided votes:

Thomas Bedford, (Billiard Rooms), 55, Pall Mall. Thomas Herbert, (Surgeon) Bolton-street, Piccadilly. John Sweeting, (Tailor), 33, Maddox-street. William Heaven, (Gentleman), 3, Catherine-bldgs, Pimlico.
George Pristman, (Publican), 19, Little Newport-street.
Thomas Sharp, (Painter), 10, Old Compton-street.

J. H. Stopforth, (Card Maker), 18, Little Newport-street. Being in number-seven.

Numerous workmen are actually employed in making packing cases for her Majesty.

We noticed some time since the portrait of the Queen, elevated on a barrel, painted red, and subscribed Caroline Cordial, which is to be seen as the sign of a gin-shop in the City Road. We saw the compliment intended to be paid to the sebriety of her Majosty, and duly appreciated the zeal and good tuste of the man who had placed her effigies in so honourable a station; but the distinction conveyed by the Cityread publican falls very far short of that, conferred on her Majasty's virtue, by the change of name of a dirty lane, near the Circus in St. George's fields. This horrid sink of vice and infamy, peopled by the most debased and demoralized women in or near London, has been for years marked by the police and shunned by all decent passengers, as Dover-street-will it he believed in after days that this pest-house of sin and shameless prostitution, is now called CAROLINE-STREET, IN HONOUR OP:THE QUEEN!!!

QUEEN'S VISITORS.

A list of the Queen's visitors having found its way into South Wales, in which the name of the Lady Lucy Foley, wife of Admiral Sir Thomas Foley, and aunt to his Grace the Duke of Leinster, appears; we are requested to state that her Ladyship has never been from Abermarlais Park, Carmarthenshire, (200 miles from London) since the Queen's arrival in England.

LIST OF CLERGYMEN WHO PRAYED FOR THE QUEEN:

REV. DR. LOCK, Rector of Farnham, Surrey. (On this church a white flag has been hoisted, having on it the words, "Innocence Triumphant". This Divine's sermons.

evince strong marks of the "Lime labor."

REV. MR. EVERETT, Vicar of Romford.

REV. MR. JACKSON, (Dissenter) Stockwell, Surrey.

REV. MR. SLOCOCK, Newbury.—(Prayed for the Queen in the morning service, but in the afternoon emitted. praying for her, at Wasing, being the residence of Mr. Mount, a patron of his, and a gentleman of unblemished reputation, and sound loyalty.)

REV. THOMAS PRICE, Curate, neur Crickhowel,ntroduced the Queen's name in the prayer preceding the Spring Assize Sermon, before the Judges, to the astonishment of the High Sheriff of Brecknockshire, whose Chaplain he was.

REV. MR. TAYLOR, Curate, near Swansea.

REV. RICHARD FENTON, Curate of Waltham, Holton, and Scartho, Lincoln.—This gentleman his expressed his conviction, that when the Queen triumphed over her enemics she would present him with a Crown living.
THE REV. H. C. WHITE, Curate of Allhallows Barking, Tower-street, London.

REV. HENRY HARRISON, Curate of Kirkeaton. near Huddersfield.

REV. ROBERT DUCKLE, Curate of Humberstone and Brigsby.—This gentleman brags that he has sufficient interest with Alderman Wood to be appointed Domestic Chaplain to the Queen, in which case, we can only suy, as HE undoubtedly would to the Reverend Divine now holding that office,)

"HAIL! FELLOWES!—WELL MET!" NOTE Extra. This gentleman is, as yet, only in DEACON'S orders.

(To be continued.)

BROUGHAMIANA .- (Ne. VI.)

Mr. Henry Brougham, were you, or were you not, authorized by the Queen, to carry (what you and she were pleased to call) a message from her to the House of Commons, refusing the allowance of 50,000l. per annum, unless her name were restored to the Liturgy!

Mr. Henry Brougham, if the Queen did authorize you to carry down this message to the House of Commons, so refusing this 50,000l. per annum; how can you, knowing that she has subsequently taken the sum she made you in her name so refuse, endure the disgrace of still holding the office of her Attorney-General?

Mr. Henry Brougham is requested, for his own sake, to answer a few of the questions we have put to him, it would be a much more effectual mode of attaining the object nearest his heart, (putting down John Bull) than offering his services GRATIS to conduct any prosecution against this paper. We confess he has reason to hate us, and we are very glad he does so.

To SIR HENRY BUNBURY, Knt.

SIR,—Several well-wishers to your reputation have persuaded themselves from the altered language, both in speech and writing, which you have adopted for some time past, and which amounts to very little short of pure Radicalism, that the common feelings of a man of honour, and a gentleman cannot have allowed you to retain, up to the present time, those emoluments (about 1500l. a year at least) which the liberality of your Sovereign and his present Ministers bestowed, or continues to you, in addition to the fostering kindness which your early youth received from Royal benevolence; these well-wishing friends are still further persuaded, that your still possessing these emoluments is impossible, from reading in the last Suffolk Chronicle your revolutionary speech at the late Stow-market meeting, in which speech, you not only brand the King's Ministers with corruption, ignorance, and profligate waste of public treasure at the present crisis, but with having adopted this profligacy and this corruption as a system, and consequently from a period prior to that when these sinecure emoluments and selfsuggested knighthood were bestowed on yourself. Some of these friends also suggested that you would certainly own obligation to any one who would give you a fair opportunity of refuting this charge of ingratitude and inconsistency, by declaring your resignation of these sinceures, previous to your virulent attacks upon the existing government, for you must be aware that were you even disposed to relinquish them at this moment, it would not restore the good opinion of your friends, or would not restore the good opinion of your menus, or prevent their considering you as having lost yourself by keeping them so long. This opportunity of vindication I am ready to afford you, and the Journals of your party, The Times or Morning Chronicle, will, no doubt, be ready to give publicity to any such justificatory statement as you may think proper to furnish them with. VOX AMICORUM.

Passages of Sir Henry Bunbury's speech, from the Suffolk Chronicle:

He said, "It was unnecessary by argument to labour in demonstration of a fact upon which no man could entertain a doubt. If there were any sceptics upon such a subject, he would refer them for conviction to the state of their books, to their markets, and to the empty condition of their pockets.—(Loud applames.) Never, he believed, at any former period in the history of the country had the people laboured under such hopeless difficulties as at the present moment;—all classes of the community, agriculturists, artizans, and traders, were involved in one common ruin. Partial remedies, indeed, had, from time to time, been attempted, relieve the pressure of the times upon those classes, but partial remedies could never extract the seeds of inherent corruption.

Such remedies never effected any real good—they only served to aggravate the evil, to delude the public mind, to distract its attention from the real cause of the evils to which it was subjected—namely, excessive taxation. This was the real cause of the national disease—a disease which was withering and corroding the strength and beauty of the country. It was only by unanimity amongst ourselves—by the co-operation of all classes of the community, in removing by all legitimate means so fatal a disease, that the nation could be restored to a beathful state of vigor. No permanent advantage could be obtained, unless all classes of the community united in the pursuit of this common object. In former times, when distress pressed upon any one branch of national industry, the country was in a condition to come to its assistance, as, for example, in the early period of the French war, when the commerce of the country laboured under great difficulties; the public purse could then offer relief, and did afford relief, to the suffering merchants. But where was the public purse now—where the assistance to come from to relieve universal distress? — what assistance could be ex pected from an empty exchequer?- what aid be derived from an unproductive system of finance ?- what encouragement to be derived from a ministry which only ceased to impose taxution, because taxation had ceased to become productive? -The fact was, that taxation had been carried to its utmost limit, and far beyond its legitimate boundary, and could be carried no further. If he were asked, then, what relief could be afforded to the distresses of the country, he would say that there was no other mode of affording relief, but by an immediate diminution of the public expenditure, and by an abatement of taxation. But then came the great ostensible difficulty which must first be surmounted. Would the House of Commons, constituted as it now was, consent to reduce the taxation, and lessen the public expenditure, with at the first of Ministers; and would Ministers reduce their establishments, and lessen their taxation, when these were the very sinews of their power? No; because this vast taxution, and these enormous establishments, were the means by which Ministers were enabled to maintain an influence over those majorities which every body knew were carried by the Ministers, and of which every man in the country felt the evil effects. Would Miwould they reduce the number of Custom-house officers, and destroy those innumerable places which afforded them the means of securing the compliance and the gratitude of any Lord this, and 'Squire that? No, certainly not; be-cause it would be expecting of the Ministers a degree of Roman virtue which they did not possess. The Nea olitans ventured to correct some of those abuses which unhappily abounded in their country. This was the whole of the pretext. Such was the temper with which the Neapolitans conducted themselves, that not a drop of blood was spik in the glorious revolution they had effected. The Meapolitans dured to set a bright and glorious example to other nations, and the Holy wolves marked them out for destruction.—(Applause.) He would ask, then, when the country saw such measures pursued at home, and such connexions formed abroad, whether it had not cause to fear the worst, and had not examples amply sufficient to induce them to exert themselves for the vindication of their own rights before it was too late? But he begged the Moeting to bear in mind that they would gain very little by merely displacing one set of Ministers and substituting another, unless they obtained a sufficient guarantee that their successors would not adopt a similar system. He, however, knew bet of one sufficient security against the misconduct of any administration, and that was no effectual reform in the reprosentation of the people—such a reform as should dissolve that agreeable connexion which at present subsisted between His Majesty's Ministers and the Lower House of Parliament—such a reform as should put it out of the power of any Ministers, in future, to maintain any lasting influence over the Members of that House—such a reform as should render that House once more the guardians of the people's interests, instant of mere instruments in the hands of a corrupt Cabinet. He believed that then Ministers would be found to uphold the interests of the people; but he was quite convinced, that until then, Englishmen would not be restored to their rights, and could never be considered as prespercus. The Hon. Gentleman concluded by expressing his thanks for the attention bestowed upon his address, and said be felt great satisfaction in seconding the Resolutions .- (Loud applauses.) We leave our readers, who know this Sir Harry Bunbury.

to draw their own conclusions.

TO JOHN BULL.

DEAR JOHN,-Your remarks on the Isle of Man have raised a sad alarm amongst us, for we really are not desirous of any change in our political Constitution, nor are we the barbarians some ill-natured fellow has described us to be.

With respect to our laws and customs they are certainly peculiar, and in many respects different from those of England, but they are admirably adapted to our situation; and I believe, there is not a more loyal, happy, and contented people in any part of His Majesty's dominions. It is true, we do not contribute to the public stock in the shape of taxes, but we maintain ourselves without any expence to the English Government, and our fisheries supply the navy in time of war with many excellent seamen. You have been misinformed, if you suppose, that we have the least desire to have the honor of being represented in the British l'arliament, for at present we have neither poor's rates, nor taxes, except a triffing duty on spirits, and a two per cent. duty on foreign articles imported into the island.

Our Courts of Law would, I must allow, admit of some trifling improvements. But do not believe all the evil reports you hear; dear John, come amongs' us yourself, and you will find that we are not the barbarians we have represented to be, but an hospitable and kind people, loyal to the bone, with the exception of a few reg-a-muffins who plague us with their company, having found the other side of the water too hot for them.

Before I conclude, let me add a powerful argument in favour of our freedom from taxation. We are, in consequence, able to enjoy many of the luxuries of life, which are almost forbidden to the same class in England, and a vast number of Officers on half-pay, from Admirals and Generals, down to the humbler Lieutenant and Ensign, have retired hither instead of going, as many of their companions have done, to a foreign country. Here they live with a degree of comfort, which their moderate incomes would not allow them to enjoy in England, and are ready at a moment's notice to start again in the service of their country. The comfort and happiness of so meritorious a body is not undeserving of attention, and although the gratitude of their country cannot afford them larger incomes—yet, if a spot exists which renders those incomes doubly valuable, who would deprive them of this advantage for the sake of converting the name of a Deemster into that of a Judge, or a Key into a Member of Parliament? Let us alone then, dear John; and if you should feel inclined to wash off a little-London smoke and some of your prejudices against ur. by a summer's excursion to our delightful shores, (our steam-boats are excellent), I will insure you a good bottle of claret, or port, if you like it better, and an hespitable welcome-from dear John, your grateful and affectionate cousin.

Isle of Man, March 12, 1821.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

PARIS, March 17 .- The King of Sardinia has abdicated in favour of the Prince of Carignan, and he has set out with the Queen for Nice, where he will embark for the island of Sardinia.

The Constitution of the Cortes has been generally proclaimed, and the Prince of Carignan, with the federative army, which increases daily, pursues his hostile movement against the Austrians. This news is positive.

A report has been mentioned on Change, of a chest containing funds from Mr. Rothschild, for the Austrian army, having been seized by a detachment of the Sardinian army which is marching against the Austrians.

PARIS, MARCH 19.—Intelligence from Florence states, that on the evening of the 8th instant, an extraordinary courier arrived, with the news that a very warm engagement had taken place between the Austrian advanced guard and the corps d'armee commanded by General Pepe. The Neapolitans at first displayed great impetuosity, and rushed forward to the attack with a blind confidence that nothing could resist. They were on the point of being surrounded by a masterly manœuvre of the Austrian General, when they discovered the snare into which they had fallen. The army, on this, precipitately fell back, and even General Pepe was berne away amidst the disorder. He vainly endeavoured to rally. Attempting to sustain the shock, at the head of some men, he was killed by a cannon ball.—Quotidienne.

The most recent news which has been received from the Austrian army in Italy states, that on the 3rd instant, the headquarters of the General-in-Chief, Baron Frimont, was advanced upon Terni, before which place all the corps of his army formed a very close line. All the movements made up to the 6th instant, demonstrate that General Frimont's plan is to surround the Neapolitan army in the Abruzzes, and to end the war on the spot where it will commence .- Gaz. de France.

Letters from Italy, received through an extraordinary channel, supply the following intelligence :- The example of revolt given by some regiments in garrison at Coni and Alexandria, has been followed by other corps, and the orders issued by his Majesty the King, Victor Emanuel, have been disregarded. This Monarch, who, theretofore, had received testimonies of devotion even from some of the regiments who have suffered themselves to be seduced into insubordination, has formally refused to sanction the concessions which the promoters of the insurrection would have imposed upon him, and has preferred abdicating the royal authority to compromising its dignity.

The Prince de Carignan has been provisionally invested with the chief command.

The events in Piedmont are involved in much uncertainty. It appears, however, that the King abdicated the Throne on the 12th instant, the Duke de Genevois, his brother and successor, being absent, the Regency has been given to the Prince de Carignan, heir presumptive to the Crown. With regard to the causes which led to this event, it is impossible to assign them with any certainty; we must wait further details. The mass of the population took no part in these movements, and appeared to regard them with indifference. Men belonging to the first families in the State are as yet the only names cited. Several regiments, amongst them that of one of the Chiefs of the movement, have resolutely refused to make common cause with their comrades.— Journal de Paris.

The Duke De Cazes will quit Paris to-merrow (Tuesday last) to return to London .- Gazette de France.

CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES -SECRET COMMITTEE.

General Donadieu laid on the table a proposition, conceived thus:—"I have the honour todeposit on the table (bureau) a proposition of an Address to His Majesty, humbly to petition him to choose another Ministry, seeing that the present is in-capable, and anti-French; and that for these two reasons it has given rise to the most general and well-founded alarms for the fate of the Monarchy and of France."

M. Casimir Perrier asked the Ministers for explanations on the silence they have observed respecting the events in Piedmont.— M. Pasquier replied, that the Government not having had certain assurances of the facts, it had thought proper to be silent, but that now it would suffer freely all the news to be published which should come to its knowledge.

An express arrived in the course of yesterday from Paris, confirming, in a great measure, the previous reports as to the first conflict between the Austrians and Neapolitans. The following Bulletin upon this subject was posted on the Ex-change of Paris on Wednesday last, by order of the French

Minister of Finance:

"There has been on the 7th inst. an engagement between the Austrians and the Neapolitans. The latter had advanced on Ricti, which was occupied by the Austrians. They were repulsed with considerable loss. The Austrian army has entered the Abruzzi; many prisoners have fallen into their hands, and the greatest disorder appears to reign in the Neacolitan army." politan army."

VIENNA, March 4 .- The Greeks in this city speak with confidence of the probability that a Russian fleet from the Black Sea will support the operations against Nuples.

Neapolitan Gazettes to the 3rd inst. contain a Decree by the Prince Regent, announcing his attention to repair to the bend of the army, accompanied by Lieutenant-General Parisi, the Minister at War. General Colletta is charged, in consequence, with the portfolio of the Ministry of War and Marine. Another appointing D. Ferdinando Rodriguez, Colonel on the Staff, a Director of the Ministry of War; and a third, extending to the Sicilians the rewards assigned by the Parliament to those Neapolitans who distinguish themselves in the defence of their country. I. an Extraordinary Sitting of Parliament of the 27th February, measures were adopted to distress the enemy on his advance, by removing from the place the munitions of war and provisions. Signor Poerio said, that the object of the Committee, in framing the Decree, was to deprive the enemy of all hopes of supplies, and to proceed in the same manner as was done in Spain with respect to the great French army.

TURIN, March 9.—We are assured that Government has received intelligence of insurrections which broke out at Alexandria, Susa, and Coni, among the garrisons of those places, ligence of this insurrection, the Prince de Carignan, received from the King instructions to proceed towards the troops, to remind them of what they owed to their King and to their oaths.

About eight days ago, one Sieur Leblanc, who was probably the secret agent of the faction, was arrested at Turin. In a secret drawer of his carriage was discovered a considerable quantity of papers, among which were numerous proclamations, which are supposed to have been printed at Paris, and which were to have been used on the day of the projected insurrec-tion. In consequence of this discovery several persons were who was employed in the post-office, was arrested. The Prince of Cisterna, who left Paris in the mean-while, has been arrested at Pont-de-Beauvoisin, and conducted to Fenestrelies.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

COURT OF CHANCERY, MARCH 22. Rowe v. Wood.

The Attorney-General finished his reply in this cause to-day; and the following is a correct report of the judgment in this case:—

The Lord Chancellor.—" The original connection of the Woods, and Mr. Rowe was a connection of mortgagor and mortgagee, and if a receiver or manager were to be appointed and if the possession were to be taken from the mortgagee, it must be taken from him on such grounds as the Court acts on; where an application of this nature is made, and unless it can he clearly shewn that the mortgagee is paid, and almost by his own admission, the Court does not take the possession from him. The manner in which this cause, as between mortgagor and merigagee, originally stood, was to show that by paying due attention to the observations that could be made, or to different items specified in the original bill, and the answer put in in 1817, the mortgagee was to be understood to be paid. It struck me, however, very early in this discussion as quite impossible for me to look at the case in that point of view, because the instruments executed in 1818 and 1819 must be taken to be binding until decreed to be invalid. Then the account must be taken according to those agreements, and it thereby shewn that the demand of the mortgagee as such was entirely discharged. All I can say on that subject is, that there certainly have been pointed out to me items which I think may be very questionable when the cause comes to a hearing, but the Court cannot now say that there is nothing due on the I must go that length before I can disturb the possession, if this is to be looked at as the case of a mortgagor and mortgagee, but I do not apprehend that I can look it as a case simply between a mortgagor and mortgagee. The mine is constituted of what I may call 64 shares, Mr. Matthew Wood was the mertgagee of the whole of this property originally, after taking up the accounts of Noble and Hunt, and Marsh and Creed, previous to December 1814, at which time he becomes the purchaser of 20-64ths of the mine, and his the brother, Philip Wood, of 4-64ths of the mine. The property therefore appears to me to be in the nature of a trade in the contemplation of this Court. It must be understood to be that the legal estate of the mine is entirely in M. Wood; as to the equitable interest Mr. Rowe is the owner of 40-64th shares, Matthew Wood the owner of 20-64th shares, and Philip Wood the owner of 4-64th shares. It is true that when the answer was put in in 1817, the answer struggled, as I understood it to put to the Court a case in which Matthew Wood, who swore that answer endeavoured to get rid of the character of purchaser, but I am bound to consider him as a purchaser till he has by a decree obtained the right to say that he no longer stood in that character than the execution of that deed cast on him. In this state of things it seems to me Mr. Matthew Wood must be considered as the mortagee of 40-64th shares and the owner of 20-64th shares, and Philip Wood as the owner of 4-64th shares, the consequence of that is, that subject to the demand which they have on each other, in respect of each other they are partners in this mine, no one partner can exclude another from interposing himself as fully with the concerns as he himself interposes. It is the duty of each and every of them to keep clear and precise accounts, and to have those accounts always ready for inspection; and, in short, to keep good faith towards each other. Then follow the agreements of 1818 and 1819; and, if I am to look at them, at this moment, as deeds obligatory on Mr. Rowe, then I cannot look on this as a case where the ordinary rules with respect to a partner are to regulate the rights and the conduct of the persons who stand in this relation to each other; beeause, by the agreement of 1818, the partners, as partners, have stipulated with each other; and until these agreements, at least, are set aside, whatever were the original obligations of the partners, as partners, they will deal upon the stipulations contained in that agreement. I am of opinion, netwith-standing Mr. Rowe is for the present seeking to set aside those agreements, that those who tell him that deed is binding upon him, are bound to allow him to have the benefit of that agreement, and that he shall have the controll of the working of the mine in the manner those words are to be understood. hey are bound to let him have the advantage of this part of the agreement. I make no observation upon the blank bills, and the Crinnis Mine bills, except that I now understand Mr. Matthew Wood to say, that with respect to these Crinnis Mine bills in 1815, he could give no answer, or as to the blank acceptances sent about 1813. It does so happen I know that gentlemen in trade do deal in a manner extremely loose with regard to such acceptances. But if suck a transaction was new to take place between Mr. Wood, or any other person who was in the possession of the Mine,—if there was to be that sort of answer given to the Court, and no account could be given of what had become of 50,0001. worth of acceptances, or of the Crimis Mine bills, the Court would not allow such conduct on the part of a partner.—On the whole subject, to what I may state to you on Saturday, I cannot, at presee my way so as to appoint a manager or receiver of this concern; but I think Mr. Rowe has a clear right, subject to the equities of the case, to insist that there shall be a regular account kept of all the receipts, payments, and transactions; and that he has a clear right to have constant access, for the purpose of inspection of such accounts; and has a clear right, subject to that equity I have been alluding to, to be the person who is to controul the working of the Mines. Being of that opinion, if I state no more about it, you must address yourself to enquire for these accounts, and demand an inspection of them, and see what they are, and address yourselves to demand the right of exercising the controul, and we shall then see what will take place in consequence of so procceding, you will then make such an application to the Court as under the circumstances you may think advisable. It is impossible the thing can go on in the way which it has gone on, that is quite clear. If I should not mention this again on Saturday, you may take that to be my opinion.

In the Insolvent Debtors Court, Mary M'Kenzie, a fashionable, was opposed by Messrs. Pollock and Barry.

The insolvent stated that previous to her arrest she lived in Cadogan-place for fifteen years. 'In the year 1817, she mort-gaged her house and lived on the money; had no other property, but at the time she bought Mr. Delmour's wine, she had a prospect of being able to pay for it, and all that she owed. On being questioned as to the nature of her prospects, she appealed to the Court whether she was bound to answer? The Court replied that she was. She then said she had an expectation of changing her situation, and being by that change enabled to pay all she owed. She kept a carriage occasionally but not for the last year. Was administratrix to her husband, and paid several debts in honour of his memory, which was the cause of her embarrassments. He had the management of the German Legion, and some of the debts claimed on his estate were contracted for the Duke of Cambridge and Prince Lichtenstein, who were the persons properly accountable. His books, were not in her possession, but could be produced.

The Court ordered, that the insolvent should return all her husband's books into Court, and should be brought up again to receive the judgment of the Court.

ASSIZES.

MAIDSTONE, March 19 .- The King v. George Miller .was an indictment against the defendant, for feloniously killing and slaying Mr. Joseph Hoare, at Chatham, on the 31st of October last. The defendant had never been in custody, but submitted himself voluntarily to take his trial, upon the Coroner's Inquisition. On the day mentioned in the indictment, the defendant and the deceased, who had never met before, had spent the evening, with several other persons, at the hotel at Chatham, in the course of which, in consequence of some difference of opinion upon some ordinary topics of conversation, the defendant called the deceased (a man upwards of 70) an old scoundrel. Upon the suggestion of some of the party the defendant made an apology for this insult, shook bands with the deceased, and they appeared to be good friends. Some little time after the deceased, in a loud and taunting tone, bragged that he had never quarrelled with any man without making him apologize. This occasioned a renewal of altercation with the defendant, upon which the latter flung his bat at the deceased, but missed him. He then unfortunately laid hold of a pewter pint, which he hurled at his head, and the blow took effect on the left temple of the decensed, and in-flicted a severe wound, which bled profusely. A Surgeon was sent for, who dressed the wound and attended the deceased to his home. This Surgeon attended him until the 3rd of November, up to which time he appeared to be doing extremely well; but on that day symptoms of erysipelas and fever appeared, which rendered further advice necessary, and a physician was called in, under whose care he lingered until the 9th, when he

The only witnesses examined were a Mr. White, w posed to the transaction at the hotel; Mr. Fry, the Surgeon, and Dr. Vaughan, the Physician. Both the latter gentlemen were decided in their opinion that the blow was not the proximate cause of the death—the former thinking that it was caused entirely by the erysipelas—and the latter, that it was the result of general ill health, and aggravated by intense mental agitation.

The Learned Judge here stopped the defendant's counsel, and put it to the Jury, whether, upon such evidence, they were of opinion that the death was occasioned by the act of the defendant

The Jury immediately found the defendant Not Guilty.

KENT.-John Britten and Joseph Richardson were indicted for assaulting John Blinkhorn, on the King's highway, in the parish of Boxley, on the 15th of January, putting him in fear, and taking from his person a metal seal, a steel key, and part of a steel chain.

The prosecutor, who appeared extremely debilitated from the injuries he had received, and also gave his evidence with considerable difficulty, stated, that on the evening mentioned in the indictment he was at work in his brother's mill, which he was induced to leave in consequence of a noise from with-out, and having armed himself with a pistol, approached the out, and having armed nimsen with a pictal, approached the prisoners, whom he found tearing away a leaden pipe from the mill. He fired at them, upon which one ran away, crying out "murder the old fellow." The other then rushed upon him, knocked him down, beat and kicked him most unmercifully while on the ground, and then snatched at his watch-chain, which broke in half, leaving a metal seal and steel key in the hands of the prisoner. The latter then ran away. The prosecutor swore most positively to Britten, whom he said he had long known, and had little doubt as to the person of Richardson. Upon recovering himself a little he went to a public-house at hand, where he told hisstory, and accompanied by the landlord, was returning home, when they met Britten and another man, whom he instantly described to the landlord as the two persons who had attacked him. Britten spoke to them as they passed, and was recognised by them both. The landlord borated this part of the case.

The prisoners were both apprehended the same night, and their boots being taken off they were compared with the traces formed on the spot described by the prosecutor, and discovered to correspond exactly.—The seal and key were found by another witness close to the same spot.

Witnesses were called for the prisoners.

The case went to the Jury under the Learned Judge's directions, and they found both the prisoners Guilty—Death.

A return to an order of the House of Commons states, the amount of duties on inhabited houses in Great Britain, for the year ending 5th Jan. 1820, at 1,239,3291. 11s. 9d.; Ditto, en windows, 2,569,9901. 9s. 44d. Total. 3,809,3201. 1s. 14d.

SEDITION.—Mary Ann Carlile, the sister and successor of Richard Carlile, of Fleet-street, has been apprehended upon a Judge's warrant, on a charge preferred by the Constitutional Association for opposing the progress of Disloyalty and Seditious Principles, and was held to bail in a considerable sum to answer the charges in an indictment for the publication and sale of a seditious work.—A man, of the name of Atkinson, of London-road, Southwark, was brought up at the same time, for a similar offence, at the instance of this Society, and not being regularly provided with bail, was committed to Horsemongerlane Gaol.

MENDICITY.-Of the 4546 cases which came under the consideration of the London Society for the Suppression of Mendicity during the last year, 542 were impostors,-Similar societies to this are now in the course of establishment in most of the principal towns in the kingdom.

THE NEW COMET.—The Comet came to its perihelium on sturday the 17th, namely, within for It has only lessened its right ascension half a degree, and its north declination four-fifths of a degree since the evening of the 24th of February, when it was first seen here; but by the annual motion of the earth, its distance from the sun is de-creased about 16°. Now it is advanced too far in the solar rays to allow us to make correct observations on its position.

At the close of this month it will begin to set after the sun, and with a clear horizon an hour hefore sunrise, there will be a chance of seeing it rise about E.N.E. during the ensuing month. The weather has lately been unfavourable for seeing the Comet so near the weatern horizon in the evenings; as, from its very slow geocentric motion, it will not afford sufficient space to attempt to deduce the form of its orbit, which is the chief object to science.

THE KING'S LEVEE.

The King held a Court at Carlton House, on Wednesday, which was attended by all the Cubinet Ministers, the great Officers of State, and most of the distinguished Noblemen in town. Among those present were:—His Royal Highness the Duke of Clarence, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Archbishop of York, the Bishop of London, the Bishop of Llandaff, the Lord Chief Justice of the of London, the Bishop of Llandaff, the Lord Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench, the Judge of the Admiralty, the Solicitor-General, the Secretary at War, the Judge Advocate, the Dukes Devonshire, Dorset, Wellington, and Montrose; the Marquisses of Winchester, Donegall, Northampton, Headfort, Stafford, Anglesea, Cambden, Lothian, Wellesley, and Hertford; the Earls of Cavan, Gower, Belfast, Cardigan, Clare, Portsmouth, Malmesbury, Pembroke, Verulam, Westmoreland, Portsmouth, Westmoreland, Deckey, Dorsh Dartmouth, Warwick, Glasgow, Roden, Mayo, Rosslyn, Derby Darnley, Glengall, Chichester, Northwick, Fortescue, Maccles field, Ashburnham, Aylesbury, Winchilsea, Bathurst, and Liverpool. The Spanish Ambassador and the Swedish Minister were introduced to the King by Lord Castlereagh, and con-ducted by Sir Robert Chester, the Master of the Ceremonies. All the other Ambassadors and Foreign Ministers were also

THE KING'S DRAWING-ROOM.

On Thursday the King held a Drawing Room at Buckingham House, which we most splendidly attended. The comand continued setting down till near four. Soon after e'clock, and continued setting down till near four. Soon after two o'clock His Majesty left his private apartments, and gave audiences to the Earl of Liverpool and Viscount Castlereagh; after which, the Duchess de St. Frias, the Lady of the Spanish Ambassador, was introduced to his Majesty by Viscountess Castlereagh, the Lady of the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. His Majesty then proceeded to the Grand Saloon, and took his station under the Throne, his Royal Brothers, the Dukes of York and Clarence taking their station to the right of the King. The Princess Augusta, the Duchess of Kent, and the Princess Sophia Matilda stood on his left. His Majesty received the compliments of the Foreign Ambassadors and Ministers, accompanied by their Ladies, with his accustomed distributed of Schilling Amount the National Amount of the Princess Sophia Matilda Complete Schilling and Schilling Amount of the National Amount of the Na dignified affability.—Among the numerous presentations were Ministers, accompanied by their Ladies, with his accustomed dignified affability.—Among the numerous presentations were the following:—

Lady Frances Ley; Lady Mary Petre; Miss Percy; Lady C. Cocks; Lady A Court; Lady J. Hey; Mrs. Gaseoyne; Mrs. Atkins; Mrs. Ellison; Nrs. Brandling; Mrs. T. Rodd; Miss Swinburne; Miss E. Swinburne; Miss E. Swinburne; Miss B. Wilbraham; Miss Montagn; Mrs. Mayne; Mrs. Crosbie; Mr. Murray; Mrs Murray; Miss Montagn; Mrs. Mayne; Mrs. Crosbie; Mr. Murray; Mrs Murray; Miss Montagn; Mrs. Mayne; Mrs. Crosbie; Mr. Murray; Mrs Murray; Miss Murray; Lady Teignmouth; Hon. C. D. Shore; the Duchess of Montrose; Marchioness of Northampton; Countess Delawarr; Lady Swinburne; the Rey. Dr. A. Drummond, Chaplain in Ordinary to His Majesty; Countess Dowager Mount Norris; Lady Scovell; Lady W. Bentinck; Mrs. R. Ellice; Lady Lovaine; Mrs. Col. Hughes; the Countess of Limerick; Miss North; Mrs. Col. Quentin; Mrs. and Misses Drummond; Mrs. C. and Misses Smith; Capt. W. E. Parry, R. N.; Major Brook; Lady B. Bouverie; Ensign Wynyard. Sth Light Infantry; Lieut.-Col Harrey; Captains W. H. Higgs, S. P. Hurd; Lady Ommarry; Lady C. Jervoise; Hon. Mrs. E. Knex; Lieut.-Col. Sir J. Campbell; Duchess of Leinster; Lady Halkett, (on her Marriage); Mrs. Colonel Woodford; Mrs. General Buller; Mrs. E. John Mildmay, (or her Marriage); Lady Williams; Lady Louisa Dawson; Miss Penn; Miss Hamilton; Lady Tarleton; Colonel Thornton; Mrs. Eustace; Honourable Mrs Shirley, and Misses Shirley; Lady Lieton; Lady Maleolm; Lady Gore; Lieut.-Colonel Porteen; Lady James Stuart; Mr. Colquhoun; Mr. Gwynne, Mr. Corks; Mr. Crawlev; Mr. A. Gulness; Hon. Misses Powys; Hon. Mrs. E. Cuet; Lieut. Brisbaue, (9th rext.); Misses Waller; Mrs. Wildman; Sir B. Liston; Mrs. Bowles; Miss Cockayne; Mrs. R. Bilice; Mrs. Cheere; Miss Cockayne; Mrs. R. Bilice; Mrs. Cheere; Miss Cockayne; Mrs. R. Bilice; Mrs. Cheere; Miss Cockayne; Mrs. Aldes; Miss Atkins: Hon. Misses Petre; Miss Wood; Miss Mildmay; Capt W. Mitchell, (E. J. C. S.)

THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE.

His Majesty honoured this theatre with his presence, in state, on Tuesday night, and we must confess, of all the spectacles presented to the London public, we never beheld any thing so brilliant, or so truly gratifying. The building was erowded to excess, and the beauty of our countrywomen seemed literally to have borrowed new lustre for the occasion; a joyous smile of pleasure and exultation at having their KING amongst them, beamed on every countenance, and sparkled in every eye.

The King was received at the entrance of the theatre

by Lord Lowther, and the Committee of Management, and conducted to the Royal box, which was splendidly fitted up for the occasion: the burst of applause, which saluted His Majesty, on his appearance, was tremendousit was the genuine tribute of loyalty; and the building resounded, for five or six minutes, with cheering not usually heard in that temple of listless refinement.

His Majesty was attended by their Royal Highnesses the Dukes of York and Clarence, the Dukes of Wellington and Montrose, and the usual Court attendants.—
GOD SAVE THE KING was sung three times in the course of the evening, and each time received with inoreased applause.

An Impromptu allegorique was performed, complimentary to the Sovereign; but, however tasteful the decora-tion, or well-timed the allusion of the piece on the stage, the impromptu most gratifying to his Majesty, and the friends of our rights and Constitution, must have been the earnest, genuine, and sincere expression of affection and loyalty, which pervaded all parts of the House.

On His Majesty's retiring, the same symptoms of attachment were evinced by the audience, and the crowd which had collected in the streets, seemed to catch the tone As the audience within, and the loudest cheerings resourided on all sides, till His Majesty left his carriage at the Palace door.

COVENT GARDEN.

A young lady, of the name of Dance, made her apcarance at this Theatre on Tuesday, in the character of Mrs. Haller.

We doubt very much whether the part of Mrs. Haller is favourable to a debutante, the play itself, rendered population only by the illustrious acting of Kemble and Mrs. Siddone, belongs to a school now exploded, and very justly so; for independent of the unnatural grouping, and rushing, and starting with which these pieces abound, the interest-is invariably excited for positive vice, and our commiseration, if not our sympathy, claimed for barefaced guilt.

At a moment when every honest woman in the country has her eyes turned with scorn towards, or with disgust from, the criminality of a wife; and at a moment when the first subject of the country is by the even-handedness of justice left desolate, and abandoned in the midst of the world to the society of her own hired servants, it seems a slur upon the good feeling of our countrywomen who have turned their backs upon her, to whom, under other circumstances, they would have bent the knee, to produce a play, in which, by the force of acting and adventitious circumstances, the sigh is taught to heave, and the tear to flow, for an imaginary character, which they have shewn to be in the reality, hateful and dis-

If we complain of this generally, we are led to do so still more in the particular case of Miss Dance—her fine regular features—her youthful appearance—the softness of her manner when unagitated by passion—the animation she displayed when her feelings were roused, were so many more blandishments to make the feeling of pity for Mrs. Haller's fate still stronger, and of course to soften our indignation at her vices. Were Mrs. Haller represented to us as an elderly body, with a taste for footmen and maraschine—gross in her manners and conversation—painted up to the eyes—speaking broken English—occasionally swearing, and always indelicate in her observations—violent in her temper, and hasty in her person and habits, nobody would pity the adultress: she would be hissed off the stage for her language; roared at with laughter for her grotesque appearance, and utterly condemned for her shameless libertinism and disgraceful propensities. This would be as it should be-but in the Stranger, " Latet anguis in herba," and our principles and morals, and those of our wives and daughters, are sapped and undermined, by the attraction of this heroine, and we find ourselves delighted at the end of the performance to see an injured husband fool enough to take back a dissolute adultress to his arms, and restore her to her rights as a

These appeals to our weaknesses are most unworthy of the abilities devoted to them by the players, and we almost lamented at the success of the fair debutante on Tuesday, which we must confess was (as a first appearance) perfect.

Miss Dance appears to be about twenty, her eyes and hair are jet black, and there is now and then a look of the Kembles about her. Her manner of acting is much less embarrassed than is usual with young beginners, and we have little doubt that when she has gained confidence by practice, she will be a valuable acquisition to this theatre.

MISCELLANEOUS.

On Monday last a Court Martial was held on Captain Furneaux, and the remaining Officers and crew of his Majesty's late ship Carron, when the Court determined, that the loss of the Curron was occasioned by unaccountable currents issuing out of the River Ganges; that it appeared every precaution had been taken, by comparing the Rutes of the Chronometers, when it could be done; that there was no reason to suppose the ship to have been within eighty miles of the place where she struck; that every possible exertion was made to save the ship, without effect; and that no blame whatever was imputable to Captain Furneaux, his Officers, or ship's company for their conduct on that occasion; and the Court, therefore, adjudged them to be fully acquitted.

Three sinecures became vacant last year in Scotland-viz. a Baronship of the Exchequer, Receiver-General of the Customs, and Lord Register, which, it seems, Ministers have determined not to fill up.

Ten millions of specie, in gold, have lately been coined in the Royal Mint, and are now ready to be issued at the Bank of England.

Since the last regulation of the silver coinage, in 1815, down to the 28th February last, the total amount coined at the Mint bus been 7,137,3641. 19s. of which there remains unissued, at the Mint, 11,4931.

A Court of Proprietors of the Bank of England was held on Thursday, for the purpose of declaring a dividend.—One of the Proprietors wished to know whether the account of the profits of the concern were forthcoming—The Chairman oberved, it was for the Court to determine whether the Court should furnish the account.—The Court then passed to the question of the last half-yearly dividend.—Some conversation ensued with respect to the resumption of Cash Payments, and the prevention of forgeries, in the course of which, the Chairman denied that so large a sum as 60.0001. had been expended in proceeding with the plans of prevention.

A Court of Common Council was held on Thursday, when the Bridge House Committee presented two Reports, relative to London Bridge, one stating, that after Mr. Dodd, the en-gineer, had been examined six days before a Committee of the House of Commons, they ordered his evidence to be expunged; and the other, respecting the enlargement of the water-way, as being more expedient than a new bridge. The vacancy of Land Coal-meter, in the room of the late Mr. J. Hawkins was filled up by the election of Mr. Reeve.

We have rarely witnessed so novel and interesting an article in the Graphic department of the Arts, as the recently published Impressions of a Series of Game, &c. from a set of Silver Buttons, in the possession of a well known enthusinstic admirer of British Field Sports. The designs we are told were severally drawn on each button, by A. Cooper, Esq. R. A. and engraved by that unrivalled artist, Mr. John Scott, whose productions, need only to be seen, to be admired.

A Novel is just published, entitled "Such is the World;" the characters are ably drawn, and justly delineated—the situations fercibly expressed. It is not our practice to notice works of this description; but where the object of the author is to pourtray on paper the actions of human beings, evidently for moral purposes, we have no besitation in recommending the work to notice. The plot is well managed, the characters the work to notice. diversified, easy, and natural; and the narrative well arranged and flowery. It is at once pleasing and instructive; and shews that the author is well acquainted with human nature.

Advices was on Tuesday received by one of the first Turkey houses in the City, that the Russians are marching one hundred thou and men into Georgia.

Lord Cochrane was wounded in the thigh, in the successful attack he made on the Spanish frigate Esmeralda, at Lima.

The Spanish officers of the Esmeralda, to shield themselves from public indignation, gave out that the English vessels in the harbour had assisted Lord Cochrane—all foreigners were threatened to be mussacred in consequence, and in a tumult on shore, fifteen were killed by the infuriated populace. The indictment preferred by the Queen's legal advisers against the Rev. R. Blacow, of Liverpool, for an alleged libel, is with-

VENTRILOQUISM. - An elegant and crowded audience were present on Wednesday evening, at the City of London Tavern, to witness the extraordinary performance of M. Alexandre, the celebrated ventriloquist; and certainly, if the plaudits of his auditors were to be received as testimonies of the merit of the artist, M. A. may be ranked as the very first. Indeed, we may truly say, that he gratified us exceedingly. His transitions and volubility of voice—his flexibility of countenance—his engaging manuer of delivery-were admirable and astonishing; whether as the sick old gentleman, or the artless servant—the ancient nun, or the novice of the convent—his colloquies with the chimney-sweep, while ascending and descending the chimney—his song of the souterkin, and the drinking and singing scene at one and the same moment, were equally wonderful. In the latter, particularly, his powers of rocal illusion are great. Nor must we omit to mention, the family scenes of "John Thomas," which were given with a pronunciation of the English language, which shews that M. Alexandre must have studied it with some effect. The whole performance was at once pleasing and rational. We understand M. Alexandre intends to exhibit his astonishing powers on Saturday next at the Freemason's Tavern.

Advertisement.]—We have been favored with the perusal of one of the sheets in the forth coming Satirical Novel, entitled Money Raising; or, a Day in Cork-Street, and cannot refrain from expressing our astonishment at some of the scenes it discloses, as well as shocked to find that most of the lenders of money are servants in noblemens' families. What can be said for that state of society, where the domestics of noblemen are enabled to accommodate, incegnito their master with money by way of annuity, at a high rate of interest, or that there should have existed in a regularly organized office, where ill gotten pelf should have been so readily received, and so promptly applied in relieving the distresses of the profligate, the demyrip, or blackleg. The following extract from one of the many letters the Novel contains, will serve to mark the rapacity of these worthies. "I had from you only two bills of 8001. and two of 5001. and by your own desire, I sacrificed 8501. to procure 1,2001. of which you have had 6001. A-Y.

PROVINCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

BATH .- The new free church building has already cost 69001., and above 4,5001. more will be required to complete it-The ground was purchased for the sum of 24001. The foundation is of the unusual depth of seven feet.

A lady threw herself, on Saturday evening last, from a parapet eighteen feet high, into the river, from which she was fortunately rescued, and is now in a fair way of doing well.

DUNDER.—The manufactures of this place were never more in demand than at present. One house in town entered at the Customs, last week, 180,000 yards bagging and Osnaburgh for exportation. Our ship-masters are become more enterprising; and we now see vessels from foreign ports discharging at our quays in all seasons. A few days ago one arrived from Riga, and three sailed for Lieban the week before last, which we believe is sooner than from any other port in Britain. There were no fewer than five vessels in our harbour last week loading goods for the States, (three for New York and two for New Orleans); three on the birth for British America, and one for Jamaica. A vessel for New York, and another for Jamuica had sailed with full cargoes the previous week.

ESBEX.—These Assizes finished on Saturday, when twenty-four prisoners were capitally convicted, and received sentence of death. Among those left for execution (five in number) was Isaac Briggs, for a rape on Mary Hearthen, on the 24th of Sept. attended with circumstances of great brutality. The prisoner was a ruffian of frightful aspect. He had been the habits of his life, had acquired a savage appearance, scarcely human. The unhappy prosecutrix, a peasant girl, named Mary Hearthen, of Langford, was returning towards her home, through the wood, about six o'clock in the evening of the 24th of September last, and was encountered by the prisoner, who drugged her from the path by the legs farther into the wood, where, by the greatest violence, he effected his object, under a threat of murder, if any complaint was made. Since his conviction, the prisoner has conducted himself in the most hardened manner.

EXETER.—DREADFUL EFFECTS of FRIGHT.—A short time since as a young woman named Whicker, who was in the habit of going out to day work at her needle, was passing through a field, which the servants of the house she had left had represented to her as haunted; and the fears of the credulous girl being thus awakened, a black boy having wrapped himself in a sheet, concealed all but his face and hands, met her in the path. The shock was too strong for her reason—she became raving mad-and about a formight since was conveyed to the Asylum, near Exeter, deprived of all those noble powers of intellect, which dignify human nature above the brute creation; and though the dreary void of her mind is occasionally irradiated by lucid intervals, she soon relapses into insanity, from which it is feared she will never perfectly recover.

FAVERSHAM.—About noon yesterday (Monday the 19th inst.) three of the coming houses of the private powder works, at Owre, near here, blew up, by which accident three men who were employed therein were unfortunately killed.

MAIDSTONE.-It may be satisfactory to our agricultural readers, under their present distresses, to learn, that some very large shipments of wheat have been made within the present week for Naples and its vicinity. Of course none but foreign grain in the warehouses has been allowed to be exported.

POLICE.

HATTON-GARDEN.—Two young Gentlemen, brothers, were amusing themselves by firing at a mark with a single pistol in their garden at Palmer's Terrace, Holloway, on Sunday last. Unfortunately one of them shot too high, and lamentable to state, the ball entered the eye of a young Lady, Miss Radford, while standing at the drawing-room window in an opposite house. We understand the ball has not yet been extracted, and the Lady's recovery is of course despaired of. They were re-

		SELP	VEWS.
Arrived	Mails	Dine	Arrived		Due
	nblin			.Lishon
	Vaterford
	nernszy & J		1
	loi!and ottenburgh.
			alled the Low nd sailed the nack, for St

river. Came down from the river and easied the Orient, Wallace, for Madras and Bengal: Hound, Stranck, for St. Vincents; Bolden, Browell, for Marscilles; and Restitution, Messervey, for Beston: remains the Fanny Voase, Lister, for Hull.

PORTSMOUTH, March 23d. Wind S.W. Arrived H.M. S. Medina, from Chatham: and the George, Davsh, from the Downs, for Saint Mickael's. Sailed the Amity, Baker, for London; and Ritchard, Butchings, for Havre.

PADSTOW, March 21. The Theodore, Timothy Deasy, from Gibraltar, for Dublin, was earried into Port Isaac this morning, with loss of crass, and in great distress.

HARWICH, March 22. Arrived, the Princess Charlotte Packet, with a Mailfrom Holland. Sailed, the Lord Nelson Packet, for Cuxhaven, and Lord Duncan ditto, for Holland, each with a Mail.

FALMOUTH, March 21. Wiel N. Sailed, the Lonach, Pearson, for Madras; Posthumous, Milver, and St. Mary's, Burton, for Jamaica; London transport, for Balta; New Braganza, Corneby, for Gibraltar; Jason, Thompson, for Savannah; Freden, Ekstrend, for Boston.

NORTH SHIELDS, March 22. Le Harponier, Cadon, from Dieppe to Greenland, cut from her acchor, and about 90 fathous cable, off Tynemouth Castle on 20th instant, and nut in here.—The Betsy, Pollard, from Shields, for London, struck on the Herd Sand, but was got off, and proceeded on her voyage.

RICHMOND, SURREY.

To be disposed of by Private Contract.

THE complete and elegant VILLA called ASGILL HOUSE, situate on the Banks of the Eiver Thames at Richmond, the Preperty and Recidence of the late Mrs. Oshaldeston; held for a term of 40 years, or thereabouts, under the Crown; with Goach-houses, Stabling good Fleanner and walled Kitchen Gardens, Green-house, Peach-houses, Graperies, Gardener's House, Cattle Sheds, Fine and Molon Pita.

To be viewed, with Tieketaon'y, to be had of Messra, Williams, Whitnore and Co. Solicitors in Lincoln's Inn, London.

SUPERB BEAVER HATS, of the first Fashion, combining beauty of colour which well not change, elegance of shape they cannot lose, and a durability unequelled.—No House in London that buys and sells on credit, can offer such a flat to public notice; theutemen, therefore, who have cause to complain of high price and bad quality, may now purchase a hat superior to any other, price 28s manufactured by GALON and CO. 424, Strand, correct of Bedford-street, and 10, College-zreen. Dublin.

CAUTION.—SALMON, OBY, and CO, most respectfully caution the Public against the many lengthing and interior imitative TRUSSES now offered for sale. The fine PATENT SELF-ADJUSTING TRUSSES have "Solmen Patent" stamped on the front end of INC TRUBERS have the honour to supply the Army and Navy, the Respiring.

The Patentees have the honour to supply the Army and Navy, the Naval and Military Haspitals, the Book Yards and Ordnance, the Marine Informary, the Donourable East India Company, the City of London Trues Soulety, the Marinele-Book Wivellscombe, Brittel, and Denlugh Informaries, the Marinele-Book Wivellscombe, Brittel, and Denlugh Informaties, the Marinele-Book True, & & & Denlugh Informaties, the Marinele-Book True, & & Co. & Palais Royale, 163, a Paris.

If 3. Persons residing in the country sending the circumference of the body across the hips, may depend upon being accurately fitted.

ESTABLISHED UPWARPS of TWENTY YEARS for the SALE of IRISH INNEN by the PECE,

At the Faster's Price, No. 4, or r'e South Side of Bloomsbury square, four deers from the my of Feath implementation, Hollown,

THE IRISH LINEN CC IPANY bog leave to announce to the Pablic, that the above Heavily sale Establishment is this Country; where they contend to supply the Nability, Gentry, and the Public with WARRANTED 6.7. XSR-BLEACHED LINEN, for Shirts and Sheets, of the bot fabrica declows, at a price considerably lower than they can be presented thou, "hany effect medium.

They also suggested them, "hany effect medium.

They also suggested them, "hany effect medium.

Good Irish Vills and Brnk of Iroland Notes taken as usual.

appear.
Good Irish Tills and Bonk of Iroland Notes taken as usual.
Comery and Town order a presently attended to by JOHN BONOVAT, 4, flor usbury-square, London,
IOAM BOYLE, 31, 52, Mayer Abbey, Dublin.

NORWICH UNION FORE INSURANCE SOCIETY,

MATCH SHE INSURANCE SOCIETY,

The Mest Nobleth Bake of BEAUFORT.
The Mest I Other Brake of ARGYLE.
The Pight Hon. Vs. I CRAVEN.
The Right Hon. Vs. I CRAVEN.
The Right Hon. Vs. I CRAVEN.
Sir GEORGE JERNINGHAM, But. Costessy, near Norwich.
Sir JOSEPH SCOFT, Size, Great Barr Hall, Staffordshire.
RALPH CALDWELL, 1eq. Hilborove, Norfolk.
BDW. W. MARTIN, 25, 42, Upper Symour-at, Lendon, &c. &c. &c.
DIFECTORS:
PETER LE NEVE FOREELS, Esq. Great Witchingham, Norfolk.
ALBXANDER THWAITEN, Leq. Norwich.
JAMES ABAMS, Esq. Norwich, Ack. &c. &c.
THMASURERS:
THOMAS, HENRY, and WILLIAM DAY, Esqrs. Bankers, Norwieb.
SECHETARY:
SAMUEL BIGNOLD, Esq. Surrey-street, Norwieb.
THIS SOCIETY incures Buildings, Goods, Merchandize, and Effects, from Lors by Fire. Insurances are effected in all parts of the United Kingdom, except in the City of London, or within the Bills of Mortality.
The present yearly income convected 60,0001, and is rapidly increasing.
The present yearly income convected 60,0001, and is rapidly increasing.

of Mortality.

The present yearly income events 69,000l, and is rapidly increasing. The new Insurances effected within the last year amounted to 2,000,000 and a half of Property.

The distribusibing facture of the Society's Plan is, that at the expiration of Seven Years on by Manber become entitled to an aliquot Share of the Surplus Premiums which a main after discharging all claims on the Society. The Surplus I shower fallen below 251, per Cent. on the Premiums paid by the Partic discharging.

If this Society never had any concession with the National Union Fire Office, Bridge-street, Blackfriars, or with any other Fire Insurance Office.

Fire Office, Bridge-street, Blackfriars, or with any other Fire Insurance Office.

NORWICH UNION LIFE INSURANCE SOCIETY.
PATRONS:
The Most Noble the Duke of LEAUFORT.
The Most Noble the Duke of LEAUFORT.
The Most Noble the Duke of ARGYLE.
The Light lion. Earl GRAVIBN.
Take Right Hell. Lord SALTOUN, &c. &c. &c. &c.
TRUSTEES:

Ste GEORGE JERNINCHAM, Bart, Contessy, near Norwich.
Str JOERPH SCOTT, Bort, Great Bart Hall, Staffordshire.
RALPH CALDWELL, Esq. Hilberowe, Norfolk.
EDW. W. MARTIN, Esq. 24. Upper Seymourst, London, &c. &c.
DHECTORS:
PRESIDENT—JOHN PATTESON, Esq. Alderman, Norwich.
JOHN S. PATTESON, Esq. Alderman, Norwich.
JAMMEN DESK, Esq. Norwich.
ALEXANDER THWAITES, Esq. Norwich.
JEREMIAH IVES. Esq. Rakers, Norwich.
JEREMIAH IVES. Esq. Bakers, Norwich.
ACTUARY:
RICHARD MORGAN, Esq. Norwich.
THIS SOCIETY, ulthough only established in 1808, has embodied 5,000 Lives, and 15 in the annual receipt of 100,0001, from remnings on Insurance, besides 30,0001, per annual from the produce of Me Capital, which is layested part in the Public Funds, and part on annorance lead Security. its Capital, which is invested part in the Public Funds, and part on approved real Security.

The Institution is tended on the equitable principle of mutual guarantee. A Bonus of 29 per cent. on the Pressian paid by each Member was declared in 1815; and, from the present prosperous state of the Establishment, the next Bonus in 1822, may be expected to be much more considerable.

| Description |

The London Committee sit every Friday, from 12 till 2 o'clock, at the Office,14, Waterloo-place, Pall Mail.

Just published, prived is, a new and improved Edition of THE HEROIC EPISTLE from BARTOLOMEO to CAROLINE ACCURATE ACCURAT

INE. HEROIC EPISTEE From BARTIOLOMEO to CARO-LINE, to which is now added, THE LADY'S REPLY.

"Furens quid famina passit."—Virg.

"Her Majesty the Queen is in equasion."—Tow Thumb.

RF The disgusting details which have averted modest eves from the narrative of the late curious proceedings, lose half their grossness when shauch by the ganze veil of verse; and in this shape an historical recordingly be preserved, from which the most delicate reader need not shrink.

Published by W. Wright, 46, Floet-street.

PUBLIC LIBRARY AND READING-ROOM, 111, FLEET-SREET.
J OSEPH CAFES, Bookseller and Stationer, respectfully announces to his Subscribers, and the Literary Public, the PUBLICATION of his NEW CATALOGUE, comprising an extensive Collection of approved and standard Works, and all the New Publications of morit to the present period. Catalogues and terms of subscription may be obtained at the Library.
Just published, by J. Capes, 111, Fleet-street, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, by J. Capes, 111, Fleet-street, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, by J. Capes, 111, Fleet-street, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, by J. Capes, 111, Fleet-street, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, by J. Capes, 111, Fleet-street, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, by J. Capes, 111, Fleet-street, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, by J. Capes, 111, Fleet-street, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, by J. Capes, 111, Fleet-street, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, by J. Capes, 111, Fleet-street, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, by J. Capes, 111, Fleet-street, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, by J. Capes, 111, Fleet-street, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, by J. Capes, 111, Fleet-street, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, by J. Capes, 111, Fleet-street, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, by J. Capes, 111, Fleet-street, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, and J. J. Pacc, 1, Wellsstreet, Dublished, Dub BENEFIT SOCIETY.

A Most respectable Institution, called The FIRM and PRIENDLY SOCIETY of MASTER. TRADESMEN, is held at the Three Pigeons, Buttebr-hall Lane, Newgate-street. This Society guarantees the following benefits, viz. At a free member's death, 501.—at a free member's wife's death, 201.—and in siskness per week, it is.—bestless ether benefits, such as superannuation, allowance when imprisoned for debt, &c. Monthly contributions to stock, 4s.; admission fee, 10s. 64. This Society does not boast of a feditious capital, its deceive the public, but has very considerable Funds in the Bank of England, with sufficient to insure the whole of the benefits as above stated, nor do they boast a self-elected Court of Pirectors, over whom the members can have no controut; nor of Trustees without responsibility; but every rember has an equal voice in the immediate concras of the Society; all are eligible to serve office; nor can any member be excluded at the will eresprice of a few interested individuals. This Society has, from its establishment, (near 30 years), maintained all its engagements with the strickets honour and punctaality. Monthly incettings the last Friday is every calender month. Articles may be seen at the bar.—This Society is enrolled agreeable to law.

REDUCTION in the PRICE of WINDSOR SOAP.—
JONES's (late Davison's) IMPROVED ROYAL DOUBLE SCENTED WINDSOR SOAP, in the highest perfection.—J. JONES, having considerably improved this Soap, and reduced it in price, particularly recommends it for family use. It is rendered more parte in quality and greatly enriched in fragrance; its balsamic and cleansing properties operate in the most agreeable manner upon the skin, by producing an immediate soft creamy lather.—Please to ask for Jones's improved Royal Double Scented Windsor Soap. So'd in London only, at his Manufactory, No.59, Fleet-street, at 2s. (late 2s. 6d.) per lb., consisting of six squares, or in single squares at 6d. each.

URLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brusseis fabrie), 147, Strand, near Somerset House, removed from 392, Strand, G.F. URLING and CO, beg to inform the Pashismalle World, that they have prepared for the Scason a various and extensive Associaces of their PATENT LACE DRESSES, from four Guincas be one laundred Guincas each; some of which, from recent improvements, they humbly presume to compare with the most perfect foreign productions. Also a great variety of Veils, Searfs, Squares, Lacer, Nets, &c. of very desorption. This peculiarly clear and transparent Article having, in the higher circles, superseded the nee of common Lace, which becomes rough and full of fibre on the first washing, the Patentees respectfully apprise the Public, that the latter is frequently starched to conceal its defects, and make it resemble Urling's Lace, which herefore, can only be relied upon as genuine at their Wholesale and Retail Establishment in London, or of the Country Dealers supplied by them. Every Article is distinguished by a Seal, with the Patentee's Initials, "G.F. U. and Co." and the words, "by ite (late) Queen's autherity." Specimens, shewing the superiority of Erling's Lace over common Lace, may be seen is Ackermann's Repository, La Belle Assemblee, and other fashion able works, and may be had gratis, by application, post-paid, to G. F. Urling and Co.

Country Dealers supplied upon the most liberal terms.—Manufactory, Basford, Nestinghamshire.

BURGESS' ESSENCE of ANCHOVIES—Warehouse, 107, Strand, corner of the Savoy-steps, London.—John B-rgess and Son, being apprized of the numerous endwavours made by many persons to impose a spurious attiel for their make, feel it incambent upon them to request the attention of the Public, in purchasing what they cancelve to be the Original, to obsorve the Name and the Address corresponds with the above:—the general appearance of the spurious descriptions will deceive the unguarded, and for their detection, J. B. and Son submit the fellowing cauthous,—some are in a ppearance at first sight "The Granins," but without any name or ad deces:—some "Burgess's Essence of Anchovies:—others—"Burges's"—and many more without Address.

John Burgess and Son kaving been many years homenred with such distinguished approbation, feel every sentiment of respect towards the Public, and carnestly solicist them to inspect the Labels previous to their purchasing whatthey conceive to be of their make, which they hope will prevent many disappointments.

BURGESE'S NEW SAUCE, for general purposes, having given such great satisfaction, continues to be prepared by them, and is recommended as a most useful and convenient Sauce: will keep good in all climates. BURGESS' ESSENCE of ANCHOVIES-Warehouse, 107, recommended as a most useful and convenient Sauce: will keep good in all climates. Warehouse, 107, Strand, corner of the Savey-steps, London.—(The eriginal Pish-sauce Warehouse.)

The Great Resterative to Health is MANN'S APPROVED MEDICINE, sold in Bottles at 2s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. each, Duty included; engraved on the Stamp, "Thos. Mann, Hersham, Sussex," to counterfeit which is Felony.

AS COUGHS and COLDS are so prevalent in this King-

AS COUGHS and COLPS are so prevalent in this Kingdem, no Family should be a moment without this Medicine, to the virtue of which the most honourable testimony has been borne, being recommended by Physicians, and patronised by Laties and Gentlemen et the first distinction; it may be taken by the Infant in the first week, to the Agod in any state; it strengthens the Coat of the Stemash, helps Bigestien, creates an Appetite, and reanimates the whole Frame.
Sold, wholesale and retail, by the Proprieter, Horsham, Sussex; and may be had in London of Hudson and Co. 27, Haymarket; Sutson and Co. 10, Bow Church yard; Newberry and Sons, 45, St. Paul's, and 29, Dame-street, Debhin: Butler, 4, Cheapside; Edwards, 66, St. Paul's, Baralay and Son, 65, Fleet Market; Johnson, 15, Greek-street; Seho;
Evans and Son, 42, Long-lane, Smithfield; Bacon, 150, Oxiord-street;
E. Newberry, Corner of St. Paul's; Tutt, Royal Exchange; Clark, 259, High-street, Borough; Ward, 324, Holborn; Vade, 46, Gernhill; and by the primipal Venders of Medicine in the United Kingdom.

A MOST IM ORTANT DISCOVERY for CONVULSION and EPILEPTIC FITS, SPASMS, &c.—DR. HADLEY'S CONVULSION POWDER, a certain Remedy for Convulsion Fits in Children, and for all Spasmodic Gemplaints.

Patronized and sanctioned by Her Grace the Duckes of Rutland Right Hon. Lady Lismora. Right Hon. Lady C. Cavendish. Lady Catharine Walpole. Lady Caroline Lamb.

DR. HADLEY'S POWDERS, although not publicly known, have for many years sustained a proud characteristic as a never-failing remedy in the worst cases of Convulsions in Children, or Adults; also Epileptic or Falling Fits, which they completely extirpate; removes the most violent Spasmodic Affectious. These Powders are wonderfaily effective even in Consumption, and in all cases of relaxation, debility, and weakures in Children and Adults, and in a short time restores the patient to portect health, without confinement or atteration in diet. These Powders are equally efficacious in all climates. Sold in bettles at 4s. 6d. 11s. and 22s. each, by appointment of the Proprietor, by Mr. Sanger, Medicine Warehouse, 150, Oxford-stree: Messrs. Barclay and Sons, 95, Fleet-market; Messrs. Newbery and Sons, 46, 51. Pauls Church-yard; Edwards, 66, 51. Pauls Church-yard; Satton and Co. Bew Church-yard; Edwards, 66, 51. Pauls Church-yard; Strand; Stradling and Nix, Royal Exchange; Johnstone, Cernhill; Ward, 324, Hol' orn; and by their appointment by mest respectable Medicine Venders in every Town throughout the United Kingdom.

LUNDON MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, FRIDAY, MARCH 23.
Though the arrival of Wheat and Barley since Monday has been very moderate, a considerable portion of the ordinary descriptions of each remained over to-day, which not a heavy sale, on lower terms.—Beans and Pease are steady in value; and Oats are a trifle cheaper, the supply being large. In other particles we have no alternate to not to make the property of the property articles we have no alteration to notice.

KETURN PRICE of GRAIN, on board Ship, as under.
Essex Red Wheat (now)25s. 46s.; Maple
Fine 52s. 56s. White ditto 50s. 33s.
Old
Ksnex White (new) 49s. 54s. Small Brans 30s. 33s.
Fine385. 41s. to -6.
Superfines. 60s. 62s. Ti k Beans (new)
Rye
Old
Barley 198. 208. 23s. Fine 198. 208.
Fine 25s. 27s. Poland ditte 186. 210.
#nperfinesss. Fines. 22s. 23s.
Malt
Fine
Heg Pease27#. 20#.
PRICE of FLOUR.
Town made Flour, persacks. to 50s. to 53s

Ditte, seconds per ditto —6. to 45a. to 50a.

Essex and Suffolk Finer, per sack on board ship 50s. to 53a.

Norfolk and Sucktion, ditte 45a. to 45a. to 53a.

Bran. 7s. tess per @narter.—Fine Pollard. 22a. 50 25a. per Quarter. The highest price of the heat Wheater broad throughout the Metro-polis, is stated by the principal Bakers to be Tenpence Halfpenny the Quartern Loaf, of 4 th 24 wz.

| Dolla, is "tated by the principal Bakers to be Tempenee Halfpenny the Quarters Loaf, of 4 is $6.52.
| AVERAGE PRICES of GRAIN per Quarter, for the Week ending MARCH 10.
| Wht. Rys. Barl. Oats. Brone. Pease. Ond. s. d. s.

PRIC	ES of th	e PUB	LIC FU	NDS.
STOCKS.	Mon.	Tues.	Wed.	Thur.	Prid.	Sat.
Bank Stock	. —			-
3 per Cent. Reduced	-	-
3 per Cent. Consols	701	69[	69 £	702	71	704 44
31 per Cent. Consols		-			-	-
Consols for Account		10	70}	70)	713	70/31
4 per Cent. Consols			_		_	- '
5 per Cent. Navy	1057	104	1613	105	105	1054 3
Bank Long Aunuities			_	- ·	–
India Bonds	49 p	12 p	21 p	30 p	31 p	33 P
Exchequer Bills, 2d	4 P	3 p	5 p	2 p	3 p	189
Ditte, 21d		 				_
Omninm	'		ı · —	-	_	1 —

BIRTHS.
On Thursday, 22d inst. at Huntingdon, the Lady of Captain Biden Honourable Bast India Company's ship, Princess Charlotte of Wales

Honourable Bast India Company's ship, Princess Unariotte of Walesof a daughter.
On the 21st of February, at his house at East Luvant Rectory, Sussex, the Lady of the Rev. J. W. Deacon, of a son.
On the 19th instant, at his house in Manchester-street, the Lady of the Hen. W. Lake of a daughter.
In George-street, Hanover-square, Lady Copley, of a daughter.
On Friday, the 16th instant, in Hill-street, Berkeley-square, the Hou.
Mrs. G. E. Philips, of a daughter.
On the 20th instant, at Clapham, the Lady of Alexander Gordon, Esq.
of (1)d Broad street, of a daughter.
At Dale Park, in the sounty of Sussex, on the 17th instant, the Lady of George Morant, Esq. of a son.
MARRIAGES.

MARRIAGES.

On Monday, the 19th instant, at Southannton, John Fraser, jun. Esq. to Caroline, youngest daughter of the late Thomas Molton, Usq. On Tuesday, at Ealing, by the Rev. Mr. Carr, the Hon. Liward Perceval, second son of Lord Arden, to Jane, eldest daughter of the late Right Hon. Spencer Peroeval.

On Monday, the 19th instant, at East Bourn, William Hanbury Jones, Esq. to Sarah, second daughter of Edward Whitaker, Esq. Bampton, Oxfordshire.

On Thursday the 29th instant.

Thursday, the 22d instant, Mr. Thomas Ball, of Hackney, to Miss

DIED.

On the 17th inst. at East Luvant Rectory, Sussex, the infant son of the Rev. J. W. Deacon.

At his house at Paddington, aged $4, Michael Brynn, Rsg. author of the Biographical Dictionary of Painters and Engravers, &c.

On Monday last, Mrs. Crompton, of Duke-street, Grosveuor-square, relict of the late John Crompton, Esq. of his Majesty's Customs.

On Wednesday, at his house, Blackheath-road, Mary, the wife of Thomas Todd, Esq.

On the 20th justant, at Bath, in the 75th year of her age, Mrs. Knipe, relict of the late Robert Knipe, Esq. of New Lodge, Herts.

On the 19th instant, Mrs. William Malton, in Keppel-street, Russell-square.

On the 19th instant, Mrs. William Malten, in Keppei-street, Russessquere.

On Tuesday, the 20th instant, of consumption, Elizabeth, wife of Mr.
W. A. Sosmes, of High Willows, Cheshunt, Herts.

On Sunday evening last, in Devonshire street, the Hon. Catheriae Fromantle, widow of the late Lleut.-Colonel Fromantle, and sister at the late Lord Ongley.

On the 2d instant, at Tedford, near Horncastle, in the 65th year of his age, the Rev. John Dymoke, Rector of Brinkhill, Lincolnshire, second son of the late John Dymoke, Gent. of the above place, who was helr at law of the Right Hon. Lewis Dymoke, of Scrivelsby, who performed the office of Champion to King Gowrge III.

At his house, Stratford-place, Lieutt.-Col. P. Douglas.
On the 8th instant, at Croydon, William Fergusson, Esq. aged 25.
On Monday, the 12th instant, at Bath, Catherise, wife of the Hom. and Rev. James St. Leger.

LONDON: Printed and Published by R. T. WEAPEP. at No.11, JOHNSON'S COURT, FLEET-STREET, ore only Communications to the Editor, (post paid) are

Digitized by

" FOR GOD, THE KING, AND THE PEOPLE!"

No. 16.

SUNDAY, APRIL 1, 1821.

Price 7d.

MR. HAYDON'S PICTURE of CHRIST'S AGONY in the GARDEN, and his other Works, will be REMOVED TO-MORROW to the Gallery next doer to the British Institution, Pall Mall, and will be RE-OPENED immediately; the Roum, 29, St. James's-street, being wanted for Sales.—Due notice will be given.

THE GENTLEMEN of the STOCK EXCHANGE are respectfully informed, that they may now be supplied with elegant oral-shape BEAVER HATS, which for short rich Naps, Fashion, Durability, and Materials, cannot be surpassed by any other House in London. An Allowance will be made for their eld ones, evidently much to their advantage;—every Article of the most superior make, and charged at moderate prices.

Families will find a considerable Saving in the purchase of their Livery Hate, as no charge is made on the Lace, being content with the prefit on the Hat only.

Manufactured by GEORGE BYERS. 3, Pall Mall, London

NEW MUSIC.

Manufactured by GEORGE BYERS. 3, Pall Mail, London

NEW MUSIC.

Just published, by the Royal Harmonic Institution, Lower Saloon, Argyll Rooms, Regent street,

PBBEN PER MIA MEMORIA; the favourite Duet in the Opera of La Gazza Lafræ; arranged by T. Greatorex, 3s. The EVERTURE to the same Opera, arranged as a Duet, and Single, for the Piano Forte. Two celebrated MARCHES, from the Opera of Gastoni e Bajarde, for the Piano Forte; composed by Liverati, price 2s.

IL GIORNO FELICE, a Divertimento for the Piano Forte, by T. A.
Rawlinez, 3s.

NEW ARGYLL ROOMS. NEW ARGYLL ROOMS.

M. R. HAWES most respectfully informs the Nobility, Gentry, and his Triends in general, that his ANNUAL CONCERT will be held, as above, on MONDAY-NEXT, April 2, 1821.

Tickets 10s. 6d. each, and full particulars of the Concert, may be had at the Royal Flammonic Institution, Argyll Rooms; at the principal Music Shops; and of Mr. Hawes, 7, Adeiphi Terrace.

Just published, in 8ve. price 5s. 6d. stitched,

POEMS. By Mrs. CORNWELL BARON WILSON.

London: Printed for John Warren, Old Bond-street.

Also, a Third Edition, price 8s. extra boards, of

ASTARTE, a Sicilian Tale, with other Poems. By the same

ASTARTE, a Sicilian Taic, with other Poems. By the same Author.

"This Lady obtained our commendations for her Poem of "Astarte," and we have pleasure in saying, that the present volume renews our favourable impressions of her talents, and affords us an opportunity of repeating our praise."—Literary Gazette, No. 215.

THE POLICE.

Just published, price Is

A LETTER to a MEMBER of PARLIAMENT on the POLICE of the METROPOLIS. By a BARRISTER.

London: Printed for W. Wright, 46, Fleet-street.

On Tuesday next, price 1s.

THE admirable LETTER of TIBERIUS GRACCHUS in PARIS to the DUKE of BEDFORD, in ENGLAND.

Printed by and for W. L. Bryan, 38 and 10, Poultry; and to be had of all Booksellers.

SERMONS on the MOST IMPORTANT DUTIES of the CHRISTIAN RELIGION.—By J A. BUSFIELD, D.D. Domestic Chaplain to the Earl of Mulgrave, Minister of Bayswater Chaple, one of the Preachers at Quelec Chaple, Alternate Preacher at the Asylum, and Lecturer of St. Mary-le-Bone. Third Edition, 2 vols. 8vo. price 24s. Printed for B. E. Lloyd and Sex, Harley-street; and Sherwood, Meely and Jones, Paternoster-row.

Books, just published, by J. Andrews, Opera Agent, at his new Circulating Library, 167, New Bond-street, near Grafton-Street,

A TALE of the OLDEN TIME.—By a Harrow Boy.

12mc price 6s. 6d.

2. The LIFE of VOLTARE; with interesting Particulars respecting his Death, and Anecdotes and Characters of his Contemporaries. By FRANK HALL STANDISH, Esq. 8vo. price 12s.

3. WARBECK of WOLFSTEIN. By MISS HOLFONER, Author of Wallace, &c. 3 vols. price 11.4s.

In the press, and shortly will be published;

4. The PRIVATEER. A Tale.

In No. LXXYIII. of the INDICATOR.

Published by ONWHYN, at No. 4. Catherine-street, Strand, will be given.

THE CONCLUSION of the interesting STORY of RIENZI,

Re. &c. &c. &c.—All Orders are required to be sent as above.

The demand for the last Number has left but few copies on hand; those persons, therefore, wishing to complete their Sets should make early application.

N. B. The Indicator is published every Wednesday morning, price 2d.

Published by James Carpenter. Old Bond-street.

THE FINE ARTS.

A BIOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY of PAINTERS and ENGRAVERS, from the revival of Painting and the alleged discovery of Engraving by Finiquerru.

By MICHAEL BRYAN.

In this work is given two Indexes, alphabetical and chronological; and the introduction comprises a brief account of the Painters of Antiquity. It also contains five Plates, exhibiting the particular Marks and Monograms used by the different Engravers; together with a list of their works, in two Links volumes, in 4to, price 51, 5s. in boards; and on superfine royal paper, 91.

monograms with two lines with the price 51. 5s. In boards; and on superfine royal paper, 91.

2. A new and compendious TREATISE of ANATOMY, and PROPORTIONS of the HUMAN BUDY, adapted to the Arts of DESIGNING, PAINTING, and SCUPTURB, illustrated by Copper plates.

By W F. WELLS. Price 5s.

3. The MEMOIRS of COUNT GRAMMONT, illustrated with 64 Portraits, heautifully engraved by SCRIVEN, from original Pictures, in 2 vols. 8vo., price 31. 13s. 6d. and in 4to. with proof impressions of the Plates, 61. 6a. Ditto in French, 2 vols. 8vo. 3l. 13s. 6d.

4. A PORTRAIT of THOMAS MOORE, Esq. from a Picture by M. A. SHEE, Esq. R.A. engraved in the line manner, by Mr. JOHN BURNET. Price II. 1s. proof, Il. IIs. 6d.

5. A PORTRAIT of THOMAS LORD CLIFFORD, Lord High Treasurer to Clarkes II. Engraved by Mr. SCRIVEN, from a Miniature by SAM. COOPER. Price 10s. 6d. proof, 15s.

The fellowing valuable Books are just published by SHERWIN and Co. 21, Patermoster-row.

SHAKSPEARE'S FLAYS, Parts 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7. Price 1s. each. To be completed in one vol. 8vo. for 10s. 6d, at most.

2. HUMB and SMOLLETT'S HISTORY of ENGLAND, Parts 1, 2. 1s. each. To be completed in two vols. 8vo. for 20s.

3. BEAUTIES of the POETS, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. With beautiful Wood Cuts, 18mo. 4d. each. To be completed in 3 packet vols. 10s.

4. POPE'S WORKS, No. 1, 8vo. Price 6d. To be completed for 2s. 6d.

Wood Cuts, 18mo, 3d. each.

4. POPE'S WORKS, No. 1, 8vo. Price 6d. To be completed for 2s, 6d.

5. The POOR WIDOW, a Poem. By W. Woodward, Esq. With Frontispiece 18mo. 1s.

6. DON JUAN, vertatin from the edition at a Guinea and a half. 4s.

7. The celebrated CRITIQUE from the Edinburgh Review, on Lord Byron's itours of idleness, 8vo. 3d.

8. BUNYAN'S HOLY WAR, with-Burder's Notes, and Eight fine Engravings, including a Portrait. Complete in 9 Numbers, at 6d. each.

9. SATHES, SON GS, and ODES, by the Right Hon. G. Canning. 1s.

10. A LETTER from WILLIAM LORD RUSSELL to LORD CAYENDISH, supposed to be written the evening before bia execution, the 1863. By the Right Hon. G. Canning. Royal 12mo. 3s.

11. FOUR of the most celebrated SPEECHES of Counsellor Phillips. 3d.

ill. FOUR of the most experiment to expaniate on the cheapness and great utility of the works in the preceding list, more particularly of the Shakspeare, History of England, and Beautics of the Poets.—FOUR THOUSAND of the first have already been sold in about as many months, and the two latter bid fair to reach a similar circulation.

3.

NEW QUADRILLES for 1821, as performed by Messrs. Collinet, Michau, and Murard's Band.—The ELEVENTH SET, and the first danced this Season at Almack's, the Argyll Rooms, and the Nebility's Balls; composed for the Plano forte, with an (ad lib.) accompaniment for the Flute, by P. MUSARD, price 4s.—Published by J. Power, 34, Strand.

ECONOMICAL EDUCATION, at Mr. CLARKSON's old established CLASSICAL, COMMERCIAL, and MATHEMATICAL ACADEMY, BOWES-HALL, near Greta Bridge, Yorkshire.—Young Gentlemen are bearded, provided with Books, &c. and expeditionsly instructed in every Branch of useful and polite Education'necessary to qualify them for any situation in life, at 20 Guineaa a year. By the numerous respectable references which Mr. Clarkson is enabled to adduce, Parents will be entirely reflexed from the auxieties they feel in parting with their Unit dren, as they will-have it in their power to convince themselves that the Sphool is conducted upon a liberal plan; and that the mest conscientious attention is given to the comfort, improvement, and merals of the Pupils.

References, numerous and respectable, with every other information, may be had of Mr. Smith, the Agent, 25, Lombard street.

TO BE LET, WARLINGHAM COURT FARM, consisting

TO BE LET, WARLINGHAM COURT FARM, consisting of a Farm House, and about 430 Acres of Land; and a Farm at Sanderstead, consisting of a Farm House, and about 295 Acres. These are to be entered upon at Michaelmas, 1821. And about 26 Acres of Land, part of Park Hill, Croyton. Of this immediate possession will be given.

Further Particulars may be had of Mr. Drummond, Solicitor, Croydon.

NAPLES, ROME, PLORENCE, and VENICE.

COXE'S TRAVELER'S GUIDE to ITALY.

Just published, price 14s. 5ds. the 2nd Edition of

A PICTURE of ITALY; descriptive of the Antiquities and Cupiestites of that classical and interesting Country; containing Sketches of Manacrs, Society, and Customs; also an Itinerary of Distances, the best luns, &c.; with a minute Description of ROME, FLORENCE, NAPLES, and VENICE. To which are prefixed, Directions to Travellers, and Dialogues adapted to Travellers, in English, French, and Italian.

By H. COXE. Rec.

By H. COXE, Bsq.

Illustrated with Maps and Plates,
London: Printed for Sherwood, Neely, and Jones, Paternoster-row
and sold by all Booksellers.

and sold by all Booksellers.

NEW WORK ON NAVIGATION.

Just published, in royal 8vo. price 18s. with a newly constructed Planisphere of the Starry Heavens, on a very large Scale,

THE YOUNG NAVIGATOR'S GUIDE to the SIDEREAL and PLANETARY PARTS of NAUTICAL ASTRONOMY; being the Theory, and Practice of finding the Latitude, the Longitude, and the Variation of the Compass by the Flxed Stars and Planets; to which is prefixed the Description and Use of the New Celestial Planisphere.

Planisphere.

By THOMAS KERIGAN, Parser, R. N.

Loudon: Printed for Baldwin, Cradock, and Joy.

Dy As many persons may wish to have the Planisphere separate from the Book, or desire to supply the place of one wern out, some Caples are printed on very thick Prawing Paper, and sold at 5s. each.

THE LONDON MAGAZINE .- Printed for Baldwin. Cra-

THE LONDON MAGAZINE.—Printed for Baldwin, Cracontents of No. XVI. for APRIL:—All Fools' Day, by Elia; Letter from Lord Byros to Mr. Murray, on Swimming across the Hellespont; Lines on the Death of the Princess Charlotte; Sonnet, by Charles Lamb; Table Taik, No. IX. in People of Sense; Asto-biography of John Huggins; Atherstope's Last Bays of Herculaneam; the Confessions of H. F. V. H. Delamore, Esq.: a Quaker's Meeting, by Elia; Consolation; Ablion; Traditional Literature, No. V.; Sketches on the Road; The Collector, No. IX.; Mr. Charles Lloyd's Poema; Gleanings from Foreign Journals—Mell's Don Quixote in Scythia, Mullier, the Author of Guilt, &c.; Letter Irom a Roue; Goethe's Il Conte di Carnagnola; Town Conversation; The Drama; The British Institution; Literary and Scientific Intelligence; Report of Music; Abstract of Domestiq and Foreign Intelligence; Agricultural and Commercial Reports, &c. &c.

TWO SERMONS, preached in ST. MARK'S CHURCH,
Liverpool, on the Daugerous Consequences of CATHOLIC EMANCIPATION; with Notes, and Preliminary Remarks on the same

By the Rev. RICHARD BLACOW, A.M.

2. A LETTER to WM. KING, LLD. Principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford; containing a particular Account of a Treasonable Riot at Oxford, by the Builssaries of Popery. By Richard Blacow, A.M. P.R.S. Canon of Windsor, and Rector of Hartley, Hants. Printed for and sold by W. Wright, 46, Fleet-street, London; and T. Muncaster, Liverpool.

T. Mancaster, Liverpool.

STATIONERY, of the hestquality, to be soid, at the following 1 w prices:—Excellent copy, 7d. the quire, or 11s. the ream; good laid post, 8d. superfine thick, 9d. std is the quire, or 12s. 13s. 6d. and 17s. 6d. the ream; superfine Bath, 8d. ditto, hot-pressed, 10d. and 1s. the quire, or 13s. 6d. 15s. and 17s. 6d. the ream; tery best thick Bath gilt, 1s. 1d. the quire, or 20s. 'the ream: thick foolscap, 1s. the quire, superfine, 1s. 2d. and 1s. 4d. a quire or 31s. and 26s. the ream; superfine large bank 1.0d., 1s. the quire, or 18s. the ream; also, a large quantity of the very best thick lined brief, 1s. 4d. the quire, or 26s. the ream; a strong prown, 8d. 10d. and 1s. 6d. small hand. 4d. the quire; at H. & W. SMITH's, 192. Straud, opposite St. Clement's Church.—Account Books, made to order, of any size or pattern, equally low in price.

STAYS and BELTS.—ROBINSON and VISTRIN submit STAYS and BELTS.—ROBINSON and VISTRI's submit to the free inspection of Ladies numerous patterns in fashionable Stays, warranted to combine perfect fit, retentive shape, and durable wear, however difficult the figure. By his Majesty's Royal letters patent, ap, roved by eminent physicians, surgeons, and accoucheurs, newly invented Stays to restore neglected shape, prevent and cure deformities, spinal curvatures and projections, support and cure persons awry, invisibly rendering them perfectly straight and shapely, with ut any perincious steel, padding, or pressure. Elastic anatomical belis, which reduce corpulency, visceral enlargement, local dropsy, umbilical liternia, relieve and strengthen abdominal debility, afford efficacious comfortable support before and after acconchement, avoiding uneasy compression.

Ceuntry Ladies instructed, by iottars, to send measures.—Observe the manes and direction, this advertisement being quoted, imitated, and even umbinshingly copied by incapable and unskilful persons.

7. Yerk street, Covent Garden.

SATURDAY'S GAZETTE, MARCH 24.

SATURDAY'S GAZETTE, MARCH 24.

DIVIDENDS.

April 21, Luke, Whitehall, and Jonkin, West Smithfield, wholesale linen drapers.—April 17, J. and C. Bigg, listifield, Hertfordshire, common brewers.—May 8, N. W. and C. Bigg, listifield, Hertfordshire, common brewers.—May 8, N. W. and W. Bowers Cannon Street, comb makers.—April 14, R. P. Guyard, Thingmorten Street, merchant.—April 14, Haywood and Pluniger, Coleman Street, cholifers and warehousemen.

—April 14, Knott, Smith and Clarke, Duke Street, Fouthwark, hat manufacturers.—April 14, The Beham, Essex Buildings, Stratford, merchant, ship and insurance broker.—April 17, R. Rowland, Strand, liven draper.—April 16, Ritchie and Muffat, Liverpool, merchants.—April 18, Marsh, Deane, Westbrook, and il. B. Deane, Reading, bankers.—April 16, D. Jackson, Houndsditch, chemist and druggist.—April 18, J. Freeth, Bulwell, Nottinghamshire, callto printer.—April 12, P. Hutchings, Gloucostor, cheese factor.—April 18, J. Alien, Warwick, Innkeeper.—April 13, F. Haywood, Liverpool, merchant.—April 17, J. Lachlan, Great Alle Street, Goodman's Fields, ship broker.—April 14, J. Bnchannan, Sherborne Lane, merchant.—April 18, S. Joseph, Gosport, slopseller.—April 14, B. Turner, West Bromwich, Stafferdshire, bayenet maken,

TUESDAY'S GAZETTE.

[This Gazette contains a Loyal Address to His Majesty from the Borough of Radnor. Also, an Extract from the Dublin Gazette, dated March 22, in which His Majesty is pleased to order that the Union Plag, charged in the centre with an escutoheon of the arms of Ireland, should be appropriated to the Lord Lieutenant, as distinguishing his presence on board His Majesty's ships.]

Commissions signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Breks.

C. Sawyer, Esq. and A. H. East, Esq. to be Deputy-Lieutenants.

BANKRUPTCY ENLARGED.

T. LEEDS, Gerards, Cheshire, cotton spinner.

J. BUCKLAND, Newcastle Street, Strand, earpenter.

T. ALLSOP, late of Gloucester, linen draper.

M. VAUGHAN and C. APPLETON, late of Liverpool, straw bonnet manufacturers.

. VALUETIAN and CALL BENEFIT OF MISSING WIND WORLD THE MASON, Liverpool, linen and woollen draper.

MASON, Liverpool, linen and woollen draper.

SLOPER, Bath, baker and cornfactor.

MACDONAGH, Chesterfield, Derbyshire, wine and spirit mer-

J. SLOPEK, Bath, baker and cornitator.

T. MACDONAGH, Chesterield, Derbyshire, wine and spirit merchant.

T. ASHCROFT, Liverpool, timber merchant.

J. CLARKE. Worcester, coach proprietor.

G. BACKHOUSE, Kendal, Westmorland, ironmonger,
DIVIDENDS.

June 5, Bruce, Brown, and Scott, now or late of London, army clothiers.—April 14, P. B. Jones, Birusinghan, manufacturer.—April 14, B., Foot, Half Moon Tavern, Gracechurch Street, tavern keeper.—April 7, S. P. Neager, Maidstone, dealer.—April 7, W. Elgar, Maidstone, grocer.—April 7, T. and E. S. Foster, Yaldidg, Kent, maltsters.—April 18, J. Webb, New Sarum, victualler.—April 20, R. Gower, St. Austell, linen draper.—April 4, J. Hardwick, Mill Street, Lambeth, engineer.—April 18, J. Webb, New Sarum, victualler.—April 17, R. Portlock, Andower, coach maker.—March 31, G. Dann, Linton, butcher.—April 17, T. Smith, otherwise T. I. Smith, Lawrence Pountney-lane, merchant.—April 18, J. Wilkinson, Cockermouth, common brewer,—April 17, R. Hartley, Ripon, mercer.—April 17, T. Morris, Bristol, linen draper.—April 18, Phillips, Wray, and Baker, Vork, merchants.—April 21, Battier and Zornlin, Devonshire Square, merchants.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTE.

Lord Chamberlain's Office, March 30, 1821.

Notice is hereby given, that His Majesty will hold a Lovce at Cariton House, on Wednesday, the 2d of May next, at two o'clock.

Lord Chamberlain's Office, March 30, 1921.

Notice is hereby given, that, in consequence of St. Scorge's Day occurring on Easter Monday, the Drawing Room intended to be held at Buckinghan Palace, in celebration of His Maiest's Birth-day i, spostponed to Thursday, the 31 of May next, at two o'clock.

prosponed to Thursday, the 3d of May next, at two o'clock.

WAR-OFFICE, 30th March. 1821.

2d Regt. of Drag. Guards—Lieut. Hen. St. George Cuff, from the half-pay of 23d Light Drag. to be Lieut. vice Bayly, who exchanges.

19th Regt. of Light Drag.—W. H. L. Brooke, Gent. to be Cornet, by purchase, vice Clagett, who retires.

2d Regt. of Foot—Capt. J. Gordon to be Major, without purchase, vice Thistlethwayte, dec.; Lieut. J. R. Kell to be Capt. vice Gordon; Ensign F. Wyse to be Lieut. vice Kell; W. Cougreve, Gent. to be Ensign, vice Wyse.

2d Regt. of Foot—Capt. J. Gordon to be Major, without purchase, vice Thistlethwayle, dec.; Lieut. J. R. Kell to be Capt. vice Groden; Ensign F. Wyse to be Lieut. vice Kell; W. Congreve, Geat. to be Emsign, vice Wyse.

14th Ditte—Ensign R. B. Newenham to be Lieut. without purchase, vice Brannan, dec.; J. Watson, Gent. to be Emsign, vice Newenham.

18th Ditto—Nr. Tomlinson, Gent. to be Emsign, by purchase, vice Birch, who retires.

28th Bitto—Lieut. H. Hilliard, from half-pay 43d Toot, to be Payma-ter. vice Temlinson, dee.

31st Ditto—Gent. Cadet W. S. Moorsom, from the Royal Military College, to be Emsign, by purchase, vice Jeffries, who retires.

33d Ditto—To be Ensigns—Ensign H. L. Cameron, from half-pay 66th Foot, vice J. Knox, who exchanges; Ensign J. Riddell, from half-pay 66th Foot, vice P. N. Daly, who exchanges.

46th Regt. of Foot—Lieut. and Ensign E. J. Duke to be Lieut. without purchase, vice Wilson, dec.; N. R. Brown, Gent. to be Ensign, vice Duke.

To be Lieutenants.—48th Ditto—Lieut. W. O. Atkinson, from half-pay 12th Foot, vice Thompson, appointed to the 9thRoyal Vet. Battalion.—Ens. and Adj. J. Wild (to have the rank.)

53d Ditto—Sec. Lieut. J. Fennell, from the Ride Brigade, to be Lieut. without purchase, vice Wilson, dec.

55th Ditto—Capt. W. L. White, from half-pay 14th Foot, to be Capt. vice Morris, who retires from half-pay 14th Foot, to be Capt. vice Morris, who retires from half-pay 14th Foot, to be Ens. vice Maclean, who exchanges.

Ride Brigade—H. Clinton. Gent. to be Sec. Lieut. without purchase, vice Elliot, who resigns.

Ride Brigade—H. Clinton. Gent. to be Ens. without purchase, vice Fennell, promoted in 53d Foot

1st West Ind. Reg.—J H. Pickering, Gent. to be Ens. without purchase, vice Fennell, promoted in 53d Foot

1st West Ind. Reg.—J H. Pickering, Gent. to be Ens. without purchase, vice Fennell, promoted in 53d Foot

1st West Ind. Reg.—J H. Pickering, Gent. to be Bos. without purchase, vice Fennell, promoted in 53d Foot

1st West Ind. Reg.—J H. Pickering, Gent. to be Bos. withou

J. Steele, Gent. to be Ensign.

Commissions in the Royal Lannershive Regiment of Militia, signed by the Lord Lieutemant of the County of Lanark.

J. Fullarton, Esq. to be Capt.—H. M'Kensie, late of 57th Reg., to be Lieut.—J. Currie, late of 65th Reg. to be ditto.—G. Letham, late of 27th
Reg. to be ditto.—D. Campbell, Gent. to be Ensign.

Commission in the Rarensworth Corps of Fromancy Cavalry, signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Durham.

W. Fife, Gent. to be Cornet.

W. Fife, tient to be Cornet.

Commissions in the Surrey Yromanry Catalry, signed by the Long Lieutenant of the County of Surrey.

Capt, Marmadhke Langdale to be Major, vice Sir T. Turton, proinoted,—Lieut. G. M. Honre to be Capt.—Lieut. G. R. Barrett to be ditto, vice Langdale.—T. A. Shater, Eaq. to be ditto, vice Dunkin, resigned.—Cornet W. Lee to be Lieut., vice Peters, resigned.—Cornet G. Taylor to be ditto, vice Hoare, promoted.—G. G. Beet, Cent. to be ditto, vice Sir H. Bridges, resigned.—S. Smith, Gent. to be Cornet, vice Taylor, promoted.—H. Man, Gent. to be Cornet, vice Thomas, deceased.—Assishant.—Surgeon W. James to be Surgeon, vice Ansell, resigned.—The Rev. J. Barrett, D.D. to be Chaphain, vice Taylor, deceased.

JOHN HARRISON, Manchester, cotton-apinner.—SAMUEL WISE-MAN, JOHN HARPER, and THOMAS FOYSON, Norwich, Bombaseen-manufacturers.—JOHN CHRISTY, Old Gravel-lane, master-mariner.

BANKRUPTS.

NATHANIEL MENCE, Worcester, brewer. HENRY ALFRED NOBLE, Albany-road, Camberwell, wine-more

HENRY ALFRED NUBLE, Albay-loss, spirit merekanj.
GEORGE BAGLEY, Pocklingten, York, spirit merekanj.
THOMAS MANN, Raietrick, York, merekant.
JOHN HART, Bath, sadler.
PHILIP SHRAPNELL, Braiford, clothler.
JOHN PEET, Ashlon within Mackerfield, Lancashire, hinge macturer.
PATRICK HENIFRECK, Tonbridge Place, merchant;
SAMUEL UPPOM WHITTELL, Islington, thuber, merekant, JOHN MUTCH, Queen Amre Street, Cavendial Square, cabinaker.

inker. THOMAS HODOKINSON RILBY, Crawford Street, linen drapes.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS. MONDAY.

Lord Grenville presented a petition from the University of Oxford, against the Roman Catholic Claims.—Laid on the table.

On the motion of the Marquis of Lausdowne, extracts of the material parts of the evidence, on which Sir M. Lopez was found guilty of Bribery at the Grampound Election, with the Becord of his conviction at the Devon Assises, were ordered to be laid before the House.
TUESDAY.

The Bishop of Chester presented a petition from Bolton-le-Moors, against the Roman Catholic Claims—the sentiments which it contained were his own. If the Roman Catholics maintained the opinions which they did, be did not think we should have sufficient pledge for the security of the Protestant Establishment. The Right Rev. Prelate presented another petition to the same effect, from the Diocese of Chester, and added, if the Protestant ascendancy was not worth preservation, he knew nothing worth preserving. The petitions were laid on the table.

Lord Ellenborough moved an Humble Address to the King, that His Majesty would be graciously pleased to offer his mediation to the Emperor and the Governments of Naples and Piedmont, on terms consistent with the respective rights of these powers. He thought this was the precise moment to interfere by mediation to prevent a war throughout the continent. He admitted the great services rendered by Austria in 1805, when England was threatened with invasion, she sprung forward with all her might and turned the enemy's legions from our shores, and again in 1500, she had repelled the invaders from Spain, and in 1813, she had enabled Europe to obtain those successes, which had conducted her armies within the gates of Paris. The Noble Lord took a view of the proceedings of the two powers, Naples and Austria, since the commencement of the contest, and asked whether it became England, the land of freedom, to stand neuter in such a contest, particularly as he was of opinion, Austria had much to dread from the Curbonari in her further progress on the Neapolitan territory, nor could she hope any effectual assistance from Russia, who in the event of coming down with a powerful army, would, judging from her previous conduct, demand and secure accessious of territory on the continent for herself equally fatal to Austria. Again, danger was to be apprehended from France, now in the possession of a Coxstitution and enjoying greater liberty than hitherto. He deprecated the impolicy of preventing English subjects from entering into the service of Naples—the English people felt for the Italians, and were willing to make the cause of Naples their own. The object which he had in view in proposing mediation, was the preservation of the honour of Austria and the Independence of the Italian States. He then moved the Address, &c.

The Earl of Aberdeen opposed the Address, he thought it premature, at least. It was not desirable, that this country should place itself between the King of Naples and the Neapolitan Government, the former having issued a proclamation commanding his subjects to receive the Austrians as friends. The effect of that proclamation remained to be proved, and whether the Carbonari, had really been possessed of that inflaence which was stated, the Noble Lord should recollect, that the Office of Mediator on this occasion, as proposed by them, would be rather that of remonstrance, untill it was known whether both parties desired our interference. The prohibition against British officers entering the Nerpolitan service, was grounded on the best political views. The time might come when mediation would be, perliaps, more proper, and desired by both parties. He concluded with opposing the motion

After some observations from the Earl of Darnley, the motion was negatived.—Adjourned.
WEDNESDAY.

The Earl of Carnarvon gave notice that he should on the 9th of April, move the second reading of the Grampound Dis-franchisement Bill, and that witnesses do attend on the Bill. –Adjourned.

THURSDAY.

The Earl of Shaftesbury presented a Report from the Committee of Privileges stating, that the claims of the Earls of Glengall and Agrau, to vote for the election of Irish Represenzative Peers, had been allowed.

The Commercial Intercourse and the Grampound Indemnity Bills were passed.

FRIDAY.

The Archbishop of York presented a petition from the Archdeaconry of York against the Roman Catholio Claims.

The Bishop of Liandeff presented a petition from the Clergy of the Archdeaconry of Hereford, against the Roman Catholic Claims.— Laid on the table.

The Irish Attorneys' Fees Regulation Bill was read and

The Beer Duties Bill was read a second time. - Adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

MONDAY.

Mr. Lamblen postponed his motion respecting a Reform in Parliament until the 17th of April.

Petitions were presented from a variety of places against the Catholic Claims; from the town of Chippenham, from the Archdeacoury of York, and the Clergy of the West Riding of Afr. S. Wortley, in presenting the last petition, said, he knew that the gentlemen signing it were werthy of their sacred offices, and men of the most exemplary conduct in priente life, and therefore deserving of serious consideration.

Some discussion followed, in which Sir C. Burrell said, the tenets of the Boman Catholics were highly intolerant. He mentioned an instance, in which the remains of the father of a Member of Parliament were denied Christian burial, because he had been a Protestant; and the body was brutally treated.

Mr. Bennett said, the instance alluded to, arose out of tienf, and not religious feeling. As to tolerance, he was sorry to may, that an Anti-Christian spirit was to be found among the ers of the Established Church,—The petition was laid on the table'.

Mr. Ho. bhouse said, he held in his hand a petition from a respectable tradesman in the Straud, who stated, that in the space of a few days, he had taken not less than 23 forged one pound notes, had of that number he believed he had taken ten in one day. He understood that 30,0001 is amount, of forged es. had been presented to the Bank in one year,

In answer to s question from Mr. Curwen, Sir W. Congress (one of the Commissioners of Inquiry for the better Prevention of Forgeries) stated, that their functions had ceared on presenting their last Report—they had sanc-sioned a plan sent to them by the Benk, and that the Eank had shewn great liberality in carrying the artist's plan into effect, by erecting expensive machinery for perfecting the plan. The effect had not entirely answered the purpose. He was convinced, that it was feasible to make a Bank note so that it could not be imitated. He had proposed a country Bank note for adoption, which could not be easily imitated. -The petition was ordered to be printed.

Mr. Western brought in two Bills for the Repent of the last Malt Tax in England and Ireland, which were read a first time, and ordered for a second reading on the 3d of April.

Lord Milton gave notice, that he should, on the 2d of April, move for the Repeal of the Duty on Foreign Wool.

Sir J. Newport intimated his intention, at some future stage to move the consolidation of the two Catholic Bills for removing the disabilities under which they labour. He then moved the Order of the Day for going into a Committee.

Mr. Hutchinson rose to correct a misupprehension with re spect to his having had any communications from Ireland, reprobating the Bills before the House. With respect to the first of the Bills, he approved of it; but as to the second, great alterations were requisite. One of the Catholic Bishops had written to him, expressing his decided disapprobation of the measure—a meeting of Catholic Bishops was to be held on that day in Dublin, and he understood there existed a considerable degree of agitation in Ireland on the subject of the second Bill.

The House then went into a Committee on the clause specting the oath of transubstantiation, and the repeal of the Sir T. Lethbridge decidedly opposed the repeal, considering this as the great guard against the Roman Catholic holding office. He could not conceive how Members could reconcile voting with the Bill, consistently with their oaths. If they begun with the Catholics, they must proceed and repeal the Corpora-tion and Test Acts, or be guilty of great injustice, and then the British Constitution would be endangered. The Hon. Member alluded to the conduct of Dr. Milner, and some other Members of the Romish Church, as evidence that nothing which the Le-sial true could do would entief; that body. gislature could do would satisfy that body.

Mr. Martin (Galway) supported the claims.—The clause was agreed to.

On the next clause, which went to enact, that nothing contained in this Act should extend, or be construed to extend, to alter the succession to the Crown in the Protestant line, and the uniformity of prayer throughout the kingdom, having been

Mr. Bankes said, it was his intention to move, that to this clause be added, the words, "or dispense with any of the onths and declarations, as by law established, to be taken by Peers or Members of the House of Commons, before they were allowed to sit in either House of Parliament." The Hon. Gent. approved of the consolidating the two Bills, and observed upon the incongruity of the two, as being ill calculated to satisfy the Catholics. From what he knew of their Clergy, it was impossible they could become parties to the second Bill. Instead of its being a matter of conciliation and peace in Ireland, it would be a source of tumult and dissention among the members of the Ca tholic Church. He was ready to admit the Catholics to certain privileges, but so long as the religion was what it is, he never could assent to their holding seats in that House. He wasanxious could assent to their holding seats in mat rouse. The washington to preserve the Constitution in Church and State, and therefore, when illiberality, intolerance, and bigotry, were attempted to be cast upon the opposers of the measures, those epithets would not affect him, nor would be be turned aside from his purpose by them. He concluded by moving, as an amendment, " that the not a nect him, nor would be beturned aside from his purpose by them. He concluded by moving, as an amendment, "that the oaths now required to be taken by Peers and by Members of that House, should be taken by Roman Catholics, before they were enabled to sit in Parliament."

Mr. Caleraft thought that the dangers apprehended by the Hon. Member were not likely to arise, for Catholics, like Protestants would be governed by their passions and their interests, and they, in common, had too much at stake to wish to overturn the Constitution. When it was said, there was danger in granting the Claims, he would ask, was there no danger in suffering things remaining as they were—the Protestant mind was ripe for the change. The Speaker admitted, that the exclusion of the Catholics was a great evil that could not be justified without adequate reason. The framers of the Bill recognized the principle of exclusion from holding ecclesiastical and judicial offices connected with the administration of the laws affecting the Established Church—to ensure the permanency of the laws affecting the church. Catholics should be excluded from Parliament. Supposing they were allowed seats in Parliament, he did not see why they were to be excluded from the administration of the laws affecting the church, if they could with safety be allowed to frame them. He objected to the administering two oaths, and the more so, as the more rigorous oaths were received for the Posterium. reserved for the Protestant. He did not think the proposed concession could be made with safety to the Constitution, and therefore should vote for the amendment.

Mr. Canning was of opinion, that the amendment went to strike at the most vital point of that measure, which in its progress, had received the sanction of the House—it went to take away the most valuable part of the boon. The Right Hon. Gent. then proceeded to consider the claims of the Catholics to seats in Parliament, and asked what danger was to be apprehended from foreign connexion or foreign allegiance thei were none in existence, and therefore the disqualifications ought to fall with the cause from whence they arose. The exclusion from Parliament had existed for 260 years, during which time Peers were not excluded till the reign of Chark when symbols of disaffection appeared among the Catholic Nobles, and then they were excluded. He wished a reason to be assigned why they were not excluded before. Let Honorable Members who opposed the measure answer him-it was safe to the Constitution they should remain in possession of their rank and power, it was safe they should be allowed to sit in Parliament. As to the Commons, an Hon. Member seemed to think, that as soon as the door was open there was such a body of Catholics waiting in the Lobby, that this many headed Catholic monster would rush in and crush them altogether. There were but seven Peers, and surely this number could not endanger the safety of the state. It was said the Commons would carry their views by voting with either party; supposing 100 members were returned to the lower House, could, as was apprehended, these members carry their object by physical force; if force was likely to be resorted to, it would not be in that House, and therefore to calm those ebuiltions which might hereafter break out, it would be better to admit them. He knew of no authority which could sanction any of the clergy in coming to this House, and demanding that their claims should be enforced, or to tell the House that they would not submit to their exactments. He cared not if Dr. Milner came there roaring in one of his own bulls, the House would not heed him. He concluded with calling upon the House to agree to the Bill as it stood, and to reject the amendment.

Mr. Bright supported the amendment, as did Mr. II. Davis. Sir T. Acland thought greater danger was to be apprehended in refusing to concede that, which ultimately must be granted. Sir F. Blake strongly advocated the claims.

Mr. Grattan supported the claims. The House bad to con-sider whether the Roman Catholics of Ireland were not subject to heavy restrictions and laws, which were a disgrace to Chris-to hearly restrictions and laws, which were a disgrace to Curistianity, as well as to Humanity.

The Committee then divided—For Mr. Bankes's amendment, 211—Against it, 223—Majority, 12.

The Committee afterwards reported progress.—Adjourned.
TUESDAY.

The Newington Select Vestry Bill, was recommitted, on the motion of Mr. H. Sumner, the Standing Orders of the House on the second reading of the Kent Coal Meters Bill, Mr. Caleraft opposed it, and moved "that it be read a second time this day six months"—this motion was carried, and the Bill is

Dr. Lushington obtained leave to bring in a Bill, to exclude certain high judicial characters from sents in that House, viz-the Lord Chancellor of Ireland, the twelve Judges, the Master of the Rolls, and the four Irish Masters of Chancery.

Lord J. Russell postponed his motion for a Bill to remedy corrupt practices in Boroughs, until after Easter.

Previous to the House going into a Committee on the Roman-Catholic Bills, some conversation ensued with respect to the state of mind of the Catholic Prelacy and Clergy on the sub-ject. It was stated, that Friar Hayes was banished from Rome by order of the Pope, for immoral conduct while residing in one of the convents; the Prior of the convent was examined at home, and he stated, that his dress and conduct was so scanda-lous, as to call for the interference of the Police.

In a Committee on the clause which excludes Roman Ca-tholics from the offices of Lord Chancellor, Lord Lieutenant, and the higher offices in the State,

Mr. Peel moved that the exclusions should be extended to the Privy Council and the Bench. By the Act for securing the Protestant Establishment, a King who should become a Papist, forfeited his right to the Crown; and his subjects were absolved from all allegiance: it was right, therefore, that Parliament should accordingly provide that his advisers should not be Cathoshould accordingly provide that his advisers should not be Catholics. In his opinion, there would be less danger to be apprehended from a Catholic King, surrounded by Protestant Ministers, than a Protestant King surrounded by Catholic advisers. The Bill of Rights provided that the responsible Ministers of the Crown should fot be Roman Catholics. He would askycould a Catholic, according to his heart and conscience, advise the King to educate his children in the Protestant faith. The Frivy Councillor would be liable to be punished, if he gave his advice in favour of Catholic education. He moved, that the words "or to be of the Privy Council," be added to the clause excluding them from certain offices. the clause excluding them from certain offices.

Sir J. Newport could not understand why Roman Catholics should be excluded from the Privy Council, unless all persons not in communion with the Church of England were to be excluded. In other countries, where no invidious distinctions existed, and where the establishments were Protestant, viz. Denmark, &c. the utmost harmony prevailed between Protesbennark, &c. the utmost harmony prevailed between Protestants and Catholics, the latter being admitted to enjoy the highest offices and privileges. He did not know what end would be answered by excluding Catholics from the Bench.

Sir J. Niekall supported the amendment, because he looked to domestic security. He thought the present measure would sow discord and disunion. But the most pressing danger was that which impended over the ecclesiastical establishments. At the present moment, if because the House necelling to At the present moment, it became the House peculiarly to guard against any innovation, which could lessen the support and countenance of the Protestant Establishment.

Lord Castlereagh ucknowledged the spirit of candour and frankness with which the discussion had been carried on. He felt that this measure ought not to be passed against the opinion of the Protestants, but he was of opinion also that this amendment was only calculated to keep alive the differences between the two sects, without any good objects being effected. With respect to the endowments of the Catholic Clergy, it was one thing to establish a particular religion, and another to bestow on one which already existed, a qualified endowment. He agreed with his Right Hon. Friend that so long as the union existed the Protestant religion was treated to be protested to the protestant religion was treated. existed, the Protestant religion must remain the religion of Ireland. His Hon. and Learned Friend had assumed that be ministers and Judges, in short, with a whole State Catholic & Ministers and Judges, in short, with a whole State Catholic & when it was essentially Protestant. He (Lord C.) could not sexhow such a state of things could obtain. The number of Catholics were about half of the population, and with respect to property, forty-nine fiftieths were supposed to belong to Property. testants. He was confident that if Catholics were admitted to seats in Parliament, not more than four or five would be returned. With respect to the choice of the King in his Ministers, he could not conceive a greater monster than a Catholic Council surrounding a Protestant King; it would be keeping alive a spirit of disantisfaction which were better subsided. Besides, if a Catholic should be elevated to the Bench, his conduct would be narrowly watched; but he did not think such an ele-vation likely to happen, nor was it likely to meet a Catholic Chancellor; he should as soon expect the Crown to appoint a General in the Army to be Archbishop of Canterbury; the same reasoning would apply to the Colonies. If the present measure was carried, the Protestant and the Catholic would then have but one commoninterest.

Mr. Legh Kesk supported the amendment. Mr. Wetherell objected to the Catholic being allowed to sit in Privy Council, on account, principally, of the Privy Councillor having the privilege of advising the Sovereign, without committing his advice to paper; the law was formerly Sir J. Mackintosk supported the Bill.

Mr. Barham made some observations on the conduct of Mr. Hayes, confirmatory of the statements made by Mr. Carew and then the House divided on Mr. Peel's amendment.—For it 169-Against it, 168-The amendment was of course lost by a majority of 19.

During the exclusion of strangers, the Exclusion of Catholics from the office of Lord Chancellor of Ireland, was agreed to

The House divided on the question for preventing Catholics from holding the situation of Governor in any of the Colonies.

For the amendment, 120—Against it, 163.
The Committee then reported progress.—Adjourned.
WEDNESDAY.

The Irish Public Notaries, and the Beer Duties Bills were

Mr. Grenfell moved for the production of the returns of purchases of silver coinage made by the Government, since 1816, stating the quantity, prices, &c. and from whom pur-

He understood, that the Right Hon. Gent. in the autumn of 1819, had paid the Bank 1,500,0001. in part of the payment of 9,000,000l. due to that Company, which they took at the rute of 5s. 2d. per oz.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer admitted the fact, and said when the paper was produced, it would be seen how the silver came into possession of Government. The motion was agreed to.

Some conversation arose between Mr. Grenfell, Mr. Ellice, Mr. Peel, Mr. M. Fitzgeraid, Sir H. Parnell, Mr. Irving, &c. on the question for going into a Committee on the Bill for enabling the Bank to resume cash payments, which was adjourned till the following day.

On the question for going into a Committee on the Roman Catholic Ciergy Intercourse Bill,

Mr. C. Hutchinson opposed this Bill, which presented an absurdity on the face of it, and having too penal a tendency.

Lord Castleragh was the last man who would attempt to degrade the Catholic Clergy in the view of their brethren ubroad. He did not think the Bill penal. The Noble Lord animal werted upon the conduct of Dr. Milner and Friar Hayes, and was not disposed to surrender up the functions of Parliament, and to write until meeting of the Characteristics. ment, and to wait untill meetings of the Clergy took place, in order that Parliament should be guided by what this Catholic Ecclesiastical Parliament might choose to enact.

Dr. Phillimore agreed with the Noble Lord, that instead of being degraded and insulted by the provisions of this second Bill, the Catholic Clergy would be great personal gainers.

Mr. Pecl said the opposition to the measure, had been temperate and manly.

Mr. M. Fitzgerald concurred with the Noble Lord in his general principles, yet he did not think unnecessary restrictions on the consciences of Catholics should be imposed.

Mr. Canning denied that the present measure was an inflic-on upon the Catholic Clergy. Was the House to be teld that tion upon the Catholic Clergy. Was the House to be teld that after making so many concessions, they were to be met by the schisms among the Catholic body. If it should be attempted to abstruct any of the chauses from the Security Bill, he would vote for rejecting it, as a fraud upon the country, with as much sincerity, as he had supported it in its commencement.

After some observations from Sir Geo. Hill, Mr. Martin

(Gulway) Mr. Baring, and Mr. Rice,
Mr. P. Moore said, that but for him this Bill would not have been before the House.
The House then went into the Committee.

Mr. Baring proposed an amendment, imposing the oath upon all persons who shall "hereafter be called the functions, &c." instead of those "now performing, &c."

Mr. Goulburn opposed it.
Mr. Hynn suggested to make the period "four months" after the passing of the Act. The clause thus amended was agreed to.

Mr. Ellis proposed a clause, the effect of which, was to exclude Catholic Clergymen from sents in the House of Commons. He considered that part of the Bill, which imposed restrictions as one of the most solemn humbugs ever brought under the consideration of Parliament. This clause was

The Report was ordered to be received to-morrow .- Ad-

THURSDAY.

A petition was presented by Mr. Western from certain Mill-holders, in the neighbourhood of the Metropolis, praying that a small duty may be laid on foreign flour. It was ordered to be printed.

Mr. Curwen postponed his Husbandry Horse Tax, untill next

Thursday (5th April.)
The Irish Clerks Nisi Prius Bill was passed.

The Irish Clerks Nisi Prius Bill was passed.

Mr. Hobhouse presented a petition signed by 2,700 Law Clerks in the City of Westminster, complaining of the injuries which the new invention of lithography printing inflicted on them. The Hon. Member, however said, he could not support the petition. It was laid on the table.

General Gascoyna presented a petition from Liverpool, complaining of the Bill for altering the mode of striking the Corn verages, as being injurious to the manufacturing interests. Mr. Birch, Mr. Sykes, Mr. Calcraft, Mr. Bright, Mr. Baring, &c. were inimical to any alteration in the mode, for the distress of the manufacturers was very great, and said however cheap bread might be, they could not afford to buy sufficient. Mr. Curwen said the reason was, because it was too cheap.

Mr. Western, Mr. Lushington, Mr. Gladstone, made some

Mr. Western, Mr. Jashington, Ar. Gradstone, made some observations, and the petition was laid on the table.

Mr. Eroker gave notice, that he should on Tuesday next, submit a motion to the House on a question of privilege, relative to the oath taken by Members of Parliament before the

In answer to a question from Sir M. W. Ridley, the Chancellor of the Exchequer said, it was his intention to propose a renewal of the Assessed Tax Compensation Act.

Mr. Hume moved a variety of resolutions, with a view show the vast expences which entailed on this country by the detention of Napoleon Buonaparte in the Island of St. Helena. He stated the Estimate for 1818 as follows:—For the Staff, 24,0001.—Military and Civil Establishment, 193,6741.—Incideats and contingencies, 57,0001.—Expense of Vessels for provisioning the Island, about 50001.—Naval Establishment, 160,0001. - making, in the whole, an expense of 450,0001. He contended that this country ought not to be at the whole

The Chancellor of the Exchequer had no objection to the motion; the detention of that person could not be done more economically.

Major-Gen. Wilson entered his most solemn protest against the Act. His detention was contrary to every feeling of generosity and humanity, if they considered how he was separated from his family, and even from his child. He had placed himself voluntarily under our presection; if he had not done so, he might have escaped, for a vessel was waiting to convey him to

Mr. Croker denied that this country had been guilty of a himself on us for protection—the fact was, that he had held a council of war on the question, whether there was any chance of escape from the English cruizers? the result was, it was advisable to surrender to the English officers, rather than risk the chance of an engagement at sea, in attempting to escape. He was told no treaty could be made with him; - and if the Hon. Officer should bring the question forward, he (Mr. C.) would shew that Buonaparte had been hunted into the toils, that he had made every attempt to escape, and that England, throughout the transaction, stood free from reproach.

The metion was then agreed to. A return of the number of ships of war employed in this service was then ordered.

On the motion of Mr. Hume, an Account of the Debt due from Government to the East India Company on the 1st of May, 1820, was ordered to be laid before the Rons understood there were many disputed items, particularly the charge of 960,000l. for conveying the troops to Egypt.

The Chancellor of the E.chequer admitted the fact, and said that puricular sum had been disallowed by the House.

On bringing up the Report of the Catholic Bill, Sir T. Lethbridge said his objection to the principle of the measure remained unchanged.

After further observations from Lord Nugent, Mr. Martin,

Mr. Abercrombie, and Mr. Hutchinson, the Report was rend.

Mr. Croker considered it a hard-hip on the Protestant that he was compelled to take an oath denying that the Pope had he was compered to take an oath denying that the rope said may spiritual authority in the realm. After so many Acts of Parliament had been passed, in which a mitigated spiritual authority of the Pope was admitted, he put it to the House whether the oath of supremacy, in its present language, should be allowed to continue. He submitted, it was better that the same oath should not remain with two meanings. As the House advanted the avalanceion, he would confidently ask the House adopted the explanation, he would confidently ask the House, whether the oath could be conscientiously taken by a Protestant? He should therefore move, that the words "Roman Catholic," immediately preceding the word "subject" should be left out.

Lord Castlereagh said, with respect to the oath as it regarded the Protestants, be could not think that any explanation was necessary after a practice of 300 years under the old oath. He saw nothing in the Oath of Supremacy to which a conscient prefer the common mode in both cases.

After some discussion, Mr. Croker withdrew his amendment until the third rending of the Bill.

A Clause was then agreed to, allowing Roman Catholics the right of voting at Parish Meetings.

Mr. Croker then moved his Clause for making provision for the Roman Catholic Clergy, which he considered of vital importance. He saw nothing that could be urged against it on the ground of expediency, nor did he think the provision ought to be a Government measure. He was of opinion that it would not endanger the success of the Bill elsewhere. Yet all these points had been urged against his proposition. He, therefore, (as it would be proposed to make a suitable provision for the Clergy) could not see any reasonable ground of objection.

Lord Castlereagh thought this was not the favourable time for his Han. Friend to bring forward the measure, but brought forward at the proper time, the House would no doubt have every wish to make the Catholic Clergy comfortable. He objected to considering this measure as an article of treaty, and thought it would come with a better grace recommended by the Crown. He owed it to the Catholic Clergy to say, that they had respectfully and delicately declined such a proposition in

Mr. Croker consented to withdraw the clause.

The Bill was then ordered to be read a third time on Monday. The House went into a Committee on the Acts relating to the Duties on Timber, and moved, that the opinion of this Committee, that certain Duties payable on Baltic Timber do cease and determine, with a view to alter the duties and replace them by others.—The Resolutions were agreed to.

FRIDAY On the motion of Sir M. W. Ridley, the Grampound Witness Indennity Bill was read a second time, and committed for Monday next.

The Innkeepers Bill was read and passed.

Sir J. Neuport presented a petition from Michael Lacy, one of the principal Clerks in the Court of King's Bench in Ireland, stating, that the remuneration for the duties of his reland, stating, that the remuneration for the duties of his office had been calculated by the Commissioners of Inquiry at 3,600l, upon the average of the last three years, divided between himself and his father; that the said remuneration resulted from fees paid by the attorneys out of their profits; that the pending Bill for the abolition of fees in the Courts of Justice in Ireland omitted all compensation to the petitioner, and he prayed the House to direct an adequate compensation to be made to him for the loss of his office.—He also presented a similar petition from Wm Stavard a clark in the sented a similar petition from Wm. Stewart, a clerk in the same establishment.—Ordered to be printed.

On the motion of Mr. F. Robinson, the second reading of the Corn Average Bill was postponed to Monday the 9th of Mr. Ellis presented a petition from J. Farrel, one of the Clerks in the Court of Exchequer, praying compensation.

The Irish Treason Bill was ordered to be read a third time on the 6th of April.

Mr. Martin moved the second reading of the Capital Crimes Defence Bill.

The Solicitor-General opposed the motion. His experience in the Courts of Justice informed him that the Bill, if pussed into a law, would operate greatly to the prejudice of prisoners.

The Attorney-General thought that the Bill ought not to be sunctioned by the House, since no inconvenience was stated to result from the present system of criminal trials.

The motion was negatived without a division.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer moved the order of the day for the House to resolve itself into a Committee of Supply.

day for the House to resolve itself into a Committee of Supply.

Mr. Hume moved a series of Resolutions, which were in substance as follows:—That the total charge of Staff Officers (Civil) for Great Britain and the Colonies, exclusive of Ireland, was, in 1792, 33,7941., in 1821, 117,7101., being an increase of 83,9181. That the charge of Public Departments, belonging to the Military Establishment for Great Britain and the Colonies, exclusive of Ireland, amounted, in 1792, to 45,9531., and in 1821, including fees, to 133,1771, being an increase of 87,3841.

The Resolutions were negatived without a division

The Resolutions were negatived without a division

Mr. Hums proposed another Resolution, pledging the House to take the subject of public saluries into consideration, with a view to reduce them.

The House then divided, there appearing—For going into the Committee, 50—Against it, 29—Majority, 21.

The House having gone into the Committee, the first question was upon a vote of 105,0451. 5s. 10d. for the Staff Establishments of Great Britain, and all other foreign parts except India, for the year.

Mr. Hume said, that in the various branches of this Department the greatest savings might be made. The first item to which he called the attention of the House, was the immense pay of the Commander-in-Chief. His Royal Highness the Duke of York received 161, 8s. n day, a salary by much too large in the present embarrassed state of the country. It was in the Staff that this reduction could be made with the greatest propriety. To begin with the head, then, he proposed that the pay of the Commander-in-Chief, should be lowered to nine guiness a day, or about 2,0001. a-year. The next reduction would be in the office of an individual who was not known at all before the last war, and who now had the enormous splary of 2,000l. n-year he meant the Secretary to the Command in-Chief, whose office was a mere sinecure. He then propose to reduce the Department of the War Office-the pay Commander's-in-Chief's Secretary to 1,0001, a-year-tie Chaplain Generalship, one Deputy Assistant General—he objected to five permanent district assistants to the Quarter Master General—to two Inspectors General of Ciothing; and proposed to abolish the office of Caaplain General, then with some other reduction, he proposed to move, that instead of 105,9451. 5s. 10d. the expenses of the Staff be reduced to 85,0001.

Colonel Wood said the labours of the Military Secretary were considerably greater now than before the army was reduced, in consequence of the extensive correspondence with the officers on half-pay, whose claims multiplied the business of the office. He then defended the Inspectors General, and said they had several duties to perform, one of which was, that at the half yearly inspections of the Commander-in-Chief they had to go among the privates and listen to their complaints, if any they had to make, and report the same to the Commanderin-Chief.

The House then divided, the numbers were-For the Amendment, 61—Against it, 116—Majority, 55.

Lord Palmerston next moved that the sum of 25,3821. be granted for the Staff of Ireland for one year.

Sir II. Parnell objected to this as a most exosbitant sum for such a purpose, and complained that the Staff of Ireland was large beyond all proportion. He should therefore propose as an amendment, that the sum of 20,4291, be substituted for the sum proposed by the Secretary at War.

Lord Palmerston said, it was the intention of Government to reduce the office of Lieutennu-General of the forces in Ire-land; but at present the thing could not be done without great inconvenience, on account of the army in Ireland being scattered over so large a district; and it was recessary that a General should constantly reside in Dublin, where he was subject to very heavy expences. He said, that the question upon which he very many expenses. He said, that the question upon which he and the Hon. Member were at issue, was less upon details than general principles. The question was in effect, whether the system of 1702 was an eligible one to be acted upon in 1821. He (Lord P.) contended, the army of 1792, so far from being a guide for the present conduct of Government, ought rather to be a bencon to warn them from following its example. The army in 1792 was not only unfit for the present state of this country, as viewed with reference to the other States of Europe, but unfit even for that period itself. With regard to the particular objections of the Hon. Member, he would say, that the increase in the salary of his Royal Highness the Commanderin-Chief was n t made to him from any personal considerations, but would have been given to any other individual filling the situation, and no one, who looked at the increase in the salary of the Commander-in-Chief, would say that his services had been over-rated, when he was still only on a facting, as to salary, with one of the Secretaries of State.

Colonel Davis further suggested that reductions might be made which would in some measure assimilate things more to what they had been in 1792.

Mr.G. Bennett agreed with the gallant Officer who had just sat down, that the salary of the Commander-in-Chief was not so large as to bear any reduction. The services of that Illustrious Personage were such as that he could not concur in any proposition tending to reduce his salary.

The Committee then divided.—For the Original Resolution, 140—For the Amendment, 53—Majority, 87.

While strangers were excluded from the gallery a second division took place: the numbers were 134—and 66.

Lord Palmerston next moved to grant the sum of 133,0001. for allowances to Officers in Great Britain, which agreed to.

The next Resolution proposed was, that a sum not exceeding 28,0001, he granted to His Majesty, to defray the expences of the Paymaster General's department.

Mr. Hume thought the salaries of the Officers of the Establishment were altogether too large; he therefore moved, that the sum be 23,7281 instead of 28,0001.

Sir C. Long contended, that the duties of the Pnymaster-General's department were very heavy, and many of them of a nature which could not be performed by the Bank. He assured the House that there was not one clerk in the office whose services were not necessary.

Sir C. Long and Mr. Hume explained, and strangers were ordered to withdraw; but we understood no division had taken place on the motion that the Report be received on Monday, the House divided. The numbers were—For the motion, 25—Against it, 20—Mrjority, 5.—Adjourned.

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

The King has sent a donation of one hundred guineas to the Drury-lane Theatrical Fund.

The Lords of the Treasury have issued instructions for discontinuing the practice of permitting wines and other articles, belonging to private individuals, to be sent home in transports from foreign stations.

On Thursday, the ceremony of laying the first stone o parish church, in Henley-fields, near the High-street, Poplar, took place. The Bishop of London performed the ceremony; Messrs. Byng and Whithread, the Members for Middlesex, the Rev. Dr. Rudge, and several other public characters, were

On Wednesday, the Society for Propagating Christian Knowledge in the Highlands of Scotland, held their Auniversarv at the Freemason's Tavern. Subscriptions, to a large.

The African Institution held their anniversary on Wednesday. The Report of the last year's proceedings was read; it contained an account of the flourishing state of Sierra Leone, and other settlements; and noticed the conduct of the Dutch Governor of Malacca, who had declared that the children of people of colour should be free.

The Anniversary Festival of the Royal Humane Society v/as held on Wednesday, at the City of London Tavern; the Pauke of Northumberland in the chair. The gentlemen who received honorary medals, for saving many lives, were, Capt. Mairryatt, R. N. Capt. Earl, Mr. J. Mann, Mr. J. Gray, Mr. J. Sairling, Mr. C. J. Laisne, Mr. W. W. Coz, and Mr. W. W. Varker.—

The gallery was filled with ladies. "The King," was received with the most rapturous applause. The total number of persons restored to life since the formation of the Society, amounts to 20,320. The individuals saved from death since the last meeting, were introduced, and walk A round the room. The sight was truly affecting.

The Mendicity 2006ety held their third, anniversary dinner on Monday, at the London Tavera. The Duke of York was in the chair. Since the formation of the Society, three years since, 100,000 beings have been relieved more or less. Constderable additions were made to the funds in the course of the eventue, by donations.

On Friday morning, Mr. Bondman, the King's Messenger, was sent off with dispatches to the King at Brighton.

Mr. Hardenberg arrived yesterday at the Foreign Office with disnatches from Lord Stewart at Vienna.

A Court of Alderman was held on Wednesday, when John Garratt, Esq. Aldermen of Bridge Ward, was introduced, and took his seat with the usual formalities.

The Committee on Agriculture continued its Sittings on Wednesday, and concluded the examination of Mr. J. Eliman, jun. and examined Mr. G. Webb Hall.

The Drury Lane Theatrical Fund held their anniversary dinner on Friday. The Duke of York in the Chair. The health of the King was received with three times three, and shouts of applause. In addition to the donation of 100 guineas sent by his Majesty, the Duke of York subscribed 501.—Mrs. Coutts, 501.—Mrs. Garrick, 201.

A Court of Directors was held at the East India House, on Wednesday, when Capt. T. M'Taggart, was sworn into com-mand of the ship Rose, consigned to Bengal direct. Piedmontese Gazettes to the 21st of March arrived yesterday; the only article of interest they contain, is a proclamation to the soldiers of the Regiment of Savoy, inviting them to declare for the King; their other contents had been anticipated by later arrivals.

Mesers. Howard and Gibbs's Meeting.

Yesterday the meeting for the appointment of assignees, ander this Commission, was held at Guildhall. The Court of Common Pleas was crowded long before the hour of meeting.

Mr. Haverland's claim again became a subject of discussion. Mr. H.'s agent now claimed to prove for 8,2701. against the Bankrupts' estate. Mr. H. held Policies of Insurance, on the life of the late Lord Kirkwall, to the amount of 8,000l. namely, 2,0001. in the Hope, 5,0001. in the Atlas, and 1,0001. in the Eagle. These sums were received for kim by the Bankrupts, as his agents, in December, 1820, together with 270l. cash from Lady Jersey. The Bankrupts afterwards re-presented that they had advanced this sum to Lord Foley for an annuity, and that the deeds were executed, whereas, it appeared, no such sum had been advanced to his Lordship for that purpose, or had any annuity deed been signed by him; and therefore he contended, he had a right now to prove against the Bankrupts' estate.

Mr. Montague, on behalf of a Creditor, opposed this claim.

Messrs. Howard and Gibbs did not dony that they had received this sum, and were, indeed, ready to admit the proof, but he had to oppose it on behalf of the creditors generally.

Mr. Haverland, jun. said he received a letter from Lord Foley some days subsequent to the time at which Mr. Gibbs represented the annuity deed to have been executed, in which his Lordship declared he had no knowledge of this transaction.

Mr. Gibbs was examined, and stated, that they had, for some time, been agents for Lord Foley, who; at the period of this transaction, was indebted to them considerably more than 80001. his Londship agreed to their raising 80001. and taking it in payment, and undertook to grant the annuity. Could not say that he ever mentioned Mr. Haverland to Lord Foley, and the state of the same time the same of transacting business for his most probably not: their way of transacting business for his Lordsbip was, to take a sum of money and an annuity deed at the same time, his Lordship executing the deed on receiving the money. Mr. Haverland never authorised them to advance the 80001. till they had the security.

The Commissioners said this last answer was decisive of the point. Mr. Haverland was entitled to prove against the estate of the bankrupts.

The creditors present proceeded to vote for assignees. Two lists were hunded round, one consisting of Messrs. Shaw, Carrol, and Herman; the other of Messrs. Davies, Campbell, and Wilkie.

Mr. Herman's name was afterwards withdrawn, and that of Mr. Duff inserted. The amount of creditors who signed for Campbell, Davies, and Wilkie, exceeded the sum of 18,700l.; but those who signed for Carrol, Shaw, and Duff greatly execcded that sum

The lists were then signed by the Commissioners, and the meeting adjourned.

COURT OF CHANCERY, Saturday.—Mastership of Queen?

College, Cambridge.—This morning, at the opening of the Court, Mr. Bligh informed the Lord Chancellor that it was not intended by the Attorney-General to re-argue the above case; but the plaintiffs now wished to know what arrangewas likely to be made respecting the costs.

The Lord Chancellor said, that under such circumstances, and after the decision of the Court, the costs must necessarily by defrayed by the house.

Strathmore v. Strathmore.—Mr Hart applied to the Court respecting the costs in the present case.

The Lord Chancellor thought that too much was required on account of the minor, from the Scottish estates. He therefore would suggest the expediency of letting the question, as it regarded costs, at present, stand over.
This suggestion was acceded to.

NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We have not heard from M.P.
We are obliged to "Incorrupta Fides" for the trouble he has taken. The man he alludes to is, with the whole of the party, too insignificant to notice.

J. S. may assure any of his sceptical friends, with great safety, that the Bill of Pains and Penalties against the Queen was read a third time in the House of Lords.

We think the Private Epistle from Brandenburgh House had better mathematics.

had better not be made public.

Tripheno Muggins is obscure; and the Parson and the Curate are obscure too: we otherwise should avail ourselves of her Letter, which is highly amwing. We do not see any good which could arise from owe mentioning that Mrs. Buck, the present Lady Erskine's aunt, and her orphan daughter, are applicants for relief from the perish of Richmond, in Surrey. We could do her no good, and it might, perhaps, be unpleasant to her venerable nophew-in-law; we therefore must omit noticing, the subject in any way in this Paper,

The Sermon sent to us by our friend H. P. Esq. we have a shall take it into consideration next week.

B. G.'s communication came to hand. We confess, that upon subjects of temporary interest, we think all hits ought to be made at the moment: and B. G.'s report came to long after the Sush.

A Correspondent begs us to ask Lord Rorington what he said about the Queen in Devenshire?

We are obliged to H. D. C. for his Letter. Ctrcumstances have occurred to draw Mr. Plunkett from his public duty, and us are quite ours H. D. C. will see the propriety of delaying any observations on his political conduct, till he shall again resume it.

them publicity. As to Skinner's case, we never heard of it, except from himself, in a letter to this Paper, some time

We must inform our Correspondents generally, that every article sent to us, which is not used, is destroyed, and that, therefore, we are unable to comply with the wish of contributors, to return their productions.

We feel grateful to Verux for his communication; the information we have received on that subject, from various marters, is highly flattering.

NEXT THURSDAY MESSALINA will appear.—To be had of Wright, Fleet-street; and Blackwood, Edinburgh.

CHRIST'S HOSPITAL.

THE CASE of a worthy and ingenious WORKING JEW-ELLER is humbly recommended to the Hen, the President and Governors of Christ's Hospital. He has a Wife and seven Children entirely depending on his industry. His eldest Son is a premising Boy, about seven years of age, and would do credit to the patronage of any benevolent Governor, who may happen to be disengaged. Particulars, which it is hoped would prave highly satisfactory, will be gladly contributed by J. Brasbridge, Fleet-street.

CALEDONIAN DUR'TS for the Piano Forte, by J. F. BUR-

CALEDONIAN DUE'TS for the Piano Forte, by J. F. BUR-ROWES.—No. 1 csatains, "Scots wha has wi' Wallace bled," and "Auld Lang Syne." Also, No. 10 of Caledonian Airs, with Variations for the Piano Forte, by the same Author. This Series comprises "Auld Robin Gray," "Tweed Shie," &c. &c.
Sold by Golding and Co. 29, Soho-square; Chappell and Co. 59, Bond-stree... &c.

GROVE HILL, CAMBERWELL, SURREY.
TO BE LET furnished, for Two Years, or SOLD, with immediate passession,

A Substantial and Modern-built VILLA, with Stabling and domestic Offices; handsome Greenhouse, well stocked with choice Vines; large and productive Garden; extensive Lawn and Shrubbery; Farm Buildings, and Meadow Land. The whole most tastefully laid out, in complete repair, and fit for the reception of a Family of the first respectability. The Property is within four miles of the four Bridges, commanding extensive and uninterrupted Views of Surrey, Kent, and Sasex.—Particulars and Tickets to view may be had by applying at the Office of Mr. D. R. Roper, Stamford-street, Blackfriar's Bridge.

A FRESH SUPPLY OF BALSORA SNUFF is Children and Modern and Mod

A FRESH SUPPLY OF BALSORA SNUFF.

THIS deliciously fragrant and most exhilarating SNUFF is held in the highest estimation by all sovereign princes and persons of rank in the Oriental Countries, being prepared from a species of subaces which is only successfully cultivated on the borders of a small river near Balsora, is the kingdom of Persia, the waters of which river communicate a peculiar fragrance to all the vegetable productions growing on its banks.

This highly esteemed Snuff is sold wholesale and retail, fer the Agenta, (Parsons and Co.) at No. 166, Fleet-street, in Canisters, at 2s. 6d., 9s., and 18s. each.—May be had, retail, of R. Bellin, 55, Coruhill; Hill, 402, Straml; and Oliddon, 42, King-street, Covent Garden.

PRICE OF STOCKS AT THE CLOSE YESTERDAY.

A great deal of business has been transacted during the last week in the different securities; various have been the accounts transmitted from the continent, and in such uncertain shapes, that the funds have been in a continued state of fluctuation. During the former part of the week advices were received of the Austrians having been ousted by the Neapolitans, which caused a temporary depression, but a rally took place, as the account was suspected to have been a stock-jobbing transaction. The news of the occupation of Naples by the Austrians, or at least of the latter being in the neighbourhood of Naples, was received in the City with great satisfaction by a certain party who have been all along speculating for a rise in the funds, and the Jews who had appeared for some days much chagrined at the apparent decline of the public securities, appeared on 'Change again with smiling faces. Consols have been done in the course of the week as low as 69<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>, and as high as 72<sup>7</sup>/<sub>4</sub>, indeed for a few minutes on Thursday, they were at 73 for the Account. They opened yesterday norming at 72½ for Money, and 72½ for the Account; but great efforts were made to cause a depression by an interested party, who wish to attach some discredit to the news of the successor of the Austrians: they have partly succeeded; the now arrival of any express from Paris has also aided their intentions, and the funds fell in the forencon to 71½ for Money, and 72½ for the Account. The continuation from the present to the next account (May) is at about ½ per cent. Consols left off yesterday at 72 for Money; and 72½ for the

Consols ..... 72 7 7 7 Exchequer Bills ... par 2 p
Ditto Acct .... 72 7 2 7 India Bonds .... FRENCH FUNDS.

5 per ct. Div. 21 Mar. 77-60 | Bank Sh. Div. Mar. 21,1470 | Recon. Div. 21 Mar. . . 94 | Ex. Lond. 1m 25-55 Recon. Div. 21 Mar. . .

THEATRE ROYAL, COVENT-GARDEN. Menday, Venice Preserved.—Tuesday, a Favourite Opera.—Thursday, a Tragedy, in which Miss Dance will perform. THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.

Monday, Artaxerxes.—Tuesday, the Duenna.—Thursday, Love in a Village.—Saturday, a New Farce, called Mistidcation. On the 5th of May will be published, Number 1, price 8d. to be continued every Saturday, THE JOURNAL OF LITERATURE. This Work will contain Reviews of new Books, Foreign as well as English; of new Musical Works; Criticisms on the Arts and the Theatre; Netices of all new Publications; of Discoveries and Inventions in Science and Mechanics; Advertisements on Literary Subjects; and a variety of every sort of information which can be acceptable to the man of taste and genius.

Published at the Office of "JOHN BULL," No. 11, Johnson's-court

A Monday's Edition, containing the latest News, the Stock List, the London Markets, and the State of the Country Markets by that morning's post, is published at Three o'clock.

JOHN BULL

LONDON, APRIL 1.

We have carefully collated all the intelligence we have been able to procure on the subject of the Neapolitan and Piedmontese revolutions. We have, in addition to the information they convey, been favoured with a private account from Italy, which goes entirely to corroborate the accounts of the success of the Austrians, who, we have every reason to believe, are actually in possession of Naples.

actually in possession of Naples.

Our Correspondent goes on to state, that the revolutionary movement in Naples was by no means una-

If Mr. Ex-Sheriff Parkins will enumerate the cases of perjury in witnesses, which ha states to be so common in hostile to it, and that, in its progress, many of those our Court of Justice, we will enquire into them, and gloss who had originally been employed in it had decembed. who had originally been employed in it had deserted.

No official accounts arrived yesterday from Italy, but Paris Papers were received to Thursday, the accounts they bring have been anticipated: they state that the King of Sardinia arrived with his family at Nice, on the 20th. He did not stop long, but went to Monaco. Letters from Modena and Parma state that there have been arrests of a marked description in those two cities for Carbonarism. An English squadron of eight ships of the line and some light vessels are in the road of Antibes—In the Chamber of Deputies on Wednesday, we find that the discussion was resumed upon the definitive regulation of the public accounts for 1819. General Foy, in speaking upon an amendment which he had proposed, contrived to introduce the subject of the conferences at Laybach and Troppau. "If," he observed: "I accused Ministers of anything, it would be of treason, for having participated in the plots at Troppau and Laybach." This expression produced a violent sensation in the Chamber. M. Castelbajac said, "I declare, in the face of France and of Europe, that my opinions are opposed to those of M. Foy. He talks of accusing Ministers for having taken a part in the conferences at Troppau and Laybach: and I, if I accused them at all, would do so, for not having acted on those occasions with the energy which becomes the Ministers of France!" After a few words from M. Sebastiani, who ridiculed the manner in whick General Foy had tacked, to a question of finance, a topic which so obviously did not belong to it, the regular discussion upon the matter before the Chamber was proceeded in.

THE most humorous thing done for some time by a dull man, appears by the Report of the Debate, to have been done by Major-General Wilson, in the House on Thursday night. The Major-General formally pro-tested against the detention of Buonaparte at St. Helena-and that, which if not so comical, is full as extraordinary, is, that he found another member, Mr. C. Hutchinson, ready to join him on the occasion.

With respect to the policy of detaining Buonaparte, it has been so long set at rest, that we certainly should not think it worth while to notice it, but that it strikes us, should our descendants ever hear Major-General wilson's name, and see his book, they will be considerably puzzled to believe, that he who laments the disgraceful confinement of the Illustrious Napoleon, and he who first gave publicity to the murderings of prisoners and the poisonings at Jaffa, are the same individual; surely, the Major-General must have followed the public taste, and forgotten his publication altogether.

The Major-General is, we believe, however, afflicted with a short memory—he forgets, it should seem, a promise he made to his constituents to vacate his sent if they were hostile to the Catholic Bills; we happen to know that the Major-General has been apprized of a numerous and respectable meeting of the inhabitants. of St. Saviour's parish, which was held on Tuesday, at which (with only two dissentient voices) petitions mainst the Bills were voted, to His Majesty and both Houses of Parliament,

We happen to know also that the Major General has written to some of his constituents, expressing his surprise at such " unchristian-like conduct," but making no allusion to the promise of vacating; wherein we think him, if not punctilious, at least prudent; for we venture to observe, that if he should be so delicately scrupulous so to redeem a pledge somewhat incantiously given, there would be very little chance of his reelection for the Borough of Southwark.

A report has been somewhat industriously circulated. within the last few days, that John Bull, having effected the purpose for which it was established, is shortly to be discontinued.

This rumour is wholly fulse. JOHN BULL was established for no specific purpose, but in support of the King and Constitution generally. We are as well aware as those who have raised the story, that John Bull has largely and powerfully contributed to bring the Queen to her proper level; but she fell under our lash incidentally, as being in open hestility to every principle of loyalty, morality, and good conduct. It is not, however, to be supposed that the radicals, reformers, or revolutionists, are to be eternally silenced, because one of their leaders has been exposed, disgraced, and degraded. The hydra will, doubtless, put forth some new head, and take perhaps a different shape altogether. JOHN BULL's purpose is to combat faction in ANY—in EVERY form in which it may assail the

The decided, the triumphant success of our first effort is little likely to induce us to discontinue our labours. Thousands and tens of thousands, even from the remotest corners of the empire bear testimony to the good we have done; and so long as we have life and strength left to devote to the service of our KING, so long will we zealously do the duty we have gratuitously and voluntarily imposed upon ourselves.

We are happy to info m our readers that the Royal Mercy has been graciously and justly extended to George England, a sailor in the preventive service, who was maltreated, disarmed, and assaulted in the execution of his duty at Hastings, against whom the Jury at Horsham found a verdict of wilful nurder.

Mr. Hughes Ball, whose immense fortune has long been the subject of conversation and envy, will next week lead to the

QUEEN'S VISITORS. (Printed and Published in "The Times" of yesterday.)

THE COUNTESS OF JERSEY!

THE COUNTESS GHEY!!!

Upon the former Lady, and her visit, we have already made a few remarks, we shall only notice, therefore.

THE COUNTESS GREY.

It is only necessary to observe, that this lady is the wife of the EARL GREY, who, in the year 1807, drew up the Letter of reproach which was sent to the Queen in the name of the late King, at which time (long before she became acquainted with Bergami, Lord Guilford's Albanian Servant, or even young Sapio) the said EARL GREY advised that SHR the said Queen should be tried for High Treason as an ADULTERESS, and (as we believe) actually took the opinion of the Judges upon the case!!!

LIST OF CLERGYMEN WHO PRAYED FOR THE QUEEN.

REV. GRO. JONES BEVAN, Vicar of Crickhowel. REV. JOHN WALKER, Vicar, Hornchurch, Essex. RRV. —— PUGH, Redbourne, Herts, (Curate.)

REV. MARTIN BENSON, Dunstable, (Curate.)
REV. SERGROVE, Carlisle Chapel, Kenningtonlane, (Stopped by the Rev. Dr. D'Oyley, Rector of Lambeth, to which parish it is a chapel of ease.)

REV. WILLIAM JACKEON, Addingam, Cumberland, (Curate.)

REV. JAMES HENVILLE, Curate of Wimering and Widley, Hants. This person was Chaplain to the forces

Widley, Hants. I his person was Chaptain to the forces at Hilsea, and dismissed from that situation.

REV. W. CROWE, Rector of Alton Barnes, Wiltshire.

REV. MR. TYREMAN, Orange-street Chapel, Leicester-square.—This Gentleman prayed for the Queen LAST SUNDAY.—The Chapel is the property of Messrs. Morley and Walker, Army Accountement Makers, Piecadilly.

On the Church of Kingston upon Thames a white flag was hoisted, with the words "Innocence and Purity Triumphant."—Vicar, the Rev. Samuel Whittock Gandy.
REV. MR. FAWCETT, Bawtry, Yorkshire.

REV. GEORGE JOHN FREEMAN, Lamerton. REV. MR. SHEPHERD, Curate of Wrabness, near Harwich, up to a very recent period, prayed for the Queen.

(To be continued.)

PSALMODY.

Having (as we trust our readers will believe) nothing in view beyond the support of our Establishment, religi-ous as well as political, we do not hesitate to give a place to the following observations, from a correspondent, on a paragraph which appeared in JOHN BULL of the 18th

TO JOHN BULL. Sin—In your Paper for Sunday, March 18, 1821, you have introduced a paragraph relating to the "suit instituted against Mr. Cotterell, Minister of St. Paul's Church, Sheffield, for having introduced into that church a selection of Psalms and Hymns." You very justly observe, that " the declared object of that suit was to prevent the use of any other metrical compositions than those of Sternhold and Hopkins, and Tate and Brady." You then go on very correctly to state, that " the Judge of the Court, after a long and impart al hearing, recommended a reference of the whole matter in dispute to the Archbishop of York, to which Mr. Cotterell readily acquiesced, knowing from an interview with his Grace, that he was friendly to the use of hymns." You add, that "his Grace not only readily undertook the work of mediation, but prepared a readily undertook the work of medianon, our prepares a selection of Psalms and Hymns for public worship; and also presented a thousand copies for the use of the congregation of St. Paul's Church." In the conclusion of your paragraph you add, "it is hoped the manner in which this important suit has terminated, will be the means of essentially promoting the general good of religion, and the best interests of the Church of England!!!"

Generally approving, as I do, the sentiments contained in your Paper, it grieves me exceedingly to read such a paragraph as the above in it, from which I regret to say that I draw a directly different conclusion from the one you have done; and which, as recommending to general use a practice which I think pregnant with the most fatal consequences to the established faith, I hope you will permit me to make a few remarks upon; and that you will also oblige me by giving publicity to them in the columns of your widely circulated paper.

The first general remark I would submit to the consideration of the writer of the above paragraph is, that as the object of the suit in question was in reality to know how the law of the land stood on the subject of introdu-cing psalms and hymns, other than those of the anthorised Old and New Versions of the Psalms of David, it was surely the most absurd thing in the world to refer the arbitration of that very important point to the Archbishop of York, who was known to be friendly to the use of such other psalms and hymns, and who, consequently, was a prejudiced arbitrator, and ought not, therefore, to have undertaken the office.

Secondly, if the Archbishop of York had been really as impartial as he ought to have been, he was, on that supposition, not the proper officer to determine such a point. The person who sat as Judge in the Consistory Court, who, by the bye, was the Archbishop's son, ought, all prejudice aside, to have pronounced what was the law of if the case; and whether, by the ecclesiastical laws of this realm, either an incumbent, or any part of his parishioners, were or were not at liberty to introduce other than the authorised Old and New Versions of the Psalms of David into the Church. This, Sir, is what ought to have been done—this is what was not done-and most dangerous consequences are in my opinion likely to proceed from the omission.

Thirdly, the Archbishop's mode of settling the business, by determining not only the propriety of admitting Psalms and Hymns, other than those of the Old and New Version of David's Psalms, was directly contrary to law, and pregnant, as above stated, with most dangerous consequences. It was contrary to law, because the Clergy of the Establishment have repeatedly sworn to support and maintain the doctrines, &c. of the Church of England, as by law established, against all innovation and strange doctrines; of which the practice of introducing these new Psalms and Hymns is a direct violation. It is pregnant with incalculable mischief, because if any innovation whatever become countenanced and supported by such high authority as that of the Archbishop of the province, it seems impossible to draw any line where it shall stop. Hence, therefore, doctrines, in the shape of Hymns, &c. &c. not only may be, but to my certain knowledge have actually been already introduced into several churches in the diocese of York, repuguant to the pure doctrines of the Established Church; and in time such others may be introduced as are utterly subversive of its fundamental doctrines. And all this by the authority and active inter-ference of the Archbishop of York.

Fourthly, you will see the utter impossibility of my agreeing to your conclusion, that in any view whatever it is possible that the manner of the determination of this important suit "can be the means of essentially promoting the general good of Religion, and the best interests of the Church of England."

When I again repeat to you that I have personally known instances where the introduction of new and strange Psalms and Hymns have produced already very grievous mischiefs; and, in my opinion, much greater, and more serious evil consequences must necessarily and unavoidably proceed from the continued use of them, of which, if required, it would be easy to name instances, perhaps you will abate somewhat of your present favourable opinion of these important innovations; and I hope you will be induced to agree with me, that it is not only safer and more legal to abide strictly, in these times of innovation and increasing secession from the Established Religion, in our regular parish churches, to the use of the authorized New and Old Version of the Psalms of David, than either to introduce ourselves, or permit those under our controul and influence to introduce, the strange Psalms and Hymns above alluded to. As to the Archbishop of York's conduct, in being instrumental, and in giving the sanction of his high authority, to innovations of the kind we are now contemplating, his Grace certainly had not been aware of the consequences which cannot fail to proceed from such sanction as he has given to the innovating spirit of the times thereby. I would humbly hope, and you may be assured that it is the prayer and wish of great numbers of his Grace's clergy, in the diocese of York, that he would reconsider the step he has taken—seriously reflect on the important consequences which must grow out of it;—and if he should find, before it be too late, that he has dangerously committed himself, he would retrace his erring steps, ere it be out of his power so to do; and repair the mischief he is likely to do to the Church of England, though I believe very undesignedly on his Grace's part.

In conclusion, allow me, Sir, to hope that you will excuse the observations contained in this letter—that you will give them a serious and patient perusal—and that you will honour them with a place in the pages of your Paper, which will greatly oblige, your constant reader, and well-wisher, ORTHODOXUS.

March 23d, 1821.

TO JOHN BULL.

SIR,-As I believe few persons, even of those who without a word of argument, are setting aside the declaration against Transubstantiation, know what the extent-of that doctrine really is, or see fully the consequences which follow the reception of it, I beg you to insert in your Paper, the following literal translation from a book of the first authority among the Roman Catholics:—

"The substance of the bread and wine in the Secrement does not remain after consecration. It is truly, really and substantially the body and blood of Christ, and there is made a conversion of the whole substance of the bread into the body, and of the whole substance of the wine into the blood: which conversion the Catholic Church calls Transubstan-

"This is the doctrine still taught, for their church is held to be infallible, and cannot be wrong or vary: and all who hold the contrary to this, they condemn, reject, and anathematize, as incapable of salvation.

A PROTESTANT MINISTER.

The following curious inscription is on a monument at Ben-

M: S:

To the pious Memory
of Ralph Quelche and Jane his wife,
Who slept of together in 1 | Shed by ye space of 40 years,
Now sleepe | together in 1 | State of the fell asleepe Anno Dmi | 1629 | being aged | 63 | yearls |
She | fell asleepe Anno Dmi | 1629 | being aged | 63 | yearls |
ye New Inn twice built at | M: S:

r son being liberally bred in ye University of Oxon thought himself bound to erect this small monument of {their} piety towards {God them.

ORIGINAL POETRY.

DIALOGUE.

With heat of Eastern skies opprest, Our Princess shar'd a sofa's rest: But, now-ber pride bath fall'n so flat, She rests alone upon a MAT.

-Full well, I know, your Worship's head Is soft as any feather-bed; Yet, here, this boasting will not pass:-Her Mar is but a palli-Ass.

CATHOLIC EMANCIPATION.

Tune-" St. Patrick's Day in the Morning."

A plague on these Papists, they'll make such a pother, When once they've concerted their Bill to an Act, They'll always he teazing for something or other, Concessions no quiet will purchase; What though we give them Army-Navy-What though we give them Law and State; We ne'er shall dissuade 'em.

Till Judges we've made 'em ;

And, when they're appointed, and duly anointed, Be-wigg'd, and be-rob'd, with a Catholic oath, They'll tell us, that still they're oppressed-disappointed, And must have a touch at our Chunches.

It is not just simply the sitting in Parliament, Ever can satisfy suitors like these;

The same sort of favour, GUISCARD to great HARLEY meant, Papiste would grant to the nation.

Can we believe their mild avowals-Can we believe their qualified oaths-

Don't we remember

The fifth of November.

With PIERCY, and CATESBY, the Parliament Gates by, And TESMOND, TOM WINTER, and GARNET, and FAWKES, And DIGRY, and ROOKWOOD, who all lost their pates, by Their genius for assassination.

Trust not, my friends, to their cringing and lowliness: (Much like the Queen's in her note to the King) Set them once free, and for praise from his HOLINESS,

England's tranquillity's bartered. Then, with their signs, and shrines, and shrivings,

Starving on fish, and stews, and eggs, With vespers and matins,

And Saints in rich satins,

They'll touch up their Lordships of DURHAM & WINCHRETER, LONDON, and ELY, and ARCHY of YORK; They'll light up their fires, and make their hot pinchers stir, England's poor Church will be martyr'd.

Every Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday, Well must we fast by the rules of the Church; What's meat on the former, is death on the latter day, He who eats mutton is undone:

Then, on our knees to Saints in volvet, Kissing the stumps they stand upon, Cutting strange capers,

And sticking up tapers, And, just as the vespers chime in with their merry ticks, Domine Francis drops in for a call;

And takes us to Smithfield, to see a few Heretics, Burnt for the glory of London!

Then, upon Sundays, and ev'ry church festival, Singing, and dancing, and op'ras, and plays, Will drive the folks mad, while the Priests, as the test of all, Give them a Holy ablution:

Protestant Parsons whipp'd and scoff'd at, Quakers and Methodists thump'd and ston'd,

A night-joke to dish up, They'll broil you a Bisnop,

And then pay their Priest; for, in their road to Heaven, gence Serve them as well as at Knightsbridge or Kew; His Rev'rence sends off to Rome, two and sevenpence, Home comes a full absolution!

All this has occurr'd, and been found rather troublesome-MARY and JAMES had a taste for the thing; And though, in these times, clever speeches may hubble some, Turn to Old History's pages.

Read about RIDLEY, CRANMER, HOLDGATE, Grey-beaded LATIMER, FERRAR, and HAUK,

With persons of honour, Like GARDNER and BONNER; And then let us ask, why we seek alteration In laws, which have yielded us quiet and peace,

Or fly in the face of a wise Reformation, The boast of our country for ages?

Ask Mr. MADOCKS, OF HENRY BATE DUBLKY, Or any of those who have stopp'd out the sea, And created good land, where there nothing but mud law Expos'd to the swell of the ocean-

Ask them if, after all their trouble, All their expence, and all their care, They'd knock down their labours, To please a few neighbours,

And let in the flood, to destroy all their cabbages, Which they'd been toiling for years to keep out, And open the door to its roarings and ravages? Lord! how they'd laugh at the notion!

Then Britons, since well with your Creed has the law fitted, Why should you change what you'll hardly amend? Or, why, of the rights men have legally forfeited,

Make such a free restitution? Think of the whips, the stakes, the torture-

Think of the thumb-screws, faggots, and flames: The point they are winning,

Is but the beginning; Then this is the time for OLD BNGLAND's defenders To make a firm stand for the good of the cause; And, while we've a King-let no Popes, or Pretexplas, Lay hands on our dear Constitution!

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

On the 20th ult., a much more serious effort to excite disorder than that at Lyons, was made at Grenoble. The agita-tors spread a report that a courier had arrived with the news of the King's abdication; that the tri-coloured cockade had been hoisted, and the constitution of 1791 proclaimed. The guilty authors of the reports, and their accomplices, thought the mo-ment favourable to their designs, and that a partial rebellion might be excited. A tri-coloured standard was hoisted; some young people, and the most during of the agitators, had the audacity to utter cries of revolt. General Pamphile Lacroix put the garrison under arms. On the approach of the troops the seditions dispersed. Several were arrested. One of the most refractery, and who wore a tri-coloured cockade in his hat, was wounded by a sabre. On the evening of the 20th tranquillity was entirely restored.

The Austrian Observer says, that in the mouth of September next, another Congress of the Sovereigns of Italy will be held LAYBACH, March 15 .- The news of the late events in Piedmont arrived here by an Extraordinary Courier. Far from changing the plans concerted among the Allied Sovereigns, it has only served to confirm the resolutions which they have taken, and to fortify the measures which they had ordained, in order to save the social order of Europe from the dangers which menaced it. The two Emperors had a conference of some hours; after which their Majesties gave audience to several foreign Ministers. Couriers were immediately disputched; and it is known that the orders given were to form mmediately a new Austrian army of 70,000 men in Lombardy independently of the expeditionary army of Naples, and the Austrian garrisons which at this moment occupy the whole of the Lombardo-Venctian territory. At the same time, a Russian army of 100,000 men, which had already been directed to hold itself in readiness to murch, will receive orders to enter the Hereditary States, and to approach the theatre of war.

The Revolution which has just taken place at Turin, and the details of which have been transmitted to Congress by an able hand, throws great light upon the political question which has for so long a time engaged the different Cabinets of Europe, in laying open the authors, the object, and the effect of that catastrophe. In fact, it appears from documents arrived here respecting the conspiracy in Piedmont, that it has been, like the conspiracy of Madrid and Naples, arranged by a foreign faction. That it has been executed at Turin, as at Naples, by a handful of rebels, against the wish of the people, and in spite of the indignation of the great majority of the nation and army.

But that the instigators, the plans, the springs, the resources, and almost all the threads of that vest con-piracy are now known with the utmost exactness; and as it entered into the combinations of the conspirators to produce explosions in countries which appeared the least susceptible of them, and to strike at Governments which thought themselves the most secure from their enterprises, it is scarcely possible to think that any State can continue an indifferent spectator of the struggle which is about to commence between legitimate Monarchy and Rebellion; between a sage liberty, and the license of military despotism. If the crime which has been perpetrated at Turin were to remain inpunished, in the midst of the polished nations of Europe, all the ties which bind people to their Sovereigns, and nations to each other, would be broken; and civilization would soon sink under the strokes of internal seditions and fo-

The Journal of the Upper Rhine, of the 20th March, says "The Neapolitan troops which occupied the defiles of Rieti and Terni, so well known for the difficulties of the ground, and which had nushed corps forward to Magliano, Otricoli, Gesi, Terni, and Pesaro, have fallen back beyond their own frontiers without striking a blow. It appears that they have retreated as far as Aquila, and probably they will retire behind their defensive line, which extends from Pescara to Terracina and Fondi."

There appears to be still some uncertainty as to the course which the Duke de Genevois, in whose favour Victor Emmanuel abdicated, has resolved to pursue. The administration of the Government still goes on in the name of Prince Carignano; a decree by whom provides that every man in the kingdom from 18 to 50 inclusive, shall form part of the National Guard, and that the requisite arms, &c. shall be supplied to them.

It is reported that the Duke de Genevois, on arriving at Turin, on the 18th, refused to assume any other dignity than that of Regent, wishing to govern in the name of Victor Emmanuel.

Advices have been received from Turin, to the 21st instant inclusive.—On that day, the Austrian Minister at Turin had received a courier from Naples, bringing the information that the Nenpolitans had been defeated, and that Carascosa was, with the remains of his army, at Aversa, where he is said to have spiked all his gans. Aversa is situated between Capua and Naples, and about ten miles in advance of the latter city. The accounts mention further, that the Neapolitan capital was in a state of anarchy—that the Parliament was dissolved, and that cries of "Long live the King, without the Constitution?" were heard at Naples, at Gaeta, and other towns. The Regent was invested with unrestricted power, and his first act was to send one of his Generals to the King, his father, to invite his immediate return. General Pepe was nowhere to be heard of.

At Turin, at the date of these advices, a counter-revolution was expected to take place, and it was feared that some bloodshed would be the consequence. It is stated, that on the 19th a large mob proceeded to the Palace of the Prince de Carignano, and, with loud cries demanded that the Austrian Ambassador, Baron de Binder, should be sent away from Turin. The Prince replied, in the most positive terms, that he could not comply with the demand; that, besides being an act of injustee, it would be perfectly useless; that it would be considered as a declaration of war. The mob then proceeded considered as a declaration of war. The mob then proceeded to the residence of the Austrian Ambassador, which they evinced an intention of attacking. They called for his Excellency, but he had taken the precaution of removing to the Russian Ambassador's house. M. de Binder, after the attempt upon his house, demanded passports, which were granted him, and he left Turin for Milan. It was supposed that the leaders of the mob were not Piedmontese—they had plenty of money. The Portuguese Minister, M. de Leuhares, has General Giflenga had refused all the offers made him by the new Piedmontese Authorities, and had retired into the country. The greatest confusion prevailed at Turin, and the new order was supposed to be near its dissolution.

It was not only at Lyons and Grenoble that some seditious attempts were made, but easily put down; the troops evincing the utmost loyalty.

The fall of the French Funds is not imputed so much to the news from Italy as to the Law of Annuities, which has passe

the Chamber, and which has had a bad effect upon the Funds.

Advices have been received from Florence and Turin, of the 24th and 25th instant, and from Paris of the 28th. advices from Forence announce, that General Fardella has officially announced to his Sicilian Majesty the closing of the Neapolitan Parliament, the dissolution of the Army, and the submission of the Prince Regent to his Majesty.

The advices from Turin of the 25th inst. state, that Gen. Latour, who commands in the Novara, has railied great part of the Pirdmontese forces to the royal standard. The Minister of War, appointed under the new system, had endeavoured to obtain the support of the army by issning an Order of the Day on the 24th, saying, that he expected France would take part against Austria. This was immediately and officially contradicted. Prince Carignan, by proclamation, divested himself of the Regency, and joined the army at Novara, placing himself under General Latour's orders, as a junior The Prince left Turin on the same evening Lutour maintains the command in the Novarese, as his Majesty's Generalissimo.

Colonel Duvergier, tried for being an exciter of the distarbances which took place in Paris, during the debate on the Elec-tion Law, has been sentenced to five years' imprisonment, and a fine of 50 fr.

Letters from Milan, dated the 20th of March, state, that the Austrian and Russian Ministers are very anxious to leave Turin, but that the new Sovereign prevailed on them to remain, stating, that he was determined to take no part in remain, stating, that he was determined to take no part in the war.

The Moniteur of the 23d ult. gives the following extract from THE FIRST BULLETIN OF THE AUSTRIAN ARMY.

"General Pepe had several days since collected the greater part of his forces between Civita Ducale and Aquila. On the 7th he advanced with a body of 10,000 nen upon Ricti. Two columns of this corps manusured on the heights which form the valley of Ricti, and threatened to turn our advanced guard, which was posted there, under the orders of General Goppert, whilst a third column moved straight forward on the road from Civita Ducale to Ricti. These movements were judiciously conducted, and the points of attack well-chosen. Our light thoops suffered themselves to be approached, not yet believing that they were enemies who were marching towards them. We had expressed to them only the words of peace. A very brisk fire soon convinced us that we had mistaken their character. The battle then commenced: it was near the hour of neon; the enemy's attack became serious, and Lieut General Walmoden ordered his reserve, which was posted at Casa Vicentini, in the rear of Rieti, to march to the support of General Geppert. He directed an attack, with a very inferior force, upon the two columns which formed the enemy's wings, and they were drivon back into the mountains, notwithstanding all the advantage of the ground being in their favour. The contre column fell back upon Civita Ducale.

"The enemy abandoned that city at ten o'clock at night, after having pillaged it. Our advanced guard immediately occupied it, and our soidiers were received me deliverers.

"We lost in this action about 50 men killed or wounded. Captain Schmidt, of the 7th battalion of chasseurs, was killed. Captain Pfield, of the hussars of the King of England, and Lieut. Braun, of the 1st battalion of chasseurs, were wounded.

"During the batti-of Rieti, a body of 3000 men, that had assembled at Leonessa, advanced upon Pic-di-1 nuo, and attacked Col. Schneider, who wan posted there. He rep

NAPLES, March 11.—The Government has just published the

"Gen, Pepe having heard that the Austrians were concentrating themselves in force at Ricti, sent a strong reconnoiting party against them. An engagement cusued, and the Austrians were the attackers. Our soldiers sustained the attack for seven hours. The General, perceiving new reinforcements arrive to the Austrians, ordered a retreat. The enemy returned to their positions: they had many men killed. We had about 30 killed and wounded."

On the 5th at four in the afternoon, their Royal Highnesses the Duke of Calabria, and the Prince of Salerno, left this ca-

The Prince Regent's departure has been announced to the Parliament by the following Message, which has this day been posted in the streets:-

posted in the streets:—
"The events of the war reader my presence with the army necessary.
I am about to repair to it, and shall make frequent journies thither, dividing my time between the eamy and the capital, in order that the various affairs of the State may not be neglected.—During my absence, my mind is tranquil. Heave amidst you all that I hold most dear in the world—my beloved family. I confide in the affection which has been constantly shown me by the population of Naples, and in the excellent conduct and zeal of the National Guard, which has enabled me to render the troops of the line disposable for the defence of the country.—My confidence in the Ncapolitans is smillmited, in the same manner as I see that theirs in me is equally so. This reciprocal scatiment will certainly be justified.

The Prince Regent has appointed for his officers of Ord-

The Prince Regent has appointed for his officers of Ord-nance, the Duke of Casoli, the Prince of Allieno, the Prince of Torella, the Marquis Brancacchio, and Count Niscemi, and Count Partunna.—A Decree of the Prince Regent orders all landholders and farmers, as soon as they see the enemy advancing to remove every kind of provisions and forage behind the lines of the army. An account will be taken of their losses .- Our troops occupy Ascoli, under the orders of Camp-Marshal Verdinosi, and maintain good discipline, with which the Pontificial Authorities have expressed their satisfaction.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE EXTRAORDINARY GAZETTE OF FLORENCE.
FLORENCE, March 17.—After the publication of the Gazette

FLORENCE, March 17.—After the publication of the Grazette this day, we have received from Rome, dated the 15th, the following news, which appears to us of the greatest importance:

"On the evening of the 11th, three dispatches arrived at Naples to his Royal Highness the Duke of Calabria. The first, coming from the Abruzzi, announced, that Gen. Pepe had been abandoned by his troops, after his first rehounter with the Austrians; the second, that at Gaeta, the army had revoited against Gen. Bergani; the third, brought a request to his Royal Highness from Gen. Carascosa, to proceed immediately to Aversa, in order that he might have an interview with him. His Royal Highness thought it better, instead of going himself, to send Gen. Fardella, with the Minister of War. On the 12th, these two personages returned to the capital, and after having explained the state of things, the Parliament assembled, and ordered the Duke of Calabria to address a Measage to the King, in the name of the Assembly, to declare their respect and submission to his Majesty, and to invite him to return to the capital.—The town of Naples is quiet.

"Other letters from Terractina, dated the 14th. announce that the war is ended, and the Parliament dissolved, after having surrendered all their power into the hands of the Prince Regent,—Lieut.-General Fardella, dispatched by the Duke of Calabria, arrived on the 15th, at half-past nine in the morning, at Rome, and presented himself at the Palace Farnese, for the hope of finding the King there. Being informed that his Majesty was at Florence, he continued his journey for that capital."

"MADRID, March 15.—The sitting of the Cortes, of the 13th

MADRID, March 15. -The sitting of the Cortes, of the 13th instant, was principally taken up with discussing the impression and legend to be stamped on the coin of the realm. The Commission of Beaux-Artes had proposed to give to Ferdinand the VIIth the title of "Father of the Country." On the observation of M. Moreno Guerra, that this title had been given, in flattery, to Nero, Caligula, and Buonaparte, it was resolved that the coin should simply bear (not in Latin, but in Spanish) -" King of the Spains, by the Grace of God and the Constiintion."

HANOVER, March 20.—We learn now, by positive accounts from London, that His Majesty the King will visit his Hanoverian dominions. Her Royal Highness the Princess Augusta will arrive earlier, and take up her residence here. It is also said, that her Majesty the Queen Dowager of Wirtemberg will visit Hanover about the same time,

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

COURT OF CHANCERY, Morch 27.

QUEEN'S COLLEGE .- The Lord Chancellor, after a long and laborious investigation of the various Statutes and forms which govern the University, desired "that it might be understood that Dr. Godfrey had been duly elected;" but, he added, that Counsel were at liberty to make any observations they might chuse, on Seturday next, on two points, respecting which he had not given an opinion; the first was, as to the qualification of Dr. Godfrey's admission; and the other was, as to the time of his subscribing the oath directed to be taken on extering into the office of President of this College; that having been done on Monday, the ninth day after his election, when it ought to have been done on the eigth day after that event had taken place, which in this case happened to full on Sunday. On these two points he would hear any suggestions that might then be made; but, if such were not brought forward, his judgment would stand confirmed.

In the Matter of Charles Hunt, a Bankrupt.

MARCH 29.—Mr. Heald moved that Charles Hunt may be at liberty to surrender himself to the Commissioners, under a Commission of Bankruptcy issued against him, and to make a disclosure of his estate and effects.—In 1818, Mr. Hunt, a wine merchant of London, being in embarrassed circumstances, went to France to avoid the pressing importunities of his creditors, leaving a friend to attempt a negociation with them. Shortly after he had been in France, he was informed that a Commission had issued against him, but which he had not the slightest sus-picion of; and that he then immediately repaired to Calais, to embark for England, to surrender himself to that Commission. On his arriving at that place, he understood that hun!-bills were in circulation in England, offering 1000 guineas for his apprehension; and, suspecting that persons would be writing or him on the English coast, he made a circuitous route to Dieppe, to go from that place to Southampton, when he did not expect that he would be interrupted in his road to London to surrender himself. In the coarse of his travels through France he was arrested by the French Authorities, in consequence of information from the English Government, and imprisoned three months for travelling under the fictitious name of Hardy; he was afterwards handed over to the King of the Netherlands, and, according to the custom of that nation, put on board a British vessel, where he was arrested by a British police officer (who had been travelling through the country with him) by a warrant of the Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench, brought to England, and had ever since remained in Newgate.

Mr. Cullen, for the assignees, defended their conduct, and described the bankrupt as acting feloniously and fraudulently towards his creditors; and stated, that at the time of his apprehension, there was found upon his person a very considerable sum of money.

Lord Chancellor.-The warrant of the Lord Chief Justice gives the custody of the Bankrupt to the Commissioners under his Commission, and if a proper application be made to them, I conceive they will do that, which you are now asking me

ASSIZES.

WARWICK .- John Wright was indicted for the wilful murder of James Wright, his son, a boy about five years of age, by drowning him in the Birmingham Canal, near Wolverhampton. It appeared that on Tuesday the 5th of September last the wife of the prisoner eloped with another man; on Sunday the prisoner followed them to Darlaston, and brought her home to his lodgings at Wolverhampton. They appeared to be perfectly reconciled; but as soon as the prisoner went to his work on the following morning, his wife left the bouse and did not return. When he came home to his dinner, and found she was absent, he became extremely agitated and frantic, and continued so during the day. He slept that night with the boy, and on the following morning (Tuesday) arose about seven o'clock, and taking the boy, proceeded with him to the Birmingham Canal, into which he threw him, but relenting, jumped into the water and took him out again. He then went, with his boy, to a cottage, and requested permission to dry themselves; instead of being allowed to do so, he was desired to take the child home and put him to bed. It appeared from what the prisoner had said, that when he had taken the child out of the water, the poor infant ran to him, clasped his arms round his knees, and said, "Father, what did you throw me into the water for? Do not throw me in again, father, and I will not cry any more." The prisoner, on leaving the cottage, intended to go home; but not knowing how to account for their wet clothes, again resolved upon drowning the child, which he accordingly effected. He then returned to Wolverhampton, and shortly afterwards communicated what he had done to two of his uncles, who went with him to the canal, and found the body. Upon being taken out, and put on the cabin of a boat, he knelt to the body, and kissed it with great apparent affection. Witnesses spoke to the uniform kindness with which the prisoner had treated the child, and that, when short of food, he would abstain from enting any that the child might be fed. He was acquitted on account of insanity, but will probably be confined in the asylum for the remainder of his life.

THEATRICALS.

LYCEUM.—A very whimsical circumstance has occurred this week in our Theatrical department, and which, were we not very particular, might have given rise to a very unfavourable criticism upon a very lively performance.

Sir Boyle Roche used to say, that no "man could be in two places at once, unless, indeed, he was a bird;" and it must be evident to our readers, that a Theatrical critic cannot be every where at the same time; admitting, this to be true, it will not be thought extraordinary if we occasionally depute some friend who has a turn that way to give us an account of any thing worthy remark.

Last week some of our correspondents enquired why we had not given any notice of Mr. Mathews's performance at the Lyceum, and not being able to attend that place since, we requested a clever and ingenious Scotor-acquaintance to do us the favour to see the entertain. ment, and give us his opinion of it, quite sure from the fact of his never having seen Mr. Mathews, that every impression made upon him would be sharpened by the novelty of the exhibition; accordingly he went, and not having had an opportunity of seeing him till Thursday, we made our enquiries as to his judgment on the case. He told us that the entertainment was rather comical upon the whole, but that at times there was too much matter of fact about it; and that as for fun, he did not think quite so much had been made of it as might have been: that the scenery was good, but that it was altogether heavy. We asked him if the rest of the audience laughed? he said, not much; but this he attributed to there being but few people in the house. Then we enquired if the songs were humorous?—he told us there were no songs. We asked him if he did not think Mathews a very droll person?—he said no; quite the contrary; he never heard a better delivery, or saw a more gentlemanly man in his life, bating that he was perhaps a little too fut.

This convinced us there was some mistake, and we at length begged him, before we gave to the world an account of a dull entertainment, no songs, a thin house, and a fat performer, that he would see it again; and he accordingly repeated his visit (luckity, as it will be seen for our credit) on Thursday evening.

From his second excursion to the Strand he returned quite delighted with the rapidity and versatility of Ma-thews's acting—with the fun of the dialogue and the songs could hardly get a place—was stunned with the laughter of the audience—and was only apprehensive that the performers exertions were the cause of his being so remarkably thin.

How to account for this we did not know; till we found that our rural friend's first visit to the Lyceum, had been made on Wednesday, when Mr. Bartley, late of Drury Lane, delivered a Lecture on the Structure of the Universe. The name of Mathews's Entertainment being—EARTH, AIR, and WAPER, he was quite convinced, by the exordium, that all was right; and that the quiet tragedian, who was descanting by heart, on the formation of the terrestrial globe, was Mathews, in a righte merrie moode," turning some absurd system into ridicule, and imitating, perhaps, some popular lecturer.

We could hardly imagine how a mistake of this sort could have lasted through an evening; but we found that our friend (as he subsequently confessed) was so much disappointed, in respect to drollery, in what he heard on the subject of EARTH, (which, according to Mathews's bill, formed only one third of the performance) that he came away long before the lecture was concluded.

We rejoice to find, however, that Mr. Mathews is innocent, on the charge of duliness, and that the performances of this season are particularly successful. The literary merits of such a thing are by no means a fair subject for criticism; but, if we are to judge by public applause, the authors (Messrs. Smith and Peake) have done all that could be required of them in his service.

MISCELLANEOUS. .

The workmen are employed in opening two gates into the back garden of the Queen's residence, (late Cambridge House), from Hill-street, one for the extrance of carriages, and the other for their exit, on the plan of those at the Magdalen, in St. George's-fields. The former inhabitants of this mansion found the regular front entrance quite sufficient, but the intricacies of her Majesty's amusements require greater combina-tions of accommodation.

Tuesday, the first wing of the East India Company's Warchouse Troops, consisting of upwards of 400 men, under the command of Colonels Davidson and Thornton, had a grand field day in the Tenter-ground, Goodman's-fields. Being all picked young men, they presented a very soldier-like appearance.

A very general reduction in the poors' rates, in consequence of the low price of provisions, has taken place throughout the

The world will feel itself obliged to the Author of the receally published work on the Religions and Religious Cere-minies of all Nations, for condensing into a portable volume, at a moderate price, the contents of many costly works, and transferring to it 100 of their most striking engravings. A more interesting and gratifying book never was addressed to the curiosity of the religious and literary, whether we con-sider the importance of the subject, the impartiality of the author, or the taste of the artists.

Some benefit is likely to be derived to the public from the repeal of the last duty on malt. The brewers in many parts of the country are falling the price of beer, and the London brewers, it is hoped, will follow their example.

The parish of St. Saviour's, Southwark, have resolved to petition against the Catholic Bills.

No less than three Theatres in London are engaged during the present Lent, in Lectures on Astronomy; but our country readers need not regret their inability to attend them, as the recently published work of Twenty Lectures on the Wonders of the Heucens, contains not only the most popular views of this Science ever published, but is illustrated by 46 splendid and coefficients. costly engravings, which supply the place of the scenery addressed to the London audiences.

The prices of lodgings in Dublin have risen full 30 per cent.

in consequence of the King's intended visit to Ireland.

Madame Fodor, the singer, died lately in Puris, in consequence of taking too much vinegar (as it is said) to reduce her cornulency.

The improvements between Piccadilly and Oxford-street, are now becoming very visible, and the new street appears in all its splendour for a considerable extent. The quadrant at the end of the first division of Regent-street, is one of the most beautiful things produced in any country; we are decidedly of opinion, however, that if the angle had not been acute, at the corner of Regent-street, and the colonade had swept round from Riccadilly, the effect would have been grander; as it is, we lose all idea of a continuation of one street, and turn suddenly and sharply into another.

The new Theatre in the Haymarket is rising rapidly, and is professedly intersed to receive its roof. As this building was professedly intersed to form a terminus to Charles-street, we do not exactly understand why it has been ingeniously placed to as not to form a terminus to that street. It is about four Sect out of its proper place, and stands just sufficiently near it, to make every person who sees it lament its present situation. Considering the ground on every side was to be had, we are at a loss to find an excuse for the crestion of a public eye-sore so BLARING as this.

A Crim. Con. case will be tried at the Gloucester Assizes, in which Mr. W—, a citizen of London is plaintiff, and Colonel B—, a gentlemen of large fortune, is defendant; the damages are icid at 10,000i. Oxford, March 24.—Thursday last, Mr. James Robertson Roleombe, B. A. of Jesus College, was elected Fellow of that Society.—Tuesday last, the following Degrees were conferred:—Marters of Arts: The Rev. John Wallis, Exeter College; the Rev. James Carne, of Oriel College.—BATCHE-LOR OF ARTS: William Clarke, Magdalen Hall. We hear that it is proposed soon to remove the Monument.

We hear that it is proposed soon to remove the monoment. This is a measure of pure justice previous to passing the Catholic Bill, as on its base stands recorded the fact, that the Papists burned the City of London, in the year 1066, an insignation which the liberality of these days cannot suffer to remain extant.

Three Tunisian frigates, three corvettes, a brig, a schooner, and another vessel of war, were lost in the bay of Tunis, with nearly two-thirds of their crews, during a violent gale, on the 7th and 8th ult.; twelve merchant vessels were lost, and eight driven on shore at the same time; an English brig, laden with wine and brandy, was lost at Biserto; two vessels were lost at Susa, and one at Modea.

Amongst the periodical works now published, "The Edin-burgh Monthly Review" is by no means the least respectable. We are requested by a correspondent to call the attention of the public to some of the late articles in it, which, he tells us, are well adapted to the circumstances of the times.

No less than nineteen hundred and seventy-two fine oak trees, adapted for framing timber and beams, and planks, for the navy, are about to be felled on the estate of a gentleman in

On Thursday se'nnight, a beautiful halo was observed round the moon: the luminous ring gradually separated from the orb, and enlarged into a circle many degrees in diameter, which intinued distinctly visible for several hours, and at 11 o'clock broke up into light fleecy clouds.

Perhaps no volume was ever published of greater interest and utility than the Chronology of the last Fifty Years; of which a new edition has just appeared, brought down to January of the present year. It is truly called the Chronicle of the Timer. All the newspapers serve but as its Day-book, it being in effect their arranged Ledger, during the interesting period from 1771 to 1821.

Houselkss Poor .- The doors of this Institution are now closed for the season; and we have great pleasure in being enabled to state, that during the 77 days it has been open, 449 women and children, and 2769 men, have been sheltered, and about 50,000 meals distributed.

ROMAN CATHOLICS .- Letters from Dublin, dated late on Monday last, state, that the Rev. Dr. Troy, Titular Archbishop of Dublin, and the Roman Catholic Clergy under his superintendance, at a Meeting held there on that day, came to an un-

Resolution. That they could not avail themselves of the provisions of the Bills introduced into the House of Commons by Mr. Plunkett, as they were inconsistent with their principles, as Roman Catholics.

At a full Meeting of the Roman Catholic Clergymen of the City of Limerick, on Friday se'nnight, at the house of the Right Rev. Dr. Tuoby, Roman Catholic Bishop of Limerick:—

Resolved 1st, Tkat one of the Bills lately introduced by Mr. Plunkett into the House of Commons, contains clauses to which no Catholic Clergyman can conscientiously agree.

Resolved 2d. That those clauses are unnecessary, recations, dangerous, and ultimately subversive of the Roman Catholic Religion in Ireland.

Treland.

Resolved 3d. That it is necessary to call, as soon as possible, a General Meeting of all the Roman Catholic Clergymen of this Diocese, to consider the best mode of conveying those sentiments to the House of Lords, praying, that those obvorious clauses may not receive their Lordships sauction.

Resolved 4th, That these Resolutions be communicated to the Roman Catholic Laity of the County and City of Limerick.

The Queen's Plate Committee have closed the subscription. and called for the amount from the collecto:s, in order to enable the Committee to carry into effect their original intention.

Princess Augusta is expected to proceed to Germany in April, on a visit to her relatives on the Coatinsht. The Duke of Richmond is now completely recovered from the effects of his alarming accident.

FASHIONS.-We never remember so little change in fashion as has taken place, during the last two or three years. The evening dress of our ladies is as nearly what it should be, as it is in the nature of human imperfection to make it; and did we is in the nature or numan imperiection to make it; and did we not know, that forty years ago people declared that pounds of powder and pometum, and handfuls of horsehair and black pins, and wool, and cotton, and curls, and plumes of coloured feathers were absolutely necessary to a becoming head-dress; we should certainly say, that at no time English women had succeeded so well in the art of self-decoration as at present.

Would we could give count praise to the morning certains of

Would we could give equal praise to the morning costume of the fair. The same bideous Brobdignagian bonnets assail us, as made us miserable five years since, things without taste, shape, use or meaning—the hottest things in summer, and the coldest in winter; no air getting into them unless it blows a fresh breeze, and then just sufficient to induce tooth-ache and stiff necks. It was said of a sage physician, that he had wished if providence had given him a third eye, to have had it placed at the end of his finger, that he wish has a limit has a limit of the said placed at the end of his finger, that he might have been then enabled to look down the throats of his patients. We are quite sure, that without some such superfluity any attempt to look up the modern bonnets, is useless; and not to speak of the unsociability of these blinkers, the disappointment they occasion, when, after laying devicted to enset for the second of occasion, when, after having depicted to oneself for half an hour, the sleepy blue eyes or sparkling black, the lovely auburn or the jetty ringlet concealed under one of them, one is assailed, on the turning round of the lady, with the representations of the lady, with the representations of the lady. tation of some harridan with stained eye-brows and painted cheeks, glaring, her face of many hues at the further end of the inverted coal-skuttle, like the west window of a cathedral seen through a long series of arches, on a foggy day.

Brown beaver hats, round with broad brims, have made a pretty successful effort to beat the big bonnets, but black beaver hats are confined at present, generally speaking, to a class of ladies who might have ridden for once in their lives last season to Hammersmith, but who for the most part walk: we wish that some of those who could, would start something to supersede all these head-dresses; ugly women, and old women still stick to the coal-skuttles, but if a smaller and simpler article were patronized by some of the Pagets or the Villiers's, every aspiring young hereine would attribute half the beauty of the wearer to the merit of the hat, and we should have the whole world following the lovely leaders.

The men are much as usual, except that the word and the thing—Dandy—are extinct; black handkerchiefs are universal, but with the exception of this peculiarity, the dress is moderate, and back very nearly to the average standard of the last ten years. Pantaloons or trowsers in the evening, are pretty generally exploded.

Holton, the Yorkshire pedestrian, has undertaken to run ten miles and a quarter in one hour, on Doncaster Ruce Course, for a wager of three hundred guineas.

PROVINCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

BATH. — A desperate pitched battle, of fifty-three rounds, was fought on Monday last, on Lansdown, near this city, between two men of the names of Francom and Mariner.

After fighting full an hout, the latter had his jaw locked, was carried senseless out of the ring, and died soon after.

BISHOP WEARMOUTH.—Dr. Collingwood, jun. of Sunderland, has communicated to the Antiquarian Society of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, an account of his having found some Roman coins in this neighbourhood. What renders these coins particularly interesting is, that (so far as we know) there is no record of any thing similar having ever before been found in that town; they are of the Emperor Constantine the Great, and consequently about fifteen hundred years old.

BRIGHTON.—Extraordinary Rabbit.—A blacksmith of the name of Wheeler, in this town, has a buck rabbit, four years old, that kills a rat with the greatest facility; and, in combat, beats a half-bred terrier, which is frequently set at him for the satisfaction of the curious.

BRISTOL .-- It has been remarked, that some of the roads near this city are never affected by frost, even in the severest winter; this arises from their being repaired with the stone from the Black Rock on the banks of the Avon, near the Hot Wells, which contain a considerable quantity of bitumen.

Last week the body of a young gentleman of this city, of the name of Gollop, was found in the Duchess of Beaufort's Park at Stoke described of the state of the state Park at Stoke, deprived of life, with a discharged pistol by the side of him, and another loaded in his pocket.

Four prisoners, confined in the Infirmary Ward of our new Gaol, picked the lock of the door of that ward, on Saturday evening, and by cutting and joining together their blankets contrived to escape over the wall of the prison. They have not yet been discovered.

CARLISLE.—A man, named William M'Cart, was committed to gaol, charged with a singular offence. He had been on the preceding day, in company with Mr. John Clarke, of Priory, at an auction; he contrived to slip away from Mr. C. on the precenting uay, in company what he precently all the precent and obtained admission to his house in the night; under cover of darkness, he went to bed to Mrs. C., she supposing it was her husband. He was, however, soon discovered, and obliged to retreat. On going out of the door, he met Mr. C., who had just returned, a scuffle ensued, and he knocked Mr. C. down. On being followed, he escaped from his pursuers, but was afterwards taken, and lodged in gaol.

COLCHESTER.—A fine relique of antiquity was lately dug up in this town, in the garden ground of Essex Hospital. It is an ancient figure of the Theban sphynx, admirably executed.

HULL.—A melanckoly accident occurred to the ship Hebe,

Capt. Cozens, of this port, on Friday se'might. She struck, it is supposed, on the Girdleness, near Whitby, drifted to the northward, and went ashore two miles to the southward of northward, and went ashore two miles to the southward of Ythan, having become quite unmanageable. Of the crew, forty-five in number, only twenty-nine got to land, the remainder clung to the rigging, &c. of which, the master and eleven of the men were saved by the fishermen, the other four were successively swept off by the sea and drowned.

Leeds.—A woman named Barber has been committed for trial, under the Corener's verdict of wilful murder, for poisoning her husband, James Barber, of Rothwell. On Saturday night, the husband complained of being indisposed from cold, when his wife roasted him an apple, and gave it him to eat.

night, the husband complained of being indisposed from cold, when his wife roasted him an apple, and gave it him to eat. Soon after eating the apple he became extremely ill; she then administered to him a little warm beer, which she had previously sweetened. Instead of assuaging, this application greatly aggravated his malady, and some of the neighbours advised his wife to send for medical aid. This she declined, alleging that it was useless, and that her husband would be "ded before morning." This prediction was unfortunately fulfilled: he expired at three o'clock. This usfortunate woman, who is forty-four years of age, is the mother of three man, who is forty-four years of age, is the mother of three children, one of them by a former husband, and two others by the deceased.

LINCOLN.—A penny subscription was begun in this city lately, to reimburse the expences of Sir F. Burdett's fine, and the money collected lodged in the house of Mr. Smith, the Mason's Arms, but the box was stolen by some unprincipled Radical!

MACCLESFIELD .- A man, calling himself " the Staffordshire Giant," and professing to be eight feet high, was appre-bended and lodged in our dungeon, on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences. His real height was about six feet six inches, and he wore a certain sort of buskins (so as to increase his height) similar to those worn on the Grecian stage.

MANCHESTER .- A number of mad dogs continue to infest this town and neighbourhood. Last week, two mad dogs ran through the town; one of them bit two fine calves belonging to Mr. H. Grimshaw; fortunately no human being was attacked by either of them.

MARGATE. - The ancient church of St. John is to be taken down, and an elegant modern structure erected upon its site.
The present one will hold 3,000 persons, but it is found too small for the congregation during the bathing season.

WRYMOUTH .-Last week the Committee of the Corporation, pursuant to public notice, assembled at the Guildhall, and opened the respective tenders of the different Architects for building the Bridge across the barbour.

On Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. Young, previous to their departure for London, gave a grand farewell dinner, ball, and supper, at Gloucester Lodge, to Colonel Murray and the Officers of the 16th Lancers, and a large party of Nobility and Gentry. The entertainment exhibited the same selendour and magnificence as those given on former occasions by these highly respected persons.

We understand that the 1st Regiment of Royal Dragoons under the command of General Garth, are to replace the 16ths Lancers stationed at Radipole Barracks.

YORK.—A party of religious fanatics assembled, a few Sundays since, at Barningham, for the express purpose of disludging the Devil, which one of their renegado brethren had declared had possessed him, or he should not have left their society. The elders of this society compelled their victim to soffery. Lee enters of this society competied their victim to kneel upon the fice, while the chief priest struck him on the head with his clenched fist, exclaiming, "This is God's hammer!—Devil, come out!" This he repeated three times; the rest then assailed him on all sides, with horrid yells and frightful gestures, kicking and cuffing him, but the Devil would not move, for the repentant said he still felt him tugging at his right side. On this the share allow of a famille made, right side. On this the sharp elbow of a female made a dreadful plunge at his small ribs, and another general attack ensued. Being, at length, tired of this discipline, he declared the Devil had left him. A fanatic was then appointed to watch him for three days and nights, that his Sataule worship nilght not enter again. After some debate, it was agreed that the Devil should be buried in a stone quarry; a woman gravely declared that she had him by the tail as they were going to the funeral, but he slipped from her grasp.

ACCIDENTS, OFFENCES, &c.

On Thursday last, a vessel being descried from Margate, in the Queen's Channel, and supposed to be steering a wrong course, and in danger, two boats put off from the Pier. One of these, in which were embarked seven fine courageous young fellows, viz:—Jarvis Holness, Dan. Peund, Robert Maxted, Goo. Harman, — Pound, — Randall, and — Woodward, in passing Margate Sands, got among the breakers, was upset, and the whole unfortunately drowned; who have left five wives and 4 families to deplore their untimely and much lamented loss.

Saturday se'nnight, a gentleman in Sudbury market was tobbed of his pocket-book, containing notes to the amount of 1351. The sharper proceeded immediately to Long Melford, hired a post-chaise, and set off for Newmarket, and went to the Cambridge Bank in the habit of a servant under the direction of his master, before notice was given there, and changed them for Bank of England notes, leaving no clue for further information.

Between one and two o'clock on Wednesday merning, three men and a woman, in a spring cart, with one horse, driving furiously from Petersham towards the road leading to Rickmond, refusing to stop when called upon to do so by the watch-man, the latter suspecting them of robbery, fired his blunder-buss, by which one of the men was killed, and another man and the woman were wounded. The party drove on to Richmond and gave notice of what had taken place, in consequence of which the watchman was taken into custody. It afterwards turned out that the house of a gentleman at Long Ditton had been robbed the same night to a large amount, and the survivors of the party in the cart are detained in custody on suspicion of being concerned in the robbery.

An Inquest was held on Friday, at Richmond, on the body of the man shot (R. Knight, a carpenter) when after a love investigation, the Jury returned a verdict of Wilful Murder against R. Wigley, the watchman.

Melancholy Occurrence.— A Calcutta paper, intely received, relates the affecting particulars of the death of Mrs. Bagshaw, and Miss Catherine Bagshaw, wife and daughter of John Bagshaw, Esq. late of Primrose Hill, near Coventry, who were drowned in a boat going to Calcutta.

The singular phenomenon of a rainbow by moonlight, was charved at Hull on Sunday morning last, towards the East, a little after four o'clock.

The Hestings fishermen have laid up their boats in consequence of a late affray with the Preventive Service, and the death of Haines. Many lives have been lost in dreadful affrays of a like nature.

of a like nature.

Mr. J. Cawthorn, a respectable farmer at Waplode, has been committed to the county good of Lincoln, charged with the wiful murder of his wife.

EXECUTION.—On Tuesday morning, at eight o'clock, Geo.
Barry, twenty-two years of age, for highway robbery; Jas.
Pitcher and Joseph Kitsal, of the same age, for privately stealing in dwelling-bonses; and Wm. Robinson, who was connected with a formidable gang of robbers, and who, it may be remembered, was the principal in the burglaries committed at the houses of Mr. Parker, of Southall, and others, were executed in front of Newgate.

SHIP NEWS

			*****
Arrived	Mails	Due 1	Arrived	Mails	Due
	Inhlin			Lishon
	Vaterford		—	Malta	—
· 10	Inerasey & J	ersey —		France
I	Ielland	—		.Hamburgl

MARGATE, March 39.—Arrived on the port the Engla, Fowen, from the South Seas.

PLYMOUTH, March 29. Wind W.—Arrived the Neptunus, Farmer, from New York for Havre, sailed 8th Feb, and experienced very heavy gales; she has suffered considerably in her upper-works, sails, rigging, &c. Also arrived the Wellington, Brown, from Shields for Oporto.—Sailed the Kersuvell. Armstrong, for London.

PADSTOW, March 29.—Arrived the Jane, Austin, from Waterford for Shoreham, with loss of bulwarks, boom, sails, rigging, &c.

SUPERB BEAVER HATS, of the first Pashion, combining SUPERB BEAVER HATS, of the first Pushion, combining beauty of colour which will not change, elegance of shape they cannot lose, and a durability unequalled.—No Howse in London that buys and sells on credit, can offer such a Hat to public notice; Gentlemen, therefore, who have cause to complain of high price and bad quality, may now purchase a hat superior to any other, price 28s manufactured by GALON and CO. 424, Strand, corner of Bedford-street, and 10, College-green, Bublin.

PATENT ECONOMICAL and UNIVERSAL LAMP, adapted to the CONSERVATORY. The same principle on which this Lamp acts as a Chamber or Night Light, so universally admired and patronized by thousands of families and persons, is so peculiarly applicable to the Conservatory, that the Patentee is induced to present it to the Public as a protector of delicate Plants and Flowers from the effects of frosty or cold nights. Two of these Lamps, which add elegance to utility, have been proved, by many experiments made by a 'respectable Plorist in his own Green-house, to have kept the thermometer at 40 to 41 degrees for twelve hours, during a severe frost, at the small expence in spernanceti oil of two-pence each; and what adds to its singular advantage is, that its heat can be increased or otherwise at pleasure. The Night or Chamber Lamp gives an invariable light for twelve hours or more—ready at the moment it is wanted—bearing any motion perfectly safe—and in expence not half that of a rush-light: price 10s. in neat Japanned Stands; and 20s. in elegant Imperial Metal, or Bronze, suited to the chambers of the Nobility and affluent; and the Conservatory Lamp, all disas, 30s. each.—Sold by T. Pearce and Co. Agents to the Patentee, 208, St.Clement & Strand, who, to secure the reputation of this Invention from the effects of had oil, are bound to sell none but pure and genuine Spermacet!.—Families in the Country may venture to send their Orders, without the possibility of a disappointment.—Letters (post-paid) will most with prompt aftention. PATENT ECONOMICAL and UNIVERSAL LAMP.

COOD TEAS, WILLOUI ANY ADVANCE.—The ORIGINAL LONDON GENUINE TRA WARBHOUSES, No. 6, Ludgate-hill, 138, Oxford-street, and 2, Charing-cross.—The Bast India Company's Tea Sale being just ended, ITREDBRICK SPARROW and Co. feel much pleasure in informing their numerous friends, that, notwithstanding the descent of the behavior of the control of the contr Tea Sale being just ended, ItaBlerick SPARKOW and Co. retinnen pleasure in informing their numerous friends, that, notwithstanding the advance which has taken place upon the inferior, as well as some of the most useful kinds of Tea, they are still enabled by the 'favourable purshases they have smale, added to their stock on hand) to continuate eiting genuine Teas, of equal qualities, at the old prices, which so state, that many of the better kinds will be formed to a stiperior, stronger, and fuller davaut than any ient make been offered to the public for many years; they partien ariv recommend good strong rough flavoured Congou, 6s. to 6s. 6d.: Anest ditto, or Breakfast Senchong, 7s.; full davoured Souchong, 9s.; superfine, 9s. to 10s.; good fresh Green, 7s.: inc bright leaf Bloom flavoured ditto, 4s.; good Hyson, 10t. to 11s.; superfine full flavoured ditto, 12s.; very curious, 13s. to 14s.; Padrae, Pekoe, Capac and Gunpowder Hyson, 10s. upwards.

CAU HON.—The unparalleled reputation of these Teas having induced numerous persons to attempt to copy or imitate the original establishment, please to be particular to notice that all Teas sold at the above Warehouses are wrapt in printed papers, with the name and address, and also the price per lb. marked thereon; and shose intended for the country will be put lute lead cases, free of expence.

Country Agents will please to address to F. Sparrow and Co., at the original Warehouse, No. 6, Ludgate-bill.

THESE LOZENGES, for LOWNESS of SPIRITS, &c.

THESE LOZENGES have been highly approved, and confidently recommended for some years past, in lewness of spirits and increased irritability of the nervous system, in the sick or nervous head-ache, infaminatory and putrid sore throats, thirst and dryness of the tengue and palate, and in all cases where the Camphor Julep is advised, these Camphorated Lezenges may be taken with superior advantage; they are also a powerful Antisceptic, and are therefore an admirable preventive against infection, and the effects of damp weather.

weather. Preyared and sold by J. Shepherd, at his Warchouse for the true pecacuanha Lozenges, No. 176, Fleet-street, London, in bottles, at M. 6d. 4s. 6d. and 10s. each.

REDUCTION in the PRICE of WINDSOR SOAP.—
DONEN's (late Davison's) IMPROVED ROYAL DOUBLE SCENTED WINDSOR SOAP, in the highest perfection.—J. JONES, having considerably improved this Soap, and reduced it in price, particularly recommends it for family use. It is rendered more pure in quality and greatly enriched in fragrance; its balsamic and cleansing properties operate in the most agreeable manner upon the skin, by producing an immediate soft creamy lather.—Please to ask for Jones's improved Royal Double Scented Windsor Soap. Sold in London only, at his Manniactory, No. 59, Piect-street, at 2s. (late 2s. 6d.) per lb., consisting of six squares, or in single squares at 6d. each.

BURGESS's NEW SAUCE for general purposes, having given such great approbation, and the demand for it continuing to increase, JUHN BURGESS and SON beg most respectfully to offer this their best acknowledgments to the Public for their liberal patronage of the same: its utility and great convenience in all climates, has recommended it to the most distinguished foreign counexions, who have all spoken highly in its recommendation.—It is prepared by them ONLY; and for preventing disappointments to families, all possible care has been resorted to, by each bottle being sealed upon the cork with their firm and address, as well as each label having their signature, without which it cannot be genuine.

it cannot be genuine.

JOHN BURGESS and SON'S long established and much-esteemed ESSENCE of ANCHOVIES, continues to be prepared by them after the same manner that has given the greatest satisfaction for many years.—Warehouse. 107. Strand, corner of the Savoy-steys, London.—The original Fish-Sauce Warehouse.

JRLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brussels fabric), URLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brussels fabric), 147, Straud, near Semerset House, removed from 392, Strand.—6. F. URLING and CO, beg to inferm the Pashienahle Werld, that they have prepared for the Season a various and extensive Assortment of their PATENT LACE DRESSES, from four Guineas to one hundred Guineas each; some of which, from recent improvements, they humbly presume to compare with the most perfect foreign productions. Also a great variety of Veils, Searis, Squares, Laces, Nets, &c. of every description. This peculiarly clear and transparent Article having, is the higher circles, superseded the use of common Lace, which becomes reugh and full of fibre on the first washing, the Patenters respectfully aptrise the Public, that the latter is frequently starched to conceal its defects, and make it resemble Urling's Lace, which, therefore, can only be reliced upon as genuine at their Wholesale and Retail Establishment in London, or of the Country Dealers supplied by them. Every Article is distinguished by a Seai, with the Patentee's initials, "G. F. U. and Co." and the works, "by it? (late) Queen's authority." Speciment, shewing the superiority of Friing's Lace over common Lace, may be seen in Ackenmann's Repository, La Belle Assemblee, and other fashionable works, and may be had gratis, by application, post-paid, to G. F. Urling and Co.

Country Dealers supplied apen the most liberal terms.—Manufactory, Basford, Nettingbamshire.

The Great Restorative to Health is MANN'S APPROVED MEDICINE, sold in Bottles at 2s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. each, Buty included; engraved on the Stamp, "Thos. Mann, Horsham, Sussex," to counterfeit which on the Stamp, * Anos. Mann, Horsman, Sussex, to conterest wason is Volony.

A S COUGHS and COLDS are so prevalent in this King-dom, no Family should be a moment without this Medicine, to the virtue of which the most honourable testimony has been borne, being recommended by Physicians, and patronised by Ludies and Gentlemen of the first distinction; it may be taken by the Infant in the first week, to the Aged in any state: it strengthens the Coat of the Stemach, helps Bigestian, creates an App#ite, and reanimates the whole Frame.

Sold, wholesale and retail, by the Praprietor, Horshum, Sussox; and may be had in London of Hudson and Co. 27, Haymarket; Sutton and Co. 10, Bow Church yard; Newberry and Sons, 45, St. Paul's, and 29, Dann-atroct, Dullin; Butler, 4, Cheapside; Edwards, 66, St. Paul's, Barclay and Son, 65, Peet Market; Johnson, 15, Greek-street, Soho; Evans and Son, 42, Long-lane, Smithfield; Bacom, 150, Oxiord-street; E. Newberry, Curner of St. Paul's; Tatt, Roxal Exchange; Clark, 259, High-street, Borough; Ward, 324, Helborn; Vade, 46, Coruhill; and by the principal Vendors of Medicine in the United Kingdom.

A. ROWLAND and SON respectfully caution the Public against spurious Articles. Under their Names Impostors have signed their Imitations, A. Rewlandson, which deception renders it necessary to observe the true signature, A. ROWLAND and SON, in Red Ink, which is wrote on each Bottle of their Genuine Articles, as

SELECT ARTICLES for the TOLLET.

A TKINSON'S CURLING FLUID, long known to the Nobility and Gentry as an elegant substitute for Oils, Pomatums, and Extracts. It should never be omitted after curling the hair, as it counteracts the dryness which hot from produce, makes the hair soft, and glossy as the finest silk, and keeps the curl firm during exercise in dancing or walking, or in damp weather. It sho removes dandriffe, prevents the hair falling off or changing colour, and is so efficacious for restoring its growth, that it is usually prescribed by Physicians, when other means have proved ineffectual. Price 3s. 6d. 16s. 6d. and one Guines.

following signature, "James Atkinson, 44, Gerard-street, London."

THE First Production in the World for the TOOTH ACHE, and preserving and brautifying the TEETH and GUMS.—Patronized by her Royal Highness the lette DUCHESS of YORK, his Excellency the NUEL of MAX CARLOS, the Spanish Ambassador, and most of the Nobility.—ROWLAND'S ALSANA EXTRACT, of ABYSSINAN SPECIFIC for the Teeth and Gums.—This invaluable Specific has been in high estimation for many years, and recommended by the first Physicians.—Its properties are truly wonderful; it immediately relieves the most violent TOOTH-ACHE, cleanues and brautifus the Teeth and Guns, and preserves them from dee y; prevents Decayed Treets giving pain, removes the Tartar from the Teeth, fastess those that are loose, and makes the Teeth beautifully white and uniforms; cleanues the Scurry from the Guns, renders them firm and healthy, refreshos the month during Disease after Medicine, and imparts a sweetness to the breath. It is perfectly innocent, SO THATLA CHILD MAY TAKE IT, yet contains those inestimable properties, that if constantly used, will render the Teeth and Guns sound, beautiful, and FREE FROM PAIN to the LATEST PERIOD of LIFE. It is as excellent stomachic.—Price 2s, 9d 4s, 6d, and 10s, 6d, per bottle.

Sold, wholesals, retail, and for exportation, by the sale Proprietors, A. ROWLAND and SON, Corner of Kirby-street, Hatton garden, London; and most Perfumers and Medicine Venders.—None are genuine without the signature.

"A. ROWLAND and SON, Corner of Kirby-street, Hatton garden, London; and most Perfumers and Medicine Venders.—None are genuine without the signature.

LONDON MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, FRIDAY, MARCH 30.

Though the supply of Wheat since Monday has been very moderate, a considerable quantity of that day's arrival remained unsold, and the reduction of 3s. per sack in the price of Flour, has occasioned a great duliness in the trade, which is full 1s. per quarter lower.—Fine Malting Barley supports its price, but the ordinary sorts are cheaper.—The arrival of Oats from our own coast this week has been moderate, but there has been some quantity from Ireland, hence the trude is dull, though with little variation in price.—In Beans and Pease we have no alteration to notice.

RETURN PRICE of GRAIN, on board Ship, as under,

Essex Red Wheat (new) 35s. 46s.   Maple
Fine
Oldss. Boilerss. 33s. 36s.
Essex White (new) 40s. 54s. Small Beans s. 30s. 33s.
Fine388. 418. to -4.
Superfines. 60s. 62s. Ti k Beans (new)s. 23s. 28s.
Rye
Oldsss, Feed Ontss. 16s. 18s.
Barley
Fine
Superfiness. Fines. 205. 225.
Malt
Fine5. 56s. 58s. Fine6. 24s. 25s.
Hog Pease26s. 28s.
TION TORREST.
AVERAGE PRICES of GRAIN per Quarter, for the Week ending
Wht.   Rye.   Barl.   Oats.   Beams.   Pease.   Oat.
ا مطباعة والعبط العبط العب
Mar. Dist 54 8 33 51 24 21 18 01 36 2 32 8 19 74 Inl. Counties 35 3 34 51 24 8 20 41 32 51 32 C1 25 4
Inl. Counties 35 3 34 5 24 8 20 4 32 5 32 C 25 4
Rng. & Wal. 54 4 33 5 24 2 18 7 30 4 32 7 20 0
FRICE of FLOUR.
Town made Fleur, persack to 48s. to 52s
Disto, secondsper dittos. to 45s. to 48s.
Essex and Buffolk Flour, per sack on Loard ship
Norfolk and Steckten, ditte
Bran 7s. to 8s per Quarter Fine Pollard 23s. to 25s. per Quarter.
SMITHFIELD. FRIDAY, MARCH 30.
To sink the Offal-per Stone of elbs.
Beef
Mutton 3s. 8d. to 4s. 8d. Pork 3s. 8d. to 5s. 0d.
Moud of Cattle this day.
Head of Caltle this day.  Brasts
### ##############################
### ##############################
### ##############################
### ##############################
Head of Calife this day.   Sheep
Head of Calife this day.   168   168   169   1
Head of Calife this day.   Sheep

By the (	Carease.
Beef	Veal3s. 4d. to 5s. 8d.   Pork3s. 4d. to 5s. 8d.
PRICE of HOPS, per Cwt	Pocketa
Kent., 21, 16s, to 31, 10s, a 41, 4s. Sussex 21, 6s, to 21, 1 is, a 21, 16s.	Kent., 2l. 16s. to 4l. 0s. a 4l. 15s. Sussex 2l. 5s. to 2l. 18s. a 3l. 4s.
Essex 21. 54. to 31. 04. a 31. 104. Farnham, fine 41. 104. to 61. 108.	Essex 21. 10s. to 31. 15s. a 41. 4s. Farrham, second 21. 16s. to 51. 0s.
Fown Tallow58s. 6d. —s. 0d. Yellow Russia 48s. 6d. —s. 0d. White ditbe 45s. 6d. —s. 0d.	Mottled
Soap ditto44s. Od. —s. Od. Melting Stuff38s. Cd. —s. Od. Ditto roughs. Od. 24s. Gd.	Good Dregs 9s. 6d.

NEWGATE AND LEADENHALL MARKETS.

PRICI	St of th	e PUB	LIC FU	NDS.
STOCKS.	Mon.	Tues.	Wed.	Thur.	Frid.	Sat_
Bank Stock		_
3 per Cent. Reduced				-	-	_
3 per Cent. Consols	71	713	70	719	74	721 71
31 per Cent. Consols			_
Consols for Account	712	71	713	72	721	721 221
4 per Cent. Consols				-
5 per Cent. Navy	10.5 3	105	1051	1062	106	1063 I
Bank Long Annuities			l — *
India Bonds	36 p	38 p	40 p	12 p	45 p	45 46
Exchequer Bills, 2d	1 9	1 1	l p	1 p	l p	par 2 P
Ditto, 21d				_
Omniam	-	_				_

BIRTHS.
On Tuesday, the 26th inst. the Lady of John Forster, Esq. R. N. of Twyford House, Berks, of a son.
At Brighton, on the 23rd instant, the Lady of J. T. Slade, Esq. of a daughter.
On the 25th inst. at Itushall, Wilts, Lady Poore, of a daughter.

MARRIAGRS.
On the 17th instant, the Rev. James Collins, Rector of Thorp Abbots, Norfolk, to Marianne, eldest daughter of the late Keen Z. Stables, Esq. of Broad Green Lodge.
On the 24th instant, William Battle, eldest son of William Wrightson, Esq. of Cusworth, near Doncaster, to Georgiana, daughter of Inigo Thomas, Eq. of Patton, Sussex, and grand-daughter of Heary Pierse, Esq. M.P. of Bedale, Yerkshire.

DIED.

On Monday, Henry, the second sen of J. Angerstein, Esq. aged 15 He fell out of a boat at Eton, in endeavouring to reach his oar.

At Highgate, on Sunday morning, the 25th isstant, after a week's severe illneys, William Washbourne Matthews, Esq. Solicitor, of Limcoln's Inn Fields.

On Saturday morning, of a decline, in her 26th year, Miss C. S Talbot, at the house of her ann', Mrs. Johnston, Cheapside.

On Monday, the 26th of March, of apoplexy, Mr. John Baptist Shackell, farmer, of Botley, Hayes, Middlesex, in the 68th year of his age.

On Wednesday last, at his house in Portman-place, in his 64th year, Michael Ervan, Esq. Author of the "Biographical and Critical Dictionary of Painters and Engravers."

Lately at Paris, the Hon. Lieut.-Colonel Irby, son of Lord Boston, alte of the Life Quards.

On Tuesday last, the 27th inst. at Shacklewell, of a decline, in the 26th year of her age, Miss Janc Menzics, only daughter of the late Mr. Archibald Menzics, of Edinbargh.

On Monday evening, at Merstham House, Sarray, after a lingering illness, Lady Ann Simpson, relict of John Simpson, Esq. of Bradley Hall, in the county of Durham.

On the 28th instant, in Aldersgafe-street, Sarah, wife of Thomas Sparks, Esq. aged 71.

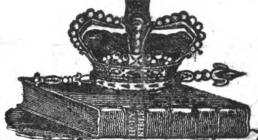

On the 22nd instant, in his house, Paradise-street, Lambeth, Wm. Cragg, Esq. Under-Secretary to the Board of Agriculture.

On Thresday, the 22nd instant, in Curzon-street, May-fair, Augusta

On the 22nd inst. at his house, Paradise-street, Lambeth, Wm. Cragg. Eaq. Under-Secretary to the Board of Agriculture. On Thursday, the 22nd instant, in Curzon-street, May-fair, Augusta Sophia, infant daughter of Cholmeley Deering, Bsq. At the house of her son-in-law, at Farnham, Surrey, on the 17th, aged 90, Mrs Magdalene Elizabeth Fargues, daughter of the late John Wilson, Bsq. of Uttexeter, Stafford. At Holkham, on Friday last, after a lingering lliness, Mrs. Blackwell, relict of Samuel Blackwell, Esq. of Atupney Park, in Choucestershire, sofe aurviring sister of the late Lord Sherborne, and of Mr. Coke. On Friday, at Putney, Mrs. Brercton, relict of the Rev. John Brereton, of Alton Barnes, Wilts, and late Rector of Abbotstoke, in the County of Dorset.

LONDON: Printed and Published by R. T. WEAVER, at No. 11, JOHNSON'S COURT, FLEET-STREET, where only Communications to the Editor, (post paid) are receiped.

JOHN

" FOR GOD, THE KING, AND THE PEOPLE!"

No. 17.

SUNDAY, APRIL 8, 1821.

Price 7d.

MR. HAYDON'S PICTURE of CHRIST'S AGONY, with MALDON'S FIGURE OF CHIRDS'S AGON'S, will Solomon, Macbeth, Dentatus, Romeo and Juliet, his Drawings from Eigin Marbies and from Nature, and the Drawings of his Pupils from the Cartoons. ARE NOW OPEN at the Gallery next door to the British Institution, Pall Mall, from Ten till Six.—Admittance, Is. Catalogues, 6d.

Institution, Pall Mall, from Tentill Six.—Admittance, Is. Catalogues, 6d.

THE GENTLEMEN of the STOCK EXCHANGE and Public in general, are respectfully informed, that they may now be supplied with elegant oval-shape BEAVER HATS, which for short rich Naps, Fashion, Burability, and Materials, caunot be surpassed by any other House in London. An Allowance will be made for their eld ones, much to their advantage;—every Article of the most superior make, and at very moderate prices.

Families will find a considerable Saving in the purchase of their Livery Hats, as no advance is made upon the Lace.

Manufactured by GEORGE BYERS, 3, Pall Mall, London

TO FAMILIES.

A LADY accustomed to Tuition, and who can produce the most respectable testimonies of her Abilities, &c. &c. is desirous of receiving a few PUPILS at her own Residence, to instruct in all the usual routine of FEMALE EDUCATION, or any separately, as may be most desirable to those who may honeur her with their Patronage.

Letters, post paid, to A. B. 32, Great Portland-street, will neet with respectful attention.

CONOMICAL EDUCATION, at Mr. CLARKSON's old Established CLASSICAL, COMMERCIAL, and MATHEMATICAL ACADEMY, BOWES-HALL, near Greta Bridge, Yorkshire.—Young Gentlemen are hearded, provided with Books, &c. and expeditionally instructed in every Branch of useful and polite Education necessary to qualify them for any situation in life, at 29 Guineas a year. By the numerous respectable references which Mr. Clarkson is enabled to adduce, Parents will be entirely relieved from the anxieties they feel in parting with their Chindren, as they will have it in their power to convince themselves that the School is conducted upon a liberal plan; and that the most conscientions attention is given to the comfort, improvement, and morals of the Pupils.

References, numerous and respectable, with every other information, may be had of Mr. Smith, the Agent, 26, Lombard street.

FULITAM,

FULIIAM,

TO LET, No. 2, Church-row, a small HOUSE, in good repair, with Fore Court and good Garden at the back of the House, with Stable, Chaise-house, and Loftover ditte; together with a detached Garden, 135 feet, running down to the back of a Mont.
Particulars of R. Rawlings, 26, Red Lion-square.

Just published, price 3s 6d. in extra boards, embellished with a Besign by Westall,
THE MANIAC; or, THE FALL OF REASON.

THE MANIAC; or, THE FALL OF REASON.
A Poem.
Printed for Munday and Slatter, Oxford; and sold by G. and W. B.
Whittaker, Ave Maria-lane, London.
BATHING and GENEFIT of SEA AIR.
A RESPECTABLE FAMILY at BRIGHTON wishes to accommedate a few young Persons, not under Seven Years of Age, with Board, &c. Parents and Guardians will find the opportunity effered, of that description for attention and care during the period their Children may require the above, as is seldom to be met with.—For particulars, &c. apply (if by letter, post paid) to Mr. Tarner, Stationer, &c. to His Majesty, 69, Cheapside.

ON the BRAUTIES, HARMONIES, and SUBLIMITIES of NATURE; with occasional Remarks on the Laws, Customs, Manuers, and Opinions, of various Nations.

Manuers, and Opinions, of various Nations.

By CHARLES BUCKE, Esq.

Author of "Amusements in Retirement" &c.

Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, Ave Maria-lane.

Mr. BIRD'S NEW POEM.

Just published, in 8vo. price 5s. 6d.

MACHIN, or the DISCOVERY of MADEIRA. A Poem, in Four Control

MACHIN, or the DISCOVERY of MADEIRA. A Poem, in Four Cantes.

By JAMES BIRD, Author of the "Tale of Slonghden."

"Do not call it sin in me, "That I am foreworm for thee."—Shakspeare.

Printed for Jehn Warren, Old Bond-street.

NEW NOVEL.

Just published, price 21s. boards,

A LEGEND of ARGYLE; or, "TIS a HUNDRED YEARS SINCE.

"Argyle, the state's whole thunder born to wield, And shake alike the senate and the field."—Pope.

In three volumes, 12mo.

Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, Ave Maria-lane.

Also, just published.

LOCHIEL; or, the FIELD of CULIADEN. A Novel, in 3 vels.

TACHIST, or, the FIELD of CULIDDEN. A Novel, in 3 vols. price 21s.

3. SUCII is the WORLD. A Novel, in 3 vols. price 21s. boards.

4. The FAVOURITE of NATURE; dedicated (by permission) to Mrs. Joanna Baillie. A Novel, in 3 vols. price 21s. boards.

Mr. HAZLITTS NEW WORK.

Just published, in 8ve. price 14s, in boards.

TABLE TALK, or ORIGINAL ESSAYS. By WILLIAM HAZLITT.

HAZLITT.

CONTENTS:—On the Pleasure of Painting—On the Past and Future,
—On Genius and Common Sense—Character of Cobbett—On People with one idea—On the Ignorance of the Learned—The Indian Jugglers, —On Living to One's Self—On Thought and Action—On Will-making—
On certain Inconsistencies in Sir Joshua Reynolds's Discourses—On Paradox and Common-place—On Yulgarity and Affectation.

Privted for John Wurren, Old Bond-street.

Pristed for John Wurren, Old Bond-street.

Just published, in 4 vols. 12me. Second Edition, price 1l. 8s. boards,

MELMOTH, the WANDERRR. A Tale. By the Author of "Bertram, a Tragedy."

Printed for Archibald Constable and Co. Edinburgh; and Hurst, Robinson, and Co. 90, Cheapside, Loudon.
"If we had reom for another landatory quotation, we should select the firml sceue, the fate of the wanderer—but perhaps we should only be taking something from the general interest of the work, and in that case frustrate our own intention; which has been to recommend it, with the exceptions and drawbacks that we have been in duty bound to specify, to the favourable notice of the novel reader of mature growth and understanding, who can discern and foster its claims to praise, while he detects its faulta, and feels them only to avoid them."—Menthly Review, January, 1821.

Lately published, by the same Author,
2. WOMEN; or, POUR et CONTRE. A Tale. 3 vols. 12mo. 1l. 1s.
beards.

2. EREFOLING a Tracedy in Mya Asta, Account.

2 FREDOLFO, a Tragedy, in Five Acts. 4s. sewed.
4. SERMONS. By the Rev. C. R. Maturin, Curate of St. Peter's, Dublin. Second Edition. 8vo. 12s. boards.

Dublin. Second Edition. 8vo. 12s. boards.

CHURCHWARDEN'S and OVERSEER'S GUIDE, with NEW VESTRY ACT.

Just published, price 5s. 6d. sewed, a new and corrected Edition of THE CHURCHWARDEN'S and OVERSEER'S GUIDE and DIRECTOR, written and arranged for the use of Parish Officers, and others desirous of acquiring Parochial Information; on an entire new System, in which every branch of Parish Business, and other matters relating thereto, and the various Duties of Parish Officers, are familiarly and minutely explained.

By J. ASHDOWNE,

Member of the Hon. Society of Lincoln's lim. Third Edition. To which are added, useful Extracts from the late Vestry Act.

Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, Ave Maria-lane.

Of whom may be had, by the same Author.

The PARISH OFFICER'S NEW ALPHABETICAL REGISTER, shewing the Names of Paupers receiving occasional or permanent Parochial Relief, whether residing in their own Parishes or elsewhere. Price 2s. 6d. sewed.

Books, just published, by J. Andrews, Opera Agent, at his new Circulating Library, 167, New Bendstreet, near Graften-street,
A TALE of the OLDEN TIME.—By a Harrow Boy.

2. The LIFE of VOLTAIRE; with luteresting Particulars respecting his Death, and Anecdotes and Characters of bia Contemporaries. By FRANK HALL STANDISH, Esq. 8vo. price 12s.

3. WARBECK of WOLFSTEIN. By MISS HOLFONER, Author of Wallace, &c. 3 vols. price 11.4.

1. the press, and shortly will be published,

4. The PRIVATEER. A Tale.

4. The PRIVATEER. A Tale..

THE LITERARY GAZETTE, No. 220, published, contains an Original Dramatic Scene, and other Poetry, by Barry Cornwall; Reviews and copions Extracts from Lord Waldegrave's Memoirs; Croly's Second Part of Paris; Lord Byron's Letter on Bowles, &c. and other new works; further Particulars and Progress of the New Royal Society of Literature; the History of de Louther-bourg's Eiduphasikon, by the Writer of Wine and Walnuts; further Account of the New Antarctic Land; Letter on the Architecture of the Alterations in the Royal Exchange; Herrid Murder of Schoolhoys, carried into the Mountains by Italian Banditti; Dramatic Criticians, Notices of the Fine Arts, Ancetactes, Literary Intelligence, &c. &c. &c.

N. B. This is the First Number of the Second Quartery Part for the present Year; Subscribers, w.b. desire to begin with the New Year, will please to give their orders early, that the Proprieters may be enabled to meet their wishes without the expense of reprints. Those to complete the last Quarter are finished, and the Part may be had of all Bookseliers, &c.

Literary Gazette Office, 362, Strand, 5th April.

SERMONS ON THE LORD'S PRAYER, and on Several Subjects. By the REV. & WARD SCOBELL. A. B., Chaplain to the Directors and Guardinas withe Poor of the Parish of St Mary lebone, and Evening Preacher & Portland Chapel. Second Edition, 8vo. Price 12s.

"We are hoppy that it is hour pewer to offer Mr. Scobell the encou-

Price 12s.

"We are hoppy that it is in our power to offer Mr. Scobell the encouragement which he so justly deserves. His doctrines are sound, and his language powerful and animated; and we doubt not, that if these Sermons were to be delivered in the same energetic manner in which they are witten, they would have a strong practical effect upon a large and mixed congregation. The comparison of the pilgrimage of life with that of the israelites through the wilderness is drawn with nuch sweetness, and in a manner that reminds us of Bishop Horne hinself." British Critic.

Printed for B. E. Lloyd and Son; Harley; and Sherwood, Neely, and Jones, Paternoster row.

ones, Paternoster-row

A COMPARATIVE VIEW of the CHURCHES of ENG-

A COMPARATIVE VIEW of the CHURCHES of ENG-LAND and ROME. With an Appendix, containing some Explanatory Notes on Church Aythority, the Character of Schism, and the Rock, on which our Saviour decisred that he would build his Church. By HEILBER'S MARSH, D.B. F.R.S.
Lord Bishop of Peterborough and Margarret, Professor of Divinity in the University of Cambridge.

Printed for F. C. and J. Rivington, 62, St. Paul's Church-yard; and 3, Waterloo-place, Pail Mail.

Of wkom may be had, by the same Author,
2. A CHARGE, delivered at his Primary Visitation at Peterborough, in July, 1820. With he Appendix: containing some Remarks on the modera Castom of singing in our Churches unauthorized Psaims and Hymns, 8vo. 2v. Also his Lordships other Works.

ESTATES, MANSIONS, MANORS, VILLAS, and COTTEXCHARGES.—Mr. SHEE, Agent for the Disposal, Purchase, Hire, Exchange, and Valuation of Landed Estates; Church Preferment, Tythes, Town and Country Houses, and every description of Transferable Property, 41, Southampton-row, Russell-square, tenders his services to Families dispassed to SELL or LET HOUSES in or near Russell or Bedford Squares; or to secure by anticipation, Country Houses, or Tenants of respectability, against the approach of Summer.—Families wishing to Purchase or Rent Mansions (with or without Manors), Villas, or Cottages, will find a selection in every variety in the Counties of Berks, Bucks, Devon, Dorset, Essex, Gloucester, Horeford, Hants, Herts, Kent, Surrey, Sansex, and Middlesex, Monmouth, Northampton, Norfolk, Oxon, Somerset, or North and Soath Wales; a List of which will be forwarded grantituusly, on application, post paid. Early in April will be published the usual List of Landed Property for Sale, by Mr. Shee, calculated to most, the riesse of Capitalists of all degrees, and under highly sexances our cremstances, at the present crisis.

by Mr. Shee, calculated to meet, she present of capitalists of all under highly adecate present crisis.

ROYAL INFIRMARY.

NOR the RELIEF of the POOR afflicted with DISEASES of the EYE, Corketreet, Burtington Gardens, instituted under the immediate Patronage of their late Diajestics and the Royal Family, in the year 1804, and now under the Patronage of His present Majesty.

President:

HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF SOMERSET.

Vice-Presidents:

The Duke of Bedford,

The Rt. Hon, the Lord Bagot,
The Barl of Hessborough.

The Earl of Bessborough.

The Rt. Hon, Lord Braybrooke,
The Earl of Bessborough.

The Rt. Hon, Lord Braybrooke,
The Earl of Bessborough.

The Rt. Hon, the Lord Eardley,
The Barl of Alleshury,
Sir John Wrottesley, Bart.

Nir Wathen Wailer, Bart.

Operating Surgeon and Surgeon in Ordinary—Henry Alexander, Esq.
At the Annual General Meeting of the Governors of this Institution, held at No.6, Cork-street, on Monday, March 26th, 1821.

The EARL of AJLESBURY in the Chair,
It was reported, that since the last General Meeting of the Governors of this Charity, held on the 27th of March, 1920, there had been received 1404 Patients, in addition to 10st then remaining on the Books, 1891 of these had been successfut. Also during the last five years and an half, 46 Persons had been restored to sight by the operation for artificial Pupil.

That the total amount of pour Persons received since the opening of half, 46 Persons had been restored to sight by the operation for half, 46 Persons had been restored to sight by the operation for the Charity on the 26th of March, 1905, was 30,677, of whom 23,835 had been discharged, cured and relieved; 815 deemed incurable, and 1027 remained upon the List.

That within the same period, 1183 operations for the removal of the Cataract had been performed, 1110 of which had terminated successfully, and 120 of these were on Persons born blind.

The Subscriptions become due annually on the 26th of March, and are received by Messrs. Hoare, Bankers, 37. Fleet-street; Robert Mitford, Esq. Treasurer, No. 27, Fitaroy-square; by Henry Alexander, Bsq. No. 5, Cork-street, Burlington Gardens; and by Mr. J. J. Orlton, the Collector, 93, Great Surrey street, Blackfriars.

The Benevolence of the Public is carnestly solicited in behalf of this transitation.

(By Order of the Committee.)

SATURDAY'S GAZETTE, MARCH 31.

DIVIDENDS.

April 21, J. Young, Laystall Street, Liquor pond Street, milkman.—
April 7, J. Dickensen, Marsh Side, Lower Edmonton, sattle dealer.—
April 14, J. Prebble the younger, Saint Mary, Bow, miller.—April 28,
J. Littlewood, Manchester, shopkeeper.—April 3, F. W. Schmaling, Penchurch Street, merchant.—April 30, J. Dawson, Burnham Westgate, Norfolk, bookseller.—April 25, Parkinson, Duckett, and Alsop, Manchester, callco printers.—April 30, F. Haywood, Liverpool, merchant.—
May 5, H. Benham, High Street, Borsungh, Ironmonger.—April 26, H.
Hyde the elder, T. Hyde, and 8, Hyde, Tunnsted, within Saddleworth, Yorkshire, merchants.—April 23, P. Sykes, Manchester, cooper.—April 21, J. Beech, Stone, Staffordshire, linen draper.—April 24, J. B. Hiohon, Kidderminster, factor.—April 28, E. Oldaker, Ipswich, groosr.—April 7, S. Potter, Milk Street, merchant.—April 21, W. Braddadf, North Elmham, Norfolk, baker.—April 14, P. B. Jenes, Birmingham, manufacturer.

TUESDAY'S GAZETTE.

Commission in the Northern Regt. of Lucal Militia, signed by the Lord Lieut. of the County of Northunberland.
W. Orde, Esq. to be Lieut. Co. Commandant, vice St. Paul, deceased, Commissions signed by the Lord Lieut. of the County of Norfolk.
T. C. Blofeld, Clerk, J. Ives, Esq. and J. J. Tuck, to be Dep. Lieuts.
Commissions in the 1st Regiment of Royal Survey Militia, signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Survey.
J. W. Shelton, Esq. Adjutant, to be Captain by Brevet.—J. B. Philipson, Gent. and C. R. Shelton, Gent. to be Ensign.

BANKRUPTS.

P. DEWSBURY, Altringham, Cheshire, corn dealer.
J. MABERLY, Welbeck-atreet, coach manufacturer.
J. BicsBy, Deptierd, brewer.
C. COUPLAND, jun. Leeds, R. COUPLAND, and F. COUPLAND, Hunslet, and Y. and E. COUPLAND, Salford, spirit merchants.
P. 60PK, Bridgenorth, grocer.
W. HULDING, Devonshire-atreet, Queen-square, wine merchant.
B. TROUGHTON, sen. and J. TROUGHTON, Wood-street, silk throwsters.

throwsters.

DIVIDENDS.

May I, H. Burgess and J. Hubbard, Miles Lane, woolstaplers,—April 25, S. G. and R. Webb, Bristol, sugar refiners.—May 5. T. Worth, Tabot Court, haberdasher.—April 7, J. S. Rains, Wapping Wall, merchand. April 14, T. Austin, A. Gregory, and J. Husson, Bath, haberdashers.—April 26, T. Story, Hunworth, Norfolk, miller.—April 26, S. Copland, Holt, Norfolk, miller.—April 26, S. Copland, and biscuit baker.—April 26, C. Seaman and G. Etheridge, Norwich, goldsmiths.—April 24, J. Grover, Hastings, linen draper.—April 28, J. Heckers, Derking, line burner.—April 29, A. Kelly, Colonnade, Pall Mall jeweller.—April 28, R. Farrer, Broad Street, warehouseman.—April 29, J. Blackborn, Witham, corn factor.—April 27, W. Willans, South Shields, clothler.

CERTIFICATES-April 24.

CBRTIFICATES—April 24.

T. C. B. Pryer, Birchin Laue, saddler.—J. Bryant, Liverpool, merchant.—J. Wildman, Whitechapel Road, plumber.—O. Blogg, Alderagate Street, jeweller.—R. Watson, Leyland, Lancashire, farmer.—J. Loone, Coventry, builder.—J. Rnuer, Winterton, merchant.—T. Tipping, Warrington, miller.—S. Trehane, Exeter, silversmith.—A Anderson, West Smithfield, bookseller.—T. Wotton, Bristol, leather factor.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTE.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTE.

WAR-OFFICE, April 6, 1821.

3d Reg. of Foot Guards—Capt. B. Dea Voeux, from half-pay 60th Foot. to be Lieut. and Capt. vice Evelya, who exchanges.

4th Reg. Lt. Drag.—Sec. Lieut. M. C. D. St. Quintis, from 21st Foot. to be Cornet, vice Bruce, who exchanges from half-pay 12th Foot, to be 8na. vice M'Dermott, who exchanges —Eus. J. Wor-ley. from 5th Royal Veteran Battalion, to be Quarter-master, vice Edwards, who returns to his former half-pay.

15th Ditte—Assist.-Surg. R. Badenach, from 59th Foot, to be 8urg. vice Davy, promoted on the Staff.

20th Ditto—Capt. C. Harrison, from half-pay 53d Foot, to be Capt. vice Obins, who exchanges.

21st Ditto—Lieut. J. Caldwell, from half-pay 2d West India Reg. to be Lieut. vice Christie, who exchanges.—Cornet R. N. Bruce, from the 4th Light Drag. to be Sec. Lieut. vice St. Quintin, who exchanges.

37th Ditto—Capt. J. Statinton, from half-pay York Chasseurs, to be Capt. vice Jones, who exchanges.

38th Regt. of Foot—Lieut. A. Knox Huston, from half-pay 67th Foot, to be Lieut. vice De Lapasture, who exchanges, receiving the difference.

59th ditto—Super. Ass.-Surgeon F. Sievwright to be Ass.-Surgeon-vice Badenach, promoted in the 15th Foot.

69th ditto—Col. C. Bruce, from half-pay 39th Foot, to be Lieut. Col. without purchase, vice De la Douespe, deceased.

78th ditto—Col. C. Bruce, from half-pay 19th Foot, to be Lieut.—Col. without purchase, vice De la Douespe, deceased.

78th ditto—Col. C. Bruce, from half-pay 19th Foot, to be Lieut.—Col. without purchase, vice De la Douespe, deceased.

78th ditto—Col. C. Bruce, from half-pay 19th Foot, to be Lieut.—Col. without purchase, vice De la Douespe, deceased.

78th ditto—Col. Mannot to be Lieut, without purchase, vice M'Queen, deceased: A. Montresson, Gent. to be Ensign, vice Munra.

2d West India Regt.—Ass.-Surgeon H. Kelly, from half-pay 1st West. India Regt. to he Ass.-Surgeon, vice Spry, who exchanges.

Colonial Company at the Mauritius—Second Lieut. C. M'Kensie Campbell to be First Lieut, without purchas

Royal Reg. of Artillery—Brevet Lieut. Col. R. Bull, to be Major of Brigade to the Royal Artillery—Brevet Lieut. Col. R. Bull, to be Major of Corps of Royal Engineers—First Lieut. T. H. Elliott to be Sec. Capt.—See Lieut. It. N. Lagden to be First Lieut.—Gapt. R. Jones, from the half-pay, to be Capt.—First Lieut. G. Dalton, from the half-pay, to be Sec. Lieut. F. Prazer, from the half-pay, to be Sec. Lieut.—Lieut.—Sec. Lieut. F. Prazer, from the half-pay, to be Sec. Lieut.—Lieut.—Col. W. Gossett, from the half-pay, to be Lieut.—Col. First Lieut.—Englishment of the Half-pay to be ditto—Sec. Lieut.—J. Walpole, from the half-pay, to be ditto—Sec. Lieut.—J. Walpole, from the half-pay, to be Sec. Lieut.—Brevet Lieut.—Col. C. G. Ellicombe to be Major of Brigade to the Corps, vice Handfield, deceased.

Lord Chamberlain's Office, March 30, 1821.

Notice is hereby given, that His Majesty will hold a Levee at Carltone House, on Wednesday, the 2d of May next, at two o'clock.

Lord Chamberlain's Office, March 30, 1821.

Notice is hereby given, that, is consequence of St. Goorge's Day occurring on Raster Monday, the Drawing-room intended to be held, at Buckingham-Palace, in celebration of His Majesty's Birth-day, is postponed to Thursday, the 3d of May noxt, at two o'clock.

N.B. The Knights of the several Orders will appear in their Collars.

The King has been pleased to appoint the Marquess of Graham Viscon Chamberlain of his Majesty's Household, in the room of Viscound Jocelyn, now the Earl of Roden.

The King has been pleased to appoint Major-Gen. Sir Andrew Francis Barnard, K. C. B. one of the Grooms of His Majesty's Bedehamsten in the room of Sir George Campbell, deceased.

The King has been pleased to appoint the Lord Lovaine one of the Lords of His Majesty's Bedehamsten, in the room of the Earl of Fife.

BANKRUPTS.

W. CAPE, of London-Bridge-Foet, Grocer.
C. BALL, of Post-Ford Hill, Surrey, Paper Maker.
W. BRANDON, Keut-street, Southwark, Buffdrr.
T. FARQUHARSON, Swansea, Meschant.
H. STANLEY, of Jaskhouse, Lancaster, Whitster,
J. WILKINSON, of Great Driffield, York, Coal-Marchant.
J. BURBURY, Ceventry, Ribbon Mannfacturer.
R. CLEMENTS, Coventry, Ribbon Mannfacturer.
W. BERRIMAN, of Lyrchara, Wilts, Timber-Merchant.
J. MATTHEWS, Coventry, Ribbon Manufacturer.
J. MATTHEWS, Coventry, Ribbon Manufacturer.
J. MATTHEWS, Coventry, Ribbon Manufacturer.
J. AYTON and J. W. SANDERS, Newcastle-upos-Tyne, 156
hants.

I. AYIUN and J. W. SARIBERS, reweasting-upon-ayaw, searchants.
F. JEFFS, Coventry, Shopkeeper.
W. JACKSON' Bristol, Cornisotor,
J. PALMER, of Rugeley, Stafford, Butcher,
R. RITCHIE, of Mill Lane, Deptford, Brewer.
J. WRIGHT, of Bermondsey street, Provision-Merchant.
G. SEAMAN, of Bishopagate-street, Linen-Draper.
R. BRISTOW the Younger, of Lloyd's-Coffce-House, Insurance-Reserver.

ker.
R. J. ROBERTS, Minories, Ireamonger.
W. HARDWICK, Poynipgs, Sussex, Farmes, supercoded,...R. GANDY, Western Tewas, Somerset, Farmer, supercoded,...J. BOREHAM, Haropful, Seidak: Oseamon-Brewer, supersoded...R. BURBURT, Coventry, Silk and Tritaming-Manufacturer, supersoded.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

MONDAY.

The Grampound Witnesses Bill was returned from the House of Commons, it having been agreed to.

of Commons, it having been agreed to.

The Marquis of Lansdowne presented several petitions from Clothiers in the West of England, praying for a repeal of the Tax on Wool, as being highly injurious to the manufacturing interests. It was laid on the table.

The Bishop of Chester presented a petition from the Archdeaconry and Chapter of Chester, against the Catholic Claims, which was laid on the table.—Adjourned.

TUESDAY.

Sir J. Newport brought up the Roman Catholic Disabilities Removal Bill, which was read a first time.

The Earl of Donoughmore proposed that the second reading should stand for Tuesday next. He had the best reasons for kelleving, that the Bill, in its progress through this House, might lieving, that the Bill, in its progress through this House, might receive such amendments as would effectually remove his objections, and those of the Catholic Clergy, without diminishing any of the securities.

The Earl of Liverpool said, he should, on the second readthe Eurs of Liverpool said, no should, on the second reading, object to it—to that part which provided for removing the disabilities; and also, to the other part which imposed new restrictions on the Clergy, which tended to take away all the grace of the concessions which were made. Some were highly unjust and others most impolitie. He was considered highly unjust, and others most impolitic. He was convinced that they would not answer the purpose of the Catholics.

The Earl of Donoughmore was sorry the Noble Earl did not feel like him on the general principle of the measure.

The Lord Chanceller said, it was his full conviction that the great interests of our civil and constitutional establishments would not permit him to agree to this Bill, such as it had been introduced, nor did be think that be could consent to its passing into a law, whatever modifications it might receive.

The Bill was ordered to be read a second time on Tuesday

WEDNESDAY.

Lord Colville presented a petition from the borough of Chippenham against the Roman Catholic claims.—Laid on the table.—Adjourned.

THURSDAY. Mr. Hart was heard, in the Committee of Privileges, on the Strathmore Peerage. Further hearing postponed till this day se'nnight.

The Judgment of the Court of Session, in "Dennistoun v.

Lillie," was confirmed by the House.

Petitions from the Cathedral Church of Canterbury, from the Dean and Prebendary of Norwich, from the Clergy and Diocese of Gloucester, from the Rector of the Parish of St. George, at Exeter, and from the Royal Burgh of Queensferry, were presented against the Catholic Claims.—Adjourned. FRIDAY.

The Royal Assent was given, by Commission, to the Comercial Intercourse; the Husbandry Horses Duties, the Irish Attornies' Fees Regulations, the Irish Witcheraft Law Repeal, the Grampound Witnesses Indemnity, and various other Bills.

The Innkeepers' Rates Bill was read a third time and passed Various Petitions were presented against the Roman Catholic Claims, which were laid on the table.— Adjourned till Monday.

The Earl of Donoughmore presented a petition from the Roman Catholic Bishop and Clergy of the county of Limerlek, objecting to the Bills now in progress.

The Lord Chancellor objected to the phraseology of the petition, which represented one of the petitioners as the Catholic Bishop of Limerick; there could not be two Bishops of Limerick. The petition was laid on the table.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

MONDAY.

Petitions were presented from the Mayor and Corporation of Winchester, the Burgh of Queensferry, Dumfries, St. Paul, Bristol, Christ Church, Canterbury, and from 1,100 of the Inhabitants of St. Saviour's Parish, Southwark, (600 of whom were electors) against the Catholic Claims.

On presenting the latter petition, Mr. H. Sumner wished the House to observe, from the petition, low incorrect must have been the Gallant General's (Major-General Wilson), assertion the other evening, when he said, he spoke the sentiments of his constituents in advocating the Catholic Claims.

Major-General Wilson in reply said, if he had not the concurrence of the majority of his constituents, he would withdraw, and they were welcome to his seat. The petition was ordered to he printed.

On the motion of Mr. Butterworth an account of all the weekly Newspapers published in the Metropolis, with an account of the Revenue derived to Government from the same, was ordered to be Inid before the House.

The Grampound Witnesses Bill was passed.

Apetition was presented by Lord A. Hamilton, from certain Burgesses and Members of the Guildry in Edinburgh, complaining of the self-election of Magistrates, and abuses consequent upon such self-election, and that they could not obtain redress from the Court of Session in Scotland.

Mr. Hume, Mr. Abercrombie, Sir R. Ferguson, and Mr. J. P. Grant said the petitioners had just cause for complaint. Mr. W. Dundas and the Lord Advocate said, a Committee had been appointed three years ago to enquire into the subject. The petition was ordered to be printed.

A petition was presented from a person, named Chilney, complaining of the Gaoler of Ilchester Prison. It was laid n the table

On the Order of the Day for the third reading of the Catholic

Disabilities Bill,
Sir W. Scott objected to the Bill as being unsatisfactory to the parties most interested—it would be any thing but a Bill of reconciliation. The Right Hon. Gent. shewed, that in the of reconciliation. The Right Hon. Gent. shewed, that in the time of Queen Anne, Roman Catholics were obliged to attend the Protestant Churches, to screen themselves from the rigour of the laws. He thought they could not complain of the rigour of the disabling laws, while they continued to acknowledge the Supremacy of the Pope and the doctrine of Transubstantiation. As the Oath of Supremacy stood in the Bill, it was far from giving the Sovereign that full and undivided allegiance which he ought to possess; and Dr. Milner regarded it as an oath, that a conscientious Catholic could not take. The provisions with respect to the intercourse with the See of Rome and the Catholic, were objectionable. He considered the Bill in fact, a departure from the land mark of the Constitution, in fact, a departure from the land mark of the Constitution, and therefore should move, that instead of now, "it be read a third time on that day six months."

Sir. G. Hill considered the Bill to be revolutionary in its matter, and went to put down the ancient land marks of the Constitution. The Bill of Rights had been particularly discussed against Ropery, and in that, the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy were enacted. The Bill put both the property and the religion of the country in peril. The Titular Arch-bishop of Dublin, (Dr. Troy), assembled the Clergy, and they declared they could not assent to the provisions of the Bill for regulating the See of Rome, or to that which sanctioned the intermeddling of the Government with the Bishops, the same resolutions was come to in Limerick.

Mr. O'Grady supported the Bill.

Mr. Filzgibbon thought a correct idea of the sentiments of the Roman Catholics, could not be gathered from the meetings alluded to.

Mr. S. Rice thought that no securities were wanted, and was of opinion, the Bill would operate between the unqualified demands of the Roman Catholics, and the prejudiced fears and jeulousies of the Protestants.

Mr. C. Hutchinson objected particularly to that part of the Bill relating to the Veto.

Mr. Ellis considered the first of the Bills as destructive to the stability of the empire, and the second went to take all the good provided by the first—the disapprobation of the Protestants to the measure, was to be collected from the petitions on the table, especially those from Ireland. Indeed, the Bill was rejected by the Roman Catholics, neither Protestant nor Roman Catholic were satisfied. He referred to the Rebellion of 1798, which he considered to be nothing less than a Popish insurrection.

Mr. Robinson hoped to see the Catholic and the Protestant in that House, with no feelings to each other, but those of kindness and friendship, and a mutual desire for the happiness mnd bosour of the country.

Mr. Goulburn opposed the Bill, and called upon the House to recollect the disgrace which would descend to their posterity, if they broke in upon the safeguards of the Established Church.

Lord Binning supported the Bill.

Mr. Peel thought the Bill would not have the effect of concliating the Catholics. He thought it would affect the security of the Protestant Church, and therefore opposed it.

Mr. Canning ridiculed the visionary fears of these who opposed the measure—he did not fear the destruction of the Protestant Church, if the Bill passed into a law, on the contrary, it would heal the wounds of the Catholics, and go down to posterity with a halo of glory around it, composed of the names of all those who had been chiefly instrumental in framing it.

A division then took place on the third reading—For the Bill, 216—Against it, 197—Majority, 19.—The Bill was then read a third time.

Mr. Peel proposed to leave the Oath of Supremacy out of the Bill .- It was negatived.

The Bill was then passed and ordered to the Lords .- Ad-

TUESDAY.

Mr. Alderman Wood moved the second reading of the Blackfriar's Bridge Repairs Bill.

Sir J. Graham moved "that it be read this day three months."

The House divided—Ayes, 19—Noes, 19.

The Speaker gave the custing vote for the amendment; and the Bill was, of course, thrown out.

Petitions were presented from Northampton, Nottingham, Worksop, Highworth, Royston, Great Stanmore, Market Deeping, Hadleigh, Ipswich, Great Grimsby, and others, in favour of the repeal of the Malt Tax.

Mr. Canning presented a petition from Liverpool, praying that the House would lighten the pressure of the protecting duties upon Irish Commodities.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer pledged himself to bring the subject under consideration shortly. The petition was ordered to be printed.

On the second reading of the Bill for repealing the duties on malt, some discussion arose. Mr. Western wished to know what were the intentions of the Right Hon. Gent. as to the high duty on Scotch malt. Was it intended to bring in a Bill, fixing the duty in England, Ireland, and Scotland, at 1s. 2d. so as to press equally on all.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer was understood to reply in the affirmative.

Sir J. Shelley enforced the necessity of giving relief to the agricultural interest. He thought the amount of this tax might be taken from the Sinking Fund, which fund was a humbug on the country. Some of the taxes ought to be reduced; and he thought a limited property-tax might be substituted in lieu of those taken off.

The Hon. Mr. Ward was not prepared to say the Sinking Fund was a fallacy. With respect to an income tax, if one was laid, it ought to be a large one; but on this he would not give any decided opinion. The principle of such a tax had been strongly objected to before, and he did not think this a time for laying such a tax upon the people. The House should, in voting on this Bill, consider well the subject, and the necessity for supporting the Government of the country.

Mr. Grenfell contended, that the Sinking Fund was a fal-lacy. The only substantial Sinking Fund which could be established, was a surplus beyond the expenditure. Gentlemen would find themselves mistaken if they supposed the repeal of this tax would afford relief to the agricultural interests.

Mr. Leckhart supported the Bill, on the ground that the agricultural interests required consideration. He was of opinion, that there were various sources from which the deficiency of this tax might be supplied.

Mr. J. Smith thought that the greater portion of the agricultural interest would not find any relief from the measure. He adverted to the state of the Poor Laws, which he considered to be most dangerous in their principle, as well as injurious in their operation. Economy would tend more than any thing to relieve the distress which was generally felt.

Sir J. Boughey supported the Bill, upon the understanding that no other tax was to be substituted.

Mr. Curwen supported the Bill. Parliament could not separate without coming to some determination to give the agricul-turist relief. The fund-holder he considered as exempt from the pressure, while the land-holder paid, in poor's rates and other taxes, 32 per cent.

Mr. Benett thought the tax fell more immediately on the labourer. The best means of affording relief would be, for the House to allow the labourer to earn his bread by the sweat of his brow.

Mr. Douglas opposed the repeal,
Mr. Bright was rather disposed to vote for a repeal of the tax upon leather, and those other taxes which fell upon all, for the distress was general; but, however, he would vote for the repeal of this tax.

Colonel Wood admitted, the agricultural, commercial, and manufacturing interests were inseparable. He did not think the repeal of the Malt Tax would materially relieve the first of these interests. The lessening of the duty did not affect in a great degree, the price of mait; for, in 1816, when the Mait Duty was taken off, the price was 63s, per quarter; and in the following year, it rose to 90s. He thought the House had done wrong in repealing the property-tax. A modified tex of that nature, or a judicious tax upon the funds, would afford much more relief to the agriculturists than the repeal of the Mait Tax.

Mr. F. Lewis deprecated the renewal of the property-tax in any shape. He objected to a tax on the funds. He should not vote for a repeal of the Malt Tax, because he could not consent to the relief of one interest only, nor did he believe the repeal would benefit the agricultural interest effectually.

Mr. Gordon objected to the Bill, as not extending to Scotland, and could not give it his support.

Lord Castlercagh professed to feel the greatest anxiety for the landed interest, and therefore, to resist a measure proposed for their relief was to him a most arduous and painful task. The Noble Lord then referred to some of the topics urged by the Hon. Members who preceded him. To repeal this tax would not give the expected relief; nor would breaking faith with the public creditor ever, he conceived, be sanctioned by the House. Public credit would be destroyed root and branch, if they proceeded to undermine the revenue of the country, and to-make the payment of the interest of the debt dependent from time to time on temporary loans, afforded to a bankrupt Ex chequer. With respect to the relief to be afforded by this Bill, the quantum would be so small, as scarcely to be felt. It would be necessary to inquire first whether the country was in such a situation with respect to its revenue and expenditure, that, consistent with what was due to the public creditor, any reduction of taxation could take place; and whether the Malt Tax was part of the revenue which the House could first reduce, and whether any information was on the table, which could lead to a conclusion that it ought to be repeated. Now, the consumption of barley had increased, on an average of the last 30 years, from 6, to 700,000 bushels per annum: that being the case, be could not see why Gentlemen should declare that the pressure was great, and call for a repeal of this particular tax. To pass this Bill, would be to sacrifice a million and a half of the Revenue, without relieving the consumer to the amount of a single fraction. That the consumption had not suffered from the tax was clear; for since it was imposed, in 1819, the annual consumption of beer had exceeded the former average, by 1,200,000 barrels. When the duty on malt was 4s. 6d. the annual consumption was 26,000,000 bushels. In 1817, when it was reduced to 2s, 4d, the consumption fell to 17,000,000. In the year ending the 5th Jan. 1821, the duty being 3s, 6d, the consumption was 24,600,000 bushets. It was clear, therefore, that the landed interest suffered less from the Malt Tax thun any other. He loved the landed interest better than any other. He would rather consent to repeal the Window Duties than this tax. The Nobie-Lord concluded with repeating his arguments in favour of continuing the present taxes, in order to obtain surplus revexue for a Sinking Fund.

Mr. Coke gave his most cordial support to the Bill. Dire taxation was the cause of the present distressed state of the country. The Noble Lord had said, the repeal of this tax would not benefit the landed interest. In reply to this, he would refer to the experience of 1815 and 1917: the tax, in these years, was only 18s, per quarter. The Malt Tax was repealed, and harley rose to a remunerating price. No complaint was heard was only 18s, per quarter. The mait law was repeated, and barley rose to a remunerating price. No complaint was heard on the subject, till the Chancellor of the Exchequer imposed a new Malt Tax; then the price of barley declined.

Lord A. Hamilton supported the Bill; and observed, that a Noble Eurl had lately been removed from his situation, in consequence of having favoured the repeal of the Malt Tax.

The Earl of Fife could not keep silence after the allusions made to him; he had no hesitation in believing, that a dismissal from the place he held was not necessary, unless from political motives. He had been ordered to hold himself in readiness to attend His Majesty to Ireland; and shortly, on voting as he did, he received a communication that his serv were no longer necessary. The vote he gave was without party spirit.

Lord Folkestone supported the Bill; as did Mr. Wodehouse.
Mr. Western replied.—The House divided.—For the second. ading, 144-Against it, 242-Majority against the Bill, 98 .-

The Bill, of course, is lost.
WEDNESDAY. The Speaker took the Chair at four o'clock; and there being only 37 Members present, the House adjourned.
THURSDAY.

Sir J. Mackintosh gave notice that he should, on Tuesday, move for leave to bring in a Bill to revise the Criminal Code, intending to move merely that it be printed, and that the discussion take place on the 3rd of May.

Mr. Hume gave notice that he should, on Tuesday next, move for a Bill to disqualify certain Officers of the Ordnance from sitting in that House.

Lord Cranbourne moved for a Committee to take into consideration the state of the Game Laws, which, in many instances, were absurd and inconsistent; and he deprecated the sending so many persons to prison under these laws, for offences committed under them.

Sir J. Seebright, in seconding the motion, observed, that the Laws had a tendency to corrupt the morals of the people, the Laws nad a tenuency to contract and to crowd the gaols.

Sir J. Shelley, Mr. Bankes, Mr. Lockhart, Lord Lowther, Sir C. Burrell, and Mr. Douglas were unfriendly to the motion.
Sir J. Yorke, Col. Wood, Mr. H. G. Bennett, Mr. Warre, and Mr. Harbord supported the motion.

The House then divided. For the Motion, 52-Against it, 86-Majority, 34.

Mr. Curwen moved to repeal the Tax on Agricultural Horses, which he thought would contribute to relieve the distress on the It was a tax which pressed upon all farmers, rich and poor, and upon no other class in the community; the tax upon agricultural horses was as bad as a tax upon the plough, the loom, or any other of the machinery of industry. If a farmer had three horses, he was obliged to pay 17s.—if a fourth, he was compelled to pay 10s. 6d. for a groom, although the horse never had any thing but a whisp of straw over his coat; the whole charge for these four horses would be 51. 10s. making it, thereby, an oppressive tax. The taking it off would be equal to 2s. 6d. a-week to every labourer in the kingdom. He deprecated the idea of throwing the inferior lands out of cultivation. Of the great corn merchants in Europe, who at present were the Monarchs, the King of Sweden was the last great importer of oats into this country; the King of Denmark had a great stock of corn stored into the warehouses on the coast of Holland ready to pour into this country when the ports should open. He noticed the hardship of making the farmer pay for his cart merely because it had springs. Mr. C. Wynn seconded the motion, and agreed that it was impossible the poor lands could be cultivated—the present tax was burdensome and oppressive on the farmer.

Sir C. Burrell thought, as the Agricultural Committee had not made their report, it was unnecessary to entertain this moand hoped it would be withdrawn. admitted the hardship of the tax.

Mr. Davenport hoped the motion would be withdrawn.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer would not pledge himself to any course of proceeding till the Committee had made their report. He had not heard any thing which Gentlemen could offer to compensate for the loss of 500,000l. per annum, if he gave up this tax. After he had heard the report of the Committee, he, perhaps, might be induced to agree with the Hon.

After some further conversation, Mr. Curwen withdrew his

The debate on the Bank Cush Payment Bill was adjourned till Monday.

The House went into a Committee on the Timber Trade.

Mr. Wallace entered into some statements, to shew the adwantages which would be derived to the country from favouring the trade in timber from our Colonies, and moved a Resolution accordingly. He was not disposed to favour Norway in her trade, to the exclusion of Russia and Prussia.

Sir H. Parnell moved an amendment, proposing that, after the 1st January, 1825, the duty on all foreign timber imported should be 21. per load of 50 cubic feet, and upon deals, 21.5s.

Mr. G. Bennett disapproved of the plan for enabling Russia to compete with N rway, the Right Hon. Gent. should not forget that he was legislating for England.

Mr. K. Douglas, Sir M. W. Ridley, Mr. Sykes, Lord Althorpe, Mr. F. Robinson, Mr. Baring, Mr. Ricardo, &c. supported the original proposition.—Mr. F. Lewis supported the amendment.—On a division the numbers were—For the Resolutions, 71—Against them, 24—Majority, 47.—For Sir H. Parnell's Amendment, 15—Against it, 51—Majority, 36.—Ad-

FRIDAY.

As soon as the Speaker took the Chair, the House was sum-moned to the House of Lords, in the usual manner, to hear the Royal assent given, by Commission, to several Bills. On the return of the Speaker to the Chair.

Mojor-Gen. Wilson rose, and said he wished to call the attention of the House to a subject, in his opinion, of deep importance. The House would recollect that a question had been referred to a Select Committee, whether or not the Standing Orders of the House had been complied with in reference to this Bill. They reported in the affirmative, and the Bill was then referred back to the original Committee. At the sitting of the Committee that day, a motion was made that the Report of the Select Committee be laid before them, which motion was negatived on a division. He felt it his duty to move in the Committee that an adjournment do take place, in order to ascertain the sense of the House upon the propriety of the former proceeding. This motion was also negatived. Under these circumstances, he thought it to be his duty to lay the matter before the House, as it appeared to him that the intention of those who constituted the majority of the House was to blind justice, and present a full and impartial exposition of the subject before the whole of the Committee. He concluded by moving that the Report of the Select Committee on the Standing Or-ders of the House, with respect to the Newington Select Vestry Bill, be referred to the Committee on the said Bill.

Some conversation arose on this motion, in which complaint vas made of the conduct of the Chairman of the Committee, (Mr. H. Sumper) in which Mr. Hume, Mr. Lambton, Mr. F. Palmer, Mr. Sergeant Onslow, Mr. S. Wortley, and several other Members took part.

Mr. Hume said it was to the interference of the Hon. Chairman that he attributed all this conflict and confusion, feeling so, he should now move that the conduct of the Hon.

Member for Surrey, as Chairman of the Committee on the Newington Select Vestry Bill, was intemperate and irregular, and that such conduct led to all the riot and disorder that took place; which ended without the motion being put.
Mr. Serg. Onslow moved the third reading of the Trials for Treason Ireland Bill. The Learned Sergeant, at the same time, brought up a new clause, the effect of which was to enact, that in all cases of any direct attempt on the life or personal safety of the King, the prisoner charged with the treason should be put on his trial, and convicted only by the same rule of evidence as applied in cases of murder.

was read a third time and passed.

Mr. D. Gilbert moved the second reading of the Metropolis Roads Bill. The Hon. Member stated, that the object of Bill was to consolidate the various Road Trusts in the neighbourhood of London. He complained that these trusts were too much subdivided, and the object of his Bill would be to reduce some of the roads and shut up others. He did not deny but that the roads under the present system were tolerably good, but they were preserved at a great expence.

Sir E. Knatchbull contended, that the new Bill would entail ten times the expence on repairing the roads, which, under the present system, was required. He opposed the Bill in all its arts, and moved, as an amendment, that it be read a second time this day six months.

For the Motion, 83-for the Amendment, 16-Majority, 67.

On our re-admission to the gallery, we found Mr. H. Sumner moving that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee

Mr. D. Gilbert preferred a Committee of the whole House vet, with a view to conciliate all parties, he should not object to the motion.

Sir H. Parnell, Sir E. Knatchbull, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Mr. Calcraft said a few words, after which the motion was carried without a division, and the Committee appointed accordingly.

Lord Milton postponed till after the Easter recess his motion for the repeal of the duty on Foreign Wool.—His Lordship then moved for an Account of all Foreign Wool exported since the year 1815.—Ordered.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer moved the Order of t Day for the House to resolve itself into a Committee of Supply on the Army Estimates.

Mr. Creevey rose to oppose the motion, and, in doing so, be felt be had a disagreeable but necessary duty to perform. could not be pleasant to him to introduce topics which in themselves were most unpleasant, but when he saw no disposition whatever on the part of the Crown to economize the public money, he could not consent to indulge them in any votes which they might think proper to propose. after some further observations, concluded by moving, as an amendment, a Resolution to the following effect:—

That during the present Session of Parliament, petitions had been sent from all parts of the country, complaining of dis-tress, and demanding relief; that the statements contained in e petitions were confirmed by the local information of gentlemen, who had an opportunity of judging as to the facts, yet that millions had still been voted without any reduction having taken place, although the most strenuous efforts had been mad Members in support of it; that the House entertained an indifference on the subject, which was attributable to the large pecuniary provision made out of the pockets of the people for persons connected with the Ministers of the Crown, and that those persons had a direct interest to reject all reform whatever; that the House viewed with the utmost in lignation the influence of the Crown employed by the Minister in interfering with Members, as to the manner in which they were to give their votes; that the Earl of Fife had declared in his place, that he had been dismissed from the situation he held as a Lord of the Bedchamber, from having voted in favour of a Bill for repealing the tax upon malt; and that the House owed it to its ewn honour to inquire into those facts, rather than proceed fur-ther in voting away the public money.

Mr. Hobhouse seconded the amendment.

Mr. Calcraft thought that part of his Hon. Friend's proposition which respected Lord Fife, deserved, he thought, the most serious attention, and he called upon the Noble Lord opposite to give the House some explanation of the dismissal of that Noble Lord from his office.

Lord Castlereagh said, that the Hon. Member who had proposed this resolution, had only acted in his usual vocation. He was the protestor-general and libeller-general of Parliament; and only pursued his common course, by speaking a kind of prologue to the elaborate piece which the Hon. Member for Aberdeen was to perform by and bye.—It was rather a curious circumstance, however, that the Hon. Member for Appleby did not think it necessary to make any complaint of the kind with which he now came forward, when he had formerly held a distinguished office in the Board of Controul; then no complaints were heard from the Hon. Member; no reductions were pro-posed by him while he was in office; not a word was spoken by him to that effect, until he found himself in the situation in which he now was, and in which he (Lord C.) trusted he would long remain.—He had been called upon by the Hon. Member for Wareham to explain why it was that Lord Fife had been removed from his office. Now, he conceived that he was no more bound to enter into any explanation why an individual was removed from his office, then why an individual was appointed to an office. He apprehended that it was exclusively the prerogative of the Crown to appoint its servants, and it was equally its prerogative to dismiss them. He did not, therefore, feel that he owed it either to the Hon. Member who spoke last, or to the Hon. Member for Westminster, to give any explanation upon this point. No particular ground, he believed, was stated for the removal of Lord Pife, nor was any other latimation given him, than that his services were no longer required. But Lord Fife himself had hypothecated a reason for his removal, and he went into an explanation of the situation in which he stood as a Member of Parliament—things with which he (Lord C.) had nothing whatever to do. He felt himself bound to give no explanation of his removal from his office; yet he had no hesitation in asserting, that the Crown, in the legitimate possession and exercise of its prerogative, was not unjustifiable in requiring that all those who served it, and were united with its Ministers in office, should concur with them on measures of vital importance. He would say, that the individual who voted against the Malt Tax, after the Government had declared that they had placed their existence upon the continuance of that tax, and that they could not carry on the administration of the country unless Parliament supplied them with the means to do so—he repeated, that the individual who, after that declaration. d against the tax, did in effect vote the dismissal of the present Ministry. He said thus much in justification of the circumstance in question, though he would repeat, he owed to Hon.

Members no explanation concerning it.

Mr Tierney fully agreed, that the Crown had the absolute power of nomination and removal, but the House in this instance did not exist in the removal, but in the grounds which The Noble Lord had gone out of his way were assigned for it. to attack other Gentlemen. He believed undoubtedly that on the occasion referred to it was said that no Administration ought to stand, unless it had the controll of the Household. And the Noble Lord well knew, that if they had not that controul there would be two jarring interests in this House, that of the Ministers and that of the Household. He would ask his Hon. Friend not to press this Resolution now, but to bring it forward in a more detailed form at another time. If he persevered to a division, he (Mr. T.) must say that it would not be in his power to support him.

The House then divided—For Mr. Creevey's resolution, 36—Against it, 120—Majority against the resolution.

Lord Pulmeraton then rose, and moved, that the sum of

So,4181. be granted for defraying the expenses of the office of Secretary at War for one year.

Colonel Davies complained of the enormous expense now proposed to be incurred for this office, which expense was more than double the sum voted for the same office in 1806, a period of active war; and he wished to know why so large a sum should be required in the seventh year of peace. What reason, he asked, could there be for making a large augmentation in the salaries of clerks and other persons in the Office clerk had a salary of 1,2001. a year, while a General Officer in the Army had no more than 4001. a year. The Secretary at War had a private Secretary with a salary of 3001. a year; and this Secretary, he understood, held another office. Allowing the War Office the same expense attending it in 1806, the whole sum ought to be no more than 38,0001.; and under all the circumstances, he should move a reduction of 5,000l. as an amendment to the Noble Lord's motion.

Lord Palmerston said he should support the estimate as it stood. The expense in 1806 was 50,8321, because many fees were then taken which had since been abolished. Besides, in 1806, there was no provision for the settlement of arrear accounts, the expence of which now amounted to 17,0001. As to his private Secretary having two offices, it was true that he discharged other duties for which he received 2001, a year, and he had to superintend all the foreign correspondence year an arrear of 14,000l. had been recovered and paid into the Bank; and the amount of money recovered last the expence of the War Office to amount to nothing. During the war the foreign branch was never increased, it was too small during the war; and in order to do justice to various claimants, it became necessary to increase the expence attending that branch of the War Office.

Mr. Hume stated his determination to follow the example of his Honorable Friend, the Member for Appleby, so long as be endeavoured to reduce the expenditure of the country He regretted extremely the division which had just taken place, because Gentlewien were found to differ upon the letter, though they agreed in substance. He thought the Secretary of the Noble Lord ought not to hold two offices; and the numerous superannuations which had taken place was a heavy grievance to the country, which should not have been allowed.

He thought, that instead of 5,0001, the reduction moved by his gullant friend, the reduction ought to be 10,0001.; but, as half a loaf was better than no bread, he was willing to take the Lord Palmerston replied to the observations of the last Spenker, and contended that instead of adding to the public expenditure, he had effected a reduction in one department alone of 22,0001, per annum. The total amount of law charges never exceeded 3,000l, per ann, and the total charge for agency was but 32,0001, on which the Hon Gentleman said there was an overcharge of 25,0001. He denied the assertion of the Hon. Gentleman, that he (Lord P.) was auditor of his own accounts, and defended the practices of replying to written inquiries

The House then went into a Committee.

The Committee then divided—For the original motion, 108—Against it, 67—Majority, 39.—The orders of the day were then disposed of, and the House adjourned at two o'clock to Monday.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

COURT OF CHANCERY .- APRIL 5. Howard and Gibbs's Bankruptey.

Mr. Hart proceeded, pursuant to the Order of his Lordship made yesterday, to open a petition of Messrs. Carroll, Richardson and Fisher, who had been appointed assignees, praying that Mr. G. Smith, the Solicitor of the petitioning creditor, might be ordered to deliver up to them the proceedings that had taken place on the issuing out of the Commission, which he had refused to do. He enforced the great necessity there was nad recused to do. He entorced the great necessity there was of making the order in question, by stating the great number of persons who were interested in the issue of this case. Having noticed the applications made to Smith, to deliver up the papers, &c. in question, he read the letter of Mr. Smith, constitution in the refuse the second but of the second constitution taining the refusal, but offering to produce them at any time, though he would not deliver them up.

Mr. Montague, after observing on the great importance of the present question, and having adduced a case in point, decided by his Lordship in 1813, enforced his argument by saying there was at the present moment an execution in the house of one of the bankrupts, the proceedings under which had been ordered by the Lord Chief Justice to be stayed. - This was another reason why the present petition should be heard without

The Lord Chancellor said, the reason be had made an order for the thus early hearing of the case was, that grounds of so important a nature had been presented to him yesterday, that he felt himself bound to do so.

Mr. Whitmarsh, for the petitioning creditor, opposed the motion, on the ground that there were strong rousons to doubt. the justness of the claim of Mr. Carroll, as he really bolieved that his debt was an usurious one, having been mixed up with other accounts, for the purpose of getting him appointed assignee. In fact, there had been two sets of goatlemen named for assignees, and he thought this fact would induce his Lordship to take a different view of this case than his Learned Friends on the other side anticipated.

After some further argument, his Lordship granted the prayer of the petition; and, at the same time, directed that the others might be heard by the Vice-Chancellor, as, from his various occupations, at present, it was quite impossible that he could do so. The assignees, his Lordship observed, when oncompointed, were the only persons liable until they were discharged, for no attorney could hold papers or documents on the ground that he had a lieu on them, and in fact the petitioning creditor had nething on earth to do with the question other than as a

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

His Majesty visits his Hanoverian dominions after his return from Ireland, when the Coronation is to take place. This from Ireland, when the Coronation is to take place. This august ceremony, it is again said, is fixed for the Anniversary of the Battle of Waterless. The 1st of August is mentioned as the day when His Majesty departs for Hanover.

NATIONAL SOCIETY.—Wednesday, the General Committee of the National Society for the Education of the Poor in the Principles of the Established Church, and for erecting, enlarging, and fitting up of School Rooms, held their Meeting at St. Martin's Vestry Room. The Archbishop of Canterbury, Archbishop of York, Bishop of Bangor, Bishop of Salisbury, Bishop of St. Asanh. Bishop of Chester. Bishop of Lland of Chester. Bishop of St. Asaph, Bishop of Chester, Bishop of Lland of, Bishop of Exeter, Lord Kenyon, Sir James Langham, Bort, Archdencon Pott, and other Members of the Committee were present.

Thursday, the Anniversary Dinner of the Philanthropic Society for the Offspring of Consicts, was held at the Albion Tavern, when the Duke of York took the chair at six o'clock-Above 200 Gentlemen sat down to dinner; after which, by him Royal Highness's exertions, a collection of 5001. was that laudable justitution.

The African Institution had a special Meeting, on Wednesday, at the Thatched-House Tuvern, St. James's-street. The Earl of Rosslyn, Lord Erekine, Earl Compton, Sir T. B. Ackland, Sir Alexander Johnson, Mr. Wilbentoree, Mr. Willberforce, jun. and many other persons of distinction. were

THE QUARTER'S REVENUE .- Abstract of Nett Produce of the Revenue of Groat Britain, (exclusive of the Arrears of War Duty on Mult and Property,) in the Quarters ending the 5th of April, 1820, and 5th April, 1821; shewing the Increase or Deon each hond thereof:-

	Apr.5,1'd20	Apa 5,1821	Increme.	Deeresse.
Customs	1,960,703	1,905,276		55,427
Excise	5,876,333	5.707.590		168,745
Stamps	1,453,384	1,467,799	14,575	-
Post Office	341,000	350,000	9,000
Assessed Taxes	873,716	842,531		31,185
Land Tax	149,409	137,427		11,982
Misocijaneous	48,860	57,573	8,713
	19,703,247	10,468,196	32,288	267,339
		Deduct	Increase	32,298

Decrease on the Quarter . . £238,081 From this apparent decrease of 235,0511. must be deducted the payments upon the Malt Duty, charged upon the stock in hand in July, 1819, but not paid into the Exchequer until the April quarter of 1820, amounting to 214,2301, so as to reduce the real diminution of the British Revenue to 20,824. And we have the great satisfaction to know, although the accounts of the Iris's Revenue cannot be made up till the arrival of the accounts from Ireland, including the 5th of April, that the accounts of that period of the quarter which have been recelvid, shew an increase much exceeding the small dimmention above-mentioned in the English revenue. The surplus of the income of the Consolidated Fund, above the charge for the quarter ended the 5th inst., is upwards of 300,0001,

AMUSEMENTS OF THE WEEK

Lyceum.—Our blundering Scotch friend, who last week mistook the Astronomical performance at this theatre for Mathews's fun, has, we can assure our readers, done an injustice to that exhibition, equal to that which he cast upon the inimitable farceur. We were resolved not to trust our northern light again, and went to see the Ouranologia ourselves.— We must candidly confess that we were surprised, because the sanction usually given to scientific displays by the presence of a man avowedly qualified to their elucidation was wanting, and we had not calculated upon seeing one of the largest, most comprehensive, and beautiful exhibitions of the sort we ever met with; that it has all those claims to public attention is most true.

The transparencies, admirably executed, exhibit the appearances of the sun, moon, and different planets, and if the illustrations to this splendid scenery have not the merit of novelty, they at least have that of confirmed approbation, for they have been carefully and judiciously selected from the best works on astronomy—indeed, the whole thing combines instruction and amusement in a clearer and more pleasing manner, than almost any other exhibition of the same sort.

We have no doubt that our little friend Aurora Borealis, who is by this time somewhere short of Edinburgh on his way back, will sneer at our childishness, but we would rather be laughed at for too much willingness to be pleased with zealous exertions for public amusement, than be hated for fastidious ill nature for which we have no grounds.

Prince Ernest Holo Langorburg, cousin to the Duchess of Clarence, arrived in town on Friday, on a visit to her Royal Highness.

Dreadful Suicide.—Friday morning a gentleman well known in the sporting world, retired to his dressing-room before breakfast, and blew out his braius with a loaded pistol; the report brought his servant to the place, who found him welter-ing in his blood and his head blown to pieces; a surgeon was sent for, who arrived, but could render no assistance, the unfortunate gentleman being quite dead.

To the PROPRIETORS of EAST INDIA STOCK.

To the PROPRIETORS of EAST INDIA STOCK.
Ladies and Gentlemen,
THE approach of the Annual Election of Six Directors of the East India Company, and the vacancy occasioned by the death of Colonel Taylor, require me again to announce to you my determination to proceed to the Ballot, which is fixed for the 11th of April.
It is impossible for me to convey, in words adequate to my feelings, the high sense of gratitude I entertain for the very kind and flattering manner in which I have been received on my Canvass. The remembrance of it will act as a constant stimulus to my zeal for your service; and whilst I venture respectfully to request a continuance of those obliging exertions which have been made in my favour, I beg at the same time to assure yeu, that should I be so fortunate as to succeed in obtaining a seat in the Direction of your Affairs, the great object of my attention, and the unvarying guide of my conduct will be, to maintain the rights and privileges, and to advance the prosperity of the East India Company.

I take the liberty of annexing the Resolutions unanimously adopted at a former Meeting of my Friends: and have the honour to remain,
Ladies and Gentlemen,
Yeur very obedient, faithful Servant,
WM. CURTIS, Jun.

WM. CURTIS, Jun.

61, Portland-place, 27th March, 1821.

At a numerous and highly-respectable MEETING of the PROPRIE-TORS of EAST INDIA STOCK, held at the King's Head Tavern, in the Poultry, London, on Thursday, the 21st day of September, 1820: THOS, WEEDING, Esq. in the Chair;
It was moved by Sir Rabert Wigram, Bart. seconded by John Plummer, Esq. M.P. and resolved unanimously, and habitually conversant with the commercial relations of the empire.
That the interests of the East India Companybeing essentially commercial, it is of the highest importance that a considerable proportion of the Court of Directors abould consist of members of mercantile experience, and habitually conversant with the commercial relations of the empire.

It was moved by Wm. Heygate, Esq. M.P. and Alderman, seconded by Thos. Roberts, Bsq. and resolved unanimously, Thos. Roberts, Bsq. and resolved unanimously,
That William Curtis, Esq. from his commercial knowledge and activity, his long and intimate connexion with the great trading interests of this metropolis and the country at large, is well qualified to become a Director of the East India Company; and that, considering the flattering recommends that he should proceed to a Baliet upon the first vacancy, and hereby pledges itself to exert its best embedavours, individually and collectively, to promete his Election.

(Signed)

THOMAS WEEDING, Chairman.

N.B. Mr. Curtis's Committee will meet daily at the King's Head Tavern, Poultry.

NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We should prefer having all Lignum Vitæ's communication previously to inserting any part of it.

We are sorry B. G. is angry. We meant no offence; and we hope he will let us hear from him again.

We return our thanks to T. S. C., Esq. for his Letter. We re apprehensive we shall never be better acquainted. We are obliged to him for past favours, and hope for future ones.

Our confidential correspondent, whose Letter was dropped into the wrong box, had better make some stir about it; his information is, we know, correct—it had not escaped us; and we avail ourselves of his jog to our memory, lest those into whose hands it may have fallen should anticipate us.

We are fearful that our Paper is not the proper channel for -'s Letters—the cause is a delicate, and a distressing one : reasons which must be obvious prevent personal interference; and it would, as we should think, be prejudicial to fair claims, were she unnecessarily to give publicity to the thing. We doubt the proposed marriage, but we beg to hear from her as soon as convenient.

Our friend, from the J. H. T. does not perceive, that, by inaerting his attack upon the persons he alludes to, we should break through our rule. We are most sorry not to oblige him,

"We have an oath-an oath in heaven" on that point, and we are sure he must see the policy of it. 1.8. W. is too young.—Sevex appears much too old. Plato is a downright ass.

Tom Bull's mural Literature is rather too coarse.

The ground taken up by the Protestant Tradesman has been too often gone over to be interesting.

Regulus's anecdote would be greatly improved by real names of the family.

We should be obliged by Icon's further fanour.

We never heard that a young gentleman of Westminster School "had died of having a large quantity of food crammed down his throat." We were at Westminster School ourselves, and confess that we never were served so at our boardinghouse; however, for the honour of Westminster, and the satisfaction of our young Correspondent, we are quite ready to any, that if any body has heard the story, it is unfounded.

We are fearful that our " Hunting the Hare" has forestalled our "Westminster Well-wisher."- The Druggist's poetry is under consideration.

The Gardener's Diary, dedicated to Lady Anne, is rather too plain,—this, though no fault in a Duke's daughter, is a very great one in so ticklish a matter.

We are requested to correct and reduce our list of Mr. Douglas Kinnaird's supporters. Mr. Sweeting, of Maddox Street, begs us to say, that he never did vote for Mr. Kinnaird. We have to apologise to Mr. Sweeting, who is a very respectable tradesman, for having charged him with having done so. This correction brings down the number of Mr. Kinnaird's admirers, in all Westminster, to six.

E.Q.Y. will be taken into early consideration.

We cannot put a question on so serious a subject as that which our correspondent desires to ask of Miss C. through the medium of a newspaper. Our correspondent must see that such an answer as that which the servant at Como appears to have given, would be of vital importance to the best interests of the country; we would willingly give a thousand guineas to have it substantiated. We beg to have a further communication on the subject.

REGULUS is unavoidably delayed till next Sunday. Crambo is received.

Our Glasgow correspondent's imitation of the 9th Ode of the 1st Book of Horace is sad stuff; he had better keep it till Christmas, as he may get it printed in some of the carols. Candidus and several others are under consideration.

From an unusual press of matter we were unable to avail ourselves of the communication from X, in any other form than that in which it appears.

TO-MORROW, price 1s. the Third Edition, with 10 Cuts, THE POLITICAL PLOUGH that JACK BUILT, (for which the Author had the honour to receive a Vote of Thanks from the Hon. the Board of Agriculture, for the two former Editions.)

London: Printed for W. Wright, 46, Fleet-street.

NEW SONGS

NEW SONGS.

THE CAMBRIAN MINSTREL BOY, sung by Muster Smith, by Parry, 1s. 6d. "I love thee dearly," by the Duke of Mailbro', 2s. "Oh, wear for me," by ditto, 2s. "Merrily swim we," by Kiallmark, 2s. "Maiden, wrap thy Mantle," by ditto, 2s. "Yes, my Love, yes," by ditto, 1s. 6d. "If e'er compassion shelter found," by Lanza, 1s. 6d. "Little lovely Rore d'Ameaux," by ditto, 2s. "See where the falling day," by Knapton, 2s. "When we two parted," by ditto, 2s. New Editons of "The Soldier tired," and, "In infancy," from Artaverxes, 1s. each.—Published and sold by CHAPPELL and CO. Music-sellers to His Majesty, 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

THE popular SET of NEW QUADRILLES, danced on the This popular SEI O NEW QUADRIBES, darked of the Third Night of this Season at ALMACK'S, composed, selected, and arranged for the Piano Porte, by Mons. P. Musard, and performed by Messis. Collinet, Michau, and Musard; delicated, by permission, to the Right Hon. the Countess Gray, price 4a.—Published by Goulding, D'Almaine, Potter, and Co. No. 20, Soho-square, wholesale and retail, Piano Forte and Music-sellers, and where may be had their Catalogue of New Vocal Music, price 1s. 6d.

The last Night of performing until the Easter Holidays. The last Night of performing until the Raster Holdays.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—For the BENEFIT of Mr. RUSSELL. (Stage Manager.) MISS WILSON, notwith standing her present Engagement will expire on Thursday next, has in the most liberal manner consented to a piear for this one Evening, and will conclude her Performances in Mandave. This Character first established her great Reputation, and, combined with the acknowledged and brilliant halents of Mr. BRAHAM, and Madamev BETRIS, (who also will kindly give their Assistance on this occasion) has caused the Opera of Artaxerxes, during the unprecedented run of Six and Twenty Nights, to attract a far greater number of overflowing Houses, than any other musical Piece on dramatic record.

sical Piece on dramatic record.

On SATURDAY next, April 14, 1821, will be performed the scrious Opera of ARTAXERXES. After which, in order to exhibit, for this Night only, a Feature of entire Novelty, Mr. Russell is enabled, by the kindness of his professional Priends, to announce a MASKED RIDOTTO, consisting of Serious and Comic Songs; Duets, Trios, Quartetts, Catches, Glees, Dancing, &c. &c. which will embrace and combine the Talents of Miss Wilson, Madame Vestris, Miss Povey, Mrs. Bland, Miss Cubitt, Miss Tree, Mr. T. Cooke, Mr. Horn, Mr. Harley, Mr. Kuight, and Mr. Braham.—Tickets, and Piaces for the Boxes to be had of Mr. Rodwell, at the Theatre; and of Mr. Russell, at his House, S, Gray's Walk, Lambeth.

THEATRE ROYAL, COVENT-GARDEN.

On Monday, Venice Preserved, with Harlequin and Friar Bacon,—On Tuesday, Love in a Village.—On Thursday, The Stranger.

THEATRB ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.

To-Morrow, Conscience, or the Bridal Night, with Giovanni in London.—On Tuesday, the Duenna.—On Thursday, Love in a Village.

A Monday's Edition, containing the latest News, the Stock List, the London Markets, and the State of the Country Markets by that morning's post, is published at Three o'clock.

We must request that Advertisements may be sent early, in the week. Many are omitted this week which came too late.

PRICE OF STOCKS AT THE CLOSE YESTERDAY.

During the fore part of the week, the Funds were pretty steady, and maintained rather higher prices, in consequence of the favourable termination of affairs in Italy: and it was confidently expected by many persons that Consols would, during the present month, reach 74; but there appears now to be very little prospect of their expectations being realised, as the Funds have since been considerably depressed. The present will be a Bull account. Consols opened yesterday morning at 72½ for money, and 72½ fort the account; but owing to a great many jobbers making up their accounts aiready, they afterwards fell to 7½ for money and 72 for the account, and fanally left off at 7½ for money and 7½ for the account, buyers. It is conjectured that the account day, which is fixed for the 12th inst. will be a terrible day for many jobbers.

Reduced App. 711. Navy S. page cont. 10061 &

FRENCH FUNDS. 5 per ct. Div. 22 Mar. 81-70 Bank Sh. Div. 1 Jan... 1520 Recon. Div. 22 Mar. . . 94-50 Ex. Lond. 1m 25-55 3m 25-35

RUSSIAN. 6 per Cent. Inscrip. ..... 52 | 5 per Cent. Metallics .... 78 Exchange ... 12 3-8—Met. .. 3 1

AUSTRIAN. 5 per Cent. Metallics .. 72--Exchange .. 10 4 PRUSSIAN.

5pr Cnt. Bonds, £100, 784 1 Ditto, £250 to £1000 SPANISH. 57; — E AMBRICAN. 5 per Cent. . . . . - Exchange . . . . 4 3

6 per Cent. 1815 ... 107 5 per Cent. . . . 102 3 per Cent. . . . . . 7 per Cent. 6 per Cent. 1812 ... 103 1813 ... 104 Bank Shares, £23 1814...

On the 5th of May will be published, Number 1, price od. to be continued every Saturday,

THE JOURNAL OF LITERATURE. This Work will contain Reviews of new Books, Foreign as well as English; of new Musical Works; Criticisms on the Arts and the Theatre; Notices of all new Publications; of Discoveries and Inventions in Science and Mechanics; Advertisements on Literary Subjects; and a variety of every sort of information which can be acceptable to the man of taste and genius.

Published at the Office of "JOHN BULL," No. 11, Johnson's-court, Fleet-street, to which Place all Communications are to be addressed to the Editor.

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, APRIL 8.

Our readers will perceive that the intelligence we received from the Continent last week was correct, and that all the high-flown accounts of the Neapolitan Revolution were unfounded. The real truth is, that it was an insurrection to which a very great proportion of the recole were heatile. of the people were hostile.

To-morrow the Catholic Bill will be under discussion in the House of Lords. We look forward with anxious hopes to the result of the debate; we have little doubt, we confess, of its being lost, but while a measure so fraught with danger is pending, we cannot but consider it our duty to call as much of public attention to it as

We have perused the Bill, which has passed the House of Commons, to provide for the removal of the disqualifications under which His Majesty's Roman Catholic subjects now labour, and after a few observations upon the general principles of the measure, and upon some of the enacting clauses by which it is proposed to carry that measure into effect.

In the first place, we hold it to be an innovation upon the fundamental principles of our Protestant Constitution, and incompatible with our independence as a nation, to sanction among us the establishment of a Panistical Hierarchy; which, in its operation, instead of allaying religious prejudices, and producing universal conciliation among all classes of His Majesty's subjects, cannot fail to be perpetually at variance with the system under which we have flourished for so many ages, and at length attained a station of national glory unknown to length attained a station of national giory unknown to any other country in the world.

That the Bill in question goes to legalize, for the first time since the Reformation, the exercise of this Papistical Authority, throughout the United Kingdom, no man can doubt, after reading the Oath of Supremacy hitherto taken by His Majesty's Protestant subjects, and the first enacting clause by which a distinct Oath of Supremacy is provided to be taken by the Roman Catholics.

The Protestant has hitherto sworn, and it seems he is to continue so to believe,-

That no foreign Prince, Person, Prelate, State, or Potentate hath, or ought to have any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence, or authority, Beclesiastical or Spiritual, within this Realm." Of which form of Oath His Majesty's Roman Catholic subjects entertaining scruples,—

"Inasmuch as they apprehend that the same might be construed to import a disclaimer of the Spiritual Authority of the Pope or Church of Rome in matters of religious belief;" It is enacted that the Roman Catholics shall declare "That no foreign Prince, Prelate, State, or Potentate hath, or ought to have any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence, or authority, Ecclesiastical or Spiritual, within this Realm, that in any manner, or for any purpose, conflicts or interferes with the duty of full and undivided allegiance, which, by the laws of this Realm, is due to His Majesty, &c. So that the Protestant oath, which denies all foreign authority whatever, is to remain unqualified, and continue to be taken in the face of a legalized Popish authority, (attempted to be defined and regulated, in all its details, by the subsequent clauses of this Bill) whilst the Roman Catholic, pertinaciously adhering to the direct authority of the Pope, is called upon, by his oath, to prescribe to himself the super-human task of rejecting the influence of that power, his belief in the infallibility of which, is the sine qua non of his eternal salvation, if any attempt should be made to influence his duty as a loyal subject of His Britannic Majesty! Where is that point of separation between a man's civil and religiou actions? And, above all, where is the man, implicitly relying upon the infallibility of his spiritual monitor, who will not respect the advice and opinion of that monitor in almost every transaction of his life? So much for the leading principle of this measure.

Without meddling with the policy of the proposed repeal of the declaration respecting transubstantiation, which our ancestors, whose memory we are taught to ve nerate, as the consummators of English liberty, thought necessary for the better security of our Protestant succession, or with what is called the mode of intercourse with the See of Rome,—an intercourse, as we have before ob-served, now, for the first time since the Reformation, recognised by an Act of the Legislature,—we shall proceed to observe upon one or two anomalies, which, by the pro-visions of this Bill, will be introduced into the executive government of this country.

After subscribing the oath, before adverted to, the Roman Catholics are eligible for every appointment about his Majesty's person and government, with the single exception of Lord High Chancellor, or what has been termed the Keeper of his Majesty's Conscience." If, therefore. Roman Catholics are actually eligible for the situations of confidential advisers of the King, we have a right to argue, not only upon the possibility, but upon the probability of the whole Cabinet, with the single exception before mentioned, being composed of Roman Catholics. In such a state of things, what becomes of the old maxim, the best and wisest guarantee for the honesty of Minister that " the King can do no wrong?" Where, in the event of any mal-administration in matters of a spiritual nature, is the country to look for the men who are to answer with their heads for the advice given to their Sovereign ?—The Roman Catholic part of the Cabinet dare not advise his Majesty upon such an occasion; for, by the words of this Bill, "if any such person shall presume to advise his Majesty, his heirs or successors, touching or concerning any such appointment," (referring to Ecclesiastical appoint-" he shall, being thereof convicted by due course of law, be deemed guilty of a misdemennor." So that in the event of any question of an ecclesiastical nature coming under the consideration of the King's confidential advisers, his Majesty is to be left tete a tete with the Lord Chancellor, who, if the maxim which we have before alluded to, continue in force, must take the whole weight of responsibility upon his own shoulders, and be answerable to his country, for the conduct of the government touching such a transaction.

It appears by the Clause, marked No. I. in the printed Bill, that Roman Catholics are not to vote at any parish Vestry, in respect of the levying money to rebuild or repair any parish Church. Now, as all Legislative enactments are, by the KING'S Most Excellent MASESTY, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords and Commons, is the principle laid down with regard to the King's advisers generally, and to the conduct of Roman Catholics at Parish Vestries, to be applied to the Roman Catholic Members of both Houses of Parliament? if so, new duties must necessarily devolve on the Black Rod of the Upper, and the Serjeant at Arms of the lower House, for, as a measure of precautionary security to such Members, they must be called out and kennelled whenever a question of an Ecclesiastical nature comes before Parliament.

If these observations should tend to direct the public attention to the dangerous innovation which this Bill, if passed into a law, must sanction upon the established institutions of the country or to the mass of incongruities with which it is fraught, we shall feel satisfied of having contributed a feeble support to the opposition we have all along declared to this measure; if attended with that danger the proposers of what are called the securities seem to contemplate, ought never to be carried, and which, in its present shape, will, if passed into a law, be productive of any thing but that conciliation among the Roman Catholics which has been insisted on as one of the first arguments of its promoters. No Bill will ever be satisfactory to the Roman Catholics as a body, the preamble of which, goes to declare the inviolability of the Protestant Church Establishment in the United Kingdom.

THE QUEEN AND HER COUNTESSES.

THE Queen has been declared guilty of adultery by THE Queen has been declared guilty of adultery by the highest tribunal in the country. The Queen is degraded, and her name excluded from the Liturgy. The Queen has admitted the justice of all this, and has taken the price of her shame. In short, the Queen has fallen into oblivion; and, had she one spark of decency, one feeling of remurse in her whole composition, there she would remain. But no,—callous, heartless, and hardened as she is the is making great heartless, and hardened as she is, she is making great and frightful struggles to be received into society. Knowing her assurance and insensibility, this does not at all surprise as; but that two respectable women are to be found to aid and abet her in her monstrous efforts to demoralize the country, does indeed fill us with wonder.

Party feelings, we all know, carry men great lengths, but we never did suppose that they could have leder rather driven, LORD JERSEY to have suffered, and LORD GREY to have ordered, their respective wives to visit a profligate woman, who has been declared guilty of adultery in open Court!

The Countess of Jersey and the Countess of GREY are the QUEEN'S VISITORS AND ASSOCIATES! As for poor LADY GREY, we know that she is accustomed to obey the mandates of her haughty overbearing husband;—that the family tremble at the ERL-KING's voice; nay, we have seen her Ladyship, in former days, forced into the society of a lady (who shall be nameless) at a time when, at all events, his Lordship should have had the decency to have kept her out of it.

We know his Lordship; and, though we pity, we cannot blame her Ladyship—YET!—nor shall we make another remark. Let the Countess Grey shew the proper spirit of an honest woman, and refuse to obey a command which drives her into the company of the Queen, who, fourteen years ago, my Lord Grey would have tried as an adultress, and we shall feel satisfied with having done our duty towards her Ladyship and society. Besides, the Earl admires restiveness in Neapolitans and Piedmontese too much to dislike a little revolt against tyranny at home.

The Countess of Jersey must feel how much personal regard for her, has softened our remarks upon her first visits to Brandenburgh House. Every body who knows her—must admire her—God send we may always have to respect her: true it is, that Lady Jersey's reputation stands clear with the world, and no man dare cast an imputation upon it; but how long will it remain so? there are fifty thousand women equally pure, equally innocent, and equally virtuous with Lady Jersey; but there is not one of them who would dare to risk that purity, that innocence, or that virtue, or even (which purity, that innocence, or that virtue, or even (which in a worldly sense is as precious), the character of a virtuous woman by an association with profligacy, nastiness, depravity, vice and sin.

We warn Lady Jersey, to beware how she mixes herself up with the Queen. We know that Lady Jersey's views are purely political. We know that her zeal for the Whigs carries her into the infectious air of the Recorded world. Court we know that is real binds. Brandenburgh Court. We know that this zeal blinds her to the dangers which await her-we esteem herwe respect—we would save her.

Let her Ladyship proceed one week longer in the perilous career she has commenced, and she becomes the avowed champion of the Queen-in that political character, she lays herself open to the closest and strictest examination; to the most searching scrutiny, and the severest reprehension, if found wanting; to the "slings and arrows" of party virulence; and to the satire, and ridicule of those, who will not tamely sit by and see brazen sin, and branded infamy held up for the respect and imitation of their wives and children, even by the Countess of Jersey

We are inclined to believe, that, from motives of delicacy, the evidence against the Queen has been withheld from the eyes of the two Noble Ladies we are now treating of. If we perceive that their hadyships persist in their association with her Majesty, we shall consider it our duty, painful and disgusting as it may be, to have laid upon their toilets the depositions of SACCHI and CUCCHI, so that when their Ladyships are admitted to the honour of kissing the Queen's hand, they may be fully aware where that hand has previously been.

QUEEN'S VISITORS.

WE are requested to state, that it is NOT the Dowager Countess of Jersey who visits the Queen—her Ladyship has not called at Brandenburgh House, nor seen the Queen since her return to England.

THE "ON DIT!"-(No. I.)

On DIT-They say, that a certain little gentleman, married to the daughter of an Irish Earl, having heard his Lady order her carriage to a particular place, took the whimsical fancy into his head of mounting behind the vehicle, in order to see what might happen. That on its arrival at the particular place to which it had been ordered, a certain handsome good-tempered and agreeable Viscount made his appearance rather mal apropos, and much to the discomfiture of the little gentleman in the rear, who, losing his temper, and quitting his hiding-place, made an attempt at personal correction upon his Lordship, who, on det, returned the compliment in so sturdy a manner as to have nearly expended his jealous antagonist.

—The ou dit goes no farther.

ON DIT—that all the Ladies of the Queen's bed-chamber are, immediately on their appointment, to wear the usual and distinguishing badge of the KEY!

ON DIT—that in a marriage settlement, not long concluded, ten thousand a year is settled on the bride, so long as she continues faithful to her husband; but that she is to lose it wherever she quits his protection.—This precautionary clause, ON DIT, is quite a novelty. (To be continued.)

LIST OF CLERGYMEN WHO PRAYED FOR THE QUEEN.

REV. MR. GILMORE, Wooler,

REV. MR. ROBERTSON, ditto, Northumberland. REV. MR. BLYTHE, Branton,

RRV. MR. GOWAN EVANS, Towcester (Curate.)
This Gentleman having been asked by Mr. Deacon of Towcester, how he came to think of praying for the Queen

Towcester, how he came to think of praying for the Queen without leave from the Bishop, it is said, replied, that the Bishop was a great ass, and he did not care for him.'

REV. HENRY LIVIUS, Curate of St. Cuthbert's, Bedford.

This Gentleman added the Queen's name to that part of the Litany in which the Almighty is beseeched to have mercy on all the Royal Family. The Clerk, instead of making the usual response, "We beseech thee to hear us, Good Lord, substituted "Good Lord deliver us."

REV. A. HARDWICKE, at St. Bride's, Fleet-street, last Angust, where he officiated for the Curate.

August, where he officiated for the Curate.

REV. — GRIMSHAW, Vicar of Biddenham.

- KITCHENER, Curate to the above, and REV. . also Curate of St. John's, Bedford.

REV. G. S. CORNWALL, Occasional Minister at Creden

REV. G. S. CORNWALL, Occasional Minister at Creden-hill, Herefordshire.

We have received, from a Correspondent, an assurance that the Rev. Samuel Whitlock Gandy, Vicar of Kingston on Thames, was nor a party to the display of the white flag, in honour of the Queen's purity, on the tower of that church; and, that so far from it, on discovering that such a flag had been hoisted, he caused its immediate removal. We have great pleasure in giving a place to this explanation, and in wiping off a stigma which we had cast (as we trust it will appear, very naturally, under the circumstances) upon the wiping off a stigma which we had cast (as we trust it win appear, very naturally, under the circumstances) upon the character of a loyal and respectable gentleman.

In doing this piece of justice to Mr. Gandy, we must, however, add, that it has been represented to us, from not less than eight of his parishioners, that he omits to pray for His Majesty in the form prescribed. If this be the case, it in some degree warrants our impression that he was privy to the discharge the day. Should there he however now misrange. play of the flag. Should there be, however, any misrepresentation in this particular, we shall be as ready to set it right in our next number as we have been to do Mr. Gandy justice in this.

Messrs. Moseley and Walker, are not the sole proprietors of Orange-street Chapel.

(To be continued.) BROUGHAMIANA.—(No. VII.)

ham's celebrated Declaration, that he wished On Mr. Brow r no other Epitaph than "Here Lies the Exemy or WILLIAM PITT.

Brougham, on his tomb-stone, would have writ-" Here lies the enemy of Pitt." And half the line, at least, applies; For ev'ry one admits-" He lies."

It appears, in allusion to what we said last week, about Major-General Wilson's promise to vacate his seat, if his con stituents were averse from the Catholic Bills, the Major-General has observed, that St. Saviour's (in which petitions have been adopted against the Catholics), is the smallest parish in Southwark. St. George's parish have called a meeting for the same purpose.—What will this Knight of Saint Caroline

ORIGINAL POETRY.

On Lord Castlercagh's calling upon his Friends to attend regularly, and not to give or accept Invitations to Dinner.

> HARK! I hear the sounds of sorrow Fill each office corridor;

CASTLEREAGE cries-" From to-morrow, " Statesmez, ye must dine no more!

- "No more let's see each office man on " Foot, about the hour of seven
- " Teazing Arguthnot and Duncannon, " To find a pair until eleven
- " No more let's hear Sir Gronde, or Binning. "Or HUSRISSON, OF WELLESLEY POLK,
- " Hinting, in sounds so soft and winning, "That soup and fish are apt to cool.
- " Let Michage spread, in Privy-Gurdens, "The board for FERGUSSON and Co.;
- " Let SEPTOX's cook exhaust his lardings; " They but allure away the fee.
- " But some there are who never dine, " (Who ne'er are asked to dine, at least,).
- " Who swallow Avers's tea like wine, " And reckon BELLAMY'S a feast.
- " They can abjure risolles and Patés, "And we must imitate their powers;
- "Besides, they keep their vigils gratis; " We are paid for keeping ours.
- "But, Placemen! if ye heed my summons,
- A mental feast I shall prepare; " Our House shall truly be, of Commons, And RICKMAN's roll a bill of fare.
- " LEY spreads upon the spacious table "A cloth-(no matter what its hue,)
- " The Chaplain, fast as he is able, " Says grace, and bids us all fall to.
- "Without four soups, I should be loth
- "Such splendid guests to entertain; " So WESTERN shall be Barley-broth.
- " And Wood a Potage à la Reine!
- " Mullicatauney, or Scotch porridge, " Either, MACKINTOSH may be;
- " And—(not his merits to disparage,) " SPRING RICE is Printanier au ris.
- " For fish—that bench the SPEAKER's left on "Out-rivals GROVES', to all beholders;
- " No one can see my good Lond SEFTON " But thinks of a cod's head and shoulders!
- " BROUGHAM's crooked shifts, and talents boasted,
- " His slippery tricks no more conceal: " Dragg'd into light, cut up, and roasted,
- "What is he but spitch-cock'd Eel?
- " CALVERT is Salmon- on a dish " Ne'erlay a thicker or a rounder; "PALMER's an undoubted Fish,
- " And flat enough to be a flounder. " SIR RONALD's Lobster, if you crack " His scarlet shell and straggling claws;
- " Old MARKHAM is a muddy Jack; " And WARRE and DAVIS Shrimps for sauce.
- "Of Flesh and Fowl, too, there are plenty:---" TAYLOR is chick for Fricasees;
- "Coke's Norfolk bustard may content ye; " Rutlandshire supplies us Geese!
- " NUGENT would a meal afford one "Who liked Calves-head without the brain;
- " Rump-steaks we'll slice from gen'rous Gondon, " There 'tis cut and come again!
- "CREEVEY's Tripe, unsavoury stuff, " Fit meat alone for dog or cat he;
- " HENRY BENNETT is a Puff; " And Ossulston a petit paté.
- " Hobnouse is Cow-heel-which to cram "Would need a true Saint Giles's taste;
- "We'll put aside that dish of LAMB, " Too delicate for such a feast.
- "GRANT is a Sheep's pate broiled and singed, "And none more empty or more hot is;
- " HUME is a monstrous bore's head, fringed "And garnish'd round with many a nottice.
- " Yerkshire puddings, rich in grease, " Are the types of SVKES and WYVILL;
- "Guisn's brains are Gloucester cheese; "Peppery Lambton is a devil!
- " PARKELL's a potatoe, mealy, "Thick, as ever Ireland grew; "NEWPORT's butter-milk; and HELEY
- " HUTCHINSON'S an Irish-stew.
- " For the rest, as housewives tell us, " How they serve their broken trash-
- "WILSON, BERNAL, MOORE, and ELLICE. " Make an economic Hash!
- "Come, then, hungry friends, fall to 't, " And, if patiently ye dine,
- "Kind Liverpoot shall find ye fruit, " And jovial BATHURST choose your wise!"

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Paris, March 31.-Very serious alarm is entertained respecting the health of the Dowager Duchess d'Orleans, who is now residing at her Chateaud'Ivry, near Paris.—An Ex-Colonel of Buonaparte's body guard, who was in exile, and who had infringed the limits assigned him, has been arrested on the frontiers. He was yesterday evening lodged in the l'Abbaye prison.—If we may rely upon information from a very respectable source, the seditious movements which have taken place at Lyons and Grenoble, were connected with an extensive plan; but the fidelity and love of Frenchmen have again defeated projects which, doubtless, will not be renewed.

Vienna, March 20.—The official Gazette of to-day gives a list of the twenty-two regiments which are immediately to depart for Italy. The aggregate of these reinforcements amounts to above sixty thousand men. The two Russian corps d'armée, which have received orders to march, may be estimated at from 80,000 to 100,000 strong, exclusively of the irregular Cossacks.—They write from Naples, that General Begani, Governor of Gaeta, has been assassinated in a popular Begani, Governor of Gneta, has been assassinated in a popular tumult.

FOURTH BULLETIN OF THE AUSTRIAN ARMY.

"Head Quarters at Tenao, March 20.

"The Grand Army, after passing the Lirl, at Ceprano, advanced rapidly on San Germano; Gen, Carascosa had fallen back with his army into the entrenched position of Mignano, on the road to Capua. The same spirit which caused the dispersion of Gen. Pepe's army in the Abruzzi, manifested itself in a still more violent way in the camp of Mignano. The troops, unwilling to ight for the insurgent cause, declared against their Chiefs, who could only escape from the danger that threatened them by allowing the soldiers to disperse and return to their homes, after laying down their arms.

"The Neapolitan army no longer exists. The Royal Guard alone, faithful to the sentiments which its name was calculated to produce, preserved order and discipline.

"The forts of San Germano, on the Monte Cassino, surrendered yesterday. The soldiers were compelled to surrender, with cries of 'Live the King!'—Capua, one of the strongest bulwarks of the kingdom, opens its gates to-morrow.—To-morrow our advanced guard will be at Versa.

"The war is terminated. Our entrance into the capital, will be that sofan allied army.—What has been done at Naples was neither the wish of the people nor the army. Facts prove this."

These Gollows a convention for suspending hostilities on both sides, and for surrendering Capua and Aversa to the Austrians, at the latter of which places, they are to halt, till a particular convention is signed for regulating their occupation of Naples.]

Naples, March 23.—A part of the Austrian army niready assembled in our neighbourhood has this morning entered the capital. We admired the fine condition of these troops, who, during their long march from the frontiers to Naples, have capital. We admired the fine condition of these during their long march from the frontiers to Naples, have observed the strictest discipline. All the corps passed through Toledo-street, to defile before the King's Palace, where were the Regent Duke of Calabria and his brother the Prince of Salerco. An immense concourse of people expressed their applause of the King, and saluted with joyous acclamations Salerco. An immense concourse of people expressed their applause of the King, and saluted with joyous acclamations the troops of his nugust ally.

PROCLAMATION OF THE DUKE OF CALABRIA.

"The paternal intentions of the King, my august father, have been fully made known to me in his last communications, which were addressed to me from Florence, under the date of the 19th current, and which were brought to me by Lleut. Gen. Fardella. I consider it not only for the glory of his Majesty, but also useful in creating confidence to communicate the same by a liberal transcript.

"Dear Son,—I have received the letters you entrusted to General Pardella, and I learn with great sorrow, by the confients of those of the 13th, all that you have explained to me respecting the state in which my well-heloved subjects are placed. The reasonings into which you enter would seem to point at me as the cause of the evils of the war which afflicts kny kingdom.

"It was precisely for the purpose of avoiding those evils that I employed my caree, and that I wrote to you from Laybach the letter date it be 8th of January, to which, unfortunately, no attention was paid. Hostilities have been committed by our troops, without provocatiom, and even in contempt of my Preclamation of the 23rd of February. The troops of my august allies arrived as friends; the 80 overeigns had declared it. I explicitly announced their intentions and mine. To whom ought the disasters to be attributed? To whom does hlame attach?

"The Allied Powers and myself did every thing in our power to render evident the unfortunate circumstances to which my people were exposed. We offered the means of avoiding them, and made known that the welfare and advantage of my kingdom required, and that reason dictated, the immediate abandoment of all the innovations which had been made. But I found, to my deep regret, that the magnanimous voice of the august Congress and my paternal wishes were not listened to, and that a bilind obstinacy has caused the most fruitless and most fatal res

"Florence, March 19.
Telegraphic advices have reached Paris from Naples, which state, that on the evening of the 24th vlt. the Lazzaroxi assembled tumultuously in the streets, and would have executed summary vengeance upon all the Carbonari, who could be found, bad not their designs been prevented by the Austrians.

found, had not their designs been prevented by the Austrians. On the following day tranquillity was entirely restored.

An article from Laybach, dated March 20, mentions, that a Russian courier had arrived there, with dispatches from the army of General Frimont, stating that the Neapolitan Parliament was dissolved, and that the troops had declared for the King. The Emperors of Austria and Russia immediately repaired to the Church, to return thanks to God for the happy issue of the affairs of Naples.

A Letter from Lisbon of the 24th ult. states that the Inquisition, by the unanimous determination of the Corres, was on that tion, by the unanimous determination of the Cortes, was on that day abolished.

UNITED STATES.—We received this week New York Papers to the 10th ult. They contain the Treaty by which Spain cedes the Floridas to the United States, which was formally ratified by the President, on the 22d of February, and thus this long disputed question is at last settled. By the act of ratification, the part of Susin the grants of lands to the Duke of cation on the part of Spain, the grants of lands to the Duke of Allagon, and others, about which so much difficulty occurred when the first attempt at ratification was made, are declared to be annulled. The Spanish troops, &c. are to be withdrawn from the provinces within air months after the evaluate of from the provinces within six mon ratifications, or sooner, if practicable. Particular provision is made for the authentication of the claims of American citizens for Spanish depredations; for which, when ascertained and allowed, compensation to the amount of five millions of dollars is to be paid.

These papers also contain the inaugural speech of Mr. Mun ree, upon his re-election to the office of President, which took place, it appears, on the 5th ult. In this document, the President enters into a somewhat elaborate review of the political transactions that had occurred during the term of his expired

Letters were on Thursday received from Gibraltar, mentionthe arrival there of a vessel from Paita, in the Pacific, with accounts of 8th December, announcing, that as soon as the new and independent Government was established in Guayaquil, they sent off 500 men to dislodge the Royalists from Quito, but, it is stated, they had not been successful.

PARLIAMENTARY REFORM.

On Wednesday a Meeting of Radical and Parliamentary Reformers was held at the City of London Tavern, under the pretence of dining together. That Right Honourable Blockhead the Lord Mayor in the Chair.

Much is said, in the Papers of the faction, about the respectability, and the rank, and the talent of the company, with which we shall not quarrel; but of the real political principles of the party, little need be said beyond this-

After the cloth was removed, the Lord Mayor gave the King.—May he recollect his own declaration, that the Crown is held in trust for the People.—Air, "Hope TOLD A FLATTERING TALE!!!"

Is it possible, we would ask, that any thing can be a more marked, more decisive, or more distinct avowal of the real principles of Parliamentary Reformers?—To insult the Monarch is the first act of the Revolutionist, and every man who remained in that Tavern room, on Wednesday last, after this practical sneer upon the King's conduct to his people, was a party to a personal insult to His MAJESTY.

That so paltry, so grovelling, and so vulgar a thing should have been done by a person so paltry, so groveling, and so vulgar as Lord Mayor Thorpe, we are not surprised; but that men of sense, who, we are told, are to be found in the ranks of Radical Reform, should have allowed the real objects and views of the faction to peep out so early and strongly, seems to us to be most surprising,-that it is fortunate, we are quite sure. While they continued warily to express their attachment to the King, they might deceive the incautious; but now, when the first object and the first act of a public meeting is to ridicule and degrade him, few, we think, will be led away by the respectability (in point of fortune) of mad-headed boys or doting drivellers, to unite themselves with a class of men, whose only merit is upholding doctrines, and maintaining opinions, which have been exploded and ridiculed by every rational man for years.

After the account of the agreeable mode in which His Majesty's name was treated, we are told "that the QUEEN was drank with three times three!" That the Queen should be drunk after dinner (as Brougham would say) is not at all surprising, but that no tune could have been found suitable to her name, is.

After this "the People" was drunk in a similar manner.
Then up got my Lord Mayor, and very properly, for the sake of the respectability of the affair, lamented that somebody else was not President of the meeting. He was convinced that the country had arrived at a new era in Reform; and having, with a certain degree of importance, communicated the awful fact, that his private opinion and the opinions of the House of Commons did not always agree, he proposed the health of a gentleman who was to set every thing to rights in the shortest possible time,—Mr. George Lambton. Mr. Lambton was drunk with enthusiam.

Mr. Lambton then repeated the same nonsensical trash which he has been spouting at all the places where he could collect an audience;—told them of his plan of triennial parliaments, and universal suffrage;—talked about the House of Commons till he seemed to forget that he was a member of it; -alluded to the Neapolitan rebels, and "the putrid corpse of legitimate corruption;" (by which it is quite evident what he meant) his allegory, however, though striking, after a bottle of bad port, is not quite so powerful as his hearers seemed to think it; because, if this "legitimate corruption" be a corpse, it is past Doctor Lambton's skill either to kill or cure, and "there's an end on't." More absurdity, we will venture to say, never came out of the mouth of a man not actually shut up for a lunatic, than issued from this infatuated visionist on Wednesday evening. He sat down amidst "continued cheering."

Mr. Byng having had the good taste to absent himself, Mr. Whitbread's health was drank. He returned thanks, and added to all the other advantages likely to result from his honourable friend's plan, noticed the lessening the expence of elections which would attend We are sorry to hear this very indeits adoption. pendent county member talk of expence.—What could he have laid out his money in? or why will increasing the number of voters lessen the charges? The only thing Mr. Whitbread could have paid for must have been the carriage of his voters to the poll, and by that rule, (which is the only one by which we could venture to judge of Mr. Whitbread's expences) had every householder in Middlesex, including the villages of London and Westminster, been blest with a vote each, we venture to think those expences would kave been at least thirty times greater than they actually were. If he meant to insinuate that he paid for any thing else, why then—we can estimate the purity and independence of Mr. S. C. Whitbread.

Mr. Alderman Wood's health was drank; but the pertness of this dapper dunce is gone; his great rareeshow has failed, and, dunghill to the bone, the unhappy drug-seller had not a word to say for himself or any body else, he "shammed sick," and "shirked" speaking.

Waithman talked, however, and said that this was one of the happiest days in his life; -but, happy as he was, every thing was wrong not with standing; and he assured us, that it was his opinion that things could not go on as they were. It is a melancholy thing to know that this is his feeling on the subject, but as it is so, we have made up our minds to bear it with the greatest Christian fortitude.

Mr. Coke talked disrespectfully of the House of Commons, in which he has struggled to keep his seat for the last forty years; and said he was ashamed of the company he kept there. Strong feelings are very apt to be reciprocal;—he "resumed his seat amidst loud applauses."

The Right Honourable the Lord Mayor then sported a , and proposed the health of that tried friend of reform, Sir Francis Burdett; from whom a letter was read—in which he talks of "the slung of the Honourable House," and abuses Mr. Canning. The letter was unusually stu-pid, and very well suited to the occasion.

Mr. J. C. Hobbouse, having been called upon, then amused the company with some very good initations of several popular reformers. In their style and manner he was particularly happy, and in the language, at times, pretty successful. In the last part he was encoved (we believe,) but it was considered for fatiguing to make him go through it again, and he sat down with great applause.

The Major General, calling himself Sir Robert Wilson, was then drank. Upon which the Major-General (who is about the silliest of them all) told a story of himself, which he might as well have avoided: after having abused the House of Commons, the Major-General said, that "he had offered his services to the Neapolitans, not as a Commander, but in any capacity that might be assigned Now, as it is quite notorious that his offers were rejected, nobody but a simpleton would have alluded to the thing, the result of which proves the estimation in which these fine free-hearted Neapolitan rebels held his military shill and proffered assistance. He then talked some sad stuff about the Queen; and then Messrs. Hume and Scroggins, and Lord Archibald Hamilton, and Less Nu-gent, and Messrs. Woodenspoon and Curwen, and Monk and Higgs, and C. Hutchinson, and several others spoke, and Doctor Lushington wound up every thing by an attack upon the Trial by Jury, because, forsooth, that mischievous brawler Burdett has been sent to juil by ansimpartial verdict.

At half-past twelve the Lord Mayor (as it was quite natural he should be) was drunk, and the assembly dispersed peaceably.

Healey, Mr. Hunt, Sir Charles Wolseley, R. Casirle, Esq. and Mr. Bampton, were prevented from meeting their friends, by being like Sir Francis Burdett, in jail. Mr. Waddington sent no excuse; but we understand, heis indisposed, which will satisfactorily account for his. absence from this respectable party.

PSALMODY.

TO JOHN BULL.

Sir,-Having read, in the letter signed "OKRHODONZE," in your Paper of April 1st, the following passages, " Doctrines, in the shape of Hymns, &c. have, to my certain knowledge, actually been already introduced into the Diocese of York, repugnant to the pure doctrines of the Established Church," I wish that Orthodoxus could be induced, through your means, to particularize this savertion.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

A CLERGYMAN OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

LORD GROSVENOR,

SIR,-This patriotic nobleman is well known to be a great stickler for the liberty of the subject in all respects, and particularly in political matters. How far his Lordship's practice squares with his professions, will appear from the following instance of liberality, which you may rely on as strictly true:-

Travelling last week from Liverpool, by way of Chester. I had naturally a curiosity to see his Lordship's celebrated place, Eaton Hall, and baving understood that. strangers were admitted without any difficulty, I anticipated none on this occasion. I was told, however, on changing horses, one stage before Chester, that it would be necessary to drive to Mr. Willoughby's house, (the hotel I think,) as Lord Grosvenor would not allow his place to be seen by any persons coming in a chaise from the other house, the landlord (Mr. Tomlinson) being an opponent of his Lordship's interest at the elections.

That Peers frequently do unconstitutionally and illegally influence the election of Members of Parliament. is not to be denied; but that any nobleman, and particularly a pretended enemy of corruption, should exercise such an open and tyrannical interference as this, would hardly be credited: for not only is the unfortunate innkeeper injured in his business, for daring to think that an Egerton will make as good a Member of Parliament as a Grosvenor, but the innocent traveller, who knows no distinction between Mr. Willoughby and Mr. Tomlinso is punished, if he does not enter into a conspiracy to utterly run one of those individuals.

I was, at last, disappointed of seeing the house; but this was owing, as I understand, to one of the wings being under alteration; and I have, therefore, no right to complain of it, the exclusion being general. It is only of the invidious distinction prescribed at other times, that I wish you to take notice; and I will not be deterred from making the circumstance public, merely because I happen to be, in London, A TENANT OF LORD GROEVENOR'S. April 3, 1821.

TO JOHN BULL.

SIR,—As a great deal of surprise has been excited by the circumstance of the Select Vestry of this parish (St. George's. Hanover-square) having conceded t jesty the power of opening a coach road from her new house into Hill-street, a privilege which had been repeatedly refused to prior occupiers of the mansion, I think it advisable to inform the Public, through the medium of your Paper, of the mode by which this manœuvre was effected.

You must well know that a certain nobleman, celebrated more for the hardihood of his threat of throwing the Liturgy (or, as her Majesty spells it, "Lethargy") in his Sovereign's face, than for any amiable, liberal, or praiseworthy quality, is the largest ground landlord in the vicinity. Now, it so happens, that a large proportion of his Lordship's leases are nearly expiring, and, as his demands are well known, such of his tenants.

as have nearly run out their leases are rendered more particularly subject to his influence. That such influence was exerted to favour the Queen's views, you may easily

Another, and still more potent plea was urged by the Alderman, of dirty oelebrity, in favour of the request. He broadly stated, that it was an object of paramount importance that the "sober Queen of Britain" should have the opportunity of getting into, or out of, her carriage without being submitted to the common gaze, as there soere times when, in his opinion, the idol should not be injudiciously exposed to the indiscriminate inspection of her worshippers, however besotted they themselves

I am informed that this reason was admitted, and that the Vestry of St. George's, Hanover-square, immediately acquiesced in the application, under a feeling, that, although a temale in that lowest state of degradation, intoxication, might be no unusual sight in St. Giles's, yet, that in this courtly vicinity, its rarity would be no By the bye, Sir, I believe the real motives which induced her Majesty to purchase Cambridge House are not generally known; they are, however, to be found in the accommodation attached to the mansion, in the shape of a small private dwelling at the lower end of the garden. This building, although not at present decorated with statues of Adam and Eve, like the grotto at Villa d'Este, is yet more comfortably arranged than the laundryhouse at Bayswater, and possesses an advantage far superior to them both, in the shape of a prirate communication with the greater dwelling, by which means the Chamberlain may have frequent and secret interviews with his august mistress, unchecked by footmen and waiting-maids, and altogether unfettered by form or decency.

Some persons have conjectured that, in the event of Matthew Wood's failing in his mining speculations, the small house in question is intended to be an alms-house for him and his family. But I apprehend the former conjecture to be the more correct. I am, Sir, your most A. B. obedient servant.

Grusvenor-square, April 2, 1821.

MISCELLANEOUS.

COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE,-This Committee are pursuing their labours still more closely. They met every day last week, and the meetings were fully attended. The examination of Mr. G. Webb Hall, which lested two days, having been concluded, the Committee proceeded to examine several witnesses summoned by themselves; independent farmers, land-surveyors, dec. They have examined several of the latter class; amongst them Mr. Chapman, Mr. Custance, of Cambridge, &c. on Wedneeday. On Thursday the whole day was occupied in the examination of Mr. Edward Wakefield, a gentleman well known to the House, from having been repeatedly examined by Commit-tees, on subjects connected with the interests of Agriculture.

AGRICULTURE, &c .- Monthly Report for March .- Crops of every description have a healthful, if not forward appearance. and only wait for the refreshing showers and mild temperature of spring to burst into full luxuriance, Considering all circumstances, the lands have been generally well tilled, and vast stocks of cattle reared and fed. The seeds have been got in early. Much wheat was sown in the bean planting season, in various parts, and barley; and in few seasons has so little of semination remained to be completed, as in the present. Outdoor stock has done well, and such continues to be the case with the lambs, of which the fall is great and successful for the most part.

All the cloth required for the clothing of the army this year has been contracted for with the Yorkshire clothiers, at 4s. 04d. per yard. The prices of cloth of from Ss. 6d. to Ss. 10d. per yard. The prices of cloth of this description is usually

The Duke of Devonshire has given a piece of ground at Bandon, rent free, for the scite of a Methodist Chapel, and 3001, towards its erection.

The dividends due to the public will be paid on Monday

A Derby Stake is opened for Chester Races, next year, the Stakes for which will be as high as 1,300l.

NEW SERIES OF SCOTTISH HISTORICAL NOVELS.—A new Movel, entitled, "A Legend of Argyle," will be found to form a new, instructive, and entertaining illustration of the Rebellion in Scotland in 1715, thus embracing one of the most important epochs of our domestic history.—In the Legend of important epochs of our domestic history.—In the Legend of Argyle fiction is so ingeniously blended with facts of historical record, that the illusion is complete, and while perusing its pages, we fancy ourselves carried back to the olden time of Scockand, with its turbulent Barons, its obsequious vassals, and all the peculiarities of Clan government. We strongly recommend this Novel, together with "Lochiel, or the Field of Culloden," also lately published, to all those who would obtain an intimate knowledge of the history of their country without wading through the arid details of the historian; the latter work being founded on the events of 1745, as the former is on those of 1715, thus forming a series in which the one is supplementary to the other.—See Advertisement.

NAVAL PROMOTIONS.—To the Bank of Post Captain: Cap-

NAVAL PROMOTIONS.—To the Bank of Post Captain: Captain W. B. Bigland.—Commanders: Lieuts. J. Franklin, G. F. Lyon, the Hon. C. Abhott, J. P. Baker, F. J. Lewis, William Chasman, R. Dicketvon, P. Salmond, J. Gordon (1,) E. Sparshott, T. R. Brigstocke, J. S. W. Johnson, W. Bright, Henry Crease, and J. R. Blois.—Lieuts: Messas, C. M. Tylden, G. Back, G. Evans, R. Hood, F. V. Cotton, J. Washington, W. Wilson, J. Pole, J. Rainier, J. W. Elkins, G. Smith, J. Hamilton, R. Taylor, W. Winniett, C. Mallard, W. Christie, W. M. Hearle, G. Mansel, W. Forbes, W. J. Cooling, L. Reynolds, T. Hearle, G. Massel, W. Forbes, W. J. Cooling, L. Reynolds, T. M'Namara, H. Rymer, E. H. Pace, W. O. Wheatley, W. S. Artbur, M. A. Slater, R. Owen, T. Cartwright, W. H. Martin, and G. B. Martin. NAVAL APPOINTMENTS .- Admiral Sir J. Whitshed, Commander-in-Chief at Portsmouth, vice Sir George Campbell, deceased.—Admiral the Hon. Alex. Inglis Cochrane, Commander-in-Chief at Plymouth, vice Admiral Lord Exmouth—peace service expired.

service expired.

NAVY.—The following ships, &c. are huilding, and ordered to be huilt, in Chatham Dock-yard:—Building—Prince Rejent, 120 guius; Formidable, 84; Powerful, 84; Latona, 46; Diana, 46; Rattlesnake, 28; Procris (brig) 10; Weazle, 10; Basilisk Revenue Cutter.—Ordered to be built. Neptune, 120 guius; Mermaid, 46; Thames, 46; Unicorn, 46; Crocodile, 28; Rainbow, 28; Etna, bomb; Sulphur, bomb.

To the Faculty.—In a work entituled, Thomæ Bartolini Gasp. F. Anatomia, ex Gaspari Bartholini parentis Institutionibus, kc. kc. kc. Hagæ-Comitis, ex typographia Adviani Viace, cloix av. Cap. XXII. p. 135.—"De infirmo véntre,"—"De Testibus"—lege. "Numero bini sunt. Rarò unus tantum, et magnus: [ut Syllæ et Cottæ, teste Arriano] rarius tres [ut in Agathocle Sicilim Tyranno et familiis, nonnullis tres [ut in Agathocle Sicilim Tyranno et familiis, nonnullis Italia Coleorum, Bascami imprimis; allorumque Parisiis notante Fernelio]."

BETTING ROOM, April 5.—State of the Odds on Races to BETTING ROOM, April 5.—State of the Odds on Races to come.—Derby: 13 to 2 agst Reginald; 15 to 2 agst Gustavus; 9 to 1 agst Jock; 9 to 1 agst Morel; 11 to 1 agst Charm; 100 to 5 agst Cowslip; 100 to 5 agst any other.—Oaks; 9 to 2 agst My Lady; 8 to 1 agst Augusta.—Riddlesworth: 2 to 1 agst Reginald; 3 to 1 agst Morel.—8st. 7lb. Stakes: 2 to 1 agst Banker; 5 to 2 agst Autar.

M. Alexandre, the celebrated Ventriloquist, is gone down to Windsor, whither he has been invited under high and illustrious agreements. He will perform there to prepare and Tagstavar.

patronage. He will perform there to-morrow and Tuesday.— M. A. has received numerous and pressing invitations from private circles to exhibit his unrivalled talents, which will interfere with his further performances; but it is understood that, on his return to town, on Wednesday, he will resume his public exhibitions at some one of the theatres.

A machine has lately been invented, and brought to perfec tion, which, with one horse, and a boy to guide it, will furrow an acre of land in five bours. It is adapted for almost all species of soil, and furrows the ground at any given depth, from one inch and a half to eight inches, and from five to eleven inches in breadth; and will also turn the furrows against hills.

A female of Carisbroke, who has been at the lowest ebb of poverty from her birth, is become entitled to a fortune of eight thousand pounds, in consequence of a recent decision in the Court of Chancery.

The Journal of Antwerp asserts, that English hops, after having been used in our breweries, and even expressed engines, are dried again and exported in large quantities.

The accounts from Paris of the death of Madame Fodor, are contradicted by letters received in town. Though her recovery was considered impossible, it seems she is again able to perform at the Parisian Opera.

EARTHQUAKE.—The earthquake which lately made such dreadful ravages in the Island of Zante, was also felt in the Peninsula of the Moren. The town of Lala, it is said, has been completely destroyed, and more than 500 persons have perished under the ruins. Several other towns have been ravaged, and a great number of lives have been lost. In the town of Pyrgos 300 houses were thrown down. The earth-quake lasted several days, and every day violent shocks succeeded each other after intervals of a few hours.

EAST INDIA HOUSE.—On Wednesday a Special General Court of Proprietors of East India Stock, was this day held at the Company's House in Leadenball-street.

The Resolution of the General Court of the 21st of March last, approving the grant of 1,5001. to Captain David Ross, of the Bombay Marine, was confirmed.

Mr. R. Jackson, in an able and eloquent speech, adverted to the abilities which Mr. Canning displayed while be filled the Office of President of the Board of Control; and concluded by moving the following resolution:-

"That this Court, most cordially concurring in the sentiments conveyed by the Court of Directors in their Letter of the 22d of December last, to the Right Hon. George Canning, assure that Gentleman of their sincere admiration of those high qualities so emphatically noticed, and unanimously recorded by the Executive Government of this company, and request him to accept of this expression of their great respect, and of their unfeigned wishes for his health and happiness, whether acting as a distinguished Servant of the Public, or enjoying the culmer pleasures of private life.

That the Chairman and Deputy Chairman be requested to transmit a copy of this Resolution to Mr. Canning.

James Perry, Esq. seconded the motion, and particularly adverted to the liberal conduct of Mr. Canning, with respect to the Asiatic press

The Hon. Colonel Stanhope and Mr. Lowndes supported the metion.

Mr. D. Kinnaird opposed the Resolution, which, he connded, was a Resolution of compliments, not of thanks. whole proceeding was, to use a comprehensive but a vulgar word, the most complete humbug he had ever witnessed.

Mr. Wilkes condemned the present proceeding, because it was not called for hy any necessity whatever; and from measures that were not necessary, it was the interest and duty of that Court to abstain. He moved an amendment, that though the Court had a high respect for Mr. Canning, they did not deem it proper to adopt any Resolution founded on the Corce between him and the Court of Directors.

Mr. D. Kinnaird seconded the Amendment.

Mr. Hume (in the absence of Mr. Jackson) defended the motion. He was sorry the subject had been introduced to the Court; but as it had been brought forward, he felt if they receded a slur would be cast upon Mr. Canning as well as on the Court of Directors.

Mr. D. Kinnaird, after what had fallen from his Hon. Priend was determined not to second the Amendment; but as he could not approve of the original motion, he would take no part, one way or other, in the division.

An Hon. Proprietor immediately expressed his readiness to cond the Amendment.

Mr. Perry, Mr. Twining, Mr. S. Dixon, and Mr. Pattison, supported the original motion, which was carried almost una-nimously; as was also a subsequent motion—That the Chairman and Deputy Chairman be directed to transmit a copy of the Resolution to Mr. Canning.—Adjourned.

PROVINCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

BRIGHTON.-The brave and loval 85th, stationed here, have received another mark of Royal favour, and which the annexed

"The King having graciously been pleased to confer upon the regiment the title of the 'King's Regiment of Light Infantry,' as a most distinguished mark of his Majesty's apprehation of the Corps. In future, the regiment, in all respects, &c. is to be styled, 'The King's Light Infantry,' instead of the 'Duke of York's Own.'

The figures of the segiments of some wallow to blue and

The facings of the regimentals, from yellow to blue, are to

BRISTOL .- A highly respectable gentleman of this city, whilst lubouring under the oppression of a severe mental affic tion, resulting from the loss of the whole of his property, through the unprincipled treachery of one in whom he had confided as a friend, put a period to his existence on Thursday sa might, in the neighbourhood of Stapleton, by discharging the coatents of a pistol through his heart, His body was conveyed to the Boll Inn, where a Coroner's Inquest returned a verdict-Mental Derangement.

CALNE. -- A short time since was discovered hanging in her house, at Cherrill, near this place, Elizabeth Lossom, the mo-ther of four young children. Her husband failed a few years since, left his wife and family, and has not since returned, which is supposed to have caused the rash act.—On Wednesday morning, the 26th ult. a young woman, about 20 years of age, was found hanging in one of the plantations in Bowood Park, near this place. She effected her purpose by means of her shawl. No reason can be assigned for her committing suicide.

CAMBRIDGE.-Two gold medals, given annually by the Chancellor of this University to the best proficients in classical learning among the commencing Bachelors of Arts, have been adjudged to Messrs. Alfred Ollivant, and Win. Henry Fox

Talbot, both of Trinity College.

CARMARTHEN.—Dr. Parry, late surgeon of the Havannah frigate, one of the ships which conveyed Bonaparte to St. Heena, was unfortunately killed, on Friday se'nnight, by a fall from his horse.

CHELTENHAM .- The small-pox is now raging in this town; where it has been introduced in a great measure by some of the lower class inoculated for this malady.

CORK.—The Corporation of this city have lost the right of taking a toll which they enjoyed since the reign of King John; this amounted to an annual sum of 2,800l.

DRAL.-Lust week, a man suspected of having informed against some smugglers, was seized on the beach, stripped naked to the waist, and tarred and feathered. Another elderly man, who happened to look on, being also suspected, suffered a similar treatment: they were driven round the town in a cart for unwards of two bours.

DERBY .- On Friday se'nnight, Mr. Wm. Barton, of this town, corn-dealer, was convicted before the Borough Magis-trates in a mitigated penalty, for not having, on the 31 March inst., delivered to Mr. Thomas Crayne, the receiver of assize returns, a true and exact return of the prices of all the wheat bought by him in the borough of Derby within seven days then preceding.

DUBLIN .- Murder .- Wednesday se'nnight, about 2 o'clock, a dreadful murder was committed on the body of a young lady, living in the house of Capt. Peck, Portland-place, near Mount-joy-square, in this city. Shortly before the time mentioned, a girl of the name of Ennis called at the house, and informed the Lady that the Captain had met with a severe accident in -Earl-street, and that she had been sent by him to have the servant-maid dispatched with his great-cont, and a carriage to convey him home, which was instantly complied with. entire story, however, was a fabrication; no such accident had appeared to Captain Peck. On the return of the servant, sho found the place in great disorder, the house robbed, and hea mistress murdered: the property taken was considerable. She instantly gave the alarm. The deceased was found in the kitchen, mangled in a shocking manner. A Coroner's Inquest has sat on the body, and brought in a verdict against a discarded female servant of the name of Bridget Butterly, as guilty of wilful murder, and against the girl Ennis, as having nided and assisted in the robbery.

Exetes.— On Monday se'nnight, between the hours of eight and nine o'clock, Mr. Joseph Rowe, of this city, builder and auctioneer, was discovered lying on the tumpike-road, in a senseless state, about a mile and a half from Crediton, where he was taken, and expired shortly after. Mr. R. has left a widow and large family to mourn their severe loss. A Coroner's Inquest returned a verdict of apoplexy.

GLASGOW .- On Tuesday last, two boys, one apparently. seven, the other ten years old, decently dressed, with their school books, were discovered lying in a field, the one senseless, the other dead. The usual means were tried, but without effect, on the one.

GREENOCK .- The Rev. Mr. Crawford, Minister of Kilmo took his passage in a small wherry (as it is understood) with an attendant and two young men with him; the boat found keel upwards, betwixt the islands of Lanlash and Plodda. The unfortunate passengers have not been found.

HAREwoop.—Some villains broke into the church, and stripped all the scarlet cloth off the Earl of Harewood's pew. Holl.—The foundation-stone of the new church at Scul-coates, adjoining here, was laid last week with much ceremony. It is to be built by subscription, and the inhabitants of the parish are to nominate their own clergyman.

Mrs. G. Knight, of Firbeck, has erected at her own expense a new parish church, on the site of the old one; and it is a remarkable circumstance, that, during the period of rebuilding, neither wedding, burial, or christening occurred in the parish.

LANCASTER.—Mr. Brougham, her Majesty's Attorney-General, has been under the necessity, in consequence of indispo-sition, of returning the briefs be had received at our Assizes, and on Thursday (29th ult.) left here for Brougham Hall, Westmoreland.

LEEDS.—On Wednesday, another fatal accident happened at the Waterloo Colliery near this place; as William Ingle, the banksman, was lending the coals, the catch gave way, and he was precipitated to the bottom of the pit, and killed on the spot. — An ominous casualty has befallen part of the extensive barracks at present erecting in this place—the iron roof placed upon one of the buildings has given way, and Glasgo must, we understand, be totally removed. At the racks a roof of a similar description fell in, and left the building a ruin.

Lincoln.—A most cruel and atrocious murder was committed on the evening of Friday se'nnight at Whapiode. Mrs. Cawthorn, wife of John Cawthorn, of that place, while taking supper with her husband, was suddenly taken ill, and expired before any assistance could be procured. Her husband ran to a neighbour's house, and pretending that his wife was very bad, desired them to come to her assistance, when they found her a corpse; and, on examining the body, supposed her to have taken poison. An inquest was held on the body, when it appeared that the deceased had not been killed by poison only, but by a violent bruise on the throat, supposed to have been caused by her husband's attempting to strangle her while she was vomiting up the poison. The Jury having returned a verdict of wilful murder against the husband, he has been committed to Spalding gaol to take his trial at the next assizes at Lincoln.

MAXCHESTER. - The manufacturers in this town are obtaining good prices for their goods. Stocks (of muslius particularly) have seldom been lower. Weavers wages increase. The demand for cotton is great.

NOTTINGHAM.—The stocking weavers in the neighbouring counties have struck for wages. Large processions of these men are frequently seen traversing our streets.

Woncester, March 31.—Hop Intelligence.— This day 143 pockets were weighed; prices 56s. to 75s. Curious samples higher. The planters have commenced throwing down the hills; the plants look very healthy.

ACCIDENTS, OFFENCES, &c.

At the Surrey Sessions, Richard Wigley, a watchman, of Petersham, was indicted for the wilful murder of Robert Knight, on the 28th of March, by shooting him with a gun loaded with shot.

Mr. Turton conducted the prosecution, and called the witnesses, who stated the transaction in the same manner as detailed in our last.

The Prisoner was a man of respectable appearance, was deeply affected, and received a most unexceptionable character from a number of gentlemen in the neighbourhood, who spoke of him in the highest terms for humanity.

The Jury found the prisoner guilty of manslaughter. He

An awful instance of sudden death occurred on Friday se'nnight. Mr. Wiltshire, late of the King's Head Tavern, in the Poultry, left town on Friday afternoon, for his residence at Clapham; he took tea, and afterwards, as was customary with him, a short sleep. On awaking, he complained of indignation desired his bod to he warmed and replained of indisposition, desired his bed to be warmed, and re-tired to rest. He got into bed without any assistance, just laid down, and expired immediately. Mr. W. was a man who enjoyed a good state of health, and was upwards of seventy.

The warehouse of Messrs. Snell and Co. lately the receptacle for the Houseless Poor, was plundered of property on Wednesday night, to the amount of nearly 7001.

EXTRAORDINARY OCCURRENCE.—A few days since, a lady, apparently labouring under considerable fatigue, called at a cottage in the neighbourhood of Turnham Green, and applied for refreshment, for which she tendered a bank note. The inchange, and on her return, with great surprize, found the stranger gone. On hearing, as she believed, the cry of her infant, she hastened to its cradle, but to her utter dismay, discovered her own hat been taken away, and another of a tawny colour placed in its stead. Cash to the amount of 1001, was fastened to its breast. It is said, the poor woman, influenced by the pecuniary gift, has become reconciled to the event, and treats the child with maternal fondness.

ADVERTISEMENT .- SPRING FASHIONS .- Curling the hair still continues to prevail, indeed, it may be called an universal fashion, the effect of a fine head of hair strikes every beholder with admiration, and has always been a favorite theme for the artist's pencil, and the poet's muse, and of all modern invenartist's pencil, and the poet's muse, and of all modern inven-tions for displaying it in the most fascinating manner, Atkinson's Curling Fluid has long stood pre-eminent, by applying it after curling the hair, it counteracts the harshness which hot irons produce, makes it soft and glossy as silk, and keeps the curl firm during exercise in dancing or walking, or in damp wea-ther. It also removes the dandriffe, prevents the hair failing off or turning grey, and is perhaps the greatest regenerator of hair in the whole arcana of nature. It is sold by most re-spectable Perfumers, but as there are some very near isoilaspectable Perfumers, but as there are some very near imitations, the following signature is on the label of the genuine, "James Atkinson, 44. Gerrard Street, London."

		SHIP	NEWS.	•
	Arrived Mails	Due	1 Arrived	Maile	Due
	1 Dublin			Lisbon
•	Waterford	1		.Malta	–
	Guernsey & Jers	ey —	I	Prance	I
	Holland		1	.Hamburgi	ı —
	lGottenburgh			Fianders .
	TABLE A	177 0		AL DE

DEAL, April 6. Wind N. W.—Came down from the River and sailed the Ulysses, Dawson, for Rio Janeiro; Mary Ann, Jackson; Everetta, Stoddart; and General Elliott, Pranks, for Quebee; Surry, Guchut, for St. John's; Nestor, Theaker, for New Brunswick; Columbo, Billert; and Jersey, Nicholson, for Miramichi; Hannah, Dun, for Cape Breton; and Sceptre, Dixon, from Edward's Island—Arrived and sailed for the River, with the rest of the homeward-bound, the Martha, Mathews, for Pernambuco; and Orodino, Fanning, for New York, the latter remains; the Anna, Robertson, sailed this morning for India, but has since put back.

back.
BRISTOL, April6.—The Flora, M'Lean, for New Brunswick, droye ashore at the mouth of this river a few days since, but is got off, it is ashore at the month of this river a few days since, but is got off, it is supposed, little damaged.

PORTSMOUTH, April 6. Wind W.S. W. Arrived from the Downs, the John Howard, Smith, for Quebec: Anne, Church, for the West halles; Vigitaut, Davidson, for Marseilles; Ulysses, Dawson, for the Brasile; and H. M. ship Sophic.—Paased down Channel, the Frances, Erans's and Daniel, Allen, for the S. Seas.

PADSLOW, April 4.—The Adolphe, Pruncand, which was carried into Port Isaac, the 24th ult. parted her cables, and drove on the rocks, where she now lies, a complete wreck.

PLYMOUT41, April 5.—The Speculation, Gaff, for Cardiff, got a shore this morning uader Mount Battrn, within the entrance of Catwater, where she now remains.

water, where she now remains.

FALMOUTH, April 4. Wind W. N. W. Salled, the Stanmer Packet, with a Mati, for Lisbos.

EXTRAORDINARY RED BOOK.

Just published, a New Edition, corrected and enlarged, to the end of the First Year of the Reign of His present Majesty,

THE EXTRAORDINARY RED-BOOK, containing an Accesunt of all Places, Pensions, Sinecures, Grants, &c. the Expenditure of the Civil List, the Finances and Debt of Great Britain, with a variety of Official Documents never before published; among which are Admiralty Droits, Land and other Crown Revenues to February, 1821.

A correct List of the New Parliament, &c. &c.

By A COMMONER.

London: Printed for J. Johnston, 98, Cheapside, and W. Clarke, 92, Royal Exchange.

London: Printed for J. Johnston, 98, Cheapside, and W. Ciarke, Uz., Royal Exchange.

THE EXTRAORDINARY RED BOOK is a Work interesting to all; these are the evils of the system, and there are the advantages of it; there you will see how, through what channels, by what means and for whom the system "works well." Look attentively at what is there placed before you. Behold the reasons, the solid reasons, why the enemies of Constitutional and Radical Reform are its bitterest foes. Read the facts, and recollect the men whom you will find named. Observe how they act. Renember what you find recorded of them, and that, too, chiefly from PARLIAMENTARY DOCUMENTS; and you will then cease to doubt—even if you had before hesitated on the subject—why Reform is resisted by all parties, Whigs and Tories, ins and Outs, or by whatever name the various Factions may be called.

PARASOLS on the improved Principle.—J. CRAWFORD 29, Cheapside, Inventor of the Sliding Tube Parasol, invites the Nobility, Ladies of Fashion, and his Friends in general, to inspect the most elegant and extensive Assortment of Parasols ever before offered to the Public—and on much more reasonable terms. The advantages of the Sliding Tabe Parasol over the common one, are now so well Names, that further description is unnecessary. He has also manufactured a questity of Parasols on real Cane, which are preferable to any other for the Sea-side or the Garden. A great variety of common Parasols on Sale, commencing at the low price of Sa. 6d. Shippers and the trade supplied as usuals—An Apprentice wanted, who will be treated as one of the Family, for which a premium will be required.

CAUTION.—SALMON, ODY, and CO. most respectfully cantion the Pablic against the many bengling and inferior initative TRUSSES now offered for sale. The true PATENT SELF-ADJUSTING TRUSSES have "Salmon Patent" stamped on the front end of the anting.

the upring.

The Patentees have the honear to supply the Army and Mavy, the Naval and Military Hespitals, the Beck Yards and Ordnance, the Marine Infirmary, the Menourable East India Company, the City of London Trass Society, the Mary-le-Bone. Wiveliscembe, Bristof, and Denbigh Infirmaries, the Middlesex Hospital, &c. &c. &c.

Manufactory, 292, Strand, Leudon; et a la Galerie du Palais Royale, 183, a Paris

sas, a Paris. 質字 Persons residing in the country sending the circumference of the body across the hips, may depend upon being accurately fitted.

GREY ARABIAN.—TO BREEDERS AND OTHERS
TO BE DISPOSED OF, a REAL ARABIAN GREY STALLION, from the Stud of the Bashaw of Tripol, the beginning of 1829: 15 hands high, 8 years old, warranted perfectly sound in every respect, and free from all vice or blemish. This Herse is so gestle, that the most timid Lady or Child may ride him; and is, perhaps, the largest Horse in the smallest compass ever seen in this country, being able to carry the heaviest weight that can ride. He is the property of a Gentleman who had him from the Eashaw, and parted with for no fault whatever. To be seen and Particulars known at Hodgkinson's Livery Stables, Bury-street, Bloomsbury-square.

REDUCTION in the PRICE of WINDSOR SOAP,—
JONES's (Inter Davison's) IMPROVED ROYAL DOUBLE SCENTED WINDSOR SOAP, in the highest perfection.—J. JONES, having considerably improved this Soap, and reduced it in price, particularly recommends it for family use. It is rendered more pare in quality and greatly enriched in fragrance; its balsamic and cleansing properties operate in the most agreeable manner upon the skin, by producing an immediate soft creamy lather.—Please to ask for Jone's improved Royal Double Scented Windsor Soap. So'd in Lendon only, at his Manufactory, No.59, Fleet-street, at 2s. (late 2s. 6d.) per lb., comsisting of six squares, or in single squares at 64. each.

Improved Royal Double Scented Windsor Sonp. Sown in Language at his Manufactory, No. 59, Fleet-street, at 2s. (late 2s. 6d.) per lb., consisting of six squares, or in single squares at 6d. each. ESTABLISHED UPWARDS of TWENTY YEARS for the BALE of IRISH LINEN by the PIECE,

At the Factor's Price, No. 4, on the South Side of Bloomsbury square, four doors from the top of Southampton-street, Rolborn,

THE IRISH LINEN COMPANY beg leave to announce to the Public, that the above House is their only Establishment in this Country: where they continue to supply the Nobility, Gentry, and the Public with WARRANTED GRASS-BLEACHED LINEN, For Shirts and Sheets, of the best fabric and solour, at a price considerably lower than they can be procured through any other medium.

They also engage to return the Purchase-money should any fault appear.

appear.

Good Irish Bills and Bank of Ireland Notes takes as usual

Country and Town orders runctually attended to by JOHN DONOVAN, 4, Bloomsbury-square, London, JOHN DOYLE, 31, St. Mary's Akbey, Ouldin, Agents.

JOHN DONOVAN, 4, Bloomsbury-square, London, Agents.

JOHN DOYLE, 31, St. Mary's Akhoy. Dukkin,

PATENT ECONOMICAL and UNIVERSAL LAMP, adapted to the CONSERVATORY. The same principle on which this Lamp acts as a Chamber or Night Light, so universally admired and patronized by thousands of families and persons, is so peculiarly applicable to the Conservatory, that the Patentee is induced to present it to the Public as a protector of delicate Plants and Flowers from the effects of frosty or cold nights. Two of these Lamps, which add elegance to utility, have been proved, by many experiments made by a respectable Florist in his own Green-house, to have kept the thermometer at 40 to 41 degrees for twelve hours, during a severe frost, at the small expense in spermacett oil of two-prince each; and what adds to its singular advantage is, that its heat can be increased or otherwise at pleasure. The Nightor Chamber Lamp gives an invariable light for twelve hours or more—ready at the moment it is wanted—boaring any motion perfectly safe—and in expense not hulf that of a rush-light: price 10s, in neat Japanned Stands; and 20s. in elegant Imperial Metal, or Bronze, suited to the exambers of the Nobility and affinent: and the Conservatory Lamp, all Glass, 30s. each.—Sold by T. Pearce and Co. Agents to the Patentee, 269, St.Clement's, Strand, who, to secure the reputation of this Invention from the effects of bad oil, are bound to sell none but pure and genuine Spermaceti.—Families in the Country may venture to send their Orders, without the possibility of a disappointment.—Letters (post-paid) will meet with prompt attention.

BURGESS' ESSENCE of ANCHOVIES-Warehouse, 107. BURGESS' ESSENCE of ANCHOVIES—Warehouse, 107, being apprized of the numerous endeavours made by many persons to impose a spurious attille for their make, feel it incumbent upon them to request the attention of the Public, in purchasing what they conceive to be the Original, to observe the Name and the Address corresponds with the above:—the general appearance of the spurious descriptions with the above:—the unguarded, and for their detection, J. B. and Son submit the following cautious,—some are in a spearance at first sight. "The Gennia," but without any name or ad Jess:—some "Burgess's Essence of Anchovies:—others—"Burgis's"—and many more without Address.

John Burgess an. Son having been many years beneared with such distinguished approbation, feel every scuttment of respect towards the Public, and carnestly solicit them to inspect the Labels previous to their purchasize whatthey conceive to be of their make, which sheep hope will prevent many disappointments.

BURGESS'S NEW SAUCE, for general purposes, having given such great satisfaction, continues to be prepared by them, and is recommended as a most useful and convenient Sauce: will keep good in all climates.

Warehouse, 107, Strand, corner of the Savoy-steps, Loudon.—(The original Fish-sauce Warehouse.)

warehouse, 107, Strand, cerner of the Savoy-steys, London.—(The original Fish-sauer Warehouse.)

URLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brussels fabric), 147, Strand, near Somerset House, removed from 392, Strand.—G. F. URLING and CO, beg to inform the Fashiouable World, that they have prepared for the Season a various and extensive Assortment of their PATENT LACE DRESSES, from four Guineas to ene fundred Guineas each; some of which, from recent improvements, they humbly presume to compare with the most perfect foreign productions. Also a great variety of Veils, Scarfs, Squares, Laces, Nets, &c. of every description. This peculiarly clear and transparent Article having, in the higher circles, superseded the ase of common Lace, which becomes rough and foll of fibre on the first washing, the Patentees respectfully apprise the Public, that the latter is frequently starched to conceal its defects, and make it resemble Urling's Lace, which, therefore, can only be relied upon as genuine at their Wholesale and Retail Establishment in Lewion, or of the Country Dealers supplied by them. Every Article is distinguished by a Seai, with the Patentee's Initials, "G. F. U. and Co." and the words, "by the (late) Queen's authority." Specimeas, shewing the superiority of Urling's Lace over cemmon Lace, may be seen in Ackermann's Repositery, La Belle Assemblee, and other fashionable works, and may be had gratis, by application, post-paid, to G. F. Urling and Co.

Country Dealers supplied upen the most liberal terms.—Manufactory, Basford, Nettinghamshire.

Urling and Co. Country Dealers supplied upon the most liberal terms.—Manufactory, Basford, Nottinghamshire.

The Great Resterative to Health is MANN'S APPROVED MEDICINE, sold in Bottles at 2s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. each. Buty included; engraved on the Stamp, "Thus. Mann, Horshain, Sussex," to counterfeit which is Felony.

AS COUGHS and COLDS are so prevalent in this King-

AS COUGHS and COLDS are so prevalent in this Kingdom, no Family should be a moment without this Medicine, to the virtue of which the most honourable testimony has been borne, being recommended by Physicians, and patronised by Ludies and Gentlemen of the first distinction; if may be taken by the Infant in the first week, to the Aged in any state; it strengthens the Coat off the Stemach, helps Bigestion, creates an Appetite, and reanimates the whole Frame.

Sold, wholesale and retail, by the Proprietor, Horsham, Sussex; and may be had in London of Hudson and Co. 27, Haymarket; Sutton and Co. 10, Bow Church yard; Newberry and Sone, 43, St. Paul's, and 29, Dame-street, Dublin; Butler, 4, Cheapside; Edwards, 66, St. Paul's, Barclay and Son, 95, Fleet Market; Johnson, 15, Greek-street, Soho; Evans and Son, 42, Long-lane, Smittheid; Bácon, 150, Oxford-street; E. Newberry, Cerner of St. Paul's; Tutt, Royal Exchange; Clark, 269, High-street, Borough; Ward, 324, Holborn; Vade, 46, Cornhill; and by the principal Venders of Medicine in the United Kingdom.

A MOST IMPORTANT DISCOVERY for CONVULSION And EPILEPTIC FITS, SPASMS, &c.—DR. HADLEY'S CON-VULSION POWDER, a certain Remedy for Convulsion Fits in Chil-dres, and for all Spasmodic Complaints.

Patronized and sanctioned by Her Grace the Duchess of Rutland Lady Catharine Walpols, Right Hon. Lady Antherst.
Right Hon. Lady Lismore.
Right Hon. Lady C. Cavendish.
Hon. Mrs. Hagturst, Hon. Mrs. Egerton.

Right Hon. Lady C. Cavendish.

Iady Caroline Lamb.

DR. HADLEY'S POWDERS, although not publicly known, have for many years anatained a proud characteristic as a never-failing remedy in the worst cases of Convulsions in Children, or Adults; also Epileptic or Falling Fits, which they completely extirpate; removes the most violent Spasmodic Affectious. These Powders are conderfully, and weakness in Children and Adulta, and in a short time restores the patient to perfect health, without confinement or alteration in dict. These Powders are equally efficacious in all climates.

Sold is bettles at 4s. 6d. 11s. and 22s. each, by appaintment of the Proprietor, by Mr. Sanger, Medicine Varehouse, 150, Oxford-street; Messra. Barclay and Sons, 45, Sec. Paul's Church-yard; Edwards, 66, St. Paul's Church-yard; Suttou and Go. Baw Church-yard; Edwards, 66, St. Paul's Church-yard; Suttou and Go. Baw Church-yard; Edwards, 66, St. Paul's Church-yard; Suttou and Go. Baw Church-yard; Butler, 4, Cheapside; Evans, Long-change; Johnstone, Cornhill; Ward, 324, Holborn; and by their appointment by most respectable Medicine Venders in every Towa throughout the United Kingdom.

the United Kingdom.
(**) Ask for DR. HADLEY'S Convulsion Pewders

MONTAGUE-STREET, near PORTMAN-SQUARE.
Two Hundred Lots of Gennine HUUSEHOLD FURNITURE, of Capt.
Prendigress, going to India. Three beautiful Entrits Drawing-room Curtains, with 14 Rosewood Chairs, and two Grecian Couches, with Cabinets, Cards, Sofa, Loo and Work Tables, inlaid capital carved Fedestal Sideboard, with Patent Dining Tables to go under, two large Chimney and Pier Glasses, Cut Glass, &c.

TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION,

Chimney and Pier Glasses, Cat Glass, &c. &c.

TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION,
BY MESSIS. WILSON and CO.
On the Premises, No. 22, Montague-street, TO-MORROW and following Day, at Twelve,
COMPRISING four very handsome Mahogapy Bedsteads and Hangings, with White Goose and Down Beds and Bedding to each, Parlour Curtains for two Windows, with Mahogany Cenches and Chairs covered with red Morocco and Satin Hair Cloth, a very superis Set of Rosewood, Card, Sofa, and Loo Tables, elegantly inlaid and finished, Sofa Bedsteads and Accouchement Chairs fitted up with Cushions, three large Chimney Glasses with corresponding Mirrora, and Pier ditto, Mahogany Wardrobes, and Ghairs of double and single Drawers, a Patent Dressing Case fitted up with Apparatus, reading and work Tables, Harp Stand and Chair, Sandwich Tables, Book Cheffoniers, Frints, Blue and White Dinner Service, double-barrel Gun, and a Case of Pistols, Cheval and Box Glasses, Jandsome Cut Glass, in Decanters, Goblets, Wines, Trific Dishes, Ice Pails, &c. the whole of the Kitchen Furniture, &c.
May be viewed, when Catalogues may be had; and at the Auctioneers'
Office, Holborn.

LONDON MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, PRIDAY, APRIL 6.

There have been but few arrivals of Wheat since Monday, the trade is however dull, and what remained over from that day's market met a heavy sale on lower terms.—Barley also, of which there was a good supply from Suffolk, sold heavily on scarcely so good terms.—Having been moderately supplied with Onts of late, the sales are tolerably brisk at last week's price.—In Beans and Pease we have no alteration to notice.

DETTUN DRICE of CD v	IN, on board Ship, as under.
WELLING LAIGE OF CITY	in, on board Ship, as under.
Essex Red Wheat (new)35s. 4xs.	Maple
Fine	White ditto
Olds. —s. —s. —s.	Boilers
Rasex White (new)40s. 50s,	Small Beans #. 30s. 32s.
Fine
Superfine
Ryes. 30s. 32s.	Old
Old	Feed Oats 16s. 18s.
Barleys. 20s. 24s.
Fine	Poland ditto
Superline	Fine
Malt50s. 54s.	Potatoe ditte
Fines. 56s. 60s.	Fine
Hog Pense
200 1441

PRICE of FLOUR.

					M A I	₹СН	21.		•
Mar. Dist Inl. Counties g. & Wal.	W	ht.	R	ye.	B	ırl.	0	ats.	Be	nn.	Pe	ase.		ME
	8.	d.	8.	d.	*.	d	B.	d.	8.	d.	8.	d.	s.	d.
Mar. Dist	51	9	34	10]	24	43	18	4	30	0	33	1	18	114
Inl. Counties	55	14	33	117	24	7 🖠	50	7	32	15	32	14	25	LIA
gr.o≚ Wal.	54	9}	34	9†	54	5	18	6	39	5 }	32	1	19	5
	3	MI	LHI	16.1	D	-FR	104	Υ.	APR	IL e	5.			_,
									0/ 8
Beaf	3.	. 4	l. to	45.	81	. 1 V	cal.			4s.	ed.	to 6	•	4.
Mutton	48	. 00	i. te	58.	Od	.   P	ork.			4s.	od.	to s		ad.

PRICE of HOPS, per Cwt.—SATURDAY, MARCH 31.

Bags.

Kent...21. 10s, to 31. 10s, a 41. 4s.

Sussex 21. 0s, to 31. 0s, a 21. 10s.

Essex 21. 5s. to 31. 0s. a 31. 4s.

Essex 21. 5s. to 31. 10s. to 61. 10s.

Farnham, fine ... 41. 10s. to 61. 10s.

Farnham, second 21. 16s. to 51. 0s.

	Es of th	e PUB	LIC FU	NDS.
STOCKS.	Mon.	Tues.	Wed.	Thur.	Frid.	Sai.
Bank Stock	_	-			851	-
3 per Cent. Reduced				-	711	7,18
3 per Cent. Consols		72	72	72	711 721 80	72 713
8 per Cent. Consols			_		80	_
Consols for Account		72	728	725	72	72 716
4 per Cent. Consols	-	-	_	_	88	389 £ T
5 per Cent. Navy	107	107	1965	106}	106	1064 3
Bank Long Annuities	_	-		-	_	184
India Bonds	46 p	47 p	48 P	18 p	49 p	49 47
Exchequer Bills, 2d		3 p	4 p	4.9	4 p	par 4 6
Ditto, 24d	_				 	-
Omnium	-	_	-	_	_	_

BIRTHS.
On Monday, at Bath, the Lady of Captain Gawen Roberts, R. N. of In South Andley street, on Tuesday, the 3d inst. the Lady of George Sinclair, Esq. of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

At St. Clement Danes, William Januett, Esq. of Gerrard-street, Suho, to Ann, youngest daughter of the late William Winchester, Esq. of Cecil-street.

At Guernsey, Flitzkubert Macqueen, Esq. to Mary Christina, relict of the late Captain James Dalrymple, and third daughter of Sir James Nasmyth, Bart.

DIKD.

On Wednesday, of apoplexy, Mrs. Liston, of Covent Garden Theatre.
On Saturday last, at his house in Pall Mall, in the 82d year of his age, Sir T. C. Bunbury, Bart. Sir Charles was for many years one of the Representatives in Parliament for the county of Suffolk, and only declined a continuation of that honour at the General Election before the last.

At her house, in Park-street, in her 99th year, Viscountess Pery, reliet of Viscount Pery, and mother to Viscountess Northland and the Hon. Mrs. Calvert.

On Twesday, the 3d inst. suddenly, Charlotte, second daughter of the Right Hon. Sir James Mansheld, Kat. at his lieuse in Russell-square.

On Wednesday, Admiral Sir John Colpoys, G. C. B. Governor of Greenwich Hoepital.

Sunday morning, the 1st inst. in Wardrebe-place, Dector's Commons, in his Suit year, Wm. Box, Esq. surgeon, and for 44 years Deputy of the Ward of Castle Baynard.

Monday night, Mr. Samuel Highley, bookseller, of Fleet-street, aged 60.

aged 60.

At Paris, J. R. Cutlibert, Esq. of Grosvenor-square.

In Reading, aged 66, James Pailey, Esq. late collector of His Majesty's.

Excise at Briatol.

Section 2018, 1985, 19

Excise at Bristol.

At his house in Spital-square, Peter Guillebaud, Esq. in his 83d year.
On Sunday, the 1st inst. at Bury St. Edmund's, George Western, Esq. of the General Post Office, aged 55.

At Elthan House, Kent, on Monday, Mrs. Aislabie, widow of the lake
Rawson Aislabie, Esq.
Suddealy, of an hysterical affection, Mrs. Elliston, wife of Mr. Elliston, the lessee of Drury-lane Theatga, at her residence in Stratford-place.
On the 2d inst. at Brighton, Robert Enidges, Esq. of Tooting, Surrey, in the 63d year of his age.
On Sunday last, at Brighton, Str Charles Edmonstone, of Dunheath, Bart. M.P. for the county of Stirling.

LONDON: Printed and Published by R. T. WEAVER, at No. 11, JOHNSON'S COURT, FLEET-STREET, where only Communications to the Editor, (post paid) are

JOHN

BULL.

" FOR GOD, THE KING, AND THE PEOPLE!"

No. 18.

SUNDAY, APRIL 15, 1821.

Price 7d.

NEW ARGYLL ROOMS

NEW ARGYLL ROOMS.

THE Nobility and Gentry making only a temporary residence in Town, whose houses may not offer the convenicacies necessary for Parties, or who may wish to avoid the embarras at home, are respectfully informed, that the above elegant Suite of Rooms may be engaged for Dipner, Ball, Music, or Conversatione Parties.—Professors giving Lestures, Balls, Concerts, &c. may be accommodated with Rooms for the various purposes, Moraing or Evening. For Terms apply to the Cashier in the Lower Saloon, between the hours of Ten and Pive.

NEW SONGS.

NEW SONGS.

THE CAMBRIAN MINSTREL BOY, sung by Muster Smith, by Parry, 1s. 6d. "I love thee dearly," by the Duke of Marlbro', 2s. "Oh, wear for me," by ditto, 2s. "Merrily swim we," by Kiallmark, 2s. "Malden, wrap thy Mantle," by ditte, 2s. "Yes, my Love, yes," by ditte, 1s. 6d. "If e'er compassion shelter found," by Lanza, 1s. 6d. "Little lovely Rore d'Ameaux," by ditto, 2s. "See where the falling day," by Knapton, 2s. "When we two parted," by ditto, 2s. New Editions of "The Soldier tired," and, "In infancy," from Artorexes, 1s. each.—Published and sold by CHAPPELL and CO. Music-sellers to His Majesty, 50, New Bond-atreet.

NEW MUSIC.

His Majesty, 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

Just published by the Royal Harmenic Institution, Lower Saloon, Argyll Rooms, Regent-street,

PRAMATIC AIR, No. 15, "Sei morelli e quattro bai," a favourite Air, by Elmarosa, arranged as a Rondo, by G. Masi, 3s.

The celebrated Air, "Cease, rude Boreas," arranged with variations, by T. Haigh, 3s. "Begone, dull Care," as a Rondo for the Harp or Pians Forte, by Augustus Mevis, 3s. Rondino, by the same Author, 4s.

A grand Octave Somata, by J. B. Cramer, 4s. A Sonata, with Flute ad lib. 4s. by the same Author. Twelve progressive Lessons for the Pians Forte, by F. W. Crouch, 4s.

N. B. Where is published the latest Compositions of J. B. Cramer, Rawilags, Holder, W. Hawes, W. Knyvett, C. Meyer, and P. Ser, with superior Editions of Yocal and Instrumental Works, by Eminent Authors.

MUSIC.—The new PATENT PORTABLE HARPS, the MUSIC.—The new PATENT PORTABLE HARPS, the most desirable little instruments ever invented; these Dital Harps possess all the properties of the Pedal Harp; although not one-third the size, are strikingly elegant, seen learnt to play upon, and of small price, with other advantages, such as no instrument of this class and size ever before possessed. B. LIGHT, the inventor, begs to inform the Nobility and Ladies, he has now a variety of the above ready for inspection and choice, at his Cabinet of Extraordinaries, No. 3, Folcy-place, Cavendish-square.—N. B. Ladies are also properly instructed on the new Dital Harps, Pupils are attended at their own residences, and Ladies who prefer it receive the few Lessons required on the above, at his house, ascenmendiously as at home.

BY Ladies who learn these Dital Harps can likewise play on the Pedal Harp, which is also another great advantage.

MR. JOHN SCOTT'S POSTHUMOUS WORK.

MR. JOHN SCOTT'S POSTHUMOUS WORK.
In a few days will be published, in 8vo.
KRTCHES OF MANNERS, SCENERY, &c. in the FRENCH PROVINCES; with an Essay on French Literature.
By the late JOHN SCOTT, Esq. Author of the "Visit te Paris," &c.
Printed for Longman, Hurst Rees, Orme, and Brown, London.
Of whom may be had, by the same Author.
A VISIT to PARIS in 1811, 4th Bellion, 8vo. 12s. boards.
3. PARIS REVISITED in 1815, 3d Edition, 8vo. 12s. boards.

Just published, in 12mo. price 6s. 6d. bound, Second Edition of A N HISTORICAL EPITOME of the OLD and NEW TESTAMENTS, and part of the Apocrypha, in which the Events are arranged according to Chronological Order.

By A MEMBER of the CHURCH of ENGLAND,
Author of "Weekly Prayers upon the Creation."

Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, 13, Ave Maria-lane.

Printed for G. and W. B. WHITTAKER, 19, AND AMERICATURE.

A NEW CARICATURE.

PETER SHAM-Peter SHAMPOOD, or the consequence of Kissing and Telling, taken from Life in St. James's-street.

Fairburn, Broadway, Ludgate-hill.

Just published, handsomely printed upon a sheet of drawing paper, and embellished with the Coronets of the several Orders of Nobility, tastefully coloured, price 5s. on canvass, in a neat case for the pocket, 8s. on canvass and rollers, 10s.

fully coloured, price 5s. on canvass, in a neat case for the pocket, 3s. on canvas and rollers, 10s.

THE PEERAGE CHART for 1821.—This Chart contains the complete Pecrages of the United Kingdom, alphabetically arranged (including the Scotch and Irish Peers who were emitted last year), with the following particulars of each Member:—The Thie, Title of the Bidest Son, Surname, Dates of the first and last Creation, Precedence, Age, whether Married, Bachelor, or Widewer, number of Children, Male and Female; Krights of the Garter, Thistle, &c. Lord Lieutenants, Privy Counsellors, Roman Catholics, and Peers' Eldest Sons who are Members of the present Parliament. It also shews by what means the Peerage was obtained, that is to say, whether by Naval, Military, Legal, or other Services; and states the Century to which each Peer can trace his Faternal Ancestry: thus exhibiting, at one view, sinch interesting information, and forming, upon the whole, a complete Pecrage in Miniature.

Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, Ave Maria-lane; and J. Warren, 19, Old Bond-street.

Of whom may be had, just published.

2. The BARONETAGE CHART for 1821, printed with the above, and containing the Barenets of the United Kingdom, with suitable Ornaments, coloured.

LITERARY GAZETTE for 1821.

Ornaments, coloured.

LITERARY GAZETTE for 1821.

Just published, Part I. price 9s.

THE LITERARY GAZETTE, and JOURNAL of BELLES

LETTRES, ARTS, SCIENCES, &c. &c. &c. consisting of the Pirst
Thirteen Weekly Numbers of the Year 1821.

The principal Subjects this Work embraces are,—
An immediate Review of every interesting New Publication, whether Foreign or English, with amusing Extracts.—Original Correspendence, Literary and Philosophical.—Sketches of Society and Manners.—Criclisms on the English and Foreign Drams.—Memoirs of Eminent and Literary Characters.—Proceedings of Public and Literary Societies,
&c.—Varieties on all Subjects connected with Polite Literature.—
Poetry, Anecdutes, Jeax d'Esprit, &c.—The Arts very coplously considered.—Discoveries, Scientific Improvements, and Inventions.—Phenomens of Nature and Mind, Philosophical Remarks.—Literary Intelligence. Advertisements of New Books and Music, Works of Art, Exhibitions, &c.

Subscribers who desire to begin with the New Year, will please to give their Orders early, to prevent disappointment, as only a limited addition will be made to supply such definad, unless a larger amount is previously ascertained.

The Work is published in Numbers, every Saturday, at No. 362, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsmeth, price 8d.: or stamped, for Country Circulation, price 1s.

COUNTRY HOUSES for SMALL FAMILIES.

TO BR LET, FURNISHED, One Property, THREE MOUSES, very cheerfully situate, one at HIGHGATE, comprising two Sitting Rooms communicating, French Windows, Balconies, Venetial Shades; Three beat Bed and a Servant's Room; Kitchen, with Pump of fine Spring Water, &c. Reat, furnished, 70 Guineas a year, or Two Guineas and a Halfa week for six months, or lease at a very mederate Rent, Fixtures and Furniture to be sold, The second at HANWELL, eight miles on the Uxbridge Road, furnished Cottage; two Sitting, five Bed Rooms, with six Beds; Kitchen, Dairy, Wash and four Acres Maadow. Rent, three years, 85 Guineas; one year, 1001; six months, 3 Guineas a week. The third at EALING, comprising Diring, Drawing, and four Bed Rooms, with five Beds; ama I Library, or Lady's Work Room; two Kitchens, Pantry, Hen and Rabbit House Dairy, walled Garden, &c. Rent, furnished, 130 Guineas per annum, or 4 Guineas a week, for six mouths.

Apply, post-paid, to Mr. Shee (proprietor) 41, Southampton-row. COUNTRY HOUSES for SMALL FAMILIES.

TO BE SOLD CHEAP, a good TRAVELLING CHARIOT; built light, but very strong, with an Imperial, Drag Chain and Staff, and fit for a long Journey, either at home or on the Centinent.—For Terms and to view, apply to Mr. Smith, at Collins's Livery Stables, George-street, at the bottom of Sloane-street,

To NOBLEMEN and PERSONS of CONSEQUENCE. To NOBLEMEN and FERSONS of CONSEQUENCE.

A N experienced and intelligent Man of Business, who has been very successful in arranging the embarrassed Affairs of acveral Men of Fashion, adopts this medium of making a more general tender of his Services as a CONFIDENTIAL AGENT in RAISING MONEY; in ADVISING on matters of business or embarrasement, or under any circumstances where skilful management and a discreet and zealous advocate are desirable. The advertiser is not a Lawyer, but a man of address and knowledge of the world, competent and accustomed to the management of affairs of consequence, as well as of delicacy and confidence. He possesses important private Chaunels for Money. Address (post paid) to W. V. No. 21, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury.

WANTED, by a Gentleman in extensive Medical Practice WANTED, hy a Gentleman in extensive Medical Practice, at a short distance from London, as APPRENTICE, a Youth of good education and respectable connexions, who will be completely domesticated in a small genteel Family, where every comfort will be afforded him, together with the strictest attention to his general conduct and manners, as well as to his professional improvement. As the Situation new offered embraces many advantages, it is particularly recommended to the attention of Parenta and Guardians. A handsome Premium will be required. Application may be made at Messrs. Corbyn and Co. Chemists, 300, Holborn, London. Letters to be post paid.

SMIRKE'S SHARSPEARE.

Just published:

TLLUSTRATIONS of the TEMPEST, being the First Number of LLUSTRATIONS of SHARSPEARE, from Pictures painted expressly for this Work, by ROBERT SMIRKE, Esq. R.A. engraved in the finest style by the most seminent Historical Engravers.

Mode of Publication:—

1. The Work will be comprised in Thirty-seven Numbers: each Number containing Five Illustrative Engravings, and a Vignette:
the aggregate number, therefore, of the Plates will be Two Hundred and Twenty-two.

Twenty-two.

II. A Number will be published every Three Months, at the commencement of the Work, and, after a short time, every two Months, till completed.

Just completed, in 2 large vols. 8vo. price 11. 1-is. boards, an original and interesting Work, entitled,
THE FAMILY CYCLOP-ADIA, being a Manual of useful and necessary Knowledge, alphabetically arranged; comprising all the recent Inventions, Discoveries, and Improvements in Domestic Keonomy, Agriculture, and Chemistry; the mort approved Methods of curing all Diseases incident to the Human Frame, with the Mode of Treatment in cases of Drowning, other Accidents, and Poisons; Observations on Diet and Regimen; a comprehensive Account of the most striking Objects in Nairard History, animate and inanimate; and a Betail of various Processes in the Arts and Manufactures; also a concise View of the Human Mind and the Passions, with their particular Applications to our Improvement in Education and Morals.

By JAMES JENNINGS

This original and valuable Work is pristed in double columns, on good paper, and contains upwards of Fifteen Hundred Pages of information, immediately connected with the pursuits of Domestic Life. By means of close printing and large paper, it comprehends as much matter as is usually found in six volumes of an ordinary size; and cannot, it is presumed, fail of being considered a most valuable appendage to the Library of every Family.

Description of the Public, the Work is sold in Parts, by one or more at a time, price 2s. 6d. each.

A NEW CHINTZ FURNITURE and MOREEN WARE-HOUSE will be OPENED on MONDAY, the 16th instant, at No. 134, OXFORD-STREET, nearly appeare Hanover-square, by HENRY MILES and JOHN EDWARDS, (from the corner of Great Turnstile, Holborn,) where the Public may have an opportunity of inspecting an entirely new Stock of the most improved designs, and avail themselves of the great reduction that has taken place in the prices of the above articles within the last few months, as they will be offer ready money at the lowest terms of the wholesale trade.

GRECIAN ROBES, AND OTHER CURIOSITIES.—

RYLEY ever grateful to the Public for their kind support, begs to inform them, that he has on Sale a boundless STOCK of RICH SILKS, WORKED MUSLINS, ROBES, FLOUNCES, TRIMMINGS, &e. at one half their value, viz.: Jamava Crapes, 25s. the Dress; Lapland Cords, 2s. 9d. per Yard; Plain Gros de Naples, 4s. 6d.; Rich Figured, ditto, 4s. 9d.; Imitation China Crapes, 4s.; Figured Taffetas, 3s. 6d.; Poplins and Lustres, 1s. 6d.; Rich dtto, 2s.; Irish ditto, 2s. 6d. and 2s. 9d.; Figured Poplins, 1s. 8d.; Rich Tabbinets, 2s. 2d.; Fine Coloured Bombazeens, 1s. 3d.; Black ditto, 1s. 6d.; Ditto the New French Black, 1s. 9d.; Ditto, Curiossly Fing, 2s. and 2s. 2d. Yard Wide Sarsnets, 3s.; Rich Twilled ditto, 4s. 6d.; French Silks, 30s. the Dress; Pelisse Cloths, 3s.6d. per yard; Cachimere Twills, for Ladies' Dresses, 6s. 6d. per yard; Seal ditto, 7s. 6d.; real Camel's Hair ditto, 2s. (warranted to improve in wear, and full two yards wide) Velvets, 5s, per yard; very rish ditto, 1ls.; French Silk and Cachimere Shawis, 15s.6d.; rich Scarfs, 21s.; Norwich Silk Shawls, 16s.; some yaxact copies of india, 30s.; Edinburgh ditto, the most superb patterns, Two and Three Gaineas cach; Erminette Shawls, 20s.; Imitation Seal ditto, 28s.; Calvados ditto, 40s.; real Seal and Bragan a Shawls, Polanais Scarfs and Tippets in great variety; Lapland Moss, and Robes a Neglige; French Flounces ditto, of every new design; Bath Cloaks, 12s. each; Brighton Envelopes, and Tilbury Wraps, 15a.; ditto Richly Trimmed, 21s. each. Bvery fashionable Article for the Season, with a Stock of Linen-drapery and Hosiery equal to any five Shops in London; and every kind of Goods taken by the Piece, or Demy Pisoe, sold at the Wholesale Price. No Patterns cut, or Countag Orders executed, without a remittance.—Ryley, 118, Oxford-street, between Princes-street and the Regent Circus. GRECIAN ROBES, AND OTHER CURIOSITIES.

SATURDAY'S GAZETTE, APRIL 7.

DIVIDENDS

DIVIDENDS.

April 14, A. Kruse, Union Court, Beend Stiect, merchapt.—April 28, J. Warren, Bishopagate Street, merchant —April 28, W. Goldsworthy, Sun Tavern Fields, rope maker.—April 28, J. Watkin, Newark upon-Trent, painter.—April 29, J. and J. Bower, Bradford, Yorkshire, woolstaplers.—April 39, J. Lanney, Chester, grootr.—April 29, W. Favill, Cromwell, Nottinghamshire, miller.—April 29, W. Palleyn, Leadenhall Street, goldsmith.—April 29, R. Gower, St. Austell, Cornwall, linen draper.—April 30, J. Alkin, Liverpool, merchant.—May 1, J. Watson, Liverpool, merchant.—May 4, J. Macmichael, T. Gitton, W. Macmichael, J. Macmichael, and A. M'ath, Bridgnorth, Shrepshire, and Fleet Streat, London, carpet manufacturers.—May 4, J. Macmichael, T. Gitton, and W. Macmichael, Bridgnorth, Shropshire, bankers.

TUESDAY'S GAZETTE.

WHITEHALL, April 9, 1821.

The King has been pleased to appoint Vice-Admiral Sir Richard Goodwin Keats, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Honourable Military Order of the Bath, to be Master of His Majesty's Hospital at Greenwich, in the County of Kent, and also one of the Commissioners or Governors thereof, in the room of Admiral Sir John Colpoys, deceased.

CROWN-OFFICE, April 10, 1821.

Member Returned to Serve in Parliament.

Berough of Beeralston.—The Right Hon. George Percy, commanly called Lord Lovaine.

Commission in the Central Glamorgan Troop of Gentlemen and Yeomanry Cavalry, signed by the Pice-Lieutenant of the County of Glamorgan.

Lloyd Vaughan Watkins, Gant, to be County

Glamorgan. Lloyd Vaughan Watkins, Gent. to be Cornet.

Glamorgan.

Lloyd Vaughan Watkins, Gent. to be Cornet.

PARTNERSHIPS DISSOLVED.

J. H. Alsop and R. W. Glendinning, Leek, Staffordshire, silk manufacturers.—C. S. and T. Shaw, (no place) painters and glasiers.—G. Newton and J. J. Elliott, Nottingham, silk throwsters.—J. Humpleby and J. Hukson, Abchurch Lane, Lombard Street, plumbers.—W. Holmes and W. Parry, Oxford Street, cabinet makers.—T. Wilson and T. Evans, London, (no trade).—W. Copeland and W. Birbeck, Liverpool, ao trade.).—S. Abbott, St. Swithin's Lane, and J. Guillinan, Oporto, (no trade.).—R. M. and E. B. Thomas, Genoa, and J. Rees, London, merchants.—D. Dunderdale, Dunford, Yorkshire, T. E. Upton and J. Bramley, Leeds, earthenware manufacturers.—R. Nichols, M. Nichols, J. Nichols, S. Nichols, S. Skirrow, M. Morvill, A. Nichols, M. Nichols, and A. Nichols, Hewnden Mill, Wilsden, Yorkshire, wersted manufacturers.—J. Torry, London, T. Southwood, Malta, and J. Scott, Leghorn, (no trade.)—T. Jewsbury and R. Hoskins, jun. Manchester, (no trade.)—C. Davis and W. Pearsall, jun. Belibroughton, Worcestershire, millers.—W. Tsylar and J. Frairhurst, Warrington, Lancashire, painters and glasiers.—J. Heathcoat, J. Boden, and T. B. Oliver, Tiverton, Devonshire, and King Stiret, Cheapside, London, as far as regards. T. B. Oliver.—J. and A. T. Goring, Liverpool, Brasil merchants.—R. Marshall, R. Franke, W. F. and J. Handley, Newark upon-Trent, millers.—T. Parker, S. Eaton, and W. Jones, Goldenhall, Staffordshire, earthenware manufacturers.

BANKRUPTS.

V. Jones, Goldenhall, Staffordshire, earthenware manufacturers.

BANKRUPTS.

BROWN, T. Longdon, Staffordshire, grocet.
CUSHON, T. Paternoster Row, hat manufacturer.
DUNDERDALE, G. and R. Leeds, clothlers.
EDWARDS, J. Vine Street, Spitalfields, Middlesex, silkman.
ELLIS, W. Liverpool, white cosper.
GARTON, J. Kingston-upon-Hull, lighterman.
GREGORY, G. B. Lissen Grove, Middlesex, merchant.
GRUNDON, W. New Matton, Vorkshire, merchant.
JONES, T. Grave Yard, Sedgley, Staffordshire, ironmaster.
TREHERNE, J. St. Martin's Street, Leicester Fields, Middlesex, no trade.

TREHERNE, J. St. Martin's Street, Leicester Fields, Middlesex, (no trade.)
WADE, J. S. Aldeburgh, Suffish, brick maker.
DIVIDENDS.
May 3, W. Boyd, P. Benfield, and J. Drummond, London, merchantz, May 1, S. Leigh, Strand, bookseller.—May 5, J. Nowill, Cheapside, stationer.—May 8, S. Scarf, Leeds, stuff manufacturer.—April 29, G. and S. Robinson, Paternoster Row, booksellers.—May 13, J. Favell, Thayer Street, St. Mary le-bons.—May 8, B. Glavscott, Cheapside, jeweller.—May 9, W. Slade, Leeds, corn merchant.—May 12, H. Sabine, Fenchurch Street, druggist.—May 5, W. Crew, Paluce Row, Tottenham Courk Road, plumber.—May 5, T. Benson, Sheffield-Moor, Sheffield, grocer.—May 8, J. Barker, Strand, hosier.—May 12, G. Burton, New City Chambers, insurance broker.—May 23, S. Wood, Bolton, Lancashire, banker.—May 2, J. Richardson, Liverpool, merchant.—May 23, S. Peake, jun. and J. Rothwell, Haliwell, Lancashire, calico printers.—May 3, R. Jackson and J. Graham, jun. Carlisle, cotton spinners.—May 8, B. Millard, Gloucester, linen draper.—May 1, R. Swan, Gainsborough, Lincoinshire, merchant.—May 1, J. Lethbridge, Carnarthen Street, Tottenham Court Road, timber merchant.—May 1, C. Seaman and G. Etheridge, Norwich, goldsmiths.

CERTIFICATES—May 1, Hemfray, Hyde, Kinfare, ridge, Norwich, goldsmiths.

CERTIFICATES—May 1.

J. Smith, Portsmouth, ship chandler.—T. Hemfray, Hyde, Kinfare, Staffordshire, ironmaster.—J. Nertham, St. Themas the Apostle, Devonshire, iron feunder.—J. E. Endicott, Exeter, builder.—B. Price, Tewkesbury, Gloucestershire, cornfactor.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTE.

ADMIRALTY OPFICE, April 14, 1821.

Information has this day been received at this Office, from His Majesty's Consult at Elsingoer, "That the light upon Marstrand Castle will be exitinguished on the 16th instant, and after certain repairs have been completed, it will be kindled on the 1st of August."

J. W. CROKER.

Majesty's Consul at Bleingoer, "That the light upon Marstrand Castle will be extinguished on the 16th instant, and after certain repairs have been completed, it will be kindled on the 1st of August."

WAR-OFFICE, 13th April, 1871.

2d Reg. Drag. Guards.—Gen. W. Loftus to be Colonel, vice Sir C. Crauford, dea.

4th Reg. Light Drag.—Capt. G. U. Barlew, from half-pay of the 2M Light Drag, to be Capt. vice Wood, who exchanges.

18th Ditto.—Capt R. R. W. Brett, from half-pay 10th Light Drag. to be Gapt. vice Verson, who exchanges.

22d Ditto.—Lord A. Conyngham to be Cornet, by purchase, vice Lord F. Conyngham, whose appointment has not taken place.

35th Reg. Foot—Capt. T. Dely, from 1st Ceylon Reg. to be Capt. vice Daniell, appointed to the 73d.

65th Ditto—Lieut. J. Beaven, from half-pay 37th Foot, to be Lieut. vice Tudor, who exchanges.

73d Ditto—Capt. H. L. Daniell, from 38th Foot, to be Capt. vice Antill, who retires.

77th Ditto—Lieut. P. Cosby, from half pay 3d Reg. Foot Guards, to be I-leut. vice Gabb, who exchanges.

33d Ditto—Ensign A. Machean to be Lieut. without purchase, vice Mn Donnell.—N. S. Christie, Gent. to be Ens. vice Machean.

1st Ceylon Reg.—Capt. H. Ceoper, from the half-pay of the New Brunzwick Fencibles, to be Capt. vice Dely, appointed to the 38th Foot. Hospital Staff.—Hosp.-Ass. W. Birrell, M. D. to be Ass.-Surg. to the Forces, vice Caverbill, deceased.—Charles Pargeter, Gent. to be Hosp.-Ass. to the Forces vice Birrell.

Lieut.-Gen. J. Hay to be Lieut.-Governor of Tynemeuth and Cliff Fert, vice Sir C. Cranfurd.

Ensign W. Fair, from the 7th R. Vet. Bat. to be Quartermaster, vice. J. Mill, who retires on the half-pay of Quartermaster of Infantry.

Royal Basi India Volunteers.—Lieut. M. Greenaway to be Capt., vice. Chancellor, who resigns.

To be Lieuts.—Ensigns R. Fletcher and W. Wigston.

To be Ensign.—J. Brown, Gent.; E. Parish, Gent.; T. Hannah, Gent.

Office of Ordusnee. Applil 11, 1821.

Royal Reg. Of Artillery—First Lieut. D. Jago, from half-pay, to be First Lieut.—Ensign and Capt.

BANKRUPTCIES SUPERSEDED.

HUGHES, W. of Great Bolton, Lancaster, Money-Scrivener.

LEA, W. and LEA, J. F. Paternoster-Rew, London, Ribbon and Siffe-

BANKRUPTS.

LEA, W. and LEA, J. F. Paternester-Row, London, Ribbon and Sike-

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

PARIS, April 8 .- Letters from Rome, dated the 27th, state, that the King of Naples had entered his capital amidst the general acclamations of his subjects.

The Duke of Genevois has arrived at Laybach. It is reported that the Emperor of Austria has offered the King of Sardinia a corps of 50,000 men, provided with every necessary, and entirely at his disposal, though commanded by Austrian Generals.

Peace has been concluded between the Regencies of Algiera

A letter received the day before yesterday from Naples states that some persons have been shot there, and that the Austrians have been astonished at the disappearance of the Neapolitan army, and are entirely ignorant of what has become of it. Having found in the office of the Ministry the returns of the immense material of the army, they are not without inquietude, and consequently keep a very strict look out, and send recon-noitring parties out daily in every direction, six or eight leagues from the city, who have never been able to discover any re-mains which would announce the destruction or dissolution of such an immense material.

Letters from Bayonne, received yesterday, announce that the Cortes intend to raise 600,000 men to oppose the invasion of the APRIL 10.—Letters from Boston, of the 7th March, contain the following intelligence:—" M. Hyde Neuville is at Washington. There will, therefore, as you may imagine, soon be some arrangement; but it will only be provisional.

PARIS, April 11.—The news of the re-entry of the King of Naples into his capital, which we gave on the faith of another Journal, was premature. We learn by a letter from Naples, dated the 27th of March, that he was only expected in a few days. The Austrian Lieutenant-General Prince de Hesse Homone of the divisions of the army will be continued in the southern provinces. Several corps have already marched.— Journal de Paris.

Letters from Naples state the conduct of the Neapolitae levies was distinguished by a system of desertion, evacuation, and spolintion. It was with great difficulty that the Prinen Regent's equipage was saved at Mignano. The militia and legionaries who had taken such tremendous oaths of fidelity to the Spanish Constitution, abandoned all their strong posts at the mere sight of the Hungarians, and "obeyed their Parliament in one point only—they destroyed every thing they could not carry away." The Quarter-Master-General Florestan Pepe, proposed to the Prince Regent, in a military council, to have his brother, William Pepe, brought to a Court Martial, for having attacket the enemy without order."
The news of the disgraceful flight of the militia and of the regular troops, struck the Carbonari like a thunderbolt. During the night all the secret archives of the Lodge were committed to the flames. The supreme Committee of Five sent circular orders to all the Brotherhood of the Carbonari, in subtich "they were instructed to district all these of the militial control of the carbonary in which "they were instructed to destroy all those of the militia and regular troops who had fled."—It is certain that the inhabitants of the places through which they passed have slaugh-tered a considerable number of them, in order to free themselves from their rapine and Vandalism.

Letters were yesterday received from Genoa to the 3d inst. at which time things remained there in perfect tranquillity. The Civic Guard had replaced the regulars in charge of the city, and the duty, both for the city gates and the forts, was done by them; their number amounted to about 1000 men. It is stated that Prince Carignano was still at Novara, but whither he was destined was not known. At Naples, on the 27th ult. tranquil-list had been again restored, and business was beginning to look brisk; the streets, however, continued to be crowded with Austrian soldiers, who were daily arriving in the neighbour-

By the last advices from Constantinople, it appears that the numerical force of the Ottoman Porte amounts to 406,400, of whom 181,000 are cavalry, and 225,400 are infantry.

TRIESTE, March 27.—Prince Ypsilanti has advanced on the Morea and Epirus. The Turks are everywhere massacred.

Ali Pacha and Ypsilanti are ready to support each other.

Yesterday news arrived of an insurrection in Constantinople, in consequence of the insurrection in Wallachia being known.

The Greek Patriarch, it is said, was massacred. The letters received this day do not, however, confirm the news.

Hamburgh Papers to the 3d inst. have arrived. The following interesting extract appears under the date of Berlin,

"Yesterday, according to his Majesty's orders, was celebrated the consecration of the Military Monunent on the Templow, (or Tempelhof) mountain, which is henceforward to be called the Kreuzberg.

" The garrison of Potsdam, and the 6th regiment of Cuirassiers, were ordered hither for the occasion. These troops, together with the garrison of Berlin, were drawn up in four lines round the Monument, at the foot of which were deputies from all the Regiments of the Army, and all the Royal Family, the Generals, the Ministers of State, the Chaplains of the Ar-my, and the senior Clergymen of each of the Churches in Berlin. This mosument is of cast-iron, sixty feet high without the basis of stone, and in the style of the middle ages, with appropriate ornaments and inscriptions relative to the great battles of 1813-14 and 1815. On the lower part of the monu-ment, on the same face as the first great battle of the war, that of Gross Goerschen, 2d May, 1813, is the following printhaf of Gross Outlean...

cipal inscription:

The King to the People.

The King to the People.

To the fallen a memorial:

To the fallen a memorial:

To foe living an acknowledgment:

To posterity an encouragement.'

Extract of a Letter, dated in

MASSACRE AT MANILLA. - Extract of a Letter, dated in the Convent of Augustin, Manilla, Oct. 18, 1820 .—

"I address you from this Convent in the deepest state of affliction and distress. The horrible and afflicting events which have passed in Manilla since the 9th of the current month have thrown me into a state of delirium and stupor, which almost deprives me of the faculty of communicating what I would

"The native population, either from blind ignorance, or influenced in their opinions by these who do not wish the foreigners well (for reasons which I will explain in a narrative I am preparing of the facts), imagined that the French residents had poisoned the lake and river which runs from it towards Mamilla, making this a pretence to assessinate and plunder not only the French, but all st. angers without discrimination.

The horrible des. gn was carried into effect on the 8th of the ourrent month in Bino. do, the suburbs of Manilla, commencing first with the I'rench, and ultimately with all strangers, without distinction of nation.

"Twenty-five gentlemen, Captains and Supercargoes of the foreign ships now in Cavita, including, I deeply regret to say, my partners, Mesers. Shaffalitzsky and Duntzfelt, felt a sacrifice to the cruel knife of these barbarians; and on the following day sixteen Chinese, who, as they suppose, were concerned in the poison plot.

"Every thing which they could find in the houses of the unfor-tunate people who had fallen victims to the fury of these barbarous wretches was either burnt or carried off."

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

MONDAY.

A petition was presented by the Duke of Gloucester, from the University of Cambridge, against the Catholic Claims. was laid on the table.

Petitions were also presented from Falmouth, Newcastle were use presented from the Dioceses of Wells, Canterbury, Ely, Sarum, St. David's, Exeter, and from the Dissenters in the Stafferdshire potteries.

The Earl of Donoughmore, in order to give every possible opportunity for a full discussion of the merits of the Catholic Bill, postponed the second reading till next Monday.

The Lord Chancellos said he should on that day he ready to

The Lord Chancellor said he should on that day be ready to oppose the measure.

The Earl of Lauderdale presented a patition from the Mayor and Free Burgesses of the Borough of Grampound, against the Bill for depriving them of their Elective Franchises

After some conversation, on a motion of the Earl of Lauderdule, for putting off the second reading of the Bill to give the petitioners an opportunity of opposing it, the Bill was postponed till Wednesday. —Adjourned.

TUESDAY.

Petitions were presented from Tewkesbury, from the Clergy of the Archdeacony of Canterbury, from certain parishes in Leicester, from the Corporation of Winchester, from Brighton, from the Corporation of Bath, from the Dean and Chapter of Winchester, from Bermondsey and Peckham, from the Archdeacony of Northampton, from the City of Exeter, from Peterborough, from the Protestant Dissenters of Grantham, and from the congregation under the pastoral care of the late Rev. W. Huntingdon, against the Roman Catholic Claims.

The Beer Duties Bill was passed.

WEDNESDAY.

Petitions were presented from the Dioceses of Worcester Petitions were presented from Tewkesbury, from the Clergy

Petitions were presented from the Dioceses of Worcester and St. David's, from the Long Acre Chapel, from the Magistrates and Inhabitants of Hampstead, from the Protestant Dissenters of Moorfields Chapel, &c. against the Catholic Claims.

The Earl of Donoughmore presented petitions from the Roman Catholic Clergy of Kerry, against the second part of the Bill, and also similar petitions from the Vicar General and Roman Catholic Clergy of Waterford and Lismore, objecting Roman Catholic Clergy of Waterford and Lismore, objecting to the clauses in the second part of the Bill, as affecting the integrity of their religion. The Noble Earl then presented petitions from the Right Rev. Dr. Costello and the Roman Catholic Clergy of Cloufert, from the most Rev. Dr. Murphy and the Roman Catholic Clergy of Cork, and from the most Rev. Dr. Troy and the other Clergy of Leinster. He had also received the aggregate resolutions of the Roman Catholics of Cork and Dublin, similar in effect. These were all laid on the table

The Marquis of Lansdowne presented the first Report of the Committee on Foreign Trade, relating to our Asiatic Trade, with a view of giving facilities to that part of the trade which is carried on by British merchants under licences from the East India Company—that under licence from the Board of Controul, and that part which might be carried on by Britisk merchants, but which is actually, at present, carried on by the Americans, with the city of Canton.—The Report was laid on the table.

After some discussion on the question for reading the Grampound Election Disfranchisement Bill a second time, it was at length agreed that Coursel should be heard on the following length agreed that Counsel should be heard on the following day.—Adjourned.

THURSDAY.
Petitions were presented from the Corporation of Dublin, from the Diocese of Ely, and from Dover, against the Catholic from the Diocese of Ely, and from Dover, against the Catholic Claims.—Laid on the table.

Their Lordships then called in Counsel, and examined the following witnesses on the Bill for Disfranchising the Borough of Grampound: Mr. W. Hoar, one of the aldermen of the borough; Mr. Geo. Hunt. agent to Sir M. M. Lopez; Mr. J. Coode, pollclerk at the election of 1816; John Teed, Esq. one of the candidates, and J. Edwards, and W. Pomeroy, electors.—Ad-

FRIDAY.

Evidence and Counse) were heard on the Grampound Disfranchisement Bill, and the further proceedings were postponed till the 10th of May.

Petitions from the City of Coventry, and the Diocese of Chester, and from the Protestant Dissenters of Hampstead and Grove-street Chapel, were presented against the Roman Catholic Bill.—Adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS. MONDAY.

Sir W. Leman presented a petition from the Freeholders of Cornwall, praying the restoration of the Queen to all her rights, complaining of agricultural distress, and calling for retrenchment and reform.

Mr. Tremayne observed, that the question respecting the Queen had been set at rest, and he hoped it would not again be revived.— The petition was ordered to he printed.

Mr. F. Buxton gave notice that he should, on the 18th inst. call the attention of the House to the papers respecting the widows burning themselves on the funeral piles of their husbands in India.

Mr. T. Wilson presented a petition from certain manufacturers, merchants, and warehousemen, of the city of London, against the Foreign Wool Tax. The Hon. Gent. stated the inoperation of the tax; he had received information that three American ships were loaded with wool from Spain, and that 250 bags of wool-had been recently shipped from that port to America, the owners being unable to pay the duty. operation of the duty was this:—it forced foreign wool to be sent to other countries that used to come here, and thus we were deprived of a profitable trade.—The petition was ordered to be printed.

On the motion of Mr. Sumner, the Committee on the Newington Vestry Bill was renewed with the earnest intention, as Mr. H. Sumner said, of going through its real merits.

A sum of 40,0001. was granted to defray the expences of building a bridge over the Conway Ferry.

Mr. Bennett gave notice, that he should, on the 17th of May, move for leave to bring in a Bill for better securing the independence of Parliament, by excluding placemen from seats in that House

The House went into a Committee on the African Company's

Mr. Beanett objected to the clause for giving compensation to the officers, without the subject being again fully under the consideration of Parliament.—This amendment was agreed to.

On the question for going into a Committee on the Bunk Cash Payments Bill, Mr. Baring was of opinion that it would be necessary to move for a Select Committee to consider the subject. It admitted on all hands, that the country stood in a most extra-ordinary situation. The Hon. Gentleman entered into some statements, to show that money was of less value now than in 1797, when the issues of specie were restricted. He conin 1797, when the issues of specie were restricted. The contended that the price of labour had not fallen in proportion to the value of money. He did not think a fixed standard desirable. He was friendly to a silver standard; the trade, the commerce, the agriculture, and all other interests were cramped and bound down by the measures referred to; and, therefore, it would be proper to appoint a Committee of Inquiry. The present was the proper time for appointing that Committee. Hemored accordingly moved accordingly.

Mr. Attwood seconded the amendment. It was the duty of the House to re-consider the subject, and let the country know the dangers of persevering in the present system, which enacted a false standard, which prevented the furmer from disposing of his produce, the merchant from importing his merchandize, and the manufacturer from finding a market for his work. Returning to the legislative principles, in which the country could alone prosper, would save the nation from ruin.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer observed, that at one time he was blamed for encouraging an artificial system of currency, and he was now condemned for supporting a measure which led to the restoration of cash payments. He wished to know to what standard Gentlemen wished to return. If to that of 1797, why, we were arrived at it. Much had been said of the dis-tress under which the country laboured, but that did not origi-nate with the measure in question; nor was it confined to this country alone. He knew of no country in which prices had not materially depreciated. In America, corn had depreciated more than here. Without entering into this subject, the question would be, whether Parliament should undo all that had been done. He deprecated the continued discussion of this measure, which would imply, that no confidence was to be placed in the most solemn acts of the Legislature.

Mr. Grenfell condemned any alteration of the Act of the 59th of the King.

Mr. Monck said, the distress of the country was excessive taxution, aggravated by a hasty return from a fictitious to a substantial currency.

Mr. Ricarde observed, that it was an assumption to say, that gold had risen in value, for it was difficult to find the criterion by which to estimate it. Much of the evil complained of, he feared was owing to the operation of the Corn Laws.

Mr. Gurney was friendly to the amendment.

Mr. Ellice would vote for the final settlement of the matter

Mr. Ellice would vote for the final settlement of the matter now, as the lesser of two evils, rather than to go into fresh discussions on it, which would produce nothing beneficial.

Mr. Pearse thought there was no necessity for going into the Committee, and should vote for the Bill.

Mr. Irving supported the Bill.

Mr. Cripps, Lord A. Hamilton, Mr. J. Smith, Mr. T. Wilson, Mr. Wodehouse, Mr. H. Davis, and Alderman Heygate, made some observations.—The House divided.—For the amendment, 27—Against it, 141—Majority, 114.

The House then went into a Committee, and the Report was ordered to be received to-morrow.

The Irish Cash payments Bill went through a Committee.—

The Irish Cash payments Bill went through a Committee.-Adjourned.

TUESDAY.

At Four o'clock, there being only ninety Members present, and one hundred being necessary to form an Election Ballot the Speaker declared, the House adjourned.

WEDNESDAY.

The following were the names of the Committee on the Callington Election petition:—John Maberley, C. K. Tynte, W. H. Ashurst, J. Ellice, A. Farquharson, J. Wemyss, J. H. Smyth, S. O'Grady, C. Brownlow, J. Bent, C. W. Wynn, W. Courtenay, Hon. W. Knox, Esq. Sir W. Rae, and Lord Stopford

Mr. Lambton presented a petition from one Thomas Flannagan, complaining, that the election of Members of Parliament for Sligo, in Ireland, was placed in the hands of a few Burgesses, although the town consisted of 20,000 inhabitants, which he attributed to an old law, excluding Catholics from which he attributed to an old law, excluding Catholics from voting; he prayed, therefore, the repeal of that law.

Mr. S. Cooper said, that but for the leniency of the Government, the petitioner, Thomas Flannagan, would have been transported.—The petition was ordered to be printed.

Sir J. Mackintosh moved for, and obtained leave to bring in three Bills; one, for mitigating the punishment, in certain cases, for forgery, and for more effectually preventing the forgery of Bank notes; and another to repeal the present Act respecting the offence of steading on a navigable river, and for providing a different punishment than at present is imposed by law; and the third, to repeal the 12th of Anne, relating to stealing in a dwelling-house.—The Bills were afterwards brought in, read a first time, and ordered for a second reading on the 4th of May. on the 4th of May.

Mr. Rice presented a petition from the Catholic Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese of Limerick, declaring their willingness to disclaim any foreign interferences, and their gratitude to the House for the concessions made,—they disapproved of the penal enactments of the Bill. The petition was laid on the

Mr. J. Graham moved that the petitioners against the General Roads Bill, might be heard by counsel. The motion was opposed by Mr. D. Gilbert, and negatived.

A petition was presented by Dr. Lushington from Thomas Meyrick, complaining that two of his children had been forwally taken from him has a Roama Cathelia Briest at Lither.

Roman Catholic and that the English Consul had sanctioned the Priest, and that they had been buptized in the Catholic faith, that he had been denounced to the Inquisition, and suffered great losses in conse-He prayed relief.

quence. The prayed refer.

Mr. F. Robinson said, no complaint had been made on this subject at the Secretary of State's Office. The petition was ordered to be printed

Ont ae motion of Mr. Dickenson, the Sewers Bill was withdrawn for the present Session. Some conversation arose out of a motion of Mr. Lemnard's, for a return of all applications for admission into the reading-room of the British Museum within the last five years. The Hon. Member stated, that postponements of leave had been made which amounted in certain cases to absolute refusal. On the other hand it was asserted, that every facility was given for the admission of respectable ons consistent with the regulations of the Museum. Mr. L. at length, withdrew his motion.

A petition was presented from a Prisoner in Hehester Gaol, named Hillier, complaining of abuses in that Gaol. A commission was appointed to enquire into these abuses.

In a Committee of Supply.—Lord Palmerston moved that a sum not exceeding 6,854l, be granted for the service of the Adjutum-General's Department.

Mr. Hume renewed his objections to large grants for the Army, and proposed an amendment, reducing that vote to 5,844l. with a view to bring it nearer on a comparison with the establishment of 1792.

Lord Palmerston said, it was nonsense to talk of the establishment of 1792, as the business had naturally increased since that.—On a division, the numbers were—For the amendment, 64—Agninst it, 83—Majority for the resolution, 29.

The next resolution provided that a sum not exceeding 6,192l.
7s. 10d. should be granted for the Quarter-Master-General's

Mr. Hume objected to this grant also, on the score of extra vagance; and moved to reduce it to 4,6921.

Lord Palmerston said, here the Hon. Member was caught in his own toils, for this was the only office brought back to the favourite system of the Hon. Member's, that of 1792.

The Committee divided-For the amendment, 60-Against it, 104.
It was then proposed, by Mr. Brogden, that the sum of 9221 be granted for the salary of Quarter-Master-General of North Britain.

Mr. Hume objected to the largeness of the sum; and asked what particular duty the officer had to perform.

Lord Palmerston suid, the office was as old as the Scotch Union, and his duty was to prevent the troops clashing on their

Mr. G. Bennett moved to reduce the vote to 6001. On this amendment, a division took place—For it, 50—For the original grant, 98— Majority, 42.

On the resolution for granting the sum of 5, 1801, to defray the salaries of the Judge Advocate, his Deputy, and Clerks,

Mr. Chelwynd moved to reduce the sum to 3,000l. This officer, he observed, enjoyed a salary of 2,500l. a large mansion, and coals, amounting to 500l. more annually, and for books and stationary, an allowance of 200l. The emoluments exceeded altogether those enjoyed by the Judges, whose duties were considerable, in comparison with the Judge Advo-

Mr. Becket denied that the facts were as stated; and asserted that the duties he had to perform were very laborious, and which had increased greatly since 1806.

After some further discussion, the Committee divided—For the amendment, 44—Against it, 92.

Dr. Lushington moved an amendment, reducing the vote to 1,2001. On this a division took place—For the amendment, 51-Against it, 83.

The Committee then divided on the original motion-Ayes, 82—Noes, 53—Majority, 29.

The House then resumed, and the Chairman reported progress.—Adjourned.

THURSDAY.

Mr. P. Moore presented a Petition from Trinity Parish in Coventry, against the Roman Catholic Claims.

Mr. J. Smith presented a Petition from a body of Christians called "Separatists," whose religious opinions were similar to those of the Society of Friends, stating their objections to the imposition of an Oath, and praying to be allowed in cases of evidence to affirm.

Mr. Shaw (of Dublin) presented a similar petition from a society in Dublin of the same description.

These petitions were ordered to be printed.

Mr. Lambton presented a petition from the resident Freeholders of the Borough of Lyme-Regis, praying for reformation in the Representation of that Borough, and stating that their rights had been betrayed by an agent in 1780, when the right was given exclusively to the Burgesses, who were only 30 in number, while the resident freeholders were 100. They charged a Peer with directing the returns of the borough.

Mr. Hobbouse suggested to refer the Petition to a Committee of Privileges, to assortain how far the interference of the Peer in question had proceeded.

Sir J. Graham said, that the Borough of Lyme had caused great litigation. He saw no ground for sending the Petition to a Committee.

After some discussion, Mr. Hobbouse proposed an amend-ment to refer it to a Committee of Privileges. On this the House divided - For the amendment, 33 - Against it, 82-Majority, 49. Mr. Serje set Onslow obtained leave to bring in a Bill to repeal the Usury Laws, and also for a Bill to regulate the admission of Attornies, and another for regulating the acceptance of Bills of Exchange

Mr. Hume moved to disqualify officers in the Ordnance Department from the exercise of the Elective Franchise. His attention was called to the subject, in consequence of the state of the Borough of Queenborough, in which various peculations and mal-practices had been committed by certain persons in Sheerconnected with the Board of Ordnance, and who belonged to the Borough of Queenborough, and who were under the in-fluence of the Crown. His object, therefore, was to place these servants of the Crown on the same footing as other ser-The Hon. Gent. referred to various statutes on the sa ject of disquelification, and enumerated the voters in Queens-borough at various elections, who held offices under Government, principally in the Ordnance department. He had two lists, one of 147 freemen, belding annual offices to the am of 14,7661.; the second was a list of 11 freemen's sons bolding situations, amounting to 2,8291, but who were not old enough to vote; there was also a list of thirty-two freemen holding situations, ebtained through the influence of others; making altogether 190 out of 290 or 290 voters. The Corporation of Queenborough consisted of a mayor, four jurats, and two baispecting the employments under the Crown of these persons, and other freemen of the Borough, he moved for leave to bring in the Bill.

Mr. Bennet seconded the motion.

Mr. R. Ward opposed the motion, as an insulated measure, directed chiefly against the Ordnance, and, as such, unsure, directed chiefly against the Ordnance, and, as such, unjust, partial, and erael towards a very meritorious body of men, who were unjustly stigmatized as corruptly influenced by Government. He contended, there was not the slightest ground for charging either the Navy or the Ordnance with corruption. With respect to influence, Mr. W. mentioned the case of a clerk in his own office, who was known to be a complete radical. All that he (Mr. W.) asked was, "Is he a good clerk?" on being answered in the affirmative, "Then," said

Mr. W. "I have nothing to do with his speculative political opinions;" and that very person obtained leave of about opinions;" and that very person obtained leave of absence to ge to Maidstone to vote against the Government candidate. So much for Government influence. Influence was not, he conceived, interference; if that influence, arising from hope or fear, was not actively exerted, it did no harm; but, on the contrary, it became unconstitutional. The Hon. Gent.'s arguments might be good if applied to Queenborough, but not for disfranching the reliable Ordernee. showing there were only 146 freemen at Queenborough, but not showing there were only 146 freemen at Queenborough, and yet he would disfranchise 2,000 persons. But what was the conduct of Government? No person had been dismissed for voting against Government. As he was informed, the whole number of freemen was 292; of that number 118 were constantly and some coexisting the support of the sumber of the sumb stantly, and seven occasionally, employed by the Ordnance, and there might be added, four persons receiving pensions for length of services; thus 129 persons were employed, or might be supposed to be under the influence of Government, while there were 163 unemployed, who might produce a majority of 34 against the Ordnance. He, in conclusion, expressed his hope that the House would not accede to the motion.

Col. Davies supported the motion.

Mr. P. Moore followed on the same side.
Mr. Tierney thought it was for the House to determine wheher the Borough of Queenborough belonged to the Administration of the day. Mr. Bathurst contended, that the principle of the Bill would not stop here, but must be applied, in the next instance, to the Navy. The House divided. For the motion, 60 - Against it, 118-

Majority against the Motion, 58.

The House divided on a motion for referring the Petitions from Scotland, complaining of the Malt Duty, to a Select Committee, Ayes, 53—Nos, 17.—Adjourned.

FRIDAY.

Mr. Sergeant Onslow brought in two Bills; one to amend the Acts relating to Solicitors and Attornies, and the other to regulate the Acceptances of Bills of Exchange.—Read a first time,-second reading on Monday.

The Committee on the Newington Vestry Bill were allowed till the 15th of May to make their report.

Dr. Lushington brought in a Bill to regulate the Auditory of the Exchequer Accounts, which was read a first time.

The Report of the County Courts Bill was ordered for consideration on the 10th of May.

On the third reading of the Bank Cash Payments Bill, Mr. Ellice proposed a clause, which went to compel the Bank to exchange their large notes either for smaller ones, or the current coin of the realm. This clause, after some conversation, was added to the Bill. which was read a third time and passed; as was also the Irish Bank Cash Payments Bill, with a similar clause.

The House went into a Committee of Supply, in which Lord Palmerston moved, that a sum not exceeding 14,4741.

e granted for the allowance of the Commander in Chief and his Personal Staff.

Mr. Hume proposed to reduce this sum by 2,000s. and moved

Lord Palmerston said the expences were only 1001. greater than in 1807.

The Committee divided -- For the amendment, 23-Against it, 94-Majority, 71.

it, we—majority, 71.

The original motion was carried.

Another amendment was proposed for reducing the sum to 12,4741. 15s. 3d. On this the Committee divided—For the amendment, 27—Against it, 90—Majority, 63.

On a third division for reducing the vote to 13,4741. 15s. 5d. there appeared—For the amendment, 40—Against it, 125—Majority 85. Majority, 85.

A division took place on proposing a vote of 6901. for the Deputy Judge Advocate of Scotland.

Col. Davies objected to this vote, on the ground that no officer of that description was required.

On a division the numbers were— For granting the sum, 111

—Against it, 74—Majority, 87.

Another division took place on a grant of 12,6421, for the charge of the Department of the Comptroller of Army Accounts it being proposed to reduce the vote to 86421 .- For the amendment, 45—Against it, 105—Majorky, 60.

The Report was ordered to be received on Monday.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

COURT OF CHANCERY .- April 12. Davis v. His Grace the Duke of Marlborough.

Mr. Hart stated, this was an application on the part of the plaintiff, that the service of the order of sequestration against the Noble defendant, directed to certain commissioners, to levy on the goods of the Noble defendant, the sum of 1931, declared by the Master's report to be due to the plaintiff, on Mr. Penneger, his Grace's solicitor, might be considered good service. He had an affidavit that the order of sequestration was served on Mr. Penneger, and that he undertook to shew cause why the order should not be made absolute.

The Lord Chancellor.—That service will not do; there is nothing attached to the rank of a Peer that ought to deprive m of the right of personal service.

'Mr. Hart.—Then we must endeavour to find the Noble Duke, and serve him personally.—Motion refused.

ASSIZES.

Georgester. Waterhouse, Esq. v. Colonel Berkeley. Mr. West opened the declaration, which stated it to be an action for Crim. Con. The damages were laid at 20,000l. Mr. Jervis said, the plaintiff, Mr. Waterhouse, was the son of the late, Mr. Waterhouse, who was formerly a merchant of eminence, carrying on business in London under the firm of Willis, Waterhouse, and Company. In the year 1810 he went to the fale of Man, where he became acquainted with a very respectable family, of whom the infortunate lady, who was the subject of the present action was the adjusted daughter. The the subject of the present action, was the etdest daughter. Be about twenty, and the lady neatly of the same age, but rather about twenty, and the lady nearly of the same age, but rather younger. On the 15th of September, 1812, with the mutual consent of their parents, they were married. Soon after their mion it was found convenient, from the pecuniary viroamstances of Mr. Waterhouse, that he should retire with his lady to live in some cheap part of the kingdom; they west in consequence to reside at Scarborough. In the course of the three following years they were blessed with three children, two girls and a boy. In the year 1817, from the state of the health of Mrs. Waterhouse, it was thought expedient that she should remove to Cheltenham; and, after, a short stay is that town, Mr. Waterhouse, settled with his family at a small village, called Charlton Kings, about a mile from thence, where an called Charlton Kings, about a mile from thence, where an aunt of Mrs. Waterhouse, the lady of Sir W. Wrazall, then

In the winter of 1818, a Mrs. Probye, who and been an early friend of Mrs. Waterhouse, arrived at Chellenham, for an early friend or mis. watermouse, attribute was, of course, re-the benefit of her health. Their intimacy was, of course, re-named: and through the medium of this lady, the defendant, Colonel Berkeley, was introduced to the plaintiff and his wife about the beginning of the year 1819. No particular inter-course followed between the gentlemen, nothing further having happened between them than an exchange of cards. On the 16th of April, in that year, Mr. Waterbouse went to London to see his brother, who was at that time in an ill state of health. He continued absent till the 10th of May, when he returned to Charlton. On the 10th of July following, he was again under Chariton. On the 10th of July following, he was again under the necessity of quitting home, for the purpose of going to Jersey to see a sister whom he had not seen for many years before. It was fit to state, that on both these occasions Mrs. Waterhouse was left under the immediate protection of her aunt, Lady Wraxall, the sister of her own mother. In the beginning of the year 1819, it had been proposed to Mr. Waterhouse, in consequence of the increasing state of his family, having had a fourth child born at Charlton, to proceed to Jamaica, to endeavour to obtain a situation, by which he to Jamaica, to endeavour to obtain a situation, by which he might be enabled the better to consult the comforts and happiness of those whom he so tenderly loved; for up to this time he did not entertain a doubt that he was in the full possession of the warmest affections of his lady. Although in the first instance his feelings prompted him to resist this solicitation, and to remain in the bosom of his domestic circle to which he was so tenderly attached, yet prudence at length suggested its propriety, and at the commencement of the year 1820 he resolved to prosecute that design; and on the year 1820 no resolved to prosecute that design; and on the last of January, in the last year, he left Charlton Kings for Bristol, with a view of embarking forthwith for Jamaica. It might be proper here to remark, that on thus leaving his wife for Jamaica, Mr. Waterhouse left her under the same protection as he had on the two former occasions, with an ample provision for her maintenance during his absence. From Jamaica, Mr. Waterhouse returned in July, and knowing that he had had no intercourse with his wife from the 10th day of January preceding, the Jury might better imagine than he was capable of describing, the agonized situation into which he was thrown on being informed of the course which she had adopted, and of her being then far advanced in pregnancy. He went to Cheltenham, but took the precaution of avoiding the abode of his wife. He remained there three days after the communication of the painful intelligence, and then left the place, determined never to see her again. His symiafter the communication of the painful intelligence, and then left the place, determined never to see her again. His suspicions, which were, unhappily, but too well founded, were confirmed by an intercepted letter—the contents of which, as it had come from Mrs. Waterhouse, he was at liberty to state. It was addressed to the present defendant, in language calculated to excite sensations which he would not venture to express. The letter from Colonel Berkeley to Mrs. Waterhouse, was dated the 1st of May, during that absence. It was in the following terms:—"Nothing but the fear of losing an opportunity of seeing you could induce me to write, but I am obliged to be in London on Monday, therefore I now send. To-night, to be in London on Monday, therefore I now send. To-night, at mine, I will be at the appointed spot. If you love me, do not fail me—there is no danger."—He (Mr. Jervis) was in possession of 24 letters, and eight notes, written by the defendant to Mrs. Waterbouse, which were obtained from that lady on the 12th Dec. in consequence of Mr. Waterbouse, with his solicitor, having gone to her lodging, and obtained them by means which, under the circumstances were not to be reprobated. At length, the defendant evinced the waywardness of illicit love, and in his last short and hasty notes proved, that his once ardent attachment had altogether subsided. The Learned Counsel then went on to state the oral testimony with which he was provided as to the occasional visit of the defendant to Mrs. Waterbouse-their private interviews, and the subsequent disordered appearance of the lady's dress; and finally, made an ammated and eloquent appeal to the Jury, to compensate, as much as damages could compensate, the plaintiff, for the injuries which he and his belpless infant family had sustained.

The witnesses were then called, and ten letters from Colonel were put in and read.

Mr. Justice Park summed up the case with perspicuity and impartiality; and, at twelve o'clock at night, the Jury found a verdict for the plaintiff—Damages, One Thousand Pounds; Costs, 40s.

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

Wednesday a Court of Directors was held at the East India House, when the Thanks of the Court were voted unanimously to George Abercrombie Robinson, Esq. Chairman, and Thomas Reid, Esq. Deputy Chairman, for their zeal and attention to the Company's interest during the last year.—At the ballot which took place for Six Directors, the numbers were:—

J. Bebb, Esq......1486

J. Bebb, Esq.......1486

Wednesday a meeting was held at the City of London Tavern, for the purpose of considering of the expediency of establishing a Floating Hospital for Seamen in the Port of London. A number of seamen and merchants attended the meeting, which was highly numerous and respectable. The Lord Bishop of Chester took the chair and conducted the humaness of the day. The nature and design of the intended undertaking was explained in an able manner by the Rear-Admiral Codrington, Lord Gambier, Thomas Starges, Esq. the Hon. Capt. Waldegrave, Lord Selsey, Capt. Bowles, R.N. and sewaral ether persons of distinction. several other persons of distinction.

A Court of Common Council was held on Thursday, at Guibi-hall, principally for the purpose of considering a Report of the best measure to be pursued in respect of London-bridge. Mr. Favell, the Chairman of the Bridge-House Committee, having Favell, the Chairman of the Bridge-House Commission, arrange brought up the Report, in which a new Bridge was recommended, concluded a speech of considerable length by moving mended, concluded a speech of considerable length by moving with: which being seconded, Mr. that the Report be agreed with; which being scoor Bridge, and moved, as an Amendment, that the Court agree Bridge, and moved, as an Amendment, that the Court agree with a Report from the Select Bridge-House Committee, annexed to the above Report, for widening and improving the waterway, agreeably to an opinion of Mr. Dance and other surveyors, in the year 1814. Mr. Dixon, Mr. Brown, Mr.—Drinkald, Mr. Griffiths, and Mr. Japp, sapperted the smealment; and Mr. Favell having replied, the show of hands was taken, which was greatly in favour of the amendment. A division being demanded and granted, the numbers appeared—For the amendment—72 Commoners, 2 Tellers, 74—For agreeing with the Report—14 Commoners, 2 Tellers, 18—Majority, 58.—The Committee were thereugen instructed to present agree-ably to the Report of the Select Committee, and to report their proceedings from time to time.

The Committee at Lioyd's Cottee-nouse have given twenty pounds to the Yarmouth boatmen who saved the lives of the new of the Symmetry, lately wrecked on the Cross Sands on the coast of Norfolk.

M. Cuvier, the naturalist, recently pronounced before the French Academy glowing panegyries on the memories of Sir Joseph Banks and George III.; the former for his exertions in, and the latter for his patronage of, science and the arts.

NEWINGTON.—The Commons Committee on the Newing-ton Select Vestry Bill met on Friday for the first time since its re-appointment, and since those stormy proceedings that were mentioned in the House. Mr. H. Sumner was again called to the Chair. There were about one hundred Members present, and the portion of the room allotted to strangers was crowded. The proceedings were again rather animated.

We received the following letter yesterday, dated Croydon, April 13:-"The following is an instance of the dreadful crime of suicide, as appailing as any of those which but too often oc-cupy a space in our public records.—A boy, about eleven years of age, who had lately, at different times, declared to his companions that he would shoot himself, this evening put his fatal panions that he would not should have the barrel of an old gun, which had been cut to the length of about a feet, he wan-dered into the fields, in company with a little boy younger than himself, when, having loaded the gun with eight bullets, he desired his companion to ge home, and tell his sister to come for him, as he was going to shoot himself. In the absence of the little boy he had indeed shot himself, and presented one of the most revolting spectacles that imagination can picture. The left jaw and one side of the face were carried entirely away, and the charge had come out at the back of the neck. The part of the face that remained was perfectly black with the powder. In this situation he was found, with the match still in his hand; by his side stood three sticks, about a foot high, which he had placed to support the barrel. He must then have stooped down, putting his face to the mussle of the piece, and his hand with the match, to the touch-hole. The nice had rehand, with the match, to the touch-hole. The piece had re-bounded to the distance of four or five yards."

The limits of a Newspaper will not permit us to praise, as we wish, these extremely useful publications—the Parance and Baronerage Charts: a reference, however, to the advertisement, will best explain to our readers the great extent of information they contain of each individual Peer and Buronet; we shall, therefore, content ourselves hy merely copying the summary of the whole, observing, at the same time, that the neat manner, in which they are printed and embel-lished, combined with the nature of the subject, render them two of the most elegant and interesting Charts that have ever yet been published.

"The number of Peers of Great Britain, independent of the Bishops, is exactly 500: of these, 56 have become ennobled as Courtiers; 19 as Younger Branches of Nobility; 80 as Statesmen; 16 by Diplomatic Services; 17 by Naval; 57 by Mili-tary; 39 by Legal; 39 by Marriage; and 227 by the influence of Wealth, &c. There are 92 Bachelors; 64 Widowers; and 344 who are Married. Of the 408 Married and Widowers, 99 are without Children; and the remaining $09 have, now living, 755 Sons, and 703 Daughters. The Paternal descent of 156 Peers can be traced to the Conquest, or 11th Century; that of 51 to the 12th Century; 52 to the 13th; 35 to the 14th; 35 to 51 to the 12th Century; 52 to the 13th; 35 to the 14th; 35 to the 15th; 60 to the 16th; 59 to the 17th; and 3 to the 18th Century; the genealogies of the remaining 49 cannot be traced, with sufficient accuracy to warrant insertion. The ancesters of 78 of the Peers, whose descent can be traced to the Conquest, were settled in England previous to that event; the other 78 came over with the Cooqueror. Of the Ancesters of the remainder, 31 have emigrated to this country since that period. There is a similar summary at the foot of the Barenetage Chart, which, we regret, we cannot find room to insert.

PRICE OF STOCKS AT THE CLOSE YESTERDAY.

PRICE OF STOCKS AT THE CLOSE YESTERDAY.

The business transacted, during the week, in the Fands, has been but of a triding nature, the Stock Jobers and Brokers heing chiefly secupied in the settling of their respective accounts; and the fluctuations in the various public securities have only been to a triding extent; indeed, such has been the immensity of business transacted during the former mart of the account, is consequence of the rapid decline and rise of the Funds, that the Jobers have evinced great ceast in towards the slose of the week, and their principal operations have been confined to their endeavours to create a rise by account-day, which happened on Thursday, in which they partly succeeded. In consequence, contrary to what had been anticipated, there were but few defaulters declared on the payday (Friday) and only one of them to gay annisherable extent. The Funds have since maintained very steady prices, and, owing to the favourable state of affairs in Italy, public confidence is again restored, both in the Franch Funds, and in those of this country. Densois opened yesterday marring at 72 for maney, and 72 for the account. The fluctuations during the day did not exceed a per cent, and closed at 72 for maney, and 72 for the account.

Reduced Ams..... 71 Navy 5 per cent ..... 1071

| Reduced Ann.... 71 | Navy 5 per cent ... 107; | Consels...... 71; 72; 72 | Exchequer Bills ... par 46 | India Bonds .... 45 46 | Per Cents..... 89 88; | Omnium .....

FRENCH FUNDS. Seper ct. Div. 28 Mar. 92-10 | Bank Sh. Div. 1 Jan. 1440 Recon. Div. 22 Mar. 95-75 | Ex.Lond. 1m 25-80 Sm 25-140

NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

received so many distinct on the publicat of the Realmonty, that use must request time to give a fair and dis-gastionate insettion of our Correspondents favours. At use have only the maintenance of our Church Establishment in aims, we shall freely afferd places to both sides of the ques-tion; B.B. W. and Candidus will be among the first for in-

J. D. B. seems to have coperted too much of Mire Do Fre confess we dilak there is grant premier obest her, and more by his own account she seems to have satisfied him in some of the most arduous parts of Balvidera. We are quite some of one thing, which is, that the indiscriminate puffing of the Theories, and their dependent willes, does in the end excisions injury to managers and actors: that it unswers its purpose commitment, Mr. Kenn and Miss Witson: activiseterity obbin; but that the system, generally epocking, is a bad one obbine is no doubt; and I.D. Bi's disoppointment and discendent with ditte Dance wher merely, at we think, from his ex-graph at the book too kighly raised by the bombasticd monumes asken diagraces the play-bills of the present day.

Merthank Amious, and so the course to coming on, shall not ourselves of his hint. Me are abliged to E. Q. X. for his good spidion. We dea inserting the Letter, because wo do not like to praise our-nh a Constant Reader of John Bull for his MIP!case will take it in hand nort work.

at shouse earlineering-the Epitoph, it looks like th of subjects.

We have caused inquiries to be made in the proper places, relative to the montion of the Queen's name, noticed by W. G. T., and we have the assurance of the person alluded to and several corroborating witnesses, that no such occurrence took place. We should have been grieved if it had, and our admiration of that person's professional talents is not a little increased by the loyal warmth with which he has repelled the

The beautiful little verses, beginning with

John Bull his infamous designs disclose,

"Defaming those who men in power oppose," are not quite sharp enough for us—indeed we are apprehensive they were not intended for this Paper.

We have received our valued correspondent's excellent Song upon the Queen; but the condition which accompanies it, that the Tune shall be printed with it, prevents its appearance till our next number.

The trash dated from a public-house in Hammersmith is inadmissible.

We are kighly gratified by the Letter which enclosed a paper which we have inserted. It is to such testimonials of our services, that we look with real pleasure.

Our "Constant Reader" is mistaken about the building in Stamford street—it is the School established by the ben lent Society of Saint Patrich, and is no more Catholic than Protestant; to use the emphatic nonsense published previously to the last meeting, signed by the Secretary: "It embraces all religion, but belongs to none." This stuff actually appeared in all the papers.

A Monday's Edition, containing the latest News, the Stock List, the London Markets, and the State of the Country Markets by that morning's post, is published at Three o'clock.

On the 5th of May will be published, Number 1, price 8d.; or stamped, and sent to Country Subscribers, free of postage, price 1s. to be continued every Saturday,

JOURNAL OF LITERATURE. This Work will contain Reviews of new Books, Foreign as well as English; of new Musical Works; Criticisms on the Arts and the Theatre; Notices of all new Publications; of Discoveries and Inventions in Science and Mechanics; Advertisements on Literary Subjects; and a variety of every sort of information which can be acceptable to the man of taste and genius.

Published at the Office of "JOHN BULL," No. 11, Johnson's-court, Fleet-street, to which Place all Communications are to be addressed to

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, APRIL 15.

THE rage for Revolution-making is for the present ended; and having satisfied themselves of the insignificance of the insurrections on the Continent, which they had so laboured to magnify, the faction are obliged to hold their tongues, and console themselves with if and buts, and a growling abuse of the cowardice of the heroes whose valour and energy they had just before extolled to the skies.

This diversion (for such it truly was to any body who knew any thing about it) being ended, our attention is called exclusively to the domestic conduct of those liberal politicians, who, beat out of their hopes of overtarning other Governments, apply all their little energies to thearting and harassing our own.

Wilson, who offered to leave his constituents without his aid in these perilous times, and take any military situation under the Neapolitan rebels, and whose services they rejected, either because they knew him too well, or did not know him at all,—this said Wilson is in a scrape, and so deeply in a scrape, that neither vio-lent speeches (even though some of his constituents are by in a sly place to hear them) nor flourishing professions will get him out of it.

His conduct in the Queen's business, although now he begs never to hear her name mentioned—his leading a troop of ragamuffins, not quite so delicate as the Neapolitans, to St. Paul's-or his humanity to men under his command, (an instance of which we shall shortly publish), however much they may disgust and appal, might he palliated in studied harangues, or by specious histry; but we have facts against him, and fac s beund down to dates too, we have a PROMISE MADE, —A PLHDGE GEVEN, which promise his constituen s now call upon him as a MAN OF HONOUR to fulfil,which pledge they require of him as their representative

Buring Major-General Wilson's election for Southwark, he was asked, if he were returned, how he would vote on the Catholic Bills; to which he replied, "It will be time enough to satisfy my constituents that head when the Bills come before Parliament." have never heard him accused of doing through his whole life—a wise and sensible thing; "But," added the Major-Coneral, "IF I THEN SHOULD DIFFER WITH YOU. GENTLEMEN, I WILL VACATE MY SEAT!!!" Had he stopped here he would have done what we

It appears, by the Report of the Debates in the House of Commons, that Major-General Wilson re-peated this promise, in a reply to Mr. Holme Sum-ner, and added, as we hear, that he had taken the epinion of his constituents upon the Catholic Bills, and that it was favourable.

and then look at the actual state of the case.

St. Saviour's Parish has petitioned egainet the Catholies. Dissentiont voices St. John's dicto ditto St. Guerge's ditte ditto 5 ditto Making a Potal in favour of the Catholies 413

MAJOR-GENERAL WILSON HAS SUPPORTED THE Bills, and voted for them, and therefore does DIFFER WITH THE GENTLEMEN WHO ELECTED HIM!

We are averse from the system of giving pledges to Electors, and we think Wilson was a very great blockhead for doing it; —but he has done it.

There is but one way in which this Knight of St. Caroline can terminate the affair; and to afford him the opportunity, Vestry Meetings will be called next week, and it is expected, and that seriously and earnestly, that he will take the Chiltern Hundreds, in which case his constituents may have an opportunity of returning a man to Parliament, who will not trifle away their best interests for the gratification of party malice or private spleen; and he will be enabled to take office in the suite of the Queen, and attend her to the continent on her approaching departure, provided she does not visit Naples, where, as the Major-General is scouted by all parties, he might not like just at present to venture himself.

Messrs. Hume and Bennett have been making themselves particularly and conspicuously ridiculous during the week. As Members of Parliament, we have every proper respect for them as we have for the House of Commons collectively; but as private individuals, we know no two men more perfectly obnoxious to us than these very honourable gentlemen.

Bennett is such a little gossipping waspish thing, that even the Shrewsbury cake-sellers themselves are quite sick of him; but Hume has a greater share of our dislike—he is such a profound dunce—a duil-headed ass, who plods night and day in order to discover the surest way of going wrong at last. He is a precious fellow truly, and if we were to go on writing prose about him, we should get savage with him in downright earnest; we will, therefore, enliven the subject by giving our readers (although, perhaps, a little out of place), a new ballad made last night, of which this said Doctor Joseph Hume, is the hero.

THE QUEENBOROUGH QUACK.

O HAPPY old England! where patriots grow As thickly and quickly as mushrooms from dung, Who, like the said mushrooms, as epicures know Preserve a strong taste of the soil whence they sprung.

I have seen many growths of this patriot spawn Which have risen and sunk in their hot-bed so rotten, PAULL, ROBSON, and WARDLE sprung up at the daws, At noon they were dead, and by evening forgotten.

And HUME is to-day what poor PAULL was before ;-That PAULL is to-day, such shall Home be to-morrow,-Unless the gay Muses, more kind than of yore, Shall lengthen the fame of the QUACK of QUERNBOROUGH.

This Doctor professes to physic the State, To purge the whole House, and give placemen a pill? But, like a true mountebank, fearing to wait, Commences his work by presenting his Bill!

He offers, for nothing, to try all his cures On old Lady England, and two younger sisters; But those ladies have found (as the proverb assures) That " all is not gold (under favour) which glisters."

The very first potion detected the knevery: It smelt rather filthy, was black, and we The the Dester protested, and swere it was See'ry, And preach'd on its merits three parts of an hour.

Next came a small pill; or, as he call'd it, pellett;
And though he disguised it, to make it go down,
The patient, indignant, beginning to smell it,
Threw pill, box, and all, at the Charlatan's crown?

To restore to his vigour, the Doctor's next plan was A voteran of seventy-two, by a touch; But when the affair was examin'd, the man was Too old and too fouble to carry his crutch. ...

But one must be noticed, more gross and uncommon,
Where the Doctor was caught in what looks like a lie;
Being ask'd, "Had he fell a distended abdomen?"
"Oh, yes," quoth he boldly, "I did—with MY EYE!"

Twas thought that the fellow had taken the name Of Dector, although at no school he had been t But Scotland must own, to her grief and her shame, That he has a diploma from wise Aberdeen!

THE QUEEN'S DRAWING-ROOM.

M.P.

It has been currently reported, not in the best circles, but in the circles which may be supposed to know best, that the Queen, under the guidance of Lady Jersey, intends to attempt a Drawing-room, on the 1st of May. It is too good news to be true-is it would be argument for a week, laughter for a month, and a good jest for ever."

To say nothing of our own little interests, as it would certainly increase our sale from eight or nine thousand, to we know not what number—what a treat it will be; and what an improvement on the common Morning Post list of ladies' dresses it will be, to have a concise yet particular account of each lady's character.

> To fifty chosen sylphs of special note We'll give th' important charge—the Petticont: Oft have we known that seven-fold fence to fail.

Though stiff with boops and arm'd with ribs of whale. And ladies who put on that dress of ceremony in honour of the Queen, must not be angry if the sylphs of the petticent should let us into their secrets.

TRAITS OF CHARACTER.

As her Majesty is about to present herself once more to the notice of the public, whom she has insolently called HER people, we shall, previously to bringing forward, in weekly succession, all the facts relative to her conduct, as they occur, offer our readers a few traits of her character, not connected with the flagrant vice, of which she has been found guilty by the highest tribunal in the land.

When the Queen was living at Blackheath, and the Princess Charlotte at Shooter's Hill, a certain Sir William Drummond dined with the former; to meet him came the young Princess: such an association, however, being deemed improper, it was hinted to the Queen, that such meetings must in future be avoided. Her Majesty acceded to the suggestion, and Sir William was not invited to meet the illustrious young lady.

Some short time after this, Lady de Clifford discovered, in the possession of the Princess Charlotte, and got from the possession of the Filmess entante, and got home with no little difficulty, a copy of a book written by this Sir William Drummond, which, it appeared, the Queen had slily given to her daughter, under a promise of keeping it secret from "those in authority over her," of keeping it secret from "those in authority over her," for her own private reading, so that if Sir William's conversation was denied her she might, at least, benefit by his tenets and doctrines. This was the act of a mother fondly solicitous for a child's welfare. She not only took pains to inculcate the most infamous principles into her mind, but took the opportunity of teaching her to deceive her governess and oppose her father.

FASHIONABLES

His Majesty continues at Brighten, and in excellent health. On Wednesday, he rode on horseback towards Rottingdeau, accompanied by Sir Benjamin Bloomfield. His Majesty was received with every deme nstration of public respect and affec

His Royal Highness the Duke of York, left town on Thursday, on a visit to His Majesty. The Cabinet Ministers dined with the Earl of Harrowby on Wednesday.

Wednesday's "Almacks," was the gayest of the season. The Duke and Duchess of Clarence were there, and His Highness the Duke of Gloucester, the Duke of Wellington, the Marquess of Anglesey were of the party, and a Prince whose name we never heard before. Dancing as usual commenced at eleven o'clock, and continued with unabated seal, till the latest possible

Mrs. William Camac gave on Tuesday, what is called a Rancy Ball, and was herself most splendidly attired in a fancy dress of rich silver tissne, most tastefully ornamented with a superb and matchless plume of white ostrich feathers, and a profusion of diamonds and emeralds. Among the company were Mr. Brisco, Mr. M. Brisco, and Mr. W. Brisco, in very handsome uniforms, the three Misses Scotts, as peasants. The Misses Goslings in chaste dresses, as Bohemian ladies, Captain Lyon wore a singular dress, and Mr. B. Strachey, was a Persian. The entertainments concluded with a supper, at which have a seen accellent; all were so magnificently dressed it the viands were excellent; all were so magnificently dressed, it is difficult to particularize.

The Covent Garden Theatrical Fund Dinner, took place on Wednesday. His Royal Highness the Duke of York, condescended to take the Chair. The subscriptions amounted to Sourteen hundred pounds, of which, His Gracious Majesty contributed one hundred guineas.

Prince Ernest Hohenloh Langenbourg went to Woolwich on Thresday maying and returned to town in the evening.

Prince Ernest Hohenloh Langenbourg went to Woolwich on Thursday morning, and returned to town in the evening.

The Most Noble Marquis of Londonderry died on the 8th instant, in the 83d year of his age. His Lordship was twice married—first to Lady Sarah Frances, sister to the Marquis of Hertford, by whom he had issue, Viscount Castlereagh (who succeeds to the Marquisae); and secondly, to Lady Frances, sister to the Marquis of Camden, by whom he had issue Lord Stewart (our Ambassador at the Ceurt of Vienna), and other children. The deceased Marquis was created a Baron in 1769, a Viscount in 1795, an Earl in 1796, and a Marquis in 1816. He is succeeded in his titles by Lord Castlereagh, now Marquis of Londonderry; but these titles a marquis in 1810. He is succeeded in his titles by Lord Castlereagh, now Marquis of Londonderry; but these titles being all Irish, it is by an article of the Union at the option of their present possessor, (the Noble Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs) either to retain his seat in the House of Commons, or by vacating it, to qualify himself for becoming a Re-presentative Peer of Ireland. His Lordship, we trust, will prefer the former; that the country may not be deprived of his great services in the Commons House of Parliament, in which e has so long and highly distinguished himself as the leading **Yark Saring Meeting. 1821.—Monday.—The Spring St.

SPORTING .--Newmarket First Spring Meeting commences on Baster Monday. On the second day a grand match takes place for 200 guineas, between Mr. Udney's horse Barmecide (8st. 7lb.) and Mr. Thornhill's Sardonix (6st. 10lb.)—Mr. Gre-(8st. 71b.) and Mr. Thornhill's Sardonix (6st. 10h.)—Mr. Greville's Banker (9st. 12lb.), is matched against Mr. Charlton's Pheenix (8st.), at the second Spring Meeting, for 200 gs. b. ft. Bibsry, 1821.—Second Day.—The Welter Stakes of 20gs. each, h. ft. free for any horse, &c. carrying 12st. Two miles. The winner to be sold for 250gs. if demanded, &c. To be ridden by members of the Club. Mr. C. W. Webster's Steel-trap, 6 yrs old; Mr. G. C. Agar's br. g. The Hero, aged; Mr. Charlton's Rowena, 5 yrs.; Mr. Rawlinson's Topsy-turvy aged; Mr. Goddard names Gossip, aged; Mr. Kneller names b. h. Alfred, & yrs old; Mr. Pryso's b. m. by Grimaldi, & yrs old; Mr. Dundas's br. g. Wisdom, aged.

York Spring Meeting, 1821.—Monday.—The Spring St. Leger Stakes of 25gs. each, for colts, 8st. 3lb. and fillies, 8st. Last mile and three quarters. Str J. Byng's b. c. Fitzwalter; Mr. Pelham's b. c. by Prime Minister; Mr. Ridsdale's br. c. Statesman: Mr. Robbinson's b. c. The Lord of the Manor; Mr.

Petre's gr. c. The Baron.

Melton Races (Vorkshire), April 11.—The Craven Stakes of 19gs. each, one mile and a quarter, was won by Mr. Watt's ch. c. Casar, by Cerberus, 3 yrs.old, 8st. beating Mr. Ridsdale's ch. c. Swift, 4 yrs.old, 8st. 9lb.; Mr. Ferguson's The Duke, 3 wrs.old. Ret. and Mr. Kirby's b. c. Canova. by Golumous, 3 8st.; and Mr. Kirby's b. c. Canova, by Golumous, 3 yrs old, 8st.—The Sweepstakes of 20gs, each, for colts and fillies rising 3 yrs old, one mile and a half, was won by Mr. T. Sweepstakes of 20gs. each, for filles rising 3 yrs, one mile, was won by Mr. T. Bykes's b. c. by Golumpus, out of Magistrates dam.—The Sweepstakes of 20gs. each, for filles rising 3 yrs, one mile, was won by Lord Milton's ch. f. Ursula, by Cervanies, out of Fenny.—The Barton Stakes was won by Mr. Howard's ch. c. by Octavian, out of Miss Blanche's dam.—The 501. Plate was not decided when our account came away.

BETHING ROOM.—Derby: 6 to 1 aget Reginald; 7 to 1 lagst Gustavus; 10 to 1 aget Charm; 11 to 1 aget Jook; 11 to 1 aget Morel—Oaks; 3 to 1 aget My Lady.—Riddlesworth: 2 to 1 aget Reginald; 3 to 1 aget Morel; 7 to 2 aget Selima,—St. Lager, 13 to 3 aget Jack Spiggot; 11 to 1 aget Colwell.

THEATRICALS.

So many of our correspondents are clamorous for Theatrical Critiques, that we begin to hope that Theatres re getting into fashion again; we cannot, however, bring ourselves to give up any great space in our Paper to the subject; and more especially, as there is really no opportunity offered to exercise one's judgment. To what a melancholy ebb must dramatic writing have fallen, when, during a whole season, no such thing as a Comedy has made its appearance. Sundry dull drivelling Trage-dies have been put forth, but their success having been duly proportioned to their merits, they have died nearly unknown. The desperate writers have, for the most part, printed them, so that while cheesemongers sell butter, and trunks continue to be lined with paper, their names (or rather their nick-names) may live. But we much doubt whether the spectres of their departed plays will ever haunt the stages of Covent Garden or Drury Lane again.

To the support of their mawkish sleeping-draughts have been introduced translations of French Melodrames, the originals of which (doubtless, from want of taste in our neighbours) have 'wasted their sweetness in the desert air' of the Ambigu-Comique, or have been pa-tronized by some of the strollers on the Boulevard du Temple, or those ill-fated persons who, not able to get in to see Potiér, have persevered in their walk towards the Place de la Bastille. Even our Ferces are transla-tions; and even George Colman himself condescended to borrow "L'Homme Automate," and the public were so ungrateful as to condemn it.

The Covent Garden Pantomime is almost the only thing which has this season made a stand with the public. In this branch of the art, the talent of the scene-painters, the skill of the machinist, the excellence of the performers, and the liberality of the managers, render Covent Garden unrivalled; and the same liberality, we have no doubt, would insure them equally good Tragedies and Comedies were they to be got; but it is a melancholy truth, that the talent is not in us, so we must be content to see Don John, or the Two Violettas, Giovanni in London, Therese, and Mr. Yates in half a dozen parts

Yates's imitations are sometimes inimitable. The resemblance to Young is so close as almost to baffle detection, and that to Mathews wenderfully striking, but he is more unequal in his success than any mimic we ever saw. His Blanchard and Terry are so perfectly unlike that nobody would suspect them. There is a man of the name of Reeve, a nephew of Waithman's, the linen-draper, who, taken altogether, is a better imitator than Yates; but never reaches perfection, as Yates does in Theatrical people talk of these rivals as men of taste talk of the Universities.—Oxford is, beyond doubt, a finer whole, but it has nothing so pre-eminently beautiful in it as the Chapel at King's, in Cambridge.

We doubt whether in his imitations of Mathews, Mr. Yates does not trench a little upon the fair ground of dramatic opposition: however, Mathews stands far above the rivalry; for his imitations of imaginary characters, and his imagined imitations of real ones, are efforts of mind, and proofs of intellect, which we in vain look for among the "servum pecus" of mere monkies of deformity or misfortune.

While we are on the subject, we shall take leave to say a word or two about the Oratorios. We are the last persons in the world to find fault with a rational and enlightened entertainment, and not in the least inclined to be strait-laced about the introduction of music into society, even on Sunday evenings; nor do we mean to say that there is any thing like sin or transgression in singing or hearing sung any of the songs which have been per-formed at the Concerts called Oratorios this season at Drury Lane or Covent Garden; but we are friends to nothing like innovation; we hate all insinuating, creeping advances to the subversion of the law, even in such a thing as this. The Church ordains that the Wednesdays and Fridays of Lent should be kept as fasts— the law prohibits theatrical entertainments on these evenings, but, for the rational and moral recreation of the people, sacred music, composed by the greatest master of the art who ever breathed, adapted to words selected from the Holy Scriptures, was allowed to be sung. This music was of a nature to captivate the mind, to chain the attention, and to bring the thoughts of the audience to the inspired text, which it so wonderfully, so powerfully, and so magnificently illustrated. Now, not only the purpose of those Wednesday and Friday evenings' performances is abandoned, but Handel himself is totally neglected.—To the vitiated taste that could prefer "The Polacca," "The Last Words of Marmion," "Fanny of the Green," or "Jenny of the Valley," to the offspring of Handel's mighty genius, we have nothing to say; and we suppose, by finding the modern frippery usurping the place of "The Messiah," "Judas Maccabeus," "Saul," and similar works, that the conductors of these Concerts find the present system "ansoer better;" but we have a great deal to say about this innovation in a legal and moral point of view

It has been held necessary, as we observed before, to prohibit theatrical performances on two nights in each week during Lent. This prohibition is still in force, and while it is so, it appears to us to be the height of presumption and misconduct to substitute for the licensed performances, songs from Operas, Farces, and Plays. If the singers who are engaged cannot sing Handel's music, (which, in most cases, is the fact) engage those who can; but do not quibble upon words, and call those things Oratorios which are, in fact, selections from modern dramatic pieces, given to the public, stripped of all that, now-a-days, is worth seeing on the stage—the scenery, dresses, and decorations.

What formerly was the Oratorio Season is, for this year, over; but we shall, previously to the commencement of the next, bring the subject more immediately under the notice of the Lord Chamberlain and the Bishop of London, to whom it particularly belongs to correct such abuses.

ORIGINAL POETRY.

THE RHINO.

Tune-" Sally in our Alley." Or all the aldermen in fur. Ob. MATTHEW is the fellow; To smell a bone, no hungry our Is sharper in a cellar. For money lent, His Grace of Kent A Lottery he can't try now, So he must find Some other wind

To raise the ready rhino.

The Queen began to make a talk; Quoth BROUGHAM, "She shan't come over;" Quoth Mar, "Your treacherous tricks I'll baulk," So off be shipped from Dover. BROUGHAM lagging came, And cried, "Great dame,

" To Como you should fly now." But MAT prevails, She fills her sails For this dear land of rhino.

And now she made a mighty swell, With MATTHEW at her elbow; None was so fit, within Bow-bell, To be of that great belle, beau.

The ragged crowd Huzzaed so loud. "The Queen and Woon" the cry now;

" Huzza!" says MAT, " I've found the Cat, "Whose paw shall find the rhino."

Twas quite a raree-show to meet MAT and the fat Old Lady, Parading through the wond'ring street, Like chimney-sweeps on May-day: And to the throng Cheapside along, MAT shook his fist so high now, As who should say, Base duns! away,

I've found the bag of rhino.

What follow'd then is so absurd, That should I set before ye But one day's frensy, on my word, You'd not believe the story. In masquerade Came ev'ry trade, And all as drunk as swine, oh! Kettles, kilts. And boys on stilts.

'Twas snob a sight as ne'er was seen Since chaos, I heard PARR sny, Tinker and Duke, and trull and Queen, Bang-up and Lady JERSEY. How far the fun Might still have run, Is what nor you nor I know; But Messieurs Courts, Like selfish brutes, Refus'd to give the rhino.

All hir'd by Royal rhino.

And now that Fifty Thousand Pound Has fill'd her soul with gladness, E'en that too little would be found To kindle a new madness, So fix'd ber beart's On foreign parts— To Italy she'll hie now, And bilking MAT, Will waste on that This silly nation's rhino.

TO THE EARL OF HAREWOOD.

"Some villains broke into the Church, and stripped all th searlet cloth off from Lord Harewood's pew."-Lecds Adver

> CONDOLBNCE HAREWOOD, I late address'd you in a sonnet, Which, as I hear, affected you too much, I beg to make you my excuse upon it, And not again so sore a theme to touch.

I now approach you, truly to condole Upon the loss of which I've lately read; Some rogues, it seems, your scarlet lining stole, And lest your pew unfurnished as your head.

But who's the thief? perhaps some canning variet, Who the right meaning of that colour knew, Has made a cloak of it for some vile harlot: But since the Queen's acquitted, thanks to you, Perhaps she'll give her cast off robe of scarlet To make another cushion for your pew;

Where you may pray, with lordly indignation, Against low-liv'd ADULTERY and rulgar fornication.

LIST OF CLERGYMEN WHO HAVE PRAYED FOR THE QUEEN.

REV. MR. ROE, of Newbury.

REV. JAMES GREGORY, of Banchary, N. B. REV. A. J. FORSYTH, of Belhelvie, N. B.

This Gentleman is a cousin of Brougham's. REV. MR. ALLAN BOWMAN HUTCHINS, Curate of Grately and Kimpton, Hants. RRV. J. TRASH, perpetual Curate of Kersey, near Had leigh, Suffolk. REV. THOMAS PRARSON, Torrishcline, Lancashire. REV. JOSIAH RICHARD WILKINSON, Skirton, ditto.

REV. R. H. ASHE, D. D. Perpetual Curate of Crew

kerne, and Vicar of Misterton, Somerset.
REV. MR. WEST, Curate of Southowram, Halifax.
We have received a letter from the Rev. Gowan Evans,

Curate of Towcester, denying that he ever called his Bishop "A GREAT Ass"—this is very natural; but as he has had the insolence to pray for the Queen in defiance of the Order in Council, we must have better authority than his own word, before we doubt his abuse of his Diocesan. If that respectable gentleman, Mr. Deacon of Towcester, will contradict the statement, we will notice it.

But we must observe, that the style Mr. Gowan Evans has adopted in his letter to us, is not likely to induce us to retract; we laugh at all anger and bullying, and those who try the experiment always will get the worst of it.

Mr. Gowan Evans has by his letter, stirred up a few more things which we had no wish to divulge. He should have known that we have copious information on all subjects we touch upon, but that we never bring more metal into the field than is necessary for our object: our aim in his case was only to expose him as a parson who had prayed for the Queen, and in order to show how disgusting his conduct was to his congregation, we added the anecdote of Mr. Deacon; but as Mr. Evans rebels against us, and talks of "his henourable pretentions" is this to the course was much of him as it is fair to sions," we think it right to say as much of him as it is fuir to say of a "Clergyman, who is bound over to keep the peace" towards one of his own Parishioners!!!

We will ask Mr. Gowan Evans then, why, when the Radicals of Towcester assembled and broke windows in honor of the Queen, he did not discourage them; when, from being extremely popular amongst them, and a peace maker by profession, he could have done so by holding up his little finger?—We would ask him when he signed the Address to the Bishop of Peterborough, (of whom he is said to have made such bonorable mention), why he superadded this hint to his signature, "Curate for twenty years of Towester?" We trust that Mr. Gowan Evans will remain a Curate as long as he lives.

However, as Mr. Evans wishes us to "impart the name of the author of the communication made to us," we are most ready to assure him, that he shall have it sent to him, well authenticated, the morning on which he is made a Bishop-

We have to inform the reverend gentlemen whose names we have this day and heretofore published, that, by the death of the Rev. Mr. Barry, the Rector of Quarly, in Hampshire, and one of the Brethren of St. Catharine's, near the Tower, two pieces of preferment, said to be in the gift of the Queen, are vacant: we earne-tly advise all those who have sacrificed the vacant: we earne-tly advise all those who have sacrificed the respectability of their character, and failed in their obedience to the Order in Council, by praying for her, to be active in their solicitations. The race is begun, and we hear, at present, Bowman Hutchins is the favourite; indeed, his activity in collecting the Plate Subscription, and his having been up with Addresses, are greatly in his favour. However, this should not discourage the less active, or more distant claimants; as it is quite impossible, from the oddity of the Queen's propensities, to say for what particular qualifications her patronage may he to say for what particular qualifications her patronage may be reserved. A letter has been written to the Queen by Sir Herbert Taylor, mentioning a person strongly recommended by the late Princess Charlotte for this preferment, to which the Queen has returned an answer full of heartless stuff and flummery; whether it will best suit her views to dispose of it according to the wish of her daughter, we leave her and Lady Jersey to settle between them.

We have received a letter from the Rev. G. J. Bevan, of Crickhowel, stating that he prayed for the Queen only until the publication of the order regulating the Liturgy; which, till then, he considered it his duty to do.

We conclude this article by inserting a Bill announcing two Sermons for this day. We do not exactly know to what punishment persons selling and using Prayer-books, as therein advertised, render themselves liable to; but we loudly call upon those in authority to interpose their power to stop this flagrant disrespect to the Orders of Council, and these bare-faced efforts to demoralize the people.

"On Sunday next, April 15th, 1821, Two Sermons will be "On Sunday next, April 15th, 1821, Two Sermons will be preached in Red Lion Hill Chapel, Hampstend, by the Rev. W. Day, A. B. late of the University of Oxford. The Service will begin, in the afternoon, at Three o'clock, and in the Evening at Seven. In the first Sermon the true cause of Deism, and the way to check it, will be pointed out; and, in the second, it will be shown what true Religion is, and the way to obtain it. A new arrangement of the Book of Common Prayer (containing the Hymns, will be introduced. N.B. Liturgies, including the Hymns, may be had at the door of the Chapel, price two shillings. Books of Common Prayer will be necessary in the Evening for Books of Common Prayer will be necessary in the Evening for the reading of the Palms, Epistle, and Gospel. A Clerk wanted; inquire of Mrs. Knobbs, the Pew-opener."—Printed by W. Molineux, 5, Bream's-buildings, Chancery-lune.

(To be continued.)

THE "ON DIT!"-(No. II.)

A person on Tuesday, walked into the Office of this Paper, and wrote as follows:—
"We find we were misinformed on the circumstances to we find we were misinormed of the circumstances which we alluded in our last Number, under the head "On Dit." We certainly meant, and are sure, there was nothing prejudicial to the honor of a lady distinguished for propriety of conduct, and that the gentleman interested has too much spirit and bonour to submit to any injury, either personal or other-

Now did the man suppose, that we should insert this flippant contradiction of the On dit of last week? to please him we are to say, we have been misinformed; now as we only gave the On dit, we were in no worse plight for information than our neighbours; and we must beg leave, with all the due respect for Mr. Webster Wedderburne's spirit and honour, to get something more authentic, than the stuff written by his anonymous friend, before we say we were misinformed. As for imputation upon the lady, we never meant any, we see no great harm in what she did, even if she did every thing the On dit gave her credit for doing; our impression was, that it was a very silly trick her husband played in watching her. However, as it is our duty and wish to do justice, we with pleasure give a place to a letter from Colonel Palmer to Mr. Wedderburne, which contains their own statement of the case; and if, after they have conned it over carefully, any of our readers comprehend it in the slightest degree, or can make out " what it was that originated in a mistake;" or, indeed, what the letter has to do with the "thing in hand," we shall give them credit for perception and penetration to which we dare not ourselves make any pretensions.

TO WEBSTER WEDDERBURNE, ESQ.

DEAR SIR—I lose no time in redeeming the pledge I gave to you yesterday, namely, that in the arrangement with Lord Foley, of the affair betwixt Lord Petersham and yourself, I should consider your honour as my own, and hold myself responsible for any blame which might otherwise attach to you from my conduct; and it is in the hope of preventing the necessity of any further notice of the transaction on the part of yourself or your friends, that I presume to trouble the public with a statement, so materially involving the honour of all parties concerned. I must observe, in the first place, that previous to your application to me, you had received a communica-tion from Lord Foley, on the part of Lord Petersham, inform-ing you of a false and scandulous report of the affair betwixt you, which his Lordship wished to be contradicted; to which you replied, that you could not hold yourself answerable for such statements, but that you should be happy to receive any further communication from his Lordship on the subject. You afterwards received a second letter from Lord Foley, enclosing the copy of a paragraph, in contradiction to the above state-ment, to which he requested your sanction; and your first visit to me upon the subject was to communicate your answer to this second letter, wherein you had declined sanctioning such contradiction, leaving Lord Petersham to make whatever statement he might deem proper, and yourself at liberty to act upon it as the occasion might demand. In this state of the affair I interfered by calling on Lord Follow. After a full communication that the occasion inguity and the state of the affait in the feed, by calling on Lord Foley. After a full communication with his Lordship upon the subject, and other inquiries, which, in justice to both parties, I considered accessary to make, I rein justice to both parties, I considered accessary to make, I remained perfectly convinced of the correctness of what his Lordship had stated to me, namely, that not only what had occurred at the meeting had been grossly misrepresented, but that the whole affair had originated in a mistake; and whilst I consider your feelings to have been very natural under a false impression of the fact, I must also add, as my opinion, that, under the circumstances, Lord Petersham could not possibly have conducted himself with more honour, temper, discretion, have conducted himself with more honour, temper, discretion, or gentlemanly feeling, than he did on that occasion.

With this impression of his Lordship's conduct on the one hand, and the impossibility of your sanctioning the contradiction of a statement which might be supposed to have originated with, or to have been sanctioned by, yourself on the other, I saw no means of doing justice to the honour of both parties but by the step I took; and leaving to those who may feel interested in the matter, to judge of its propriety, I will only add, that having been the sole cause of that delay, which, in such cases may be an irreparable injury to the honour of the party suffering from it, I trust that such consideration may party suffering from it, I trust that such consideration may justify the warm, but very sincere feelings as to Lord Petersham's conduct on this occasion, which, under other oircum-stances, I should have thought unnecessary to have expressed.

-I remain, dear Sir, yours, faithfully, Albany, April 9, 1821. CHARLES PALMER. Now, however, follows a correspondence, which, if not more intelligible as to the events it refers to, is, at least, in a little plainer style of language. This latter is addressed to the Editor of the Morning Post, enclosing for publication the correspondence which tollows:-

Sim—I enclose you the copy of a correspondence betwirt Mr. Webster Wedderburne and myself: at the same time heg to mention, with reference to my former letter to him on the subject, that understanding from Lord Foley, Lord Petersham's friends would have been better satisfied had I stated that no blows had passed in the rencontre betwixt his Lordship and Mr. W., I hereby most distinctly declare that no blow did pass betwirt them; and my only reason for not mentioning it was, that I did not like to make use of the expression, and, under the circumstances, I considered it to be very immaterial as to the fact.—I am, Sir, your obedient Servant,
Albany, April 11, 1821. CHARLES PALMER.

TO WEBSTER WEDDERBURNE, ESQ.

DEAR WEBSTER—I am so infernally ill after last night's work, that I cannot leave my bed, so pray come to me as soon as you can; but for God's sake make up your mind one way or other (and I don't care a damn which), as I can stand it no longer. Who the fools are that influence you I know not; if I had had you to myself it would have been settled long since; and it is too bad, when I am the only person who has stood by you, that you should not trust me. How can you consider that letter as an insult which begins with telling the whole world that "I have considered your honour as my own?" I knew well enough there would be the devil to pay, but there was no well enough there would be the devil to pay, but there was no trusting you. What nonsense your jealousy of my praises of Petersham; poor fellow! he little deserved or anticipated that humiliation which has needed them. If you could only get rid of your damned jealousy, which, upon my soul and body you have no occasion for, I am sure you would be as anxious to do him justice as myself: only do that, and I'll speak as hand-somely of you, and shall think it no more than you deserve. Come and breakfast, and bring G. Hawkins if he has no started. I read him in a moment and am sure he is the hest started. I read him in a moment, and am sure he is the best fellow in the world. As for you, you'd puzzle the devil, but I don't mean to be puzzled myself any longer; and so help me God! if this damned letter of yours must be published, so help me God! if you do not alter it, though, as you say, it will take out all the best parts of it, this shall be our last meeting. So do as you please; recollect, that it is your business, and not mine.—Yours, Albany, Wednesday Morning.

TO COLONEL PALMER, M. P.

DEAR PALMER—I only intreat we may have no repetition of the unpleasant and endless discussions of last night; for if I did not solemnly and firmly believe some reply indispensable, no powers on earth could have induced me to make one. You must really, therefore, desire the Post and the Press to insert it to-day; I shall modify any thing which could possibly be construed as against poor Lady Frances, whose hoseur and feelings are, God knows, sacred to me. The fracas of last night (for we really made it one) will no doubt form matter for mew paragraphs. Nothing, though to be serious, can change my intention, and as you thwarted it last night you must promote it now. I can't breakfast with you, but will call at ten.

— Ever yours sincerely,

W. W.

Wednesday.
TO WEBSTER WEDDERBURNE, ESQ. DEAR WEBSTER WEDDERBORNE, Bog.

DEAR WEBSTER—I am quite satisfied with your letter, and would most readily comply with your wishes, if in my power; for believe me there is no possible sacrifice but of my character which I would not make, to do justice to all parties. But how can I, after last night's work, ask the Editors to insert it. You may well talk of matter for new paragraphs; but if you really wish to prevent them, depend on it there is but one way, and that is, to speak the truth, as I mean to do for all our sakes, but in a way I should be very sorry to communicate to you beforehand, and if you were surprised yesterday at reading for the first time my letter, which you tell me nobody believes to be true, that Lord Foley was as ignorant of it as yourself, what will be your astonishment to-morrow (particularly after dining with me, because I cannot trust you out of my sight) at reading your own private letter, which I am now answering? But much as I should like to see you on the occasion, I shall feel infinitely safer at home. But believe me, however, I should not publish it was I not convinced that it would be your best justification with the world for the step you have taken, and giving you the entire credit of an action, to which I have not, in the slightest degree, urged you, and which speaks volumes for both parties; now it is determined on, I must do it justice, by declaring upon my word, (or even my oath, if you insist upon it) that never, in the whole course of my existence were my feelings so deeply interested as by the object in question; and now, as regards that object, having never known her till within these few days, I can say nothing of the past; but for the future, possessing as I do, and may naturally be imagined, her entire confidence, and which I now resign into its proper hands, I declare in the face of the world my firm belief, there is nothing upon the face of it, taking her altogether, so estimable as herself; and here to prevent jealousy on your part, or suspicion with others, I must call upon my friends Colonel or suspicion with others, I must call upon my friends Colonel Roberts or Mr. Hutchinson, to bear mc out in saying, that my affections have been long since fixed, and could only change (if then) with the life of the object who possesses them; but I must stop here, as I shall have the Bishors on my BACK; but even with them, in thus betraying your secrets and my own, I trust I shall injure neither by the avowal.—Your's, my dear Wedderburne, very faithfully,
Albany, Wednesday.

CHARLES PALMER.

Albany, Wednesday. CHARLES PALMER.
P. S. And now for the wind up. The chef d'œuvre, about which our fracas, as you call it, has taken place, it is well for me, as absolutely I cannot help myself, you have let out that I me, as absolutely I cannot help myself, you have let out that I did my best to prevent it.

TO COLONEL PALMER, M. P.

DEAR SIR—I regret that you did not think it necessary to make me acquainted with the letter I have seen, with much surprise, in the public journals of yesterday, and which you have addressed to me, in reference to the arrangement of the late difference between Lord Petersham and myself, wherein you were kind enough to act on my part.

That after the explanatory paragraph of the 9th instant, as agreed between Lord Foley and yourself, you should have considered this step expedient, I cannot but Isment, as it imposes on me the disagreeable necessity of again obtruding a matter on the attention of the public, which, being one of mere individual interest, can have no claim to consideration.

Since, however, you leave me no alternative, I am bound to reply in the same channel; and without any reference to what might otherwise be supposed to involve questions affecting others than the gentlemen forming the subject of our corresothers than the gentlemen forming the subject of our correspondence, I beg to disclaim having ever acted upon, or being influenced by any "mislakes" or "false impressions," as relating to statements which either did or might be supposed to emanate from me; and if, therefore, any representation of mine left such a conviction on your mind, I must have done both you and myself great injustice, and particularly where the points at issue did not stand wholly on the test of personal authority. authority.

The very flattering terms in which you have thought it mecessary to express yourself of Lord Petersham's conduct in the business, must be highly satisfactory to his Lordship's friends, and I should be sorry to have deprived them of the gratification which the testimony and opinion of so honourable an individual cannot fail to afford.—Believe me, dear Sir, with much esteem sincerely yours,

J. WEBSTER WEDDERBURNE.

April 11, 1821. Then comes a letter to the Editor of the Post, for publication on Friday.

SIR-I am much surprised to see a most extraordinary correspondence in your paper of this day, purporting to be that of Colonel Palmer and myself; and without further comment at this moment, I shall only entreat my friends and the public. before whom I should never voluntarily have obtruded myself, to suspend their judgment until I can lay such a statement before them as I may bereafter consider necessary, in defence of that, which I trust I shall never survive—my honour.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant, J. WEBSTER WEDDERBURNE.

Thursday Evening, April 12.

The on dit goes that Col. Palmer is cracked.

In the Crim.-Con. case at Gloucester, in which the illegitimate son of the late Earl of Berkeley, who calls himself Colonel Berkeley, was defendant, the damages awarded were One Thousand Pounds. The amount of these damages was kept down by the production in Court of the Lady's Letters, which were in his possession.—They say that she had implored him earnestly, and as he valued her life, not to make this exposure—but it saved money, and they were handed in.

This most exem warm and energetic partizan of the Queen, and his name (at least that which he chooses to assume) will be found tacked, with seven others, to a requisition for a county meeting in Gloucestershire, to address the King in favour of that most injured female. This, be it observed, cost nothing; but the moment his purse was likely to be touched, the independent swaggerer gladly published to the world the weakness of a woman, who had erred once, and that ONCE FOR HIM. -Of such stuff are the Queen's friends made!

They say in the City that Walthman is to be thrust in as Lord Mayor next Midsummer-day, to the exclusion of Mr. Alderman Heygate. Mr. Alderman Heygate. We will try what we can do to prevent it. Waithman has latterly been so quiet, and is really so insignificant a person, that we had determined to spare him; and were it his turn to be Chief Magistrate we would do nothing in regard to him likely to affect the ordinary course of things; but if he be to be upheld, on the score of peculiar claims or pretensions, against a man so very respectable in his way as the Member for Sudbury, we will take the liberty of sifting, analyzing, and exposing such claims and pretensions; and leave it to the Livery (who have ousted him as their Member of Parliament) to judge what the Linen-draper has done since they discarded him from one situation, to deserve so pointed an exception to a general rule to exalt him to another.

On dit, that the match between Hughes Ball and the Lady Jane Paget is off, and that Mr. Ball has betaken himself to Paris; -if the on dit we noticed last week was true, we are not in the least surprized at it.

They say that we were all wrong when we talked of Lady Jersey's blushing, some weeks ago—her Ladyship buys all her blushes in Paris, and imports them herself.

They say that Mrs. Liston is alive and merry—we might doubt the on dit, only that she says so herself, which we take to be pretty good authority in such a case.

It has been the favourite on dit of the town for three days, that Bergami is come over. Various were the speculations as to what brought him; at last it was whispered that a certain Sawney Bagstir, one of those who had waited on her Majesty in kilts, had been graced with the Royal favour, and appointed Private Secretary to her Majesty, whose Private Secretaries have been chosen, it is said, rather for their shoulders than their fingers. It was therefore conjectured that Bergaini was come over, to assert the rights of his office, it being manifestly contrary to all etiquette that such a Private Secretary should be ap-pointed in defiance of the Chamberlain. But of this on dit, we believe, that no more is truth, than that a broadshouldered Scotchman, of the name of Bagstir has been appointed her Majesty's Private Secretary.

On dit that this appointment is a sure mark of the ascendancy of Lady Jersey over the Italian influence-Bagstir being supposed to have been selected and recommended by her Ladyship

On dit that the Alderman is very jealous of the new Secretary, and that the Queen has much difficulty in keeping the peace between Bagman and Bagstir.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The new Crown which has just been completed by Messrs. Rundell and Bridge, was on Tuesday deposited in the Jewelbouse, Tower. It is about fifteen inches in elevation; the arches, instead of sinking in their centre, are raised almost to a point, embossed and edged with brilliants, and supporting an orb of brilliants also, more than six inches in circumference, surmounted with a Maltese Diamond Cross of exquisite work-manship, on whose top and sides are suspended three remarkably large pearls. In the front of the Crown is a unique sapphire of the purest and deepest azure, two inches long and an inch broad. At the back is the anchient ruby, which was worn by Edward the Black Prince and our Fifth Henry, in the victories of Poictiers and Agincourt. The sapphire and ruby are each inserted in a Maltese Cross of brilliants, while the other parts of the Crown are occupied with large Diamond Flowers. The Rim is encircled with Diamonds, Sapphires, Emeralds, and Rubies, of very considerable magnitude; and the whole is surrounded, immediately above the ermine, with large pearls. The several other articles of the King's Regalia, and of the spleadid Corouation Service, are also placed in the Jewelhouse. These have been all restored to their ancient splendour, preparatory to the Coronation. surmounted with a Maltese Diamond Cross of exquisite work-dour, preparatory to the Coronation.

We call our readers' attention to the FAMILY ENCYCLOPÆDIA, by Mr. JENNINGS, an advertisement of which appears in another part of our paper. This work will be found to possess no ordinary claim on public attention. The utility and variety of the subjects it embraces, and their connection with the intimate, important, and daily concerns of life, excite an irresistable and laudable curiosity towards them. That a considerable portion of talent has been bestowed on this very useful undertaking will be perceived by a width of it appear. undertaking, will be perceived by a perush of its pages. It is not, however, the ability which is displayed in the work, but its obvious usefulness, that will secure for it a popular adoption. There is no subject allied to the pleasures or the pains of domestic life, but has its approximate development in this Encyclopædia; and many of the articles are treated with a diffusence and originality which switch is to reason. fuseness and originality which entitle it to unqualified com-

The following reductions are to take place on the Staff of Great Britain, on the 24th of June, viz. Major-Generals Rey-nell, Sir James Lyon, and Sir A. Barnard, K.C.B. The Maidstone Retition against the Catholic Bill was unanimously voted at a numerous Meeting. Tory, Whig, Churchmen, and Dissenters, all agreeing in the dauger that would attend the passing of the measure now before Parliament.

We are happy to learn the Iron Works in Staffordshire are in full work, though they were stated, a few days since, in the House of Commons, to be entirely at a stand.—Warwickshire Adnertiser.

shire Advertiser.

ADVERTISEMENT.]—Mr. Cromwell's "Oliver Cromwell and ADVERTISEMENT.]—Mr. Cromwelt's "Officer Cromwell and His Times," we are now given to understand, is immediately forthcoming from the press. The work, we have also been favoured with opportunity to know, is calculated to support sound Monarchical principles upon the justest grounds, and is written in the genuine spirit of love to old English Institutions.

With some views of the author we might nossibly disagree: With some views of the author we might possibly disagree; but no reader, we are confident, but will feel pleasure and derive instruction upon Constitutional points, from the volume taken altogether; which will be besides recommended to the public, by its possessing an excellent portrait of Cromwell, from original painting in the author's possession, together with a fac-simile of his hand-writing upon the most momentous occasion that occurred to him during his interesting and extraordinary career.— Mr. Cromwell, we believe, is in no degree re-lated to the Protectorate family of Cromwell, but derives his descent from Thomas Cromwell, Earl of Essex, in the reign of Henry VIII. - a lineage, of which he has the rather reason to

Two bright spots were again seen on the uniltuminated part of the Moon on Friday night, the light increasing and diminishing for two hours.

Roses, from Italy, were first planted in England in the year 1522, and were consecrated as presents from the Pope, and placed over confessionals as the symbols of secrecy, 1526;

hence the phrase of "under the rose!"

The French Police at Lyons are said to have lately seized the letters of which the Queen's courier (Carlo Forte) was the bearer from Rome, and sent them to Paris. It is added, that Lord Castlereagh, on being made acquainted with the circumstance, sent instructions to the English Ambassador at Paris to make the necessary representations, in order to have the letters restored and forwarded to her Majesty.

POLICE.

Bow STREET.—On Wednesday, the office, and the streets adjoining, were crowded by hundreds of persons anxious to witness a novel spectacle. It appears that the inhabitants of St. Marrin's-lane have lately been much annoyed by an unlicensed ball-room in that street, which the proprietors have licensed ball-room in that street, which the proprietors have kept open for some time, by evading the statute, viz. not taking money for admission. On Monday cards were issued by the proprietors to the public, of which the following is a copy:—
"Invitation to the New Museodeum Concert and Assembly Rooms, 70, St. Martin's-lane." Persons were sent in, who, though not desired to pay for admission, had an excessive sum demanded for supper, and it was clear that they used that colourable plans of obtaining money, in lieu of demanding it at the door. A warrant was therefore issued, and upwards of seventy persons of both sever, in their ball-room descent warrant. seventy persons of both sexes, in their ball-room dresses, were apprehended, and conveyed to St. Martin's watch-house. Upon the officers informing the company of the nature of their visit, the musicians changed their notes, and the dancers became all at once fixed like statues. On Wednesday morning, they were brought, in all their finery, in twelve coaches, from the watchbrought, in all their finery, in twelve coaches, from the watch-house to the police office, and were examined by the Sitting Magistrate, Mr. Minshull. Amongst the group were found persons of rank and fashion, and also of the most humble class, who had hired their clothes for the night's diversion. There were two officers in the Guards, several gentlemen of the law, and one clergyman, who told the Magistrate he only went in for a bit of a lint! ladies of virtue, and ladies of no virtue at all. Before the arrival of the Magistrate, they had taken up their temporary abode at a public-house in Bow-street, and as they walked to the office, they did not at all relish the sarcastic jokes of the crowd. They were examined in groups of seven or eight at a time, and many of them declined giving their names. On the examination of several of the musicians, the names of On the examination of several of the musicians, the names of the proprietors of the rooms were disclosed. They were the proprietors of the late Waterloo Rooms; and it is the determination of the parish officers to indict them. Some of the females' dresses appeared by day-light to have lost their lustre, and their faces had evidently been absent from the toilet .-Strange to say, there were some decent matried women amongst them, who were not a little ashamed of the exposure.

OLD BAILEY.

FRIDAY .— The Sessions House was crowded to excess, in consequence of the notification, that the gentlemen concerned in the unfortunate duel, in which the late Mr. Scott fell, would surrender to take their trials. At nine o'clock, the Sheriffs entered the Court, and at ten, Lord Chief Justice Abbott and Mr. Justice Park took their seats on the Bench. Mr. Christie had pre-viously entered the body of the Court, accompanied by his friend Mr. Trail. Mr. Patmore, the friend of the deceased, did not make his appearance. None of the parties were bound over in recognis appearance. None of the parties were bound over in recognizanees. The two unfortunate gentlemen were soon after ten o'clock, put to the bar, and arraigned upon the indictment which charged them with the wilful murder of John Scott, at Chalk Farm, on the 16th of February last. The prisoners pleaded Not Guilty, and put themselves for trial, upon God and their country. They were dressed in black, and seemed deeply impressed with the unfortunate situation in which they were already

Mr. Walford opened the case against them, and after entrenting the Jury to dismiss from their minds all they had previously heard or read, respecting the melancholy event which led to the present trial, proceeded to detail the nature of the evidence he bad to adduce against the unfortunate gentlemen at the bar. It would be superfluous to repeat the details of this evidence, as it was in substance the same as that which we have already pub-was in substance the same as that which we have already published in our report of the evidence upon the Coroner's Inquest.

The first witness was Mr. T. J. Pettigrew, who stated the particulars of the duel, and the declaration of Mr. Scott, after being wounded, that all was fair and honourable; and he described the agony of Mr. Christie, who exclaimed, "Good God! why was I permitted to fire a second time: I fired first down the field."—He underwent a cross-examination by Mr. Gurney, and repeated the extreme agony and anxiety of Mr. Christie for Mr. Scott's situation.

Christie for Mr. Scott's situation.

Wm. Bevil Morris corroborated Mr. Pettigrew's statement of what had occurred on the field; he also related Mr. Scott's declaration that all was fair, the altercation between the seconds about the second fire, and Mr. Christie's declaration of his wish that he was in M. Scott's district. his wish that he was in Mr. Scott's situation. At Mr. Pettigrew's desire, he ran to have the post-chaise brought up the lane, and on his return to the farmi-heuse, he stopped and saw some persons bringing the deceased out of the field on a shutter. They carried him into the house, and he (witness) recognized the fair-haired gentleman (Mr. Christie) by Mr. Scott's side. There were about four or five others, but he did not

Hugh Watson was next examined:—He said, be was land-lord of the tavern, at Chalk Furn; he remembered two gentle-men having had a bottle of wine in his house; he described the alarm of an accident which afterwards occurred, and the bringing in the wounded gentleman, accompanied by some others. The two gentlemen at the bur were among the monber: when they came a second time, they were assisting Mr. Scott, and the tall gentleman (Mr. Christie) went away.

Jumes Hyan, was ostler at the Chalk Farm Tavern: he remembered, on the Friday evening, some gentlemen baving had memored, on the Friday evening, some gentlemen having had a bottle of wine at his master's; they stopped about twenty minutes, but he knew not who they were.—He afterwards described their departure: and soon after the alarm of an accident in the field, he went forth, and found a wounded gentleman; he assisted to get him upon a shutter, with the help of four or five gentlemen present, who came when he called them. They took the wounded gentlement to the house the them. They took the wounded gentleman into the house. He had no knowledge of the gentlemen who were present on the

Thomas Smith was next examined, and merely corroborated

the last witness's testimony.

Dr. George Darling examined. He stated that he was a physician, residing in Brunswick-square. He was called in to attend the deceased by Mrs. Scott, in the middle of the Friday night, and communicated to him that his wound was of a very dangerous character, and that it was just possible his intestines might not have been perforated, and that then the danger was diminished, and a recovery possible; he afterwards inquired respecting his wound of Mr. Guthrie, the surgeon, in witness's presence, and his question was—" Is my wound necessarily mortal?" Mr. Guthrie answered, "Not necessarily," (this occurred before the ball was extracted) "but your case is of the greatest danger. I have, however, seen recoveries from similar wounds." Mr. Scott then laid his head on the pillow, and said, "I am satisfied." Mr. Scott then communicated to witness, at his visit on the following morning—

Chief Justice Abbott and Mr. Justice Park here held a consultation upon the admissibility of the communication (whatever it was) which was made by Mr. Scott to Dr. Darling, at a subsequent conversation, after the question respecting the effect of his wound, and the Learned Judges decided, the Doctor could not give, in evidence, Mr. Scott's communication, it not appearing, as it should, by law, to make it evidence, that the unfortunate Gentleman felt himself, when he made it, in articulo mortis—for he had been told that his wound was not necessarily mortal, unless the intestines were perforated.

Mr. Walford then closed the case for the prosecution.
Mr. Gurney then left his seat at the table, and conversed for everal minutes with the prisoners.

After the Learned Counsel had left them,

The Chief Justice addressed them severally, and said, the time had now arrived when they might, if they thought proper, address the Court in their defence.

Mr. Christie, with much evident emotion, replied to this communication, that he should call witnesses to show the Court that his character was free from any imputation of inhumanity and cruelty.

Mr. Trail replied, as well as we could collect from what he said, (for he spoke in a very low tone of voice) that he should

A number of witnesses then gave the prisoners a very high character for humanity and mildness of disposition. Amongst them were several clergymen, several barristers, the Principal of Baliol College, Oxford, a number of students, and Mr. Balfour the Mambar for Oxfords of the Mambar for Oxfords. four, the Member for Orkney; all of them spoke to a long and intimate knowledge of the prisoners.

Chief Justice Abbott (after consulting with Mr. Justice Park) charged the Jury; and after laying down the law of the case charged the Jury; and after laying down the law of the ease as applied to the present charge, enumerated the details of the evidence, and left it to the Jury to say whether there was sufficient proof to identify the prisoners at the bar with the occurrence which led to the mortal wound of the deceased. The Court also remarked, that the Jury had no proof how the futal occurrence originated. If, however, they considered they had proof of their being two of the parties to the fatal act, the Jury had then to consider what sort of deliberation preceded the act, and how far it justified the full charge of prepuration for conand how far it justified the full charge of preparation for comand now har it justines are not charge of preparation for committing it, which was indispensible in a case of Wilful Marder. If the Jury thought there was that precipitancy in the occurrence which, making allowance for human frailty, took away the capital part of the charge, then it remained for them to say whether the minor parts of the charge were maintained, so as to constitute the crime of Manslaughter,

The Jury consulted about half an hour, and returned a verilict of Not Guilty.

We sincerely rejoice in the verdict of the Jury. After the numerous and highly respectable testimonials to Mr. Christie's character, nothing we can say will be of any avail; but through the whole affair his conduct has been so generous and so gentlemanly, that it is with great pleasure we give to the world an account of his acquittal for a crime, of which, in no sense of the word, he was guilty. The absence of Mr. Patmore, on this occasion, by no means adds to the respectability of the business, as far as concerns the other parties.

PROVINCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

ASHTON-UNDER-LINE. - Our parish church suffered severely from a fire which broke out on Sunday last. The organ fell a sacrifice to the devouring element, and the damage altogether sustained was very considerable. The flames, it is said, were sastnined was very considerable. The flames, it is said, were communicated from one of the stoves belonging to the church. Cambaider, April 13.—University Intelligence.—The following is a list of Inceptors to the degree of Master of Arts, on Friday last:—Samuel Hawkes, William Twigg, and John Fell, of Trinity College; John Stevens Henslow, John Hawksley Beech, Joseph Hindle, and William Peach, of St. John's College; Charles Beales, of St. Peter's College; George Attwood, of Pembroke Hall; Richard Godson, of Caius College; Richard Harvey, of Catherine Hall; Edward Serocold Pearce, John Warren, and Thomas Stafford, of Jesus College; John Hallewell, of Christ College; John Hind, of Sidney College.

On the same day, Henry Davis, of Trinity Hall, was admitted Bachelor in Civil Law.

Mr. Francis Martin, of Trinity College, and Mr. Edward Baines, of Christ College, were on Friday last elected Scholars on Dr. Bell's foundation.—Arthur Browne, Alexander Malcolm Wale, and Henry Law, Esqrs. Bachelors of Arts, of St. John's College, were on Monday last elected Foundation Fellews of that society.

The Rev. Thomas Peace of R. D. Halley and Activity of the St. John's College, were on Revenue Revenue College.

that society.

The Rev. Thomas Barber, B. D. Fellow of St. John's Col-The Rev. Thomas Barber, B. D. Fellow of St. John's College, has been presented, by the Master and Fellows of that Society, to the Rectory of Houghton Conquest cum Houghton Gildaple annexed, vacated by the death of the Very Reverend Wim. Pearce, D. D. Dean of Ely, and Mister of Jesus College. Oxford, April 7.— On Monday the 26th ult. H. Tennant, Esq. barrister at law, and Fellow of New College, was admitted Bachelor in Civil Law.

On Tuesday last, in a Convocation, the Rev. John Keble, M. A. Fellow of Oriel College, and the Rev. James Jackson Lowe, M. A. Fellow of Brazen-Nose College, were approved as Public Examiners.

as Public Examiners.

The same day, in a Congregation, the following D

Masters of Arts.—Rev. Geo. Chacroft, Fellow of Lincoln College; John Clark Jenkins, Lord Crew's Exhibitioner, Lincoln; John James Strutt, Oriel; Francis Salt, Christ Church; Canada Ballial, Ban Blis Bahan, Saltan, Canada George Burmester, Balliol; Rev. Ellis Roberts, Scholar of Jesus; and Rev. Thomas Wynne, some time Fellow of St. John's Colleges. Bachelors of Arts.—Edw. Morgan, St. Alban Hall; Richard Anderdon, Queen's; Herbert Beaver, Scholar on Mr. Michell's, or New Foundation, Queen's; Henry Labouchere, Christ Church Colleges.

On Thursday last, Wm. Rast, Eco. B. A. of Praces New York 1981.

On Thursday last, Wm. Best, Esq. B. A. of Brazen-Nose College, was admitted Master of Arts.

Preferments.—The Rev. Edw. Howells, of Christ Church, in this University, to the valuable Vicarage of Preston-cum-Blakemere, Herefordshire.—The Rev. Thomas Furness, B. A. of Hateliffe, to the Rectory of Oxcomb, Lincolnshire.

HULL.—During the very heavy gale of Tuesday se'unight, the Favourite, steam-packet, with passengers, for Selby, had her chimney blown overboard near Hessle, and was obliged to land her passengers at the Hessle chalk pits, and make the best of her way back to Hull.

	SHIP N	EWS.
Arrived Mails	Due	Arrived	Mails	Due
1Dublin			Lisbon	1
1Waterford			.Malta
—Guernsey	& Jersey		Prance
1Holland			.Hamburgi	h I
Gottenbur	gh 1	—	.Flanders .

PLYMOUTH, April 12.—Wind W.—Arrived the Stockton, Langley, from London for St. John's, Newfeundland; Kate, Smith, from do. for Naples; Rock, Whiterong, from do. for Antipas; Givoutta, Stoddart, from do. for Quebec; and the Franklin, Stohwan, from Amsterdam for Batavia. An outward-bound East Indiaman has just brought up in the Batavia. An outward-bound East Indiaman has just brought up in the Sound.

DOVER, April 13.—Passed this port, the Royal George, Buckle, from the South Seas for London.

DEAL, April 13.—Wind W.—Arrived, and sailed for the River, the Raikes, Oaidner, from Jamaica; Perseverance, Licke, from the South Seas; George Home, Telfar, from Madras and Bengal; Wilberforce, Tucker, from Messina; and the Nancy of Glasgow from ——Arrived and remain, the Ann, Waller, from Newcasile for Leghorn; and Benson, Smith, from do. for Quebec; the Cervantes, White, from Antwerp for Baltimore, was spoke with off Dover. Came down from the River and remain, the Tropic, Bradford, for Barhadoes.

FALMOUTH, April 11.—Wind S.W.—Arrived a frigate, supposed the Forte, from the Eastward; Thetis, Reisbach, from Hull for Rio Janeiro; Elizabeth, Swinburn, from Newcastle for Buenos Ayres; and the following from London:—William Bryant, Urquhart, for Jamaica; Tobago, Westmortland, for Demerara; Warre, Flint, for Honduras; Plichard, Woelcock, for Africa; Lord Cathcart, Banks, for Quebec; Sceptre, Pearson, for Prince Edward's Island; Vittoria, Southern, for Genoa; and Rochester, Spittal, for Oporto.

KIRKWALL, April 2.—The Familia Lucken, Dahm, from Christiansand for Cadiz, has got on shore on the Island of Stronsay—crew aaved, and cargo expected to be saved; but the vessel will become a wreek.

Just published, price 6s. 6d.

THE PAMPHLETEER, No. XXXV. or Record of the best Pamphlets of the day, on both sides of every Question.

CONTENTS:

I. The Declaration of England against the Acts of the Holy Alliance; with Official Documents, &c. &c.

II. Redections on the Conduct of the Allies.

III. Plan for a Reformation in Provincial Banking, by which the Notes of Country Bankers may be rendered as secure as those of the Bank of England,

IV. On Criminal Jurisprudence, with the Draft of a new Ponal Code.

By J. T. B. Beaumont, F.A.S.

V. On the Dissolution of the Chamber of Deputies. By M. B. Constant. Translated exclusively for the Pamphleteer.

VI. Historical Portraits: Octavius Crear and William Pitt, reprinted; Ricuxi and Buonaparte, never before published. By G. W. Meadly, VII. On the Criminal Prisons of this Country. By G. W. Helford, Esq.

M.P. Second Edition, with Corrections.

V.H. The Exclusion of the Queen from the Liturgy, historically and legally considered. By a Barrister. The Fourth Edition, enlarged by the Author.

IX. On the Postical Character of Pane: elucidating the "Invariable and the Country of Panes elucidating the "Invariable and Panes elucidating the "Invariable and Panes elucidating the "Invariable and Panes elucidating the "Invariable of Panes elucidating the "Invariable and Panes elucidating the "Invariable and Panes elucidating the "Invariable of Panes elucidating the Author.

IX. On the Poetical Character of Pope; elucidating the "Invariable Principles of Poety." &c. in reply to O. Gilchrist. By the Rev. W. L. Bowles. Original. Concluded from the last Number.

X. Phocion in Reply to Cato, in Defence of the People of England, and in Vindication of the Press. By a Barrister.

XI. On the Timber and Deal Trade, as regards Europe and the British American Colonica: resting on plain facts. Original.

Printed by A. J. Valpy; sold by Shewood and Co.; Black, Kingsbury, and Co. London; and all other Booksellers; where it may be had regularly, by giving a general order.

Eash Number on the average, will contain ten or twelve Pamphlets, thus reducing the price of each Pamphlet to about sixpence. The peculiar advantage of this Plan is, that it forms an imperishable record of the most valuable Pamphlets, and will also offer, through the means of Clubs and Institutions, a very extensive circulation.

Complete Sets may be had bound, or in Numbers 6s. 6d. each. Four Numbers are published annually.

In No. XXX: is published a complete and classed Index of all Pamphlets contained in the first 30 Numbers, which will give a correct idea of the nature and value of the Work.

13 This Work is particularly sulapted for Clubs and Institutions.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES have been highly approved, and con-

CAMPHOR LOZENGES, for LOWNESS of SPIRITS, &c. CAMPHOR LOZENGES, for LOWNESS of SPIRITS, &c.

THESE LOZENGES have been highly approved, and confidently recommended for some years past, in lowness of spirits and increased irritability of the nervous system, in the sick or nervous head-ache, inflammatory and putrid sore throats, thirst and drynass of the tongue and palate, and in all cases where the Camphor Julep is advised, these Camphorated Lozenges may be taken with superior advantage; they are also a powerful Antisceptic, and are therefore an admirable preventive against infection, and the effects of damp weather.

weather.

Prepared and sold by J. Shepherd, at his Warchouse for the true Prepared and Lozenges, No. 176, Fleet-street, London, in bottles, at 2s. 6d. 4s. 6d. and 10s. each.

22. 6d. 4s. 6d. and 108. each.

PATENT ECONOMICAL and UNIVERSAL LAMP. This Invention embraces every requisite to render it a domestic comfort in the more general use of Lampa instead of Candies, giving to the Public the choice of an improved light, in which there is perfect safety, at half the expense of Candies. The Chamber or Night Light being universally interesting to all families, and particularly to many professions, may be best appreciated by a fair comparison with others, which are most resorted to, viz. The Rush Light, an old servant, but it must be allowed a drowsy one, and totally unfit for motion The wax-wick, stuck upon cork, floating in oil upon water, of more modern date, but must be stationary, subject to the cork catching fire, breaking the glass it floats in, causing a suffocating smell, consuming much oil; and a constant expense but for oil, and that only at the rate of a haifeenny for eight or sine hours, giving a brilliant light, always ready at the moment it is wanted, bearing any motion, and can be regulated to burn the longest or shortest night, disappearing in the morning without smoke or smoil. The price los. in japan stands, and 20s. in fancy bronze and Imperial metal. The same principle applies, with fancy bronze and Imperial metal. The same principle applies, with fancy bronze and Imperial metal. The same principle applies, with face bronze and annulsome scale, suited to the affect, which elegant pedestals, 55s. to 46s.; and for the study, to write or read by, (sinambra) they are every thingethat can be wished, at 35s. to 46s and upon a smaller scale, 25s. to 30s. these are universally approved and patronised by Clerical and other Professional Gentlemen in every part of the kingdom, and for all minor uses they are equally desirable. The Greeton Glass Hanging Lamps for the Staircase, Passage, Conservatory, Hall, &c. are perfectly new in taste, and elegantly simple, from 30s. to 76s, the latter upon a larger scale. In all these Lamps the same perfection exists.—lurning the whole eveni PATENT ECONOMICAL and UNIVERSAL LAMP. This west indies, South America, &c. will find these Lamps a valuable acomisition, being calculated to hurn Nut Oil as well as Spermacett.

OFFEE and CHOCOLATE, made in ONE MINUTE, by O. DUNN'S ESSENCE of COFFEE and COCOA-NUT; sold by F. Graham, corner of the Belle Sauvage Inn, Ludgate-hill, in half pint bottles, from 3s 6d, to 5s. each, and the Chocolate in pots at 2s. 6d. Directions for use:—Put a teaspoonful of either of these Essences into a cup, with the usual proportion of milk and sugar, and fill it with boiling water, and you have instantaneously a cup of Coffee or Chocolate of exquisite flavour. From the case and expedition attending this invention, it becomes a valuable acquisition to the Public, and more especially to Officers in the Army and Navy, to Captains of Vessels, Travellers, Innkeepers, Pablic Assemblies, and particularly to Ladies or Gentlemen not keeping an establishment. Also, D. Dunn's Essence of Ginger, Mace, Cloves, Cinnamon, Nutmege, Allspice, Pepper, Cayenno, Corlander and Carraway Seeds, in glass bottles, is. 6d. each. These preparations will save much trouble in cooking, confectionery, &c. and in cases of illness are truly valuable, as a few drops poured into any liquid will instantly give its peculiar flavour. Of F. Graham may also be had the fine flavoured pulverized genuine Janualca Ginger, prepared from the internal part of the roce, of superior quality, in quarrier pound the cases, 1s. 2d. each. Real Pontefract Liquorice Cakes. Original and sole manufacturer of the much-esteemed ginger flavoured Barley-sugar.—N.B. The trade supplied.

EXTRAORDINARY RED BOOK.

EXTRAORDINARY RED BOOK.

Just published, a New Edition, corrected and enlarged, to the end of the First Year of the Reign of His present Majesty,

THE EXTRAORDINARY RED-BOOK, containing an Account of all Places, Pensions, Sinecures, Grants, &c. the Expenditure of the Civil List, the Finances and Debt of Great Britain, with a variety of Official Documents never before published; among which are Admiralty Droits, Land and other Crown Revenues to February, 1821.

A correct List of the New Parliament, &c. &c.

By A COMMONER.

London: Printed for J. Johnsten, 98, Cheapside, and W. Clarke, 92, Royal Exchange.

London: Printed for J. Johnsten, 93, Cheapside, and W. Clarke, 92, Royal Exchange.

THE EXTRAORDINARY RED BOOK is a Work interesting to all: these are the evils of the system, and there are the advantages of it; there you will see how, through what channels, by what means, and for whom the system "works well." Look attentively at what is there placed before you. Bebold the reasons, the solid reasons, why the enemies of Constitutional and Radical Reform are its bitterest fees. Read the facts, and recollect the men whom you will find maned. Observe how they act. Remember what you find recorded of them, and that, too, chiefly from PARLIAMENTARY DOCUMENTS; and you will then cease to doubt—oven if you had before hesitated out the subject—why Reform is resisted by all parties, Whigs and Tories, Ins and Outs, or by whatever name the various Pactions may be called.

BILIOUS PILLS.

BILIOUS PILLS.

PREPARED by F. NEWBERY and SONS, and sold by them at the original Warelieuse for Dr. James's Powder, No. 45, St. Faul's, four doors from Cheapside, London, in boxes, price 2s. 9d.

St. Faul's, four doors from Cheapside, Lendon, in Doxes, price 2s. oc. each.

These pills are a modern invention, formed upon the improved state of medical science, by an eminent physician, who has used them in his practice with the greatest success in the cure of billious disorders. They operate principally as a purgative and deobstruent; promoting the proper action of the liver in the secretion of bile, sorrecting it when in a vitiated state, and removing all obnoxious matter with which the stomach and bowels are oppressed. Thus they prove an excellent remedy for indigestion, sick head aches, loss of appetite, costiveness, and fistalencies, arising from acrimonieus humours, or from bilious, gouty, or nervous affections.

Sold also by J. Sanger, 150, Oxford-street; and by all respectable Venders in town and country.

[137 Observe Mr. Newbery's name eagraved in the stamps.

URLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brussels fabrio), 147, Strand, near Somerset House, removed from 392, Strand,—

O. F. URLING and CO. beg to inform the Pashionable World, that they have prepared for the Season a various and extensive Assortment of their PATENT LACE DRESSES, from four Guineas to one hundred Guineas each; some of which, from recent improvements, they humbly presume to compare with the most perfect foreign productions. Also a great variety of Veils, Searfs, Squares, Laces, Nots, &c. of every description. This peculiarly clear and transparent Article having, in the higher circles, superseded the use of common Lace, which becomes rough and full of fibre on the first washing, the Patentees respectfully apprise the Public, that the Intier is frequently starched to conceal its defects, and make it resemble Urling's Lace, which, therefore, can only be relied upon as genuine at their Wholesale and Retail Establishment in Londou, or of the Country Dealers supplied by them. Every Article is distinguished by a Scai, with the Patentee's Initials, "G. F. U. and Co." and the words, "by the (late) Queen's autherity." Specimens, showing the superiority of Urling's Lace over common Lace, may be seen in Ackermanu's Repository, La Belle Assemblee, and other fashismable works, and may be had gratis, by application, post-paid, to G. F. Urling and Co.

Country Dealers supplied upon the most liberal terms.—Manufactory, Basford, Nettinghamshire.

Basferd, Nettinghamshire.

BURGESS's NEW SAUCE for general purposes, having given such great approbation, and the demand for it continuing to increase, John BURGESS and SON beg most respectfully to offer this tkeir best acknowledgments to the Public for their liberal patronage of the same: its utility and great convenience in all climates, has recommended it to the most distinguished foreign connexions, who have all spoken highly in its recommendation.—It is prepared by them ONLY; and for preventing disappointments to families, all possible care has been resorted to, by each bottle being scaled upon the cork with their firm and address, as well as each label having their signature, without which it cannot be genuine.

JOHN BURGESS and SON'S long established and much-esteemed ESSENCE of ANCHOVIES, continues to be prepared by them after the same manner that has given the greatest satisfaction for many years.—Warehouse, 107, Strand, corner of the Savoy-steps, Londes.—The original Fish-Sauce Warehouse.

A ROWLAND and SON respectfully caution the Public against spurious Articles. Under their Names Impostors have signed their Imitations, A. Rewlandson, which deception renders it necessary to observe the true signature, A. ROWLAND and SON, in Red Ink, which is wrote on each Bottle of their Genuine Articles, as followers.

Red Ink, which is wrote on each Bottle of their Genuine Articles, as follows:

ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL, the Original and Genuine, which for many years has been universally admired, and is acknowledged to be the best and cheapest article for nearishing the Hair, premoting a luxuriant growth, and rendering it elegant and beautiful. Its auperior and tried virtues have gained it the patronage of Royalty and many Noble Personages, and is attested by an immense multitude of witnesses. Price 3s. 6d.; 7s.; 10s. 6d.; and One Guinea per Bottle.

Also, ROWLAND'S ESSENCE OF TYRE.

By merely wetting the Hair with this Preparation, the Proprieters warrant to produce immediately a perfect change in RED or GREY HAIR, WHISKERS, EYE-BROWS, &c. to a beautiful glossy and permanent Brown or Black, imitating the exact natural colour. Washing makes this Dye the more durable. Ladies or deatlemen may dye their Hair with ease and secresy. Price 4s.; 7s. 6d.; and 10s. 6d.

Sold, Wholeslae, Retail, and for Exportation, by the Sole Proprietors, A. ROWLAND and SON, corner of Kirby-street, the first turning on the right in Hatton-garden, Holborn, London; and by appointment, by all Perfumers and Medicine Venders throughout Europe.

**o* Ask for Rowland's Oil, or Rowland's Dye, and observe the Signature on the label to sach bottle, "A ROWLAND and SON."

SELECT ARTICLES for the TOILET.

A TKINSON'S CURLING FLUID, long known to the Nobility and Gentry as an elegant substitute for Oils, Pematums, and Extracts. It should never be omitted after curling the hair, as it counteracts the dryness which hot irous produce, makes the hair soft and glessy as the finest silk, and keeps the curl firm during exercise in dancing or walking, or in damp weather. It also removes daddrife, prevents the hair falling off or changing colour, and is so efficacious for restoring its growth, that it is usually prescribed by Physicians, when other means have proved ineffectual. Price 3s. 6d. 10s. 6d. and one Guisea.

other means have proven inelections. ATKINSON'S VEGETABLE DYE, changes gray or red hair on the head or whiskers to a brown or klack, which washing, &c. instead of removing, renders more permanent, price 5s. 10s 6d. and 21s.

ATKINSON'S AMBROSIAL SOAP, made by a new process, which divests it of all alkaline impurities; it makes the hands soft and white, and prevents them chapping is cold weather, price 1s. a square. Sold by Jas. Atkinson, perfumer, 44, Gerard-street, Soho-square; Gattie and Pierce, 57, Bond-street; Davison, Fleet-street, Rigge, 65, Chapside, and mest Perfumers.

CAUTION.—As there are several imitations, the genuine has the following signature, "James Atkinson, 44, Gerard-street, London."

THE First Production in the World for the TOOTH ACHE, and preserving and beautifying the TEETH and GUMS.—Patronized by her Royal Highness the late DUCHESS of YORK, his Excellency the RUKB of SAN CARLOS, the Spanisk Ambassador, and most of the Noblity.—ROWLAND'S ALSANA EXTRACT, or ABYSSINIAN SPECIFIC for the Teeth and Gums.—This invaluable Specific has been in high estimation for many years, and recommended by the first Physiciana.—Its properties are truly wonderful; it imme diately relieves the mest violent TOOTH-ACHE, cleanses and beautifies the Teeth and Gums, and preserves them from accay; prevents Decayed Teeth giving pain, removes the Tartar from the Teeth, fastens those that are loose, and makes the Teeth beautifully white and uniform; cleanses the Scurvy from the Gums, renders them firm and healthy, refreshes the mouth during Disease after Medicine, and imparts a sweciness to the breath. It is perfectly innocent, SO THAT A CHILD MAY TAKE IT, yet contains those inestimable properties, that if constantly used, will render the Teeth and Gums sound, beautiful, and FREE FROM PAIN to the LATEST PERIOD of LIFE. It is an excellent stomachic.—Price 2s. 94 4s. 6d. and 10s. 6d. per bottle.

Sold, wholesale, retail, and for exportation, by the sele Proprieters, A. ROWLAND and SON, Carner of Kirby-airest, Hatton garden, London; and most Perfumers and Medicine Venders.—Nens are genuine without the signature

"A. ROWLAND and SON, Carner of Kirby-airest, Hatton garden, THE First Production in the World for the TOOTH ACHE, MONTAGUE-STREET, near PORTMAN-SQUARE.

Two Hundred Lots of Genuine HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, of Capt.
Prendigress, gaing to India. Three beautiful Chints Drawing-room Curtains, with 14 Rosewood Chairs, and two Grecian Couches, with Cabinets, Cards, Sefa, Loe and Work Tables, inlaid capital carved Pedestal Sideboard, with Patent Dining Tables to go under, two large Chimney and Pier Glasses, Cut Glass, &c. &c.

TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION,
BY MESSRS. WILSON and CO.
On the Premises, No. 22, Montague-street, TO-MORRGW and following Day, at Twelve, COMPRISING four very handsome Mahogany Bedsteads and Haugings, with white Goose and Down Beds and Bedding to each, Parlour Curtains for two Windows, with Mahogany Couches and Chairs, covered with rod Morocco and Satin Hair Cloth, a very superb Set of Rosewood, Card, Safa, and Loo Tables, elegantly inlaid and finished, Sofa Bedsteads and Acconchement Chairs fitted up with Cushious, three large Chimney Glasses with corresponding Mirrors, and Pier ditto, Mahogany Wardrobes, and Chairs of double and single Drawers, a Patent Dressing Case fitted up with Apparatus, reading and work Tables, Harp Stand and Chair, Sandwich Tables, Book Cheffonierz, Prints, Blue and White Dinner Service, double-barrel Gun, and a Case of Pistols, Cheval and Box Glasses, handsome Cut Glass in Decanters, Goblets, Wines, Trife Dishes, Ice Palls, &c. the whole of the Kitchen Furniture, &c.

May be viewed, when Catalegues may be had; and at the Auctionsers' Office, Holborn.

LONDON MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, FRIDAY, APRIL 13.

Though the arrival of Wheat since Monday has been very moderate, the trade is dull, and that day's prices scarcely sup-ported.—Barley also meets a heavy sale, on rather lower terms, except for the finest parcels.—The Oat trade is particularly dull, and full 1s. per quarter lower, the arrival this week being large.—In Beans and Pease there is no alteration

RETURN PRICE of GRA	IN, on board Ship, as under.
Rasex Red Wheat (new)34s. 46s.	Maple
Fine 52s. 55s.	White ditto
Old	Boilers
Essex White (new)40s. 50s.	Small Bearsa. 30s. 33s.
Fine	Old40s. 41s. to -s.
Superfine	Tick Beans (new)s. 24s. 29s.
Rye
Old	Feed Oatse. 15s. 17s.
Barley	Fine
Fine	Poland ditto
Superfine	Fines. 20s. 22s.
Malt	Potatoe ditto
Fine	Fine
Hog Pease

PRICE of FLOUR.

AVERAGE PRICES of GRAIN per Quarter, for the Week ending
MARCH 31.

NALE | Real | Oats. | Beans. | Peage. | Oats.

Mar. Dist	8. d. 54 83	36 I	a. d 24 14 94 71	a. d. 15 34	8. d. 31 8 32 10}	32 103	s. d. 19 3
Eug. & Wal.	$MI	CHFIEL	DFA		APRIL 1		19 9

Mutton 45. Od. to 58. Od.   POIR	ю.
Head of Cattle this day.  Beasts	1.00
Sheep	.100
PRICES of HAY and STRAW THURSDAY, APRIL 13.

- 0				w	prest l	witt.
1	May31	10s.	od.	to	41	10s.	ed Average, 41.	Os.	od.
3	Inferior	155.	011.	10	31.	35 ,	UQ Avelage, 31.	Um.	va.
ı	Mtraw	88.	ed.	to	ıl.	128.	Od Average, 11.	10∉.	od.
ı	Clover (heat)41.	58.	Od.	to	۵l.	. Os.	od Average, 41.	12s.	6đ.
į	Inferior31.	10s.	04.	to	4l	Us.	od Average, 31.	154.	od.

PRICE of HOPS, per Cwt.—SATURDAY, APRIL 7.

Bags.

Kent., 21, 10s. to 31, 10s. a 41, 4s.

Sunsex 21, 9s. to 31, 0s. a 21, 16s.

Sunsex 21, 5s. to 31, 0s. a 31, 10s.

Farsham, fine... 41, 10s. to 61, 10s.

Farsham, eccond 21, 16s. to 51. 0s.

PRICES of the PUBLIC FUNDS.
STOCKS.   Mon.   Tues.   Wed.   Thur.   Frid.	Sat.
Rank Stock 222 222 223 2234 2224 2	55
3 per Cent. Reduced 714 718 718 718 718 71	1 7 7 2
3 per Cent. Consols	ž 73
31 per Cent. Consols 801 801 801 801
Consols for Account 721 721 721 721 721 721 721 721
a per Cent. Comoda	88
5 per Cent. Navy 1063   1074   1074   1074   1074   1074	71 11
Bank Long Annuities 188 - 188 188	4 3 4
India Bonds 49 p   47 p     47 p   48 p	45 46
	ar 4 6
Ditto, 21d	_
Omnium   -   -   -

MARRIAGES.

Yesterday, at St. Paul's, Covent-garden, Samuel Platt, Esq. of Brunswick-square, to Elizabeth, daughter of C. G. Cooke, Esq. of Southampton-atreet, and of Upper Pool House, near Hereford.

At St. George the Martyr's, Quea-square, J. A. Simpson, Esq. of Johastreet, Bedford-row, to Ann Susan, second daughter of G. B. Roupell, Esq. of Great Ormond-street.

At Clewer, April 5. James Brooks, Esq. late Captain in the 29th Regiment, to Catherine, eldest daughter of Lieut-Colonel Basset, of Windsor.

Megiment, to Catterine, Midden Windsor.

At Lewes, on the 7th inst. William Hayes, barrister-at law, to Mary, the eldest daughter of C. Kell, Esq.

On Saturday last, at St. Andrew's Church, Henry Wild, Esq. to Maria, third daughter of W. J. Reeves, Esq.

On the 19th inst. at Mary-le-Bone, the eldest son of Henry Singleton, Esq. of the County of Cavan, to Maria, only daughter of the late Colonel Wade, of the Bengal Establishment.

wade, of the Bengal Establishment.

DIED.

On Monday morning last, the 9th instant, at his Chambers, Alexander Johnson, Esq. one of the Benchers of the Hon. Society of the Middle Temple, aged 69.

On the 4th uit, at Barbadoes, whither he had gone for the recovery of his health, James Bowden, Esq. of Bedford-square.

At Sidmenth, on the 2d inst. the Rev. Wm. Jonkins, aged 72.

At China, early in November, the Hon. Valentine Gardner, Captain of his Majesty's ship Dauntless.

At Branham Park, Yorkshire, James Lane Fox, Esq in the 65th year of his age, nephew to George Fox Lane, Lord Bingley.

On Monday, Lady Elizabeth Gore Townsend, the Lady of Gore Townsend, Esq. Hesington Hall, Warwickshire, and sister to the Earl of Plymenth.

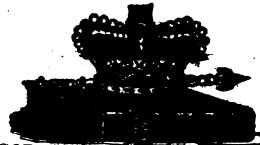

Plymouth.
Wednesday morning, at his house in St. James's-place, Robt. Calvert, Eq. in the 55th year of his age.
On the 10th ult. after a short illness, at Rome, in the 30th year of his age, Wm. Peudrell Waddington, Eq. eldest son of the late W. Waddington, Eq. of Brompton, Middlesex.
On the 7th inst. in his 66th year, after a lingering illness, John Heaps, Eq. of Kew Greeh.
On Monday morning, at her seat at Westbury, in Haats, the Dowager Lady Gage.

Lady Gage.
At Haslebury-Bryant, Dorset, the Rev. Francis Reed, Rector of that

LONDON: Printed and Published by R. T. WEAVER, at No. 11, JOHNSON'S COURT, FLEET-STREET, where only Communications to the Editor, (post paid) are

OHN

" FOR GOD, THE KING, AND THE PEOPLE!"

No. 19.

SUNDAY, APRIL 22, 1821.

Price 7d.

MR. HAZLITTS NEW WORK.

MR. HAZLITTS NEW WORK.

Just published, in 8vo. price 14s. in boards,

TABLE TALK; or, Original Essays. By WILLIAM

HAZLITT.

CONTENTS:—On the Pleasure of Painting—On the Past and Future—On Genlus and Common Sense—Character of Cobbett—On People with one idea—On the Ignorance of the Learned—The Indian

Jugglers—On Living to one's self.—Ou Thought and Action—On Will making—On certain Inconsistencies in Sir Joshua Reynolds's Diacourses

—On Paradox and Common-place—On Vulgarity and Affectation.

Printed for John Warren, Old Bond-street.

NEW NOVEL.

Just published, in 3 volumes, 12mo. price 21s.

CONCEALMENT.

NEW NOVEL.

Just published, in 3 volumes, 12mo. price 21s.

CONCEALMENT.

Printed for John Warren, Old Bond-street

BURMHAN EMPIRE.

Just published, in 8 vo. with coloured Plates, 16s. boards,

JOURNAL of a RESIDENCE in the BURMHAN EMPIRE,

and more particularly at the Court of Amarapoorah.—By Capitain

HIRAM COX, of the Honourable East India Company's Bengal Native

Infantry.

London; Printed for John Warren, Old Bond-street, and G. and

W. B. Whittaker, Are Maria-lane.

NEW TRANSLATION OF JERUSALEM DELIVERED.

Just published, 8vo. 5s. 6d.

JERUSALEM DELIVERED. Book the Fourth. From the Italian of TASSO. Being the Specimen of an intended new Translation in English Spencerian Verse. Dedicated, by permission, to her Grass, the Duchess of Bedford.—By J. H. WIFFEN.

Also by the same Author.

2. JULIA ALPINULA, with the CAPTIVE of STAMBOUL, and wher Focus, 12mo., 7s. 6d.

Printed for John Warren, Old Hond-street.

Just published, in 8vo. 5s. 6d.

PARIS in 1815. Second Part, with other Poems.—By the Rev. G. CROLY, A.M.

Also by the same Author, 2. The ANGEL of the WORLD, an Arabian Tale; SEBASTIAN, a Spanish Tale, with other Poems, 8vo.

8s. 6d.

3. PARIS in 1815, a Poem, Second Edition, 8vo. 5s. 6d.

3. PARIS in 1815, a Poem, Second Edition, 8vo. 5s. 6d.

3. PARIS in 1815, a Poem, Second Edition, 8vo. 5s. 6d.

Arabian Tale; SEBASTIAN, a openion cair, with study a volume, 83. 6d.

3. PARIS in 1815, a Poem, Second Edition, 8vo. 5s. 6d.

4. LINES on the DEATH of the PRINCESS CHARLOTTE, 8vo. 3s. 6d.—Printed for John Warren, Old Bend-street.

Just published, in Three Volumes, price 21s. boards,

BUNBURGH; a SATIRICAL NOVRL. By the Author of "Lomdon; or, a Month at Stevens's."

"Ishall shew the Vices of Edinburgh, not as a parallel, but as a contrast to-those of London; nor shall I omit a Portrait, or a Character, because the Original was my friend or acquaintance."—Introduction.

London: printed for Sherwood, Neely, and Jones, Paternoster-row.

Just published, price 3s. 6d. by C. Chapple, Royal Library, Pall-Mall, Bookseller to His Majesty, and their Royal Highnesses the Dukes of York and Cambridge, HIGH BIRTH; a SATIRICAL POEM, addressed to a Young Nobleman in imitation of the 8th Satista of Library.

Young Nobleman, in imitation of the 3th Satire of Juvenal; by a Member of the University of Oxford: in which are introduced, several well-known characters in fashionablelife: amongstothers—The Q-The D. of B-The W-The Bl. of S-The Bl.

well-known characters in instituonableiffe; amongstothers—The Q—
The D. of B——, The M——, The El. of S——, The El.
of Y——, Visc. P——, Col. B——

Just published, beautifully printed, in foolscap 8vo. price 6s. boards,

MRSSALINA.—London: Printed for W. Wright, 46, Fleetstreet where also may be had new Editions of 2. TENTAMEN: also, 3. The NEW WHIG GUIDE.

3. The NEW WHIG GUIDE.

The following will appear in a few days,

A PROSE Translation of the GREEK CLASSICS, commencing with The MEDEA of EURIPIDES, Herally translated into English Prose from the Text of Porson, accompanied with the Greek Order, English Accentuation, and Betres. To which are subjoined numerous Explanatory Notes for the use of Students.

By T. W. C. EDWARDS, M.A.

2. INEDITED CORRESPONDENCE of VOLTAIRE. Mine, Denys and of Colini; with M. Dupont, Advocate to the Sovereign Council of Colmar; preceded by a Philosophical and Literary Critique on Voltaire. To which are subjoined, an Inedited Letter to the King of Pruseal; and Fragments of Communications to Grimm, Diderot, Helvetins, Thirtot, Damilaville, the Marquis de Fraigne, and others. London: Printed for Matthew Hey, and sold by all Booksellers.

Published by James Carpenter, Old Bond-street.

Helvetins, Thirlot, Damilaville, the Marquis de Fraigae, and others.

London: Printed for Matthew Iley, and sold by all Booksellers.

Published by James Carpenter, Old Bond-street.

THE FINE ARTS.

A BIOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY of PAINTERS and ENGRAVERS, from the revival of Painting and the alleged discovery of Bugraving by Finiguerru.—By MICHABL BRYAN.

In this work is given two Indexes, alphabetical and chronological; and the Introduction comprises a brief Account of the Painters of Antiquity. It also contains five Plates, exhibiting the particular Marks and Monograms used by the different Engravers: together with a List of their Works, in two thick volumes, in 4to. price 5l. 5s. in boards; and on superfine royal paper 9l.

2. A new and compendious TREATISE of ANATOMY, and PROPORTIONS of the HUMAN BODY, adapted to the Arts of DESIGN-ING, PAINTING, and SCULPTURE, filustrated by Copper-plates. By W. F. WELLIS. Price 5s.

3. The MEMOIRS of COUNT GRAMMONT, illustrated with 64 Portraits, beautifully engraved by SCRIVEN, from original Pictures, in 2 vols. 8vo. price 3l. 13s. 6d. and in 4to. with proof impressions of the Phickes, 6t. 6t. Ditto in French, 2 vols. 8vo. price 3l. 13s. 6d. and in 4to. with proof impressions of the Phicks. 6t. 6t. Ditto in French, 2 vols. 8vo. price 3l. 13s. 6d. and the line manner, by Mr. JOHN BURNET, Price 1l. 1s. proof, 1l. 1s. 6d.

5. A PORTRAIT of THOMAS LORD CLIFFORD, Lord High Treasurer to Charles II. Engraved by Mr. SCRIVEN, from a Ministure by SAM. COOPER. Price 10s. 6d. proof, 15s.

Shortly will be published,

Shortly will be published,

THE PRIVATEER; a TALB, in Two Vols. Foolscap 8vo.

It is proper to state, that the above Tale was written, christened, and sent to the press, six weeks before the announcemen of the new Romance entitled the Buccaneers; by that powerful writer, the Author of Waverly, &c. The publisher feels himself called upon to make the above statement, that the public may not for a moment cousider either the author or himself capable of using the Sysonymous Title or Subject for the interested and disreputable purpose of deceiving.

Printed for J. Andrews, 167, New Bond-street. Of whom may be had, just published,

Printed for J. Andrews, 197, New Bond-street. Of whom may be had, just published,

2. A TALE of the OLDEN TIME, by a Harrow Boy, 12mo. 6s. 6d.

3. The LIFE of VOLTAIRE, with interesting particulars respecting his Death; and Ancedotes and Characters of his Contemporaries; by Frank Hail Standish, Esq. 8vo. price 12s.

4. WARBECK of WOLFSTEIN; by Miss Holford, anthor of Wallace, &c. Second Edition, 3 vols. 11. 4s.

lace, &c. Second Edition, 3 vols. 11. 4s.

HOGG'S WINTER EVENING TALES.—Just published, in Two Vols.

12mo. price 14s. boards, the Second Edition of WINTER EVENING TALES; collected among the Cotlagers in the South of Sectland.—By JAMES HOGG, Author of "The Queen's Wake," &c.

Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, 13, Ave Maria-lane, London; and Oliwer and Boyd, Edinburgh. Of whom may be had, Just published,

2. HOGG'S MOUNTAIN BARD, with a Life of the Author, price

10s. 6d. bound.

108. 6d. bound.
3. LOCMIEL: or, The Field of Culloden. A Novel, in three volumes,

3. LEGEND OF ARGYLE; or, Tis a Hundred Years Since;

6. THE PAVOURITE OF NATURE; dedicated, by permission, to Mrs. Joanna Baillie, in three vols. price 21s. beards.

NEW ROOMS, HANOVER-SQUARE.

THE MESSRS. CRAMER most respectfully acquaint the Nobility, Gentry, and their Friends in general, that their CONCERT will take place on MONDAY, the 21st of May, at the above Rooms; Particulars of which will be announced in due time.

will take place on MONDAY, the 21st of May, at the above Rooms; Particulars of which will be announced in due time.

NEW SONGS.

THE CAMBRIAN MINSTREL BOY, sung by Master Smith, by Parry, 1s. 6d. "I love thee dearly," by the Duke of Maribro', 2s. "Oh, wear for me," by ditto, 2s. "Merrily swim we," by Kialimark, 2s. "Maiden, wrap thy Mantle," by ditto, 2s. "Yes, my Love, yes," by ditto, 1s. 6d. "If e'er compassion shriler found," by Lanza, 1s. 6d. "Little lovely Rore d'Auneaux," by ditto, 2s. "See where the falling day," by Knapton, 2s. "When we two parted," by ditto, 2s. New Editions of "The Soldier tired," and, "In infancy," from Artaxerxes, 1s. each.—Published and sold by CHAPPELL and Co. Music-sellers to His Majesty, 50, New Bond-street.

MR. WARD's BATTLE of WATERLOO.

THIS PICTURE, painted by JAMES WARD, Esq. R.A. for the Directors of the British Institution, size 35 feet by 21 feet, will be OPENED for public Exhibition on MONDAY, April 39th, at Mr. BULLOCK'S Great Room, Egyptisa Hall, Piccadilly.—Admittance, One Shilling; Catalogues Sixpence; Descriptive ditto, with etched outline, Two Shillings and Sixpence.

Just published, in a pocket volume 4s. 6d. half-bound.

THE ART OF FRENCH CONVERSATION, with an Introduction. By D. BOILEAU.

This work will be found to be constructed on so admirable a plan, as to afford far greater facilities towards speaking the French Language than can be derived from any other publication.

Printed for Henry Colburn and Co, Conduit-street.

Just published, the 4th edition improved, 5s. 6d.

FINHE ART of PRESERVING the SIGHT unimmaired to to afford far greater facilities towards speaking the French Language than can be derived from any other publication.

Printed for Henry Colbura and Co. Conduit-street.

Just published, the 4th edition improved, 5s. 6d.

THE ART of PRESERVING the SIGHT unimpaired to extreme Old Age, and of re-establishing and strengthening it when it becomes weak; with Observations on the Inconveniences and Dangers arising from the use of Common Spectacles, &c. &c. By an EXPERIENCED OCULIST.—Printed for H. Colbura and Co. Conduit-street.

Just published, price 4s. 6d. a new edition of

SIR ARTHUR CLARKE'S ESSAY on BATHING, with Practical Observations on Diseases of the Skin, Billious, Liver Complaints and Dropsy.

"This work will be found to contain more useful instruction, and more valuable practical remarks than any that has appeared on the subject."—Gazette of Health, No. 39.

Printed for Henry Colbura and Co. Conduit-street.

LITERATORE.

DOCTOR PROSODY's TOUR to the LAKES and ISLES of SCOTLAND. That species of Peerry which exhibits the "quirks and pranks" of solemn eccentricity in à humourous point of view, was never more extensively or successfully cultivated than at the present period. Of this class is the above work, which is said to be the production of an Author of celebrity. Its incidents are well combined, highly original, and possess much local and general interest. Those who delight to see a man of "portly form, and a most noble presence," will be pleased to learn, that they are here presented with such a form, instead of the meagre effigies of some of his predecessors.

LITERARY GAZETTE for 1821.

The principal Subjects this Work embraces are.—

An immediate Review of every interesting New Publication, whether Foreign or English, with amusing Extracts.—Original Correspondence, Literary and Philosophical.—Sketches of Society and Manners.—Criticisms on the English and Foreign Drama.—Memoirs of Eminent and Literary Characters.—Proceedings of Public and Literary Societies, &c.,—Everters on all Subjects cennected with gence, Advertisements of New Boole.

Subscribers who desire to begin with the New Year, will please to give their Orders early, to prevent disappointment, as only a limited addition will be made to supply such demand, unless a larger amount is give their Orders early, to prevent disappointment, as enly a limited addition will be made to supply such demand, unless a larger amount is previously ascertained.

The Work is published in Numbers, every Saturday, at No. 362, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsmen, price 8d.; or stamped, for Country Circulation, price 1s.

NEW QUADRILLES and WALTZES.—Just published, by the Royal Harmonic Institution, Lower Saloen, Argyil Rooms, Regent-street,

LES FAVORITES DES SALONS, a Second Set of 60. 3s. as danced at Almack's, Bath, New Argyil Rooms, and the Neblitties' Assemblies, composed by Fer'd Sor. THREE WALTZES, as Duets, for the Plane Forte, by the same Author, Nos, 3, 5, 6, and 7, each 3s. Two favourite SETS of QUADRILLES, by Madame Bartolozzi, each 4s. LER EGENT et LE CARNIVAL, Quadrilles, by Simonet, each 3s. LER GUADRILLE du PARTERRE, composed by Miss Christie, 4s. GREENLAND WALTZ, NORTH POLE and EVELYN WALTZES, each 1s. 6d.

At the above Institution is published, the latest Works of the following Composers'—vis. J. Beale, J. B. Cramer, G. E. Griffin, Holder, Hawes, Rawlings, and Fer'd Sor; with correct Editions of Vocal and Instrumental Music, by the most culment Authors.

Just published, in one large vol. 8vo. price 12s. in boards,

Just published, in one large vol. 3vo. price 12s. in boards,
A COURSE of SERMONS for the FESTIVALS and FASTS
A of the CHURCH of ENGLAND.—By JOSEPH HOLDEN POTT,
A.M. Archdeacon of Londox, and Vicar of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields.
Printed for F. C. and J. Rivington, No. 32, St. Pani's Church-yard, and No. 3, Waterloo-place, Pail Mail.
Of whom may be had, by the same Author, 2. The Third Edition of a COURSE of SERMONS for the LORD's BAY, throughout the Year.
In 2 vols. 8vo. price 11. 1s. in boards.

In 2 vols. 8vo. price 11. 1s. in boards.

Just published, in 2 vols. 8vo. with a Portrait, Fice 1s. 1s. in boards,

MEMOIRS of the LIFE and WRITINGS of the Right Rev.

BRIAN WALTON, D.B. Lerd Bishop of Chester, Editor of the London Polyglet Bible; with Notices of his Coadjeters in that illustrioss Work; of the Cultivation of Oriental Learning in his Country, preceding and during their time; and of the Authorized English Version of the Bible, to a projected Revision of which, Dr. Wilton and some of his Assistants in the Polyglot were appointed. To which is added, Dr.
Walton's own Vindication of the London Polyglot.—By the Rev. HEN.
JOHN TODD, M.A. F.S.A. Chaplain in Ordinary to his Majesty, and Rector of Settrington, County of York.

Printed for F. C. and J. Bitvington, Ns. 62, 34, Paul's Church-yard, and No. 3, Waterloo place, Pall Mall; and Leogman, Hurst, Rees, Orme, and Brown, Paternoster-rew.

CURTIS on the EAR.—The Secund Edition, ensiderably enlarged and improved, price z. 6d. boarts.

A TREATISE on the PHYSIOLOGY and DISEASES of the EAR; with New Medes of Treatment, filtskrated by a variety of interesting Cases, and accompanied with a plate of improved Acoustic Instruments, by J. H. CURTIS, Esq. Aurist to the King, &c. Printed and sold by J. Anderson, Medical Boekseller, West Smithfield; and Fearman, 170, New Bend-street.

Of whom may be had, by the same Author, 2. An INTRODUCTORY LETTER, as delivered, 1816, at the Royal Dispensary, for Diseases of the Ear, to which is added a Letter to the Committee of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum.

BOOK-BINDING, in all its Branches, executed with Elegance, Durability, and Dispatch, by S. OARROD, at the St. Maryle-bone Library, 30, Paddington-street, near Baker-street, where, at all times, numerous Patterns are ready for Inspectios, bound by S. O. in Morocco, Bassia, or Calf, in elegant and Phon Bindings.—CAPTAIN PARRY'S VOYAGE may be had at the Library, as noon as published.

Just published, in 8vo. price 5s: 6d. strebed,

POEMS. By Mrs. CORNWELL BARON WILSON.
London: Printed for W. Wright, Picet-street.
Also, a Third Edition, price 8s. extra boards, of
2. ASTARTE, a Sicilian Tale, with other Poems. By the same

2. ASIARIS, a Sicilian Taie, with other young, by the same Author.

"This Lady obtained our commendation for her Poem of "Astarte," and we have pleasure in saying that the present volume renews our favourable impressions of her talents; and affords us an opportunity of repeating our praise."—Literary Guzcette, No. 215.

"The specimens we have given will sume to show, that Mrs. Wilson is a Writer of no common description; on the contrary, she appears to us to possess talents of the first order: nor do we scrupte to affirm, that she is estitled to a very distinguished place amongst the Poets of the age."—British Stage, April, 1821.

Vide also La Belle Assemblee, and other periodicals for April, 1821. for reviews of this Work.

TUESDAY'S GAZETTE.

TUESDAY'S GAZETTE.

ADMIRALTY OFFICE, April 2, 1821.

The King has been pleased to appoint Thomas Harvey, Esq. C. B. Captain of the Royal Navy, to be Colosel of the Royal Marines, in the room of W. R. Broughtou, Esq. deceased.—Also Sir George Cockburn, G. C. B. Vice-Admiral of the Blue, to be Major-General of the Royal Marine Ferces, in the room of Vice-Admiral Sir R. G. Keats, BANKRUPTCY SUPERBDED.

BONNER, T. Monkwearmouth, Durham, fitter.

BLACKBAND, J. Burslem, Staffordshire, grocer.

BURBERY, T. Woolston, Warwickshire, grazier.

COPE, C. Berkley Mewa, Portman Square, job master.

FORD, J. Gloucester, patent woollen yarn manufacturer.

GREAVES, J. jun. Liverpoel, broker.

HESLEDEN, W. and W. S. HESLEDEN, Barton-upen-Humber, Lincolnshire, scriveners.

FORD, J. tiouccases, passing GREAVES, J. jun. Liverpool, broker.

HESLEDEN, W. and W. S. HESLEDEN, Barton-upen-Humber, Lincolinshire, scriveners.

HOYLE, R. Newcastle-upon-Tyne, merchant.

JONES, T. P. Carmarthen, linen draper.

MASTERS, J. Upper Berkeley Street, Portman Square, coach maker.

PULLEN, D. Birchin Lane, broker.

RITCHIE, R. and J. BIGSBY, Deptford, brewers.

SUMPTER, J. Charlotte Street, Old Street Road, stone mason.

SNAPE, W. Lichdeld, mercer.

TRINDER, J. W. Portsea, victualler.

WITCHURCH, J. Worship Street, Finsbury Square, coach master.

WHITE, T. Brinklow, Warwickshire, innholder.

WHITE, J. late of Gloucester, but now of Lambeth Road, merchanf.

DIVIDENDS.

May 12, J. S. Smith, Brighthelmstone, druggist.—May 12, B. Glasscott, Cheapside, jeweller.—May 19, W. Blackburn, Hackburn, Lancashire, shopkeeper.—May 11, T. Hadley, Birmingham, dealer and chapman.—May 15, J. M. De Quiros, Siae Lane, Bucklersbury, merchant.—

May 8, W. Davies, Caerphilly, Glamorganshire, woollen manufacturer.—

May 10, R. Sallows, Hadleigh, Suffolk, grocer.—May 12, S. Bewring and S. Trist, Cheapside, haberdashera.—May 23, J. Avison, Brighouse, Yorkshire, grocer.—May 19, J. Holden, Blackburn, Lancashire, druggist.—

April 21, J. S. Rains, Wapping Wall, merchant and biacuit baker.

CERTIFICATES—May 8,

J. Graham, Crooked Lane, uphoisterer.—T. Hughes, Bennet Street,

St. James's, victualler.—B. Dealtry, Rawellfier, Yorkshire, farmer.—J.

P. Drummond, London Street, merchant.—T. Rosse, Liverpool, opticlan and stationer.—R. Sidwell, Bath, shoe maker.—W. King, Ipswich, maliater.—J. Raffield, Edward Sireet, Caveadish Square, surveyor.—

W. Wilkinson, Blackburn, Lancashire, cotton manufacturer.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTE.

WAR-OFFICE, April 19, 1821.

4th Reg. Lt. Drag.—Surg. W. O'Donel, M. D. from 18th Foot, to be Surg. vice Wylde.

16th Ditto.—Lient.-Col. W. K. Elphinatone, from 33d Foot, to be Lient.—Col. vice Pelly.

18th Ditto.—Lient. J. T. Marchell, who was removed from the Service 1st March, 1821, has been reinstated in his rank.

18th Reg. Foot.—Surg. W. Young, M. D. from 7th Royal Veteran Batchalion, to be Surg. vice O'Donel.

30th Ditto.—Ens. G. H. Wood, to be Lieut, without purch. vice Cheek, deceased.—R. R. Martin, Gent. to be Em. vice Wood.

23d Ditto.—Lieut. H. D. Keith, from 89th Foot, to be First Lieut. vice Kennedy.

Kennedy,
33d Ditto—Lieut. Col. R. Pelley, from 16th Lt. Drag. to be Lieut.-Col. 330 Ditto—Lieux, view of the Flower, from half-pay 20th Lt. Drag. to be Quartermaster, vice Fox.
38th Ditto—Lieux, J. P. Sparkes, from half-pay Royal African Corps.

38th Ditto—Ldeut. J. P. Sparkes, trom half-pay Royal African Corpstude Lieut. vice Tittle.

40th Ditto—Lieut. J. H. Garner, to be Capt. vice Phillips.—Eng. W. d. Clarke, to be Lieut. vice Garner.—R. Floyer, Gent. to be Eng. vice Clarke.

47th Ditto—Ass.-Surgeon A. Miliar, from 53d Foot, to be Surgeon. vice Ridsdake, dec.

53d Ditto—Ass.-Surgeon R. Greig, M. D. from half-pay 23d Light Dragoons, to be Ass.-Surgeon, vice Millar.

56th Pitto—Major G. W. Montagu, from the 23d Foot, to be Major, vice Grant.

55th Ditto—Major G. W. Montagu, from the 22d Foot, to be Major, vice Grant.
68th Ditto—Capt. J. Hewett, from half-pay 60th Foot, to be Captain, vice W. Mackay.
72d Ditto—Lieut. W. Markham, from the Cape Corps, to be Lieut. vice Yutes.

72d Ditto-Lieut, W. Marknam, from the Sth Royal Vet. Batt. vice Yakes.
76th Ditto-Sargeon J. B. Flannagan, from the Sth Royal Vet. Batt. to be Surgeon, vice Halpin, M.D. S7d Ditte-Brevet Lieut.-Col. R. Grant, from the 56th Foot, to be Major, vice Montage.
89th Ditts-Livat. W. Kennedy, from the 282 Foot, to be Lieut. vice

Cape Corps —Lieut. T. W. Yales, from the 72d Foot, to be Lieut. vice:

Cape Corps - Licut. T. W. Yates, from the first post, to be Beputy Quarter-Mark ham.

Staff—Licut.-Col. R. Torrens, of the 63th Foot, to be Beputy Quarter-master-General to the King's Troops serving in the Kast britise, vice MrRa, who resigns.—Licut. and Adi. J. Nicholson, of the Army Depot in in the lale of Wight, to have the rank of Captain.

Hospital Staff.—Ass.-Surg. W. Thompson, from the 35th Foot, to be Apotheory to the Forces.—Hosp.-Ass. B. Berkardt to be Ass.-Surg. to the Forces.

To be Hospital-Assistants to the Forces.—Mosp.-Ass. M. M'Desmett, M. D. from half-pay.—Hosp.-Ass. A. Bruce, from half-pay.

Commissions in the Resourghabire Youngary Casaley, signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Rasburgh.

Maj.-Com. W. E. Lockhart to be Lieut.-Col.—Capt. Bir A. Don, Bart. to be Major, vice Lockhart promoted.—Lieut. C. Chisholme to be Capt., vice Don, promoted.—Hen. J. St. Char to be Cornet.—A. E. Lockhart.

Commission in the Royal Fifeshire Regiment of Feomanry Cavalay, signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the Owney of Fife. Capt. J. Parsons, on the half-pay of the 19th Hussars, to be Cornet.

BANKRUPTS,
NATHAN, f. Kingsdown, Glouester, muste-seller.
MULEGAN, T. Bath, silk, mercer.
LAWLEBGE, M. Harley-servet, Cavendish equare, upholsteres.
DRAN, J. Bingley, Yext, builder,
GOODAIR, J. Chetzley, Lamesster, cotton-spinner.
ROS, E. Chadighe, Cheszie, calloo, grinter.
BEAB DB60 R.E. R. Newcasile-under-lyune, shemaker.
GAMERON, J. Suckley-Court, Worcester, former.
ROSHEK, T. inte of Solwell, Berks, dealer in timber.
CORNIN, M. Gasten-sequare, dealer in timber.
CORNIN, M. Gasten-sequare, dealer in manufacturer.
ESGEX, M. Caventry, and Wood-street/Chetapside, silk manufacturer.
KILLICK, W. Chean, Surrey, coal-merchant.

Digitized by Google

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

PARIS, April 14.—According to the latest news from Naples it appears that the Austrians occupy all the barracks in that capital: the Neapolitan troops have removed without the city, and the whole of them are placed under the orders of General Frimont. The guard of safety is, for the present, kept up; but they can neither carry arms, nor do any kind of duty, but upon orders to that effect from the Austrian General.

An article from Lyons of the 9th says, a courier arrived here yesterday evening, bringing intelligence of the surrender of the citadels of Alessandria and Turin to the Austrians. It is asserted confidently that two considerable camps are to be formed in the vicinity of Lyons, and that the ground for both has been already chosen.

The Countess of Oldi landed at Calais, on the night of the 4th instant, on her way from London. She was accompanied by the Marquis of Butaldi and Count Poppi.

HANOVER, April 11 .- Orders have been given to put the causeway between this and Minden in the be condition, and to have a large number of post horses ready on that roud during this summer. These measures are in consequence of the visit of His Mujesty, who will take this road. During the King's stay it is expected there will be a large camp in the neighbourhood. It is said that their Royal Highnesses the Dukes of Clarence and Cumberland, and also his Grace the Duke of Wellington, will be here during His Majesty's stay. The palace of Hirrenhausen is praparing for His Majesty's reception.—We are happy to say, that the fears entertained for the Prince of Cambridge are much abated, and that there is every reason to hope that he is now out of danger.

APRIL 7,—His Excellency Count Munster has officially announced that the King will visit his kingdom of Hanover at the end of July, or the beginning of August.

On the 9th of Murch, a fire broke out at Pera. The hotel of the Russian Ambassador and two other houses were con-sumed. A similar accident occurred at Scutari, the Grand Signior and the Grand Vizier superintended the plans adopted for extinguishing them.

" NEW YORK, March 20 .- A letter was received on Friday per brig Packet, by a merchant, in Boston, from his correspondent in Cape Haytian, dated Feb. 28, which furnishes the fol-

General Richard. Governor of the Cape, who was so active in destroying Christophe's government, has been detected in a conspiracy against the present government. Soon as the con-spirators were arrested, the soldiers commenced pillaging the property; and before they could be stopped, cleared several stores of their goods, and carried off all the effects of Richard's dwelling and office, among which was the Rolls of Equipage of all the vessels in the harbour. General Richard and 23 others have arrived at Port au Prince, are under trial, and will

To form an idea of the barbarous atrocities of the most bloody monster (Christophe) that ever disgraced the human form, you should visit the North, as I did; see the miserable victims that escaped from his cells, hear their tales of woe, and view their emaciated and mutilated bodies.

" I went through his famous citudel and Palace of Sans Souci. In the former, on the highest bastion, I saw the body of the monster; it was slightly covered with lime and earth, which I caused to be partially removed; he had been dead then six weeks.

"His cells were improvements on the celebrated black hole "His cells were improvements on the celebrated black hole of Calcutta. Men of the best constitutions lost the use of their limbs in 24 hours, and it was a miracle if they survived the fourth day. It would take a ream of paper, and more time than I can afford, to give you a faint idea of what the unfortunate people suffered who were under his iron yoke. The waste of human life was incredible; and I hear from the first authority, that Ferrier alone cost fifty thousand lives, and at least thirty thousand more unmually died of hunger and fatigue at the public works, besides the many thousands sacrificed in cold blood to gratify the thirst which the ruffian had for human

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS. MONDAY.

ented from the Archdeaconry of Oxford, Petitions were from St. Peter's in Oxford, from St. George's, and St. Olave, Southwark, St. Botolph, Aldgate, from Lewes, the eastern part of the county of Sussex, from 6000 residents in Liverpool, the Archdeaconry of Buth, the Deanery of Stowe, the city of Bristol, the borough of Leicester, signed by 2000 persons, Gatestreet Chapel, near Lincoln's Inn-fields, Newark-upon-Trent, East Dereham, in Norfolk, the inhabitants of Hammersmith, and the borough of Woodstock, against the Catholic Bill.

The Bishop of Norwick presented a petition signed by 54 clergymen of the Archdeacopry of Norwich, in favour of the Catholic Bill. Similar petitions from Liverpool, Fulmouth, Limerick, and Galway, were also presented.

Earl Grey presented two petitions from Roman Catholic subjects, the one from the Duke of Norfolk, the Earl of Shrewsbury, Lords Arundel and Stourton, who expressed their gratitude for the Bill, and declared they considered the oath proposed by the present Bill, as compatible with their sentiments, and perfectly consistent with the principles of their religion; the other from Catholics generally. The petitions were all but the other from Catholics generally. The petitions were all laid

On the question for the second reading of the Catholic Bill,

The Earl of Donoughmers adverted to the privileges granted to the Catholics, since 1778. The most important concessions were made in 1793, by restoring the elective franchise in Ireland which placed the Catholics of that part of the empire much above the English Catholics. With respect to the present Bill, he expressed his surprise at the proposed early opposition intimated by the Earl of Liverpool and Lord Eddon, for nothing had as yet transpired to impuge their loyalty. The Act of 1703 had given the sunction of Government to their being loyal and trustworthy. The experiment had been tried for 28 years, and had not failed; and when a measure, calculated to do away jealousies and heart-burnings was in progress, it would be wise in the House to pass it. Nor was there any fear from the influence of the Pope; for that Pontiff had, on all occasions, been ready to meet them half way, by giving al. the necessary securities. In proof of this he read the altered oat, the the voluntary act of the Pope, to be taken by Vicars Aposto, in England, and by the Catholic Bishops. The present Bill, he observed, had been well considered in the other House. In admitting Catholics into the two Houses of Parliament, it did no more than what they had before enjoyed. He objected to the compulse by outh, which he hoped might be got rid of altogether. The bill of Securities he considered insulting to the Cathoric Clergy; for it went to say, that the Laity were denied the privileges which they claimed, because the Clergy were disaffected. He stated several amendments, which he wished to propose in the Committee. He considered the Veto as entirely unnecessary, and the Catholic Clergy thought it a heavy and unjust infliction upon them. He then moved the second reading of the Bill.

The Earl of Manifield objected to the Bill in toto, and moved "that it be read a second time this day six months." It appeared to him to give up what was necessary to be retained, for the security of the Protestant Church, without satisfying the Catholics. Besides, it set no limits to the demands of the Catholics, for, whoever supposed they would be satisfied without their Laity being admitted to all offices, and without the latter obtaining for their Clergy the restoration of all benefices and wreather of their Clergy the restoration of all benefices and property of their Church, which had been set aside by the Bill of Rights, would be mach deceived. Much had been said of the character of the Pope, but that character was best known from the conduct of his subjects, and more obedient subjects were not to be found than the Roman Catholics of Ireland. He did not mean to say, that the Catholics of the present day would sanction a massacre like that of St. Bartholomew, but he wished to know, when that massacre had been blamed by the Catholies—when had they condemned the revocation of the Edict of Nantz? The Church of Rome, when it had power, assumed omnipotence and infallibility, and he referred to the state of France, to show the influence of the religion. By the present Bill, Catholics were permitted to hold the highest offices in the State, with the exception of one, and, therefore, he should not be surprised that, in the event of succeeding to office, they should advise the King with respect to Beclesiastical appointments. Catholics were not to be educated in our Universities, but he wished to know where it was provided the Preceptor to the King, or the heir apparent should not be a Catho-lic. If then he might be a Catholic, the road was opened to the Throne for introducing a Catholic Sovereign. The Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland could not be a Catholic, but the Chief Secretary might; and thus differences might arise between the Members of the Executive. He condemned, in conclusion, in general terms, the impolicy of the neusure.

The Bishop of London was willing to permit the Catholics to participate in every enjoyment of their faith, and the bles-sings of the Constitution, short of endangering the Protestant establishment. But the Catholic Church had always aimed at universal dominion, and he was afraid no oaths, however sucred, which went to favour views repuguant to the principles of their religion, would bind them. He thought Catholics ought to be excluded from all public trust and power. The Bill went to give a Protestant King, Catholic Ministers, and thus he could not take their advice without incurring crime and danger. The Right Rev. Prelate was of opinion no concession could be made to the Catholics with due regard to the safety of the Esta-

The Duke of Sussex had always considered the subject as one of vital importance, and he had a due regard to those principles which placed his family on the throne. He thought the House should look at the laws which it was the object of this Bill to remove, and see whether their present existence was justified by the conduct of the Catholics. With regard to With regard to Papal influence, be could not admit that the Pope exercised in fluence without the consent of the Sovereign. He admitted that no commission ought to issue without the most perfect se curity of His Majesty's subjects.

The Marquis of Buckingham thought the question was, whether any good reason could be shewn for excluding the Catholics from exercising legislative power, in common with their fellow-subjects. The Noble Marquis referred to the period of the Reformation, downwards, to shew, that on no occasion had Catholics been excluded, Elizabeth, in a moment of great danger, appointed Lord Clifford, (a Catholic) Lord Warden of the Marches; Lord Hoyard, of Effingham, also a Catholio, was appointed Chief Officer of the Fleet, to resist the Spanish Armada; he was also appointed Lord High Admiral. He contended, that down to the Revolution, the Catholics were not excluded upon Constitutional principles. He thought the justice and policy of the measure so clear, that he should heartily support the present Bill.

The Bishop of Chester opposed the second reading of the Bill, because he thought the Catholics were already in posses. sion of toleration—the doors of their chapels were as wide open as those of our own churches. He believed in no Diocess was there a greater number of Catholics than in his own; and he was happy to say, that a most liberal and friendly interrecourse existed between them. His objection to the measure was purely on account of the religion, which declared all out of the pale of its Church heretical, and out of the pale of salvation,—they said the Pope was the head, we said the King was the head of the Church. He considered the Bill as an ano maly, if it passed, they would surrender every edvantage which their ancestors had gained at the expence of their blood. He assured the House, that very lately a Catholic assembly had been held at Stonehurst in his Diocese, at which a number of Jesuits from Liege in Gormany, were present. If this Bill should pass, be could not see what could prevent the establishment of a Coilege of Jesuits in Loudon. He hoped, therefore the House would not open the door to a measure dangerous to the established securities on which this Protestant Empire rested.

The Bishop of Norwich supported the Bill.

Lord Redesdale contended, that the principle of the Bill was in direct opposition to the principles upon which the Throne and the Protestant Church had hitherto been preserved. There was great danger a relaxing from the e securities, which we st any innovition, and therefore, he should vote against the Bill.

The Earl of Harrowby forcibly urged the necessity of allowing the Bill to go to a second reading. The Debate was

TUESDAY. Petitions were presented from Leicestershire, the Deaconry of Brecon, and several parts of Wales, Kendal, &c. against the Catholic Bill. On resuming the Debate on the Catholic Bill,

The Bishop of St. David's objected to the measure, as con-trary to the Constitution and to the Oath, which he as well as other prelates took, and contrary to the prerogatives of the Crown, as giving encouragement to the See of Rome, and as likely to endanger the Protestant establishment. His Royal Highness the Duke of York, was confirmed in the opinion he had aready formed, that the privileges now sought for by the Romar Catholics ought not to be granted. He was no enemy to tole ation, on the contrary, he should always be bappy to see persons belonging to all sects enjoying the full exercise of their religion, so long as they conducted themselves as dutiful and loyal subjects. But there was a wide difference between toleration and participation in political power, and so long as he was able to judge for himself, he should always se the further exten ion of political power to the Ro Catholics.

The Earl of Darnley felt confident, that no danger could result from allowing the Catholics full participation—such was the opinion of Mr. Burke. He denied that the Roman Catholics owed any allegiance to a foreign prince. As to the latter part of the Bill, he thought no security necessary, for on all occasions the Roman Catholics had evinced much loyalty.

The Lord Chancellor considered it a part of his duty to-oppose this Bill, which could not be amended—he defied any man to pass a Bill any thing like it. It had been his lot tooppose every Bill of this kind, because he never would agree to go into a Committee, and hold out hopes to Catholics which never could be realized. He never could agree with Mr. Pitt what securities ought to be granted, or indeed find out what to fix upon. The Government had adopted the purest system of religion that could possibly be adopted, and had at the same time given every toleration and security to all sects. He de-clared that seoner than pass this Bill, it would be better to say that the present Established Church should not be the Church of England. When he considered the laws that had been passed long before the Reformation, he felt the utmost gratitude to the memory of those great men, who had made such efforts to establish civil and religious liberty in England. Supremacy was well understood from looking into the Statutes.

Judge Hale declared it meant the civil as well as spiritual jurisdiction of the power that exercised it. With respect to the present Bill, was it, he would ask, one of conciliation? Had their Lordships heard any thing from the Sister Kingdom which proved that the Roman Catholics of that part of the Empireconsidered it a hoon, or as tending to produce conciliation? But what would be the effect of the Bill if passed—we should have a Protestant King—a Protestant Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, and a Protestant Chancellor; but if the Protestant Chancellor were to have Catholics, as conductors, would they allow him to remain long in his situation? If we were to have Roman Catholic Judges, the Municipal and Ecclesiastical powers which were now so blended together, could never be exercised in a groper manner. The Noble and Learned Lord concluded with lecturing his determination to uphold the Protestant religion, as the surest means of preserving the liberties of his country.

Lard Grenville assured the House, that his opinion on this subject remained unchanged, though he concurred in every subject remained uncanaged, using he concurred in every thing which the Noble and Learned Lord had said of the putity of the Protestant Church. But he could not see the policy of withholding from the Catholics those rights to which they were entitled as loyal subjects of the Realm. He wished to produce conciliation, and he thought, with respect to security, this Bill was one of the most solid securities that the state could devise.

The Earl of Liverpool thought that the most caudid way of acting was, for him to state in the first instance his decided opposition to the Bill. In the year 1793 very large concessions were made to the Catholics of Ireland, and other concessions were since made to the Catholics both of England and Ireland, and the result of all that was granted, was, to create fresh demands, and to prove to their Lordships that the Roman Catholics would never be satisfied until they had obtained a perfect equality with their Protestant fellow subjects. The relief intended to be given the Roman Catholics by the present Bill fell fur short of the principle on which the Bill itself was founded. If he (Lord Liverpool) could bring himself, for a moment, to sanction the introduction of Roman Catholic Peers into that House, and of Roman Catholic Commoners into the other House of Parliament, he would vote for the second reading of the Bill. But those were concessions which he could not grant. The laws which went to exclude the Roman Catholics from both Houses of Parliament and from certain offices of trust and confidence, were entwined with the Countriction of the country, and any Bill which would go to repeal those laws, was an invasion on the Constitution itself. But the real question for consideration was not as to civil liberty, but poli-tical power, and it belonged to the State to regulate that power. The question, therefore, which he would wish to press on their Lordships' attention was, not what would be the consequence of admitting the Catholics to political power, if they were the Established Church in Ireland, but the Catholic Religion not being the Established Religion in Ireland, but opposite to, and aiming at the destruction of the Established Religion, whether their Lordships were not bound to protect that Religion so esta blished. By this Bill a few Peers would be admitted among their Lordships, and a few persons into the House of Cemmons, but the bulk of the people would gain nothing by it. Nothing could satisfy the bulk of the people but a deliverance from the necessity of supporting another religion to which they did not belong. It would be their interest to subsert the Protestant religion, and that was the very example of their selicion. ligion, and that was the very essence of their religion. The argument of the Noble Lords, who supported the Bill was, that it would conciliate the Roman Catholics, and that they would be content with it. Ho (Lord Liverpool) maintained, that they would not be satisfied, but would go farther; and therefore he would ask their Lordships if it was not better for them to make their stand in time. It would be better for them to fight on the borders than in the very capital.

The Marquis of Larsdowne, Lord Melville, Lord Ashburton, and Lord Somers supported the Bill. - Lord Viscount Sidmouth opposed it.

A division then took place on the second reading-Contents, 72—Proxies, 48—120—Non Contents, 90—Proxies, 69—159 —Majority against the Bill, 39.—Adjourned at half past three —Majority against ... o'clock in the morning.
WEDNESDAY.

The English and Irish Bank Cash Payments Bills went through Committees.—Adjourned.
THURSDAY.

The Royal Assent was given, by Commission, to the Beer Duties, the Innkeeper's Rates, the Irish Law of Treason Amendment, and several other Bills.

The London Institution Regulation, and the South London Gas Company's Bills were read a first time. The House then adjourned to the 1st of May.

HOUSE OF COMMONS. MONDAY.

A New Writ was ordered for Orford in the room of J. Douglas, Esq. who has accepted the Chiltern Hundreds. The Usury Laws Repeal Bill was read a first time, and ordered for the second reading on the 14th of May.

Mr. M. A. Taylor gave notice of a motion for the 30th of May respecting the practice of the Court of Chancery, and Appeals in the House of Lords.

In answer to a question from Lord Milton on the subject of the Committee on Agriculture, Mr. Gooch replied, that a report would be ready soon after the Easter recess.

On the Order of the Day for going into a Committe on the Foreign Timber Duties Bill,

Mr. J. P. Grant moved to refer the subject to a Committee He contended for the principle of free trade, and objected to the Report of the Committee on the table. His object was to prepose a duty of 21. 15s. on Baltic timber—on American 15s. for the first year, and 5s. in addition for the second, and 10s. for the third.

Mr. Wallace objected to the mode proposed by the Hon. Mr. Wattace objected to the more proposed by the rion. Gent. as giving a menopoly to Norway. It was at length agreed to commit the Bill.

For Committee of Supply,

Lord Palmerston moved the sum of 5,6141. for the Medical Department, and allowance to Clerks, &c.

Colonel Davies suggested an amendment reducing the sum to 44141. The original motion was acressed to.

The Noble Lord then moved a grant of 10,5171. 18s. 9d. as allowances to the Officers in the Irish Departments.

Mr. Hume moved to reduce that sum to 7,0001.— For the motion, 99.—For Mr. Hume's amendment, 45.

The next item proposed was 27,824l. for the Medical Department of Great Britain.

Colonel Davies moved an amendment reducing it to 22,824l.

Sir R. Fergusson moved to postpone the consideration of the uestion in order that the charges might be examined by a Committee.—For the postponement, 59—Against it, 199.

The Committee then divided on the amendment—For it, 58 —Against it, 110.—The original motion of course passed.

Lord Palmerston then moved the grant of 170,0001. for defraying the charges of Volunteer Cavalry Corps.

Mr. Bernal opposed the motion as extravagant and unne-

Mr. Hume accused Ministers of having by their emissaries fomented disturbances in the country, and encouraged the prac-tices of Franklin. The placards which led to the disorders at Glasgow were sent down from London; and he only heard yesterday of an active embassy—a new Oliver—whom it may be necessary at an early opportunity to expose to shame.

Mr. B. Bathurst defied the Hon. Member to prove his asser tion that Franklin had been engaged by Ministers.

Lord Millon said that instructions had been sent to the Magistrates of the West Riding of Yorkshire not to apprehend Oliver. This connection between the Secretary of State and Oliver gave colour to other charges.

Mr. Bathurst admitted that Oliver was employed by Government—but only to ascertain the designs of the disaffected, and not to foment them.

The Lord Advocate said the placards alluded to had be written in Glasgow, and printed there.

Mr. Brougham contended that against Franklin there was a case of vehement suspicion, nor was it less strong against Oliver and Edwards; it was clear that those persons were hired agents of Government.

Mr. W. Pole denied the insinuations of the Hon. Gentleman, namely, that the Secretary of State had been privy to the base es of Franklin.

Mr. Brougham here said- No! no! I said "employed" generally.

Mr. W. Pole—Did he not insinuate that Government were implicated in the proceedings of this man, and that they sanctioned men in instigating others to commit treason?—If he did so, he insinuated that which was foul, falso, and base. If the Hon. Gent. had charges to make, let him speak openly, and not deal in insinuation.

Mr. Brougham (being called on repeatedly) at length arose.

and, raising his voice to the highest pitch, said.—Sir, after the Committee has listened to the scondalous charges which the Right Hon. Gent. has dared to bring against me—

Mr. Robinson here rose to order, amidst the greatest confusion, cries of Chair! Chair! and Order! Order! resounding silence, and after some observations from the Hon. Members,

Mr. W. Pole said he should be sorry if any thing he had said could have given offence to the Hon. Gent. with whom he was too little personally acquainted to allow the supposition that he and any object in view.

Mr. Brougham was ready to admit that he might have misunderstood the Right Hon. Gent. He (Mr. B.) never did charge Government with having wilfully abetted men who were instigating others to rebellion.

The original motion was then carried.—Adjourned.

TUESDAY.

In a Committee on the Metropolis Police Act Mr. H. Clive obtained leave to bring in a Bill for the Improvement of the Police of the Metropolis.

A variety of petitions were presented in favour of Parlia

Mr. Lambton rose to move for an inquiry into the state of he Representation. He complained of the empty benches which he saw on a question of such importance, which he deed to introduce, though there were many Gentlemen better calculated to bring the subject forward. The different classes in the community were loud in their complaints of the bad system in returning Members to this House. The miseries of which they complained, were to be attributed to nothing but the gross corruption in the Representation of the people. The Hon. Gent. contended, that the state of distress to which he alluded was produced by heavy taxation—by a debt of 850 millions, with an annual expenditure of 53 millions—by a Sinking Fund, which was a mere mockery, and by commerce brought to the last degree of depression. All these facts shewed a system of corruption as glaring as day. It could not be denied, for in this Assembly seats were openly bought and sold. Treason and rebellion alarmed us; our gaols were crowded, our eyes are shocked with seeing barbarous executions, the consence of the defective state of the Criminal Laws. If be looked to our foreign relations with the south of Europe, he saw nothing to compensate for our bankrupt and calamitous situation at home. The Hon. Gent. after dilating on these topics, proposed to remedy all the evils of which he complained, by dispensing with corrupt boroughs, by recurring to triennial Parliaments. In the reign of Edward III. an Act passed, enjoining that Parliaments should be annual, which Act had its rise from the inordinate love of power on the one hand, and the total apathy on the other. By the 16th Car. II. Parliaments were rendered triennial, and in the 6th William and Mary, the Triennial Act was passed; in the 1st Geo. I. the Septembel Act was passed, which, he contended, was a gross departure from the principles of the Constitution, and cited a Pro-test from the Lords' Journals in support of his arguments. He quoted various authorities in support of his position of the necessity of restoring to the people, what the Hon. Gent. considered they were deprived of, their rights. He then stated the heads of a Bill, which he had drawn up, to remedy the evil of which he complained. It would be divided into two parts. The first part be would propose to allow householders the right of versities in the Bill. He would propose to repeal the Septemial Act, and that Furliament should continue to sit for three years only, according to the precedents to which he had adverted. That the country should be divided into districts, including each a representation of 25,000 inhabitants, of whom 2500 would be electors. The qualifications required would be, that each elector had paid tages for six months previously to that each elector had paid taxes for six months previously to the election, had never been in a workhouse, or received parochial relief. Being a Bill of Enfranchisement, Roman Catholics were not included in its provisions. The next point was us to a proper returning officer, who was to have a deputy under him, to be a professional man, and to execute all the minor duties.—Having made some further observations, he concluded with moving the House to go into a Committee; to consider of the present state of the representation of the people in Parliament.

Mr. S. Whitbread seconded the motion.

Mr. Wilmot considered the plan now suggested so sweeping an alteration, that he hoped the House would not agree to it. The Han. Member vindicated the present Ministers for overcoming one of the most correlating despetisms that ever cursed mankind. He censured the devices resorted to for infaming the subtle minds and reachested the practice of talling the the public mind; and reprobated the practice of telling the people, that Reform would relieve them from all their embarrassments, and he objected in detail to the plan now proposed.

Mr. Hobbones maintained that there had been a great change in the Constitution; the present House of Commons, too, was different from any preceding House, it was a body independent of the people, and having no sympathy with them. He contended that at no period of our history did the people shew themselves unworthy of the elective franchise. The Parliament which took the lead in the rebellion in this country was composed of only 87 Mambars of whom 18 were souther the country was composed of only 87 Mambars of whom 18 were souther the country was composed of only 87 Mambars of whom 18 were souther the country was composed of only 87 Mambars of whom 18 were souther the country was composed of only 87 Mambars of whom 18 were souther the country was composed of only 87 Mambars of whom 18 were souther the country was composed of only 87 Mambars of whom 18 were souther the country was composed of only 87 Mambars of whom 18 were souther the country was composed of only 87 Mambars of whom 18 were souther the country was composed to the country was considered to the country posed of only 87 Members, of whom 16 were sent by the counties, 6 by the cities, and the remaining 67 by the beroughs.

Mr. H. Twiss deprecated the idea of making changes in the representative system.

Major-Gen. Wilson supported the motion

Mr. Abercrombie was friendly to the motion.

Mr. F. Palmer thought a reform necessary.
Mr. S. Wortley said the question was whether the Constitution could be improved by any innovation? He thought this House the most proper place for discussing the question of Reform; if it was discussed, he was sure the people would soon be tired of Reform. He was against the motion.

Lord Bury supported the motion.

Mr. R. Martin opposed it.

Lord Militar conceived this to be the most important question that could come under discussion. From all that be could learn, the middle classes in society were in favour of Reform, and the great majority of the yeomanry thought Reform was

Mr. Williams supported the motion.

Mr. Honeywood voted for going into a Committee, but did not pledge himself to support all his Hon. Friend's propositions. The debate was then adjourned.

WEDNESDAY.

A new Writ was ordered for the County of Down, in the room of Lord Castlerangh, now the Marquis of Lordonderry.

Mr. M. A. Taylor obtained leave to bring in a Bill to give greater facility in the prosecution and abatement of nuisances arising from furnaces in steam-engines.

Mr. Harbord obtained leave to bring in a Bill to alter and mend the laws relative to the manufacture and sale of bread.

In a Committee of Supply,

Major-Gen. Wilson noticed a custom prevailing in Edinburgh of signing false half-pay lists, and asked whether it was necessary to continue it.

Lord Palmerston denied the existence of any such custom the Army or Navy as that of signing false half-pay lists. A vote of 101,000l. for Widows' Pensions was then agreed to, were also votes for 20,000l. to Officers' Widows on the Establishment, 153,000l. for disbanded corps, and 157,000l. for the Ordnance Department.—Report received.

The debate on Mr. Lambian's motion for going into a Committee on the State of Representation.

Mr. Wyoill supported the motion for going into a Com-Mr. Serj. Onelow opposed it, and denied the usertion that a very considerable number of Members of this House were returned by a certain number of Peers.

Mr. Sykes contended that the representation of the country should be the express image of the feelings of the country, in contradistinction to the opinion of the Hon. Member for Yorkings of the Ministry. A complete change was necessary.

Mr. Bennett (Wiltshire) said, to many parts of the plan he could not accede. Any man anxious for the purity of Parliament could not refuse to go into the Committee. The House ought to exercise a strong control, over Minister, has it did in some measure exercise over the Crown and the other House of Parliament. It was notorious that corruption at present existed to a large extent; seats were openly sold, and difference of prices were fixed for boroughs, according to the freedom of voting which was allowed in them; he, therefore, must agree to the Capt. Maberley opposed this motion, but he would give his support to any moderate plan of Reform which was founded on constitutional and practiced principles.

Mr. Ramsden would assent to that part of the plan which proposed to shorten the duration of Parliaments; but he could not go the length of dividing the country into bodies, like the French electors.

Mr. Harbard declared he would not give his support to any Administration that would not make the principle of Reform a substantial and leading part of their policy.

Mr. Ricardo supported the motion, and regretted that the Bill contained no clause regulating the manner of election;—had the plan embraced a regulation, giving to the electors a right of voting by ballot, it would have been more acceptable.

Mr. D. Briwne opposed the motion.

Sir G. Robinson supported it.

Mr. T. Wilson declared himself to be no reformer, but still any case of corruption occurred, it ought to be attended to.

He should, however, vote against the motion.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer was relieved from stating objections to the plan of the Hon. Member, because not one Member approved the plan generally. He would rather, how-ever objectionable us it was, see it embodied in a Bill, than agree to a vague motion for reviewing the state of the repre-sentation. The people did not wish for Reform. He denied the assertion to be true, that this House did not represent the people. He considered Parliament the great regulator of optnions, and the press, which mixed up with much sound argument a good deal of misrepresentation, was corrected by it. voting for boroughs; and, secondly, to allow copyholders to vote for county Members. He wished to include the two Unique of the present constitution of the House of Commons. The question was loudly called for.

Mr. Canning rose and said, in the absence of the principal nembers on both sides, and in that of the Hon. mover himself, he should abrain from saying any thing, or interfesing with the general wish to go to a division at once.

The House divided a few minutes before eight o'clock, when the numbers were, Ayes, 43-Nos, 55-Majority against the

Mr. Lambton rose to order. He saw some gentlemen laughing significantly at him, with reference, as he thought, to the fate of his motion; he wished those gentlemen would have the manliness to avow themselves.

The Speaker appealed to the Hon. member if this was a question he ought to put, unless be was capable of fixing it, and proving it satisfactorily.

Mr. Lambton said he had merely gone out to take some re freshment. On his return, he perceived the countenances of the Hon. Members for Chichester and Londonderry (Mr. Huskisson and Mr. Dawson) smile, in moving that the House do adjourn

The Speaker thought the dignity of the House would be hest consulted by dropping the subject.

Mr. Lambton said the issue of his motion was unfortunate, for the impression might go forth that the question was got rid of by surprise.

Mr. Huskieson and Mr. Dansen both disclaimed any idea of giving offence to the Hon Gent, for, in fact, they were in conversation, and their smiles were not directed against the Hon. Gent,—Adjourned.

THURSDAY.

The Speaker went to the House of Peers to hear the Royal Assent to several Bills.

Mr. H. Sussner postponed his motion respecting the Orphan's

Fund till after the holidays. The Kensington, Hammersmith, and Brentford Gas Light Lord A. Hamilton postponed his motion respecting the Scotch representation till the 10th of May.

Mr. M. A. Taylor brought in a Bill for regulating the use and furnaces and steam-engines; read a first time; second reading Monday se'unight.

Mr. Harbord brought in a Rill to alter the Act of George III. respecting the making and sale of bread. Read a first time. Second reading this day fortnight.

Gen. Hart presented a petition from the county which he represented, complaining of the grievances arising from the levying of fines under the Excise Laws, and praying relief.

Mr. Tennyson gave notice of a motion for the 9th of May. for a Bill to enable owners of extensive tracts of land (not being Lords of Manors) to authorize persons to kill and preserve game for their use.

Lord W. Bentinek gave notice that he would, on the 8th of May, move for certain papers respecting Sicily.

On the motion of Mr. Bennet a variety of papers respecting the fees paid to Clerks of the Peace, on forfeited recognizances, were ordered to be laid before the House.

Mr. Hebbouse presented a Petition from certain inhabitants of the City of London, on the case of Davison, and complaining of the power assumed by Judges in fining persons before them. He alluded to some conduct of Mr. Harrison, Chairman of the Surrey Quarter Sessions, in fining, and stated his intention to bring the subject forward on another day.

Mr. H. Sumner described the respectability of Mr. Harrison. and spoke to his conduct in the instance of the fine alluded to, which was imposed on a Mr. M'Creery for contempt of the authority of Court.

The Petition was laid on the table.

Lord Nugent gave notice that he would, on the Tth of May, move for the appearment of a Committee to inquire into the state of Courts of Justice in Tobago.

Mr. Hume gave notice of a motion, after the recess, for an inquiry into the conduct of Sir Thomas Maitland, Governor of the Ionian Islas.

On the motion of Mr. Hume, a return of the number of Courts Martial since 1808 was ordered to be laid before the House.

Sir H. Parnell moved for the appointment of a Committee on the subject of the commercial intercourse between threat Britain and Ireland. His object was to do away with draw-backs; that Fereign and Colonial produce should be under the same-regulations, and, in short, that the trade of the two countries should be put on the same footing.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer admitted the necessity for some regulations of the kind proposed by the Hon. Bart., but the Session had too far advanced; he, therefore, moved, as an amendment, that Parliament take the subjection consideration next Session.—The amendment was carried.

On the question for the third reading of the Foreign Timber Duties Bill

Mr. Monck opposed the Bill, which however was passed. The Irish Lunatic Asylum Bill was passed. Adjourned till Monday se'nnight.

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

Mr. Chantrey, the sculptor, has been for some time engaged in executing two whole length statues of the present lina-quis of Londonderry. They are intended, we believe, for pre-sents to the Courts of Vienna and St. Petersburgh.

The Corporation of London intend to widen and improve the arches of London Bridge, in preference to a recommendation of a body of surveyors to build a now one: 90,000L is the estimated expense of the alterations.

was agreed, in a Committee of the House of Com on Tuesday, that the composition of 5 per cent. upon the amount of the amessment for windows and houses, should be continued for six years longer; and also to an extension of three years from 1822, as it regards the compounding for any urree years from 1828, as it regards the compounding for any increase of carriages, horses, and servants, subject, however, to an additional 5 per cent, upon the present amount, which will make 10 per cent, upon that part of the assessment.

The King's Bounty.—On Thursday, being Maundy Thursday, the King directed the annual bounty to be given to a number of poor men and women, as usual during the late King's life. Fifty-nine persons of each sex (the age of His Majesty) were relieved at Whitehall, with bread, beef, and fish, very plentifully. In the afternson they assembled again in majesty) were relieved at Whitehell, with bread, beef, and fish, very plentifully. In the afterneon they assembled again in the chapel, and heard Divine Service, when, at intervals, shoes, stockings, and woollen and linen cloths were distributed to the men; to the women were given 11, 15s. On Tuesday each man and woman had a red bether bag containing a 11, bank note, and a white leather bag containing fifty nine silver pleces. The ceremony was vary interesting. The Bishop of London assisted at the performance of Divine Service at the Chapel Royal, and confirmed a number of the minor branches of the noblitity and gentry. nobility and gentry.

Yesterday the dispatches were closed at the East India

Yesterday the dispatches were closed at the East India House, and delivered to the Pursers of the following ships:—Bridgewater, Capt. W. Mitchell; Windsor, Capt. T. Haviside; Bombay, Capt. C. Graham; Minerva, Capt. J. Mills.

OLYMPIC THEATRE.—This popular Theatre re-opens tomorrow Evening with the extraordinary performances of M. Alexandre, the French Ventriloquist. This Gentleman has already excited the greatest interest in the public mind, and, from his occasional displays before select companies, we augur the most complete success. the most complete success.

IRELAND.—At a moment when so many persons are contemplating a visit to this interesting portion of the British dominions, we hasten to direct the attention of the Public, to the very interesting account of a Residence in the Island, recently published by Anne Plumptre.—The Literary Gazette speaking of this Work, says:—

"We heartily wish that this agreeable volume may be the means of inducing our countrymen to visit an island which they are, for the most part, utterly unacquainted with: yet from which England fills one third of her granary with com, half her fleets with provisions, and a great part of her army

NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Regulus will see, as well as all our other correspondents on the Catholic Question, the happy non-nocessity for their exer-tion. An anecdote very like Regulus's is to be found (we shink) in Hume's Essays.

Amphion must come in a more authentic shape, if he comes

A. B.'s Poem is very excellent, but we cannot as yet insert it; because we think there is too much fight about it for the bet. Should any thing more come of it we shall avail Ourselves of the communication; and, at all events, be happy omestoes of the communication; and, at an evenis, ve nappy to hear from A. B. again.

We are obliged to "A Loyalist."
Honestus, about Wilson, is correct, and we took a little advantage of the observation in our last number; but we cannot tell the story, because it reflects upon him as a Memory Duddenset and in that counties me of course must camet test the story, occasion is rejects upon none as a member of Parliament, and in that copacity we of course must respect him. If he takes the Chiltern Hundreds, as it is confidently expected, for his own sake, he will do, we will immediately publish that anecdote and half a dozen more of the same natu the same nature.

In answer to Cumbria, we can only say, that we never heard that Dr. Willis was sent for to Mr. Brougham, nor do we believe that he was.

The Address from the partit of Bow to Alderman Wood should have been headed "Bow to a Goose." Our thanks are due to our friend in the West for her pre-

We also thank the "Mutron of the Old School" for her Book; we had sent a person to the place the day before.

The Letter of "More Majorum" was mislaid, or would have been noticed, and made use of. -C. H. O. are received.

Candidus and others, on the subject of Postmody, are un avoidably delayed.

We think that the notices sent to us by Busebius might be We think that the notices sent to us by Busedius might so felt unpleasantly by the parties. Biography is arduous writing during the bioes of the persons treated of,—if we saften their failings we cease to do justice, and if we are impartial we wound needlessly. In this we refer to talents, genius, and accomplishments, to a recapitulation of which Busedius appears to confine his observations.

The M.S. is ready for Icon whenever he will send for it. Our best acknowledgments are due to him.

The store of the wound lade at Mrs.——'s Boarding.

The story of the young lady at Mrs. ——'s Bourding-school cating blue flee, and dying in consequence, we decline moddling with. We do not believe it,—blue flee, however pleasant they may be, are not yet in season. From the unusual press of matter, we have been obliged to postpone till our next number the publication of many arti-cles: amongst others, our weekly hist of Clergymen who have prayed for the Queen, and several of their explanatory Let-ters, Cot. Palmer's Letter, Go. &c. &c. We shall be obliged to Y. Z. for any information on the subject he alludes to.

Our numerous correspondents must accept our excuses for it particularizing their favours, which we have not space to not particularizin do in this number.

PRICE OF STOCKS AT THE CLOSE YESTERDAY. PRICE OF STOCKS AT THE CLOSE YESTERDAY.

Very little fluctuation has taken place in the Funds; indeed they seem to maintain a steadiness, which may be chiefly attributed to the present favourable aspect of affairs in Italy. The news of the advance of the Austrians upon Turin caused indeed a triding rise, which they have since maintained. The same confidence seems to be placed in the French Funds, which were by the last accounts $1.80. Consols opened yesterday morning at 723 for Money, and 725 for the Account; the fluctuations during the day did not exceed $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., and left $\frac{1}{2}$ for Money, and $\frac{7}{2}$ for the Account, which is fased for the $\frac{7}{2}$ for Money, and $\frac{7}{2}$ for the Account.

Reduced Ann... 71$

Navy 5 per cent ... 107$

Exchaquer Bills ...

Ditto Acct ... 72$

India Bonds ...

Omnium ...

FRENCH FUNDS.

FRENCH FUNDS.

5 per ct. Div. 22 Mar. 81-60 Bank Sh. Div. 1 Jan... 1642 50 Recon. Div. 22 Mar. .. 95-65 Ex. Lond. 1m 26-66 3m 25-45

A Monday's Edition, containing the latest News, the Stock List, the London Markets, and the State of the Country Markets by that morning's post, is published at Three o'clock.

THEATRE ROYAL, COVENT-GARDEN Menchey, Virginius.—Tuesday, She Stoops to Conquer.—Wednesday, ob Roy Macgregor.—Thursday, Venice Preserved.—Friday, Guy Maniring.—Saturday, The Stranger.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.

Monday, Jane Shore.—Tuesday, a New Drama, called Mother & Son

On the 5th of May will be published. Number 1, price 6d.; ov stamped, and sent to Country Subscribers, free of pestage, price 1s. to be continued every Saturday.

The JOURNAL OF LITERATURE.

This Work will contain Reviews of new Books, Foreign as well as English; of new Musical Works; Criticisms on the Arts and the Theatre; Notices of all new Publications; of Discoveries and Inventions in Science and Mechanics; Advertisements on Literary Subjects; and a variety of every sort of information which can be acceptable to the man of tasts and senior man of taste and genius. Published at the Office of "JOHN BULL," No. 11, Johnson's-court, Fleet-street, to which Place all Communications are to be addressed to the Editor.

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, APRIL 22.

in their favour, in the House of Lerds. It was (after an adjourned debate, carried on until half-past three o'clock on Wednesday morning) thrown out by a majority of 159 against 120.

If any thing can add to the satisfaction we feel at this most salutary measure, it is the fair, manly, and candid declaration made by His Royal Highness the DUKE of YORK, in the course of the debate. Such a declaration, made by a person standing in the situation in which he stands, is of the highest importance to our peace and

The gratitude of the people for his eminent official services—their affectionate esteem for his kind, generous, and amiable qualities—and their respect for the exalted station he fills, will all be enhanced by this last proof of His Royal Highness's love and veneration for the Constitution of ENGLAND as by law established.

Or all the bubbles that ever swelled and burst, large, shewy, thin, and empty, MR. LAMBTON'S Reform Bubble is assuredly the most shewy, the thinnest. and the emptiest.

We will not fatigue our readers with the details of a plan which were too futile and too tiresome for even the parental patience of Mr. Lambton himself. Our readers will see, by the Parliamentary Debates, that by a whimsical accident, we have obtained a little more insight into the necromancer's cell than the public, out of doors, is usually permitted to have.

We have no doubt that there are several grave personages in the country who, full of their classical recollections, imagine that our senators sit in their curule chairs, and support, with high and confident courage, a tedium worse than the inroad of the Goths; but, alas! we believe, that of all the Members of the Honourable House, the only one who can be likened to a Conscript Father in his curule chair, is the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who, with a patience and temper above all praise and all imitation, sits twelve hours a night to listen to the successive nonsense of DAVIES, WILSON, and HUME, in that alone military, that they know how, by a judicious relief of their picquets, to harass the enemy.

MR. LAMBTON'S notice for REFORM was introduced with more pomp and ceremony than any other we ever remember. It was prepared in the sober cabinet of the Whigs, and fiatted in the drunken festivity of the Radicals. Columns after columns of the Chronicle and The Times were filled with the proceedings of the preparatory assemblies; MR. LAMBTON's health tossed off in a second, and his thanks, which lasted an hour. Mr. Curwen, Mr. Hornouse, and Mr. Bennett, who be-toasted, be-thanked, and be-praised one another, - (the itch of vanity is infinitely more contagious than the common itch,)

"Gave promise of a goodly day te-merrow," and the high-begotten system of REFORM was accordingly brought forward amidst the pledges and acclamations of the affectionate partizans, who professed that they were ready to DIE for their country, which, indeed, may be the case, for the result has only preved that they would not fast for her.

Well!—the debate began, continued, and, one would have thought, might have ended; but no-crowds of patriots were impatient to express their opinions; the gasping House (full as an egg) needed a second discussion as a vent to the ebullitions of its virtues and its talents. Four hundred members were too few to express the public sentiment on an object which had concentrated public attention, not more by its intrinsic importance than by the abilities of the able, and the generous, and assiduous, and everlasting efforts of those who had undertaken to propose it.

An adjournment was moved and carried, and the hestile ranks separated, and withdrew to their respective tents, full of the ardour of battle, not unmixed with ruminations of the morning's danger.

Oh! what a glorious sight was now to be seen!-Refreshed with the repose of a night, and the thoughts of a day,-strong in their integrity,-stronger in their talents, strongest of all in the imminent urgency of their cause, the sacred phalanx of the Reformers marched down with the magnanimous Hobhouse and the gigantic Ossulston at their head, to renew the contest of glory, and win the wreath of honour for themselves, and of liberty for England.

At this awful moment a report reached the House that Mr. Michael Angelo Taylor's kitchen-chimney was on fire, which excited a prodigious sensation. Patriots have considered, in all after ages, that nothing could be more ridiculous and criminal than to sit fiddling in the capitol while the city was on fire, and accordingly several of the characters most prominent for public and private courage hastened to Michael Angelo's assistance!

It was, however, discovered that the alarm was false, though the smoke was true;—that Mr. TAY-LOR's cook had been extraordinarily expensive of his coals; that he had an excellent dinner in hand:-ALL our fears on the subject of the Catholies are happily set at rest by the rejection of the obnoxious Bill resist the savour;—the flesh-pots of Egypt entired the back-sliding Israelites, (Mr. RICARDO will forgive us the allusion) and the Mover, the SECONDER, and, (as the Chronicle tells us) the PRINCIPAL ADVOCATE of Reform had the magnanimity to leave the fond question of their souls to its own fate, and to adjourn their presence and attention to TAYLOR's dinner: in this they were right, for they well knew that the question of Reform could not fail (like the Irish cats) to devour itself, and would be got rid of by its own inherent principle of decay; whereas, Ma. TAYLOR's dinner, if not eaten by them, ran little chance of being eaten by any body else, who might be somewhee nicer in their company.

Now, see how the matter stood,—the enemies of Reform had been either routed by disgust, or set asleep by weariness in an early stage of the debate, and of these there remained only Mr. CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER, Mr. PEREGRINE COURTENAY, Mr. RICHALDER OF THE EXCHEQUER, Mr. PEREGRINE COURTENAY, Mr. RICHALDER OF THE EXCHEQUER, Mr. PEREGRINE COURTENAY, Mr. RICHALDER OF THE COURTENAY. ARD MARTIN, and some steady veterans, who had already dined, and who were enjoying a Spanish sists on their respective benches;—on the other side were those who never diae, or, as our Song mid,

"At least were never asked to dire," and whom Mr. TAYLOR does not favour with his invitations; for, as natural philosophers tell us, that infinite are the degrees of littleness,—and as microscopes inform us that the little animals which trouble children's heads are themselves pestered with vermin of their own, so, in the beautiful gradations of society, it turns out that there really are creatures that Mr. MI-CHARL ANGELO TAYLOR would not ask to dinner,

What follows is more delicate matter, for it relates to the proceedings of the Honourable the House of Commons. All we shall say upon that subject is, that the Rump of the Opposition (Rump, though an irreverent, is a Parliamentary phrase) either encouraged by Mr. VANSITTART'S slumbers, or angry at Mr. LAMBTON'S secession, and jealous of Mr. TAYLOR'S dinner, or all together, forced on a division; and the important the paramount—the vital question of REWORD. the paramount—the vital question of REFGEM was decided in a thinner House, and by smaller majorities. than Colonel Davies's motion to reduce fourteen shillings and ten pence three farthings from the allowance of coals for the Aid-du-Camp's room at the Herse-Guards.

We have heard (but, not having seen it, cannot believe) that when, in some hour or half hour after, Mr. LAMBTON, preceded by his groans, and followed by BROUGHAM, rushed indignantly into the House to complain, before the Grand Inquest of the Nation, of the strangulation of his new-born child—there was a general laugh !-which Mr. SPEAKER very properly reprimanded, in some of the grave common-places usual on such

Be that as it may, we know that nothing out of doors ever excited so strong a sensation of ridicule as the whole of this miserable affair; and, as if the thing were not sufficiently absurd in itself, the Morning Chronicle was malicious enough to enter into a grave defence of Mr. TAYLOR's dinner-party, who are represented (very wisely sinking the Taylor) as having "just stepped out into the House of Commons' Coffee-room," to partake of that short and scanty refreshment which their labours in the service of their country had rendered absolutely necessary. The dogs had been a mile off, eating Soup à la Reine, and fuddling themselves with little MICHAEL ANGELO's claret.

We are no great friends with the Courier—he calls himself well-bred as an excuse for dallness, and affects peliteness when he has nothing to say; but, to do him justice, his answer to this assertion of the Morning Chronicle is in a little better taste than the usual run of his lucubrations, and we shall therefore insert it, for the amusement of our Readers, being (as the Reviewers say) a favourable specimen of the author's style, and a succinct statement of the matter in discussion.

"The division of Wednesday night, however, was no less mexpected than laughable. The reformers thought they could carry their point by a coup de main, by instantly dividing the House, though in the absence of the mover of the question, the seconder, and nearly all those who had spoken in its support. The cry of "Question! question!" without one single exception, proceeded from the Opposition benches, and Lord Milton's raice, as we are informed, was particularly distinguished. They would not even hear Mr. Canning, who yielded to the impatience of the other side, and sat down. If, therefore, there was any "trick or management," as the Morning Chroniele complains, it was on the part of Mr. Lambton's friends, and not on that of the Government.

"That this, indeed, was the real cause of the division is evident from these two facts, that the Chancellor of the Excheevident from these two facts, that the Unancettor of the excae-quer endeavoured to protract the discussion, and did in fact delay the division for at least a quarter of an hour—and Mr. Canning said, that he was anxious to deliver his sentiments, but that he could not do so in the absence of both the mover but that he could not do so in the absence of bour the mover and seconder of the motion, and of its principal supporters. So much fer the Chronicle's accuracy, as to the general state of the fact. Equally unlucky is it, in the details of this matter. It represents "Mr. Lambton, Mr. Hobbouse, Mr. Maxwell, and other advocates of Reform, as having gene up stairs for a few minutes, to get refreshment, and as being shut out." Now the truth is, that Mr. Lambton had gone, clean and clear away, and was dining at Mr. Mishael Angelo Taylor's with a party, ad hurried away, and pale and begone, like the man who

Drew Prim's curtains is the dead of night,
And would have told him half his Troy was burn'd, interrupted the festivities of the Members for Durham, with the sad news that "their motion for Reform was lost."

Mr. Hobbouse was just gone up stairs, but it was up stairs in the King's Bench, where he was diving with his friend Br Francis Burdett; and pledging, no doubt, hearty toasts to Herry and reform.

As to Mr. Maxwell, he also had just stapped out for refreshment; but it was, we believe, about six weeks ago; and the last time we heard of him, was certainly in a situation in which we should not have thought any gentleman would have placed himself by way of *refreshment, for he was in the wair-of a public meeting at Lenark, at which Mr. Owen was making a speech which had lasted four hours when the last; advices come away, while we are not sure that Mr. Maxwell may not, at this very hour, be still in the same chair.

" As to the principal advocates,

"Acto the principal advocator, We suppose Mr. Mrougham is meant. This is as correct as all, the rest. Mr. Brougham was, like Mr. Lambton, at Mr. To'ylor's, partaking the elegant hospitalities of that noted Amplystrion, whose kitchen smokes, as we are informed, during the Session of Parliament, like a steam-engine, and rums a chronce of being indicate for a muistance under Mr. Taylor's own D'ill. It would, indeed, be a happy amendment to Mr. Taylor's Bill, if his guests were to be obliged to consume their own smoke."

After this long, prose, which, however, will appear short to any body who has read the debate, as we did, we bag leave, "pour egayer la matiere," to insert two or three little poetical observations, which have been dropped into our letter-box, upon the subject; a subject which, though the make a serious effect on the thinking hy, sannot fail to make a serious effect on the thinking part of the English pation, when they see that this part of the English nation, when they see that this question of Reform, in its lowest details, as well as its highest principles, is a MISERABLE HUMBUO!

No. I.

"Peppery Lambton is a devil,"

"Jaid our song,—'twas thought uncivil;
"But now the Radicals, turn'd railers,
Call him "The Devil among the Taylors!" No. 11.

The Radicals say, by some trick of debate,
That Lamaron contriv'd his own motion to smother;

For our parts we see nothing strange in its fate—
Begot at one dinner—it died by another!

Postschift.—The Morning Chronicle, admitting all the facts stated by the Courier the day before, (except that of Mr. MAXWELL's being still in Scatland), informs that Mr. MAXWELL's was actually in town beging travelled four hundred and fifty miles-

Oh, Jacky Maxwell! Jacky Maxwell, oh! 'Twas hardly worth your while to come and go A thousand miles, all-sleepless and all sore, Only to see—the wrong side of a door!

To which we beg leave to subjoin a new and excellent Ballad, to the tune of " Soger Laddie," on the same subject.

MICHAEL'S DINNER; OR, STAUNCH PRIENDS TO REPORM.

Para Reform -celestial maid! Rope of Britons!—hope of Britons! Calls her followers to her nid; She has fit ones!—she has fit ones!
They would brave, in danger's day,
Death to win her!—Death to win her!
If they met not by the way
MICHARL's dimer—MICHARL's dimer!

LAMBTON leads the petriot van ; Noble fellow—generous fellow! Quite the dandy of the clan— Rather yellow—rather yellow i
Of fair Liberty he tells
Tales bewitching—tales hewitching;
But they vanish, when he smells
MICHAEL'S kitchen—MICHAEL'S kitchen!

Lawyor Broots and is next in runk;
Prates like Babel—prates like Babel;
He has stover ent or drank
At Brib'ry's table—Brib'ry's table;
What, then; now one step his month,
In this hot age—in this hot age?
Fig. 49 he would tell the bruth;

MICHAEL's pologo MICHAEL'E pologe

HOBHOUSE who pretends to me Cur of BURDETT—cur of BURDETT;
Fir'd his pop-gun, but the House
Never heard it—never heard it;
He foresaw, from Canning's lash,
Stripes too cutting—stripes too cutting,
So he sneak'd away to hash

MICHAEL'S mutton-MICHAEL'S mutton.

Where was, on that famous night, Home the suggest f—He see the surgeon? Who pretends to set us right

By constant purging—constant punging;
No division yet expecting—Fond of work, he—food of work, he—
At the moment was dissecting
MICHAEL's turkey!

Enneumen his place may whoese
In the beny—in the bevy;
He's the real Taylon's guest,
Het end heavy—het and heavy—
He'd out-do, with sword and flame,
SENNA-CHERIE.—SENNA-CHERIE. .What, that evening, made him tame? Migham's spere ris—Missaare's spere ris.

Thus the social round they form, In Privy-Gardens—Privy-Gard

And they came, about Revoam,
And they came, about Revoam,
Not three farthings—not three farthings.
To yawn and vote ket others stay,
Who can bear it—who can bear it;
They, much wiser, drink away
Michanic's clarify—Michanic's clarif.

While ye thus, in claret, Sirs, Lose your reason—lose your reason;

England will recover hers, Lost last season—lost last season! Faction's mobs—Sedition's bordes Must grow thinner—must grow thinner,
When plain Common Sense records MICHAEL'S dinner-MICHAEL'S dinner!!!

We present our Readers to-day with a new Song from an old Correspondent. He made it a condition. that as the tune is old, and, netwithstanding its vivecity, something obsolete, we should reprint it, for the benefit of our Female Readers; and we carnestly recommend those who have any taste for the united charms of music and pleasantry to accompany the words with the air. A song, as Dr. Johnson somewhere says, is made to be sung;—and whatever we may think of the postical monit of these with which we have been favoured, we are aware that they can be but imperfectly felt, unless our readers would be so indusent as to recollect that they are orbits. indulgent as to recollect that they are nothing but

MRS. MUGGINS'S VISIT TO THE QUEEN.

And who were your company —Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am?

Who were your company, ho?

---We happen'd to drop in,

With Gen'men from Warring,

Ladder from Blownladden-Row. And Ladies from BLOWBLADDER-ROW.

What saw you at Brandensungh— Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am?
What saw you at Brandensuron, ho?
—We saw a great dame,
With a face red at flame,
And a character spotless as snow——snow

And a character spotless as snow.

And what said her Majesty—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am? What said her Majesty, ho? —What Landerstood's,

And who were attending her-Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am? Who were attending her, ho?
—Lord Hoon for a man, For a MAID, Lady ANNE, And Alderman Wood for a beau-

And Alderman Wood for a beau. And the Alderman's family—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am?

—The Alderman's family, ho?

— Yes—Groney, and Kirry,

One fat—t'other pretty,

And the son who was brought up at Bow—Bow

The son who was brought up at Bow.

And had she no Counteress—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am? Had she no Countesses, ho? — O yes!—painted JERSEY, Who might have worn kersey,

Had folks their deserts here, below——le Had folks their deserts here below. And had she no other, Ma'am—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am? Mad she no other, Ma'am, ho?

—There was one Lady Grex,

War no one from Choxvers there—Heigh, Ma'am, he, Ma'am? No one from CROXTETH there, ho? –Ob, 20—Lady Sz≠ton

Would sooner have left town Both her and her daughters—than go..... Both her and her daughters—than go.

And had she no Commoners—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am? Had she no Commoners, ho? —I happen'd to look, And could find in her book,

Only Fergusson, Tation, and Co. Fergusson, Tation, and Co.

had she no son-in-law—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'em?
Liad she no son-in-law, ho?
—Yes; time-serving Lacrond,
A paper that we uphold,
Though neither for use nor fer show—show

Neither for our nor for show.

they moet tenderly.—Helgh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am?
Did they meet tenderly, ho?
— They were both so intent, About taxes and reat.

That they never once thought of their wee They never once thought of their woe.

she no Counsellors—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am? Had she no Counsellors, ho?

— Yes; one Mr. Brougham,

Who sneak'd out of her room,

Pretending the Circuit to go — go

Pretending the Circuit to go. How fared he at Lancaster—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am? How fared he at Lancaster, ho? -They physical dand bled, And they blinter to his head, And kept him uncommonly low-lead kept him amcommonly low.

Had she no solicitor—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am? Had she no solicitor, ho?
—Yes, one Mr. Vizano, Who being no winard,

She overboard hastened to throw -throw She overboard hastened to throw. sho.two.Chemberlains...Heigh, Ma'am, họ, Ma'am ?

Has she two Chamberlains, ho?

—Yes! both strapping fellows,
Would make a man joalous, With whiskers as black as a crow-With whiskers as black as a crow. And had she no beggar's brat - Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am?

Had she no beggar's brat, ho?

—Yes, one, pale and silly,

Whom she calls Sir Billy;

But whose brat he is, I don't know—kr
But whose brat he is, I don't know.

And has she a Clergyman- Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am?

Has she a Clergyman, ho?

—Yes, one Doctor Fellowes,
Who puffs like a bellows,
The coals of sedition to blow——blov The coals of sedition to blow.

And has she no General—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am? Has she no General, ho?
—Yes, poor prating Wilson,
Who, if he e'er kills one,
"Tis more by a word than a Mos-

Tis more by a word than a blow.

To whom she does nothing but owe.
To whom she does nothing but owe.

Has she a good table, Ma'am—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am?
Has she a good table, Ma'am, ho?
—There is one Mrs. Willia,
Who her cook-maid is styled,

But they say that her soups are se-so. They say that her soups are so-so.

And what are her deinhables—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am?

What are her drinkables, ho?

— It being but noon,
She said 'twas too soon
For any thing else but Noyeau.

Any thing else but Noyeau.

And has she a bed-fellow—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am? Has she a bed-fellow, ho? -I asked one VASSALLI, Who said, "Fi-done, allez,

"Ma chere, you no business to know."
"You have no business to know." How spent she her time abroad—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am

How spent she her time abroad, ho?
—In hugging her valet, And dancing a ballet, And kissing Porm Pros's toe Kissing Poru Pius's toe.

Was she at Jerusalem—Heigh, Ma'am, bo, Ma'am? Was she at Jerusalem, bo? —She borrowed an ass, To ride ou—but, alas!

ishe could n't get dankey to go

She could n't get donkey to go.

What din she in Arnica... Heigh, Ma'am, họ, Ma'am?

What did she in Arnica, ho?

—She set, at ALGIERS,
All the Turks by the ears,
Till they found she was Afty or as —
Till they found she was fifty or so.

What did she in LOMBARDY—Heigh, Ma'am, bo, Ma'am? What did she in LOMBARDY, bo? ---Her tradeomen abe pilfered, Bamboosled Long Guilmonn

And choused MARIETTI AND CO. And choused MARIETTI AND Co.

What did she at Narotz—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am? What did she at Narotz, ho? -With sorrow I speak it, She went, Mother naked,

And laurelled the bust of Kine Joz.

And laurelled the bust of Kine Joz.

Will she have a drawing-room—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am? Will she have a drawing-room, ho?

—Oh, yes, I presume,
That she might find a room,
If she could but find any to go—ge
If she could but find any to go.

Will she soon sail for ITALY--Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am? Soon sail for ITALY, ho? She'll go there no more

Since what BARBARA swore, She fears German spies on the Po-She fears German spies on the Po.

Will she go to Switzerland—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am? Will she go to Switzerland, he? -She save that the Swiss, Never tell when they kiss, So she's all for the Pays de Vaud-She's all for the Pays de Vaud.

In which country her Majesty has actually taken a house.

· Chair Little

TO THE RIGHT REV. THE LORD BISHOP OF LONDON. My LORD—Through the medium of JOHN BULL, I take the liberty of calling your Lordship's attention to the fact, that a new Liturgy is published in quarto, and small octavo, by W. Baynes and Son, Paternoster row, in which the name of the Queen appears in the Litany; and several alterations and interpolations are avowedly and professedly made in the text.

I have been taught to believe, that disobedience to an Order in Council might be considered a crime, and a punishable one. JOHN BULL of last Sunday published a copy of the Bill, announcing the use of this Liturgy at a Chapel at Hampstead. I conclude with the view of attracting the notice of those who have the power to enforce obedience to the dicts of Government. I take the liberty of pressing the fact of the publication of this spurious Prayer-book upon your Lordship, in hopes that if the law cannot or will not interfere, the Church, for their own sakes as wellas ours, will take some trouble to check the open defiance of good order, orthodoxy, and morality.—I am, Sir, yours,
A LAYMAN.

THE "ON DIT!"-(No. III.)

We have been requested to insert the following paragraph:-In our Paper of last Sunday, we alluded to a report, said to have been pretty generally circulated, of the Queen's having nominated to the office of her Private Secretary account general leman residues in London. We have since learnt, from under the control of the said doubted authority, that the report is altogether false, and that it had been devised and propagated by persons actuated by feelings of a personal and malignant nature.—As we have been accessary to the circulation of this report, (which turns out to be as ridiculous as it is false) we think it right, thus publicly to make all the reportation of the gentleman whose to make all the reparation in our power to the gentleman whose character we had unintentionally misrepresented.

We can very readily enter into the feelings which Mr. Baxter has expressed upon hearing the report to which he alludes. Under the head of the On Dir, we profess to give our readers, not what we say, but what other people say, and say generally: we therefore inserted that which met and say generally: we therefore inserted that which met our ears in every club, and every other house we went into; but seeing the honest indignation with which Mr. Baxter repels the charge of having accepted a place under her Majesty, we very much lament that we added to the currency of the report. We admit the injury we have unintentionally done to that gentleman's character, by circulating so gross an appearing upon it, and we are most circulating so gross an aspersion upon it, and we are most ready to give a place to the expression of his gentlemanly and proper denial of any such degrading connexion.

It cannot, we think, however, fail to mark the place the Queen occupies in society, and the estimation in which her favours and countenance are held, when an individual considers, that a simple report of his having been appointed to an office of the first trust and confidence about her Majesty's person, to be an injury to his character, for which he requires all possible reparation; and which, he thinks, could only have been propagated from feelings of personality and malevolence!

As for the story, we believe it originated with Lady

On dit, that the Queen, when she embarked for the Continent, took with her a young lady, two years younger than the late Princess Charlotte—that the young lady was brought up at Bath, and was conveyed to Worthing by the matron, under whose care she was reared. On dit, that a husband was ready for her on her arrival on the Continent, and that her father was a Prince, now dead. The On dit goes, that the Queen knows who her mother was, but that, as it would be breaking up new ground, it is not supposed she is likely to inform us. On dit that an application was made to her so long ago as November last, on the subject; and that the was then told, that if she on the subject; and that she was then told, that if she chose to publish the letter which was sent to her, she might know who it came from!

On dit, that most munificent and magnificent Nobleman THE EASI. OF FIFE, has, at his own proper charge, built a green-room in the Opera House, for the accommodation of the actresses and their friends, in which his Lordship is to be found, at all times, seated on an ottoman, and surrounded by the Ladies of the profession. He has presented to the Theatre, for the decoration of this classical apartment, a large mirror, reaching from the floor to the ceiling of the Sanctum, which the wags, who have no fun but laughing at his Lordship's folly, call the Peer glass.

On dit, Bergami's sister, the washer-woman, nick-named Countess of Oldi, is off to Switzerland, to get the Queen's Villa ready. Lady Jersey was unable to go, on account of her children.

The following Correspondence has appeared in the Morning
Post, addressed to the Editor.

Sir—Having only returned from Wiltsbire last night, I take the earliest opportunity of redeeming the sledge I gave before my departure, in your Paper of the 18th inst. of making such a Statement as I consider necessary to the occasion, in reply to, and in explanation of, the extraordinary Correspondence given and in explanation of, the expressions of the expression in your Journal of the 12th, and purposting to be that of Colonel Palmer and myself. I therefore subjoin, with notes, the only letters that have passed between Locd Foley, Colonel Palmer, and myself, in reference to the subject of his Lordship's appliqued in to me of the 5th of this month: on which occasion and myself, in reference to the subject of his Lordship's appli-cation to me of the 5th of this month; on which occasion Colonel Palmer first did me the favour to call on Lord Foley in the capacity of my friend; and I have only to declare, upon my honour, that the following is the only correspondence with which I am cognizant; and whatever letters Colonel Palmer may have written these are the only ones which I have ever which I am cognizant; and whatever letters Colonel Palmer may have written, these are the only ones which I have ever recoived, or with the purport of which I was made acquainted previous to their publication.—I am, Sir, Jour obe tiest Servant,

J. WEBSTER WEDDERBURNE.

Tuesday, 17th April, 1821.

(Copies).

TO J. W. WEDDERBURNE, ESQ.

Hamilton-place, April 5, 1821,

Sir-Lord Potersham has just learnt that, an infamous report is in great circulation, and that a paragraph has appeared in the British Press of this day, misrepresenting a rencontre that took place between you and him, and which reflects upon his took place between you and him, and which reflects upon his personal bonour; I am desired by Lord Petersham to state to the second of the second

The state of the s

you, that it is absolutely necessary that an immediate contra-diction of this scandalous and false report should proceed from The necessity of an immediate answer to this I need not point out to you.... I am, Sir, your obedient Servant, FOLEY.

TO LOBD FOLEY.

Thursday, 5th April, Nine, p. m.

Mr. Websier Wedderburne has this moment received Lord

Foley's note; in reply to which he has only to observe, that roley's note; in reply to which he has only to observe, that he does not hold himself responsible for the reports of public Journals; but begs to assure Lord Foley, that he is ready to receive any other communication which he may have to make on the part of Lord Petersham.

TO J. W. WEDDERBURNE, ESQ.

Hamilton-place, Thursday Evening.

Sig.—In reply to your note of this evening, in which you sto that you are willing to receive any communication from Lord Petersham, but that you are not accountable for the reports of the Journals; I have only to observe, that it is absolutely necessary that a direct contradiction of the paragraph alluded to should be immediately made. I have therefore drawn out the enclosed, which I trust I shall have your sanction to being inserted in the British Press of to-morrow if possible; if not, in the next publication .- I am, &c. &c. .

(Signed)

(Signed) FOLEY.

Paragraph which Lord Foley enclosed.

"We have the most positive authority to contradict a paragraph that appeared in our Paper of the 5th under the title of "Extraordinary Fracas in High Life:" in which it is stated, that in a rencontre between Mr. W. W. and Lord P. in the neighbourhood of St. James's, Mr. W. W. used his cane, as well as the most opprobrious epithets. The above-mentioned authority proceeds from both parties."

I had called an Colonel-Palmer some days before the receipt.

I had called on Colonel-Palmer some days before the receipt of Lord Foley's letters, and had some general and confidential conversation with him on my affairs. The above occasion, however, was that upon which I first requested him to call on lord Foley in the causaity of my friend. Lord Foley in the capacity of my friend.

If I had not convinced Colonel Palmer of the impossibility of my sanctioning the statement, as worded in Lord Foleys paragraph, the following letter would not have been agreed to mutually between us, and sent as the necessary reply to his

MY LORD—You are aware of the circumstance which has prevented my answering your Lordship's letter, received at a very late hour on my return home last night, till the present moment.

With respect to the paragraph, contradicting that which speared in the Press of yesterday, to which your Lordship requests my sanction, I beg to observe that I can in no way interfere, without entering at once into a full and particular explanation of the circumstance, which might be equally unsatisfactory to Lord Petersham: but his Lordship is at liberty to correct any paragraph which may have appeared, as he thinks tisfactory to Lord Petersham: but his Lordship is at liberty to correct any paragraph which may have appeared, as he thinks proper, holding himself responsible to me for the correctness of his statement.—I am your Lordship's obedient Servant, (Signed) J. W. WEDDERBURNE.

Colonel Palmer saw Lord Foley by appointment the following day, after which interview, and nuch discussion with myself, as to the impossibility of going the length of Lord Foley's request on the one hand, and of his Lordship's adherence to some explanatory measure that might be satisfactory to Lord Petersham's friends on the other, I determined on rence to some explanatory measure that might be satisfactory to Lord Petersham's friends on the other, I determined on placing my honour entirely in the hands of Colonel Palmer, convinced that I could not delegate a trust so dear to myself in better; and as I gave him a carte blanche to act upon, he did not hesitate to give me the following letter at my request:

DEAR WEDDERBURNE—As you leave your honour entirely in my hands, in the settlement of the affair betwist Lord Petersham and yourself, I do not hesitate to assure you, that in whatever way I conclude the business, I take the whole responsibility on myself, and consider your honour as my own.—Faithfully yours, (Signed) CHARLES PALMER.

J. W. Medderburne, Esq. 9c 9c.

Upon the receipt of such a document, Colonel Palmer was

Upon the receipt of such a document, Colonel Palmer was of course fully authorised to act as he pleased; and it would have been impossible for me to have called in question the course he thought fit to pursue, so long as the above please remained unredeemed.

The following paragraph was that which Colonel Palmer considered consistent with my honour to sanction, and it must be presumed agreed to by Lord Foley, as being satisfactory to the friends of Lord Petersham:

the friends of Lord Petersham:

"We have authority to declare upon the subject of a paragraph respecting an extraordinary Fraces in high life, which appeared in our Paper of the 5th instant, that the fact of one of the parties having submitted to any treatment derogatory to his honour or character as a Gentleman, is wholly unfounded.

We have the same authority to disnow any other statement We have the same authority to disavow any other statement

We have the same authority to disavow any other statement which may have appeared relative to the affair in question."— (British Press, 9th April.).
Now, if this measure meant any thing, or if any object was to be attained by its adoption, I contend that further demand on one part, or accession on the other, was rendered impossible. It was however, with great surprise, that I saw the matter It was, however, with great surprise, that I saw the matter brought fully and unnecessarily before the public, in Colonel Palmer's Letter to myself, in The Morning Post and Brilish

Palmer's Letter to myself, in The Morning Post and Brillish Press of the 10th instant, in which he publicly redeemed the pledge he had given me in his private letter of the 8th instant.

I determined on replying by the same channel, immediately to this letter, and had sent one to the Press, on Tuesday the 10th, with as little intimation to Colonel Palmer as he used in first addressing me upon the subject. Almost verbatim to the first addressing me upon the subject, almost verbatim to that which appeared by his insertion on the 12th.

Colonel Palmer was very anxious that my reply (which be had not then seen) should be postponed, and in compliance with his solicitations, I accompanied him and Mr. Hawkins, (who had come purposely to town from 100 miles distance at the joint request of Colonel P. and myself) to the offices of the Morning Post, and Press, where I agreed "to modify any part which he could satisfactorly convince me would be inexpedient." Without, bowever, coming to this point, the opposition of Colonel P.'s wishes and my own was immaterial, as the effect of our discussions was—that the persons conducting the effect of our discussions was—that the persons conducting the Press actually refused to lasert my letter, and it only remained for me to assure Colone. P., that, convinced as I was, of the necessity of some reply, so public as he thought fit to make his address, no arguments should induce me to change my opinion.

The next (Wednesday) morning I received the following note from Colonel Palmer, which is the only one of any description. I received from him on Wednesday.—

Dear W.—I am so newell I cannot leave my bed—so pray come here as soon as you can, and if I am unable to satisfy your mind as to the propriety of my letter (that of Colonel P.'s published of the 10th), and that your answer is totally unnecessary, you must publish. As for any offence meant to unnecessary, you must publish. As for any offence meant to 100 mm (100 mm) (100

you, is not showing it to you previously, I think my conduct throughout must convince you to the contrary. The only reason was, I knew you would not like it, and, therefore, as I considered it necessary to publish it, it was much less offensive do it without administration with me administration of the resident of the second of dered it necessary to publish it, it was indeal as obtained to do it without advising with you than a ngainst your consent. Come as early as you can, for if you are determined to write, the more time you have to consider it the better, and I hope you are convinced on reflection, that I could not have done better than in preventing it last night.—Faithfully your's,

Will you breakfast here? By the bearer of this note I sent the following reply to Colonel P. little imagining I was writing that, which in a few hours I was to see in the Public Papers:

DEAR PALMER,—I only cutrent we may have non petition of the unpleasant and endless discussions of last night, a or if I did the unpleasant and endless discussions of last night, t or if I did not solemnly and firmly believe some reply indispens vible, no power on earth could have isduced me to make one. You must therefore derive The Post and The Press to insert it to day; I shall modify any thing which could possibly be constrated as against poor Lady Frances, whose benour and feelings are, God knows, secred to me... The fraces of last night (for you wently made it one) will no doubt form matter for new paragraphs—nothing though, to be serious, can change my intaintios, and as you thwarted it last night, you must promote it now. I can't breakfast with you, but will call at ten. Evalyour's sincerely, **Model of the stress of the Wodnesday.

There is one word necessary in reference to the above sup-posed-fracas, and in reference to Colonel P.'s having then de-leated my wishes, and it is this—that of whatever cheracter our future intercourse may be, I own it to supposed to eater, my firms— felief, that Colonel Palmer's epposition on this occasion, and his zeal to promote what he considered the interest of those in whose cause he had so warmly embarked, emanated from the best motives, and an anticipation of the effects which any in-temperance on my part (that from my state of mind and excited feelings he had every reason to apprehend) might produce to the There is one word necessary in reference to the above supfeelings he had every reason to apprehend) might produce to the contrary.

According to appointment, I called on Colonel R. on Wednesday forenoon, and then gave him the letter which I wished published that night, and which differed in no material point from the one which was withdrawn the preceding; and I suggested that it would perhaps as well attain the object in view; if he addressed one to me, explaining his reasons for having at first done so without my knowledge, and that either mode was immaterial to myself.

I dired that day with Col. Palmer in the Albany, when he expressed himself much satisfied with my reply, and had determined on publishing it, instead of a letter from himself, and for mined on publishing it, instead of a letter from himself, and for which express purpose be left me to go to The Marming Post Office after dinner. Under such circumstances," my asientishment" the next morning was certainly equal to Col. Palmer's expectations, on seeing the singular, and, to myself and friends, almost inexplicable correspondence which appeared on the 12th inst., in which my unfortunate letter is dignified by a place in the rear, and therefore made to appear as a reply to letters I had never either seen or received.

had nover either seen or received.

Now, in regard to those letters, and first, in reference to that in which Colonel Palmer makes a grantitious declaration "that no blow did pass between Lord Petersham and myself," I should certainly not have allowed any feelings upon this occasion to hetery we into an allusion of that rechesions director than betray me into an allusion of that transaction, further them this—that although from what has before been stated, and the this—that although from what has before been stated, and abaresult of Colonel P.'s negociation with Lord Foley, I did not, and do not consider either party were justified in again sefering to an event which secures three weeks ago, I most hold muself perfectly disentangled by the above public declaration, which I am at a loss to know on whose information Col. Palmer has made, and upon a transaction to which he was not a witness;—on that event, however, I shall not have a most required to the declaration on mer own personal remembilities as as public a declaration on my own parsenal responsibility as that which has been made by Golonel Pulmer.

Lastly, as far as my own feelings may be at issue with the documents which Colonel P., as my professed friend, has given to the world, I have only to observe, that if he means to openey any injurious reflections, I have too good an opinion of his candour to suppose be would have chosen an equivocal, and therefore an ungenerous mode of expressing them. If this conviction be erroneous, I am sorry that the course pursued was not made so plain and intelligible that no doubt could remain as to the so plain and intelligible that no doubt could remain as to the feelings and intentions of either party.

Mr. Burke (I think) said "a man's situation is the preceptor of his duty;"—miles has forced me (God knows how unwillingly) before the public; but this is the bast occasion on which any thing, but the same necessity I have now to lament, shall induce me to obtrude.—I am, Sir, your very obedient servant, J. WEBSTER WEDDERBURNE.

Tuesday Evening, April 17, 1821.

The JOURNAL of LITERATURE, advertised in this Raper, has created a great sensation in the public mind, and we have little doubt that it will answer the expectations it has raised. No pains nor expense will be spared to procure the best Com-munications; and the Criticisms on Foreign as well as English Books, Strictures on the Pine Arts, the Pulpit, the Bar, and the Stage, will all be contributed by writers of acknowledged talent.—It is the intention of the conductors to review three Works (if possible); in each number; it will be evident, from the size of the publication, that they cannot be long or very elaborate, but they will be strictly Reviews-not Resays, having only the titles of works prefixed to them, but such candid and impartial remarks on Books, and such extracts from them as may guide the reader in his choice or purchase.

The Summer Theatres, to-morrow, display their wonted attractions, to draw in the holiday folks. Amongst them all, we have been told, that Sadler's Wells is likely to be pre-eminently successful this season. It is opened under the direction of Egerton, of Cavent Garden Theatre, and possesses a company of performers much stronger than the minor places of amusement generally bring into the field.

DESTINATION OF REGIMENTS .- 4th Dragoons and 18th Hus-DESTINATION OF REGIMENTS.—4th Dragoons and 18th Hossars; to India.—5th and 17th Light Dragoons, to come home from India.—ist Batt. Royal Scots, from Ireland to the Mauritius.—13th, 41st, and 44th, from home to India.—38th and 54th, from the Cape of Good Hope to India.—33d and 91st from home to the West Indies.—49th and 55th from home to Cape of Good Hope.—58th and 61st, come home from the West Indies.—68th comes from St. Helena.—6th to St. Helena.—75th from the Ionian Isles to Gibraltar.—51st and 58th from home to Mediterranean.—82d from the Mauritius to Infrom home to Mediterranean.—82d from the Mauritius to India.—17th, 53d, 59th and 65th come home from India.

FASHIONABLES.

His Majesty will renew bis royal entertainments with a grand ball at the Pavilion, Brighton, to-morrow evening, to which a wamber of the nobility and gentry are invited.

The celebration of His Majesty's birth-day, on Thursday the 3d of May, is to be observed in the same manner as the late King's birth-day was, when he was in the full enjoyment of his health. After the Drawing-room the King will give a Ball at his Palace in Pull-mall.

The Countess of Mansfield had a party at her house in Lower Grosvenor-street, on Monday, which was attended by a numerous assemblage of inshionables. Card-tables were laid, but it was intended for a conversazzione, and turned out, upon the whole, rather of the dullest.

The same evening, a Mrs. Peploe entertained a small party, who also visited Lady Mansfield; what the emertainment consisted of, which they left for her Ladyship's, we do not know, but the move was a rash one.

Lady Sandwich gave a dinner the same day; above forty refreshers joined the party in the evening.

The Marquess of Salisbury and family have left town for Hatfield House. The Earl of Liverpool gives a full-dress dinner on the 3d of May, in bonour of His Majesty's birth-day. Admiral Sir Alexander and Lady Cochrane have postponed the Ball they intended to have given to-morrow, in celebration of His Majesty's birth day, to Wednesday, the 25th, that it might not interfere with the Annual Public one given on the

Sir Henry Wellesley is expected home from his embassy at the Court of Madrid very shortly; leaving Lionel Hervey, Esq. as Charge d' Affaires.

BETTING-ROOM, Thursday .- Odds on Races to come .- The 8st. 7lb. Stake is one of the most interesting of the next week, at Newmarket; betting as follows, with variations important to sportsmen:—5 to 4 agst Banker, 2 to 1 agst Antar, 5 to 1 agst Reginald, 3½ to 1 agst Stime, 4 to 1 agst Morel.—Derby:
4½ to 1 agst Reginald, 7 to 1 agst Gustavus, 9 to 1 agst Charm, 11 to 1 agst Jock, 12 to 1 agst Morel.—Oaks, 7 to 2 agst My Lady, 8 to 1 agst Augusta.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The public ought to be on their guard with respect to the shillings for 1820, as there are a number of counterfeits cur-rent. They may be known by the coarse manner in which the head is executed, or by an examination of the figures under it. In the genuine coin the lower part of the 2 in 1829 is formed by a straight line, in the false one it is curved; in the former also the cypher is of an oval shape, while in the false it is nearly circular, and of an uniform thickness throughout.

The discovery ships, under the orders of Capt. Parry, will sail from Deptford in about a week.

Canova has just finished a noble statue of a horse, which he prides himself upon as one of the very best works be has pro-

The Light Horse Volunteers held a field-day on Tuesday. The appearance of the regiment is much impreved by the adoption of the shakes in lieu of the belinet.

Sittings before the Lord Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench, Easter Term.

IN TERM. Middlesex. May 12 Tuesday - - May 15
18 Monday - - 21
Monday - - 28
June 1 Saturday - - June 2
AFTER TERM. - May 12 Saturday -Priday

Thursday -Friday -Toriday 5 | Wednesday Sit at 12 o'clock on the 12th, 15th, 18th, 21st, 24th and 28th of May; and at half-past 9, on the 1st, 24, 5th, and 6th of June. The Clerkship of the Check at Deptford Dock Yord, now vacant by the promotion of G. Garner, Esq. to that of Chat-tham, is not again to be filled up.

The Royal Marines are to-morrow to appear in their new dress and equipments which has been approved of by His Majesty.

Captain Parry gave a superb dejeune, on board the Fury, off Deptford, on Monday, to the Lords of the Admiralty, and many other distinguished personages, previous to his proceeding on his voyage to the North Pole.

An officer of the Guards, now stationed at Plymouth, has won a considerable wager, by having gone from door to door for a formight, selling matches, disguised as a female, without being apprehended. His address and appearance was exactly that of a woman who had seen better days. Tuesday the dispatches for China, by the ship Hythe, Capt.

J. P. Wilson, were closed at the East India House, and delivered to the purser of that ship.

On Wednesday the Despatches for China, by the ship Here-fordshire, Captain W. Hope, were closed at the East India

House and delivered to the Purser of that ship.
On Wednesday, a ballot was tuken at the East India House for the purpose of determining the following question: viz.—
"That Sir Harry Verelst Durell, Bart, late of the Bengal Civil Establishment, be permitted to return to the kervice, under the provisions of the Act of the 33d Geo. III. cap. 52, sect. 70, with the Rank which he held when he quitted Bengal, agreeably to the Act of 53d Geo. III. cap. 155, sect. 85." At six o'clock the glasses were closed and delivered to the scrutineers, who reported the question to be carried in the affirmative.

ADVERTISEMENT.]-The following portrait will perhaps strike some of our meders; it may be found among others, in a Poem, entitled "High Birth," published by Chapple, Pall-Mall:
But who is he, in robe of saffron hue,
Lac'd, frogg'd, and furr'd, to catch the gaping view?

thou lordly coxcomb, hail ! Come, let thy shaggy phix adorn my tale; Doff thy peak'd beaver, ruffle up thy crop, And bid thy buff-apparell'd gigster stop. What strange " recherche" essence-box is there? Some "dear, dear delightful" scent to fix thy fame, Whilst fops and females die to know the name. What plans of foreign travel hast thou more Nipp'd in the bud, and crushed at half-seas-o'er? The crew too vulgar, too uncouth the wind, Or thy best, happiest spuff-box left behind. Well—go thy ways, a mother wight than thou Ne'er smooth'd the pensive Jacques's wrinkled brow. Yet, some have told—oh, may the tale be true— That thou hast virtues with thy foibles too: A kind, warm heart, all praise, all price ab ve, Praught with fraternal, fraught with filial love. Then be the voice of sense, of reason heard, And let thy follies vanish with thy beard.

CAMBRIDGE, April 20 .- University Intelligence. Messrs. John M. Heathcots, of St. John's College, Edward Lawton, of Clare Hall, and Thomas Bates, of Queen's College, were on Clare Hall, and Thomas Bates, of Queen's College, were on Friday last admitted Bachelors of Arts.

The Rev. Thomas Holmes, M. A. was on Friday last instituted to the Rectory of Holbrook, in Suffolk, on the presentation of S. Holmes, Esq. of Brooke, Norfelk.

The Rev. Wm. Ewin Girdlestone was last week instituted to the Rectory of Kelling with Salthouse annexed, in Norfolk, on the presentation of Zurishaddai Girdlestone, Esq.

The prefer in the late fauld dual at Paris were M. Marinet.

The parties in the late fatal duel at Paris were M. Marinet, a Polish Jew, and M. Beaumont, a Genevese, both Stock Bro-kers. The cause was, the former (who was shot through the heart) having satisfied himself that a criminal intercourse subsisted between his wife and Mr. B. The deceased was the father of six children by his offending wife

A Bill has been brought into the Legislature of New York, to tax bachelors over the age of twenty-eight years, and with the proceeds to create a fund for supporting female literature!

FINE ARTS IN SPAIN.—A gallery of paintings has been established at Madrid by the Government, consisting solely of the works of the most entinent Spanish masters. The number of pictures already amounts to 332, and it is to be still further appeared by acquaints. still further augmented by selections from the various Royal

True Bills have been found by the Grand Jury at the Middle sex Sessions against Robert Werdell, the younger, on two indictments; John Thelwall, Patrick Kelleher, and Thomas Dolby.—The London Grand Jury have also returned true bills against Mary Ann Carlile and J. L. Turner, all for the publication of seditious libels. The whole of these indictments were preferred by the Constitutional Association for opposing the progress of disloyal and seditious principles.

Kennington Common.—According to custom immemorial, KENNINGTON COMMON.—According to custom immemorial, all the loose, idle, and disorderly vagabonds that infest the Borough, Westminster, and other parts of the metropolis, began to assemble on Kennington Common at an early hour on Friday morning, for the disgraceful purpose of devoting this sacred day to drinking, fighting, jack-ass racing, boxing, single stick, dog-fighting, gambling, foot-ball, and picking of pockets. Upwards of 200 Constables, arrived there at an early hour, seized upon several jack assess and gambling tables, and dispersed the rabble. It was dreaded they would be daring enough to make an attack on the Police. an attack on the Police.

OLD BAILEY.

WEDNESDAY.—Edward Mostyn Jones, a young man of respectable family, was indicted for a misdemeanor in making a false affidavit, in order to procure a licence for marriage with Charlotte Lovell, and by that and other false devices, in-veigling her from the home and protection of her natural guardians.

Mr. Adolphus described this as a case of the most gross fraud and this fraud, he said, had been followed up by conduct so base, that it was almost impossible to conceive that a person gifted with a liberal education, and moving in the circle of society which the defendant must have been accustomed to, could have been guilty of. The prosecutor in this case, was Peter Harvey Lovell, Esq. of Cole Park, Wilts; and the defendant a Captain in the North Gloucester Regiment of Militia. femdant a Captain in the North Gloucester Regiment of Militia. Mr. Lovell was blessed with ample property, and a numerous progeny, and his happiness never knew any diminution until the unhappy period, when the defendant became acquainted with the family. This took place at a review of the North Gloucester, at Circnesster, in June last.—After a short acquaintance, the defendant wrote to Mr. Lovell, requesting leave to address his daughter Charlotte, but met with a refusal. This, however, did not deter him; he followed her from one place to another, and finally, having, by falsely swearing that the lady was of age, and that he knew of no impediment, ob-tained a licence, he partly by force, and partly by persuasion, induced her to elope with him. The marriage, however, never took place. In consequence of the death of the Rev. Archdeacon Wills, (some time before this transaction, a near relation of the Lovell family,) who was reported to have left immense property, a rumour had gone abroad that the Misses Lovell would have fortunes of thirty or thirty-five thousand pounds. This the defendant, it was supposed, had heard. When he arrived is London with the young lady, he found, that by marrying her with the licence which he had procured, he should not obtain command over her fortune, and he therefore placed her in lodgings, and caused banns to be published. In the interval, be ascertained that the young lady's fortune was 1,0001. only, and that not to be paid to her until she was of age, and to revert to a relation in case of her death before that time. Upon this discovery, strange and unaccountable, the defendant de-serted the unfortunate young lady, leaving her in such a state, serted the unfortunate young lady, leaving ner in such a kare, that when at length her father found her, her clothes were detained by the landlady of the house, for the payment of rent which was due.—[Here a loud murmur of indignation ran through the Court, but was immediately repressed, with severe animadversions by the Learned Judge.]—Mr. Adolphus having, with some further remarks, concluded his statement, Messrs. Alley and Andrews took an objection to the form of the indictment, which was argued at great length on both sides, and finally reserved by the Court for more mature consideration.

The evidence having been gone through, Mr. Alley was heard for the defendant.—Verdict, Guilty.—Judgment respited.

PROVINCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

-On Tuesday se'nnight, the bachelors gave a fancy hall at York House, at which nearly 300 persons of fashion were present. Dancing commenced at ten, and quadrilles continued until one o'clock; when the company retired to the upper rooms, where every delicacy was displayed which could be procured; the tout ensemble was truly magnificent. The ladies was really and the could be a second to the co ladies were particularly superb.

BRIGHTON.—It is now determined that the statue of His lajesty, which is to be erected here, shall be placed in the north inclosure of the Steyne, instead of the road between them.

Above forty skeletons have, within the last fortnight, been dug up on the Sussex Downs, by fliat-diggers: no doubt part of the slain in the battle that was fought there between King Henry the Third and his Barons, in the year 1264.

Bristot.—On Saturday ee'nnight, the Bristol Mail going to Glorcester was overturned at an elkow of the road, a short distance from Nubbis-Ash Turnpike, when the coach falling on the head of the driver, Samuel Wright, he was killed on the spot. Neither the guard, nor any of the passengers suffered spot. Neither the guard, nor any of the passengers suffered injury.— The poor coachman was a steady, sober man, and much respected.

CHATHAM .- A sad accident happened on Friday se'nnight at the Canal which is cutting through in this neighbourhood by the falling in of a great quantity of earth, which killed three men, and broke both the legs of another: the latter has had one leg amputated, and it is feared must lose the other.

DEAL .- Extract of a letter-the Lapwing, Capt. Gentil, has arrived in the Downs, in 27 days, from St. Domingo:—"On the 2d instant, in lat. 36. 30. long. 50. 43. fell in with a vessel, water-logged, called The Three Brothers, Captain Hutchins, and took therefrom one person, James Munson, who says, that on the 2d March, being on the look out for Bermulat, and the says and the says of a heavy squall came on, upset the vessel on her beam-ends, carried away the fore-mast, and filled her with water, washing the Captain overboard. They had, at this time, a little beet-root, bread and flour, with a little water, but all soaked by the salt water. On this they subsisted for 17 days, and were then about to cast lots who should be killed, but the Mate advised they. should wait till one died, which the poor fellow himself did the next day; (there were left four hands, the Captain's son having died shortly after his father was washed overboard), when Munson took the heart, &c. from the body of the Mute, dried it, and existed 13 days upon it. The other poor fellows could not partake of this disgusting food, and died the day after the GLASGOW .- We are sorry to learn that similar disturbances to those of Ross-shire last year, have broke out among some of the tenantry in Sutherlandshire; and a Field Officer's com-mand of the 41st Regiment has been disputched from Fort George to support the civil power.

HEREFORD .- Reduction of Poor Rates .- We have satisfaction in stating that it appeared to the Magistrates of the hundred of Broxash, at their Petty Sessions, held at Bromyard, on Monday, the 9th instant, that the poor rates in-that hundred were reduced more than 20 per cent. on an average within the last year. We have no doubt that a similar reduction will be found to prevail in other districts.

Hull. About four o'clock on Thursday se'anight, in the afternoon, this town and its neighbourhood were visited by a tremendous thunder storm, accompanied by one of the beaviest falls of hail we have witnessed for a long time. The hails:ones were as big assmall marbles, and many of them augular pieces of ice; which cut the young leaves of the trees profusely, and we fear will have done considerable injury among the early fruit trees. The lightning was vivid.

LINCOLN.—A steeple race, for 100 guineas, was run last week from Sturton church to Wickenby church, between a celebrated mare, the property of T. Grant, Esq. and another belonging to Mr. Stephenson, a distance of ten miles, over a very heavy country, with between twenty and thirty leaps. The ruce was admirably contested, and won by Mr. Stephenson's mare by half a minute. The ground was gone over in 45 minutes.

LIVERPOOL.—The equestrian statue of His late Majesty, which has been so long in hand, is at length nearly completed, and is to be erected at Liverpool the ensuing summer, on a piece of ground at the junction of the London and Penubroke

The bathing-house at Blackpool was, during the late high tide, completely washed down, leaving scarcely one brick upon another, from the irresistible force of the waves.

The typhus fever is unfortunately very prevalent in some parts of Lancashire. During the late Assizes many of the inhabitants died of this dangerous disorder.

MANSFIELD.—At the last market-day several baskets of farthing loaves of bread were exposed for sale, the whole of which were soon purchased.

NORTHAMPTON.—Last week a remarkable and fatal accident happened at Keystone, to a girl about thirteen years of age, the daughter of Mr. Dines, farmer, of that village. She was amusing herself in a rope swing, which was put up in the brewhouse: near to the swing hung another rope, used for drawing up sheep after they had been slaughtered: as the young drawing up sheep after they had been slaughtered: as the young women swung backward and forward, she happened to disturb this second cord, and her head passed into a access formed by the motion of it, which pulled her out of the swing, and held her by the neck a considerable height from the ground, until the unfortunate girl died of strangulation.—Verdict of the Coroner's Jury—Accidental Death.

PLYMOUTH.—Royal Naval Club.—On Thursday our Royal Naval Club met at Whitten's Hotel, to celebrate the anniversary of Lord Rodney's victory over Count de Grame. Above sixty members and their friends being in the room. Major-Gen. Tench members and their friends being in the room, Major-Gen. Tench took the chair at six o'clock. Cuptains Rotherham, (Vice President) G. Dashwood, and G. Sayer, were the only officers present, we believe, now among the surviving heroes who fought on that glorious occasion. Our late worthy Commissioner Pan-shawe, who commanded the Namur, and hore so conspicuous a part in the action, was invited, but was obliged to decline at-tending from age and infirmity. The Club since their last meeting have been honoured with the addition of our highly respected Port Admiral, the Honourable Sir A. J. Cochrane, G.C. B., and Vice Admiral Sir Manley Dixon, K. C. B. -The dinner, which was excellent, was served up in a style suitable to the occasion; and the Royal Marine band being in attend-ance, played some of the most favourite airs. The evening ance, played some of the most favourite airs. The evening closed with great hilarity, and the utmost cordinlity prevailed. The first of August being the anniversary of the Baute of the Nile, was fixed for the next meeting.

SHREWSBURY.—Thomas Palin, who was condemned at these Assizes, for riotously assembling and remaining after the Riot Act was read, and for injaring the iron-works, &c. was executed on Saturday week. Not only the proprietors of the works, but saveral contlements to the vicinity. Interested thems. works, but several gentlemen in the vicinity, interested them-selves to save the life of this unfortunate being, and a petition was also transmitted from this town on his behalf.

WAKEFIELD .- A considerable quantity of clay moulds or matrices for the coining of Roman money, has been turned up within these few days at Lingwell Yate, near here. Thoresby, in his Ducatus, mentions a quantity of similar moulds, found at the same place in 1697. Several crucibles for melting the metal were found at the same time, and in some of the moulds there are coins yet remaining.

ADVERTISEMENT .- SPRING FASHIONS .- Curling the linit still continues to prevail, indeed, it may be called an universal fashion, the effect of a fine head of hair strikes every beholder with admiration, and has always been a favorite theme for the artist's pencil, and the poet's muse, and of all modern inventions for displaying it in the most fuscinating manner, Atkinson's Curling Fluid has long stood pre-eminent, by applying it after curling the hair, it counteracts the harshness which hot irons produce, makes it soft and glossy as silk, and keeps the curl firm during exercise in dancing or walking, or in dump weather. It also removes the dandriffe, prevents the bair falling off or turning grey, and is perhaps the greatest regenerator of hair in the whole areana of nature. It is sold by most respeciable Perfumers, but as there are some very near isnita-tions, the following signature is on the label of the genuine, "James Atkinson, 44, Gerrard Street, London."

SHIP NEWS

MARGATE, April 20.-Sailed the Netherlands frigate Melampus

HARWICH, April 20.—Arrived the Preeling packet with mails from Holland.

PORTSMOUTH, April 20.—Wind E.S.R.—The whole of the outward-bound are now under weigh, with a light breeze from the E.S.E.

FALMOUTH, April 20.—Wind S.W.—Arrived the City of Bdinburgh, Godby, from St. John's, New Brunswick, and Sellly, under jury masts; and Sylph, Milne, from Landon for Naples.

COWES, April 20.—Sailed the Grace, Lethbridge, for New South Wales.

WATCHES.—J. ACKLAM respectfully solicits the attention of those Persons in want of a good WATCH, to his extensive Collection now on Sale, of every description and price, both new and second-hand, which, on inspection, will appear to be little more than half the original cost. The particular attention he exerts in the selection of the best workmanslip, enables him to offer to Purchasers the peculiar advantage of 12 moinths trial.—J. A. has likewise for Sale a variety of Ladies' Gold Watches, from Three Guineas upwards.

Old Watches, Plate, or Jowellery taken in exchange, or purchased, 423, Strand, Corner of Bedford-street.

MAONEY advanced upon solid Securities.—A Gentleman

MONEY advanced upon solid Securities.—A Gentleman is ready to advance any sum of Money from 1891. to 20,0001. npo Notes of Hand, at long or short dates; the Bills must bear the most minute investigation, then they will be cashed upon honourable terms also with dispatch and secrety. Nose but respectable persons can be treated with.—Apply in person, or by letters, post-paid, to Mr. E. G. sole Proprietor, at his house, No. 2, Duke-street, Adelphi, between ten and five.—N. B. Cash also advanced by way of loan upon portable valuable property for any length of time.

A Fashionable light DENNETT, by a first-rate Builder, Baxes, Lamps, &c. in most complete and perfect condition, with an excellent Harness, and a atrong serviceable Horse, about 15; hands, its reary of the perfect of six years old, warranted sound, quiet, and to go pleasantly with Saddle or Wheels; travelled last Autumn with the same Gig about 50 miles for three days successively, and has frequently performed, with similar weight, 60 miles in the 12 hours; to be sold cheap, from peculiar circumstances to be explained by interview, on Monday, Weduesday, or Friday next (only) at Davies's Livery Stables, Carcy-street, near Chan cery-lane, where the Lot may be viewed.

Cery-lane, where the Lot may be viewed.

I ODGINGS, handsomely furnished, in the House of a propertable Family, where there is no other Lodger or Children, in a much-admired neighbourhood, in the County of Kent, five miles from the Bridges. The situation is most desirable, as it is cherrful and airy, in the vicinity of beautiful Walks and Rides, and combines the advantages of Town and Country. Stages pass the door to and from London every hour. Apply (if by letter, post-paid) to Bennet Allen, Esq. Selicitor, No. 2, New Inn, Strand; or to J. Soper, Esq. No. 6, Bt. Helen's-place, Bishopsgate street.

BETATES IN SURREY and BERKS.

TO BE SOLD, in Surrey, 34 miles, in a picturesque and fine Sparting Country, a FREEHOLD RSTATE, comprising a substantial Farm House, (convertible) with Rooms of large dimensions; walled Garden, Coachhouse, Water Corn Mill and Miller's House, with 146 Acres, Meadow, Pasture, Arable and Wood Land, price 4500l. Also, 27 miles, FREEHOLD ESTATE and MANOR, Tythe free, and Land-Tax redeemed, with Cottage-Ornees, superior Offices, and 28 Acres of Land, ahounding with Game.—BUCKINGHAMSHIRE, 33 miles, FREEHOLD and TYTHE-FREE FARM, with House, Farm Buildings, and 47 Acres of Meadow and Arable Land, on a Turripike Road, price 1.500 Guineas. Other Estates throughout the Empire, with and without Manora, Inland and on the Casat, adapted to residence or profitable investment for incone, value 2,000l. to 150,000l.; a List of which will be published on the 1st of May, and forwarded gratuitously, on application (post-paid) to Mr. Siese, Landed Estate, Clerical, and Town and Country House Agent, 41, Soathampton-row.—Advowsons and Presentations, from 300l. to 1,500l. per annum, wanted to purchase. BOTATES IN SURREY and BERKS.

GUTHRIE on GUNSHOT WOUNDS, INJURIES of NERVES, &c.

&c. &c.—Just published, in 6vo, price 16s. in boards, TREATISE on GUN-SHOT WOUNDS, on INJURIES Re. &c. —Just published, in 6vo. price 16s. in boards.

TREATISE On GUN-SHOFT WOUNDS, on INJURIES of NERVES, and on WOUNDS of the EXTREMITIES requiring the different Operations of Amputation: and containing an Account of the Author's successful Case of Amputation at the Hip-joint, &c. &c. &c. — 5; G. J. GUTHRIE, Deputy Inspector of Hospitals during the Peninsular War: Surgeon to the Nosal-Westminster Infirmary for Diseases of the Eye: Consulting Sargeon to the Western Diseases of the Eye: Consulting Sargeon to the Western Diseases of the man and Children; Momber of the Medical and Chirurgical Society of London; Lecturer on Surgery, &c. &c. &c. Operation of the whole of the Surgery of London; Lecturer on Surgery, &c. &c. &c. Departs of the above work is published separately for the convenience of those who have prechased the First Edition, price 2s. boards.

London: Printed for Burgess and Hill, Medical Besistellers, 55, Great Windmill-street, Haynarket.

Also lately published by the same Author, 2. A TREATISE on the OPERATIONS for the FORMATION of an ARTIFICIAL PUPILL: in which the morbid states of the Eye requiring them, are considered, and the mode of performing the operation, adapted to each peculiar case, is fully explained: with an Account of the Upisions and Practice of the different Foreign and British Authors who have written on the subject. With 2 copper-plates, 8vo. boards, price 7s. 6d.

Speedily will be published, 3. A TREATISE on CATARACT and on INFLAMMATION of the IRIS.

War A Medical Reading-room and Library, 55, Great Windmill-street, Baynarket.

Messr. Burgess and Hill beg most respectfully to inform Gentlemes.

Haymarket.

Mesars. Burgers and Hill beg most respectfully to inform Gentlemea of the Profession, that they have opened a Reading-Room, and Medical, Chemical, and Philosophical CIRCULATING LIBRARY, including all new Works and Periodical Publications-relating to the above Sciences; also the Philosophical Transactions, Journal of Science and the Arts, Repertory of Arts, the Edinburgh, Quarterly, and British Reviews, &c. as soon as bublished.

as soon as published.

Terms:—Annual Subscribers in Town to pay 11.16s.—Half a year, 11.1s.—A Quarter, 13s.—One Month, 6s.—Gentlemen who subscribe to the Library, are admitted to the Reading-room without any additional charge.

The Periodical Publications are all contained in Burgess and Hil's Library, and may be consulted at their Reading rooms, where the Baily Newspapers are also taken for the accommodation of Gentlemen.

Yard Wide Sarsasta, 2a.; Rich Twillod ditio, 4s. 6d.; French Silks, 30s. the Dress; Feliase Cloths, 3s.6d. per yard; Cashimer Twills, for Ladies Dresses, 6s. 6d. per yard; Seal ditto, 7s. 6d.; Worked Muslin Kobes, 3s. 6d.; ditto, very rich, 6s. 6d.; Tucked ditto, 6s. 9d.; elegant Flounce ditto, 15a.; India Worked Maslins, 2s. 4d. per yard; fine Jacconots, 30d. and 2s.; India Worked Maslins, 2s. 4d. per yard; fine Jacconots, 30d. and 2s.; India Table Cloths, two yards and half-square, 10s. each; British Muslius, White and Coloured Trimmings, &c. minsually chasp; Velvets, 5s. per yard; very rich ditto, 11s.; French Filk and Cachimere Shawls, 15s. 6d.; rich Searfs, 21s.; Norwich Silk Silawis, 16s.; some exact copies of India, 30s.; Edinburgh ditto, the most saperb patterns, Two sad Three Gaineas each; Erminette Shawls, 20s.; Issilation Seal ditto, 28s.; Calvados ditto, 40s.; real Seal and Braganza Shawls, Polanais Scarfs and Tippers in great variety; Lapland Moss, 20s. per yard; Robe a Neglige; French Flounces ditto, of every new design; Bath Closks, 12s. each; Brighton Envelopes, and Tilbury Wrape, 15s. Every; fa silonable Article for the Season, with a Stock of Lineu-drapery and Hoslery equal to any five Shops in London; and evoly kind of Goods taken by the Plece; or Demy Piece, sold at the Wholesale Price. No Patterns cut, or Country Orders executed, without a remittance.—Riley, 118, Oxford-street, between Princes-street and the Regent Circus. TO BREEDERS and OTHERS.

TO BEESDERS and OTHERS.

TO BE DISPOSED OF, a real ARABIAN GREY STALLION, from the Stud of the Bashaw of Tripoli; 15 hands high, 8 years old, warranted perfectly sound in every respect, and free from all vice or blemish. This Horse is so gentle, that the most timid Lady or Child may ride him, and perhaps the largest Horse in the smallest compass ever seen in this country, being able to carry the heaviest weight that cau ride. He is the property of a Gentleman, and parted with for no fault whatever. To be seen, and particulars known at Hodgkinson's Livery Stables, Bury-street, Bloomabury-square.

AT the NEW CHINTZ FURNITURE and MOREEN WAREHOUSE, No. 134, Oxford-street, nearly opposite Hanover-square, the Public may be convinced of the very great advantages to be derived by comparing the Patterns and Prices of new Goods with those of old ones. The Stock has been purchased for ready Money by HENRY MILES and JOHN EDWARDS, (from the Cornert of Great Turnstill Hollours) since the recent great reduction in the value; and they think it contains a great many better designs than have ever yet been effered to public inspection, and certainly at much lower prices.

CHEAP and FASHIONABLE CABINET & UPHOLSTERY FURNITURE, a variety of Four-post Deuble-screwed Bedsteads, with Chints Dragery Farnitures, and real seasoned Down and Gouse

CHEAP and FASHIONABLE CABINET & UPHOLSTERY FURNITURE, a variety of Four-post Double-screwed Bedsteads, with Chintz Drapery Furnitures, and real seasoned Down and Goose Feather Ecds, with Mattreases complete; Cottage, French, Tent, Sofa, and Chair Bedsteads, with Furnitures and Bedding ready fixed for view; elegant Drawing-room Window-curtains made up. Families may see their Beds filled from the Stewing room. Old Beds, or offensive and dusty new ones, stoved, derseed, and snade clean and sweet. Mattreases cleaned and re-made.—N. B. The Trade supplied as usual, at T. WILMOT'S MANUFACTORY, 16, John-street, two doors from Oxford-street.

ford-street.

ESTABLISHED UPWARDS of TWENTY YEARS for the SALE of IRISH LINEN by the PIECE.

At the Factor's Price, No. 4, on the South Side of Bloomsbury square, four doors from the top of Southampten-street, Holborn,

THE IRISH LINEN COMPANY beg leave to announce to the Public, that the above House is their only Establishment in this Country; where they continue to supply the Nobility, Gentry, and the Public with WARRANTED GRASS-BLEACHED LINEN, for Shirls and Sheets, of the best fabric and colour, at a price considerably lower than they can be precured through any stuor medium.

They also engage to return the Purchase-money should any fack appear.

d Irish Bills and Bank of Ireland Notes taken as usual Country and Town orders punctually attended to by JOHN DONOVAN, 4, Bloomsbury-square, London, JOHN DOYLE, 31, St. Mary's Abboy, Dublin, Agente.

JOHN DONOVAN, 4, Bleomsbury-square, Leaden, John Doyle, 31, 5t. Mary's Abbey, Dabbin, COFFEE and CHOUOLATE made in ONE MINUTE, by D. DUNN'S ESSENCE of COFFEE and COCOA-NUT; sold by F. Graham, corner of the Belle Sauvage Inn, Ludgate-hill, in half pint bottles, from 3s 6d, to 5a, each, and the Chocolate in pots at 2a, 6d.

Directions for use:—Put a teaspoon at 1 of either of these Essences into a cup, with the usual proportion of sails and angar, and fill it with boiling water, and you have instantaneously a cup of Coffee or Chocolate of exquisite favour. From the case and expedition attending this invention, it becomes a valuable acquisition to the Publis, and more especially to Officers in the Army and Navy, to Captains of Vessels, Travellers, ankeepers, Public Assemblies, and particularly to Ladies or Gentlemen not keeping an establishment. Also, D. Dunn's Essonce of Ginger, Mace, Cloves, Cunamon, Nutmege, Allepice, Pepper, Cayenne, Coriander and Carraway Seeds, in glass bottles, 1s. 6d, each. These preparations will save much trouble in cooking, confectionery, &c. and in cases of illness as truly valuable, as a few drops poured into any liquid will instantly give its peculiar flavour. Of F. Grabam may also be had the fine davoured pulverized genuine Jamalea Giager, prepared from the internal part of the root, of superior quality, in quarter round tin cases, 1s, 2d, each. Real Pontefract Liquiorice Cakes. Original and sole manufactures of the much-esteemed ginger-devoured Barley-sugar.—N.B. The trade supplied.

URLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brusseis fabric), 147, Strand, near Somerset House, remeved from 392, Strand.—
6. F. URLING and CO, beg to inform the Fashionable World, that they have prepared for the Season a various and extensive Assortment of their PATENT LACE DRESSES, from four Guineas to one hundred Guineae each; some of which, from recent improvements, they humbly presume to compare with the most perfect foreign productions. Also a great variety of Veils, Searfs, Squares, Laces, Nets, &c. of every description. This preculinity clear and transparent Article having, in the higher circles, superseded the use of common Lace, which becomes rough and full of fibre on the first washing, the Patentees respectfully apprise the Public, that the latter is frequently starched to concoal its defects, and make it resemble Urling's Lace, which, therefore, can only be relied upon as genuine at their Wholesale and Retail Establishment in London, or of the Country Dealers supplied by them. Every Article additional supplies the superiority of Urling's Lace were common Lace, may be seen in Ackermann's Repository, La Bello Assemblee, and other fashionable works, and may be had gratis, by application, post-paid, so G. F. Urling and Cb.

Cauntry Dealers supplied upon the most liberal terms.—Manufactory, Bassford, Nettinghanshire. URLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brussels fabric)

Basiard, Nattinghamshire.

DATENT ECONOMICAL and UNIVERSAL LAMP. This Invention embraces every requisite to render it a domestic comfort in the more general use of Lamps instead of Candles, giving to the Public the choice of an improved light, in which there is perfect safety, at half the expense of Candles. The Chamber or Night Light being universally interesting to all families, and particularly to many professions, may be best appreciated by a fair comparison with others, which are most resorted to, vis. The Rash Light, an old servant, but it must be allowed a drowsy one, and totally undt for motion. The wax-wick, stuck upon cork, fleating in oil upon water, of more medern date, but must be stationary, subject to the cork catching firs, breaking the glass it floats in, causing a sufficiently small substantial than the stationary of the station PATENT ECONOMICAL and UNIVERSAL LAMP. This quisition, being calculated to burn Nat Oil as well as Spermacett.

A. MOST IM PORTANT DISCOVERY for CUNVULSION
Ch and EPILEPTIC FITS, SPASMS; &c.—PR. HADLEY'S CONVULSION POWDER, a certain Remedy for Convulsion Fits in Children, and for all Spasmodic Complaints.

Patronized and sanctioned by
Hor Grace the Dushess of Rutland
Right Hon. Lady Ansherst.
Right Hon. Lady Limore.
Right Hon. Lady G. Cavendish.
Lady Caroline Lamb.
Lady Caroline Lamb.
Hon. Mrs. Bathurst.
Hon. Mrs. Grey, &c.
Hon. Mrs. Grey, &c.
Hon. Mrs. Grey, &c.

Lady Caroline Lamb.

Hon. Mrs. Grey, &c.

Dit. HADLEY'S FOWDERS, although not publicly known, have for many years sustained a proud characteristic as a never-failing remedy in the worst cases of Convulsions in Children, or Adults; also Epileptic or Falling Fits, which they completely extirpate; removes the most violent Spasmodic Affections. These Powders are wonderfully effective even in Consumption, and in all cases of relaxation, debility, and weakness in Children and Adults, and in a short time restores the patient to perfect health, without confinement or alteration in diet. These Powders are equally effications in all climates.

Sold in bettles at 'a. dd. Ils. and 22s. each, by appelutment of the Proprietor, by Mr. Sanger, Medicine Narchouse, 150, Oxford-street; Messrs. Barelay and Sons, 95, Fleet-market; Messrs. Newbery and Sons, 45, St. Faul's Church-yard; Edwards, 66, St. Paul's Church-yard; Sutton and Co. Bew Church-yard; Butter, 4, Cheapside; Evans, Longlane, Smithsheld; Prost, 229, Strand; Strading and Niz, Royal Exchange; Johnstone, Cornbill; Ward, 324, Holborn; and by their appointment by most respectable Medicine Vonders in every Town throughout the United Ktoydom.

"See spley clouds from lowly Sharon rise,
And Gasmel's flow ry top postumes the skies?"

THE Nobility are very respectfully informed these AROMATIC PASTILLES, are of an exquisitely fragrant and luxurions odeur, being composed of the most costly Oriental Gunus, Spices, and sich Perfumes, which, from their Anhresial Qualities, seem like "a thouused fragrant postes," and are therefore admirably calculated for diffusing
"sweet smelling odours" in the Drawing Room, and Ball Room, trolconstituting constituting

"The perfemed chambers of the great," and considered highly delectable and exhibitanting at Balls, Routs, and all Assemblies of Fashion, producing "sweets as from the myrtle and all Assemblies of Fashlon, producing " sweets as from the sayrtle and citron groves," for "Tis hard to say what scent is uppermost;

Nor this part musk, or civet can we call.
Or amber, but a rich result of all."
They are of essential service in removing any unpleasant exhalations, or noxious effuvia, that may pruve offensive to the olfactory nerves, when the cloth is removed from the dinner table, and in the rooms of sick persons. —Prepared and sold only by J. SHEPHERD, 176, Fleet-street, London, in boxes at 5s, and 10s each.

TO ALL WHO VALUE THEIR SIGHT .- The sight of the aged restored, the weak sight strengthened, and the perfect sight preserved to extreme old age, by DIXON's LAPROVED SPECTACLES. To be had only at 93, Newman street, two doors out of Oxford-street, Manufacturer to the late Mr. Bradberry, and since his death has commenced Business at the above place, where the improved Spectacles can now only be had that is sanctioned by most of the Faculty, for the benefit of weak and impaired vision.—Please to observe 33, Newman-street, as there are many humble imitations of his Improved Spectacles offered to the Public.

BURGESS' ESSENCE of ANCHOVIES-Warehouse, 107, DURGESS' ESSENCE of ANCHOVIRS—Warehouse, 107, Strand, corner of the Savoy-steps, London.—John Burgess and Son, being apprized of the numerous endeavours made by many persons to impose a spurious anticle for their make, feel it incumbent apon them to request the attention of the Public, in purchasing what they corneive to be the Original, to observe the Name and the Address corresponds with the above:—the general appearance of the spurious descriptions will deceive the unguarded, and for their detection, J. B. and Son sabmit the following cautions,—some are in a ppearance at first sight "The Genuine," but without any name or and d'ess:—some "Burgess' Escance of Anchovice:—others—"Burgis's"—and many more without Address.
John Burgess and Son having been many years beneared with such distinguished approhation, feel every sentiment of respect towards the Pablic, and earnestly selicit them to inspect the Labels previous to their punchasing what they conceive to be of their make, which they hope will prevent many disappendaments.

BURGESS'S NEW SAUCB, for general purposes, having given such great satisfaction, continues to be prepared by them, and is recommended as a most useful and convenient Sauce: will keep good in all climates.

Warehouse, 167, Strand, servers of the Savayators Lendon—The Warehouse, 167, Strand, corner of the Savey-steps, London.—(The original Fish-sauce Warehouse.)

LONDON MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 18.

Though the supply of Wheat since Monday has been very moderate, the trade is dull, and that day's prices barely supported.—Barley meets a heavy sale, except for the finest and Oats are rather cheaper than otherwise .- In Pease and Beans there is no alteration to notice.

RETURN PRICE of GRA	IN, on board Ship, as under.
Essex Red Wheat (new)34s. 45s.
Fine 54s. 54s.	White ditto
Old	Boilers
Resex White (new)40s. 50s.	Small Beans
Fine	Old40s. 41s. to
Superfine	Tick Beans (new)
Ryes. 30s. 32s.	Old
Old	Feed Oats6. 15s. 16s.
Barley	Fine17s. 19s.
Fine
Superfine	Fine
Malt	Petatos ditte
Fine	Fine
Hog Pease

PRICE of FLOUR.
Town made Flour, persack	e 50s
Ditto, secondsper ditto	0 456.
Essex and Suffelk Flour, per sack on board ship40s. 1	0 456.
Norfolk and Stockton, ditte
Bran, .re. to Ss. per Quarter Fine Pollard 200. to #40. per Qu	tarter.

AVERAGE PRICES of GRAIN per Quarter, for the Week ending
APRIL 7.

	j w	ht. I	К	ye.	184	arl.	Oi	ats.	Br	ans.	re	780.		at.,
Mar. Dist Inl. Counties Eug. & Wal.	8. 84 54 54	1 3	35 33 34	d. 14 44 113	24 23 24 23	10 61 61	8. 18 20 18	d. 23 5 43	50 32 30	d. 64 1	5. 31 32 31	d. 4 04 44	8. 19 90 20	4.788
STOC Bank Stock	Ks.	PRIC	E	Mon.	the	PUI Ines. 223	BLIC	FI Ped.	IN D	S. ur.	P,	ıd.	8á

PRICES of the PUBLIC FUNDS.
STOCKS.	Mon.	Tues.	Wed.	Thur.	Prid.	Bát.
Bank Stock	_	223	223}	224	ł	553 8
3 per Cent. Reduced	712	714	713	714	l	714
3 per Cent. Consols	72	72	72	72		72
3f per Cent. Consols		8C §	81			1 -
Consols for Account		72	72	727	Holiday.	725
4 per Cont. Consols	814	891	89	894	유	894
5 per Cent. Navy	1074	1074	197	1074	~	107 4
Bank Long Annuities		181	183	183	4	189
India Bonds	46 p	46 p	46 p	13 p	•
Exchequer Bills, 24	6 p	5 p	6 p	49		_
Ditto, 21d		-	_			-
Omnium		, - 1		-

On the 16th inst. in Montague-place, the Lady of Robert Luikin, Esq.
First Clerk of the War-Office, of a son, being her ninth child.
On the 13th ult. at Belfast, the Lady of Najor James Bunbar Towey, 31st Regiment, of a daughter. The infant lived only six hours.
On the 30th Jan. lest, at Halifax, Nova Scotia, the Lady of Major Fitsgerald, of 3d Batt. 68th Regiment, of a daughter.
On the 12th inst. at Carrick-on-Shannon, County of Leitrim, Ireland, the Lady of Capt. Edw. J. Priestley, 25th, the King's Own Berderers, of a daughter.
On Saturday se'nnight, in Upper Harley-street, Cavendish-square, the Lady of Dr. Glare, of Jamaica, of a still-born son.

MARRIAGEE

MARRIAGES.

On Saturday se'nmight, at St. George's Church, Hanover-square, the Rev. Wm. Pegus, to the Countess of Lindsey, widew of the late, and mother of the present, Earl of Lindsey.
On Saturday se'nnight, Sam Chas. Westen, Esq. to Blizabeth Wood Anderdon, eldest daughter of Ferdinando Anderdon, Esq. On the 12th inst. at Brill, Bucks, Edw. King, Esq. saurgeon, to Anne, relict of the late Thomas Smith, Esq. of Addingrove.
At Weymouth, the Rev. Jos. Gould, of Newton Blossomville, Bucks, to Lydia, only child of the late Nath. Gould, Esq.
At Cropedy, Mr. F. Amos, of Castle Thorpe, Bucks, to Sarah, daughter of Mr. Win. Eagles, of the former place.

DIED.

On the 15th inst. at her residence in Cavendish-square, Mrs. Susannah
J. Dickson, relict of Calouel A. Dickson, and young there of the late Sir Henry Moore, Bart. formerly Lieut.-Governor of Jamaica and Governor of New York.

On the 12th inst. at her house, at Chislehurst, Kent, Mrs. M. Townshend, aged 86, stater to the late Lord Viscount Sydney.

On the 12th inst. at Bath, aged 72, Thos. Stanhope Badecek, Esq. one of the Magistrates for the County of Bucks.

On the 29th ultimo, at Exeter, Major George Foljambe, 8th Regiment of Foot, think son of the late F. F. Foljambe, Esq. of Gaberton, Nottinghamabire.

LONDON: Printed and Published by R. T. WEAVER, at No. 11, JOHNSON'S COURT, FLEET-STREET, where only Communications to the Editor, (post paid) are received

Digitized by Google

JOHN

BULL.

" FOR GOD, THE KING, AND THE PEOPLE!"

No. 20.

SUNDAY, APRIL 29, 1821.

Price 7d.

NEW HARP MUSIC.

DOCHSA'S FANTASIA on a favourite Irish Melody, 4s. Ditto, Octave Sonata, 6s. Ditto, French March, 2s. Ditto, Vars. on "Nel cor piu," 3s. And the favourite Airs in the Opera of "Tancredi," arranged by ditto, 6s. French Romances, arranged by Dizl, Book I and 2, each 4s. Ditto's, Vars. on "Toujours," 3s. Dussek's Vars. on the New Tyrolean Waltz, 2s. Ditto, on a French Air, 2s.
For the Harp and the Piano Forte: "The favourite Airs in the Opera of "Tancredi," arranged by Buchsa, Book I and 2, each 10s. 6d. Bochsa's Duet, dedicated to Lady Ogle, 7s. Moralt's Three Petite Pieces, 5s. Ditto, Three Airs from Mozart, 6s. Stell's First Ste of Quadrilles, 4s.; and Handel's Hallelujah Chorus, (heing No. I of a Series of Chorusses, arranged by Burrowess, 3s. 6d.—Published and sold by Chappell and Co. Music-sellers to His Majesty, 50, New Bond-street.

NEW VOCAL MUSIC.

Just published, by CLEMENTI and Co. 26. Cheapside,

NEW VOCAL MUSIC.

ORENZO to JESSICA, an original English Air, sung with great appliance by Mrs. Salamon, at the Vocal Concerts and Oratorios; the Words (from a scene in the Merchant of Venice) by W.F. Collard; the Symphonies and Accompaniments by J. C. Clifton; price 2s.

"The Miller's Daughter," a Ballad, adapted to an old English Air; the Words and Music by the same; price 1s. 6d.

"The Maid of Valdarno;" the Words by the same, the Music by the celebrated J. Pield, of St. Petersburg; as a Song or Duet; price 1s. 6d.

"Three Times Three, burrah!" a Glee for 3 Voices, and Chorus;

18. 6d. each.

4. "Three Times Three, hurrah!" a Glee for 3 Voices, and Chorus; calculated to promote mirth and festivity at all convivial parties; the Words by the same; the Music by Sir J. Stevenson, Mus. Doc.; price 2s.

5. A Fifth Set of Six Italian Canzonets, with an Accompaniment for the Spanish Guitar; by C. M. Sola; price 3s.

NEW MUSIC.—Just published, by CLEMENTI and Co. 26, Cheapside.

FOR THE PIANO FORTE.—" My Lodging is on the cold ground," with Introduction and Variations, by A. Meves. Price 3s.

2. Two Cappriccios, by M. Clementi, Op. 47. Price 8s.

3. Fantasia and Variations on the French Air, "An clair de la Lune," he M. Clamenti. Price 4s.

3. Fantasia and Variations on the French Air, "Au ciair ue in Lune, by M. Clementi. Price 4s.

4. The 7th Number of Operatic Airs, being an Introduction and Variations on a favourite Portuguese Air, by G. Kialmark. Price 3s.

5. The 8th Number of Operatic Airs, being an Aria from his Opera of Alessandro in Effeso," with Variations, by J. D. Bomtempo, 3s.

6. A Polonaise, Op. 55, by F. Kalkbrenner. Price 4s.

7. "Chanson Russe," with Variations, by J. Field, of St. Petersburg.

8. Eight Variations on a Russian Air, by D. Steibelt. Price 3s.

7. "Chanson Russe," with Variations, by J. Field, of St. Petersburg. Price 2s.
S. Eight Vafiations on a Russian Air, by D. Steibelt. Price 3s.
FOR THE FLUTE:
9. Twelve Select Airs, with Variations, as Flute Solos, with Piano Furte Accompaniments; by C. Nisholson. Price 3s. each.
10. The 12th Number of "Le Bouquet, or Flowers of Meledy," with General Index, to complete the First Voiume of this admired Work; by C. Nicholson. Price 3s.
11. The 7th Number of "Preceptive Lessons," by C. Nicholson, illustrating the Key of A major (three Sharps). Price 2s. 6d.
12. Introduction and "Carnival of Venice;" Adagio, "The Yellow Hair'd Laddie;" and Rondo Allegro, "Zitti, Zitti," arranged as a Melange, with Plano Forte Accompaniment, by T. Lindsay. Price 3s.
13. Fantasia and Variations on as Italian Air of Paisiello, with Plano Forte Accompaniment, by C. N. Weiss. Price 3s.
1MPARTIAL LITERARY PAPER, 48 columns, 4to. price 6d. ouly; stamped, 10d. published every Saturday morning,
THE LITERARY CHRONICLE and WEEKLY REVIEW of Saturday, the 28th inst. contains, among other interesting Articles, a copious Review of the Bishop of Winchester's Life of the Right Mon. Wm. Pitt. Lord Byron's New Tragedy, &c. Criticisms on the Fine Arts and Drama, Onigin of Inns of Court, &c. &c.
Published by Limbird, 355, Strand; seld by all Venders of Periodicals.

Just published, price 2s. 6d.
A CATALOGUE of BOOKS; including a Miscellaneous Authors, a valuable Collection of Books, new and second-hand, Classical Authors, a valuable Collection of Books of Prints, &c.

New Edition, of English Books, new and second-hand, Classical Authors, a valuable Collection of Books of Prints, &c.

New Edition of the ROYAL CALENDAR.

Just published, price 1l. 4s. corrected to the present time,

STOCKDALE'S CALENDAR for 1821—containing, I. The Royal Calendar—II. The Companion to the Galendar—III. The Peerage, with the Arus of the Peers,—IV. The Baronetage, with the Arus of the Peers,—IV. The Baronetage, with the Arus of the Peers,—IV. The Baronetage, with the Arus of t

3. ITALIAN SUENER; from Drawings by Mars Blatanian Rédition, No. 5.

4. PUMPRII, by Sir W. GELL, and J. P. GANDY. New Redition, No. 4. Printed for Rodwell and Martin, New Bond-street.

PON TON MAGAZINE, or FASHIONABLE CRITIC, will be published on the 1st of May by J. L. MARKS, 163, Piccadilly, who has purchased the W-rk from J. Johnston, Cheapaide.—J. L. Marks begs to inform the Subscribers and Public in general, that he will produce a Publication worthy their attention. Among the Contents of the forthcoming will be found the late Rouge et Noir Fracas at Kingstreet.—Peter Sham Love and the disappointed Lady—with a Caricature Review of Lord Byron's Tragedy, &c. &c. &c.

Just published, in six very large volumes, 8vo. price, in boards, 3l, 12s

Just published, in six very large volumes, 8vo. price, in boards, 3l. 12s dedicated, by permission, to his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbary the Second Edition of desicated, by permission, to his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbary the Second Edition of TCCLESHASTICAL BIOGRAPHY; or, Lives of Eminent Men connected with the History of Religion in England, from the Commencement of the Reformation to the Revolution: Selected and illustrated with Notes.—By CHRISTOPHER WORDSWORTH, D.D. Vice Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, and Master of Trinity College.—Printed for F.C. and J. Rivington, Ne. 62, St. Paul's Churchyard, and Ne. 3, Waterleo-place, Pall-Mall; sold also by Rivingtons and Cochran, 148, Strand. Of whom may be had, by the same Au hor, 2. SERMONS. In 2 vo. 8, 8vo. price, in boards, 188.

SCENES ALL THE WORLD OVER.

Just published, illustrated with 84 Engravings, and a Map, price 4s. plain, and 6s. coloured, half-bound,
SCENES in AMERICA, for the Amusement and Instruction of Little Tarry-at-Home Travellers.—By the Rev. ISAAC TAYLOR.—Printed for Harris and Son, conner of St. Paul's Churchy-rd.—Where may be had, SCENES in EUROPE, with 84 Engravings, price 4s. plain, and 6s. coloured.

- in ASIA. ditto, ditto. - in APRICA, ditto, ditto in APRICA, ditto, ditto.

Or the F ur Parts bound together in two volumes, with 336 Copperplate Engravings, and four Maps, 18s. plain, and 11. 4s. coloured.

NEW NOVEL.—Just published, price 21s.

SUCH is the WORLD. A NOVEL, in three vols. 12mo.

"I hold the world, but as the world, Gratiano,
A stage where every man must play his part."

Merchant of Venice.

"The characters in this novel, which embraces all ranks and degrees of men, from a Duke down to the heatler of an inn, are drawn with a fidelity and correctness, which none but a person who has mixed much in the world could have sketched. Another merit this novel possesses, in which we should be happy to see every work of the kind resemble 1; we mean, that of having a good moral tendency. There are no coarse ribaldries—no indecent allusions—no double entendre, to raise a blush on the cheek of youthful innocence. Virtue and vice are so faithfully pour-trayed, that we do not fear our juvenile friends choosing the former for the model of their future canduct in life."—Literary Chronicle, Jan. 27,

Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, 13, Ave Maria-lane.

Also, just published—2. The FAVOURITE of NATURE; dedicated (by permission) to Mrs. Joanna Baillie; in 3 vols. price 21s. boards.

Just published, in 4to. with 14 Plates, engraved by Charles Heath, price 21, 152.

A TOUR through the SOUTHERN PROVINCES of the KINGDOM of NAPLES—By the Hom. RICHARD KEPPEL CRAVEN. To which is subjoined, A SKETCH of the immediate Circumstances attending the late Revolution.

Printed for Rolwell and Martin, New Bond-street, London.

EVANS'S SKETCH.—Just published, price 6s. embelished with a new Engraving of eight Heads, the Fourteenth Edition, with the addition of an Account of the Sauds, an Indian Sect resembling the Quakers; of the recent Seceders from the Church of England; and of the Jerkers and Barkers in the United States of America,

THE SKETCH of the DENOMINATIONS of the CHRISTIAN WORLD. To which is prefaced, an Outline of Atheism Deism, Theophilanthropism, Mahometanism, Judaism, and Christianity, with a Persuasive to Religious Moderation.—By JOHN EVANS, LLD &c.—London: Printed for Baldwin, Craduck, and Joy, Paternoster-row; by whom also are published,

2. The UNION of the ROSSES, a Tale of the Fifteenth Century. In Six Cantos, with Notes, 8vo. 7s. 6d. hoards.

3. The LAST DAYS of HERCULANBUM, and ABRADATES and PANTHEA, Poems; by Edwin Atherstone, Esq. Foolscap 8vo. 5s. boards.

4. SCRIPTURE MELODIES; by a Clergyman. Foolscap 8vo. 5s.

boards.
4 SCRIPTURE MELODIES; by a Clergyman. Foolscap Svo. 5s.

POEMS; containing the INDIAN, and LAZARUS. Foolscap

8vo. 3s. 6d. boards.
8vo. 3s. 6d. boards.
6. POEMS, by one of the Authors of "Poems for Youth, by a Family Circle." Foolscap 8vo. 3s. 6d. boards.
7. The BROTHERS, a Monody, and other Poems; by C. A. Elton, Esg. Foolscap 8vo. 5s. boards.
8. ROUGH SKETCHES of BATH, and other Poems; by Thomas Barly, Fifth Edition, foolscap 8vo. 4s. 6d. boards.
9. PARLIAMENTARY LETTERS, and other Poems; by the same Author. Second Edition, foolscap 8vo. 4s. 6d. boards.
10. BODIAM CASTLE. In Six Cantos; with Notes, 8vo. 19s. 6d. boards.

11. The VALE of SLAUGHDEN. In five Cantos; by James Bird. Second Edition, 8vo. 7s. 6d. boards.

11. The VALE of SLAUGHDEN. In five Cantos; by James Bird. Second Edition, 8vo. 7s. 6d. hoards.

THE JOURNAL of NEW VOYAGES and TRAVELS.

THE JOURNAL of NEW VOYAGES and TRAVELS.

Continues its successful and useful career, and in twenty-six Monthly Numbers has published the following very interesting Modern Works, at only 3s. 6d. each, either of which may be had separately, and every Work is completed within the Part:—

1. FISHER'S Voyage to the Arctic Regions, 4 plates.

2. PRIOR'S Voyage to the Indian Seas, 4 plates.

3. DUPIN'S Public Estal lishments of Great Britain, 2 plates.

4. CHATEAUVIBUN'S Travels in Italy.

5. FORBIN'S Travels in Greece and the Holy Land, 8 plates.

6. ANALYSES of Seven New English Travels.

7. FORBIN'S Travels in Egypt, 6 plates.

8. MKEEVOR'S Voyage in the Metantic and Indian Oceans, 4 plates.

10. PRIOR'S Voyage in the Atlantic and Indian Oceans, 4 plates.

11. CORDOVA'S Voyage to the Strait of Magellan, 2 plates.

12. WALLER'S Voyage in the West Indies, 8 plates.

13. SANSOM'S Travels in Caunda, &c. 1 plates.

14. MOLLIEN'S Travels in Caunda, &c. 1 plates.

15. PRINCE MAXIMILIAN'S Travels in the Brazils, 8 plates.

16. GRAHAM'S Travels in Italy, 8 plates.

17. CASTELLAN'S Travels in Italy, 8 plates.

18. BRACKENRIDGE'S Voyage to Buenos Ayres, 8 plates.

19. PERTUSIER'S Promenades near Constantinople, 8 plates.

20. GOURBILLON'S Travels in Monte Negro, 6 plates.

21. SOMMEREE'S Travels in Monte Negro, 6 plates.

22. POUQUEVILLE'S Travels in Monte Negro, 6 plates.

23. SCHOOLCRAFT'S Travels on the Missouri, and Ray's Cochin China. I plate.

China, 1 plate.
24. KELSALL'S Tour from Rome to Arpino, 8 plates.
25. HALBERG'S Travels in the North of Europe—A Visit to Madras,

25. HALBERG'S Travels in the North of Burope—A visit to madras,—and Trevidean's Letters from Africa.
26. FREDLANDER'S Travels through Italy, 8 plates; published April 15, 1821.
Or the Whole may be had in 4 vols_half-bound, at One Guinea each.
Printed for SIR RICHARD PHILLIPS and Co.; and to be had of all Booksellers in Town and Country.

[17] For Circulating Libraries and Book Societies, the Parts are done up in Boards, 4s. The Work is continued on the 15th of every Month, and several Voyages and Travels of great interest, are in preparation.

NEW CHINTZ FURNITURE and MOREEN A T the NEW CHINTZ FURNITURE and MOREEN WAREHOUSE, No. 134, Oxford street, nearly opposite Hanoversquare, the Public may be convinced of the very great advantages to be derived by comparing the Patterns and Prices of new Goods with those of old ones. The Stock has been purchased for ready Money by HENRY MILES and JOHN EDWARDS, (from the Corner of Great Turnstile, Holborn) since the recent great reduction in the value; and they think it contains a great many better designs than have ever yet been offered to public inspection, and certainly at much lower prices.

CHEAP 2nd FASHIONABLE CABINET & UPHOLSTERY CHEAP 2nd FASHIONABLE CABINET & UPHOLISTERY PURNITURE, a variety of Four-post Double-screwed Bedsteads, with Chintz Drapery Furnitures, and real seasoned Down and Goose Feather Beds, with Mattresses complete Cottage, French, Tent, Sofa, and Chair Bedsteads, with Furnitures as: Bedding ready fixed for view; elegant Drawing-room Window-curtains made up. Families may see their Beds filled from the Staving room. Old Beds, or offensive and dusty new once, stoved, dressed, and made clean and sweet. Mattresses cleaned and re-made,—N. B. The Trade supplied as usual, at T. WILMOT'S MANUFACTORY, 16, John-street, two doors from Oxford-street.

ford-street.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES, for LOWNESS of SPIRITS, &c. CAMPHOR LOZENGES, for LOWNESS of SPIRITS, &c.

THESE LOZENGES have been highly approved, and confidently recommended for some years past, in lowness of spirits, and increased irritability of the nervous system, in the sick or nervous head-ache, inflammatory and putrid sore throats, thirst and dryness of the forence and palate, and in all cases where the Camphor Julep is advised, these Camphorated Lozenges may be taken with susperior advantage; they are also a powerful Antisceptie, and are therefore an admirable preventive against infection, and the effects of damp weather.

weather.

Prepared and sold by J. Shepherd, at his Warehouse for the true leecacuanha Lozenges, No. 176, Flext-street, London, in bettles, at 2s. 6d. 4s. 6d. and 10s. each.

I pecacuanha Lezenges, No. 176, Flect-street, Londen, in bettles, at 2s. 6d. 4s. 6d. and 10s. each.

COFFEE and CHOCOLATE made in ONE MINUTE, by D. DUNN'S ESSENCE of COFFEE and COCOA-NUT; sold by F. Graham, corner of the Belle Sauvage Inn, Ludgate-hill, in half pint bottles, from 3s 6d. to 5s. cach, and the Choceiate in pots at 2s. 6d. Directions for use:—Put a teaspoonful of either of these Essences into a cup, with the usual proportion of milk and sugar, and fill it with boiling water, and you have instantaneously a cup of Coffee or Chocolate of exquisite flavour. From the ease and expedition attending this invention, it becomes a valuable acquisition to the Public, and more especially to Officers in the Army and Navy, to Captains of Vessels, Travellers, I ankeepers, Public Assemblies, and particularly to Ladies or Gentlemen not keeping an establishment. Also, A. Dunn's Essence of Ginger, Mace, Cloves, Cinnamon, Nutmegs, Allspice Pepper, Cayenne, Coriander and Carraway Seeds, in glass bottles, It ad, each. These preparations will save much trouble in cooking, confectionery, &c. and in cases of illness are truly valuable, as a few drops poured into any liquid will instantly give its peculiar flavour. Of F. Graham may also be had the fine flavoured pulvarized genuine Jamaics Ginger, prepared from the internal part of the root, of superior quality, in quarter pound tin cases, Is. 2d. each. Real Pontefraet Liquorice Cakes. Original and sole manufacturer of the much-esteemed ginger flavoured Barley-sugar.—N.B. The trade supplied.

USEFUL KNOWLEDGE: or, a Familiar Account of the Various Productions of Nature—Mineral, Vegetable, and Animal—which are chiefly employed for the Use of Man. Illustrated with namerous Figures, and intended as a Work both of instruction and reference.—By the Rev. WM. BINGLEY, A.M. Author of "Animal Bingraphy."

London: Printed for Baldwin, Cradock, and Joy; Harvey and Darton; and F. C. and J. Rivington.

THE NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE.—The Fifth Number to be published May I, will contain, besides the usual Varieties in Art, Schene, Literary and Dramatic Criticism, Politics, Commerce, &c.: Continuation of Mr. Campbell's Lectures—On the Poetry of the Bible—May Morning—On Epicarism, by an Amateur—IV. Walks in the Garden, No. 1.—On the Character of Socrates—Memoirs of the Right Hon. Henry Grattan—Grimm's Ghost, No. 2—Visit to Mont Blane, concluded—Jonathan Kentucky's Journal—A Call to the Bar.—Letters from Spain by Don Leucatio Doblado, No. 2—Scientific Amasements, No. 2—The Automaton Chess Player—Memoirs by James Barl of Waldegrave—Stanzas on the present State of Greece—Verses on the Death of a Child—The River Lara, Donnington Castle, Sonuets, &c.

To prevent disappointment, those who desire to commence with the New Series of this Journal are requested to send their orders without cleay to their respective Booksellers or Newsmen.

The New Manthly Magazine may be regularly transmitted abroad by applying to the General Post Office, or to any local Postmaster.

Printed for Harry Colburn and Co Conduit-street. THE NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE.—The Fifth Number

TUESDAY'S GAZETTE.

WHITEHALL, April 21, 1821.

The King has been pleased to constitute and appoint the Right Horthe Earl of Morton, K. T. to be His Majesty's High Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland.

BANKRUPTS.

AVERY, J. Barnstaple, Deconshire, shockeeper.
CONEY, T. Scuthorpe, Norfolk, miller and flour merchant.
CRUMBIE, G. and J. CARR, York, tobacco manufacturers.
DICKEN, J. Shrewshury, upholsterer and calinet maker.
HEBDIN, W. Leeds, A. O. HEBDIN, Parliament Street, Westminster, and J. BROWNE, sen. Leeds, merchants.
HENSHAW, J. Gloucester Place, Portman Square, bookseller and stationer.

stationer. LUBBREN, F. M. Newcastle-upox-Tyne, tronfounder. MENKE, D. T. Primrose Street, Bishopsgate Street Within, mer-

LUBBREN, F. M. Newcastle-upon-Tyne, trontounder.

MENKE, D. T. Primrose Street, Bishopsgate Street Within, merchant.

PHILLIPS, J. B. Bartlett's Buildings, jeweller.

WOOD, T. Lake Lock, Wakefield, Yorkshire, maltster.

DIVIDENDS.

May 5, T. West, Gracechurch Street, wholesale perfumer.—May 5, H. Hall, Nelson terrace, Kingsland, Threadneedle Street, and the Stock Exchange, broker.—May 5, C. R. H. Bailey, Swallowfield, Wittshire, dealer.—May 5, H. Jackson, Strand, vintner.—May 22, W. and J. Devey, Coal Exchange, coal and ship owners—May 15, W. and F. Derey, Albion Coal Wharf, Christchurch, coal merchants.—May 15, R. Sharpis, Davies Street, Berkeley Square, dealer in china.—May 15, R. Sharpis, Davies Street, Berkeley Square, dealer in china.—May 15, J. H. Lean, Fenchurch Street, and City Chambers, insurance broker.—May 16, T. Powell, Leominster, Herefordshire, butcher.—May 15, J. Kinz, Yeovil, Somersetshire, bookseller.—May 15, E. Fry, Homdsditch, uphoisterer and paper hanger.—May 15, R. R. Ward, Maiden Lane, Battle Bridge, mustard and blue manufacturer.—May 15, T. K. Creak, J. and J. Corphie, Durand's Wharf, Rotherhithe, must an Iblock makers.—May 19, J. Millard, Cheapside, linen draper.—May 15, S. Abbott, New Court, St. Swithin's Lane, merchant—May 15, B. Am'uurst, Market Street, Westminster, and West Farleigh, Kent, copper and iron manuston, Manchester, silk mercer and haberdasher.—May 18, W. Peägam, junn. P. ymouth, tailor.—May 17, G. Bigland, Bigland Hall, Laneachire, iron master.—May 16, R. Lodge, Blackburn, Laneashire, butcher.—May 22, J. and R. Tankard, Birminzham, factors.

S. Noad, Birchin Lane, bill broker.—J. Richards, Deretend, Aston, Warvickshire, brewer.—J. N. Freeman, Newport, Monmouthshire, money scrivener.—E. Massey, Ecclesten, Laneashire, watch maker.—J. Ashford and E. L. Ireland, Birminzham, factors.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTE.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTE.

WAR-OFFICE, 27th April, 1821.
2d Reg. Foot—Lieut. E C. Windus, from 35th Foot, to be Lieut. vice Mariner.

WARD, J. late of Banbury, Oxford, Brewer.
WHARTON, R. and WHARTON, H. of Little Crosby, Lancaster.

WHARTON, R. and WHARTON, M. Johers.
DAWSON, R. Norwieb, Linen-Draper.
CLARKE, T. Gainsborough, Draper.
TATE, J. Liverpool, provision-merchant.
SMITH, J. Holderness, York, greer.
PAYN, T. and PAYN, D. J. Cateaton-street, London, warehouse
GLOVER, B. Watling-street, London, Manchester-warehouseu
COLLIN, S. Woodlesford, York, blacksmith. Manchester-warehouseman.

10 THE STATE OF TH

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

REVOLUTION AT BAHIA.

Letters were received on Friday from Bahia, dated the 12th of February, containing an account of the revolution accom-plished there in favour of the present Government of Portugal. The following is the copy of a resolution adopted by the persons who took the lead in bringing about this change:—

"The commanders and officers of the troops of the line, composing the garrison of the city of Babin, assembled in the Praza de Palacio, in the presence of the Governor, Capt.-Gen. Count de Palma, being anxious to avoid any effusion of blood, which unfortunately might be the consequence of commotions occasioned by the fears of the people, lest the desire they have manifested of adhering to the decisions of their brethren in Portugal (with whom they wish to be always closely united), and of participating with them in the advantages of the liberal constitution framing at Lisbon, should prove abortive, do all with one common accord resolve as follows:—

1. To swear obedience to the most high and powerful King, Don John VI., adhesion to his royal dynasty, and the preservation of the holy religion which we profess.

"2. To swear to the constitution which shall be formed by the Cortes in Portugal, and in the mean time to that of Spain in the same manner as that constitution has been temporarily adopted in Portugal.

3. That the magistrates of the city shall propose for the approbation of the troops and the people, fit persons to form a provisional junta for the government of this province, until his Majesty solemnly swears to the said constitution.

"4. That the junta, on being installed, shall immediately draw up, in the name of this province, an act of adhesion to the government of Portugal and to the new system there esta-blished, copies of which shall be transmitted to the said gonment, and to the King our sovereign.

5. That the provisional government shall also order the speedy election of deputies to represent this province in the Cortes of Portugal,

"6. That all the acts of public administration shall be held to be enacted and done in the name of our Sovereign Lord Don

"7. That this day shall be a day of general reconciliation for all the inhabitants of this province, whatever may hitherto have been their differences as to political opinions.

" Done at Bahia, in the Town-house,
"Feb. 10, 1821. (Signed) "CONDE DE PALMA."
Lieutenant-Colonels Manoel Pedro de Freitas and Francisco de Paula were the most active in promoting the revolution. Though we have as yet received no details, it appears that the change did not take place without a contest, for the letters state, that twelve of the military, including a Major, were killed.

When the account came away, all was tranquil.

PARIS, April 21.—It is said that in the month of July next, when the King of England proceeds to Hanover, he will pass through Paris; that he will stay in this capital eight or ten days, but that he will maintain the strictest incognito. - Consti-

We are assured, that at the baptism of the Duke de Bourdeaux four new Marshals of France will be made, and twelve Lieutenant-Generals. An extensive promotion is also spoken of among the Military Orders.

An apothecary in Paris had very nearly fallen a victim to his own imprudence. Whilst engaged in boiling a liquid for some chemical processes, on a furnace, he inequationally took off the cover; the liquid escaped, and in a boiling state covered the face and person of the unfortunate man. He was severely burnt, and will most probably lose his eye-sight; he is otherwise in a deplorable condition.

A great tumult is said to have occurred at Bologna, occa-sioned by the students of the University. The course of studies has been suspended, and the University has been occupied by

BRUSSELS, April 19.—His Majesty the King, by a Resolu-tion of April 16, has prohibited the importation of Negroes from those foreign Colonies where it is still allowed to import them directly from Africa, into any of the Colonies of the Netherlands, and especially into that of Surinam, upon the penalties attached to the importation of prohibited goods.

WARSAW, April 5.—According to intelligence from the fron-tiers of Moldavia, dated the 27th ult. Prince Ypsilanti has ere this left Jassy, at the head of an army 3,000 strong, and taken the route of Fokschany, a small town divided into two sec-tions by the Milkoff, one of which is situated in Moldavia, the other in Wallachia, and is celebrated for the battle which was fought there in 1789.
VIENNA, April 9.—The insurrection in Moldavia and Wallachia occupies greatly all minds in this capital. It appears athat the Insurgent Chiefs having mutually concerted matters, are already acting with their respective forces. Theodore has marched upon the Danube, to seize upon Nicopoli. Prince Ypsilanti, on the contrary, has taken the direction of Hirsowa and Silistria, in order to occupy the ports of the Black Sea, and thus gain a communication with the Greeks of the Russian provinces bordering on this sea. The Greeks have, it is said, com-menced their movements in Bulgaria. Several of Theodore's friends are gone into Servia, to distribute Proclamations in that quarter. It is confidently asserted, that a Servian Corns is already organized in the vicinity of Nissa, and that troubles have broken out in Macedonia. It appears certain, that Ali, Pacha of Janina, has embraced Christianity, and that he has taken the name of Alexander.

An article from Vienna bints, that the Laybach Congress will not dissolve itself till some measures have been decided upon which may prevent such vexatious derangements of the political equilibrium, as have been produced by the abortive treasons of Naples and Piedmont. "It is possible," adds the writer, that the affairs of Spain will not be foreign to the assembly."

The same article mentions, that the first column of the Russian troops, 35,000 strong, was to enter Hungary about the 14th or 15th instant.

MADRID, April 7 .- In the Sitting Extraordinary of the Cortes, yesterday, the Minister of War obtained leave to speak. He announced the arrival at Barcelona of a brigantine, called the Virgin of Mount Carmel, having on board Colonel Lorenzo de Concillis, a Deputy of the Neapolitan Parliament, who left Naples on the 23d of March; he reported that on that day, the Austrian army was only seven miles from the capital, &c. &c.

The Minister afterwards read a despatch from the Spanish Ambassador at Naples, in which he recommends this Colonel

The Minister of the Interior—" I am charged, Gentlemen with making known to you, on this occasion, the sentiments of the King. His Majesty does not think it necessary to attach tary much importance to the events at Naples; and though circumstances favourable to the establishment of our liberty may have experienced some alteration, his Majesty orders that his Ministers watch with more care than ever to repress the enemies of the existing system, if there are any; and desires that the Cottes propose such measures, as it does not belong to them to execute themselves. His Majesty is profoundly touched with the situation of the King of the Two Sicilies. The presence of a foreign army in his States must cause great calamities to his people. In fine, i.i. Majesty knows from himself how fatal it may be, not only for the people, but for those who govern them, that the Royal word, once given, should not be strictly kept; and it is from this conviction, that his Majesty charges me to declare to you, in his name, that he is more firmly resolved than ever to observe, and cause to be observed. the Constitution with which his throne and person are identified.

The President then returned thanks for this communication. Lisbon, April 1.—To-day, a Royal Salute was fired by the Castle of the city, to celebrate the happy union of the illustrious Island of St. Michael in our glorious regeneration. It is to be hoped that this example will induce the other islands of the Azores to embrace the general cause of the Portuguese nation. The Regency of the kingdom, in the name of the King, Don John VI. announces, that the General, Extraordinary, and Constituent Cortes of the Portuguese nation, have decreed as follows

The General, &c. Cortes, desiring to manifest the spirit of good will which directs them in every thing compatible with justice and with the security of the public order now established, decree-

1. The Decree of the 9th of February, of this year, is extended, and declared to comprehend all those persons who, on account of their conduct and political opinions, up to the day of the installation of the Cortes, are under arrest, and restricted to reside in a certain place.

2. The persons included in the preceding Article, and in the Decree to which it refers, are restored to their liberty and the free exercise of their rights, and to the faculty of being able to justify themselves in Court, but not the exercise of the offices which they filled before the facts which caused their arrest.

Sitting of the Cortes, Murch 31.—In the discussion of the project of a Decree for appropriating the estates (of the Church) to the payment of the public debt, a very long debate arose on the 4th Article, which ordains, that the revenues of the offices, benefices, dignities, &c. of the Patriarchal Church, be applied to the payment of the debt; the amount of whick revenue ought to be reduced to the half of what it now is, provided such half do not amount to less than 303,000 reas.

M. Borges Carneiro made a long speech against this esta-blishment, which cost annually above 200 millions of reas.

The debate on this subject was continued to a great length, both in this Sitting, and that of the 12th of April, of which the following was the result:—

The Committee of the Constitution then went out to draw up a Decree; and returning with it, M. Percira do Carmo read it in the following terms:—The General Extraordinary Constitutional Cortes of the Portuguese nation, considering that he alone is member of a society, who is disposed to submit to the fundamental law of that society, declares, that every Portuguese who refuses to take the oath simply, and without any restric-tion whatever, to the Constitution and to the bases of it, ceases to be a citizer, and is immediately to quit the Portuguese territory. This was unanimously approved.

INDIAN AND COLONIAL.

NEW YORK, March 26.—The British sloop of war Bann, Bigland, sailed early on Saturday morning on her return to Jamaica; the day before she sailed a boat's crew belonging to her rose upon the officer, and made their escape, vociferating, they passed along "Liberty for ever." The brig Superb, arrived this morning (28th March) from Port-au-Prince, left the 9th March, informs, that four of the chief ring-leaders of the recent revolt at St. Mark's were shot; one was a General, one a Major, and two were Captains. President Boyer had quiet possession of St. Mark's.

LOWER CARADA.—The following is an abstract of the Governor's Speech :-

Gentlemen of the House of Assembly,

"Although I cannot by any means express my satisfaction in the general result of your deliberations, yet, it is with great pleasure I acknowledge your as iduous and zealous attendance in the discharge of your public duties, during the long and laborious Session which I am now to close.—You will see the administration of the Civil Government left without any pecunisry means, but what I shall advance upon my own personal responsibility. You will see individuals suffering under severe and unmerited hardships, caused by the want of that constitutional authority that is necessary for the payment of the expenses of the Civil Government.—You will see the interior improvements of the country nearly at a stand—You will see, in short, the Executive Government in a manner palsied and

The Mansion House Hotel, at Montreal, was destroyed by fire on the 16th ult.—12,000; was insured on the buildings, and 3,000! on the plate and furniture, at the Phoenix Fire Office.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Mr. Antrobus, the late British Charge d'Affaires, left this city yesterday morning, to embark at New York, on his return to England, for the purpose of taking his sent in the House of Commons. It is but just to say of him, that his public deportment, during his residence here has been urbane and respectful to the Government, and polite and liberal in society.

Extract from a Letter, dated Sierra Leone, 12th February, 521: "The rainy season has been more favourable than usual, but the mouths of December and January have been particularly unhealthy: three or four white residents have died; the rest of the inhabitants continue much debilitated, and numbers intend returning to England before the rains com-mence. The merchant vessels have suffered severely, 65 men having died out of 85, in two months, and many are left without a man. Our Chaplain, the Rev. Mr. Garnsey and family, Lieut. Olphants, of the 2d West India Regiment, and Mr. Wilson, merchant, have been obliged to return to England. Our Governor, Lieutenant-Colonel Burke, who arrived by the Tartar on the 1st of February, being seized with fever the day after his arrival, was forced to resign on the third day, and with Ensign Spence, of the 2d West India Regiment, Lieutenant Smith, of the Myrmidon, and Lieutenant Spratt, acting in the Snapper, sail this day in the Wilding—all much affected by the climate. Mr. Joseph Wright, late Admiralty Midshipman of the Tartar, and Acting Lieutenant of the Myrmidon, died here on the 5th of this month. The following Promotions and Appointments have taken place here since the arrival of Commodore Sir G. R. Collier:—Mr. James to be Lieutenant of the Pheasant; Mr. Evaus, Acting Lieutenant, and Mr. Cowley, Master, to the Snapper; Messis. Bingham and Edwin, Lieutenants; Mr. Aylen, Muster, and Mr. Mitchell, Surgeon, to the Myrnaidon."

PARLIAMENT.

BUSINESS IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

BUSINESS IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

MONDAY, APRIL 33—ORDERS OF THE DAY.—Conway
Bridge Bill, Second Reading—Jurors Attendance Bill, Report
—Audit of Accounts Bill, Second Reading—Supply, Committee. (Army Estimates)—Spoiled Stamps, &c. Bill, Further Consideration of Report—Church Briefs Bill, Further Consideration of Report—Ways and Means, Committee—Steam Engines Bill, Second Reading—Court of Chancery (Ireland)
Bill, Third Reading—Courts of Justice (Ireland) Bill, Third Reading—Stealing in Shops (Ireland) Bill, Third Reading—
Prison Fees (Ireland) Bill, Report.

NOTICE OF MOTION.—Mr. Chancellor of the Exchequer,
Bill to amend Acts for building Churches.

Bill to amend Acts for building Churches.

TUESDAY, MAY 1.—ORDERS OF THE DAY.—Insolvent Debtors' Court (Ireland), Salaries to Commissioners, Committee thereupon—Dublin Port Acts, Committee thereupon—Insolvency Court (Ireland) Bill, Second Reading—East India Prize Money Bill, Further Consideration of Report—Tithes Leasing (Ireland) Bill, Further Consideration of Report—Westmingter Improvement Bill Committee Court of Admi Westminster Improvement Bill, Committee—Courts of Admi-ralty (Scotland) Bill, Taird Reading—Courts of Session (Scot-land) Bill, Further Consideration of Report.

WEDNESDAY .- ORDERS OF THE DAY .- Hereditary Revenue (Scotland) Bill, Committee-Metropolis Police Bill,

Second Reading.
THURSDAY.—Notice of Motion. Sir John Newport, Collection of the Revenue in Ireland.

ORDERS OF THE DAY.—Coroners' (Ireland) Bill, Further Consideration of Report—Bread Bill, Second Reading—East India Private Trade Bill, Committee—Abduction of Women.

(Ireland) Bill, Second Reading. FRIDAY.—Onders of the Day.—Corn Average Bill, Second Reading—Forgery Punishment Mitigation Bill, Second Reading—Dwelling Rouse Robbery Bill, Second Reading—Navigable Rivers Robbery Bill, Second Reading—Attorneys and Solicitors' Bill, Committee—Bills of Exchange Bill, Com-

MONDAY, MAY 7 .- Notice of Motion -- Lord Nugent, Committee to inquire into Courts of Justice in the Island of Tobago.

TUESDAY.—Notices of Motions.—Mr. Lennard, Repeal of Acts (60 Geo. III. c. 6. and c. 8.) against Seditious Meetings and Libels-Mr. Grey Bennett, Bill to amend the Law touching the Rescue of Prisoners-Mr. Scarlett, Bill to amend the Laws relating to the Relief of the Poor-Lord William Bentinck, To move for the production of certain Papers respecting Sicily.

ORDERS OF THE DAY .- Warwick County Election Petitions; Ballot for Committee at three—Aldborough Borough Election Petition; Ballot for Committee at half after three—Members absent from the Ballot of the 11th April to attend—Juries in Scotland Bill, Second Reading-Witness in Foreign Parts Bill, Second Reading.

WEDNESDAY, -Notices of Motions. -Sir John Newport, Motion relative to the Pr. ceedings of the Commissioners of Inquiry into English Courts of Justice—Lord John Russell, Resolutions on the subject of Corrupt Boroughs, and giving the Elective Franchise to large bodies of the Community—Mr. Tennyson, Bill for enabling the Owners of considerable Tracts of Land, not being Lords of Manors extending over the same, to appoint Persons to preserve and kill Game for their use.

THURSDAY .- Notices of Motions .- Mr. Irving, Claim of General Desfourneaux, in consequence of the Report of the Committee of last Session—Lord Archibald Hamilton, State

Ornmittee of last Session—Lond Artemate Training of the Representation of Counties in Scotland.

Orngrs of the Day.—Portsmouth Borough, Right of Election, Petitions; Ballot for Committee at three—Metropolis Roads Bill, Further Consideration of Report—County Courts.

Bill, Further Consideration of Report.

MONTH May 14. One of the Day.—Usury Laws.

MONDAY, MAY 14.—ORDER OF THE DAY.—Usury Laws Repeal Bill, Second Reading. TURSDAY.—Notice of Motion.—Sir Francis Burdett, Transactions at Manchester in August, 1819.

ORDERS OF THE DAY.—Boroughbridge Borough, Right of Election, Petition; Ballot for Committee at three—Limerick City, Right of Election, Petition; Ballot for Committee at half after three—Land-Tax Commissioners Names Bill, Second Reading - County Rates Amendment Bill, Second

WEDNESDAY .- Notice of Motion .- Mr. Horace Twiss, Bill to enable the Court of Chancery to refer matters of fact controverted in Bankruptcy.

THURSDAY.—Notice of Motion.—Mr. Grey Bennett, Bill for better securing the Independence of Parliament.

TUESDAY, MAY 22.—CROER OF THE DAY.—Petersfield Berough, Right of Election, Petition; Ballot for Committee

WEDNESDAY, -Notice of Motion .- Mr. Michael Angelo Taylor, Bill for Regulation of Proceedings in the Court Chancery, and in Cases of Appeal to the House of Lords.

NOTICES OF MOTIONS AFTER EASTER.

FOR WHICH NO PARTICULAR DAYS HAVE BEEN FIXED. Lord Viscount Milton, Repeal of Wool Tax-Lord Archibuld Hamilton, Detailed Account of the Expences of the Milan Commission, and to whom paid; also, Copy of the Commission itself—Mr. Brougham, Education—Mr. John Smith, Bill to alter and amend the Bankrupt Laws-Mr. Hume, Conduct of Sir Thomas Maitland, and the System of Government carried on in the Ionian Islands-Mr. Holme Sumner, Committee on the Orphans' Fund, and other Payments into the Chamber of the City of London.

PARLIAMENTARY PAPER.

The Bill for explaining and amending certain Acts relating to Stamp Duties, and for extending relief in cases of spoiled stamps, as amended by the Committee of the House of Commons, has been printed. The preamble states—

"Whereas it is expedient to reduce the Stamp Duties granted and imposed by an Act and schedule thereto, made and passed in the 35th year of his late Majesty, intituled 'An Act for Repealing the Stamp Daties on Deeds, Law Proceedings, other written or printed Instruments, and the Duties on Fire Insurances, and on Legacies and Successions to personal Estate upon Intestacies, now payable in Great Britain, and for grant-ing other Duties in lieu thereof," "&c.

Then follow the enacting clauses, with the schedule annexed of the New Duties, from which the following is an extract:—

SRITLEMENT.-Any deed or instrument, whether voluntary or gratuitous, or upon any good or valuable consideration (other than a bona fide pecuniary consideration), whereby any sums of money, whether limited or unlimited in amount, and whether theretofore charged or chargeable, or by such deed or instrument made, de novo, charged or chargeable on any lands, tenements or hereditaments or heritable subjects, or upon any chattels real or personal, or not so chargeable; and if so charged or chargeable, whether to be raised at all events or not; or whereby any share or shares (whether limited or unlimited in amount) in any of the Government or Parliamentary stocks or funds, or in the stocks and funds of the Governor and Company of the Bank of England, or of the East India Company, or of the South Sea Company; or whereby any abnuity or annuities, reat charges, or other annual payment or payments, or any part or share thereof, shall be settled, or agreed to be settled, upon or for the benefit of any person or persons, either in possession or reversion, either absolutely, or conditionally, or contingently, or for life, or other partial interest, or in any manner whatsoever, or made liable to any trust or purpose whatsoever.

If such sum or sums of money, or the value of such share or shares in all or any of the said stocks or funds, or the value of such annuity or unnuities, rent charge or rent charges. or other annual payment or payments, or the part or parts thereof so settled or agreed to be settled (such value to be ascertained as hereafter mentioned), or both shall amount to 1,0001. And if the same shall amount to 1,0001. and not to 2,0001. 3 And if the same shall amount to 2,0001, and not to 3,0001. 4 And if the same shall amount to 3,0001, and not to 4,0001. 6 And if the same shall amount to 4,0001, and not to 5,0001. 7 And if the same shall amount to 5,0001, and not to 6,0001. And if the same shall amount to 6,0001, and not to 7,0001, 9 And if the same shall amount to 7,0001, and not to 8,0001, 10 And if the same shall amount to 8,0001, and not to 10,0001, 12

And if the same shall amount to 10,0001, & not to 12,0001, 15 And if the same shall amount to 12,0001. & not to 15,0001. 20 And if the same shall amount to 15,0001. & not to 20,0001. 30 And if the same shall amount to 20,0001. or upwards - 45

And where any such deed or instrument as last men-tioned, together with any schedule, receipt, or other matter put or indorsed thereon, or annexed thereto, shall contain 2,160 words, or upwards, then for every entire quantity of 1,080 words contained therein, over and above the first 1,080 words, a further progressive

This clause is founded upon the practice which has prevailed of evading the duty by assignments of property to tru-tees, and by presents during life. The duty will henceforth attach to all such grant of property during life, as when regularly bequeathed by last will and testament.

THE ARMY.

A return to an order of the House of Commons states the charge of a Regiment of Life Guards, consisting of eight troops of one farrier and 42 men per troop, and 274 troop horses, for one day's pay, 651. 5s. 5d.; total charge, including clothing, &c. for the year, 32,0001, 16s. 8d. The charge of a Regiment of Horse Guards, of eight troops, a farrier and 42 men per troop, and 274 troop lorses, for one day's pay, 811. 8s. 1d.; total charge, including clothing, &c. for the year, 30,1881.17s. 6d. The charge of a Regiment of Dragoon Guards, consisting of eight troops of 46 run's and file per troop, and 273 troop borses, for one day's pay, 491. 2s. 3d.; total charge, including clothing, &c. for the year, 24,8351. 12s. 11d.

FOREIGN SERVICE.—The following is the list of regiments on foreign service, and of regiments about to return home.

on loreign service, and of regiments about to return home.

4th and 18th Dragoons, to India, to relieve the 8th and 17th Dragoons—6th Foot to St. Helena, to relieve the 66th—13th ditto to India, to relieve the 2d battalion of the 1st Foot—38th and 54th ditto, at the Cupe, to proceed to India—41st ditto to India, to relieve the 59th—44th ditto to India, to relieve the 53d—2d battalion of the 1st Foot, 17th, 53d, 59th, and 65th
Foot, to return from India—33d and 91st ditto to Jamaica—48th and 54th ditto to the Cape of Good Hope to relieve the 49th and 54th ditto to the Cape of Good Hope, to relieve the 38th and 54th-58th and 61st ditto to return from the West Indies—66th ditto to return to St. Helena—75th ditto to go to Gibraltar—51st and 85th ditto to the Mediterranean—82d ditto to remove from the Mauritius to Calcutta.

The Rifle Brigade, the last division of which left Limerick on Tuesday morning for the County of Cork, are destined, we understand, for Corfu. - The four companies of the 40th, which arrived at Limerick last week, are stationed in the Castle Barracks in the old town.—The 19th Lancers are under orders for

A party of military is now stationed at Gore's-bridge, in the County of Kilkenny, on account of the late disturbances in that Sir William Grant Keir is to be the new Colonel of the 6th Dragoon Guards (Carabineers), in the room of the late Earl of Carhampton.

SURREY SESSIONS.

This Court have been occupied for some time past with an enquiry into the truth of a memorial presented by Mr. T. Brad-field, complaining of the conduct of Mr. F. Bigg, the principal Coal Meter of the County of Surrey, charging him with mal-versation of duty, and praying that he might be dismissed from

The evidence having been gone through, and the case fully beard, as well as Mr. Nolan in reply,

The Chairman said the Court had weighed the whole of the evidence in this important investigation. The great duty of the principal Coal Meter was to protect the public from fraud by the coal dealers. He had been charged with comming at these frauds, but that charge had not been proved; if it had, dismissal from his office must have been the consequence. The Court, however, were clearly of opinion that the charge of having failed to provide a sufficient number of labouring meters to do the duty of the office, had been substantiated; and the Court

The Chairman then made some observations on some minor irregularities which had been proved, and said, the Court had found that the negligence of Mr. Bigg, in not providing a sufficient number of men to do the duty of the station, had led to The leaving of tickets at the public-houses of the stations for the dealers, which did away with the security intended by the They were of opinion, that for the future he should be much more upon the alert in this particular, and that he should have the tickets materially altered, and the precise address of the office given upon them. The office itself was not such an the office given upon them. The office itself was not such an office as the Act contemplated, and also required reformation. —The Court then gave Mr. Bigg to understand, that any future complaint that should be proved would be fatal to him. With these observations the Court would leave the case, wishing it to be distinctly understood that Mr. Bigg was under the censure of

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

COURT OF KING'S BENCH, WESTMINSTER .- APRIL 25. The Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Bayley, and Mr. Justice Best, sat this day to hear the arguments of Counsel on points reserved at the late Assizes, and on applications for new trials.

Pullen v. Tucker.—This case was tried before Mr. Baron Wood at the last Assizes for the county of Devon, and the fact tried was, whether the defendant had not committed an act of bankruptcy, by being party to a deed which assigned over to certain of his creditors a portion of his property, borrowing from them at the same time some money, for which, as well as for the original debt, the assignment was to be a security. There was a verdict for the plaintiff, on the grounds that the defendant not having property equal to the payment of all debts, the conveyance made to some creditors amounted to an undue preference, and would have the effect of defeating and avoiding the claims of his other creditors.

ing the claims of his other creations.

The application now made by the defendant for a new trial was founded on the improper summing up (as it was alleged) of the evidence, by the Learned Judge who presided.

The arguments of Mr. Moore and Mr. Bayley were heard in support of the application.

Mr. Gaselee and Mr. Wilde appeared in support of the verdiet, but were not called on for any argument, the Court being satisfied that any other Jury would come to the same conclu-

Pitman v. Bridges.—This was an action of trover, tried before Mr. Justice Burroughs, at the Spring Assizes for the county of Suffolk. The defendant was an attorney, and it was to re-cover a deed which he held that the action was brought. It appeared that a woman named Scott had lent the sum of 8001. on mortgage, to a man named Lockyer. It was afterwards wished to assign the mortgage-leed to Pitman, and Mrs. Scott consented to the transfer. She then received 8211, and after the deed had been prepared by the plaintiff's attorney, it was, by her desire, handed to the defendant (her attorney) for his perusal, and he refused to give it up to the plaintiff till his charge for inspecting it had been paid.

These were the facts as they appeared on the trial, and the Jury found a vertict for the plaintiff.

Mr. Williams had, on a former day, obtained a rule to shew cause why a new trial should not be had, on the ground that as Mrs. Scott was entitled to be borne free of all expence, the defendant, who had been employed by her, had certainly a claim for his charges.

The Rule was now opposed by Mr. Serjeant Pell, who contended that Pitman could not be liable to Bridges, as he had never given any directions to him on the subject; and, at all events. if Mrs. Scott was entitled to be borne harmless as to expence, she should have covenanted for it previously to taking

Mr. Abrams supported the Rule Nisi, and contended that as Bridges had, in the perusal of the deed, discovered an error, which would have been prejudicial to Pitman, he was on that account entitled to claim against him.

The Court held that an attorney could only have a lien on papers where there was a contract, either express or implied, between him and the principal, and in the present case there was none. The error which he had discovered in the deed was gratuitous to the plaintiff.—Rule discharged.

IRELAND.

LIMERICK, April 11.—At twelve on Sunday night the 8th instant, about 30 desperadoes assailed the house of John Torrance, Esq. at Cunnigar. They forced in the parlour windows with sledges and large stones.—Mr. Torrance went to his bed room window and attempted to fire on the party, who were then just under him, but missed fire. The robbers having got into the house, rushed up stairs, and throwing a large stone Mr. T.'s door, one of the upper punnels of which they broke in, they demanded his arms, and asked if he would promise to the door at Mr. Torrance, which he returned, Mrs. Torrance rendering every assistance by charging the arms and handing them to her husband. They then with a sledge endeavoured to break through a partition wall, which, had they effected, would have placed Mr. T. between two fires, but he taking deliberate aim at the person so employed, disabled him, and he was dragged into the servant's room. The firing now ceased, and the party ordered two large bundles of lary, which they land brought into the parlour, to be set on fire. Mr. T. said if they did so, some of their companions should also suffer: he knew he had killed one, and the rest should never go down stairs alive, but that he would let them away quietly, if they promised to leave the house, and also one man neight come up stairs; this being agreed to, the man did so, and a ladder being put to the servant's window, the whole of which was forced out, they dragged the man to it, and carried him down that way, and having taken a door from the premises, on which the man to it, and carried him down that way, and having taken a door from the premises, on which it is supposed they placed the body, they went off. Mr. T.'s face and legs were burnt with the powder of his assailants, whose guns were fired off quite close to him. A number of balls have been picked from the walls of the bed room, and a very handsome pistol was left behind by these desperadoes, who broke every article of furniture, including looking glasses, chairs, tables, and ckina.

On Wednesday night about twelve o'clock, upwards of fifty armed men attacked the house of Charles Sullivan, near the lands of Lifford, and having broken the thatch, gained an en-trance; others of the party broke down the wall of the house, and fired several shots through the windows and doors. Sullivan was dragged out and much beaten in the head, and the party having taken a pistol, sword, and bayonet, with above five pounds in money, left the house, and proceeded in search of fire-arms to other places in the same neighbourhood.

The same gang visited the house of Mrs. Bennet, at Rutland, and after searching all the rooms for arms they went off without doing any mischief. Some other houses on the Ballinaurra ere also entered in search of arms the

On Thursday night, two farm houses, in the neighbourhood of Coolyhenan, occupied by a herdsman and dairyman, in the employment of George Gloster, Esq. were attacked by a gang of men in search of arms; from the herdsman they took a bayonet, and at the dairyman's house, not finding arms, they left an injunction for him to quit or prepare his coffin against Sunday night, as they were determined no intruder or stranger should be permitted to remain there.

WENFORD.—A few days since, the body of J. Gowan, Esq. a Lieut. of the 30th Foot, was discovered lying dead on the road from Goree to the seat of his father, J. H. Gowan, Esq. without any marks of violence on his person; but his baving had a silver hunting watch, a morocco pocket-book containing notes, and a purse with several gold sovereigns, which were not in his pockets when found, and his pockets being turned inside out, there is no doubt he was robbed and murdered,

FASHIONABLES.

THE KING'S BIRTH DAY.—On Monday, being St. George's Day, and appointed for the celebration of his Majesty's birthday, the morning was ushered in with the ringing of bells; flags and the standard of England were displayed during the day; the Park and Tower guns fired a double royal salute. The King gave a ball at Brighton, and her Royal Highness the Princess Augusta left town to be present at it. All the public places, and the different tradesman's houses were illuminated, and the mail couches paraded as usual.

BRIGHTON, April 28.—The Princess Augusta, accompanied by Lady Mary Taylor, arrived at the Pavilion at half past five o'clock on Monday afternoon. Her Royal Highness was received by Sir B. Bloomfield and Lord St. Helen's, in the vestibule of the grand hall.—The following distinguished personbute of the grand half.—The following distinguished personages had the honour of being entertained at the Palace on the evening of her Royal Highness's arrival, viz.: The Marquis and Marchioness of Lansdowne, the Marchioness of Tavistock, the Marchioness of Bath and Lady T. Thynne, the Earl and Countess Cowper, the Dowager Countess of Mexborough, Lord John and the Hon. Miss Townshend, Lord Sandon, Lord Viscount Melbourne, Lord Grenville Somerset, Lady and Miss Middans. Lady Openhaton, M. Charles and Lady Counter. Miss Mildmay, Ludy Ossulston, Mr. Charles and Ludy Caven dish, Mr. Laboucher, Miss Lake, Miss Lowther, and Captain and Mrs. Cliffords. His Majesty and her Royal Highness were in the enjoyment of excellent health and spirits. On Tuesday her Royal Highness took a carriage airing, attended by Lady Mary Taylor. The King this week has confined his exercise to frequent promenades in the Palace gardens, yesterday excepted, when His Majesty took a carriage airing with the Princess Augusta.

THE CORONATION.—The orders of the Board of Works bave been executing with more than ordinary energy, in Westminster Hall; and to that circumstance, more than to any other, are we disposed to trace the revived rumours respecting the coronation of his Majesty. The galleries and passages, and the servants' glass pantries behind (and ingeniously hid from the passages), for the different articles required during the grand festival, are all completed in Westminster Hall, except the mere covering of the sents and fresco ornaments in front, which it is estimated could be finished in a fortnight; and these being mere super-ficial ornaments, it is not necessary they should be laid on until the last moment; but the gilding and stucco work materials are all on the spot, and every thing indicates the truth of the rumour that the coronation will take place in the ensuing summ The great alterations now carrying on in Westminster Hall by The great alterations now carrying on in Westminster Hall by the Board of Works, are in the repairs of the ancient roof, many parts of which, upon perforating the timber for suspending the chandeliers for the coronation, were found so rotten, that the safety of this noble roof, which, for its mechanism and antiquity, has become so justly celebrated, required an immediate separation of the decayed parts, and the fitting in of substantial joinings to complete the frame-work. A general surprofession was the fitting in the decayed parts, and the fitting in of substantial joinings to complete the frame-work. A general surprofession was the fitting in the decayed parts of the second surprofession was the decayed parts. vey of the roof lately took place, in consequence of the discovery of this decay, and the oak (which, according to the popular tradition was first imported by William Rufus), was found mostly sound, but the cherry-tree rafters were worm-enten; they have been in consequence all taken down and renewed.
It was deemed right in the progress of the work to take down the old lanthorn, which illuminated the Hall from the top of the roof. Its weight was found to have made an impression on the roof, and the taking it down was a difficult and rather perilous work, from the enormous quantity of lead which was clumsily used in its original manufacture. A new lanthorn is now erecting in its stead, of a light and more useful form. In-stead of lead, sheet iron is used with the timber frame work, still preserving the Gothic form, so essential to the unity of the structure. In three weeks it is calculated that the whole repairs will be finished, and then the uphoistery part will alone remain for completion. Six weeks notice will be necessary between the issuing of the Proclamation and Coronation; and it is said, that if it shall occur during the sitting of Parliament, the Commons, as of ancient courtesy, will be entitled to seats in the Hall.

The Earl of Liverpool gives a full-dress dinner on the 31 of May, in honour of His Majesty's birth-day.

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

The Bishop of Winchester has, it is said, had an estate of 1000l. a-year devised to him by a gentleman, with whom he was not acquainted.

A return to an order of the House of Commons states the number of persons admitted to view the British Museum, from the 27th of March, 1820, to the 25th of March, 1821, at 62,543. The days of public admission are the Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays in every week, when, between the hours of ten and two, visitors are admitted immediately upon their application.

It has been remarked as a curious coincidence, that the number of the majority of the House of Lords who voted against the Catholic Relief Bill, corresponded with that of the Articles of the Church of England-thirty-nine.

The Methodists are now raising subscriptions to convert the gypsies to Christianity. In a late report, they say, "We have been running to the ends of the earth to convert the heathen. while this body, which has subsisted among us for 400 years, and now amounts to 18,000 souls, has escaped our notice."

On Wednesday a Court of Directors was held at the East India House, when the following commanders took leave of the Court, previous to departing for their respective destina-tions, viz.—Capt. W. Manning, Thomas Grenville; Captain J. Blanchard, Marquis of Wellington, for Madras and Bengal.

A contest was carried on on Monday and Tuesday, in the Parish of St. Paul, Covent Garden, for the election of church-warden. The candidates were Mr. Skelton and Mr. Wilson.

warden. The candidates were Mr. Skelton and Mr. Wilson. At the final close of the poll the numbers were, for Mr. Skelton, 201—Mr. Wilson, 167.

The Royal Marines appeared on Monday in their naw dress and equipments, which have been approved of by His Majesty. The Corporation of London have resolved upon widening and improving the arches of London Bridge; the expence is estimated at 90,0001.

On Easter Tuesday, the Christ's Hospital and Bridewell Boys, to the amount of 700, walked in procession to the Mansion-house, where they were admitted, according to ancient custom, to see the Egyptian Hall, with all its ornaments and decorations, as fitted up for the entertainment of the day before.

After this ceremony, the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, and all the City.

Officers, having previously partaken of an excellent cold collation, proceeding irand state to Christ's Church, Newgatestreet, where the Spital Sermon was preached by the Rev. Or. Barrow, of Soho-square, who took his text from the 29th chapter of Proverbs, 15th verse. The company afterwards returned to the Mansion-house to dinner.

ADVERTISEMENT.]—The splendid Drawing Room, to be held the first week in May, in honour of the Birth-day of the Sovereign, will exhibit a display of Benuty and Fashion equal, if not surpassing, any former Drawing Room. The British Ladies render their hair exquisitely beautiful by the use of Rowland's Macassar Oil.

COURT OF CHANCERY, FRIDAY.

MURRAY v. ELLISTON .- An injunction was obtained in this Court to restrain the Defendant, the proprietor of Drury-lane Theatre, from performing Lord Byron's tragedy of Marino Faliero.

The Attorney-General was heard on Friday on behalf of Mr.
Elliston, to dissolve the injunction. The grounds on which the Learned Gent. went were these :- that all published works, being a species of general amusement, were as much the pro-perty of the purchaser as of the bookseller who sold them: that every published poem that was a trugedy was open to be dramatized, which was all that had been done in this case, and that if this injunction could be sustained, every performer who had a retentive memory might be prevented, by injunction, from performing, and the principle might be extended even to private reading rooms. All that was now complained of was, that Mr. Elliston had not the permission of Mr. Murray to perform this piece.

Mr. Shadwell, for Mr. Murray, denied that all poems written in the style of tragedy were open to performance on the stage; besides, in this case, Lord Byron did not chuse to have his noems performed in playbouses; even the hand-hills appounced that several of the most beautiful incidents had been omitted: thus Mr. Elliston was to be allowed to cut and back, for his own purposes, what he allowed to be a beautiful work, and then send it forth to the world as the Tragedy of Lord Byron. In the case of Macklin v. Richardson, an injunction issued to prevent the defendant from performing Love a la Mode; and on various occasions the Court had interfered to protect authors from these dilapidations of the interested. He had, however, no objection to make it a question of law.

The Lord Chancellor seemed to be of opinion that it would be better to make it a case of law, but said he would prepare his decision, and the parties might send for it.

On Friday night Patrick Kelleher was taken into custody on a Judge's warrant, by Gibbon, the tipstaff, for publishing a libel on the King.

The American ship Ophelia, Capt. Dewson, has arrived at Cowes from Canton, whence she sailed 12th Dec. All the Company's ships at that place had been for some time detained by the Chinese Government, in consequence of a Chinese having been accidentally shot. The Chinese laws enact, that blood shall be paid by blood, and, in consequence, the affair was considered very serious; but it was reported, at the time was considered very seatons, but I had been compromised by the payment of a large sum of money by the offending party, and, of course, the ships would be released.

WANTED, by a Gentleman in extensive Medical Practice at a short distance from Londen, as APPRENTICE, a Yeuth of good education and respectable connexions, who will be completely domesticated in a small genteel Family, where every comfort will be afforded to him, together with the strictest attention to his general conduct and manners, as well as to his professional improvement. As the Situation new offered embraces many advantages, it is particularly recommended to the attention of Parents and Guardians. A handsome Prenium will be required.—Application may be made at Messrs. Corbyn and Co. Chemists, 300, Holborn. Letters to be post-paid.

NEW EDITIONS of Mr. MOORES WORKS—Last published.

Premium will be required.—Application may be made at messrs. Cordyn and Co. Chemists, 300. Holborn. Letters to be post-paid.

NEW EDITIONS of Mr. MOORE'S WORKS.—Just published, PISTLES, ODES, and other POEMS. The Fifth Edition, in 2 vols. foolscap 8vo. price 14s. in boards. Ditto, in 4to, price 11. 11s. 6d.

2. ODES of ANACREON, translated into English Verse, the Tenth Edition, in 2 vols. foolscap 8vo. price 14s. in boards. Ditto, on large paper, price 18s. in boards.

3. The POETICAL WORKS of the late THOMAS LITTLE, Exq. Fourteenth edition, price 7s. in boards.

4. CORRUPTION and INTOLERANCE: Two Poems, with Notes; addressed to an Englishman by an Irishman. The Second Edition, price 2s. 6d.

5. The SCEPTIC; a Philosophical Satire, price 1s. 6d.

6. A LETTER to the ROMAN CATHOLICS of IRELAND, price 2s. Printed for James Carpenter, Old Bond-street.

Just published, in 3 volumes, 12mo. price 11. 4s. boards.

VALERIUS; a ROMAN STORY.

"They'll sit by the fire, and presume to know what's done i' the Caylot.—Saakespeare, Printed for T. Cadell, Strand, London; and W. Blackwood, Edinburgh.

LATIN COMMON PRAYER.

Printed for T. Cadell, Strand, London; and W. Blackwood, Edinburgh.

LATIN COMMON PRAYER.

Just published, in one very small volume, beautifully printed, price 5s.

A LATIN TRANSLATION of the BOOK of COMMON PRAYER.

Printed for Samuel Bagster, No. 15, Paternoster Row, where maybe had, in uniform Volumes, price 5s. each, Translations into Italian, German, French, Modern Greek, Greek, or Spanish; or, the 8 Volumes, in one Set, including the Bnglish, price £2.

RRITISH BOTANY.—Just Published, by Samuel Bagster, 15, Paternoster-row, in one clegant portable volume, price 10s. 6d. in boards.

A SYNOPTICAL COMPEND of BRITISH BOTANY, arranged after the Linnean System; and containing the Essential ranged after the Linnean System; and containing the Essential Characters of the Genera, the Specific Characters, English Names, Places of Growth, Soil, and Situation, Colour of the Flowers, Times of Flowering, Duration, and References to Figures. Originally by JOHN GALPINE, A. L. S. — The second Edition, with considerable additions.

ON TELESCOPES and SPECTACLES .- Just Published, in one

ON TELESCOPES and SPECTACLES.—Just Published, in one portable volume, neatly printed, PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS on TELESCOPES, OPERA GLASSES, and SPECTACLES, by W. KITCHENER, M.D.

—The Third Edition, price 5s. in loands.

We feel persuaded that few persons, who take any pleasure in Astronomical Observations, or need the aid of Spectacles, will remain unprovided with this most useful guide.

Printed for Samuel Bagster, No. 15, Patersoster-row.

Printed for Samuel Bagster, No. 15, Patermoster-row.

HORÆ ENTOMOLOGICÆ—Just published, handsomely printed in one volume, Royal Svo, price 14s., The Second Part of PORÆ ENTOMOLOGICÆ; or, ESSAYS on the ANNU-LOSE ANIMALS. By W. S. MACLEAY, Ssq. A.M. F.R.S. Being an attempt to ascertain the rank and situation which the celebrated Egyptian Insect Scarabosus Sacer holds among organized Beings.—This Part contains a summary view, and connected plan, of all the principal Affinities which Naturalists have hitherto discovered in the Animal Egyptom.—Printed for Samuel Bagster, 15, Paternoster Row.

EXHIBITION of the BATTLE of WATERLOO, in an Allegory painted for the Directors of the British Institution, by JAMES WARD, Esq. R.A. Size 35 feet by 21 feet, will be OPENBD TO-MORROW, at the Egyptian Hall, Piecedilly—Admittance la. Catalogue, 6d. Description, do. With etched outline, 2s. 6d.

MR. HAYDON'S PICTURE of CHRIST'S AGONY in the GARDEN, with Solomon, Maebeth, Dentatus, Romeo and Juliet, his Drawing's from Eigin Marbles and from Nature, and the Drawing's chis Pupils from the Cartooris, with some of their FIRST ATTEMPT'S in PAINTING, are NOW OPEN at the Gallery next door to the British Institution, Pall Mall, from 10 till dusk.—Admittance, is. Catalogues, 6d.

NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

At the suggestion of many of our correspondents, we are induced to re-publish, next Sunday, with the music, the eele-brated Song of "THE ASSES," which appeared in our first Number. In announcing this, we beg to inquire of the author of the four supplementary verses, published subsequently, if he will have any objection to our now adding them to the original ones—if we hear nothing to the contrary, we shall con-

BARNABY from CHICHRATER is rather too plain-spoken. Our thanks are due to SAM and MINIM, both on the sam sbject. They will see we availed ourselves of their hint. Vox Amiconum calls for atonement to Lady Manufield, for an account of her party which appeared in our last num-ber; what does he mean? We were there, and we repeat, it was uncommonly dull; which we should not have thought it necessary to say had it not been paragraphed in the Post as uncommonly pleasant. The system of puffing their own parties in the newspapers, by ladies and gentlemen of ton, is become so ridiculous that it ought to be checked; and therefore, whenever we see an advertisement on such a subject, which, by experience, we can contradict, we shall do it. the same time it throws no reflection upon a lady's goodness, excellence, virtue, character, or accomplishment, that her party turns out a flat shine. We profess to speak truth on all subjects, and when fashionable folly gets to a too great height, we consider it quite in our province to get it out of fashion as fast as we can

The new case of Frederick White and Alderman Waithman shall be sifted.

The Letter to Major-General Wilson is received; but if it has been sent to him we do not know upon what ground could publish it.

We would advise MARY ANNE to get married as soon as she can: as for printing her verses, it is out of the question. Clericus is right. The Rev. D. Ashe, who believes in the Queen's innoconce, and prays for her, is the same who believed in JOANNA SOUTHCOTT, and prayed to her.

We are obliged to PIGEON. MICHAEL ANGELO is come to hand, but the dinner is cold

The Copy of Mr. Brougham's note to _____ is invaluable. B. D. may rely on our not publishing it, but the information it contains is in the very highest degree satis-

We are really obliged to Quiz. Why does he not send earlier in the week!

We have been deprived, by an unavoidable accident, of a most promising piece of poetry; the absence of which we beg L. D. and our readers to excuse.

G. P. must be wrong, we think, in stating that the DUKE or Sussex gave the Queen, with three times three, at the Freemasons' Tavern, on Thursday. We will enquire further into il, and, if he did, lake some more particular notice of it.

PRICE OF STOCKS AT THE CLOSE YESTERDAY.

5 per ct. Div. 22 Mar. 81-80 | Bank Sh. Div. 1 Jan... 1542 50 Recon. Div. 22 Mar. .. 95-65 | Ex. Lond. 1m 25-65 3m 25-45

THEATRE ROYAL, COVENT-GARDEN Monday, Romeo and Juliet. - Tuesday, The Slave. - We Henri Quatre.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.

Monday, Macbeth.—Tuesday, Wild Oats.—In the course of next week ill be produced, a new Operatic Drama, founded on "She Would and ould Not," entitled "The Kind Impostor."

A Monday's Edition, containing the latest News, the Stock List, the London Markets, and the State of the Country Markets by that morning's post, is published at Three o'clock.

On the 5th of May will be published, Number I, price 8d.; or stamped and sent to Country Subscribers, free of postage, price ls. to be con tinued every Saturday,

THE JOURNAL OF LITERATURE. This Werk will contain Reviews of new Books, Foreign as well as English; of new Musical Works; Criticisms on the Arts and the Theatre; Notices of all new Publications; of Discoveries and Inventions in Science and Mechanics; Advertisements on Literary Subjects; and

Published at the Office of "JOHN BULL," No. 11. Johnson's-court Fleet-street, to which Place all Communications are to be addresse

a variety of every sort of information which can be acceptable to the

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, APRIL 29.

Nothing of any importance, either foreign or domes tic, has occurred during the week. The King's birthday was observed with an enthusiasm we hardly remember to have witnessed on any former occasion, and we lament to observe, by letters from Edinburgh and Glasgow, that the rejoicings in those places terminated in disorderly riotings. The Old Times of yesterday makes an observation upon those events, of which we hope we mistake the meaning. The truth, however, is, that they originated with a herd of idle boys, who thought it a fair opportunity for playing their pranks, and, as is usual in such cases, men (who are but children of a larger growth) were found ready to enter into their unseemly sports.

Another revolution has taken place in Bahia!— Such a revolution as even Wilson himself, we should think, would be ashamed of; but it is very cheering to the Morning Chronicle, who immediately discovers and points out the great importance of the place in which it occurred. The pleasure, however, which this little meeting (for it is nothing else) has afforded the amateurs of insurrection, is, in a very great degree, conterbalanced by the arrival of the Piedroontese Gazettes up to the 18th, by which we find that all revolutionary feeling in that quarter has subsided. As usual, with loyalty public confidence has returned, and the people having conquered the efforts of their friends, are now perfectly at peace. The following extracts are highly satisfactory:—

TURIN, April 17 .- On Sunday, at fix o'clock, his Excellen Count de Latour, General-in-Chief, and Governor-General of Piedmont, accompanied by his whole Staff, proceeded to the Metropolitan Church of St. John, to attend the solemn thanksgiving to the Almighty for deigning to restore tranquillity to this country. He was preceded by the Magistrates of the Se-nate, of the Chamber, the Municipal (Decurionale) Body, the Professors and Seniors of the Faculties of the Royal University Degli Studii, and a great number of persons of distinction.

The Church, notwithstanding its vast size, was crowded with people, to whom the celebrated preacher, Father Frineli, addressed, before vespers, a most eloquent discourse, shewing the visible predilection of the Almighty for these dominions, which has been manifested in the late event, as well at in former rehas been manifested in the late event, as well as in former re-

The Archbishop then chaunted the Ambrosial hymn, which was performed by the musicians of the King's Chapel; who afterwards sung Domine salvam fac Ducem Carelum Falicem. After which, the priest gave the benediction, with the holy sacrament.

The cannon of the citadel, and the brigade of Piedmont, drawn up in the square, fired three salutes in honour of this joyful day, the forerunner and harbinger of the happiest future

LATEST INTELLIGENCE FROM PIEDMONT, TURIN, &c.

TURIN, APRIL 16.—The following was published yesterday evening:—

"ORDER OF THE DAY."

"We hasten to make known to the Royal Army the following Rescript of his Royal Highness the Duke of Genevois, addressed to us, which has just arrived from Modena.

"Count SALTIER DE LA TOUR-The signal services performed by you, in the present serious and critical circumstances, have entirely justified the opinion which we had conceived of your talents and your zeal. We take pleasure, therefore, in giving you, by these presents, a public testimony of our esteem and our thanks. It is, besides, our intention that you should make known to that part of the royal army, which, notwithstanding the insidious intrigues of a few factious persons has continued to preserve entire the honour of our arms, the particular satisfaction with which we shall not cease to call to mind both the loyal sentiments displayed by various corps stationed in the different parts of the royal dominions, and the firm and honourable countenance shewn on the 8th of April, by the army assembled at Novara, which, with that confidence, and that superiority, which arise from the consciousness of doing well, vigorously opposed the mad threats of a body of desperate rebels, and maintained in this manner, in the presence of our Allies, who had generously come to our aid, the ancient reputation of the royal armies. This glorious example will be gratefully remembered by posterity, and will serve at all times to confirm in the breasts of our warriors those sentiments of fidelity, of honour, and of obedience to legitimate authority, without which, the noble profession of arms, destined to be the ornament of society, becomes it scourge and its opprobrium. "CHARLES FELIX." becomes its scourge and its opprobrium.

" Modena, April 11, 1821.

"DE LA TOUR.

"General in Chief, Governor-General."

PRINCE LEOPOLD.

We have received the following letter on the subject of Prince Leopold :-

SIR-! have been a constant reader of your Paper. ever since its first institution, and have taken considerable pains to promote its circulation. It is a publication that has done much good: it has unmasked the wicked and designing; it has dispelled the mists of error and delusion, and has essentially served the cause of morality, religion, and civil order.

But I lament that in some few points it is very reprehensible. There is a Personage in this country, who has hitherto stood deservedly high in public estimation. This Personage is the constant object of the melevolent attacks of the Editor of John Bull.

Is an error in judgment a crime never to be forgiven?

Is it to subject the unfortunate person to perpetual censure—to hold him up as an object of ridicule—and to suppose him capable of every base, ungrateful and disingenious feeling?—In the case of Prince Leopold you have not had the accurate information which you have to beast of on every other point. If you had had this, you must have known that the Prince's visit to the Queen arose from feeling that it was an act of duty to the memory of his dear departed wife. It was not owing to any party consideration whatever. The visit he paid on the second day was owing to his being refused admittance on the first day.

Upon the suggestion of Mr. Brougham, the Queen sent to apolegise to the Prince for refusing to see him, and entreated him to call upon her.

The third visit the Prince made to her was, in consequence of his having heard that she was negociating for the purchase of Marlborough House. This he took great pains to dissuade her from, urging, how rude and offensive it must be to the King—and assuring her, that though she might succeed in purchasing the house at the expiration of his term; yet, that nothing should ever induce him to resign any part of his term to her.

It has been urged as matter of blame against Prince Leopold, and as a proof that he espoused the party of the Queen, that he was intimately acquainted with Sir Robert Wilson, who dined with him three or four days in the week, privately. The fact is not so. It is true, that Sir Robert is seen frequently coming from Marlborough House, but his visits are to one of the Prince's household. He has never been admitted into the presence

If you will take the trouble to make the enquiry, you will find what I have asserted to be strictly true; and, therefore, for the credit of your Paper, you ought to take the earliest opportunity of correcting your error, and ceasing to speak disrespectfully of a amiable and deserving man.—1 am, Sir, your admirer and constant reader,

From the great respectability of the writer, and the mildness of his tone, we should have been induced to have given this letter a place in JOHN BULL, even had it told against us; but as it corroborates every assertion or insinuation we have ever made or threwn out respecting His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, we feel the greatest satisfaction in publishing it.

With respect to the first visit of Prince Leopold to the Queen, if it "were from feeling that it was an act of duty to his dear departed wife," why was that visit not paid immediately on the Queen's arrival in England? If it was not "owing to any party con-sideration," why did Prince Leopold wait to pay that visit of condolence till after all the charges had been brought against the Queen, and before she had made any defence or reply to them, thus declaring his opinion on the subject, and giving her his support and countenance at that particular juncture?

With respect to the second visit, (or, as our correspondent puts it, the third) it was, he says, "in consequence of his having heard that she was negociating for the purchase of Marlborough House." Well,—at this visit he assured her "that though she might succeed in purchasing the house at the expiration of his term, yet that nothing should ever induce him to resign any part of his term to her." Well,—what have we said? We have given as fair an account of the thing as possible.

Did they meet tenderly—Heigh, Ma'am, ho, Ma'am?
Did they meet tenderly, ho?

They were both so intent, About TAXES and RENT,

That they never once thought of their woe."

Which appears to be precisely the fact, according to our correspondent's own statement,

As to an intimacy with Major-General Wilson, we never accused his Royal Highness of such a thing. It is, however, very edifying to see with what anxiety every body repels the charge of any connexion with that unhappy Knight of Saint Caroline.

In conclusion, with respect to Prince Leopold, when-ever we shall happily find that we have been deceived in his character, we shall be most ready to admit our error, and change our tone; but at present we confess, however liberal, amiable, charitable, and affectionate he may be in PRIVATE LIFE, we see no reason to alter our opinion of his public conduct in the affair of his depraved Mother-in-law, and most certainly not from any thing contained in our Correspondent's Letter.

ADDRESSES TO THE QUEEN.

It having been stated in the public newspapers, that an Address to the Queen, from the Inhabitants of Hamstead Norris, in the County of Berks, had been presented to her Majesty by John B. Monck, Esq. M. P. We, the undersigned Churchwardens and Overseers of the parish of Hamstead Norris, in the county of Berks, in behalf of ourselves, and a large majority of parishioners, do hereby publicly disavow the said Address; and take this opportunity of expressing the veneration with which we regard our unrivalled Constitution; the esteem and affection we entertain for our excellent Monarch, whose universal benevolence and regard for the liberty of his subjects has not been surpassed; under whose auspices falling nations have been upheld and supported, and old England placed on the highest pinnacle of glory.

ISAAC MATTHEWS, Churchwardens. RICH. WELLS, JAMES MATTHEWS, Overseers.

TO JOHN BULL.

SIR-Prompted by curiosity, I attended, last Sunday week, at the Red Lion Hill Chapel, Hampstead; and, according to the announcement in the hand-bills, I found, exposed for sale at the doors, books, containing a new arexposed for sale at the doors, books, containing a new arrangement of the Public Liturgy, &c. a man being stationed there for the purpose, in true business-like style. The appointed form of Evening Service was entirely altered, the Creed, and all the principal Prayers being omitted, particularly those for his Majesty, the Clergy, &c.; and, in a New Liturgy, which seemed to have been composed for the occasion, the Queen's name was introduced. The principles of the Reverend Gentleman officieting on this occasion appeared to me, purely Decitical cizting on this occasion, appeared to me, purely Deistical. He told his congregation, (consisting of between fifty and sixty persons!) that Religion did not consist in ceremunies, or in any particular form of worship, nor yet in debarring ourselves of the pleasures of the world; and he declared that, according to his opinion, no person could be truly religious, who believed in a future state of punishments. At the same time, he stated his belief that these doctrines were new to many persons, but earnestly recommended their adoption, as affording the only sure means of enjoying pleasure and happiness in this world; advising, at the same, that all forms and ceremonies relating to public worship, and attending divine service, should be dis-regarded, as being wholly useless. After the sermon, which was listened to with some impatience, the Prayer, which I have before alluded to, introducing the name of her Majesty, was read. This was a palpable manœuvre, resorted to for the purpose of preventing persons from leaving the chapel on the mention of the Queen's name, which, I am confident, many would have done, had this Prayer been introduced at any other part of the service.

I forbear making any comments upon the above, convinced, as I am, that you will follow up the subject in a much abler manner than I am capable of doing .- I am, much abler manner than Sir, your most obedient servant,

An EPISCOPALIAN.

REV. MR. PRICE, Loudwater, near High Wycombe. REV. G. J. FREEMAN, Lamerton, near Tavistock. REV. WM. POWELL, Vicar of Abergavenny.

REV. CHARLES POWELL, Rector of Lanforit.

Both these Clergymen are at present in the commission as Magistrates. We recommend these gentlemen most particularly to the notice of His Grave the Duke of Beaufort, Lord Lieutenant of the County, and Doctor Van Mildert, the Lord Bishop of Llanders

REV. ROBERT DOUGLASS, Ellor, N. B. REV. MR. CRUDEN LOGIE, Buchan.

RRV. MR. THOMPSON, St. George's, Edinburgh.

REV. JOHN FALCONER, Fynie, N. B.

REV. L. GRANT, Methlick, N. B.

REV. DR. KIDD, Aberdeen.
REV. NICHOLAS DVER, Vicar of St. Allen's, in Cornwall, and Perpetual Curate of Landkeg and Swimbridge.

Of this Gentleman and his conduct we shall take further notice next Sunday.
(To be continued.)

TO JOHN BULL.

MR. EDITOR,-On perusing your Paper of the 14th inst. I was surprised to find my name placed amongst those who "prayed for the Queen." I never prayed for her Majesty, and I consider myself insulted by placing me there; and I think it only doing me justice to insert this contradiction, and the name of your lying author, in your next Paper. I am, yours, &c. Skirton, 23d April, 1821. J. R. WILKINSON.

TO JOHN BULL.

Sin,-At the time her Majesty came forward in so daring a manner to repel the accusations alleged against her, I freely coness myself to have been in the number of those who admired the loftiness of her spirit, and who mistook boldness for inno-cence. As facts, however, were developed, and ere the examicence. As facts, however, were developed, and ere the examination of witnesses had closed, I perceived my error, and no longer mentioned her name in the Liturgy.

I am proud to state to you that the members of my family are, without exception, of well-known and undoubted loyalty. How great then was my concern to find mine impeached, by being ranked in the list of Radical clergymen given in your useful Paper. I do not say that you have so designated them, but they are so styled. Sir, I consider myself truly happy in living under such a constitution as this country is blessed with; I utterly disclaim all connection with Radicals, whose principals. I utterly disclaim all connection with Radicals, whose principles I abhor; and as you have made free with my name, I hope you will now do me justice by giving publicity to this letter. I remain, Sir, your most obedient servant,

REVETT SHEPPARD.

Wrabness Parsonage, Essex, April 16, 1821.

TO JOHN BULL. SIR,—A statement has, I understand, appeared in a late number of your Paper, which is calculated to mislend, and which, I therefore presume, you will correct ou my authority. I am there ranked, it seems, among the Clergymen who "prayed for the Queen;" and this without any qualification or explanation. The fact is, that until the publication of the order regulating the Liturgy, I conceived it as much my clerical duty to pray for her, as I did to desist after that period; and in this conception I cannot suppose myself to have been simples.

singular. I am, Sir, obediently yours,
GEORGE JONES BEVAN, Vicar of Crickhowel.

THEATRES.

April 13, 1821.

THE vast influx of novelty into the theatrical circles, during the last week, calls for some observation; and though we do not profess to have passed all the hot afternoons of the Easter week in the vapour of gas or oil, we have gleaned enough to give our readers a pretty fair estimate of the pieces which have been produced.

At COVENT GARDEN, a spectacle called "Undine," made its appearance on Monday, and certainly we never saw any thing more splendid than the scenery and decorations, this is all which is required in such performances, and a Covent Garden audience is sure to be satisfied with the liberality of the Managers in that respect.

At DRURY LANE on Tuesday, a play called "Mother and Son," was represented for the first time. This piece is, in its construction, very like the Queen's tent, in which she slept every night for six weeks with her footman, on board the polacre—at least as it was described in the Old Times, which paper says:—" It had neither top, nor bottom, nor sides." Mother and Son, has neither beginning nor middle—that it had an end we sincerely congratulated ourselves; to endeavour to trace any part of its story would be vain and hopeless, and as, like most Drury Lane novelties, it is not very likely to be seen much more, probably the effort is not worth making It is written, they say, by a Mr. Moncrieffe, who is, we believe, the author of Giovanni in London, a farrago of the grossest vulgarity, indecency, and immorality, transplanted from the Olympic Theatre to Drury Lane, which, owing to the fascinating display of Madame Vestris in the character of a demoralized libertine, and unprin-cipled successful swindler, has been repeated more than a hundred times to the admiration of single gentlemen, and ladies of the upper boxes, and to the disgust of every person who has the smallest pretensions to decency, morality, or religion.

At this theatre it was also thought expedient to produce Lord Byron's Marino Faliero-but the experiment failed, for the play having been so recently published, had not excited the attention of the town sufficiently to render it attractive on the stage. The audience was thin, and the piece went off flatly. At the latter we are not surprised—at the former not displeased.

Nothing but a base, sordid, mean desire to get money could have induced the Managers of Drury Lane to act this play. The domestic misfortune which afflicts Mr. Elliston, as it must necessarily exclude him from any have excluded it entirely from the public eye.

LIST OF CLERGYMEN WHO HAVE PRAYED active participation in the executive of the theatre, shelters FOR THE QUEEN. him from any animadversion from us; but be it upon whose head it may, nothing can more plainly evince the thirst of lucre, at the expence of every thing like fair and gentlemanly consideration of my Lord Byron's feelings, than dragging forward this poem in defiance of his Lordship's wishes and intentions.

We have had occasion before to notice the injury done to the novels attributed to Sir Walter Scott, by the em-bodying and actual personification of his highly finished characters on the stage. This is, however, an injury which grieves, rather than irritates us, because, previously to the representation of the dramas founded on those novels, we have had the pleasure of reading the original works; and in comparing Di Vernon, and all her glowing elasticity of mind—all her hounding healthful animation of character and countenance, with the calm, fixed, and unvarying attributes of Miss Stephens; or in bringing into competition the gentlemanly, spirited Henry Bertram of the book, with the little inanimate John Braham of the stage; we know what we have lost, and only sigh to see the bright visions, which the Magician has conjured up, reduced to mere every day men and women But the injury done to Byron's genius is more serious; his play has not yet been generally read, and the audience, instead of grieving at the deterioration of the author's work by the acting, would be apt to attribute the dulness in the play to a falling off in his powers; for, from not having perused Marino Faliero, they could not have had an opportunity of comparing the author's design with the actor's exe-

Let any one conceive the hasty, impetuous Patriarch Marino Faliero of Byron, enacted by Mr. Cooper, a smart, smock-faced Haymarket subaltern, promoted by brevet to the rank of hero at Drury-lane. Bertuccio Faliero shewn to us in the shape of Mr. Thompson; the aristocratic Lioni personated by Mr. Foote; and Dayolino, a conspirator, full of energy and enthusiasm, represented by that most exquisite droll Mr. Merrydeath, or Meredith, who, during the summer, not only is prompter at the little Theatre in his own proper person, but who, by favour of an alins, enacts, at the same place, as Mr. Martin, stewards, butlers, and aldermen, in three act farcesmagicians in pantomimes—and the cow "larger than the largest size" in Tom Thumb! To do him justice, however, in cows, aldermen, and devils, he has his merits; but in regular tragedy he is abominable.

These, however, are the gentlemen to whom the dragging the poor Lord's play before the public was consignedwas worrying a lion to death with turnsples, and the attempt met with a just repulse.

The magnificent figure of Virtue, which "Stands like the sun, and all which rolls around "Drinks life, and light, and glory from her aspect," was instantaneously applied, with its context, to the sensual profligacy of the Queen, and received three distinct rounds of applause, and this was almost the only effect produced.

We shall not here enter into a consideration of the merits of Marino Faliero as a poem, because most of our readers will find it amply reviewed in the first Number of "THE JOURNAL OF LITERATURE," to be published next Saturday. We shall content ourselves, therefore, with simply protesting against the measure of producing the Tragedy at the Theatre, cut, mangled, and garbled as it has been to adapt it—(fellows, who can neither write nor spell, adapting Lord Byron's poetry!!!)—to scenic representation; and declaring to the few people who witnessed its degradation on Wednesday, that Marino Faliero, acted by His Majesty's Servants in Drury-lane, is no more like the Marino Faliero of Byron, than the novels of GUY MANNERING, THE ANTIQUARY, or ROB ROY are to the lucubrations of Messrs. TRRRY, POCOCK, and Co.

SADLER'S WELLS produced a whimsical thing called Johnny Newcome's Hunting; illustrated, we were told, by "local views taken on the spot." All views taken on a spot we conclude to be local, therefore the distinction, however nice, was needless. We had, however, neither of the peculiarities of this place offered to us, either of which are well calculated to produce an overflow—the Clown and the Water; and we wonder, that with such striking features to distinguish it from all its contemporaries, we were not favoured with one or the other; indeed, we lament to see all these places growing fine: we are quite convinced that the policy is bad. In simple burlettas and good pantomimes, interspersed with rope-dancing, tumbling, and all the absurdities, to the display of which these places are so admirably adapted, and used to be specially devoted, the grave and sober can find food for mirth, and the wisest give himself up to laugh uncon-trolled by any of the rules which guide him in more classical scenes. But the affectation of playing serious spectacles, and being actors in carnest is abouninable.

Not one of the Summer Managers, except Astley, has iven us a real genuine pantomime. We applaud his taste, and we are quite sure that his horses and his good fun will be found better worth seeing than all the trash and folly of chains, masks, and daggers with which the other houses are infested.

THE Circus claims to be excepted from this remark, because in the hands of a man of certain talent and longtried genius, the arrangement of the thing is widely different; and the pen which has amused us highly in the regular theatres, cannot fail to entertain us though re-moved from their immediate sphere; yet even there we would have had a pantomime for this season.

The only place where there is real tumbling, and where a fellow walks with his feet on the ceiling, and performs innumerable monkey-tricks, is in the national theatre of Covent Garden, being, by the converse of the usual rule of such things, the only place in or near London where such an exhibition should not be. The disgusting and frightful nature of this particular performance, however,

TO JOHN BULL.

SIR,—The subject to which, under the title of "Psalmody," the Letter of "Orthodovie" in a late Novel mody," the Letter of "Orthodoxus," in a late Number refers, is at the present period of great moment. The object of the suit in question, having been "in reality to know how the law of the land stood on the subject of introducing Psalms and Hymns, other than those of the authorized Old and New Versions of the Psalms of David," it is most extraordinary, that the parties should at last rest satisfied without the knowledge which they sought; and whether the mediation of the Archbishop of York, were recommended by the judge in consequence of a previous know-ledge of His Grace's opinion and biase, or of any supposed difficulty in the solution of the question itself, I cordially agree with your correspondent "Orthodoxus," that dangerous consequences may be expected to ensue.

The order for divine service in the Church of Engiand, has been established by law upon the authority of a comination of human wisdom at various times convoked.

"The Book of Common Prayer" has been, at five distinct periods, submitted by royal authority to the consideration of the Bishops and Clergy, and by them solemnly reviewed and maturely examined; and the Liturgy now in use is, with some additions, in the form prescribed by the last act of uniformity, which passed shortly after the Restoration.

Queen Elizabeth in her injunctions prescribes, that "there shall be a modest and distinct song, so used in all parts of the Common Prayers in the Church, that the same may be as plainly understood as if it were read without singing." In these injunctions, the word "song" has, I apprehend, been misconstrued; it does not intend what the usual acceptation of the term implies, a number of verses, or rythmical lines, but a singing or piece of vocal music.

The professed object of the Act of Uniformity is well expressed in the Preface to "The Book of Common Prayer," annexed to that statute, and distinctly proves, that the singing as well as the prayers to be used in the Church, was in contemplation of the Legislature, and was intended by that Act to be corrected and made uniform. This preface contains the following language; " And whereas heretofore there hath been great diversity in saying and singing in Churches within this Realm; some, following Salisbury use; some, Hereford use; and some the use of Bangor; some of York; some of Lincoln; now, from henceforth, all the whole realm shall have but one use." Here the "singing in Churches" is distinctly recognised; and Lindwood, in explaining the "uses" of the several Episcopal Churches, says, "that the Bishop of Salisbury is Precentor in the College of Bishops, and governed the Choir when the Archbishop of Canterbury performed divine service in the presence of the College of Bishops; and that, therefore, the use of Sarum was followed almost throughout the whole province of Can-terbury." Now, the Precentor is the Chaunter, who has the chief care of the Choir, and presides over the organist, singing men, and choiristers.

In this Act of Uniformity, it is also said, " now, in regard, that nothing conduceth more to the settling of the peace of the nation, ner to the honor of our religion and the propagation thereof, than an universal agreement in the public worship of God: and to the intent, that every person within the realm may know the rule to which he is to conform in public worship, &c." Whence it is fairly to be inferred, that throughout divine service, as well in "singing" as in "saying," one uniform course should be observed.

The King, as the Supreme Head of the Church in England, has the power with the advice of His Council, to add to, and in some instances, to alter the Liturgy; and this power was exercised by His late Majesty, soon after his accession, by the addition of the four forms of prayer directed to be used on the 5th of November, the 30th of January, the 29th of May, and the 25th of October. The same authority, as I have before observed, legalised the two Versions of the Psalms, and other examples of its exercise may be produced.

If, therefore, the order for public worship have been, with infinite care, prepared by the wisdom of the Reformers and Fathers of the Church, and established by law; if it be apparent that the whole of the divine service have been under the purview of the Legislature; if church music is to be according to custom, and public worship in churches universally the same throughout all the realm; and, if the law of England have vested in His Majesty in Council the superintending care and controul of the Liturgy, and which has been shewn to extend to singing in churches; upon what authority does his Grace the Archbishop of York found his recent decision?

I am convinced that every innovation in the service of our Church ought to be viewed with jeaiousy; that the maintenance of her tenets and doctrines, pure and undefiled, is her surest safeguard; and that the indiscriminate use of unauthorized Psalms and Hymns ought to be forthwith universally abolished.

'Anglia sic stabit ; Christique arx alta manebit!"

REGULUS.

PROPHECY.—Anecdote of his present Majesty.—In a periodical work of the year 1710, the following article appears:—
"When the Birth-day Ode in honour of her Majesty's brother was performed at the Lodge, the Prince of Wales (his present Majesty) ran to his Royal Father, and said, "When I am a man and a King, I won't be married!"—"Why so?' inquired his Majesty.—"Why, because this song which Signor Tenduce and the said of the latest the said of the sa has been singing, says, if I do I shan't have a good wife—as you have, Papa.'"—That the criticism upon the poem, which the young Prince so quickly and pointedly gave, proved too prophetic, has been amply exemplified.—The following is the verse that gave rise to the arch allusion. Speaking of her late Majesty:

" Never shall thy like have birth

"In the regions of the earth;
"Ne'er again perfection blend
"Sister—Mother—Wife—and Friend;"

MISCELLANEOUS.

A detachment of Royal Artillery, from Ceylon, under the command of Major Skinner, landed from the Star, at Portsmouth, on Thursday, and marched to Woolwich.

EGYPTIAN TOMB.—We have had an opportunity of viewing the model of the Egyptian tomb now exhibiting at the Egypthe moder of the right to make the shores of Egypt by the enterprizing traveller, Belzoni. It was discovered about three miles from the Nile, to the west of the ancient city of Thebes, in the excavation of a rock, and forms two chambers. The whole length of the tomb is about 309 feet; the dimensions of the entrance-hall are twenty-seven feet six inches. inches, by twenty-five feet ten inches, containing four pillars, each four feet square. The colours are rich, and extremely vivid.—The group consists of four figures, representing the reception of some distinguished personage (thought to be King Psammis) by Orisis, the great divinity of the Egyptians. There are a variety of figures equally entitled to consideration. The most interesting of these curiosities is a manuscript on papyrus, measuring 23 feet, the largest known. On one side of the room stands several cases of miscellaneous Egyptian curiosities, consisting principally of idols, of stone and porcelain, and fragments of figures in alabaster; and comprises two munimies, one of them an Egyptian priest, a singular curiosity.

ORDINATIONS.—List of persons ordained by the Lord Bishop of Ely, at St. James's church, London, on Sunday the 15th of April :-

15th of April:—
DEACONS.—J. Dewe, B. A. Queen's college; W. Greenwood, B. A. Bene't college; J. Roberts, B. A., R. A. Denton, B. A., and R. Okes, B. A. King's college; G. Skinner, B. A. and J. Studholme, B. A. Jesus college; J. Hindle, B. A. St. John's college; M. Cantis B. A. Emmanuel college; J. Husband, B. A. Magdalene college; W. Twigg, B. A. Trinity college.— By Letters Dim. from the Bp. of London—W. Walter, B. A. Sidney college; R. S. Dixon, Trinity-hall; F. W. Gray, B. A. Balliol college, Oxford; H. B. Lennard, B. A. Merton college, Oxford; M. Newport, B. A. Trinity college, Dublin; T. C. Parsons and T. Hassell, Literate.—By Let. Dim. from the Bn. of Winchester.—W. Thresher, B. A. St. John's om the Bp. of Winchester-W. Thresher, B. A. St. John's

PRIESTS .- R. Gwatkin, M. A., G. M. Cooper, B. A. and W PRIESTS.—R. GWAIKII, M. A., G. M. Cooper, B. A. and W. Peach, B. A. St. John's college; T. Shelford, M. A. Bene't college; F. C. Tyson, B. A. Catherine-hall.—By Let. Dim. from the Bp. of London.—S. B. Dowell, B. A. St. Peter's college; H. Clissold, B. A. Exeter college, Oxford; D. Daniel, B. A. Jesus college, Oxford; I. Wilson and W. Giron, Literate.

Mr. Alexandre has been exhibiting his wonderful powers of Ventriloquism, during the past week, at the Olympic Theatre.

We confess we were surprised to see this gentleman at this theatre; nevertheless, he drew some trouded audiences, who testified their approbation of his extraordinary talents by unequivocal proofs of his abilities.

The Star transport arrived at Spithead, from St. Helena, seventeen or eighteen days ago. On board of this vessel an Italian, named Gentilini, a native of Elba, came passenger. He went out to St. Helena as Valet de Pied to Euonaparte, and having saved a little money, and finding his health im-paired, has returned to Europe in order to join his wife and

Return of the Number of Convicts who have been sent from Great Britain to New South Wales, from the 1st of January, 1817, to the 1st of January, 1821 distinguishing each year, likewise the males from the females; and distinguishing the Transports for Life, for Fourteen Years, and for Seven Years

	Tumber onvicts.	Number of Convicts.	Terms for which they have been Transported.
Year.	Total Nur of Male Conv	Total Nu of Female Cor	Life. Male,	Life. Female.	14 Veers. Male.	14 Years. Females.	7 Years Male.	7 Years.
1817	1720	101	- 589	13	279	30	852	58
1818	2181	126	663	18	376	15	1142	93
1819	1932	148	636	27	289	46	1008	75
1820	2737	121	912	18 27 22	596	49	1319	93 75 50
Total	8570	496	2890	50	1449	140	4321	276

March 6, 1821.

JOHN HENRY CAPPER. Superintendent of Convicts

Turkey in Europe is estimated to contain 9,482,000 inhabitants. Of this population the Turks do not amount to one-third part, and the Greeks alone amount to about five millions. But part, and the Greeks alone amount to about five millions. But then the population professing the Greek religion amounts to a much greater number than five millions. For instance, the Belgarians, about 1,500,000, a Schavonic people, are partly of the Greek and partly of the Mahomedan religion. The Servians, about 960,000, another Schavonic people, are all of the Greek religion. The Bosnians, about 850,000, are also of the Greek religion. The Albanians speak Schavonic and the old Illyrian than the greek and are partly of the Greek and partly of the Mahomedan religion. anguage, and are partly of the Greek, and partly of the Mahomedan religion.

ADVERTISEMENT.]-The Literary Gazette of Saturday, the 25th inst. contains a Review, and copious extracts from Lord Byron's Tragedy, with examples of parallel passages from other authors—the Hon. Keppel Craven's Tour in Naples, interesting account of Murat's Court and Death—Cox's Burmban Empire &c.—Essay on the Cure of Insanity by an eminent Physician-Original Letters in Praise of Lying—Letter from Paris, with an account of Mr. Rothschild's Fete, and a Report of Cuvier's Euloge on Sir Joseph Banks—Full description of Belzoni's in-teresting Exhibition—Account of the Jews in Russia—various articles in Science, the Arts, Literature, Varieties, Original Comic Poetry, and Critiques on the Drama, &c. &c. Literary Gazette Office, 362, Strand.

SPORTING.

MONDAY, April 23 .- Newmarket Craven Meeting, 1821 .-

Mr. Crockford's b. c. Sultan, 4 yrs old.....

10 to 1 agst Sultan.

Mr. Udny's c. by Election, dam by Stamford, 8st. 4lb. beut Ld. Jersey's c. Oracle, by Soothsayer, 8st. 5lb. D. M. 100gs, h. ft.—2 to 1 agst the winner.

The First Class of the Seventh Riddlesworth Stakes of 200gs each, h. ft. for colts, 8st. 7lb. Ab. M. Those by untried stallions, or out of untried mares, allowed 3lb. if both, 5lb.

In reading the March Number of the EDINBURGH MONTHLY REVIEW, a work conducted with much skill and boldness, and established upon the most loyal principles, we found the following remarks (forming part of a well-written article) upon the present state of the press, which we lay before our readers, as a fair specimen of the style and politics of the publication, which we recommend to their notice. - The reviewer alludes to the means, which are still in our own hands, of counteracting the evil, and which it has been our constant endeavour to apply, in these words :-

" Coercion, after all, however, is not the best mode of putting down this nuisance; and it is plainly in the present time. inadequate to the object proposed by it. There is a great and liberal jealousy abroad on this subject, not confined to those who have sucked in the proffered poison, and thus renounced the neutrality of fair judgment, but extended over the whole spirit and intelligence of the land, which must make any scheme of despotic abridgment of free discussion, not only abortive, but eminently prejudicial. It would league upon the single ground of generosity, with the felon polluters of the public mind, those who, on every other principle, detest their practices, and loathe their alliance. The true secret of effective resistance is to be found in the keen and close intellectual array of those who have made up their minds to an eternal warfare with this base system, and who are prepared, in every shape, to encounter the hazard and the obloquy of the adventure. There must no longer be any symptom of supineness among the lovers of moral truth and of social order; but a rapid simultaneous and embodied rush towards the breach which the enemy has been permitted to open in coward security; and so fur as the vigour of genius, and the force of argument, and the sharpness of merited satire will go, the assailants must be promptly and decisively repelled-while it will be the imperative duty of those whom neither talent nor inclination lend to take an immediate part in the conflict, to abet, by all the means in their power, this most hallowed warfare, and to succour, at all points, the champions of the constitution and the honour of their native lund. It gives us sincere pleasure to observe that this view of the matter has been taken by a respectable association in the metropolis, which has set an example of watchfulness and abactity that, we trust, will soon be followed throughout every district of the country; and we have only to express our firm reliance that, if the spirit of loyalty only to express our firm remained that, it we spirit of 109 and religion shall thus generally shew itself in the fortitude which belongs to it, and bring out into light and vigour its slumbering powers, the squalid skulking bands of impiety and rebellion will soon be forced to re-enter their native caverns; and the country will speedily resume its wonted aspect of de-corum and of peace."

POLICE.

Bow-Street.- On Tuesday, Henry Smith, a private soldier in the Coldstream Regiment of Guards, was brought before Sir Robert Baker, on suspicion of exciting a boy to rob his father, and participating in the produce of the robbery. The boy confessed that he had left his father's house, on Sunday last, after purloining 151. of his property; that he had given two 51. notes of it to a lad named Green, to take care of for him; and that the remaining 51. he had spent at Stepney fair. Green was easily found, and he declared that he had deposited the two notes with the soldier quartered at the Black Lion (the prisoner), desiring him to keep it safely till he (Green) wanted it; and giving him to keep it sately till be (Green) wanted it; and giving him a shilling for his trouble in so doing.—The soldier, in his defence, said, he received but one 51 note from Green, instead of two; that not knowing but it had been honestly come by, he thought he was right in taking care of it for them.
On Wednesday, the prisoner was brought up again, when he readily acknowledged, he had received of the boy Green, two

51. notes, and that he had spent the greater part of one of them.

He and the boys were remanded to prison.

Mansion-House.—On Wednesday, Thomas Casher was charged by Mr. Sleet, a confectioner, in Cheapside, with having come into his stop, and requested change for a sovereign, on counting the change he said it was short 5s. Mr. Sleet was astonished, and, on looking attentively at the prisoner, recognized him to be a person who had, about a month before, come into his shop and requested change for a sovereign in the same. into his shop and requested change for a sovereign in the same manner, and insisted so positively that he had been given but 16s, that Mr. Sleet, on that occasion, gave him four more. Mr. Sleet, on this recognition, sent for an officer, which when the prisoner saw, he shook the 5s. out of his sleeve, into which he had, by a dexterous slight of hand, conveyed them, while he appeared to reckon them on the counter, saying, with counterfeit surprise, as they fell from his sleeve, "Oh! here they are." was committed for trial.

MARLEOROUGH-STREET.—On Thursday, two men, mamed Mackenzie and Garland, were charged by an elderly lady, named Gurgeot, with having robbed her on the highway. The prosecutrix had lately arrived from Madeira, and as she was proceeding along Crown-street, Soho-square, she was hustled and robbed by a gang of fellows of her reticule, containing 51. and robbed by a gang of fellows of her reticule, containing A. in Bank-notes, some silver, and several duplicates of valuable property. She immediately went to Mr. Harrison, the pawn-broker, of Wardour-street, where the articles had been pledged, for the purpose of detaining whoever might come to, redeem the articles. Soon after Garland came to the shop, and tendered a duplicate for a shawl, and offered a one pound note in payment. Nothing was found upon him; and he stated that he had bought the duplicate that morning, in St. James's-park, for eight shillings, from a stranger. Mackenzie was chastved loitering upout and suspective him to be concerned by wards. for eight shillings, from a stranger. Macketzar was superved loitering about, and suspecting him to be concerned, he was apprehended. On taking him into the Mariborough Head, opposite the office, and searching him, the remainder of the duplicates were found in his possession, and three one pound notes. They were remanded for further examination.

No less than eight persons are under examination at this Office, charged with sheep stealing; the principal of whom is a man named Dennington, a butcher in Chick lane, where the town trade has been carried on: Eight sheep were stolen in the night from the slaughter-house of Mr. Garment, butcher in South-Audley-street, and they were traced to Dennington's house, where they were killed, and afterwards sold much under the value. The said eight prisoners are also charged with stealing fourteen sheep from the neighbourhood of Nottinghill. These sheep were also traced to the wholesale market, Denaington's house, where they were killed, and afterwards disposed of. The prisoners were all remanded, as the others concerned are not yet in custody.

OLD BAILEY.

-George Crawley and Thomas Head, two boys, were indicted for stealing a pelisse value 21. the property of Charlotte Thomas, widow, from the person of Anne Blunt, and Elizabeth Ward, alias Bray, for receiving the same, knowing it to be stolen.

Anne blunt, a little girl, aged 13, deposed, that on the evening of the 22d of February last, she was sent by her mistress to take home a pelisse to Mrs. Thomas, at Islington; and while on the road leading to Sadler's Wells, she saw the prisoners, Crawley and Head, watching her. She hurried on, and lost sight of them, but they, it appeared, went round a shorter way, and met her just by the New River Head, and snatching the pelisse from her hand, ran away with it.

A Police Officer stated, that hearing of the robbery, and having had a description of the offenders, he apprehended the two male prisoners, at the house of the prisoner Ward, in Frying-pan Alley, I lington; the pelisse was in the room. The two boys were sitting by the fire, with their coats off, singing a flash song. The woman on being questioned about the pelisse, declared that the boys had just brought it in.

Crawley and Head were found Guilty, and Ward acquitted. The Common Serieant asked if the boys were known

The Police Officers said they were well known, (Head, who is only 14 years of age), having been six months in confinement under sentence of Death, and Crawley having been several times tried in this Court

The Common Serjeant said, that they must both leave the country for life. They conducted themselves with the most hardened indifference.

Mary Simmonds, aged 17, and Sarah Evans, aged 18, were indicted for stealing a pocket-book, and one 30t. one 10t. and ten 11. Bank Notes, from the person of William Sallett.

The prosecutor was a boatswain's mate, belonging to the ship Younghusband, lying in the River, and on the day stated in the indictment he came ashore, and received 501. in the notes above described, at a banker's near the Exchange. He had got a little typsy towards evening, and on leaving the public-house where he had been drinking, he went to a chandler's shop to buy some tobacco, and while he was paying his money the prisoner, Evans, came in, and, accosting him with "how d'ye do, sweetheart," invited him up stairs to her spart-ment. When he got up stairs he saw the other prisoner in the Evans having introduced him quitted the room. Simmonds then said that was not her room, and requested him to accompany her to another house in George-yard, an obscure court, well suited for the purposes of plunder. Here he went up stairs; but had not been there many minutes before they were joined by Evans. After some conversation he sat down by the side of Evans, and while he was there the other prisoner came behind him, put her hand over his shoulder, and in a very dexterous manner snatched his pocket-book from his insidecoat pocket, with which she ran down stairs. He pursued, but she escaped. The prisoners were apprehended about ten days

The prosecutor underwent a long and severe cross-examination, but did not vary in his testimony. He admitted that he was drunk, but not insensibly so.

The Jury, however, found both the prisoners Not Guilty.

WEDNESDAY.—Thomas Smith, aged 22, was indicted for stealing 170lbs, weight of lead, the property of Thomas Cromwell, of Hammersmith.

The prosecutor, who is a brewer, stated, that on the 10th of March last, the lead was all safe affixed to a barn near his house, and on the 12th ult. it was gone.

Thomas Close stated, that, on the night of the 10th of March, he was proceeding with his horse and cart to Windsor, and at opped at the Horse and Chaise public-house, at Hammersmith, to refresh, when he was accosted by the prisoner Smith, who asked him if he had any objection to earn five shillings; and that, if he would, he was to be ready with his cart to carry some lead to London. Witness consented, and a bed was provided for him. About four o'clock in the morning he was awoke by the prisoner, and proceeded with him down a bye-lane. where saw a quantity of lead under a dung-hill. He returned for the horse and cart, into which the lead was put, and then drove on to London, but had not got farther than Kensington, when he was stopped by the officers, and taken into custody.—The prisoner was found Guilty.

The Learned Judge then inquired of the officers whether the prisoner was known; when it appeared that he had formerly been in custody, and tried in this Court.

Close, the witness, was then called up, and admonished on his way of life. The Recorder humanely cautioned him to be circumspect in his conduct, for if he appeared in that Court again, he would be remembered.

THURSDAY.—Thomas Gunter, aged 16, was indicted for stealing from the person of Sir H. Dalrymple Hamilton, a silk pocket handkerchief.

The prosecutor was called three times on his recognizances, but did not appear. It was stated that he was in the country.

By the evidence of Hewer, Wren, and Cooke, three officers, it appeared, that on the 27th of February, the prisoner was seen in New Bond-street, and being suspected, the above officers watched him; shortly afterwards an alarm was given of the prosecutor having been robbed, and the prisoner was taken into custody, with the hundkerchief near him on the ground, which was afterwards sworn to by Sir H. at the Police Office.

The Common Sergeant said, that in the absence of the prosecutor, the Jury must acquit the prisoner, there being no proof that he took the handkerchief from the person.

The Jury accordingly returned a verdict of Not Guilty.

The Learned Judge then admonished the prisoner on his way of life, and observed, that if Sir H. D. Hamilton had been in Court, he must have been convicted, and would have been sentenced to transportation for life.

The above was the last case on the calendar, and the Jury were then dismissed, the Common Sergeant thanking them for eir attention during the Session.

The Recorder then took his sent on the Bench, and sentence of Deuth was passed on the following twenty unhappy

Julia Cochet D'Ocrane, for stealing in a dwelling-house Richard Jackson, Thomas Brooks, John Rees, Thomas Lee, and Thomas Langton, for burglary; James Jordan, William Donald, Thomas Steers, and Abraham Isaacs, for house-breaking: Jabez Pickering, Henry Hewings, George Davis, and William Pavely, for stealing in a dwelling-house; William Chosely, for horse-stealing; Matthias George Driscoll, for stealing from the person; John Smyrke, for a robbery on the King's highway; John Childs, for sheep-stealing; Cephas Quested, for illegally assembling with fire-arms; and John Snape, for forging the signature of the Captain of the Spartan, _ and other persons.

The prisoner, who is a most respectable looking man, on being put into the dock, read a long written paper, in which contended that no fraud had been committed, and prayed for further inquiry into his case.

Transportation for life—Mary Webbe.

For fourteen years—Elizabeth Vincent, Henry Miles Eastgate, William Sears, Henry Stevens, John Frederickson, and John Knight.

For Spren Very—James Davier, Devil Donglas, Joseph

For Seven Years—James Dwyer, David Douglas, Joseph Sanderson, Abraham Donier, John Taylor, George Hughes, William Adams, John Bird, John Brooks, Charles Wildy, George Ellis, William Barnet, James Goodwin, William Harlton, Thomas Newton, Henry Sanderson, Thomas George, Timothy Caton, Thomas Platt, John Williams, Michael Twycross, Eleanor Edwards, Margaret Murphy, John Hart, John Fell, George Crawley, Henry Allen, James Pavne, William Gulten, There Carith Thomas Carity, Thomas Car Thomas Smith, Thomas Connell, John Tiblims, Joseph Peeling, John Billett, William Appleby, Isaac Crawley, Robert Callone, Joshua Jones, Thomas Jones, James Lacy, Henry Newland, Benjamia Sievenson, William Sack, George Smith, Ann Williams, John Smith, and another

A great number of prisoners were then sentenced to receive imprisonment for a short time, others to be whipped, and some were fined one shilling and discharged.

The Sessions were then adjourned to Wednesday, the 6th of June next.

PROVINCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

CANTERBURY .- On St. George's Day the bells of the cuthedral and the various parish churches were rung throughout the day, in honour of its being appointed for celebrating the birthday of our King. In the evening, about seventy gentlemen, consisting of the Mayor, Recorder, and other members of the Corporation, dined at the King's Head Tavern. The usual

CHESTER.—Monday being the day appointed for keeping the Anniversary of Our Gracious Sovereign's Birth-day, the hells in the different churches of this city were rung early in the morning, and continued to sound in merry peals, at intervals, during the day. That part of the 88th Regiment, now in garrison here, was called out about twelve o'clock, and fired several voilies, and the great guns at the Castle were also fired in honour of the day.

EDINBURGH.—A fishing-boat belonging to Cockenzie, while hauling her lines at the mouth of the Frith, on Monday forenoon, 16th inst. about eleven o'clock, during a heavy squall of wind and rain, was sunk by a sea breaking on board of her, when all the crew, consisting of six men, were drowned.

ATTACK ON THE MILITARY AT EDINBURGH .- His Majesty's birth-day was celebrated at Edinburgh by a grand military field-day. The troops afterwards marched to their several private parades, to be dismissed; and the Royal Edinburgh Volunteers proceeded down High street, and along the North Bridge to the Lord Provost's house, in Abercromby-place, and there deposited their colours, and were afterwards dismissed. We regret to add, that on their way to Prince'sstreet, the fine martial appearance of the Volunteer corps did not rescue it from the derision of the mob, which consisted principally of idle boys, who pelted them with dirt. A porter's basket, commonly called a creel, was frequently flung into the midst of the band, whose music was obstructed by it several times. As a party of the Volcateers, who belong to Leith, were returning to their homes, in company with the Leith Riflemen, after being dishanded, they were again outrageously assailed, when a rigular encounter took place, and several of the mob were seized. On their way to the George-street Police Office, to deposit their prisoners, the soldiers were pursued and pelted, which exasperated them to such a degree that a file of the military faced about and charged upon the mob, who stood their ground, and in coming in contact with them, the Volunteers unfixed bayonets and cudgelled them with the but-ends of their muskets. Many were much hurt in the scuffle; several of the Volunteers were lacerated on the face and hands by blows from stones bruised and disfigured. Only about 20 of the military maintained the conflict to the last; and these, on having succeeded in conducting their prisoners within the gates of the Policeoffice, proclaimed their victory in several cheers of defiance. In the whole, eight or nine of the mob who made this attack are now in custody at the Police-office.

GLASGOW.—The proprietors of ten cotton-mills in this neigh-bourhood have dismissed their spinners, in consequence of their refusing to sign a declaration, disavowing combination or connection with any secret society. The operatives in Renfrewshire, and one or two mills in this neighbourhood have signed the declaration, and are at work.

On Monday the birth-day of Our Most Gracious Sovereign George the Fourth, was celebrated in this city, with every demonstration of loyalty and affection.—The Glasgow Light Horse, two squadrons 5th Dragoon Guards, one Gun Royal Horse Artillery, 41st Regiment, Glasgow Sharpshooters, one Gun Royal Horse Artillery, two squadrons 5th Dragoon Guards, were under arms. The whole had a very fine martial appearance. Sir Thomas Bradford, Commander in-Chief of Scotland, appeared on the ground, and the whole of them fired three feu de joic, and afterwards went through various military evolutions in a masterly style.—As the evening approached the streets were very much crowded, and squibs, crackers, and rockets, became numerous and announcing.—About nine o'clock, a large bonfire was placed opposite the guol, formed by one or two tar barrels, which had been carried in procession; and the business of plundering the adjacent paling of the Green, or any thing that could increase the fire, was carried on with great activity.—By and by the Magistrates appeared, with a company of infantry. The crowd were driven back; but they renewed the conflict with sticks and stones, and severely wounded some of the soldiers. A serjecus and private were un-borsed. The Lord Provost and the Head Gaoler were struck on the head. Several gentlemen near them were also wounded more or less. In endeavouring to avoid the military, an immense crowd, who were on the wooden bridge, owing to the breaking of the arches, was precipitated into the river, and many of them severely hurt; four persons had their legs broken, and one a broken arm, and were carried to gaol; seven were taken to the Infirmary with fractured arms and legs. In the Town's Hospital are eleven persons, men, girls, and boys, and a vast number were taken to private houses. One man, a shoemaker, named Andrews, expired.

LIVERPOOL.—A vessel, lately arrived here from America brought gold coin to the amount of 20,0001.; and a sum of 10,000 guineas was paid into one of the banks there a few days ago.

-The celebration of the King's birth-day was observed here with the most characteristic rejoicings - ringing of bells, standards hoisted on the top of the church and the Town-hall. The troops of the cavalry depôt had a grand field day, and the officers gave a most sumptuous dinner afterwards, in their mess-room, to the officers stationed at Chatham, also the staff of the West Kent Militia, and several of the neighbouring gentry. The most respectable inhabitants dined at the Star Hotel, the Mayor, John Wise, Esq. in the Chair.

MANCHESTER.—The military in this town, under the com-mand of Major.-Gen. Sir J. Lyon, assisted by the civil authorities and their officers, moved on in grand procession from St. Ann's-square to Ardwick-green, to celebrate the King's birthday, where they fixed feu de joies amidst the huzzas and acclamations of the tens of thousands who filled the green and lined the windows and tops of houses in the neighbourhood. returned in the same order. In the evening a public dinner was given in the Exchange dining-room, James Brierly, Esq. Boroughreeve, in the Chair .-- Major Robert's company of Royal Artillery, stationed here, were inspected by Major-General Sir James Lyon, in the Barrack-yard on Thursday last (the 19th inst.) The company, and the pieces attached, were in perfect order. The Artillery exercise was gone through with grent precision.—A troop of Royal Horse Artillery passed through this town last week from Pontefract on its way to Ireland, under the command of Major-General McDonald, to replace Colonel Sir. John May's troop, ordered to Woolwich.

tinder the committee of importenent accounting terrace Colonel Sir John May's troop, ordered to Woolwich.

Portsmotth.—The King's Birth-day was celebrated here on Monday, with every demonstration of joy. At twelve, an immense concourse of people assembled to witness the firing of the troops in gargingh, consisting of a metry of Sampers and of the troops in garrison, consisting of a party of Suppers and Miners, under Major Blanchard; the 51st (King's own Light Infantry), Colonel Rice; the 84th Regiment and Royal Marine Troops; who, after firing a few de foic, gave three hearty cheers, in which they were joined by a numerous assemblage of well-dressed people. The King's Own Light Infantry Officers immediately after assembled at their mess room, where they partook of repeated bumpers of Madeira to the King's

ROCHESTER, CHATHAM AND STROUD .- Monday being the Anniversary of Our Most Gracious Sovereign's Birth-day, it was observed with the usual demonstrations. At twelve o'clock a royal salute was fired from the guns on Caatham-lines. In the evening there was a splendid Ball at Rochester, which was numerously and elegantly attended.

Swappham, Norpolk.—The loyalty of the respectable inhabitants of this place was evinced on Monday last by the usual demonstrations of joy. In the evening an excellent dinner, consisting of every delicacy of the season, was given at Mr. Moor's, the Crown Inc, John Morse, Esq. in the Chair, which he filled very ably; and was supported by W. Yarington, Esq. The evening passed with the utmost conviviality: many loyal and constitutional toasts were given. Among the company present were F. Bloye, E. Sewell, G. Crown, T. A. Ward, C. Gosnold, W. Dunthorn, J. Morse, J. Fariby. E. Seppings.

sqrs. &c. &c. &c.
Windson.—The inhabitants of this town, willing to testify their loyalty to our present Most Gracious Majesty, in honour of his birth-day, had a grand dinner at the Town-hall, which was attended by the two Members for the borough, John Ramsbottom, Esq. and Sir Herbert Taylor, and nearly two hundred of the most respectable persons of the town and neighbourhood. The houses were generally and brilliantly illuminated. Among the houses were governly and oritinantly lituminated. Among those most prominent in this respect we noticed the Original Coach-office of Messrs. Moody, Lillewhite and Co. carriers to His Majesty, who evinced their respect by a very handsome display; the horses were decorated with ribbands, and the motto "God save the King" was placed on each horse's head: the coachman and guard wore scarlet coats. A great crowd assembled to see them start from the office.

ACCIDENTS, OFFENCES, &c.

On Tuesday an Inquest was held at the Waterloo Tavern, at the Surrey side of Waterloo Bridge, on the body of William Minchull, aged 30, who precipitated himself from the above Bridge into the River Thames on Sunday last. His uncle proved that the deceased had been desponding for some time past, and he had not seen him at home for a week together. He was a horse-dealer, and resided on Bank-side. He left a wife and three children. The Coroner said, that as there was no evidence before the jury to prove whether the deceased had actually thrown himself from the Bridge, they would not be war-ratted in returning a verdict that the deceased had committed the act in a state of decangement. The Jury returned a verdict of "Found Drowned.'

DEATH BY FIGHTING.—A young man, of the name of Cod-rington, was killed at Newington on Saturday se'nnight, in a boxing match with a man of the name of Cullington. They had been fighting two hours, without doing each other much mischief; but it ended by the deceased getting an unlucky fall upon the side of the head, which stunned him; and although medical aid was quickly administered, be died of a rupture of one of the vessels of the head.

DREADFUL ACCIDENT .- Friday se'unight, the inflammable in the Colliery behind the North-wall, called William-pit, at Whitehaven, suddenly caught fire, carrying death and destruction to almost every living creature within the range of its explosion. Six men, two boys, three girls, and five horses, fell victims to the fury of the blast! and three more pit men were so severely scorehed and wounded, that but faint hopes are entertained of their recovery. This skocking catastrophe was occasioned solely by the imprudence of one of the work-men, who, in order the more readily to find a pick which he had mislaid, unfortunately opened his safety lump; the poor man lived long enough to acknowledge his error, and to repent

		HIP	NEWS.
Arrived Ma	ils	Due	Arrived	Mails	Due
2Dultin			—	.Malta	1
2Water	ford	. —		. France
Gnern			·
Hollan			—
Gotten
Lisbor				.St. Thom:
DEAL, April 2	27. Wind S.	W. A	rrived and sai	led again,	the Albion, Smith, from St. 1
for St. Petersbur orders; and Na

orders: and Navigator, Logan, from Jamaica, for London. Came dawn from the River and remain, the Mariner, Herbert, for Quebec; Minerva. Mills, and Bridgwater, Mitchell, for China; the Bombay Indiaman also remains.

COWES, April 27. Arrived the American ship Ophelia, Dewson, from Canton in 136 days.

PLYMOUTH, April 28. Wind S. E. Arrived off this port the Harmeny, Hennan, from Charleston, for Havre, in 28 days; Meridian, Brocking, from Smyrna, for London; and Gute Hoffnung, Meyer, from Bourdeaux, for S. Petersburgh.

PADSTOW, April 25.—Arrived the Concordia, Horsekholm, from Schien; she experienced very bad weather during her passage, and was obliged to throw her boat, deck insuber, &c. overboard.

FALMOUTH, April 25.—Wind S.S.E.—Arrived the Hope, Stickens, from Almeira.

Digitized by Google

MACKENZIE ON MINERAL WATERS,

Just published in 12mo, price 5s. 6d.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS on the MEDICAL POWERS PRACTICAL OBSER VATIONS on the MEDICAL POWERS of MINERAL WATERS, and of the various Modes of Bathing, with Remarks on Exercise and Diet. To which is added, an Analysis of all the celebrated Mineral Waters. By PATRICK MACKENZIE, M.D. Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, London: and Assistant Physician to the Fever Institution, &c. &c.

London: Printed for Burgess and Hill, Medical Bookseller, 55, Great Windmill street, Haymarket.

Also lately published in 8vo. price 3s bds. BRODIE'S INTRODUCTORY LECTURE, delivered in the Theatre of the Royal College of Surgeons, on the 8th May, 1820, by B. C. BRODIE, F.R.S. Professor of Anatomy and Surgery to the College, &c. &c. &c.

Just Published, price 6s. boards/the 16th Edition,
THE TWOPENNY POST-BAG. To which are added,
TEIFLES REPRINTED. By THOMAS BROWN, the Younger, Printed for James Carpenter, Old Bond-street; of whom may be had,
price 8s. in boards,
THE CUTTER, in Five Lectures; or, the Art and Practice of Cutting Friends, Acquaintance, and Relations. Illustrated by six coloured Plates, by Mr. Atkinson.

NAVAL and MILITARY BIBLE SOCIETY.

PATRON—His Royal Highness the Duke of YORK.

VICE-PATRONS—His Royal Highness the Duke of GLOUCESTER, and his Royal Highness the Duke of GLOUCESTER, and his Royal Highness the Duke of GLOUCESTER, and his Royal Highness Prince LEOPOLD.

PRESIDENT—His Grace the Archbishop of CANTERBURY.
The ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING will be held at the King's Concert Rooms, in the Harmarket, on TUESDAY, May 8. The Chair will be taken at twelve o'clork precisely. Tickets of admission will be sent to all the Members of the Society in and near London. Members residing in the country, who purpose to-strend the Meeting, will please to appoint some friend to receive their Tickets. Applications for Tickets may be made at the Committee-room, No. 113, Jernya-street, on crafter Wednesday, May 2, between the hours of twelve and four on each day (Sunday excented.)

By order of the Committee,

JOHN PAKENIAM, Captain R. N.

Secretaries,

12th April, 1821.

12th April, 1821. Just published, in 2 vols. 12mo. price 12s. boards, the Fourth Edition of SACRED HOURS; comprehending the Prayers, Thanksgivings, Admonitions, &c. scattered throughout the HOLY SCRIPTURES; together with the Psalms all classed and arranged under appropriate heads. Being intended as a Compendium of Divine Authority, and a help to private devotica and meditation.

Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, 13, Ave Maria-lane.

Printed for G. and W.B. Whittaker, 13, Ave Maria-Jane.

ITALIAN LANGUAGE.

Just published, in 12mo, price 6s. 6d. bd. the Third Edition of COMPENDIOUS and RASY GRAMMAR of the ITALIAN LANGUAGE: comprising a new and improved classification of the Verbs, and explanatory Rules, with a Syntax annexed to each: revised and improved, with the addition of a series of Idiomatical Phrases, and a Vocabulary of those Words which most frequently occur in Conversation.—By M SANTAGNELLO.

Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, H. Colburn and Co. and Longman and Co. Of whom may be had, by the same Author.

2. PRACTICAL EXERCISES upon all the PARTS of SPEECH in the ITALIAN LANGUAGE, with References to the Grammar. Third Edition, with English Notes and Explanations, 12mo, price 3s. 6d. bound.

Third Edition, with English Notes and Expansions, 122-15 bound.

3. A DICTIONARY of the PECULIARITIES of the ITALIAN LANGUAGE. In 850, price 98, 64, boards.

4. ELISABETTA; ossia, gii Esiliali nilla Siberia. Tradotta dal Francese di Madama Cottin; 12mo, price 68, boards.

5. RACCOLTA di LETTERE SUELTE, agli Studiosi della Lingua Italian; dedicata da Giambattista Rolandi, Maestro di Lingua Latina ed Italiana. In 12mo, price 68, 61, bound.

6. LETTERE d'una PERUVIANA, da G. L. Deodati; 12mo, price 48, bound.

Just published, 8vo. price 8s. in boards

6. LETERICE diana PSRUVIANA, da G. L. Deodati; 12mo, price 4s. bound.

Just published, 8vo, price 8s. in boards,

A. INQUIRY into CERTAIN ERRORS relative to INSANITY, and their Consequences; Physical, Moral, and Civil.

By C. MAN BURROWS, M.D. F.L.S. &c.

Printed for T. and G. Underwood, 32, Fleet-street.

The report of this work in the Quarterly Review for Pocember, and in other respectable Journals, foreitly recommends it to the attention of the public, and especially of all those either personally or collaterally interested in the subject of Insanity.

Just published, price 1.

A FULL VIEW of the COMMONS, as constituted in the Ninetcenth Century of the Christian Era, when the Debt of Great Britain had reached to £1.276,159.465 sterling, under the Gigantic System of Swindling called Paper Currency, as denounced by Pitt in his best days.

"And the veil of the temple became rent in twain from the top to the bottom."

This Work, designed as a Companion to the "Peep at the Peers," contains the cause of all our national misery, and points out the cure, witbout violence or bloodshed. No man who wishes to see his country once more restored to prosperity or happiness, ought to be without this little book.—Published by W. Benlow, 269, Sirsand.

Also, on Saturday, May 5th, will be published, the First Number, (to be continued.) of a New Work, entitled, The PHILOSOPHICAL DICTIONARY; comprising, the Opinions of all the best Writers on Moral, Political, and Theological subjects, such as Locke, Hume, Smith, Voltaire, Roussean, Williams, and others who have written in favour of the liberties and happiness of mankind.

A work of this kind was published some time about the year 1734, and such was the demand for it, that the wholy Edition disappeared in a very short time. It is supposed that some persons thought this work much too valuable to be placed in the hands of the people at large, even in this free country, which was the cause of its sudden disappearance.

The work will be privaled in the hands of the people at large,

Price 14s, in boards.

3. Vol. II. containing those from CRIBB, to the Fight between PAINTER and SPRING, on the 1st of April, 1818. Price 16s.

A. ROWLAND and SON respectfully caution the Public against spurious Articles. Under their Names Impostors have signed their luitations, A. Rowlandson, which deception renders it necessary to observe the true signature, A. ROWLAND and SON, in Red Ink, which is wrote on each Bottle of their Genuine Articles, as follows:—

ROWLAND's MACASSAR OIL, the Original and Genuine, which for many years has been universally admired, and is acknowledged to be the best and cheapest article for nourishing the Hair, promoting a luxuriant growth, and rendering it elegant and beautiful. Its superior and tried virtues have gained it the patronage of Royalty and many Noble Personages, and is attested by an invenese multitude of witnesses. Price 3s. 6d.; 7s.; 10s. 6d.; and One Guinea per Bottle.

Also, ROWLAND's ESSENCE OF TYRE.

By merely wetting the Hair with this Preparation the Proprietors

Also, ROWLAND'S ESSENCE OF TYRE.

By merely wetting the Hair with this Preparation, the Proprietors warrant to produce immediately a perfect change in RED or GREY HAIR, WHISKERS, EYE-BROWS, &c. to a beautiful glossy and permanent Brown or Black, imitating the exact natural colour. Washing makes this Dye the more durable. Ladies or Gentlemen may dye their Hair with ease and secresy. Price 4s.; 7s. 6d.; and 10s. 6d.

Mold, Moleslae, Retail, and for Exportation, by the Sole Proprietors, A. ROWLAND and SON, corner of Kirby-street, the first turning on the right in Hatton-garden, Holborn, London; and by appointment, by all Perfuneers and Medicine Venders throughout Europe.

*Ask for Rowland's Oil, or Rowland's Dye, and observe the Signature on the label to each bottle, "A ROWLAND and SON."

The following will appear in a few days,

A PROSE Translation of the GREEK CLASSICS, commencing with The MEDEA of EURIPIDES, literally translated into English Prose from the Text of Porson, accompanied with the Greek Order, English Accombation, and Metres. To which are subjoined numerous Explanatory Notes for the use of Students.

By T. W. C. EDWARDS, M.A.

2. INEDITED CORRESPONDENCE of VOLTAIRE, Mme DENYS, and of COLINI, with M. DUPONT, Advocate to the Sovereign Council of Colmar; preceded by a Philosophical and Literary Critique on Voltaire. To which are subjoined, an Inedited Letter to the King of Prussia; and Fragments of Communications to Grimin, Diderot, Helvetius, Thiriot, Damilaville, the Narquis de Fraigne, and others.

London: Printed for Matthew Hey, and sold by all Booksellers.

Helvetius, Thiriot, Damilaville, the Narquis de Fraigse, and others.
London: Printed for Matthew fley, and sold by all Booksellers.

THE LONDON MAGAZINE, No. 17, for MAY, will be embellished with an Engraving from Mr. Haydon's Picture of Christ's Agony, and will contain—The Lion's Head; A May-day Dream; Living Authors, No. V. Crabbe; a brief Memoir of William Mewrick, with some of his Poems; the Old and New School-master, by Elia: Verses to the Memory of a Young Friend; to Mary; Sounet; Emily, a Dramatic Sketch; Etchings of different kinds of Mes, No. 1. the Humosrous Man: Major Schill, from a Manuscript Journal; Ou the Witings of Mr. Maturin, and more particularly his Melmoth; Spring; Life: Sonnet on the Death of Keats; Table Talk, No. X. on Antiquity; Edinburgh, in a Letter from Tom Young to Dr. L. M. Allen; the Lament; the Guitar; Mr. Hazdoris Picture of Christ's Agony; Mr. Croley's Paris, Part II.; Mr. Hazdoris Picture of Christ's Agony; Mr. Croley's Paris, Part II.; Mr. Hazdoris Picture of Christ's Agony; Mr. Croley's Paris, Part II.; Mr. Hazdoris Picture of Christ's Agony; Mr. Croley's Paris, Part II.; Mr. Hazdoris Picture of Christ's Agony; Mr. Croley's Paris, Part II.; Mr. Hazdoris Picture of Christ's Agony; Mr. Croley's Paris, Part II.; Mr. Hazdoris Picture of Christ's Agony; Mr. Croley's Paris, Part II.; Mr. Hazdoris Picture of Christ's Agony; Mr. Town Conversation: Literary and Scientific Intelligence; Report of Music; Abstract of Domestic and Foreign Intelligence; Agricultural and Commercial Report, &c.—London: Printed for Baldwin, Cradock, and Joy. N. B. The first Number of this Work having becu again reprinted, complete Sets may be had.

HARRISON WILKINSON's FINANCIAL REFORM;
Calculated to save this distressed and involved Nation, annually, £23,500,006.!!!

Just pablished, by Effingham Wilson, Royal Exchange; and sold by all Town and Country Booksellers, price 1s. 5d.

PROPERTY AGAINST INDUSTRY; or, an Exposition of the Partiality, Oppression, Inequality, and Injustice, of the present System of Fi

TOALL WHO VALUE THEIR SIGHT.—The sight of the TO ALL WHO VALUE THEIR SIGHT.—The sight of the aged restored, the weak sight strengthened, and the perfect sight preserved to extreme old age, by DIXON's IMPROVED SPECTACLES. To be had only at 93, Newman street, two doors out of Oxford-street, Manufacturer to the late Mr. Bradberry, and since his death has comenced Business at the above place, where the improved Spectacles can now only be had that is sanctioned by most of the Faculty, for the benefit of weak and impaired vision.—Please to observe 93, Newman-street, as there are many humble imitations of his Improved Spectacles offered to the Public.

BY THE KING'S PATENT.—Change of residence induces BY THE KING'S PATENT.—Change of residence induces the Patentee to acquaint the Nobility and Gentry, that in consequence of the counterfeits under the same name, he has confined the sale to such respectable houses (only) who deal in genuine articles. The PATENT VIOLET SOAP having a decided preference, both as a washing and shaving Soap, for its cleansing, beautifying, softening, and balsamic properties on the skin, that it was in consequence of these inestimable qualities His Majesty granted his Letters Patent. It should invariably be asked for as "Hall's Patent Vi let Soap." It is sold in squares at 2s, 6d, and 1s, 6d, and in boxes containing twelve squares, at 25s, or twelve small, at 15s.; the shaving cakes at 2s, 6d, sech, or in boxes, 4s, 6d, which are re-filled, at 2s, 6d, and it is forwarded to all parts of town or country, warranted to arrive safe, by addressing a line by post to the Patentee. Observe his name and signature is on the outside of the wrapper.—J. B. HALL, No. 2s, Hadlow-street, Burton Crescent, London.

BURGESS's NEW SAUCE for general purposes, having given such great approbation, and the demand for it continuing to increase, JOHN BURGESS and SON beg most respectfully to offer this tweir best acknowledgments to the Public for their liberal paironage of the same: its utility and great convenience in all climates, has recommended it to the most distinguished foreign connexions, who have all spoken highly in its recommendation.—It is prepared by them ONLY; and for preventing disappointments to families, all possible care has been resorted to, by each bottle being scaled upon the cork with their firm and address, as well as each label having their signature, without which it cannot be genuine.

JOHN BURGESS and SON'S long established and much-esteemed ESSENCE of ANCHOVIES, continues to be prepared by them after the same manner that has given the greatest satisfaction for many years.—Warchouse, 107, Strand, corner of the Savoy-steps, London.—The original Fish-Sauce Warchouse.

I RLING'S LACE (of the rent Point and Brusseis fabric).

original Fish-Sauce Warchouse.

IRLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brussels fabric), 147, Strand, near Somerset House, removed from 392, Strand,—
6. F. URLING and CO, heg to inform the Fashionable World, that they have prepared for the Scason a various and extensive Assortment of their PATENT LACE DRESES, from four Quincas be one hundred Guineas cash; some of which, from recent improvements, they humbly presume to compare with the most perfect foreign productions. Also a great variety of Veils, Scarfs, Squares, Laces, Nets, &c. of every description. This peculiarly clear and transparent Article baving, in the higher circles, superseded the use of common Lace, which becomes rough and full of fibre on the first washing, the Patentees respectfully apprise the Public, that the inter is frequently starched to conceal its defects, and make it resemble Urling's Lace, which, therefore, can only be relied upon as genuine at their Wholesale and Retail Establishment in London, or of the Cenntry Dealers supplied by them. Bvery Articles is distinguished by a Seal, with the Patentee's initials, "G. F. U. and Co." and the words, "by the (late) Queen's autiferity." Specimens, shewing the superiority of Urling's Lace over common Lace, may be seen in Ackermann's Repository, La Belle Assemblee, and other fashionable works, and may be had gratis, by application, post-paid, to G. F. Urling and Co.

Country Dealers supplied upsn the most liberal terms.—Manufactory, Basford, Nettinghamshire.

Country Dealers supplied upon the most liberal terms.—Manufactory, Basford, Nottinghamshire.

Basford, Nettinghamshire.

A TKINSON'S CURLING FLUID, long known to the Nobility and Gentry as an elegant substitute for Oils, Pomatums, and Extracts. It should never be omitted after curling the hair, as it counternots the dryness which hot tross produce, makes the hair soft and glossy as the finest silk, and keeps the curl firm during exercise in dancing or walking, or in damp weather. It also removes dandriffe, prevents the hair falling off or changing solour, and is so efficacious for restoring its growth, that it is usually prescribed by Physicians, when other means have proved ineffectual. Price 3s. 6d. 10s. 6d. and one Guinea.

Guinea.

NEGETABLE DYE, changes gray or red hair on the head or whiskers to a brown or black, which washing, &c. Instead of removing, renders more permanent, price 5s. 10s 6d. and 21s.

ATKINSON'S AMBROSIAL SOAP, made by a new process, which divests it of all alkaline impurities; it makes the hands soft and white, and prevents them chapping is cold weather, price 1s. a square.

Sold by Jas. Atkinson, perfumer, 44, Gerard-street, Soho-square; Gattie and Pierce, 57, Bend-street; Davison, Fleet-street, Rigge, 65, Cheapside, and most Perfumers.

CAUTION.—As there are several imitations, the genuine has the following signature; "James Atkinson, 44, Gerard-street, London."

THE First Production in the World for the TOOTH ACHE, and preserving and beautifying the TEETH and GUMS.—Patrenlzed by her Royal Highness the late DUCHESS of YORK, his Excellency the PUKE of SAN CARLOS, the Spanish Ambassador, and most of the Nobility.—ROWLAND'S ALSANA EXTRACT, or ABYSSINIAN SPRCIFIG for the Teeth and Gums.—This invaluable Specific has been in high estimation for many years, and recommended by the first Physicians.—Its properties are truly wonderful; it imme diately relieves the most violent TOOTH-ACHE, oleanses and beautifies the Teeth and Gums, and preserves them from adecay; prevents Decayed Teeth giving pain, removes the Tartar from the Teeth, fastens those that are loose, and makes the Teeth beautifully white and uniform; cleanses the Scurvy from the Gums, renders them firm and healthy, refreakes the mouth during Disease after Medicine, and imparts a sweetness to the breath. It is perfectly innocent, SO THAT A CHILD MAY TAKE IT, yet contains those inestimable properties, that if constantly used, will render the Teeth and Gums sound, beautiful, and FREE FROM PAIN to the LATEST PERIOD of LIFE. It is an excellent stomachic.—Price 2s. 9d 4a. 6d. and 10s. 6d. per bottle.

Sold, wholesale, retail, and for exportation, by the sole Proprieters, A. ROWLAND and SON, Corner of Kirby-street. Hatton garden, London; and most Perfumers and Medicine Venders.—None are genuine without the signature THE First Production in the World for the TOOTH ACHR.

MONTAGUE-STREET, near PURTMAN-SQUARE.

Two Hundred Lots of Gentine HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, by direction of the Proprietor, leaving England. Three beautiful Chints Drawing-room Curtains, with 14 Rosewood Chairs, and two Greelan Couches, with Cabinets, Cards, Sofa, Loe and Work Tables, iniaid capital carved Pedestal Sideboard, with Patent Dining Tables to ge under, two large Chimney and Pier Glasses, Cut Glass, &c. &c.

TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION,

BY MESSRS. WILSON and CO.
On the Promises, No. 22, Montague-street, TO-MORROW, and following Day, at Twelve, COMPRISING four very handsome Mahogany Bedsteads and Hangings, with white Goose and Down Beds and Bedding to each, Parlour Curtains for two Windows, with Mahogany Couches and Chairs, covered with red Morocco and Satin Hair Cloth, a very superb Set of Rosewood, Card, Sofa, and Loo Tables, elegantly inlaid and finished, Sofa Bedsteads and Accouchement Chairs fitted up with Cushions, three large Chinney Glasses with corresponding Mirrors, and Pier ditto, Mahogany Wardrobes, and Chairs of double and single Drawers, a Patent Dressing Case fitted up with Apparatus, reading and work Tables, Harp Stand and Chair, Sandwich Tables, Book Chefonters, Prints, Blue and White Dinner Service, double-barrel Gun, and a Case of Pistols, Cheval and Box Glasses, handsome Cut Glass in Decanters, Goblets, Wines, Tritle Dishos, Ice Palls, &c. the whole of the Kitchen May be viewed, when Catalogues may be had; and at the Auctioneera. Furniture, &c viewed, when Catalogues may be had; and at the Auctioneers, May be viewe Office, Holbarn.

LONDON MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, FRIDAY, APRIL 27.

Though we have been very moderately supplied with Wheat since Monday, a considerable part of that day's arrival remained over on account of its inferior quality, and what few sales were effected this morning were on lower terms.— The Oat trade is particularly dull, and rather lower than otherwise.—In Barley, Reans, and Pease, we have no variation

RETURN PRICE of GRA	IN, on board Ship, as under.
Essex Red Wheat (new)35s. 48s.	Maple
Fine	White ditto
Old	Boilers
Essex White (new)40s. 49s.	Smail Beans a. 30s. 32s.
Fines. 56s. 58s.	Old
Superfine	Ti k Beans (new)s. 24s. 29s.
Rye	Old36s. 38s.
Old	Feed Oatss. 15s. 17s.
Barley
Fine	Poland ditto
Superfine	Fine
Malt	Petatoe ditte
Fine 56s. 60s.	Fines. 24s. 25s.
Hog Pease26s. 28s.
WIND COMMENT AND ADDRESS OF THE PARTY OF THE AVERAGE PRICES of GRAIN per Quarter, for the Week ending APRIL 14.

	W	ht.	R	ye.,	B	ırl.	On	ıts.	Bo	ANA.	Pe	AAC.	O	at.
	8.	d.	8.	d.	*.	d	8.	d.	8.	ď.	F.	d.	8.	d.
Mar. Dist	53	7 🛊	34	5	53	9	18	2	29	113	30	63	18	101
Inl. Counties	58	114	33	5	24	6	50	74	32	-11	32	0	24	1
Mar. Dist Inl. Counties Eng. & Wal.	53	7 4	34	4)	23	93	18	4 1	30	12	80	8	19	4
							LOI			-
Town made F	'l∻ur	, pe	rsac	ek	• • • •			• • • •	• • • •	⊸.	to 4	84.	io s	0=

			LIC FU
STOCKS. Bank Stock	Mon.	Tucs.	Wed.	2434	Frid. 2234	Sat.
3 per Cent. Reduced 3 per Cent. Consols				713	713	714
31 per Cent. Consols Consols for Account	Ħ	Не	=	814 74	72	728 4.4
4 per Cent. Consols 5 per Cent. Navy	Holiday.	Holiday.	Holiday.	89 8 108	89} 107}	694 1
Bank Long Annuities India Bonds	4.	y.	,	189 13 p	182 40 p	183 43 p
Exchequer Bills, 2d Ditto, 21d				6 p	е ь	4 5 1
Omnium				:		_

BIRTHS.

At Norwich, on the 20th inst. the Lady of Captain Campbell, of the 9th Lancers, of a son.

On the 24th inst. at his house, Gloucester-place, Portman-square, the Lady of Jas. Alex. Hodson, Esq. M.P. of a daughter.

On Wednesday, the 25th inst. at Avoley, the Rev. H. B. Lennard, fourth son of Sir T. B. Lennard, of Bell House, Essex, to Hebe Dorothy, youngest daughter and co-heiress of Edmund Prideaux, late of Hexworthy, in the county of Cornwall, Esq.
On the 25th instant, Charles William Smith, Esq. to Miss Caroline Lancilla, fourth daughter of the late Lancolot Shadwell, Esq. of Lincoln's Inn.

coin's lim.

On the 24th linst. Richard Berry, Esq. to Phobe, daughter of the late Joseph Devey, Esq. of Bankside, Southwark.

Yesterday, at St. James's Church, Piccadilly, Francis Ricardo, Esq. of Lower Grosvenor-street, to Mis-Eliz, Lucy Alexander, of Cork-street.

On Monday last, by special license, at St. George's Church, Hanoversquare, by his Grace the Archbishop of York, the Right Hon. Heneage Earl of Aylesford, to the Right Hon. Lady Augusta Sophia Greville, sister to the Earl of Warwick.

DIED.

On Wednesday, the 25th instant, at his house in Bruten-street, at two o'clock in the morning, in the 78th year of his age, Henry Lawes Luttrell, Earl of Carhampton, Viscount Carhampton of Cartlellaven, Baron Irnham of Luttrelstown, Governor of Dublin, Patent Customer at Bristol, a General in the army, and Colonel of the 6th regiment of Dragoon Guards.

On the 24th inst. in Bennett-street, St. James's, after a very long and severe illness, Jehn Wood, Esq. late Commander of the Hon, East India Company's ship Marquis Wellington.
On the 23d inst. at his house in Gloucester-place, Pottman-square, Henry Churchill, Esq. many years in the East India Company's service.
On Sunday the 22d inst. at Batk, after a long illness, Julia Henrietta, sixth daughter of the late Rev. Robt. Watts, of the county of Waterford.
On Friday last, aged 24, Maria, wife of the Rev. Joseph Hurlock, M.D. Curate of Roxwell, Essex.
At Berlin, in the house of his Majesty's Euroy, on the 12th April, Miss Frances Jennings, only surriving daughter of the late Sir Philip Jennings

At Berlin, in the house of his Majesty's Euroy, on the 12th April, Miss Frances Jennings, only surviving daughter of the late Sir Philip Jennings Clerke, of Poxlease, Hants, Baronet
At Milan, on the 7th inst. the Rev. W. H. Campion, Rector of Westmeston and Street, Sussex.

On Saturday last, at Prince's-place, Lambeth, Mrs. Mary Rebins, widow of the late Mr. William Robins, of Fleet-street.
On Sunday last, at this father's house, the Rev. John Graham, Vicar of Windsor, and one of H. R. H. the Duke of York's Domestic Chaplains.
On Monday last, at his lenies in Margaret-street, Cavendish-square Henry Edridge, Esq. Associate of the Royal Academy.
On Tuesday last, at Hallow Park, Worcestershire, Alfred Ellis, youngest son of Samuel Wall, Esq.
On Tuesday, the 24th lust, in London, George Ede, Esq. of Merry Oak, in the county of Southampton, in the 29th year of his age.

LONDON: Printed and Published by R. T. WEAVER, at No. 11, JOHNSON'S COURT, FLEET-STREET, where only Communications to the Editor, (post paid) are

.JOHN

BUIL.

" FOR GOD, THE KING, AND THE PEOPLE!"

No. 21.

SUNDAY, MAY 6, 1821.

Price 7d.

A LADY, who brought a Young Person from Paris near four years ago, is anxious to place her in a family of respectability, as UNDER GOVERNESS. She understands her own Language grammatically, is a Protestant, of excellent principles, and would be found a great acquisition to any Lady who superintends the education of her own-children.—Apply for further particulars, by letter (post-paid) to A. B. at Mrs. Osborne's, Fruiterer, Upper Berkeley-street, Portmanagae.

MR. HAYDON'S PICTURE of CHRIST'S AGONY in the GARDEN, with Solomon, Macbeth, Dentatus, Romeo and Juliet, his Drawings from Elgin Marbles and from Nature, and the Drawings of his Pupils from the Cartoons, with some of their FIRST ATTEMPTS is PAINTING, are NOW OPEN at the Gallery next door to the British Institution, Pall Mall, from 10 till dusk.—Admittance, 1s. Catalogues, 6d.

FCHOISM. A Poem.—Printed for Sherwood, Neely, and Jones, Paternoster-row.

Jones, Paternoster-row.

THE LAST VOYAGE TO THE ARCTIC REGIONS.
Just published, the Second Edition, in one volume, 8vo. with Maps, &c. price 12s, of

A JOURNAL of a VOYAGE of DISCOVERY to the ARCTIC REGIONS, in His Majesty's Ships Heela and Griper, under the Command of Captain Parry.—By ALEXANDER FISHER, Esq. Surgeon to the Heela.

Printed for Longman, Hurst, Rees, Orme, and Brown, London.

LATIN COMMON PRAYER.

Just published, in one very small volume, beautifully printed, price 5s.

A LATIN TRANSLATION of the BOOK of COMMON PRAYER.—Printed for Samuel Bagster, No. 15, Paternoster-row, where may be had, in uniform Volumes, price 5s. each, Translations into Italian, German, French, Modern Greek, Greek, or Spanish; or, the 8 Volumes in one Set, including the English, price £ 2.

BRITISH BOTANY.—Just published, by Samuel Bagster, 15, Paternoster-row, in one elegant portable volume, price 10s. 6d. in boards, A SYNOPTICAL COMPEND of BRITISH BOTANY, arranged after the Linnean System: and containing the essential Characters of the Genera, the Specific Characters, English Names, Places of Growth, Soil, and Situation, Colour of the Flewers, Times of Flowering, Duration, and References to Figures. Originally by JOHN GALPINE, A. L. S.—The Second Edition, with considerable additions.

MY NOTE BOOK; or, Sketches from the Gallery of St.
Stephen's. A Poem.—By WILFRED WOODFALL, Esq. in one volume, Foolscap.

Volume, Foolscap.

Just published, in 12mo. price 7s. boards, the Third Edition of A COMPLETE ANALYSIS; or, Abridgement of Dr. Adam Smith's Inquiry into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations.—By JEREMIAH JOYCE.

Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, Ave Maria-lane.

Just published, in two valumes See price 18s. beauds, a Naw Edition of Tunical for G. and W. B. Whittaker, Ave Maria-lane.

Just published, in two volumes, 8vo. price 18s. beards, a New Edition of
THE SACRED INTERPRETER; or, a Practical Introduction towards a beneficial Reading; and a thorough understanding of the Holy Bible.—By DAVID COLLYER, late Vicar of Great Coxwell, Berks.

Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, Lougman and Co., Baldwin and Co., T. Hamilton, R. Priestley, and Ogle and Co. London; and J. Parker, Oxford.

Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, Longman and Co., Baldwin and Co., T. Hamilton, R. Priestley, and Ogle and Co. London; and J. Parker, Oxford.

NEW NOVEL.—Just published, dedicated (by permission) to Mrs.

JOANNA BAILLIE, price 21s. boards,

THE FAVOURITE of NATURE. A Novel. In three volumes 12mo.

"This is a well-written Novel, in which female character, and an intimate knowledge of the human heart are ably pourtrayed. The vices of the rich and gay are well sketched, and the fate of their youthful victim, Eliza Rivers, is such as must deeply affect the sensitive mind."

Manthly Jug. April, 1821.

Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, Ave Maria-lane; of whom may be had, lately published,
2. SuCH IS THE WORLD, a Novel, in 3 vols. 12mo. price 21s.

3. LOCHIEL; or, the Field of Culloden: in 3 vols. price 21s.

3. LOCHIEL; or, the Field of Culloden: in 3 vols. price 21s.

5. WINTER EVENING TALES, collected among the Cottages in the South of Scotland. By James Hogg, Author of "The Queen's Wake," &c. Second Edition, in 2 vols. 12mo price 14s. boards.

BIOGRAPHIA HIBERNICA.—Just published, complete in two thick volumes, demy Svo. price 30s. boards.

A BIOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY of the WORTHIES of IRELAND, from the carliest Period to the present Time.—By RICHARD RYAN.

Printedfor John Warren, Old Bond-street, London: M. N. Mahon, R. Milliken, and Hodges and M'Arthur, Dublin.

KING JAMES THE SECOND—In a few days will be published, by Baldwin, Cradock, and Joy, in 2 vols. post Svo. price 16s.

MEMOIRS of JAMES THE SECOND, King of England, &e. &c. With a Portrait.

RIVINGTON'S ANNUAL REGISTER.

In the course of the present year will be published, the Commencement of His present Majesty's Reign.—A Prospectus of the Work will be shortly issued by the Publishers, at 62, St. Paul's Church-yard, and 3, Waterloo-place, Pall Mall.

Speedily will be published, elegantly printed, in 4 vols.

Church-yard, and 3, Waterloo-place, Pall Mall.

Speedily will be published, elegantly printed, in 4 vols.

HERALINE.—By LÆTTITA-MATILDA HAWKINS.—
Printed for F. C. and J. Rivington, 62, St. Paul's Church-yard. and 3, Waterloo-place, Pall Mall; sold also by T. Hookhara, 15, Old Bond-street; of whom may be had, by the same Author, a few remaining Copies of

2. The COUNTESS and GERTRUDE; or, Modes of Discipline.
In 4 vols. 8vo. The Second Edition, 11, 16s. and,
3. ROSANNE; or, a Father's Labour Lost. 3 vols. 8vo.

Just published, in 2 vols. 12mo. price 8s. in boards,

MEDITATIONS on the SCRIPTURES; chiefly addressed to Young Persons, on the importance of religious Principles and Conduct.—By the Rev. RICHARD WALOND, A.M. Rector of Westonunder-Ponyard, and Treasurer of the Cathedral Church of Hereford.—
Printed for F. C. and J. Rivington, No. 62, St. Paul's Glurch-yard, and
No. 3. Waterloo-place, Pall Mall.

Just -published, in 4 volumes. 12mo. price, in boards, 11. 4s. a pew

Just published, in 4 volumes, 12mo, price, in boards, 1l. 4s. a new Edition of

Edition of

CONTEMPLATIONS on the HISTORICAL PASSAGES of the Old and New Testament.—By the Right Rev. JOSEPH HALL, D. D. late Lord Bishop of Norwich.—Printed for F. C. and J. Rivington,
No. 52, St. Paul's Church-yard, and No. 3, Waterloo-place, Pall Mall;

D. D. late Lord Bishop of Norwich.—Printed for F. C. and J. Rivington, No. 52, St. Paul's Church-yard, and No. 3, Waterloo-place, Pall Mall; of whom may be had,

2. A New Edition of THE ARGUMENTS of the BOOKS and CHAPTERS of the OLD and NEW TESTAMENT, with practical Observations. Written originally in French, by the Rev. J. F. Ostervald, Professor in Divinity, and one of the Ministers of the Church at Neufchatel, in Switzerland Translated by John Chamberlayne, Esq. Three vols, 12no. 16s. 6d in boards

Just published, in two large volumes, 8vo. price, in boards, 1l. 4s. the Third Edition of

A N HISTORICAL VIEW of the RISE and PROGRESS of INFIDELITY, with a Refutation of its Principles and Reasonings. In a Series of Sermons, preached for the Lecture founded by the Hon. Robert Boyle, in the Parish Church of St. Mary-le-Bow, from the Year 1802 to 1805.—By the Right Rev. WM. VAN MILDERT, D.D. Lord Bishop of Llandaff, and Dean of St. Paul's.—Printed for F. C. and J. Rivington, No 62, St. Paul's Church-yard, and No. 3, Waterloo place, Pall-Mall; and sold by Rivington and Cochran, 143, Strand.

NEW MUSIC.—Sir JOHN STEVENSON:—"The Daybeam is over the Sea," the Venetian Boat Song, sung with the most unbounded applause at the London, Bath, and Dublin Concerts: arranged-for one, two, or three words written by J. A. Wade, Best, ite Music composed by the set the words written by J. A. Wade, Best, ite Music composed by the set the words written by J. A. Mus. Boe, price 3s. This piece, from the richness and at the sevention, it is a simplicity of the melody, has aiready ranked itself among the next admired productions of the day. Ellinor's Song, "And can'st thou bid my heart forget," from Glenaryon, as sung by Mrs. Ashe at the Bath Concerts with enthusiastic appliause; composed by F. J. Klose, price 1s. 6d. This is the third edition. "Dear Harp of Sweet Erio," Ballad; sung by Mr. Leoni Lee, with the greatest applause, at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, written by Miss Chapman, colongosed by Bernard Lee, price 1s. 6d.—London: printed by Phillips and Mashew, music-sellers to H. R. H. the Duchess of Keet. 17, Old Bond-street.

MEW MUSIC; By J. B. CRAMER.

Just published by the Royal Harmonic Institution, Lower Saloon, Argyll Rooms, London,

MOZART'S Favourite Air, "Deh Prendi un Dolce Amplesso," with Variations for the Plane Forte, price 3s. 6d. "Fantasia," in which is introduced a celebrated Air Russe, with entirely new Variations for the Plano Forte, price 3s. "The Stilly Night," a popular Seotch Air, arranged with an Introduction and Variations for the Plano Forte, price 3s. "The Stilly Night," a popular Seotch Air, arranged with an Introduction and Variations for the Plano Forte, price 3s. "LES FAVORITE DES SALONS" 28 Set of New Quadrilles, 3s.—"LES FAVORITE DES SALONS" 28 Set of New Quadrilles, 3s.—"LES FAVORITE DES SALONS" 28 Set of New Quadrilles, 3s.—"LES FAVORITE DES SALONS" 28 Set of New Quadrilles, 3s.—"LES FAVORITE DES SALONS" 28 Set of New Quadrilles, 3s.—"LES FAVORITE DES SALONS" 28 Set of New Quadrilles, 3s.—"LES FAVORITE DES SALONS" 28 Set of New Quadrilles, 3s.—"LES FAVORITE DES SALONS" 28 Set of New Tubbled and sold by Chappell and Co. Music-sellers to His Majesty, 50, New Bond-street.

MR. VAUGHAN begs most respectfully to acquaint the Nobility, Gentry, and his Friends in general, that his BENEFIT CONCERT will take place on FRIDAY, the 1st of June, at the above Rooms, on the GRAND SCALE of former years.—Tickets to be had of Mr. Vaughan, No. 89, Great Portland-street, Portland-place; and at the Music Shops of Birchall and Co. Bond-street; Messrs. Clementi and Co. Cheapside; and at the Reyal Institution, Argyll Rooms.

EXHIBITION of WARD'S GRAND NATIONAL ALLE-GORY in Commemoration of the TRIUMPH of the BRITISH EMPIRE, at the BATTLE of WATTERLOO, painted by order of the British Institution, (size 35 feet by 21 feet) is NOW OPEN at the Egyptian Hall, Piccadilly.—Admittance, 1s. Catalogue, 6d. Explanatory de, with etched outline, 2s. 6d.

MESSRS, CHARLES and WILLIAM KNYVETT beg leave respectfully to acquaint the Nobility, Gentry, and their Friends, that their ANNUAL CONCERT will take place on FRIDAY, May the 18th, at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS, particulars of which will be shortly announced.

A FRESH SUPPLY OF BALSORA SNUFF.

A FRESH SUPPLY OF BALSORA SNUFF.

THIS delioiously fragrant and most exhilarating SNUFF is held in the highest estimation by all sovereign princes and persons of rask in the Oriental Countries, being prepared from a species of tobacco which is only successfully cultivated on the borders of a small river near Balsora, is the kingdom of Persia, the waters of which river communicate a peculiar fragrance to all the vegetable productions growing on its banks.

This highly esteemed Smiff is sold wholesale and retail, for the Agents, (Parsons and Co.) at No. 166, Elect-street, in Canisters, at 2s. 6d., 9s., and 18s. each.—Country orders containing a remittance punctually attended te.—May be had, retail, of R. Bellin, 55, Cornbill; Hill, 402, Strand; and Gliddon, 42, King-street, Covent Gardens.

Published by S. L. Marks, 163, Piccadilly, opposite Bond-street, price is.

THE KING'S PROPHECY, and POLITICAL PREDICTIONS of JOHN BULL, with EYES OPEN.

"Men should be cautious what they say,
"And think upon a future day."

Just published, in 8vo. A FRESH SUPPLY OF BALSORA SNUFF

"And think upon a future day."

Just published, in 8vo.

OLIVER CROMWELL and HIS TIMES.—By THOMAS CROMWELL. With a Portrait, from an Original Painting in the Author's possession, a Fac Simile of Cromwell's Signature and Seal to the Warrant for Beheading Charles I. Original Memoirs of his Descendants, Letters, and other interesting Documents.

Shortly will be published,

THE PRIVATEER; a Tule, in Two Vols. Foolscap 8vo.

It is proper to state, that the above Tale was written, christened, and sent to the press, six weeks before the announcement of the new Romance, entitled the Buccancers; by that powerful wrifer, the Author of Wavertey, &c. The publisher feels himself called upon to make the above statement, that the public may not for a moment consider either author or himself capable of using the Synonymous Title or Subject for the interested and disreputable purpose of deceiving.

Printed for J. Audrews, 167, New Bond-street, Of whom may be had, just published,

Printed for J. Andrews, 167, New Bond-street. Of whom may be had, just published,
2. A TALE of the OLDEN TIME, by a Harrow Boy, 12me. 6s. 6d.
3. The LIFE of VOLTAIRE, with interesting particulars respecting his Death; and Anecotes and Characters of his Contemporaries; by Frank Hall Standish, Esq. 8so. price 12s.
4. WARBECK of WOLFSTEIN; by Miss Holford, author of Wallace, &c. Second Edition, 3vols, 1l. 4s.

TURNING LATHES, WORK BENCHES, and TOOLS, for general Mechanical Purposes, the whole forming two complete Mechanical Elaboratories, TO BE SOLD, being the Property of a Gentleman residing Abroad. Also a cholec Collection of curious FO. REIGN WOOD, JET, and about 5; Cwt. of ELEPHANTS' TEETH. May be seen from Ten till Six o'Clock, at 96, Pall Mall, where Catalogues, with the Prices asixed, may be had. Letters post-paid will be attended to.

A 150 4

SATURDAY'S GAZETTE, APRIL 28.

DIVIDENDS.

May 26, R. Simson, Crown-court, Threadneedle street, merchant.—May 19, J. Lewin, Holloway, carpenter.—May 22, W. Simcox, Birmingham, thimble-maker.—May 22, W. Poole, Leicester, hosier.—May 22, Little, Elliott, and Co., Heley-Field, Durham, lead-miners.—May 21, Foulke's and Daraton, Manchester, cabinet-makers.—May 23, T. Barnett, Kendal, Westmoreland corn-merchant.—May 19, H. Schroder and Sons, College-lift, and Chessington, Surrey, sugar refuers.—May 19, R. and J. Grimshaw, Gorton, Lancashire, and Manchester, merchants.—May 19, J. Rose, St. Michael's alley, Cornbill, provision-merchant.—May 21, W. Reynolds, Bristol, soap-maker.—May 19, T. and J. Dowley, Willow-street, Bankside, corn-merchants.—May 19, T. X. Keppell, Alford, Surrey, builder.—May 19, C. Beakburn, Turnehapel-Doek, Plymouth, and Bloomsbury-square, build-er.—May 19, W. Sherwood, Liverpool, soap-manufacturer.—May 19, C. Beeher, Lothbury, merchant.—May 21, J. Newbold, Leanington-Priors, Warwickshire, butcher.—May 19, T. Inchbold, Leeds, book-seller.

CERTIFICATES—May 19.

seller.

CERTIFICATES—May 19.

P. Butcher, Braintree-Heath, Essex, horse-dealer.—A. Smith, Lime-street-square, merchant.—J. Harrison, Sandwich, Kent, weolstapler.—J. Guy, Blackfriar's-road, dealer and chapman.—W. F. Page, High-Helborn, linen-draper.—L. Ingram, Cheapside, hatter.—J. Whaley, King's Lyan, Norfolk, watchmaker.—T. Bradshaw, Miles's-lane, and Crooked-lane, warehouseman.—J. Farrell, Prospect-place, Newington-Causeway, merchant.—Newstead and Cooke, Kingston-upon-Hull, soap-manufacturers.—R. Fox, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's-Inn-fields, wine-merchant.—T. Alder, Prestbury, Gloucestershire, victualler.—W. Wheeler, the younger, New Kent-road, timber-merchant.

TUESDAY'S GAZETTE.

TUESDAY'S GAZETTE.

CROWN OFFICE, May 1, 1821.

Member returned to serve in this present Parliament.

Borough of Orford.—The Most Honourable Robert Marquis of Londonderry, in the room of John Douglas, Esq. who has accepted the Chiltern Hundreds.

Commission in the Tyne Yeomanry Hussars, signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the county of Durham.

George Rippon, Gent. to be Lieutenant, vice Lockey, deceased.

PARTERSHIPS DISSOLVED.

Napier, Douglas, and Hannay, Castle-Douglas, bankers.—J. Tennaut and Co. Trinity Square, wine and brandy merchants.—M. M. Pattison, J. Pattison, jun. Old Jewry, silk merchants.—Watsen, Mardoch, and Watson, Greenock, merchants.—Milgrove and Culbertson, Bristol, timber dealers.—Large, Jenkins, and Paine, Birmingham, wire workers.—Back, Everitt, and Lowden, Compton Street, back 'makers.—Shipway and Dunn, jun. Trowbridge, hatters.—Moore and Parkin, Barking, surgeons:—Standen and Wallace, Lancashire, stone masons.—Coote, Wisbech, St. Peters, and Coote, St. Ives, merchants,—Birch, M. and J. De Jongh, and Birch, Manchester, twist merchants.

BANKRUPTCIES ENLARGED.

BENZIES, A. St. Martin's Laue, baker.

CROFT, T. Chatham, Kent, hair dresser.

BANKRUPTCY SUPERSEDED.

LOVE, B. L. Norwich, manufacturer.

BANKRUPTCY SUPERSEDED.

LOVE, B. L. Norwich, manufacturer.

BANKRUPTCY SUPERSEDED.

BANKRUPTCY SUPERSEDED.

LOVE, B. L. Norwich, manufacturer.

BANKRUPTCY SUPERSEDED.

BANKRUPTCY SUPERSEDED.

LOVE, B. L. Norwich, manufacturer.

BANKRUPTCY SUPERSEDED.

BANKRUPTCY SUPERSEDED.

LOVE, B. L. Norwich, manufacturer.

BANKRUPTCY SUPERSEDED.

BANKRUPTCY SUPERSEDED.

LOVE, B. L. Norwich, manufacturer.

BANKRUPTCY SUPERSEDED.

BANKE, R. sen. Newark-upon. Trent, miller.

GREENWOOD, T. jun Preston, Lancashire, upholsterer.

SHEPHEARD, J. jun. and HOUGHTON, R. Bastey, Worcestershire, dealers.

TURNER, D. Whitechapel Road, timber merchant.

GREENWOOD, T. jun Preston, Lancashire, upholsterer.

SHEPHEARD, J. jun. and HOUGHTON, R. Badsey, Woreestershire, dealers.

TURNER, D. Whitechapel Road, timber merchant.

WALLER, M. Stone, Staffordshire, victualler,

WELSH. J. High Helborn, master mariner.

WESTERWAY, J. Exeler, watch maker.

JERRY, J. Kirton, Suffolk, maltster.

DIVIDENDS.

May 22. J. Maenair, jun. and J. Atkinson, Cornhill, merchants.—May 22, J. Lay, South Moulton Street, hatter.—May 26, W. Vaughan, Pall Mall, tailor.—May 26, J. Hill, Rotherhithe, merchant.—June 2, M. Haffner, Caunen Street, St. Geerge's, carpenter.—May 23, E. Cattell, Milverton, mealman.—May 22, J. Davies, Skrewsbury, flax spinner.—June 6, R. and 6. Panter, Heyrod, Lancashire, dealers.—May 29, J. Thomas, Llanbrynmair, flannel manufacturer.—May 30, T. Powell, Leominster, butcher.—June 5, T. Ryder and J. Nasmyth, Fenchurch Street, sugar refiners.—May 26, N. Bell, Boreham Park, Hertfordshire, hay jobber.—May 29, W. Bewley, Manchester, tailor.—May 22, W. and A. Copp, Exeler, linen drapers.—May 22, W. Burn, Exeter, draper.—May 29, J. Dobell, Staplehurst, tailor.—May 22, J. Lee, King Street, Cheapside, warehouseman.—May 22, W. Hodge, Great Hermitage Street, ship owner.—May 24, T. Cassity, Liverpool, feather merchant.—May 22, J. Williams, Bishopsgate Street Wibin, linen draper.—May 22, M. B. Schlesinger, Church Court, Clements Lane, indigo merchant.—May 22, J. Williams, Bishopsgate Street Wibin, linen draper.—May 12, J. Bourke, Albemarle Street, wine and brandy merchant.

CERTIFICATES—May 22.

T. Jarratt, Shrewsbury, victualler.—J. Riebards and W. Badham Bromyard, Herefordshire, corn dealers.—J. Canney, Bishop Wearmouth, Durham, ship owner.—S. Levy, Rosemary Lane, slopseller.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTB.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTE.

WAR-OFFICE, 4th May, 1821.

2d Regt. of Life Guards—Cornet and Sub-Lieut. G. A. Reid to be Lieut. without purchase, vice Grieve, superseded.
6th Regt. of Dragoon Guards—General Hon. R. Taylor, from the 5th Dragoon Guards, to be Colouel, vice Lord Carhampton, deceased.
16th Regt. of Foot—Lieut. J. Walton to be Captain, without purchase, vice Thurlow, deceased.

I6th Regt. of Foot—Lieut. J. Walton to be Captain, without purchase, vice Thurlow, deceased, 55th Ditto—Capt. J. Fisher, from half-pay 15th Foot, to be Paymaster, vice Goddard, who exchanges.
73d Ditto—Lieut. C. Anber, from half-pay 67th Foot, to be Lieut. Without purchase, vice Campbell, deceased.
Staff—Lient.-Col. J. Bell. on half pay as Permanent Ass. Quartermaster-Gea. to be Pep.-Quartermaster-Gea. at the Cape of Good Mope, vice Warre, who resigns.
Hospital Staff.—Staff-Surg. D. M Diarmid, from half-pay, to be Surg. to the Forces, vice Macleod, who exchanges.—T. Allan, Gent. to be Hosp.-Ass. to the Forces, vice Moon, deceased.

Other of Ordnance, May 2, 1821.

Rosp. Ass. to the Forces, vice Moon, deceased.

Office of Ordnance, Man 2, 1821.

Royal Reg. of Artillery.—Sec. Capt. R. C. Molesworth, from half-pay, to be Sec. Capt. vice Cartis, retired on half pay.

Commission in the 2d or Eastern Regiment of Norfolk Militia, signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Norfolk, Ensign W. Sharpe to be Lieut. vice Hogg, deceased.

Commission in the North Derbyshire Yeomanry Cavairy, signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Derby,

J. O. Sweetenham, Gent. to be Cornet, vice Andrew, promoted.

BANKRUPTCIES SUPERSEDED.

GATTERSON, J. Kingstön-apon-Hull, leather-seller.

BIGSBY, J. Deptford, brewer.

RITCHIE, R. Mill-lane, Deptford, brewer.

BANKRUPTS.

BUTTERY, S. West Stockwith, Nottingham, malister.

THOMAS, H. W. Welverhampton, upholsterer.

GORTON, J. Henry-street, Hampstead-road, smith.

HALL, H. and HALL, J. Sun-Wharf, Upper Thames-street, irons recharts.

ercliants.
TURNER, S. Stock Exchange, Capel-court, stock-broker.
CURWEN, J. Great East Cheap, tea-broker.
AMBROSE, W. Clapton, Middlesex, carpenter.
DRIVER, J. and DRIVER, M. Thomas-street, Bristol, cabinet

inkers.
COPLAND, S. the Younger, Blackbeath-hill, victualler.
WOODCOCK, C. Norwich, coach-maker.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS. TUESDAY.

Lord Helland presented two petitions, one signed by 200 respectable inhabitants of St. John's, Newfoundland, the other from a district in the same island, both complaining of the manner in which the laws were administered, and praying the House to adopt some measure to regulate the government of that colony, and to place it on the same footing as other British Colonies.—The petitions were laid on the table.—Adjourned.

WEDNESDAY. Counsel were heard, and evidence examined, in support of the second reading of Glerawley's Divorce Bill.

The African Company Regulation Bill was passed.—Adj.

FRIDAY.

The Earl of Liverpool moved the rending of the Cash Payments Bill. The Noble Earl stated that the object of the present Bill was not to alter the principle of the law with respect to cash payments, but merely to vary its operation, by enabling the Bank to do that in May 1821, which they could not other-wise do till May 1822. It was the intention of the Bank to pay off all their Il. notes.

The Marquis of Lansdowne observed, that by this measure the Bank would be enabled to promote the convenience and advantage of the public, and throw into circulation the specie which they had accumulated. He saw no reason to change the opinion which be had all along maintained, that when once the currency of the country should be established on durable principles, the less of the precious metals which might remain in the the better. No one doubted the capability of the Bank to pay all demands upon them. It was a question, he observed, whether, after a paper currency had received all the improvements of which it was capable, it was probable one system would rise to forgery to a greater extent than the other. In the course of the last twenty years the convictions for coining amounted to 3,191, whilst the convictions for forgery in the same period, with all the facilities afforded to the commission of that crime, by the defective state of the existing notes, amounted only to 1,581. Thus the convictions for coining nearly trebled the other. It might be said most of these convictions were for coining silver, but he was sorry to say, that in the opinion of the best informed, the facilities for coining gold were very great in consequence of the introduction of platina. For his own part, if the advantages of a metallic currency over a paper one could be shewn. he should prefer the latter, as the most economical machine for carrying on the circulation of the country. After the passing of a Bill, the principle of a metallic standard without a metallic currency would still continue, and therefore be thought the Bank should be compelled to purchase gold a fraction below the Mint price. The noble Marquess then enforced the necessity of reducing the expenditure, by economy and retrenchment below the revenue.

The Earl of Lauderdale thought the Bank ought to be cautious in their proceedings under the Bill. He observed, that gold had continued at the same price for the last six months, which was, in effect, saying, that it did not come fairly into the market, for the law of supply and demand would prevent the standard price being invariable. The nominal price was 31. 17s. 10\frac{1}{2}d., the price of foreign gold was 31. 14s. 6d.; comparing it with the foreign metal it ought to be 31. 19s. 0\frac{1}{2}d. or 31. 19s. 7d. With respect to a paper currency, he was not satisfied it was the most advantageous. He thought no coun satisfied it was the most advantageous. He thought no country beld out such advantages to the coiner, as this; he might gain by his operation (the price of silver being 4s. 1014) 4s. 11d. per oz., and considering the number of shillings into which an oz. might be coined) 14 per cent.

Lord King considered a reduction of the expenditure necessary for all wise purposes. He thought the purchases of the Bank in gold tended to carry the price beyond its proper value, and they had been too eager in collecting gold.

The Earl of Liverpool admitted, that the Bill would have the effect of increasing the difficulties of other principles. The Bank were of opinion, it would be prudent to pay their II. notes without delay, now amounting to between 6,000,0001. or 7,000,0001. and to issue gold instead—it was obvious after considering the question; at least, it appeared to his mind, that the metallic currency was the most advantageous of the two. He seared the evils attendant on paper circulation were suffi-cient to counterbalance the advantages which had been described, the extent of forgery was one very serious objection, particularly with respect to one pound notes. With respect to the price of gold, the market price he believed was below the standard price, large quantities of bullion to the amount of standard price, large quantities of button to the amount of 500,0001. monthly now entered the country, the price of gold was consequently on the decline, and now probably did not exceed 31. 15s. or 31. 16s. The Noble Lord then alluded to the reduction in the taxes and said, that since the termination of the war 16,000,0001. of taxes had been reduced. the war 16,000,000l. of taxes had been reduced. He was one of those who had advised an addition to the Sinking Fund two years ago; and he thought it desirable that a Sinking Fund of 5,000,0001. should be established. Some considerable retrenchments had been made in the expenditure, the greatest burthen at present was the half-pay of the Army, the Navy and the Ordnance, but that was a source for expenditure which could not be touched. He thought the best mode of reaching and comprehending all the improvements of which the system was capable, would be to give the present experiment the trial at least of one year.

After some further observations from the Marquis of Lansdowne, the Earl of Liverpool, the Earl of Lauderdale, the Earl of Darnley, and the Duke of Wellington, the Bill was passed.

—Adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS. MONDAY.

The Marquis of Londonderry took the Oaths and his Seat for the Borough of Orford.

A New Writ was ordered for Ludgershall, and another for Stirling, the former in the room of the Earl of Carhampton, deceased, and the latter for Stirling, in the room of Sir C. Edmonstone, deceased.

The second reading of the Assize Bread Bill was discharged, and fixed for the 7th of May.

Lord J. Russell gave notice of a motion respecting Corrupt Boroughs for the 9th of May.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer moved the House to go into a Committee of Supply.

Mr. Creevey objected to the motion, and wished the House to pledge itself to a resolution to reduce some of the salaries in the higher offices. He moved an amendment to that effect: viz. In the Paymaster's Office, 1,5001, to an Accountant, 1,0001. to a Cashier, and in other offices, Comptroller's Department, 1,4001. 1,0001. 2,0001. 1,5001. &c.

Lord Palmerston thought the motion extraordinary, because the House as yet did not know whether such sums had actually

Mr. Creevey said, his motion merely pledged the House to consider the subject at a proper time.

Sir C. Long said, the motion was founded on the assumption, that several clerks were about to be discharged, which was not the fact.

Mr. Bennett verily believed, if the Government wor for a vote of 4,000l, and sixpence halfpenny, and a Member were to shew the necessity of taking off the odd sixpence halfpenny, the House would, nevertheless, vote it, if the Noble Lord and his friends opposed the reduction.

The Marquis of Londonderry made some observations, and the House divided.—For the original motion, 55—For Mr. Creevey's amendment, 22—Majority, 33.

The House then went into a Committee.

Lord Palmerston moved a resolution for granting a sum of 20,0001, for certain military services connected with the East India Company, which was agreed to.—The Noble Lord then moved a grant of 16,000l. for the support of the Royal Military College, at Sandyhurst.

Mr. Hume objected to paying for the education of young men, who could not afterwards enter the military service expence of the establishment for the last five years, had cost the country 115,0001.— of 400 cadets, who ought to have been admitted, only 164 had found admission, the sooner the institution was done away with the better; but at all events the number of cadets ought to be reduced. He moved a reduction of 7,0001.

Lord Palmerston said, that the fact was, out of the number of cadets who had passed their examination, only 14 were unprovided for. The expense differed very little from other institutions.

Colonel Davies said, that in nineteen cases out of twenty, the education given at those Colleges, was totally lost.

Sir L. Cole bore testimony to the more serious exertions of the present Governor, Sir George Murray.

Mr. Hume contended, that the keeping up of this immense establishment, was like drawing a cork with a ten horse power boys did not require such an establishment—a Governor or

Lieut.-Governor were altogether superfluous.

Lord J. Russell objected to the practice of bringing up young men exclusively for the Army. He really could see no use for four professors of the French language at the College—the did not see the urgent necessity for a British officer knowing that language.

Lord Palmerston could not agree with the Noble Lord in ishing to see the Army in a state of Constitutional ignorance. Mr. Bennett, Mr. Bright, and Mr. Williams, supported the aniendment.

Colonel Wood quoted the opinion of a distinguished Commander, as to the necessity of a good classical education in a military man—the late General Wolfe writing on the subject to a friend, whose brother was about to enter the Army, suid, "Your brother no doubt is master of Latin and the French language, and also understands fortification, and the attack and defence of fortified places." The House would recollect, that it was between the ages of 14 and 18 that these things were to the was between the ages of 14 and 18 that these things were to be acquired, if at all. The General concluded his letter in these words: "In these days of scarcity and unlucky times, it would be well for young men of fortune to follow your bro-ther's footsteps, and to qualify them for the important situation of a military command; if this be not done, we must sink under the superior education of our restless neighbours." This was the opinion of a man well able to judge, and given without was the opinion of a man went note to judge, and given without prejudice in favour of any future views of the Government.

Sir H. Hardinge said, that the system pursued at the Military College, at Sandyhurst, was superior to that of any other institution in Europe. This was so well known in foreign countries that the Europe. tries, that the French Minister at War had actually established a College in Paris on the same plan, having sent to this country for the late Professor of Fortification, at Sandyhurst, to go over and superintend it.—The House divided—For the original resolution, 32-For the amendment, 23-Majority, 9.

The following sums were then voted:

For the pay of General Officers not being Colonels of Regi-nents 172,8501.—General Officers on the Irish Establishment 30,0001.—The Irish Staff 1,2531. 9s. 2d.

On the question that the sum of 28,2041. be granted for the Governors of Garrisons on Foreign Stations,

Mr. Hume wished to know whether any reduction was to take place in Foreign Garrisons; Gibraltar, he considered a sinecure, and desired to know what services Lord Chatham had rendered the country to entitle him to take a sinecure place with a large salary annexed to it.

The Marquis of Londonderry said, it was not the intention of His Majesty's Government to make any reduction in that part of the military establishment, which related to foreign garrisons. His Majesty's Government tooked upon the government of these garrisons as rewards due to meritorious officers. With respect to the observations of the Hon. Member on the name of Chatham, he thought that name was entitled to a little more respect—the Earl of Chatham he could assure the House, did not take the situation as a sinecure; but with the full intention of doing his duty, by discharging the duties of it in the most effective manner, and he was now on his way to Gibraltar—the Hon. Member had not taken any exceptions to the appointment while the Duke of Kent held it, and he received 6,500l. a-year—the salary of the Earl of Chatham is only 4,4001.

Mr. Hume denied that he meant any thing invidious in what he had said on the subject of the Rarl of Chatham's appointment—the Duke of Kent had received the government of Gibrattar from his father, as a reward for ten years foreign service as a soldier with his regiment. General O'Hara, his predecessor received 9,000l. a-year, and if the Duke received a less sum Government had defrauded him.

The Marquis of Londonderry appealed to the House, whether any word be had said, could be construed into a complaint against the Duke of Kent.

Colonel Davies remarked on the baste with which the appointment had been filled up Kent - he was sorry that the Earl of Chatham was on his way to Gibraltar to cut out work for himself.

Mr. Hume moved an amendment, that the sum of 2,4491. be deducted from the grant.

Lord A. Hamilton regretted that Ministers held out no relief, or that the government of Gibraltar was not to be held in

Mr. Bennett complained of the establishments kept up at Inverness, Hull and Stirling.

Lord J. Russell wished to know, if Lord Chatham was permanently to reside at Gibraltar, and whether it was intended to abolish the office of Lieut.-Governor.

The Marquis of Londonderry said, when the appointment was made out, it was with the understanding that the office was not to be a sinecure, and that Lord Chatham would pro ceed to Gibraltar to perform the duties of the situation.—The House divided—For the resolution, 87—For the amendment, 27—Majority, 80.

The following grants were then moved:

For Garrisons in Ireland 20,2281.—Retired Officers on full

Mr. Hume complained of the practice of admitting retired officers into the Veteran Corps, and moved a reduction on the grant of 18;8701. The amendment was negatived, and the original proposition was carried.

The next grants moved were:

For Irish retired Officers 14,7421.—Hulf-pay of Foreign Officers, 121,2751.

On the second of these grants, Mr. Hume complained of the advantages which the Foreign Officer received in our establishments in preference to the British. He moved a reduction of

Mr. Bennett moved to reduce it 2,000l. only—For Mr. B.'s amendment, 35—For the original motion, 89—Majority, 54.

The grant as originally proposed was then carried.

A sum of 47,096i. was granted for defraying the medical expences of Chelsea Hospital.

Colonel Davies could not see what duties there were for six medical officers in the Hospital—one Surgeon and an Assistant-Surgeon was all that the service required. The resolution was agreed to. e sum of 94,000l. was voted for the out pensioners of Chelsen Hospital, and 15,2321. to defray the out pensions of Kilmainham Hospital.

It was then proposed to vote 32,1261, to defray the expense of the Royal Military Asylum.

Mr. Hume asked, if it was the intention of Government to keep up the establishment, which could not then be supplied with the objects for which it was intended; namely, the children of parents who lost their lives in the service of their country

Lord Palmerston said, it was not desirable to increase the Army in time of peace, nor to increase the number of children in the Asylum—to reduce it only orphans had been received.

The resolution was agreed to.

The sum of 31,510l. was voted for persons superannuated in civil offices.

This resolution was ultimately withdrawn on account of the lateness of the hour, and the Committee reported progress .- Adj. TUESDAY.

Sir J. Graham presented a petition from the inhabitants of Mary-le-bone, complaining of the nuisances arising from the hawking of articles for sale, the blowing of horns, &c.

Mr. S. Rice presented a petition from the Chamber of Com-merce, in Limerick, respecting the right of certain persons to vote for Members in Parliament for that city.—Ordered to be taken into consideration on the 15th of May.

The Order of the Day for receiving the Report of the Committee of Supply was read. On moving the first Resolution, Mr. G. Bennett expressed the determination of himself and his Hon. Friends to discontinue the discussion on the Army Estimates; but after the whole of the Ordnance Estimates should be gone through, he, or some one else, would then move a series of Resolutions, on the whole amount and expenditure of our Army Establishment. The Chancellor of the Exchequer observed, that His Majesty's Ministers merely proposed the Estimates, and the House either adopted or rejected them, therefore, the Army Establishment was voted by the House, and thus shewed the confidence of Parliament in the Government.

Col. Davies was convinced, that the same majority would have voted 1,0001. for every 1001. if Ministers had desired it.

Mr. R. Martin rose to order. He considered the Hon. Member highly indecorous and disorderly, when he charged the majority of that House with such criminality and profligacy, as to vote 1000i. instead of 100i. if desired. He was sure the Hon. Member would not prefer a charge in that House, which he would not maintain outside the Bar; at least, he would not use such language to him.

The Speaker could not see the Hon. Member had been at all out of order. Col. Davies was sorry the Hon. Member had misunderstood him; but he begged leave to say, that whatever fell from him in that House, he would support elsewhere. The Resolution was agreed to. On the Resolution respecting the pay of General Officers being read

Sir R. Fergusson complained of the hardships which many Major-Generals suffered, who received only the pay of their regimental Commissions. He alluded to one case in particular, of a Major-General, who had served 41 years, and broken up his constitution, in a foreign climate, and only receives, at present, the pay of Major.

The Marquis of Londonderry, in the absence of the Noble Lord (Palmerston) could say nothing on this point; but he had no doubt, the case mentioned by the gallant officer, would receive attention.—The Resolutions were agreed to.

On reading the Resolutions for the half-pay,

Col. Davies offered some observations. The number of officers on half-pay, was 8616, and the expence was 765,7811.

From the 1st of Jan. 1816, to the 1st of July, 1820, the total rom the ist of Jan. 1810, to the ist of Jury, 1820, the total number of new appointments, was 1105; out of which, 54 only were made from the half-pay list; all the rest being filled up by favour. A great saving might be made to the public, if only one half of the Commissions which had been filled up had only one nail of the Commissions which had been false up had been taken from the half-pay. The total of the Estimate was 206,3531. He, therefore, would give notice of his intention to move for an Address to His Majesty, similar to the one passed in 1740, nem. con.—"That he would be pleased to employ any such persons who might remain on half-pay, who were competent to serve in the army."

Lord Pulmerston could assure the Hon. Member that it was the auxious wish of the Commander-in-Chief to satisfy the claims and wishes of the half-pay officers of the army, as far as could be consistently done with justice to the other classes of the nation. The number of first commissions granted from January 1816 to January 1821 was 1105, of which 508 were without purchase; 114 were cadets from the Military College, and 80 half-pay officers, leaving 314 appointed, as it was termed, by favour: the average was 62 commissions to persons not before in the army, and 38 to cadets and half pay officers. was of opinion the plan of filling up vacancies, other than from the half pay, would have a most pernicious tendency.

Mr. Hume moved an amendment to the resolution to the following effect:— That from the 25th January, 1816, to the same date 1821, there were 1105 commissions filled up by the Commander-in-Chief, in the cavalry and infantry of the line, in favour of persons never before in the army, 597 of that number with purchase, and 508 without; that there were a great number of cornets and ensigns on half-pay who might have filled up the appointments, and created a saving thereby of 29,6001. a year, or a total at 12 years purchase of 348,0001.

Gen. Gascoyne thought the Hon. Gent. ought to take into consideration, that after so many long and bloody contests the country had been engaged in, there were many meritorious officers whose claims in behalf of their children were entitled to the attention of the Commander-in-Chief.

Sir H. Vivian called the attention of the House to the case of Major-Generals in consequence of existing regulations. He stated an instance in which the officer had expended 5000l. in the purchase of his commissions, and was now placed upon a re-tired allowance equivalent to the helf-pay of a Lieut.-Colonel, and not equal to a life annuity, which his money would have Sir H. Hardings supported the suggestions of the Hon. Officer (Sir H. Vivian), and hoped the case of Major-Generals would be taken into consideration.

The resolutions were then agreed to. It was agreed that the Ordnance Estimates should be taken on Monday.

The Scotch Court of Admiralty Bill was passed.—Adjourned.

WEDNESDAY.

Mr. Byng presented petitions from the parish of St. James's and the Vestrymen of St. Martin's, against the practice of bawking goods for sale in the streets.

Lord A. Hamilton presented a petition from a person named Turner, residing in Glasgow, complaining of an outrage sanctioned by the Lord Advocate of Scotland. The House of the petitioner was entered, on the night of the 9th of April last at eleven o'clock, by an armed force in search of arms, as he supposed, but, as they said, under a warrant issued by the Lord Advocate, charging him with high treason. He was hurried off to prison, and placed under a military guard, and kept in soli-tary confinement for 15 days, and at length was allowed to go at liberty on bail, and no charge had been since made against him.

The Lord Advocate said the warrant was issued on grounds which it would be imprudent to state to the House; perhaps they might not be grounded in truth; and if so, why did not the petitioner complain in a Court of Law. As to being kept in solitary confinement, he could only say that the Glasgow Bridewell was a very comfortable prison. Glasgow was in a state of open insurrection, in consequence of a placard being stuck up, calling upon the people to form a provisional government, and it was in consequence of the state of Glasgow that it was found necessary to arrest this individual.

Mr. Maxwell supported the prayer of the petition.
Mr. Monteith described the state of insurrection and alarm in which Glasgow was placed. In consequence of the informa-tion which he had received, he sent to the Lord Advocate and his Colleagues.

After some observations from Mr. Hume, &c. the Petition was ordered to be printed,

A Petition was presented from John Wheeler, confined in Ilchester Gaol, (described by Mr. Bennett, who presented it, as a poor friendless boy thirteen years old) complaining of great

Mr. Alderman Wood stated, that from enquiry going on great abuses in this gool were proved to exist. Two pair of stocks were kept at work in the prison, and that women were sometimes placed in them.—The Petition was laid on the table.

Mr. Serjeant Onslow, in the absence of Mr. H. Sumner, gave notice that the Hon. Member would, on the 22d inst. move for the appointment of a Committee to enquire into the state of

On the motion for going into a Committee of Supply,

Col. Davies moved an address to the King, to employ in his army such officers, now on half-pay, who were qualified to serve His Majesty. The motion was a verbatim copy of one submitted and agreed to by the House, in 1740. He would suggest that half of the commissions which might fall vacant should be filled up with the names of officers who were at present on the half-pay list.

Lord Palmerston objected to the motion as being unrained for by the course adopted of late years, and, by implication, conveying an unmerited censure upon the Commander-in-Chief. He could assure the House that his Royal Highness was disposed to place as many of the officers, now on the half-pay list, on full pay, as could be done consistently with other claims, which ought not to be overlooked. Between 1811 and 1816 there had been placed on half-pay 2,712; between 1816 and 1821 there had been added to the list, by exchange, 1,762, making a total of 4,474. From 1816 to 1821 there had been brought from the half-pay list to full pay at the rate of about 400 a-year, so that, in the course of nine years, 3,600, remaining on the half-pay list, would be placed on the full pay.

Major-Gen. Wilson contended, that the resolution did not intend to convey any censure on the Commander-in-Chief. Capt. O'Grady thought that the situations of barrack-masters and militin officers should be given to half-pay officers. Mr. Hume and Mr. Hutchinson supported the motion The House divided. For the Motion, 14-Against it, 45

Upon the motion for going into a Committee of Supply,

Mr. Hame moved, as an amendment, a resolution to this effect,—that as there were individuals in perfect health, and in the performance of the duties of other lucrative situations, who received allowances from the superannuated and retired lists, it was necessary to refer the Estimates under those heads to a Committee to make enquiry thereon.

Lord Palmerston defended the allowances to superannuated and retired officers, and so id that they were the well-earned reward of long and meritorious services.

The House divided. For the Amendment, 22—Against it. 63-Majority, 41.

In a Committee, Mr. Bankes moved, that a sum not exceeding 8,4751. should be granted to the British Museum.—Agreed to.

Lord Palmerston moved a grant of 34,5201. for defraying the charge of superannuations and retired pensions in England. The resolution was agreed to, as was one for granting the sum of 8,6861, 6s. 4d. for the service of Ireland.

A sum of 35,000l, was moved to be granted for the payment of Exchequer fees. This sum, together with 269,500l. for the disembodied militia of England, and 25,300l. for that of Ireland were then proposed and agreed to, and the Report was brought up.

On the Second Reading of the Metropolis Police Bill, Mr. Bennett opposed it, as being brought forward without the sanction of the magistraey. The chief mischief, as the Bill affected Police officers, was this, the temptation was great, and the pay was small. The Hon. Gent. went over the defects in the Police Establishment, and stated the necessity of some revision. Mr. H. Clive did not see the necessity of sending the Bill to a Committee,

After some further conversation between Mr. Denman, Mr. Bathurst, and Mr. Alderman Wood, the Bill was read a second time, and committed for that day fortnight.

The Irish Court of Chancery Bill was passed.—Adj. till Friday.

FRIDAY.

A new Writ was ordered for Andover, in the room of T. A.

Smith, Esq. vacated.

A variety of Petitions, from divers places, praying for a revision of the Criminal Code, against hawking goods for sale in the streets, &c. were presented.

A Petition was presented from an Officer (not named) complaining of being appointed to a situation in Greenwich Hospital, which precluded him from pensions to the amount of 7001. a year, which his severe wounds entitled him to. The emoluments of his present birth being only 2201.

Mr. Croker said, as a matter of favour this Officer was anpointed to Greenwich Hospital before he was entitled to a pension.— The Petition was laid on the table.

A Petition was presented from the Chamber of Commerce and Manufactures in Manchester, against the encreased duties on East India Sugars.—After some conversation between Mr. Vansittart, Lord Stanley, Mr. Ricardo, Mr. Barham, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Bernal, Mr. Gordon, Dr. Lushington, &c. the Petition was ordered to be printed.

On the motion of the Marquis of Londonderry, that the House do go into a Committee of Supply,

Mr. Hutchinson rose to submit a motion to the House on the state of Europe. He alluded to the situation of Italy and the continent generally, and contended, that it was the policy of this country to prevent the ambitious views of Russia and Austria from taking effect; that the peace of Europe, as well as the security of England, depended on such timely interferences to preserve civil liberty, which it was the object of the Allied Monarchs to destroy. He moved an amendment to that effect.

**Major-Gen. Wilson seconded the motion.**

The Magazine of Londonton considered the providered the provi

The Marquis of Londonderry considered the amendment quite foreign to the present question. The noble Marquis was not prepared to enter into a discussion on the state of Europe when the question was a Supply of Navy Estimates. No circumstances had occurred to call on this country for its interference; at present, our soundest policy and our best interests were consulted by not meddling in the proceedings on the continent. Gentlemen on the other side of the House should not be so ready to give their advice. The Hon. Gent. had offered many salutary instructions which were quite thrown away upon Ministers. He must excuse him if he did not call mon the House to your proper for interfering with Roysign call upon the House to vote money for interfering with Foreign With respect to the Russian army, he begged to be understood not to say that it is not in motion, nor would be prophecy that it would not advance further. How it came to be out in motion he would state; the King of Sardinia had applied to Austria for assistance in putting down the insurrection of his subjects, and Austria applied to Russia for forces to support her against the attack threatened by the Piedmontese; consequence of this Russin ordered troops to march from the Turkish frontiers, and part of them, he believed, entered the Austrian dominions. It did not follow, once having marched, they must continue to march.

Maj.-Gen. Wilson supported the motion.
Col. Davies was happy to hear the Russian army had stopped

The amendment was negatived without a division on the question for the Speaker's leaving the Chair.
In answer to a question from Mr. C. Hutchinson,

The Marquis of Londonserry stated, without reserve, that the movements of the Russian troops had no reference whatever to Spain; the events in Piedmont were not of sufficient importance to call for the interference of Russin.

The question was again put for the Speaker's leaving the Chair, when

Mr. Hyme entered into a comparative statement of the Navy Estimates with these of 1792, which he wished to place on the journals. The number of mariners, he observed had been increased, and the wear and tear of the ships. This year it amounted to 6,352,7881. Though it was fair to admit that it was less this year by 390,0001. than the last. He then entered into his comparison of the charges with those of 1792, enumerating the various items, and moved an amendment to this effect, that in 1792, when there were 144 ships in commission, 257 in ordinary, and 16,000 seamen and marines, the expence was 58,7191.; that in 1813, when there were 606 ships in commission, 355 in ordinary, and 140,000 seamen and marines, mission, 355 in ordinary, and 140,000 seamen and marines, the expences were 169,2371.; and in 1821, when only 119 ships were in commission, 582 in ordinary, and 22,000 seamen and marines, the expences were 185,0501., being only a reduction in expence of 4,1771. (In the sixth year of peace) from that of 1813: that the expence of the dock-yards in 1792 was 25,3521.; in the year 1813 it amounted to 212,1431., and in 1821 the estimate was 210,4751., being only 1,3981. less than 1813: the estimate for 1821 is 53,9511., being 1,5911. more than in 1813; that the ordinaries in 1821 is 726,6721. more than in 1813, and the total supply is 4,407,3041. more in 1821 than in 1792. then in 1792.

Sir George Warrender would be happy in the Committee to correct some of the errors into which he had fallen,—the Resolution of Mr. Hume was negatived without a division.

In a Committee of Supply,
Sir G. Warrender then brought forward the Navy Estimates. in doing which be referred to several reductions which had taken place in the different yards, by discontinuing one fifth of the men employed in the Dock-yards, and further reductions were in course. The Hon. Bart, then proceeded to detail the different items in the estimates, and stated, that the increase of 11,000l, in the salaries and contingencies of the Admiralty Office, was occasioned partly by the reward given to the crew of the Heela and Griper. With respect to grants he should ask for 32,000l. to Greenwich Hospital, 8,000l. for the Naval Asylum; last year he had taken 14,000l. for the latter esta-blishment, but now several offices would be reduced. The Hon. Bart, then moved, that a sum not exceeding 2,484,5991. 11s. 5d. be granted for defraying the amount of the Navy and Victualling Ordinary Estimates for 1821.

Mr. Bernal objected to grant so large a sum in a single Resolution.

Sir G. Warrender said he followed the usual course. Mr. Bernal repeated his objection, as those with whom he ing to vote the sum in gross could not object after co to the items in detail. The motion was then withdrawn, and a sum of 70,5961.5s. 1d. was moved for salaries, allowances, and contingent expences in the Offices of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty.

Mr. Bernal moved a reduction in this grant of 35001. objecting to six Lords of the Admiralty, and contended that four were competent to fulfil the duties. He also objected to the continuance of the Vice Admiral of Scotland.

Sir G. Cockburn defended the grant, the public business could not be transacted without a full Board at the Admiralty. The Gallant Officer said, it was necessary there should be three civilians to compose the Board.

Sir J. Yorke thought the business could as well be transacted by reducing the number of Lords. The Hon, Member served, that though the great first-rate ships, the Britannia Caledonia, and Hibernia, were not absolutely water logged, they had six feet water in their hold, and it was necessary for the officers and crew to join to steer her—if he might call His Majesty's Ministers the Officers, and the Members of this House, the crew. With respect to the Admiralty Board, he could only say, that during the eight years he was at that Board, he had not been able to discover what these Civilian Lords did, they were dumbies. As to having Lawyers at the Board, there never was such an apple of discord thrown—the first Lord was a Lawyer, he was bred up in the calling of an advocate. His Hon. Friend (Mr. Croker) was bred a Lawyer, and talked on matters of law with sufficient flippancy—so there was a lawyer at the top and one at the bottom of the table. From the respect he bore to the persons composing the Board, he should be sorry to reduce their salaries; but he believed the efficiency of the Admiralty could not be diminished, if the number of Lords was reduced to five. His relation (Mr. C. Yorke) had given up 2,000l. a-year, but not a word was said on the matter.

Mr. F. Robinson and Mr. R. Ward defended the grant.

Mr. Creevey supported the amendment.

Mr. Hume alluded to the matine establishment, which was divided into four divisions—Woolwich, Chatham, Portsmouth, and Plymouth. There was a paymaster to each division, so that the expence altogether was 5,0001. for paying 8,000 men. He objected to the appointment of private secretary to the First Lord, and to the paymestership of widows' pensions.

Mr. Croker stated his own firm opinion that the present constitution of that board was not only highly useful to the service, but almost indispensable. He must say, that if there was an individual in that House who would readily spurn at office, it was his Hon. and gallant friend, who had frequently voted with those who thought that the present number of the Lords of the Admiralty ought not to be diminished, and be (Mr. C.) always thought that vote was dictated by an unbiassed judgment. Upon the subject of the marines he would not say much, because the marines had been already voted, and secondly, because a more appropriate occasion would offer. But as to the commissions of General, Lieut.-General, and Major-General of marines, with the four Colonels of the corps, there was no instance of the grant of any of these appointments having been made on any other ground than real service, neither favour, influence, patronage, nor connexion influenced the appointment. Lords St. Vincent and Nelson, Admirals Kentes, Bickerton, Duckworth, Saumarez, and others, were among those who had achieved the most services, encountered the most danger, and suffered the most trials, and of course were entitled danger, and suffered the most triais, and of course were entitied to the rewards of their distinguished services. As to the Private Secretary, it had been usual for the First Lord to appoint his Private Secretary to the first vacant Commissionership of the Navy or Victualling, as in the case of Mr. Hay, who had only 3001, a year. The Hon. Gent, was mistaken as to the duties and labour of the office of Payin ster of Marines; the demand for the Commissionership of the office of Payin ster of Marines. for that Officer's attendance was frequent, for he was not only Paymaster, Inspector of Marines, and Quarter Master and Barrack Master also, and he gave bail to the amount of 20,0001. He could say this from thirteen years' experience, and be thought the present constitution of the Board should not be altered As to the Law and Naval Lords, the Lay Lords, if a comparative value could be made, were the more efficient of the two. With respect to the appointments of the marine officers, those were made to gallant officers for moritorious

After some further discussion, a division took place. For the Original Resolution, 115—Against it, 77—Majority, 38.

A proposition was then mede for reducing the sum to 10091. instead of 30001.—For the original motion, 118—Against it, 55

Majority, 63.

The next Resolution proposed, was for a sum not exceeding 38,9241. 1s. 6d. for salaries and contingencies in the Navy Pay

Mr. Hume moved a reduction in this vote, to 28,9241.

Mr. Hame moved a reduction in this vote, to 28,8741.
The amendment was not pressed.
The next Resolutions were for a sum not exceeding 75,5291.
18s. 6d. for defraying the expences of the Navy Office for 1821;
45,4881. for the Victualling Office, and 28,7311. for Deptford Yard; 29,8021. for Woolwich Yard; 35,4381. for Chatham Yard; 24.0781. for Sheerness Yard; 49,1251. for Portsmouth Yard; 23,5281. for Plymouth Yard; 10,3251. for the Out-ports;
43,6261. for payments of Poreign Yards.—Agreed to.
A sum of 1,000,009 was granted to defray the interest of Exchequer Rills. -Agreed to.
Another Resolution was agreed to for 290,0991. being the lun-

Another Resolution was agreed to for 290,0991, being the hundredth part of 29,000,0901, standing in the names of the commissioners for paying off the national debt.—Adjourned.

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

ANECROTE OF THE KING .- We take great pleasure in recording the following instance of the kindness and condescension of his present Majesty. A poor woman, who had been patronized by the late Queen, and allowed to sell mats for the use of the establishments at Windsor and Frogmore, and was his write in the receipt of a small county from health. likewise in the receipt of a small amount bounty from her late Majesty, became in consequence of the demise of the Queen much distressed, her annual income ceasing. She was advised to petition the present King, and accordingly watched one day to petition the present King, and accordingly watched one day as the King was coming down the grand staircase, but the attendants desired her to remove. She exclaimed, "Pray, let me see the King!" His Majesty, hearing her voice, asked, "Who is that wants to see me?" Pressing forward with her petition, she presented it, with her mets hanging to her shoulders. His Majesty attended to it, ordered all her mats to be purchased, directed Sir B. Bloomfield to see that she was allowed to supply the household as usual. and that she should receive the same urrected SIT B. Bloomneid to see that she was allowed to supply the household as usual, and that she should receive the same allowance annually that his Royal Mother had granted her. On Thursday morning his Royal Highness the Duke of York, attended by a number of Field Officers, inspected the 2d and 3d Battalions of the 1st Regiment of Guards: the former took the Tilt-yard duty and the minor Guard; the latter the King's Guard, and formed the Guard of Honour at Buckingham-House. They were all dressed in their new clothing and white gaiters. The hand of the Regiment played several select pieces of music in honour of the day.

The Select Committee of the House of Commons charged to inquire into the existing regulations in the price of bread, do not recommend any alteration in the weight or denomination of loaves, for one year, at least. The Committee of the House of Commons sitting on the Vagrant Laws, have collected a mass of valuable and important grant naws, nave confected a mass or variance and important evidence, from magistrates and others conversant with the subject; the examination of Mr. Bodkin, of the Mendicity Office, occupied two days, and some practical measures are expected to result immediately from their labours.

Thursday, a Court of Directors was held at the Past India House, when Francis Warden, Req. was appointed a Proving sional Member of Council at Bombay.

NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

X. Y. Z. befores he writes poetry, should learn his A. B. C. B.'s suggestion about the Cleryymen who have grayed for the Queen shall be attended to; at a certain period the whole list shall be printed alphabetically, so as to be more convenient to Bishops, and others whom it may concern, for reference.

A "JOHN BULL MAN" shall have the names published which he requires; but would it not be more effective to print them whenever a general election appears more probable than at present? SLy's observations on a recent sudden death are much too serious for us to meddle with. We know nothing of the politics of the place alluded to, but we will keep a scrutinizing eye upon the other party, and should the event justify the reports, we promise SLV not to be lax in our exertion in cause of morality. Wa are obliged to T.S.C.

Observer shall be attended to; he must be aware that his communication is of the longest for a paper like ours.

Owing to the lengthemed account of the Royal festivities on Thursday, and the Dobate of Friday, our promised Song, and several other original communications, are unacoidably

CRITO is very funny, but his communication is better suited to his own class, than to our Paper.

G. H. is informed that the person he alludes to, is not Just published, in 8vo. price 5s. 6d. stitched,

PORMS. By Mrs. C ORN W E L L B A R ON W I L S ON.

London: Printed for W. Wright, 46, Fleet-street.

Also, a Third Edition, price 8s. extra boards, of ASTARTE, a Sicilian Tale, with other Peems. By the same Author.

"Mrs. Willon's first and earliest Poem of "Astarte." is evidently the production of a young and vivid fancy; but is distinguished for delicacy of sentiment, and tenderness of description, to which, after all, none but a female can give adequate expression. Of the more recent publication of Misocilanies, we can speak in terms of the warmest approval. He must indeed, be 'Surdior I caro,' and blind to the fascinations of Poesy, who can fail to perceive the tenderness and delicacy of the Ode to the 'Evening Hour."—Vide Geld's London Magazine, May, 1821.

"A new volume of her elegant and interesting poetry, has been some time before the public. The editor, conscious of the merits of her volume, regrets, that a critique on her poetry, which he is convinced will be very different from the public impression respecting her talents; and is certainly quite opposite to his own. As to the hint of her name being assumed, the editor is equally conscious of its injustice."

Vide New Monthly Magazina, May, 1821,
For a high character of these works, vide, also the Literary Gasette,
No. 215—British Stage—La Belle Ausenblee—and other periodicals, for Apill, 1821, and the present month.

No. 215—British Stage—La Belle A for April, 1821, and the present month.

PRICE OF STOCKS AT THE CLOSE YESTERDAY. PRICE OF STOCKS AT THE CLOSE YESTERDAY. A considerable portion of business has been transacted in the Funds during the past week, but especially in money Stock, for which there has been much demand. Rumours have been afloat during the week, that the two great powers, Austria and Russia, have determined to commence military operations against Spaia, with a view to restore the former order of things. This rumour does not appear to receive credit from those who are peculiarly interested, the fundholders, as large bargains have been taken in the course of the week: some, however, attribute this to the abundance of money in the market. Consols opened on Menday merning at 72½ to § for money, and 72½ of the account. Tuesday was a holiday; but on Wednesday a rise took place, and they have since reached 72½ for meney, and 73½ for the account, making a rise of nearly one per cent, during the week. They opened on Friday meetings at 72½ to 75 for the account, and left off at 73 for money, and 73½ for the account, buyers. It has been reported, that in consequence of the Bank being about to pay in specie, that there would be a great carriety of money in the City for some time; but the contrary is new asserted.

THEATRE ROYAL, COVENT-GARDEN.

nday, by command of Ris Majesty, She Stoops to Conquer.—

ay. Don John; Second Violetta, Miss Stephens.—In the course of Tuesday. Don John; & the week, the Tempest.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.
Monday, the Duenna,—Tuesday, the Kind Impostor.

A Monday's Edition, containing the latest News, the Stock List, the London Markets, and the State of the Country Markets by that morning's post, is published at Three o'clock.

Substribers are informed that a few sets may be had from No. 13 upwards, and that all the earlier numbers are again

Lately published, in 2 vols. royal 4te, embellished with Portraits and other Engravings by the first Artists, price 51. 15s. 6d. boards, MEMOIRS of JOHN EVELYN, Esq. the celebrated Author of Sylva, &c. written by himself; printed from the Original MS. in the Library at Weston.—Edited by WM. BRAY, Esq. Fellow and Treasurer of the Society of Antiquaries, &c.

"All persons may find in his character something for imitation, but for an English gentleman be is the perfect model."—Quarterly Review. Printed for Henry Colburn, Conduit-street.

Lately multished in 2 vols 800 with coloured plates price 26s a Third.

Frintes for rienry Colourn, Consultentrees.

Lately published, in 2 vols. 8vo. with coloured plates, price 28s. a Third Edition of

Edition of TRIPOLY, written during a Ten Years' Residence in that Country. Published from the Originals, in the possession of the Family of the late RICHARD TULLY, Esq. the British Consul.

"This work boasts an interest peculiarly its own; the finished picture that is given of the Moors, Turks, and Arabs, reminds us of the most splendid fettions of the Arabian Nights, and gives to us, arrayed in all the reality of truth, those delightful somes, and that glowing imagery, which we had never been accustomed to consider otherwise than as the workings of a brilliant imagination."

Printed for Henry Colburt and Co. Conduit-street.

Just published, No. 1, price 84 or stamped and sent to Country End.

Just published, No. 1, price Bd.; or stamped, and sent to Country Subscribers, free of postage, price 1s. to be continued every Saturday, of THE JOURNAL OF LITERATURE,—sontaining Reviews of the Dogs of Ventos, Hashitt's Table Talk, Lord Byrea, Pope and Bowies, the Litian Bride; Theatres; Fine Arts; Miscellanies, &c. &c. &c.
Published at the Omes of "JOHN BULL," No. 11, Johnson's-court, Fleet-street, to which Place all Communications are to be addressed to the Editor.

JOHN BULL.

The Paris Papers of Tuesday and Wednesday have arrived, but their contents are not very important. It is stated, under the head Paris, May 2, that the Chevalier Bardaxi d'Azara, Spanish Minister Plenipotentiary in France, set out on Monday morning for Madrid, where he is appointed Minister for Foreign Affairs.

Private letters from Trieste state, that the Austrian and Neapolitan squadrons were assembled in the Port of Lusia, in Dalmatia, and that they were to convey to Tarentum a Russian column destined to occupy Apulia and Calabria. It is hoped that the presence of the Russians and Austrians in Italy will give to the oppressed majority in Spain sufficient energy to render all foreign intervention superfluous.—(Gazette de France.)

The Journal de Thoulouse has a report of a new Congrees of the great Powers of Europe, to be held at Blois.

In an article dated Naples, April 14; it is stated, that a Royal Decree has been published, establishing four Juntas of Censure, for the purpose of examining the conduct of the Ecclesiastics, secular and regular, and of the Pensionaries and Public Functionaries, whatever may be their rank or employ, to authorise the printing of works, to examine the conduct of persons publishing works, and that of the instructors of youth, and the maxims taught in schools.

The private advices from the North and South of Spain state, that discontent prevails in almost every province in Spain, yet it does not appear that in Biscay, or in any other northern situation, that the maleontents have assembled to the extent alleged. From Barcelona we learn, that there is yet more irritation than in Biscay; but the late arrests of obnoxious individuals have been attended with the beneficial result of intimidating those from committing any fresh acts of violence, who would otherwise have been inclined, from no motive but views of selfinterest, to create disorder.

Letters from Corunna are to the 15th ult. They give no account of any tumult or insurrection in that quarter, and as the mail which conveyed these letters passed through Burgos (which is in the centre of the disturbances mentioned in the French Journals) without interruption, it may be concluded that at least there was no serious interruption to public tranquillity at that moment. The letters by the mail from this country and France, to the North of Spain, have been, however, intercepted, and every one of them burnt, both French and English. The greatest agitation prevails at Corunna, lest the Russians should invade their

In the House of Peers, the Bank Cash Payments Bill was read a third time and passed. The Bill is to receive the Royal Assent by Commission on Monday, but at too late an hour to allow of its beginning to operate on that day, so that the Bank will not be able to resume Cash Payments till the morning of Tuesday next.

Neither SILLY BILLY nor the DUKE OF SUSSEX were at Court :- the last mentioned Duke has been somewhat indisposed ever since Saturday se'nnight, when he ate too much stewed carp in the King's Bench Prison, where he dined with Burdett, who is, as our readers know, in that gaol (by the verdict of a jury) for writing inflammatory and seditious libels against the King and Government.

It may not be unpleasant to our readers, to observe, that the Queen's last remaining acquaintance, the Countess GREY, was (with her three daughters) at THE KING'S Drawing-room!

The LADY HOLLAND, whose dress is mentioned in the list of those who were at Court, is not LORD HOL-LAND's wife. This the generality of our readers know; but, lest there should be any mistake, it is quite necessary to state the fact distinctly.

We once more loudly call upon the Magistrates to interfere with the present system of what are called cheap coffee-houses: nor will we rest till we find that our clamour has had its effect. It is not the lateness of the hours at which they are open we so much complain of, as of the propagation of sedition and blasphemy, which goes on within these sinks of vice. THE TIMES, THE BLACK DWANS, THE EXAMINER and THE NEWS, are the favourite Papers with the keepers and visitors of these dens; the most hardened miscreants of every description are among the latter, and the former are chiefly persons employed by the factionists to keep up a spirit of discontent, which, without such aid, would die away entirely. Surely, these pests would come within the grasp of the Loyal Association, to which too much praise cannot be given, for the exertions they have already made in the cause of good order and morality.

LADY JERSEY.

We have received a great many communications about Lady Jersey, with some of which, we shall, from time to time, amuse our readers. One or two we shall venture for this week's espouse.

But let us begin by an explanation, necessary to our feelings, and the cause which we support.

Every one must have seen that we had a kindness for Lady Jersey-that we have spared her; and we should have continued to do so, if she would have allowed us. But this foolish woman (and a person of " forty er so" cannot plead youth or inexperience) has made herself so notorious, and offensively indecent, by taking up-when every body else had dropped her-the paramour of Bergami, that she forces herself upon our notice: and, with the blessing of Heaven, she shall have enough of it. FERGUSSON, TAYLOR and Co. will call us infamous—BROUGHAM will rave about our invading female character; -we shall be threatened with tions, which we despise; and accused of a was manly feeling, which (from other tongues) we should it gret. But, it is all in vain: we are before the public; and the public knows that WE have never dragged a woman forward-WE have never broken in upon domestic privacy; no temptation of fun-no bitterness of party-nay, not even the interests of morality and decency have induced us to allude to, much less to mention, any lady who has not, by herself, or her relations, been brought before the public, as a companion, or witness, for the modern Messalina.

To this assertion there is one exception, which we beg to acknowledge, and even apologize for. We hitched into rhyme, in No. 19, the name of Lady Sefton. We did so to her praise, and we meant it to her honour; but on consideration, we perceive that an English Lady's glory and happiness consist in not being mentioned at all-" ni en bien, ni en mal"-beyond the sphere of her domestie duties; and, as no Lady has less obtruded herself on the public than LADY SEFTON, we apologize to her for having, even with laudatory intentions, alluded to her. Our fault, such as it is, was occasioned by some "loose talk" of LADY JERSEY'S; but, in future, we shall know better how to appreciate LADY JERSBY's " loose talk."

Now for her Ladyship herself.

The EARL GREY, ashamed and afraid to buy JOHN BULL, yet unable to resist his curiosity, sends, every Sunday, as soon as Lady Grey is gone to church, to borrow it from a friend, who is obscure enough, or candid enough, to confess that he takes it in. As neither this friend, however, nor his Lady have invited CAROLINA-Co-LUMBINA, we, upon our own principle, shall not mention their names. Their stolen embraces, however, (this Crim, Con. of LORD GREY's with JOHN BULL) having by accident reached LADY JERSEY, who is a real busy-body thankless, she insisted on knowing who it was that lent LORD GREY that INFAMOUS PAPER!

When the delinquent was discovered, LADY JERSEY, in her own imperial style, formally declared war on the offenders. Many notes, and much correspondence has already taken place, and more may be expected. In the meanwhile, her Autocratic Majesty, LADY JERSEY, has published a strong manifesto, that she will not ask to her assemblies, any one who subscribes to JOHN BULL; and she advertised two parties last week, in order to accomplish her threat: but, oh! the short-sightedness of an angry Lady; -he who writes this was at one of them, and thinks, if there had been a second, he should have been there too; for being a little hard of hearing, he is become a great favourite with her Ladyship, and is honeured with. a share of her conversation, which, but for his infermity, would doubtless be very agreeable.

In addition to this, we have a much more important article of intelligence to lay before our readers.

We little thought that any thing relating to Lady Jersey could ever become a subject of public interest; but after the part she has chosen to take in behalf of the Queenafter the public protection she has vouchsafed to give that disconsolate Princess—after the pledge and promise of countenance and support, with which she has endeavoured to uphold her, the public will learn, with no littlesurprize, that-

LADY JERSEY IS GOING ABROAD IMMEDIATELY.

If we were vain, we might, perhaps, pretend to some little share in this determination; and we think it highly probable, and quite natural, that the embarrassments into which LADY JERSEY's visit to the Queen has thrown her, the disgust which the public has so unequivocally exhibited, and the coolness with which she has been received in private society, all have contributed to drive Lady Jersey from a scene, of which she once was the ornament and the life.

Where she intends to take up her abode, we have not yet heard. The Queen would doubtless be happy to find so respectable a tenant for her villa, at Como; but LORD JERSEY has shewn so decided an aversion from all that connexion, that we apprehend her Ladyship cannot hope to be allowed to walk in her Majesty's footsteps, Upon one point, LORD JERSEY is, we understand, immoveably fixed. He has positively declared, that no power on earth shall induce him to suffer her Ladyship to hire BERGAMI as a courier.

THE LORD PRESIDENT AND MR. HENRY BENNETT.

We have been requested to re-publish the following paragraph, which was inserted in the Courier of last night:-

"The following reply, made by Mr. Bennett, in the House of Commons last night, was not distinctly heard in the gallery, and in consequence is very imperfectly reported in the Morning Papers. It was given by the Hon. Member on the observation of Mr. Mackenzie, that the public press, in reporting the discussion of the Army Estimates, which took place on a former evening, had erroneously attributed to Mr. Bennett, a serious reflection upon the conduct of the Lord President of the Court of Session: Mr. Beisconduct of the Lord Pressent of the Court of Session: Mr. Ben-nett expressed himself much obliged to the Honourable Member, in affording him an opportunity of refuting what he had been misrepresented, in the Newspapers, to have said in the debate to which the Honourable Member alluded. Mr. Bennett denied that be had, on that occasion, cast any reflection on the conduct of the Lord President of the Court of Session in Scotland, or of denited with bles, in the matter, that was under disoccasioned any unpleasant feeling to the Lord President and his riends. Had any thing appeared to him in the conduct of the Learned Judge which called for ceasure, he would have brought it forward by the fair and manly course of making a regular mo-

Now, the truth of this is, that the Lord President has a son, a gentleman of high honour and courage, who no sooner heard of Mr. HENRY GREY BENNETT'S speech, in which he reflected upon his father, than he put himself into the Edinburgh mail, and started forthwith for London; where having arrived, he sent Mr. HENRY GREY BENNETT a message. Mr. HENRY GREY BENNETT referred Mr. MACKBNZIE to that general vouchee for the whole party, SIR RONALD FERGUSSON, and the result of the communication was (as usual)-an apology; which was made, according to agreement, on Friday night, in the House of Commons, by Mr. HENRY GREY BENNETT, but in so low a tone of voice, that had it not been for the kindness of the Courier, it might not have been so generally understood and perfectly appreciated as we trust it is at present.

PRINCE LEOPOLD.

TO JOHN BULL.

SIR.—I should be the most ungrateful man alive, if I did not hasten to return you my best thanks for an invitation to dinner, which I have just received from his Royal Highness Prince Leopold. I have known the Prince these eight years; I became acquainted with him when he was but a Captain in the Austrian service, and enjoyed, besides his family fortune, which could not, I should think, be much less than from 130L to 140l. per annum, the pay of that rank, which with bat and forage and lodging-money, might have produced him about as much more.

I then thought him a good sort of young fellow, and as far as "bouteille de bierre" in the Champs Elysée, or a " bavaroise" on the Boulevards, I found him hospitable enough, and I paid little attention to the jokes about second-hand lores," and "half-priced enpide," with which it is too much the fashion to ridicule young men who endeavour to mix economy with pleasure.

Since the Prince came to England, I have written my name at his door as often as it was decent, and in the street he has honoured my salute with a return, which I fancied had something of old recollection in it; but be-yand this we never got. Judge, then, of my surprise, at receiving a card, not only for an evening assembly, but for a dinner, "Sir Robert Gardiner is commanded, &c. &c." I was thankful for his remembrance, but I was soon undeceived; for, next morning, while breakfasting at the United Service Club, I heard one man say to another, "What hospitable devil has seized Prince Leopold—he has asked me to dinner; me, who never new him; who don't know him; who never wrote my name at his door; and who could only have found me out in Boyle's COURT GUIDE;which, by the way, appears now to be a real Court Guide."

The friend-a hard-featured man, in a black stock, replied-"Ah, laddie-ye are na obleeged for your invitation, to remembrance or hospitality, or ony sic matter, but just to Maister JOHN BULL. As soon as Johnny began to blather about the saxty thoosand pound annual, his Highness remembrit that it was aye luked for that he should invite folk to what they ca' assemblies—meetings, where there is neither meat nor drink, and where a prudent mon entertains his friends at leetel cost, being nae mare than the wear o' the servant's leeveries, and the wastery of wax lights—forbye, he burns oil or gas, as less dispendious!— but, when Johnny strikit anither blow, of "puppets, nei but, when Johnny strikit anither blow, of "puppets, nei-ther for use nor for show," the dinner cards flew into the streets like a shower of snow, and fell upon every man who dinna chance to carry an umbrella. The upshot of it a' is, that ye have just two eards to write in answer: one to his Highness. to saw we'll supple carries in answer: one to his Highness, to say ye'll surely come, and another to Johnny Bull, to thank him for yer being asked."

Of this prudent counsel, though not intended for me, I have profitted; and, with due acknowledgments, am, Sir, your grateful servant,

AMICUS VERITATIS. your grateful servant,

THE QUEEN.

WE last week received, exclusively, and published originally, the disavowel of an Address, said to have been presented to the Queen, from the inhabitants of Hamstead Norris, which disavowal was signed and authenticated by the Churchwardens and Overseers of that parish.

We are now authorized by many of the most respectable inhabitants of Richmond, in Surrey, to contradict a statement which appeared in the Old Times one day last week, "That the Queen had passed through Richmond, and that the populace had taken the houses from her carriage, and drawn her through the town."—IT IS A PALSE-MOOD, WHOLLY GROUNDLESS.

One of our correspondents says-" Every inhabitant of this town can prove, that no such ridiculous exhibition took I, myself, saw the carriage, but no one here attended it; and not fifty people in the place knew she had passed at all, till they saw it mentioned in the Times; certainly, neither in the town nor environs of Richard did the populace commit themselves by such a contemptible act of extravagance."

Another (of the first rank in society) desires us to con-tradict the report so prejudicial to the inhabitants of Rich-mond; than which, "nothing was ever more scandalously false." A third concludes his letter thus—

"I beg to assure you, that the whole is an absolute falsehood: no such honour having been, and I trust, never will be paid to that shameless woman, by the loyal inhabitants of Richmond; and I trust you will, in your next number, contradict so vile a calumay against this truly loyal village; and several others write to the same effect.

It is highly gratifying to see the carnestness with which every body of decent feeling repels the instantation of favouring the Queen. As for the unfortunate person her-self, she must be fallen indeed, when her partisans have recourse to falsehoods so glaring, and so easily detected, as the account of this triumph, to keep her up.

Who fabricated this story, we leave Lord Hood, Sir William Austin, the Bag-man, and the Editor of the Times, to settle between them.

MARQUESS OF DROGHEDA.

This venerable Nobleman has at last paid the debt of nature. His Lordship was Marquess and Earl of Drogheda, Viscount Moore, Baron of Mellefont, in Ireland, and Baron Moore, of Moore Place, in England; a Knight of the Illustrious Order of Saint Patrick, Colonel of the 18th Huzzars, and the oldest General in His Majesty's service.

His Lordship was in the ninety-first year of his age, and succeeded his father, the late Earl, in the year 1758. He married, 1766, Ann. daughter of Francis, first Marquess of Hertford, whose sister was married to the Marquess of Londonderry, recently deceased.

His Lordship is succeeded in his titles by Charles, Viscount Moore, now Marquess of Drogheda, who was born August 23, 1770, and is, we believe, unmarried.

The late Marquess was so created, June 27, 1791, and received the honour of a British Peerage, by the title of Baron Moore, of Moore Place, January 13, 1801.

LIST OF CLERGYMEN WHO HAVE PRAYED FOR THE QUEEN.

REV. PATRICK CLASON, of Carmusinoch (we be-lieve) N. B.

REV. WARWELL FENN, Curate of Somersham This person left Catherine Hall, Cambridge, without

REV. RICHARD SLANEY, Vicar of Penkridge. REV. DR. BENGO COLLYER, Peckham, &c. &c. REV. MR. TODD, Perpetual Curate of St. Helen's, Auckland, in the county of Durham.

(To be continued.) THEATRES.

Marino Faliero has been repeated at Drury Lane without any increase either of favour or attraction. As we said last Sunday, the wretchedness of the acting would deter most people from going, and would certainly send away, thoroughly disgusted, the few who did visit

At Covent Garden, we rejoice to say, Miss Foote has resumed her station. Few things have given us more pleasure, upon every account, than the restoration of this young lady to a profession of which she is the sweetest ornament, and in the duties of which we hope long and frequently to see her engaged.

His Majesty will honour both theatres this week with his presence, in state. At Covent Garden the play of She Stoops to Conquer, and the farce of A Roland for an Oliver, are commanded; and at Drury Lane, The Heir at Law, and Modern Antiques.

The Haymarket is rapidly approaching completion, and promises to be at once elegant and commodious. It opens on the second of July. The principal performers engaged as yet are MR. TERRY and MRS. H. JOHNSTON, the rest are provincial candidates for fame; and considering it was on the boards of the OLD Haymarket theatre that the London public first saw Young, MATHEWS, and LISTON, we do not despair of finding some future favourites amongst the recruits drafted from the country into the new one.

The minor theatres are all, as usual, doing well, ASTLEY'S and SADLER'S WELLS bear away the meed; and we augur to the latter still more success when the aquatic piece, announced for representation, is actually produced.

TO JOHN BULL.

FRIEND BULL,—I was much amused in perusing the Letter of "AMICUS VERITATIS," in your Paper of the 29th, and give you equal credit for the insertion; but cannot resist at the same time from putting a few simple questions (broached as this subject is,) to you and your correspondent "AMICUS," upon the character and conduct of "this most amiable and deserving MAN."

I wish to ask Mr. Amieus Veritatis, in addition to your questions of last week, why His Royal Highness Prince

Leopold, feeling so very anxious to put in force an "wet of duty to the memory of his dear departed wife," should have delayed paying that DUTY to his mother-in-law, until he had completely ascertained that she was made the "brazen serpent" of a party, no less disposed to sap the very vitals of a Menarchical form of Government. a personally to outrage the Monarch himself? And why he did not feel these communications visitings of mature somewhat earlier? Why he did not choose to pay " his duty" to the mother of his deceased wife, during his visit upon the Continent; and why, when followed, I may say, hunted by her, in Germany, &c. he took every possible means to avoid any interview with that much respected personage 🤔

I beg leave to put another question to "AMICUS VERI-TATIS," relative to his beloved and amiable Prince

How comes it that His Royal Highness should have waited till the exament of the Queen's trial, to ask for a Perrage and a consequent Seat in the House of Lorde, and feel so mightily offended that it was refused him? Could he so soon forget that the self-same Monarch, who tend not only given him his daughter in marriage, but added a Regiment, the rank of Field Marshal, the Ribbon of the Garter, AND A JUINTUEE OF 50,0001. PER ANNUM, (not to mention a certain 5001. for clother and pocket-money on oal in England), had pro and felt hurt that it was refused at that time? Abuild he forget, I say, that the same Peerage he now demanded was solely for the purpose of using (on ABUSING it, I should say,) by a vote, in unison with his addle-headed cousin of Gloster in direct opposition to the good and honor of the country, and the personal "feelings of His Majesty!!!"

In truth, Master BULL, we live in a world replete with humbug, and if I were to say any thing of one man more than another, I should say that our hero is in truth the Prince of Humbugs, that he would have acted a double part on the late occasion had he found any other man to deal with, than kim, who is not only the most acute, but avowedly the most accomplished Sovereign in Europe. The motive of your correspondent " Amicus," I clearly comprehend; and aware, (as I am convinced he is,) that his cause is a bad one, I can excuse his writing with the assumed confidence he does. But truth will out; and I am only sorry, that a week has been required to bring it to light.—And I am, friend Bull, your constant P. S. More, Anon!

April 30, 1821.

TO JOHN BULL.

STR,—I have written to you twice before upon the subject of the proceedings before the Consistory Court, at York; and I find, on July 28, 1820, Mr. Vernon, the Archbishop's son, pronounced the judgment of the Court in this important case:—"The question for my decision is, upon the admissibility of articles, imputing to the Rev. Mr. Cotteril, the Minister of St. Paul's, Sheffield, irregularity, in introducing, and causing to be sung in his church, certain Hymns, and version of Psalms, not permitted by any lawful authority," &c.

Your respectable Correspondent, in last Sunday's JOHN BULL, observes, "The object of the suit in question having been," in reality, to know how the law of the land stood, on the subject of introducing Psalms and Hymns, other than those of the authorised Old and New Versions of the Psalms of David, "it is most extraordinary that the parties should at least rest satisfied without the knowledge which they sought."

It may be necessary to observe, that the congregation of St. Paul's Church, in Sheffield, had not, for many years, made use of the Old, or modern Versions; they had a valuable selection of modern Psalms and Hymns, which had gone through no less than three editions, which their new Minister wished to withdraw, in order to introduce a new one of his own selection, and this without the cona new one of all own selection, and this without the con-sent or approbation of many of his hearers; and when they were afterwards actually forced upon two other con-gregations; namely, St. James's and Attercliffe Chapel, the dissentients of these congregations who wished to retain their old selections, found they had no alternative, but either to try the question, or have these new Psalms forced upon them, nolens volens. But when Mr. Cotteril, at the Archbishop's suggestion, consented to withdraw, and actually did withdraw his Psalm Book, and his Grace the Archbishop kindly presented to the three congregations a new selection of his own, and at his own expence, the object of the suit was fully accomplished. The Buth Journal says, "His Grace most readily and promptly decided in favor of the defendant, and in confirmation of his opinion presented the congregation with a thousand copies of his selection;" had he decided in favor of the defendant, which is the confirmation to withdraw his lately defendant, why did he order him to withdraw his lately introduced and new selection?

While on this subject, I enclose you a copy of a Psalm sung at a Church, in Yorkshire, many years ago.—
If this does not help to shew the necessity of putting down village poetry—nothing will.

It was composed by a parish clerk, on occasion of the distemper among the horned cattle, in the summer of the year 1784. It was sung and chorussed by the whole congregation in the Church. The four first stanzas contained an account of the cattle that died, and the names of the farmers to whom they all belonged; the remaining were as follows:

> No Christian bull, nor cow, they say, But takes it out of hand; And we shall have no cows at all. I doubt, within this land.

The doctors, though they all have spoke Like learned gentlemen, And told us how the entrails look, Of cattle, dead and green.

Yet they do nothing do at all, With all their learning store So heaven drive out this plague away, And yex us not, no more.

This piece was so well received, that after the service, it was desired again by all the congregation, except five farmers, who wept, and declared that "the lines were too moving."

The Minister, in going out, said to the Clerk, "Why, John, what Psalm was that we had to-day-it was not one of David's ?" "No, no, Sir;" quoth John, (big with the honour he had acquired,) "David never made such a Psalm since he was born—this is one of my own."—I am, STERNHOLD. Sir, yours,

ORIGINAL POETRY.

IN AND OUT.

When CREEVEY was one of the Board of Controll, He was passive, and never addicted to growl: But now, in the House, Towny kicks up a storm, Cuts away at the Clerks, and insists on Reform: Only give Tommy CREEVEY his office again, And no more will you hear Tommy CRERVEY complain.

PASHIONABLES.

The Duke and Duchess of Clarence were received, on Twesday morning, on their way to and from St. George's Church, Rast, with loud and repeated acclamations. The crowd collected in Cannon and Church streets was so great that most of the shops were obliged to be closed.

On Wednesday morning, at a quarter past eleven, the King arrived at his Palace in Pall Mull, in his travelling carriage, from Brighton, escorted by a party of light borse.

THE KING.

LEVEE.— On Wednesday, the King held a Levee at Carlton Palace, which, owing to the fineness of the weather, attracted innumerable crowds of beauty and fashion in Pall-Mall, who, together with the splendid equipages of the nobility, had a mos brilliant appearance. About one o'clock the Life-guards took brilliant appearance. About one o'clock the Life-guards took their station in Waterloo-place, opposite the Palace, and the gaiety of the scene was greatly heightened by their numerous band, who kept playing martial airs the greater part of the afternoon. Sir Robert Baker, and other Magistrates, and the chief Officers of the Police, took their stations inside the Palace, to be ready in case any emergency required their assistance. Between one and two o'clock the company began to arrive a temporary them were the Dulyes of York Character. arrive; amongst them were the Dukes of York, Clarence, &c. the Russian, Austrian, Prussian, Spanish, Netherlands, Sardinian, Bavarian, Danish, Saxon, Portuguese, American, Sicilian, Wirtemberg, Baden, Hunoverlan, and Turkish Ambassadors; the Cabinet Ministers; the great Officers of State; the Archbishops of Canterbury and York; the Lord Chief Justice of the King's Beach; the Vice-Chancellor; Sir H. Davy, the President of the Royal Society; the Marquess of Loudonderry, and about eleven hundred personages of distinction. Among the presentations were, the Rev. Dr. Clarke, to present a book on the causes and decline of religion; Rev. Archdeacon Hook, Chaplain to His Majesty; and a vast number of military and naval officers. His Majesty gave audiences, after the Levee, to the Marquess of Londonderry, Lord Viscount Sidmouth, and the Duke of Newcastle; the noble Duke delivered to the King the red ribband and order of the Bath worn by the late Sir Charles Crawford.

Among the distinguished personages who attended the Levee were the Dukes of Wellington, Portland, Newcastle, Devonshire, and Beaufort; the Marquesses of Londonderry, Salisbury, Camden, Cholmondeley, Cornwallis, Hertford, Conyngham, &c.; Camlen, Cholmondeley, Cornwallis, Hertford, Conyagham, &c.; Barls of Chatham, Warwick, Bathurst, Liverpool, Westmoreland, Catheart, Harrowby, Lauderdale, &c.; Viscounts Melville, Sidmouth, Palmerston, Exmouth, &c.; Lords Bentinck,
J. Somerset, W. Lennex, E. Somerset, Keith, Melbourne, &c.;
Sirs G. F. Hill, C. Long, &c.; Messrs. W. W. Pole, C. B.
Bathurst, F. Roblisson, &c.; Generals Ker, Sir M. Nightingale,
Sir H. Fane, Lord Harris, Sir, J. C. Sherbrooke, Lord Howden,
Sir G. Staris, &c.; Advised Sir F. Lefteny, Sir G. Cockhure. Sir G. Stovin, &c.; Admirals Sir F. Laforey, Sir G. Cockburn, Sir E. Thornborough, Sir J. Saumarez, Sir R. Strachan, &c. Surgeon Slow, Royal Horse Guards, by Col. Sir R. Hill.

Surgeon Slow, Royal Horse Guards, by Col. Sir R. Hill.

The Drawing-Room.—A most splendid Drawing-room was held on Thursday at Buckingham-house: above 2,000 of the nobility and gentry were present. The ladies' dresses were superband rich in variety; jewels were wore in profusion.
The gentlemen's dresses were very splendid; all those who had honours conferred on them wore the collars of their orders, the elegance and magnificence of which contributed not a little to the splendour of the scene. The King arrived at Buckingham-house from Carlton-palace at a quarter past twelve. The necessary preparations having been completed, an extra guard of boxour nurched into the court-yard in front of the Palace. of honour marched into the court-yard in front of the Palace, and a detachment of the life-guards soon after arrived. The company began to arrive soon after twelve o'clock, and conti-nued to set down till near five; some were kept in the line of carriages between two and three hours. At half-past one o'clock the King proceeded to his closet, where the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, the Bishops of London, Liandeff, Chester, Exeter, Bristol, Gloucester, Worcester, and Chichester were assembled, when the Archbishop of Canterbury delivered an oration of congratulation on the occasion of the day. The King soon after proceeded to the state apartments, attended by Lord Amherst, as Lord in waiting, General Finch, as Groom in waiting, and Sir B. Bolton, as Equerry. Prince Ratafe, dressed in the costume of his country, with his Secretary, were introduced to the King by the Earl of Bathurst; they wore mantles; their legs and feet were bare with the exception of sandals. The Duke of York, the Duchess of Kent, and the Princess Souhia Matilda came in state, with their atan oration of congratulation on the occasion of the day. The Princess Sophia Matilda came in state, with their attendants, in two carriages, with an escort of life-guards. The Speaker of the House of Commons; the Lord Chancellor; the Lord Chief Justices of the King's Bench and Common Pleas; the Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer; the Vice Chancellor, &c. were present. Among the company were the Dukes of Wellington, Montrose, St. Albans, Dorset, Portland, Grafton, Benufort; Duchesses of Portland, St. Albans, Rut-Grafton, Benufort; Duchesses of Portland, St. Albans, Rutland, Richmond, Marlborough, Dorset, Bedford, Northumberland, Montrose, Leeds; Marquesses of Winchester, Donegal, Hertford, Conyngham, Salisbury, Wellesley, Camden, &c.; Marchionesses of Cholmondeley, Winchester, Salisbury, Devonshire, Hertford, &c.; Earls of Harrowby, Belfast, Bathurst, Uzbridge, Chichester, Whitworth, Chatham, Mayo, Liverpool, Donoughmore, St. Germains, Limerick, &c.; Countesses of Liverpool, Harcourt, Clare, Mulgrave, Bridgwater, Temple, Harrowby, Bathurst, Derby, Harewood, Coventry, &c.; Viscounts Salonouth, Expouth Palmerston, Melville, Sidney, &c.; Viscounts. mouth, Exmouth, Palmerston, Melville, Sidney, &c.; Viscountesses Melville, Torrington, Dowager Melville, &c.; Lords Hill, mouth, Exmouth, Paimerston, Dowager Melville, &c.; Lords Hill, Clarina, Beresford, Grantley, Curzon, St. Helens, Bentinck, &c.; Ladies Cooper, Beauclerc, Stewarts, Nightingale, Paget, Somers, S. A. Churchill, Dyneor, A. Beckett, Greville, Orde, Legge, C. Gordon, Hamilton, C. Cavendish, St. Clair Erskine, E. F. Hatton, Hurris, Radstock, Coventry, Thynnes, &c. &c.; Sirs C. Halkett, W. Clinton, Ployd, A. Don, R. Brownrigg, C. Pole, M. Seymour, J. Sylvester, J. Wells, C. Ogle, R. Barlow, &c.; Bishops of Winchester, London, Oxford, Chester, Ely, Salisbury, Lincoln, Exeter, St. Asaph, Carlisle, Killaloe, &c.; Admirals Sir R. Strachan, Stephen, Bingham, Sir P. Malcolm, Sir G. Martin, Sir D. Gould, &c. &c.; Generals Sir L. Cole, Sir G. Walker, Sir C. Asgill, Ross, Lloyd, Kerr, Sir J. Macleod, Sir G. Nugent, Sir G. Beckwith, Wemyss, Hugonia, Sir W. Inglis, Sir J. Doyle, Crosbie, Sir W. Anson, J. Balfour, &c. &c.; Colonels D'Arcy, Wynyard, Quenin, Sir F. Watson, U. Burgh, Lambert, Calvert, Bailey, Mulcaster, Ellicombe, Maxwell, &c. Aniong the numerous presentations, were the Marchioness of Waterford; the Hon. Mrs. E. Bunkes; Mrs. Maxwell; Mrs.

Waterford; the Hon. Mrs. E. Bankes; Mrs. Maxwell; Mrs. wateriora; the tion hirs. E. Bankes; Mrs. Maxwell; Mrs. General Ashworth; the Countesses of Roseberry and Huntingdon; Hon. Mrs. Petre; Lady Walker; Lady Wrottesley, &c. en their marriage; Viscountess Andover, on her return from abroad; the Misses Grant, sisters to the Chief Secretary for Ireland; Duchess of Marlborough; Lady W. Anson; Viscountess Hawarden; Lady Walsingham; Lady E. Lowther, &c. &c. Among the dresses of the ladies that of the Princess Augusta was a unfilinged of the Princes Augusta was most splendid: -Her Royal Highness, over a petricost of white satin, were a dress of silver amarytils, with flowers of the richest silver lame, forming colomns, terminated in bouquets, and finished with a superb trimming, composed of lama and silver fringe, encircled with wreaths of marguerits and silver silver fringe, encircled with wreaths of marguerits and silver lama, with rich foliage of green; from the waist fell a drapery magnificently bordered with lama and marguerits, in graceful folds, over this splendid robe; manteau of rich amethysts and silver tissue, deeply bordered with festoons of lama mat and brilliant en tulle, confined with rolls of silver corsuge of tissue, elegantly ornamented with curious fine blond amethysts and brilliants. Toque of lama, with a magnificent plume of ostrich feathers, brilliants, and amethysts. Her Royal Highness wore an admirable likeness of his Majesty, encircled with brilliants ofmatchless solendour. with brilliants of matchless splendour.

Duchess of Bedford-A superb silver lama dress, beautifully embroidered in rich borders, elegantly designed over rich white satin with blond lace; manteau of rich emerald satin, embroidered in silver lama border to correspond. Head-dress of rich brilliants and ostrich feathers.

Lady Grey, and Lady C. and Lady G. Grey-A rich white satin petricoat, over which was worn a nett dress, most tastefully trimmed with bunches of lilac and nett, a la Zephir; the body was composed of draperies in nett and satin, confined with sprigs of lilac, which had a most light and elegant ap-persance; the train was of lilac Gros de Naples, trimmed with blond lace, satin, and nett, a la Therese. Head-dress, ostrich feathers and diamonds, with blond lace lappets.

Lady Elizabeth Belgrave—A dress of tulle, richly embroidered in silver lama over white satin; train robe of white Gros de Naples, surrounded by a costly garniture of roses and silver intermixed; the body and sleeves profusely trimmed with point lace. Head-dress, feathers and magnificent diamonds.

Duchess of Richmond—A dress of silver lamp, elegantly embroidered in rich borders over white satin, with rich Brussels point lace; manteau of rich brecaded emerald satin, embroidered in deep silver lama borders to correspond. Head-dress, ostrich plume and pearls.

Countess Delaware— A net dress elegantly embroidered with floss silk, decorated with pink roses; train, rose colour gross de Naples.

Countess of Grey-A rich white satin petticoat, over which was worn a white crape dress, trimmed at the bottom with point lace and satin a la serigue; the train of rich blond gros de Naples, trimmed with net and satin. Head-dress, ostrich feathers and diamonds.

Countess of Grosvenor -A superb silver lama dress, festooned with rich blond; train, a brocaded line and white satin, trimmed round with tulle and silver; bedy and sleeves trimmed with rich Brussels point. Head-dress, a profusion of diamonds and feathers.

The two Misses Burdett-Elegant net dresses, most superbly embroidered with real silver spangles, forming large brilliant stars, intermixed with beautiful roses and rich broad brilliant stars, intermixed with beautiful roses and rich broad blond lace, tastefully suspended by a rich silver chain, the design of which had a peculiarly elegant effect, terminating at the bottom with a garniture of rich broad blond lace, festooned up with bunches of beautiful roses, worn over a rich white satin slip; robe of magnificent silver tissue, superbly trimmed with broad blond lace, and beautiful roses to correspond with dress; body and sleeves of silver tissue, richly trimmed with blond lace. Head dress, a profusion of diamonds and feathers.

THE BALL AND SUPPER.—At night His Majesty gave a splendid Ball and sumptuous Supper at Carlton House, which was attended by upwards of 1000 of the Nobility and Gentry. There was no political distinction of party. The Marquess and Marchionest of Lansdowne, the Earl of Darnley, and the Ladies Bligh, Lord Grenville, &c. were among the company invited.

The King entered the ball-room at ten o'clock; His Majesty was in full-dress military uniform. Dancing then commenced, consisting of quadrilles. His Majesty was in excellent spirits the whole of the evening; he most condescendingly atte to the company, inviting them to join in the quadrilles. There was some waltzing. There was no supper:—the blue and silver rooms were devoted for refreshments. The dancing continued till near four o'clock: the King remained the whole of the time. There were about 800 persons of distinction present, the Duke of York, the Duke and Duchess of Clarence, the Duchess of Gloucester, the Duchess of Kent, the Duke and Duchess of Bedford, the Duke of Devonshire, the Marquess and Marchioness of Heriford, Lord and Lady Darnley and daughters, Lord and Lady Conyngham and daughters, Lord and Lady Ossulston, &c. &c. The ladies were most splendidly attired; the elegance and richness of their dresses attracted universal admiration. The Royal brothers were in full dress military uniforms. The orowds assembled during the whole of the night were immense, but they paid the most marked and respectful attention to the company.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

PARIS, April 29 .- Paris is thronged with foreigners and strangers, from the provinces, who are come to witness the splendid fetes prepared for the auspicious occasion of the baptism of the Duke de Bourdeaux.

The King gave a private audience to the Viscount Chateau-briand, Minister to the Court at Prussia. There was a brilliant and numerous Court; among those present were the Neapolitan Ambassador, and the Prince de Talleyrand.

By the French Mail of Friday, we have received advices from various parts of the Continent. In Naples and Piedmont all continues perfectly tranquil; but several of the promoters of the late revolts have been arrested in both countries. tries. The leaders of the Carbonari appear to have taken up their residence for the present in Switzerland. With respect to the Greek Insurrection, it is stated in terms more positive than ever, that the Turks have been defeated in Bul-garia; and that the fortress of Galacz has fallen into the hands of the Insurgents, who have also captured a number of Turkish vessels on the Danube. Private advices state, that in a dreadful conflict which took place between the Greeks and Turks at Petrasso, in the Morea, the greater part of that city has fallen a prey to flames; that Smyrna has presented a similar frightful scene; and that in all directions the combatants act upon the barbarously ferocious system of giving no quarter.

By letters received yesterday from St. Petersburgh, we learn that orders had been sent from the Emperor of Russia to the army to halt; in consequence, the reports that His Imperial Majesty had an intention to proceed against Spain may be said to be groundless. The circumstance above-mentioned caused a rise in the exchange at St. Petersburg of upwards, of three per cent.

The Centaur American schooner was captized and taken into Cork last Sunday by His Majesty's brig Fly.

A letter from Florence states, that a Conspiracy has been cope of the Grand Duke, and that an discovered among the troops of the Grand Duke, and that an officer convicted of taking partin it, has been sentenced to death by a military commission.

A letter from Grenoble, dated the 24th instant, saysyoung mun who was arrested on the French territory and escorted to the prison of Grenoble, was, on the 21st instant, conducted to the frontier by a detachment of the Gendarmerie, and delivered up to the authorities of Savoy.'

Count de Lislo, one of the fomenters of the insurrection in Piedmont, has blown out his brains with a pistol.—Gazette de.

MILAN, April 19 .- Our Gazette gives some details relative to the movements of the Austrian columns, which are, successively, taking possession of all the fortresses of Piedmont.— The rebels fled so precipitately from Alessandria, leaving the gates open, and the bridge down, that in the official bulletin they are compared to a private individual who, in a moment of terror, abandons his well furnished house. At Alessandria were found provisions for five months; and an immense artillery in every thing complete.—The Austrians have pursued the runaways on the routes of Acqui, and Novi, in order to preserve the country from the devastations which they everywhere commit.

FRANKFORT, April 23.—The house of Rothschild has just received orders from London to be ready with funds for the supply of the King of England on his journey to Germany. His Majesty will make a short stay at Frankfort. There is a It is adjectly with make a short stay at Frankfort. Inere is a talk of hiring for this Monarch the fine palace of the late M. Schwitzer, banker. It is said that he is to have an interview with several Monarchs of Europe. The report gains ground that the King of the Netherlands will go immediately to Vienna. Great preparations are making at Darmstadt for the receptions.

tion of the King of England, who is expected in this part of Germany in the month of August. The Grand Duchess and all the persons of the Court have sent their jewels to Paris to have them reset in a new style, in order to appear with celat at the fetes given to his Britannic Majesty.

HANOVER, April 16.—Amongst the distinguished personages who will appearant the distinguished personages.

who will accompany the King (who is expected here in the course of the month of August), are the Marquis of London-derry and Lord Liverpool. It is affirmed that previously to His Majesty's arrival, the Queen-Dowager of Wurtemburg, the Elector of Hesse, and Prince Lippe-Bulkebourg, will come and take up their residence in our capital.

A short time since whilst a fleet of about 140 English fishing boats were dredging for oysters off St. Martin's-le-Vieux, about three and half lengues from the French Coast, a French brig of war came out of Granville, fired a gun at them, and took one of the vessels prize into the harbour, the vessel was relieved next day. It is a question for decision between the two Courts as to the right of fishing.

IRUN, April 23.—Symptoms of an approaching change are manifested in all the provinces of the Peninsulu. A new partisan, as if by enchantment, who is stated to command a thousand men, has appeared about four leagues from Vittoria. An engagement took place between the national guards and the rebels, and, after an hour's conflict, the former were obliged receis, and, after an our's conflict, the former were configed to submit to the latter, and were consequently made prisoners, with the exception of four men, who, on returning to Vittoria, spread the greatest alarm there. Orders were immediately given to put the national guards of the three provinces of Biscay in arms; and the result was expected with impatience.

Old Castile is reported, in letters from Valladolid, to be overrun by a Guerilla force.

Yesterday the English Consul at Madrid passed this city for London, by way of Calais, where he expects to find Sir H. Wellesley.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Bank of England being about to resume their cash payments, the utterers of forged notes are more than usually on the alert to get rid of their stock of 11. notes; the public should therefore be particularly careful of the 11. notes tendered to bem in payment.

The East India Company's ships Marquis of Huatley and Dunira were at Prince of Wales's Island on the 13th of Norember all well. They were under weigh for China.

The East India Company's ship, General Kid, was all well at sea, on the 15th of February ; lat. and long. not mentioned. Letters from St. Helena, to the 2d of March, represent Bonaparte as then in good health; he had expressed much satisfaction at his new house, and passed a good deal of his time in at-tion at his new house, and passed a good deal of his time in attending to the decorations of it.

Mr. Moubruy's little book on the Breeding, Rearing, and Fattening, all kinds of Domestic Poultry and Pros, is unquestionably the most Practical Work on the subject in our language. The Third Edition, advertised in another part of our paper, contains some valuable information relative to the mapagement of Milch Cows: the author's aim seems to have been to avoid scientific detail, and to convey his information in plain and intelligible terms. The convenience of a small in plain and intelligible terms. The convenience of a small poultry yard, two or three pigs, with a breeding sow, and a cow for milk, cream, butter, and cheese, in an English country house, appears indispensible. To point out how these may be obtained at a reasonable expense, seems to have been Mr. Moubray's object; and by adopting the plan of his work, any family may furnish their table with these luxuries at ene-third of the price they are obliged to pay at the market; and the farmer and breeder may render it a source of additional profit. farmer and breeder may render it a source of additional profit.

Mrs. Piozzi, so long the friend and associate of Doctor Johnson, died at Clifton on Wednesday; she was in the 82d year of her age, and had not long been indisposed.

are age, and had not long seen manposes.

An animal, nearly resembling the description of the unicorn, as given by Pliny, is on its way from Africa to this country. It is smaller than the horse in figure.

The New Loyal Regiment of London Militia, under the com-nand of Sir C. Hunter, for general service, con ing on Thesday.

ADVERTISEMENT.]—"Since the Heloisa of Rousseau, and the Corinne of Madame de Stael, we have scarcely met with any work so justly deserving of being brought into competition with these exquisite productions, as the new novel of "The Favorite of Nature." A more delicate, affecting, and indeed charming picture of the dangers attendant upon beauty and genius, we never remember to have read."

ADVERTISEMENT.]—The whole of the Fashionable World was in motion last week. The Leves, the Drawing-Room, with the Royal Banquets in honour of the Birth-day of the Sowith the Royal Banques in Bollour of the Brith-lay of the so-vereign, exhibiting a display of be-luty and fashion never before witnessed, which will render the opening of the mouth of May 1821 for ever celebrated. The Ladies enhanced their charms by having recourse to the Lagie powers of Rowland's Macassar Oil, and Extract of Alsona. The former embellished the native beauty of their Hair, the latter added an unexpressible polish to their Teeth, University Intelligence. - Cambridge, May 4.-On Wednesday, the first day of Easter Term, the following gentlemen were admitted to the undermentioned degrees:—Masters of Arts—W. Twigg, R. Braudt, and R. Beason, Trinity college; F. Lunn, St. John's college; W. Hutchins, Pembroke hall; W. Greenwood, Corpus Christi college; G. Skinner and J. Studholme, Jesus college.—Bachelors of Arts—E. St. Aubyn, J. W. Sheppard, and A. Duthie, Trinity college; G. Cummins, C. G. R. Festing, W. J. Crole, and H. Tayler, St. John's college; W. J. James, St. Peter's college; C. W. Heuning, Queen's college; R. Gorton, J. Long, J. Conington. E. Bowlby, Jesus college; J. Lugar and R. Winsloe, Sidney college.

The King has been pleased to grant unto the Rev. J. S. Clarke, LL.D. of St. John's college, and one of his Majesty's Domestic Chaplains, the place and dignity of a Prebendary of the chapel of St. George, in the castle of Windsor, void by the death of Dr. F. Dodsworth. Wednesday, the first day of Easter Term, the following gen-

Dr. F. Dodsworth.

The Rev. E. Auderson, B. D. Fellow of Queen's college, has been presented, by the President and Fellows of that society, to the rectory of Hickling, Nottinghamshire, vacated by the death of the Rev. J. T. Jordan.

The Rev. T. Tattershall, M. A. of Queen's College, was on Friday last elected a Fellow of that society.

There will be congruent to the following days of the Friday last elected a Fellow of that society.

There will be congregations on the following days of the present term:—May 9, May 23, May 30, at eleven.—June 11, (Stat.) B. D. Com., June 30, July 2, at eleven.

The following remarkable circumstance is worthy of notice:
—The late Dr. Gregory was fourth professor of his family, in a lineal descent; and from his ancestor, David Gregory, of Kinalrdy, he was the sixteenth descendant who had held a professorship in a British University.

By a Return made of the trade with Liverpool, it appears. on a comparison with the preceding year, that the trade had increased 195 vessel.

increased 195 vessel.

Sir Thomas Muitland arrived in town, on Monday, from the

A Meeting of the parish of Lambeth was held last week when some Resolutions were come to for reducing the emoluments of the Vestry Clerk. Similar Meetings are about to be beld in other parishes.

At the Quarter Sessions for the county of Somerset, on Wed nesday last, a Bill of Indictment was preferred, when a True Bell was found against an attorney in Frome, of the name of Messeter, for having suborned different persons to come forward as accusers of a most enlightened Magistrate, of very ancient family, in that county.—The indictment will of course be certiovari to the King's Bench for trial.

It is a curious fact, that the rot in sheep was not known in this country till the year 1295, when a Frenchman brought over a large Spanish ewe, so infected, to Northumberland, which spread the murrain throughout, defying all efforts to subdue it for 28 years.

The Pekin Gazette contains an order for banishing a Major n the Army for keeping a concubine.

i Major Cartwright has commenced proceedings against Mr. Stemman, the publisher of "The Book of Wonders," for quoting a passage from one of Cobbett's Registers, in which the patriarch of Reform is stated to hold the doctrine, that "we must in fighting the enemy, not reject the use of the we must, in fighting the enemy, not reject the use of the arms of even despicable and detestable men."

Volcano in the Moon.—By a paper read before the Astronomical Society of London, from Dr. Olbers, of Bremen; it appears, that the luminous appearance on the Moon's disk, mentioned by Captain Katir, was seen there also. But Dr. Olbers adds, that he by no means thinks it is a volcano, since the phenomenon may easily be accounted for on other principles, the particulars of which he will communicate at a future Opportunity.

GREAT PERFORMANCE.—A horse belonging to Mr. Rich, hatter, in Holborn, was backed to gallop twenty-one miles in an hour, on Wednesday, for a hundred guineas. The ground was from the eleven mile-stone through Croydon, to the eighteen mile-stone. The rider, a boy, was thrown, and the horse went nearly a mile beyond the boundaries, but the boy mounted again, and completed the match four minutes and a half within the given time. The horse was much distressed.

POLITICAL ECONOMY CLUB.—Monday there was a dinner at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, for the purpose of originating a Club or Society for promoting the knowledge of the Science of Political Economy. There were twenty gentle-men present, amongst them were Mr. Ricardo, Mr. Malthus, Mr. Keith Douglas, Mr. Holland, Colonel Torrens, Mr. Mill,

Mr. Mushet, Mr. Tooke, &c. &c.
EPSOM RACES.—The Surrey Hunters' Meeting, May 2. The Course was well attended, and the sports were very good Mr.Tattersall was Clerk of the Course, and Mr. Farrell, Judge. The Farmers' Stakes, of 90 guineas, given by the Barl of Derby and H. Jolliffe, Esq. added to a subscription of 3 gs. each.

Mr. Gardner's br. m. 5 yrs. old, 11st. 6ib. Mr. Selwood's b. g. 2 3
The Judge placed but two. Nine started; 2 to I on the field.

Mr. Gardner, of Coombe Wood, rode the winner. Sweepstakes of 10 gs. each, for horses not thorough bred.

Mr. Fisher's b. m. Mr. Shaw's br. m. Mr. Thompson's b. g. 3 Mr. Tuttersall's ch. m. Mr. Shaw's mure the favourite, and even upon her after the Sweepstakes of 15 gs. each. Craven weight. Mr. King's Philip, 4 yrs. old, 8st. 91b. Mr. Dockray's Carbon, 3 yrs. old, 8st. Mr. Fisher's Denmark, 3 yrs. old, 8st.

Mr. Glew's Sappho, 5 yrs. old, 9st. 11lb. Six to 4 agst Carbon, 2 to 1 agst Philip, and 4 to 1 agst Sappho.

Mr. J. Sheffey's horse, Antar, 8st. 7lb. is matched against Mr. Prendergast's Regent, 8st. 3lb. at the Second Newmarket Spring Meeting, for 200gs. h. ft.; Major Wilson's c. by Ru-bens, 8st. 7lb. is matched against Mr. Dundas's c. by Williamson, 8st. 4lb. on the first day of the Craven Meeting, 1823, for 200gs. h. ft.—On the fourth day of the same Meeting, Mr. Dundas's c. by Williamson, is matched against Mr. N. H. 8mith's b. c. by ditto, 8st. 7lb. each, for 100gs. h. ft.

POLICE.

Bow-STREET.—All the coffee-shops in the parishes of St. Clement's Danes, St. Mary-le-Strand, St. Paul's, Covent-garden, and St. Martin's in the Fields, were ransacked on the preceding evening, and ninety-six persons, male and female, were apprehended, and examined, on Monday, at this office. Among them were, one Comedian, one Custom-House clerk, one newshape three principles. Six shee-makers extends boy, three printers, three plumbers, five shoe-makers, seven corpenters, fifteen bakers, seven unfortumate females, and fortytwo tailors. The Comedian was a diminutive young man,

"marvellously out of suits with fortune," and described himself as William Adolphus Davy, (not Dainty Davy), a member of Mr. Scott's company, and lately returned from a provincial tour. The whole bevy, however, after a suitable admonition, were discharged. The Magistrates gave notice, that the coffee-shops would be indicted as nuisances; and in the mean time, be subjected to frequent domiciliary visits "at night and more."

Five men have been examined at this Office charged on suspicion of being parties in the murder of Mr. Snow of the Preventive Service in Herne Bay. Three of the party of smugglers who resisted the officers gave evidence against the prisoners, who were remanded to prison, and ordered to be brought up on Thursday next.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

COURT OF KING'S BENCH, GUILDHALL, WESTMINSTER. SATURDAY.—The Court met at the usual hour, ten o'clock and proceeded to dispose of several motions for new trials, of which possessed any public interest.

Very few Counsel were in attendance, and at one o'clock, although several causes remained undisposed of, no one being was rendy to proceed.

The Chief Justice expressed himself forcibly on this subject, and observed, that the Court always felt every desire to accommodate gentlemen at the bar, when their public duties in other places required their absence, or when any other good reason could be assigned; but in the present case the Bench had to complain of neglect, and of being put to considerable inconvenience, and what was of more importance, the valuable time of the public was wasted, owing to the non-attendance of gentlemes, no reason being assigned. His Lord-ship now wished it to be understood, that Monday would be the last day of the Court sitting before Term, and they would take the causes in the order in which they stood in the paper; any gentleman not being ready, unless very good reasons to the contrary were shewn, his cause would be struck out of the

The Court then rose at one o'clock. Easter Term commences on Wednesday.

PROVINCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

BARNSLEY .-- The foundation stone of St. George's Church was laid on Mouday se'nnight, (amidst a vast concourse of people amounting from 15 to 20,000), by the Freemason's Lodge. An impressive prayer, written for the occasion, was offered up by the Rev. R. Willan, the officiating Curate. The Brethren afterwards dined together at the Klug's Head Inn. The King, Patron of Masons, and the Craft, were drank, and many other loyal toasts. There was a ball in the evening.

BELFAST.—Two antique gold crescents were lately found in this neighbourhood, they are of pure gold and weigh about six ounces each, near the spot where they were found are some druidient alters; and these relics have the appearance of having been used as bells by the Druids-such is the opinion of antiquarians.

-Two men in the employ of Mr. Stephenson, of Beverley.—Two men in the employ of Mr. Stephenson, of Cold Harbour, having occasion to take some sulphur and cream of tartar, a few days ago, procured a packet of what they believed to be that medicine, and took it in milk; one of them shortly after died; the other is likely to recover. It turned out that the supposed cream of tartar and sulphur was arsenic.

Blackburn.—An elegant service of plate has been presented to the Rev. Dr. Whitaker, by the inhabitants of this town, in testimony of their estimation of his services as a Magistrate during the late search of turnils and insulportingtion.

during the late season of tumult and insubordination.

during the late season of tumult and insubordination.

Bristol.—As some boys were playing with a cart, a few days since, it run back into the Float, when one of the boys named Page, sunk. This being observed by one Robert Davis, he jumped into the water, and swam about, and after feeling the boy with his feet, he dived, and brought him up; and with the proper remedies the boy was soon brought to life. It is remarkable, that Davis had a child drowned about four years ago, and his mother was drowned, in the Stroudwater Canal, about a fortnight ago. about a fortnight ago.

A lamentable accident happened here a few days since, the son of the Portuguese Consul, a boy of seven years old, con-trived to take from the drawer a small pocket pistol, which he presented at the nursery maid, who attempted to get it from him, but he ran away; he then pulled the trigger, but it only flashed in the pan, on which he recocked it and fired at his sister, a child of 3 years old, the ball struck her face, and lodged in the upper jaw, from whence it was extracted with great diffi-culty. The little sufferer, we understand, is recovering.

CAISTOR .- Since the last discovery of Roman remains made here, a most splendid tessellated pavement has been found, surrounded by a strong foundation in good preservation, floors of painted plaster, urns, coins, trinkets, and other articles of Roman manufacture, and four pieces of elephant's horn, were also CAMBRIDGE.—The first stone of the New Observatory in this University, was laid on Tuesday last, by the Rev. Dr. Wordsworth the Vice Chancellor.

Some labourers digging for gravel a few days since at Littleton, in an open field, discovered some human bones, and the foundation of an ancient wall, enclosing a quadanngular area about ten yards from the Roman road called Askwell-street; within this area are a number of Roman urns perfect, composed of red and others of black argillaceous earth, only one coin was found, on which is the head of the Emperor Trajan.

CANTERBURY.—An Inquest was held on the body of Mr. Snow, Midshipman of the Severn, who lost his life while commanding a party of the Severn's mess, is a conflict with some smugglers at Herne Bay. The Jury returned a verdict of smugglers at herne Bay. The Jury returned a vertice of wilful murder against some person or persons unknown. The remains of Mr. Snow were interred in Herne Ckurch-yard, the body was preceied by the band of the 4th Light Dragoons, and followed by Capt. M'Culloch, eight Lieutenants, and many of his brother officers of the Severn.

CARDIGAN.—A boat which was returning from a vessel just launched at the New Quay, from being over laden, upset, when unfortunately three young men and a young woman were

We understand that it is in contemplation to form a n road between London and Dublin through Gloucester, and the coaches are, instead of driving on to Carmarthen, to turn off at Llandovery to the New Quay, in Cardiganshire, where a steam-packet will pass and repass; so that a person travelling to Ire-land, would be only one night on the road.

EDINBURGH .- Saturday the 27th ult. being the anniversary of the birth-day of the late Lord Viscount Melville, the founda-tion of the Monument erecting to his memory in the centre of St. Andrew's Square, was laid by Admiral Sir David Milne, K. C. B. and Admiral Otway, Commander-in-Chief, assisted by other Naval Officers. The Naval Committee afterwards dined at the Waterloo Tavern.

The King's Household met a few days since in the County Hall, and proceeded to the Crown-room in the Castle to inspect the Regulia. The visit is to be annual on the King's birth-day.

-On the King's Birth-day, the loyal and re spectable inhabitants of this place celebrated the anniversary at the Queen's Head; the Rev. Mr. Auguish in the Chair. Many loyal and constitutional toasts were drank; the King's bealth was given amidst the greatest enthusiasm, and received with five distinct rounds of applause. The company enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

REIGATE.—St. George's day as the anniversary of the King's Birth, was ushered in in this ancient and respectable sing's Birth, was ushered in in this ancient and respectable borough, by the ringing of bells which was continued at intervals, during the day. At four o'clock about forty of the principal inhabitants sat down to a sumptuous dinner at the White Hart, Dr. Shelley in the Chair, supported by the bankers of the town, Emily Gule and Israel Paper, Esqs. Many leval toasts were drank. A band attended and played several favorite loyal pieces of music, the greatest bilinity presailed, and stewards were alcount for the annual great were alcount for the annual great it baling there. stewards were elected for the ensuing year, it being determined to meet annually, in furtherance of the loyal feelings of the inhabitants.

ACCIDENTS, OFFENCES, &c.

A fire broke out yesterday morning about nine o'clock, in A fire broke out yesterday morning about nine o'clock, in the upper part of a house adjoining the New Argyle Rooms, and belonging to the proprietors of that establishment, which destroyed the upper story. It is conjectured, that the workmen employed in arranging the Concert Room for the Bedford Charity, in removing the benches into the house may have left a light burning, and have thus occasioned the accident; by the active exertions of the faremen who were quickly on the spet, the melanthy more faith the exemption of the house in ourse. the valuable premises (with the exception of the house in ques-tion,) of the Royal Harmonic Institution, have fortunately CORONERS INQUEST.—An inquisition was held on Thursday and Friday, at the King's Arms, Bowling-street, Westminster, before Thomas Higgs, Esq. on the body of Joseph Day, a waterman, who was found dead in his bont on Wednesday last.

As soon as the Jury were sworn, they retired to view the body at the workhouse, and on their return, a very serious complaint was made under the following circumstance: It appeared on going into the bone-house a corpse was shewn them, which they minutely inspected, and then departed. However, they had not proceeded far before they were recalled and given to understand, that they had seen the wrong body. On returning back and viewing the right corpse, some inquiry was made respecting the death of the individual shewn them in mistake; when several of the poor women inmates of the house informed them, that there were two bodies besides the waterman in the bone-house, which had died of the Typhus Fever, this information excited considerable sensation among the Jurymen.

The Coroner replied he had made inquiries on coming out, The Coroner replied he had made inquiries on coming our, if that was the fact, which was denied by the matron, who informed him that the sick are regularly sent to the hospital; but if it was the wish of the Jury he would write to the parish efficers on the subject.—The Jury said certainly.

The deceased, who is a waterman, was found with his head lying over the side of the boat, which was floating just above Westminster-bridge.

The Jury, without a moment's hesitation, returned a Verdict—Died by the Visitation of God.

The Coroner wished to be informed whether he should write to the parish officers respecting the proceeding at the workhouse on the previous evening; when the Jury said most assuredly, and several complained of being ill since last night. He then said he would write to-morrow on the subject, which was accordingly done.

SUCCIDES.—On Monday afternoon, a gentleman's servant, threw himself from Westminster-bridge, and was drowned.—

On the same day, a young man, threw himself into the Regent's Canal, but was got out; he went again to the same spot, cut his throat, and either threw himself in or fell into the water. He was shortly after taken out quite dead.—On the same day, an elderly female, a lady's maid in a family, in Russell-square, hung herself by a silk handkerchief to the bed post. On Monday afternoon the horses in a hachney coach took fright, at a funeral passing in the Strand, and ran down Salisbury-street, against the iron-railing at the bottom of that street, the pole of the carriage broke from the violence of the con-cussion; and the horses with a portion of the railing were hurled down a depth of from 40 to 50 feet into a timber-yard subsequently obliged to be killed.

The Countess of Warwick, while riding in Hyde Park with her husband on Thursday evening, was thrown from her horse with great violence; besides several severe bruises, two of her

ADVERTISEMENT.] -- PRECAUTION. -- The Novel just published under this title, is of the Coslebs School. It will please both the young and the old: the former will like it because it is full of marriages, and the latter because it inculcates in every page the value of precaution on entering the Matrimonial state. The author is extremely happy in his delineation of character. The portrait of Mr. Benfield, a worthy old Bachelor, whom a disappointment of the heart has early driven into retirement, after sitting one session in Parliament, and acting the courtier and the beau for one season at the commencement of the last reign, is particularly amusing; and the readiness with which he connects his monotonous present with his gayer past, by finding likenesses in every one whom he esteems, however unlike, to Lord Gosford, the companion of his former days, or Lady Juliame, the mistress of his youth, has something in it not less enertaining to the imagimation, than touching to the affections.

ADVERTISEMENT. -- SPRING FASSIONS. -- Curling the hair still continues to prevail, indeed, it may be called an universal fashion, the effect of a fine head of hair strikes every beholder with admiration, and has always been a favorite theme for the artist's pencil, and the poet's muse, and of all modern inventions for displaying it in the most fascinating manner, Atkinson's Curling Fluid has long stood pre-eminent, by applying it after curling the hair, it counteracts the harshness which hot irons produce, makes it soft and glossy as silk, and keeps the curl firm during exercise in dancing or wasking, or in damp wea-ther. It also removes the dandriffe, prevents the bair fulling off or turning grey, and is perhaps the greatest regenerator of hair in the whole arcana of nature. It is sold by most respectable Perfamers, but as there are some very near initiations, the following signature is on the label of the granine, "James Atkinson, 44, Gerrard Street, London."

		SHIP	NEWS.
Arrived	Mails	Due 1	Arrived	Malls	Due
2I	ablin	1		.Maita	1 .
2V	Vaterford	—		.France	1
—G	nernsay & J	ersey -		.Hamburgh	—
1H	Iolland	– 1		.Flanders .	—
—G	ottenburgh.			.Jamaica
	islon			St. Thomas	s's —

Helland.

PORTSMOUTH, May 4.—Wind S.W.—Arrived the Sappho, Lamb, from Cowes, and sailed again for the Cape of Good Hope.

PLYMOUTH, May 3.—Wind S.S.B.—Arrived off the port the Tobago, Bargrie, from Tobago for London, and the American brig Ann from Petersburg for Cowes, FALMOUTH, May 2.—Wind variable,—Sailed the Union, Broken-blat for London.

FALMOUTH, May 2.—Wise variable.

shir, for London.

KINSALE, April 29.—The Mary, Monteith, which was on shore, has been towed this morning into this harbour. On her passage from New-Orleans she lost her rudder, and took a pilot from Cape Clear for Kinsale, to refit; but owing to a thick fog, she struck on the reef of rocks westward of the Old Head, on which the Lord Melville and Borodino transports were lost in 1816; she continued heating from 4 A. M. to 3 P. M. when, with the assistance of a number of boats, she was got off, but much damaged, and the pumps constantly at work. This is the but much damaged, and the pumps constantly at work. This is the only instance we can recollect of a vessel and cargo driven on those rocks being saved.

VOYAGES and TRAVELS.

THE JOURNAL of NEW VOYAGES and TRAVELS continues its successful and useful career, and in twenty alx Monthly Numbers has published the following very interesting Modern Works, at only 3s. 6d. each, either of which may be had separately, and every Work is completed within the Part:—

1. FISHER'S Yoyage to the Indian Scan, 4 plates.
2. PRIOR'S Voyage to the Indian Scan, 4 plates.
3. DUPIN'S Public Establishments of Great Britain, 2 plates.
4. CHATEAUVIEUX'S Travels in taly.
5. FORBIN'S Travels in Greece and the Holy Land, 8 plates.
6. ANALYSES of Seven New English Travels.
7. FORBIN'S Travels in Greyt, 6 plates.
8. M'KEEVOR'S Voyage to Hudson's Bay, &c.
9. DUMONT'S Thirty-four Years' Slavery in Africa.—Portenger's Shipwreck and Adventures, and Travels is Egypt and Nubia, 2 plates.
11. CORDON'A'S Voyage in the Atlantic and Indian Oceans, 4 plates.
12. WALLER'S Voyage in the West Indics, 8 plates.
13. SANSOM'S Travels in Canada, &c. 1 plate.
14. MOLLIEN'S Travels in Helly. Splates.
15. PRINCE MAXIMILIAN'S Travels in the Brazils, 8 plates.
16. GRAHAM'S Travels through Portugal and Spain, 8 plates.
17. CASTELLAN'S Travels in Italy, 8 plates.
18. BRACKEN'RIDGE'S Voyage to Buenos Ayres, 8 plates.
19. PERTUSIER'S Promenades near Constantinople, 8 plates.
20. GOURBILLON'S Travels in Monte Negro, 6 plates.
21. SOMMIRE'S Travels in Monte Negro, 6 plates.
22. POUQUEVILLE'S Travels in Monte Negro, 6 plates.
23. SCHOOLCRAFT'S Travels on the Missouri, and Ray's Cechin Chima, 1 plate.
24. KELBALL'S Tour from Rome to Arpino, 8 plates.

25. SCHOOL PART 1 STATES OF THE ACTION OF TH

-and Trevideani's Letters from Africa.
25. FREDLANDER'S Travels through Italy, 8 plates; published pril 15, 1821.

Or the Whole may be had in 4 vols. half-bound, at One Guinea each
Printed for SIR RICHARD PHILLIPS and Co.; and to be had

all Booksellers in Town and Country.

HY For Circulating Libraries and Book Societies, the Parts are dose np in Boards, 4s. The Work is continued on the 15th of every Mouth, and several Voyages and Travels of great interest, are in Month, and several Voyages and Travels of great interest, are in preparation.

Now publishing in Monthly Numbers (Nine of which may be had) price 3s. each, elegantly printed in royal 8vo. an Original Work, entitled, IFE IN LONDON; or, the Duy and Night Scenes of JERRY HAWTHORN, Esq. and his elegant Friend, CORINTHIAN TOM, in their Rambles and Sprees through the Metropolis,—By PIERICE EGAN.

"Of the utility of such a Work there can be no doubt, while London abounds as it does with imposture and temptation. As far as it has proceeded, it is executed with considerable taste and truth, and deserves to fill a respectable rank among works of practical philosophy. It is one of the most amusing tooks lately published; for our own part, (but, perhaps, we are partial), we prefer it to many of the sketches of manified which have appeared since the days of the Spectator. Le Franc Parleur, does not speak half so plainly as our hero. L'Hermite de la Chaussee d'Antin, leads too retired a life—and the Hermit in London is too dandyish and vapid, to compare with him. Geoffrey Crayon presents mere sketches, while Corinthian Tom gives finished portraits; with all the delicacy and precision of Gerard Douw, he unites the boldness of Rubene and the intimate knowledge of Teniers."—Europens Mag. Nov. 1820.

Mag. Nov. 1820.

Ty This Work will be completed in twelve Numbers, each of which will be illustrated with three characteristic coloured Plates: the Scenes from real Life, by I. R. and G. Cruikshank.—Printed for Sherwood, Neely, and Jones, Paternoster-row.

Neely, and Jones, Patermoster-row.

On the 16th of April was published, price 1s.

THE TRIAL of JAMES RYMER versus the EDITORS of the MONTHLY GAZETTE of HEALTH, for a Libel on his Patent Medicine; with Remarks on the Addresses of the Counsel, the Evidence of Mr. Rymer's Witness, &c. the Bifects of Disappointment in the result of Johanna Southoott's Case on the mind of Mr. Gurney. To which is added, an interesting and very instructive Account of a late Medical Consultation ever an invalid, in which the leading Physicians, Surgeons, Apothecaries, regular and irregular Quacks of the United Kingdom, and Undertakers, deliver their opinion respecting the seat and cause of his affliction, and of the best means of restoring him to health. The whole exhibiting the consolatory Resources, the improved State of Medicine, and Variety of Modern Theories and Flights of Fancy, afford to Invalids.—Sold by Sherwood and Co. Paternoster-row; Medicial Hall, 170, Piccadilly; and all Booksellers.

OHEAP LOTTERY!—Grent Capitals!—No Clusses!—No

Medical Hall, 170, Piccadilly; and all Booknellers.

CHEAP LOTTERY!—Grent Capitals!—No Clusses!—No reserve of Tickets!—No suspense!—All in one Day! 17th of THIS MONTH, (May.) Every Ticket or Share drawn singly, each deciding its own fate, and no other. Every Ticket or Share purchased before 17th of this Month, (May) is sure to be decided that day, when all the £21,000 Prizes, and all the other 4005 Capital and other Prizes, must be drawn! The Tickets are issued in Chances of Ticket, Half, Quarter, Eighth, and Sixteenths, and the following are the Prices for the 17th May only:—Ticket, £14 14s. Half, £713s. Quarter, £317s. Eighth, £1 19s. 64. Sixteenth, only £1. The Ticket and 'Share Chances are selling by T. BISH, Stock-Broker, No. 4, Cornbill, and 9, Charing-Cross, who shared and sold in the last Lottery, 2,063, Class A, 2,898, Class A, 2,898, Class Three of £21,000111 and several minor Capitals;—and by all his Agents in the Country.

ECS Schemes, with full particulars, gratis.

BCONOMY in WINES.—The ROYAL EXCHANGE WINE COMPANY, No. 10, Poultry, near the Mansion House, established in 1814, for the sole purpose of supplying the Public with genuine Foreign Wines, pure and unadulterated as imported.

THE Royal Exchange Wine Company bog to submit to their numerous Customers and the Public in general, the present prices of Wines, which are warranted to be of the finest qualities; and, for the accommodation of Families residing in Town and Country, the Company engage to deliver one Dozen free of expence, to any part of London, and aix Bosen free of Carriage, Freight, and all other charges, to any part of England.—P. 8. Pecultar advantages to purchasers of ten Dozens and upwards, as a very liberal discount is allowed.

and upwards, as a very liberal	l disco	unt is allowed.
Good Old Port38s.	or doz.	Old Hock	or dos
Very fine old do 424.	do.	Fine Bareac 36s.	do.
Superior Vintage 1812 and		Bucellas34s.	đо.
		Cape Madeira20s.
De. 5 years in bottle56s.
Fine Sherry38s.	do.	Fine Vidonia	do.
Old Bast India do. very		Excellent Pontac 26s.	do.
		Graff Reynett, Burgundy 42s.
Excellent Madeira 48s
West India do 50s.
Old East India do 60s.			, ,
Warm And Manager 16-

Very fine Tenorifie.....46s. do.
Orders sent by letter strictly attended. Bills on Bankers payable in London, will be received as eash.

SIR JOHN SINCLAIR'S CODE OF AGRICULTURE.—In One large vol. 8vo. price il. 4a, ia boards, the Third Edition of THE CODE of AGRICULTURE; including Observations on Gardens, Orchards, Woods, and Plantations.—By the Right Hou. Sir JOHN SINCLAIR, Bart.—This Edition is considerably improved, by a number of valuable Additions and Remarks, communicated to the Author by some of the most intelligent Parmers in England, Scotland, and Ireland.

In this values are meticularly considered.—In The Prolitography Points

In this volume are particularly considered—1. The Preliminary Points which a Farmer ought to ascertain, before he undertakes to occupy any extent of Land. 2. The Means of Cultivation which are essential to ensure its aucosss. 3. The various Modes of improving Land. 4. The various Modes of occupying Land. 5. The means of improving a Connity.—Printed for Sherwood, Neely, and Jones, Paternoster-row, and sold healther. try.—Printed for a by all Booksellers.

by all Booksellers.

POULTRY, PIGS, and MILCH COWS.

Just published, price 5s. in boards,

A PRACTICAL TREATISE on Breeding, Rearing, and Fattening all Kinds of Domestic Poultry, Pheasants, Pigeons, and Rabbits; including also an interesting Account of the Egyptian Method of hatching Eggs by artificial Heat, with some Modern Experiments thereon: from Memoranda, made during forty years' practice.—By BONINGTON MOUBRAY, Ess. Third Edition; with Additions on Breeding, Feeding, and Managing Swine, and Milch Cows for the Family Dairy.—Printed for Sherwood, Neely, and Jones, Paternoster-row.

MORRICE on BREWING and MALTING.—Price 10s. 6d. boards, A PRACTICAL TREATISE on BREWING the various A Sorts of MALT LIQUOR; with Examples of each Species, and the Mode of using the Thermometer and Saccharometer; the whole forming a complete Guide in Brewing every Description of Ale and Beer. To which are added, General Instructions for making Malt, and Tables of the Net Duties of Excise on Strong and Table Beer, payable by Common Brewers in Town and Country.—By ALEX. MORRICE, Common Brewer. Sixth Edition; with the Laws, (now first added), relating to Brewers and Maltsters, by John Williams, Esq.—Lendon: Printed for Sherwood, Neely, and Jones, Paternoster-row.

The New No. of the EDINBURGH REVIEW.—Next Week will be published, price §s.

The New No. of the EDINBURGH REVIEW.—Next Week will be published, price § 8.

THE RDINBURGH REVIEW, No. 69.—CONTENTS:—
Art. I. History of the English Legislature.—II. Almanach des Gourmands, and other Books on good Living.—III. Bissenters' Mariages—IV. Sketchrof the late Revolution at Naples.—V. Annatasius.—VI. Effects of Machinery and Accumulation.—VII. Spring Guns and Man Traps.—VIII. Chando's Leigh's Poems.—IX. Mrs. Maria Grabam's "Three Months passed in the Mountains East of Rome."—X. English and French Literature.—XI. English Conveyancing.—XII. Education Bill.

Printed for A. Constable and Co. Edinburgh; and Longman, Hurst, Rees, Orme, and Brown, Loudon; of whom may be had all the former Numbers.

remee for A. Coustance and Co. Edinburgh; and Longman, Horst, Rees, Orme, and Brown, Loudon; of whom may be had all the former Numbers.

HISTORY of the ROYAL FAMILY.—Just publis ed, in one vol. 470 price 21. 10s. dedicated (by permission) to His Majesty,

A GENERAL HISTORY of the HOUSE of GUELPH, or ROYAL FAMILY of GREAT BRITAIN, from the earliest Period in which the name appears upon record, to the Accession of his Majesty King George the First to the Throse. With an Appendix of authentic and eriginal Documents.—By Sir A. HALLIDAY, M. D. Domestic Physician to his Royal Highness the Duke of Clarence.—London: Printed for Thomas and George Underwood, Booksellers to her Royal Highness the Duchess of Clarence, 32, Fleet-street.

A few copies only are printed on large paper, price 51. 5s.

LIVER and DIGESTIVE ORGANS.

Just published, Third Edition, price 8s. 6d. boards,

A TREATISE on DERANGEMENTS of the LIVER,
DIGESTIVE ORGANS, and NERVOUS SYSTEM.—By JAMES JOHNSON, M. D. Author of the "Induence of Tropical Climates on European Constitutions," and Editor of the Medical Chirurgical Review.—Printed for T. and G. Underwood, 32, Fleet-street.

2. Also was published, on the 1st of March, No. 4, of the MEDICO-CHIRURGICAL REVIEW, or Quarterly Journal of Medical Science, containing extensive Analyses of Eighteen important Medical Works, consisting of 250 pages of closely printed letter-press.—N. B. This is the most useful and important work for country and colonial practitioners, ever offered to their attention, as it contains nothing but practical information, and exhibits a complete picture of the Medical Science of the time. Price 6s. quarterly.

Just published, price 3s. by John Callow, 16, Prince's street, Soho, PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS on the Use of the CUBEBS, or JAVA PEPPER, in the CURE of GONORTHEEA, with Cases.—By HENRY JEFFREYS, Esq. Senior Surgeon to the St. George's or JAVA PEPPER, in the CURE of GONORRHEA, with Cases.

—By HENRY JEFFREYS, Esq. Sentor Surgeon to the St. George's and St. Jamer's Dispensary, Assistant-Surgeon to the Lock Hospital, and formerly a Surgeon in the Third Regiment of Guards.

AT the NEW CHINTZ FURNITURE and MOREEN WAREHOUSE, No. 134, Oxford-street, nearly opposite Hanoversquare, the Public may be convinced of the very great advantages to be derived by comparing the Patterns and Prices of new goods with those of old ones. The Stock has been purchased for ready Money by HENRY MILES and JOHN EDWARDS, (from the Corner of Great Turnstile, Holborn) since the recent great reduction in the value: and they think it contains a great many better designs than have ever yet been offered to public inspection, and certainly at much lower prices. BRIGHTON.

TO BE SOLD, or LET for a Term of Years, A HOUSE, No. 1, situate in Derest Gardens, Brighton, with spacious Entry and lofty Rooms, comprising Front Parlour, 17 feet 2 inches by 15 feet 6 inches, with Recess in the centre; Back Parlour, 16 feet 7 inches by 15 feet 8 inches; Drawing Room over the Front Parlour, 23 feet 2 inches by 15 feet 7 inches; Back Drawing Room, r Bed Room, 17 feet 2 inches by 15 feet 7 inches; ist wither Bed Room; House, Bed Room; a large light Kitchen: Pantry, and other Offices; Wine and Beer Cellar, and an exceedingly grad Coal Cellar.—The House, heing inhabited, may be seen on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays, between the boars of twelve and two. Purther Particulars may be known at the Offices of Messrs. Brookes and Colbatch, Solictors, Prince's-place, Brighton; and of Messrs. Poulkes, Langford, and Walford, Southampton-street, Covent-Garden, at either of which places Tickets to view the House may be had.

CHEAP and FASHIONABLE CABINET & UPHOLSTERY FURNITURE, a variety of Four-post Double-screwed Bedsteads, with Chintz Drapery Furnitures, and real seasoned Down and Goose Feather Beds, with Mattressea complete; Cottage, French, Tent, Sofa, and Chair Bedsteads, with Furnitures and Bedding ready fixed for view; elegant Drawing-room Window-curtains made up. Families may see their Beds filled from the Steving room. Old Beds, or offensive and dusty new ones, stoved, dressed, and made clean and aweet. Mattresses cleaned and re-made.—N. B. The Trade supplied as usual, at T. WILMOTS MANUFACTORY, 16, John-street, two doors from Oxford-street.

DISTORTIONS of the LEGS and FEET of CHILDREN DISTORTIONS of the LEGS and FEET of CHILDREN. MESSRS. LODGE and BITTLESTEN, No. 129, Strand, have adopted an entirely NEW METHOD of CORRECTING CLUB FEET, which has been extended with much greater success, and much less pain and inconvenience, than the prevailing practice. Their instruments and Machines for the Relief of Currature of the Spine, Distortions of the Limbs, Contractions of the Joints, &c. are constructed upon scientific principles, extremely light, and entirely concealed from observation.

Mr. Lodge has been regularly educated in the profession of a surgeon, and has made the sure of the above-mentioned afflictions his peculiar study: references can be given to cases in which his mode of treatment has effected the most complete cures.

Messra, L. and B. have invented a Spring-Crutch, which has been recommended by the most emisent Surgeons; as it obviates the evils arising from the hard pressure under the arm, produced by the Crutches hishard in use hitherto in use.

BY THE KING'S PATENT.

CHANGE of RESIDENCE induces the Patentee to acquaint the Nobility and Gentry, that in consequence of the counterfeits under the same name, he has confined the sale to such respectable houses (only) who deal in genume articles. THE PATENT VIOLET SOAP having a decided preference, both as a washing and shaving Soap, for its cleansing, beautifying, softening, and balsamle properties on the skin, that it was in consequence of these inestimable qualities liks Majesty granted his Letters Patent. It should invariably be asked for as "Hall's Patent Violet Soap." It is sold in squares at 2s. 6d. and is. 6d. and in loxes containing twelve squares, at 25s. or twelve small, at 15s.; the shaving cakes at 2s. 6d. each, or in boxes, 4s. 6d. which are re-filled, at 2s. 6d. and it is forwarded to all parts of town or country, warranted to arrive safe, by addressing a line by post to the Patentee. Observe his name and signature is on the outside of the wrapper.—J. B. HALL, No. 28, Hallow-street, Burton Crescent, Lendon.

established upwards of twenty task to the all of IRISE LINEN: by the PIECE; at the Pactor's Price, No. 4, as the South Side of Recombing again, four doors from the tap of Southampton-street, Helborn, THE IRISH LINEN COMPANY beg leave to announce to the Public, that the above Renna is their only Prichlish. the Public, that the above House is their only Establishment is this Country; where they continue to supply the Nobility, Gentry, and the Public with WARRANTED GRASS-BLEACHED LINEN, for Shirts and Sheets, of the best fabric and colour, at a price considerably lower than they can be precured through any other medium.

They also engage to return the Parchase-money should any fank

Good Irish Bills and Bank of Irsiand Notes taken as manak
Country and Town orders punctually attended to by JOHN DONOVAN, 4, Bloomsbury-square, Lendon,
JOHN DOYLE, 31, 8t. Mary's Abboy, Bublia,

TO ALL WHO VALUE THEIR SIGHT.—The sight of the aged restored, the weak sight strangshand aged restored, the weak sight strengthened, and the perfect sight preserved to extreme old age, by DIXON's IMPROVED SPECTACLES. To be had only at 33, Newman street, two doors out of Orferdstreet, Manufacturer to the late Mr. Bradberry, and since his death ha-commonced Business at the above place, where the Improved Spectacles can now only be had that his sanctioned by most of the Facility, for the benefit of weak and impaired vision.—Please to observe 33, Newman-street, as there are many humble imitations of his Improved Spectacles where the Public.

BURGESS' ESSENCE of ANCHOVIES-Warehouse, 107. BURGESS' ESSENCE of ANCHOVIES—Warehouse, 107, Strand, corner of the Savoy-steps, London.—John Bargess and 500s, being apprized of the numerous erideavours made by many persons to impose a spurious atticle for their make, feel it incumbent upon them to request the attention of the Public, in purchasing what they conceive to be the Original, to observe the Name and the Address corresponds with the above:—the general appearance of the spurious descriptions with deserve the unguarded, and for their detection, J. B. and Son swhmit the following cautions,—some are in a peerance at first sight "The Genuise," but without any name or ad diess:—some "Bergess' Enseance of Auchovies:—others—"Burgis's"—and many more without Address.
John Burgess and Son having been many years honeared with unab distinguished approbation, feel every sentlment of respect towards the Public, and carnestly solicit them to inspect the Labels previous to their purchasing what they conceive to be of their make, which they hope will prevent many disappointments.

BURGESS'S NEW SAUCE, for general purposes, having given such great satisfaction, continues to be prepared by them, and is recommended as a most useful and convenient Sauce; will keep good in all climates.

Warehouse, 167, Strand, corner of the Savey-steps, London,—(The original Fish-sauce Warehouse.)

A BOST IMPORTANT DISCOVERY for CONVULSION and ENLIPPING MINE.

A MOST IMPORTANT DISCOVERY for CONVULSION and EPILEPTIC FITS, SPASMS, &c.—DR. HADLEY'S CONVULSION POWDER, a certain Remedy for Convulsion Fits in Children, and for all Spasmodic Complaints.

Patronized and sanctioned by

Mer Grace the Duchess of Rutland
Right Hen. Lady Amherst.

Right Hon. Lady Lismore.
Right Hon. Lady G. Cavendish.

Lady Caroline Lamb.

DR. HADLEY'S POWDERS, although not publicly known, have for many years snatained a proud characteristic as a never-failing remedy in the worst cases of Convulsions in Children, or Adults; also Epileptic or Falling Fits, which they completely extirpate; remayes the most violent Spasmodic Affections. These Powders are wonderfully effective even in Convumption, and in all classes of relaxation, debility, and weakness in Children and Adults, and in a short time restores the patient to perfect health, without confinement or alteration in dief.
These Powders are equally efficacious in all climates.

Sold in bettles at 4s. ed. Ils. and 22s. each, by appointment of the Proprieter, by Mr. Saager, Medicine Warehouse, 150, Oxford-street; Messrs. Barclay and Sons, 95, Fleet-market; Messrs. Newbery and Sons, 45, 81. Faul's Church-yard; Edwards, 66, 81. Paul's Church-yard; Satton and 6o. Bew Church-yard; Butter, 4, Cheapside; Evans, Longlane, Smithafield; Prout, 229, Strand; Stradling and Nix, Royal Exchauge; Jehnstone, Cornhill; Ward, 324, Holborn; and by their appointment by most respectable Medicine Venders in every Town throughput
the United Kingdom.

the United Kingdem.

27 Ask for DR. HADLBY'S Convulsion Powders

PRICI	S of th	e PUB	LIC FU	NDS.
STOCKS. Bank Stock	Mon. 714 72 81 72 81 72 81		Wed. 714- 724 814 724 89	Thur. 2:4 719 746 816 726	Frid. 2244 78 78 814 734 904	861. 2234 721 721 721 721 31 891
5 per Cent. Navy Bank Long Annuities India Bonds Exchequer Bills, 2d Ditto, 24d. Omnium	108 189 42 p 5 p	day.	108 183 42 p 5 p	108# 18# 12 p 5 p	1064 188 41 p 6 p	1001 6 1001 14 43 1 6 5

BIRTHS.

BIRTHS.
On Tuesday, the 1st instant, of a son, the Lady of Poter Househit of Penworthan Lodge, Esq. in the County Palatine of Lauseasian.
On Saturday, the 28th ult. in Gloucester-place, Lady William Party of a daughter.
At Southend, the Lady of A. Wm. Hume, Esq. of a son.
On the 27th ult. the Lady of J. Gorman, Rsq. Spanish-place, Mangher.
At Eaton-street, Grosvelor-place, the Lady of Captain J.J. A. William For the Madras Army, of a daughter.
On Wednesday last, at Normanby Hall, Lady Sheffield, of a daughter.
On Tuesday, the 24th lust. at Rode Hall, in Cheshire, the Lady of Randle Willraham, Esq. was safely delivered of a daughter.
On the 28th inst. at his father's house in Ahingdon-street, the Lady of William Lynch, Esq. of a son.
On the 28th inst. in Gloucester-place, Portman-square, the Lady of William Lynch, Esq. of a son.

MARRIAGES.
On Tuesday last, at St. George's Church, Hanover-square, Lient, St., Baker, Bart.
On May at St. George's Church, Hanover-square, Lient, St., Co., Mardy at St. George's Church, Hanover-square, Lient, St., Co., Mardy at St. George's Church, Hanover-square, Maker, Maker, Mardy at St. George's Church, Hanover-square, Maker, Maker, Maker, Mardy at St. George's Church, Hanover-square, Maker, Maker,

On Tuesday last, at $1. George's Church, Hanover-square, Lemm.
Cooper, of the Somerset Militia, to Maria Charlotte, sater to Bir Edd.
Baker, Bart.
On Monday, at $1. George's Church, Hanover-square, Major Mem.
Robson, of the 19th regiment, to Eliza, widow of the late Charles Partie.
Esq. of Canton, Chius.
At $1. George's, Hanover-square, Sir Charles Grey, one of the Jakess of the Supreme Court at Madras, to Elizabeth, second daughter of the Supreme Court at Madras, to Elizabeth, second daughter of the Samuel Clark Jervoise, Bart. of Idsworth Park, Hampshire.
On Thursday morning, at $1. Paul's, Covent-Gardes, $1r Wes. Dark, Bart. to Caroline, relict of Licat. Col. Alexander Fraser, late of the Samuel Clark Jervoise, Bart. of Society of Society States of States of Society States

On the 2nd inst. at Clifton, Mrs. Plozzi, aged 82.

In New Norfolk-street, Grosvenor-square, the Hon. Charles Street, in 78th year of this age.

At Thorncroft, near Leatherhead, Mary, eldest daughter of James.

Stirling, Esq.
On Tuesday last, in Percy-street, aged 61, Mrs. Denby, wife of Colonel Denby.
On Thursday last, at Bellevne, near Southampton, Admiral Str Rich.
Rodney Bligh, G.C.B. aged 88 years, a gallant, able, and excellent officer, on Monday last, the Rev. T. C. Burroughes, Rector of Landbeach, formerly of Caias College, Cambridge—A.B. 1778—A.M. 1781. The living is in the gift of Bene't College.

On Thursday, the 26th inst. in Southampton-row, Henry Hope, Eng.

late of Harley-street, in his 36th year.

On Sunday last, Wm. Henry, the infant son of G. Marie, Esq. at his house in Dover-street.

On the 19th ult. at Southampton, Eliza Ann Seward, aged 16, only daughter of Captain Seward, R.N. and grand-daughter of Lieut.-General Eveleigh.

At Ramsgate, on the 27th ult. in the 7th year of his age. Augustua Alexander, eldest son of Lawrence Kortright, Esq. of Furze Hall, Essex.

On the 23d ult. H. Edridge, Esq. F.S.A. and A.R.A. His remains were removed from his louse in Margaret-street, Cavendish-aquare, to Bushey, on Mosday last, for interment. As an Artist, he was well known to the world by his portraits and landscapes, principally tower, which we believe are unrivalled. Mr. Edridge was much respected for his general benevolence and the social disposition of his nature. He was only in his 53d year.

LONDON: Printed and Published by R. T. WEAVER, et No. 11, JOHNSON'S COURT, FLEET-STREET, w only Communications to the Editor, (post paid) are received

a A HIN

CHOWN OF STREET

" FOR GOD, THE KING, AND THE PEOPLE!"

No. 22.

SUNDAY, MAY 13, 1821.

Price 7d.

NEW PIANO FORTE MUSIC.

CAPRICCIO, in which is introduced Bishop's favourite Air, "Bid me Discourse," price 2s. 6d. Rondo and introduction, 6p. 52, price 3s. Variations on the Air, "Will you come to the Bower," price 3s. new edition. Introduction and Variations on the Air, "Rule Britannia," price 3s. Din Din Air, from Mozart, as a Rondo, price 3s. Variations on an Air composed by Logier, price 3s. Pas Redouble, or March, as a Duet for two Performers, price 2s., the above composed by Fred, Kalkhrenner,—Fifth Fantasia on Bishop's Air, "And has she then failed," price 4s. by Ferd. Ries. The popular Air, "THE EMBRALD ISLE," as a Kondo, by do. price 3s. Variations on a Portuguese Air, with an introduction, by G. Kialimark, price 3s. "Should and acquaintance be forgot," a Scotch Air, with Variations, by do. price 2s 6d. A new Edition of the grand Concerto, "A LA CHASSE," composed by D. Steibelt, price 8s. 6d. The popular Rondo from do. price 4s.

NEW HARP MUSIC.

L'Alliance grand Trio concertante, for the Piano Forte, Harp, and Flute, price 8s. Pastorale Fantasia and Variations on the French Air, "Dans un delire extreme," for two Performers on the Piano Forte and Harp, price 6s. La nouvelle Tyrolienne Duet for Piano Forte and Harp, price 6s. La nouvelle Tyrolienne Duet for Piano Forte and Harp, price 6s. La nouvelle Problem on the Parola Air "Brulant D'Armour et partant pour le guerre," for two Performers on the Piano Forte and Harp, price 6s. "The Blue Bells of Scotland," with new Variations, and preceded by a Fantasia for the Harp, price 4s. "Fra taate angosice e palpite," with Variations for the Harp, price 4s. "Fra taate angosice e palpite," with Variations for the Harp, price 4s. "Fra taate angosice e palpite," with Variations for the Harp, price 4s. "the above composed by N. C. Boehsa.—Rossini's celebrated, Opera, "Il Tancredi," arranged as a Duet for the Harp and Piano Forte, with Accompaniments for the Flute and Yioloneello, by J. F. Burrowes, in four books, price each, 5s.

NEW VOCAL MUSIC.

Don John, an Ope

by J. F. Burrowes, in four books, price each, 5s.

NEW VOCAL MUSIC.

Don John, an Operatic Drama, now performing at the Theatre Royal Covent Garden, composed and arranged for the Piano Forte, by W. H. Ware and H. R. Bishop, price 15s. The Overture, price 2s. 6d. and following Songs and Duets, as sung by Miss Hallande and Miss Stephens, may be had separate. "My vow of heartfelt graftinde," price 1s. 6d. "Blow, blow, we gentle gales," price 2s. "With love my heart is beating," price 1s. 6d. "Far from his native mountains torn," price 2s. "Ye little birds," price 2s. "See, oh, see, how every tree, "price 2s. The celebrated Savóyard Duet, price 2s. 6d. "Now by Day's retiring lamp," Glee, price 3s. The tirst Volume of RUSSIAN MELODIES, with appropriate English Words, by Harry Stoe Vandyk, Esq. the Symphonies and Accompaniments for the Piano Forte, composed, and inscribed to the Countess Lieven, by John Barrett, pupil of Ferd. Ries, price 15s.—Published by Goulding, D'Almaine, and Co. 29, Soho-square.

NEW MUSIC.—Just published, by the Royal Harmonic Institution, Lower Saloon, Argyll Rooms, Regent-street,
DRAMATIC AIR, No. 16, "Al Boscia faecia onore," a celebrated Chorus from Mozart. Opera of Il Seraglio, arranged as a Rondo for the Piano Forte, by Ferd. Ries, 3s. "Qual Speranza," a favourite Air from the same Opera, arranged by T. A. Rawlings, 3s. "Sci morelli e quattro bai," a favourite Air, by Cimarosa, arranged as a Rondo, by G. Masi, price 3s.

NEW MUSIC.—Sir JOHN STEVENSON—"The Day-beam

NEW MUSIC .- Sir JOHN STEVENSON - " The Day-beam NEW MUSIC.—Sir JOHN STEVENSON—"The Day-beam is over the Sea," the Venetian Boat Song, sung with the most unlounded applause at the London, Bath, and Dublin Concerts; arranged for one, two, or three voices; the words written by J. A. Wade, Esq.; the Music composed by the celebrated Sir J. A. Stevenson, Mus. Boc. price 3s. This piece, from the richness and the beautiful simplicity of the melody, has already ranked itself among the most admired productions of the day. Edinor's Song, "And can'st thou hid my heart forget," from Glenarvon, as sung, by Mrs. Ashe at the Bath Concerts with enthusiastic applause; composed by F. J. Klose, price 1s, 6d. This is the third edition. "Dear Harp of Sweet Erin," Ballad; sung by Mr. Leoni Lee, with the greatest applause, at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, written by Miss Chapman, composed by Bernard Lee, price 1s, 6d.—London; printed by Phillips and Mayhew, music-sellers to H. R. H. the Duches of Kent, 17, Old Bond-street, NEW HARP MUSIC.

NEW HARP MUSIC.

BOCHSA'S FANTASIA on a favourite Irish Melody, 4s. Ditto Octave Sonata, 6s. Ditto, French March, 2s. Ditto, Vars, on "Nel cor pin," 3s. And the favourite Airs in the Opera of "Tancredi," arranged by ditto, 6s. French Romances, arranged by Dizi, Book I and 2; each 4s. Ditto's, Vars, on "Toulours," 3s. Dussek's Vars, on the New Tyrolean Waltz, 2s. Ditto, on a French Air; 2s.

For the HARP and the PIANO FORTE:

The favourite Airs in the Opera of "Tancredi," arranged by Bochsa, Book t and 2, each 10s. 6d. Bochsa's Duet, dedicated to Lady Ogie, 7s. Moralt's Three Petite Fieces, 5s. Dicto, Three Airs from Mozart, 6s. Steil's First Set of Quadrilles, 4s.; and Handel's Hallelajah Chorus, (being No. 1 of a Series of Chorusses, arranged by Burrowes.) 3s. 6d.

Published and sold by Chappell and Co...Music-sellers to His. Majesty, 50, New Bond-street.

MESSRS, CHARLES and WILLIAM KNYVETT beg leave respectfully to acquaint the Nobility, Gentry, and their Priends, that their ANNUAL CONCERT will take place on FRIDAY NEXT, at the Hanover-square Rooms, particulars of which will be shortly announced.

NEW ROOMS, HANOVER SQUARE.

MR. GREATOREX most respectfully informs the Nobility, Gentry, and his Friends generally, that his ANNUAL CONCERT is fixed for FRIDAY, the 25th instant.—Particulars will be duly announced.

MR. HAYDON'S PICTURE of CHRIST'S AGONY in the GARDEN, with Solomon, Macbeth, Dentatus, Romeo and Juliet, his Drawings from Elgin Marbles and from Nature, and the Drawings of his Pupils from the Cartoons, with some of THEIR FIRST ATTEMPTS in PAINTING, are NOW OPEN at the Gallery next door to the British Institution, Pall Mail, from 10 till dusk.—Admittance, is. Catalogues, 6d.

THE WEEKLY REVIEW, No. 11.—Contents:—Art. 1. Huz-

CONTENTS:—Art. 1. Huz-litt's Table. Talk.—Art. 2. Tomline's Life of Pitt. CONTENTS of No. 1.—Art. 1. Waldegrave's Memoirs.—Art. 2. Transactions of the Cambridge Philosophical Society.—Art. 3. Byron's Marino Faliero.— to No. 111. will appear Reviews of Lyon's Travels: Tracts, by Bowles, Byron, Sc.; De Renzy; and Croly's Paris in 1815.—Published by C. Chapple, Royal Library, Pall Mall.

GENUINE EPISTLES OF THE APOSTOLICAL FATRIERS.

Just published, in one volume 8vo. very neatly printed,
THE GENUINE E PISTLES of the A POSTOLICAL FATHERS: being, together with the Holy Scriptures of the New Testament, a Complete Collection of the most primitive Antiquity, for about 150 years after Christ; translated by William, late Archibishop of Canterbury. Price 9s. boards.—Printed for Samuel Bagster, 15, Paternoster Row.

LATIN GRAMMAR. A LATIN GRAMMAR, by the REV. FREDERICK NOLAN; price 2s. 6d. where may be had, by the same Author, the GREEK, HEBREW, CHALDEE, SYRIACK, PRENCH, and ITALIAN GRAMMARS; 2s. 6d. each; forming, with the Spanish, and German, now at press, a POLY-GLOTT GRAMMAR, in which the genius of the principal Ancient, and Modern Languages, is explained upon an uniform plan; and by a new and simple principle of Analysis, applied to the improvements of the latest, and most improved Grammarians. nuel Bagster, No. 1 Paternoster D

THIS EVENING, a SERMON will be PREACHED by the Rev. LEIGH RICHMOND, A. M. Rector of Turvey, Bedfordshine, at St. Antholin's, Watling-street. After which a Collection will be made to defray the Lecturer's annual Expenses for lighting the Church.

2 POPERY and PROTESTANTISM compared, one of the St. Antholin Lectures, to be liad of Simpkin and Marshall, and all Booksellers.

Prayers begin at Seven o Clock.

WILSON ON DISEASES OF THE BONES AND JOINTS.

WILSON ON DISEASES OF THE BONES AND JOINTS.

Just published, in Svo, price 12s, boards.

LECTURES on the STRUCTURE and PHYSIOLOGY of the PARTS composing the SKELETON, and on the Diseases of the Bones and Joints of the Human Body; preceded by some observations on the influence of the Brain and Nerves; delivered before the Royal College of Surgerys, in the summer of the year 1820; By JAMES WILSON, F. B. S. Processor of Anatomy and Surgery at the Hunterian School in Great Windmill Street, &c. &c. &c. London; printed for Burgess and Hill, 55, Great Windmill Street; Haymarket.—Also, Lately published, by the same Author,

LECTURES on the BLOOD; and on the Anatomy, Physiology, and Surgical Pathology of the Vascular System of the Human Body, Svo. boards, 12s,

TO THE LOYERS OF THE FINE ARTS .- Just published, in royal 4to.

FOUR ORIGINAL LITHOGRAPHIC VIEWS in LAND-SCAPE, &c. &c. by F. CALVERT; being No. 1. of a New Serios, equal in execution to Drawings usually sold at 40s.—London: Published by T. Hughes, 35, Ludgate-street; of whom may be had, No. 1 to 4 in 4to. price 1s. 6d. c. ch.

1s. 6d. e ch.

2. CALVERT'S PROGRESSIVE DRAWING HOOKS, containing 16
Lithographic Drawings, such as cannot fail both to instruct and improve in that useful and accomplished art.

Ditto, nearly ready for publication, 6d. each, 1 to 6, in small 4to, each containing 16 Subject.

3. The LITHOGRAPHIC DRAWING BOOK for Beginners; being the first Rudiments of that Art. The Student in this Work is let on so progressively, that it is impossible for any one having an inclination for Drawing, but must soon become a proficient in the art of design.

Just published, in 12mo, price 8a. in boards,

A NNALS of the PARISH; or, The Chronicle of Dalmailing, during the Ministry of the Rev. Micah Balwhidder; written by himself.
Arranged and edited by the Author of "The Ayrshire Legatees," &c.—Printed for T, Cadell, Strand, London; and W. Blackwood, Edinburgh.

BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE. No. XLIX. for BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE. No. XLIX. for APRIL, 1821.

CONTENTS:—I. Fables from La Fontaine, in English Verse.—II. A Second Letter from the Man in the Moon.—III. Letter to the Editor.—IV. A Reverie in the Garden of Plants.—V. Ode written in the Cemetery of Pere La Chalse.—YI. Graham's Memoirs of Poussin.—VII. On the Cultivation and Patronage of British Art.—VIII. British Eclogues. No. II. The Mariner's last Visit.—IX. On the neglect of Foote as a dramatic Writer.—X. Hore Danice. No. V. Massaniello: a Tragedy. By B. S. Ingennan.—XII. Letter from "* enclosing Hymn to Christopher North, Esq.—XII. Manchester! Poetry.—XIII. The September Forest.—XIV. The Wail of Lady Anne.—XV. Letter from Fogarty O'Fogarty, Esq. Daniel O'Rourke, an Epic Poem, in Six Cautos. Cauto IV. The Moon.—XVI. Owen's Report to the County of Lanurk.—XVII. Lord Byron's Doge of Venice.—XVIII. Works preparing for publication.—XIX. Monthly Legister.

Printed for T. Cadell and W. Davies, Strand, London; and W. Blackwood, I7. Prince's street, Edinburgh.

Just published, price 3s.

BIBLE RHYMES, on the Names of all the Books of the Old Bible RHYMES, On the Names of all the Books of the Old and New Testament, with Allusions to some of the principal Incidents and Characters. By HANNAH MORE—Printed for T. Cadell, in the Strand; and Hatchard and Son, Piccadilly; and W. Blackwood, Edinburgh; of whom may also be had, by the same Author.

2. MORAL SKETCHES of prevailing Opinions and Manners, Poreign and Domestic, with Reflections on Prayer. Eighth Edition, price 9s. in boards—and New Editions of all her other Works.

Just published; in 12mo, price 8s, in boards,

A NNALS of the PARISH; or, The CHRONICLE of DALMAILING, during the Ministry of the Rev. Micals Balwhidder; written by himself, Arranged and edited by the Author of "The Ayrshire Legatees," &c.—Printed for T. Cadell, Strand, London; and W. Blackwood, Edinbargh

THE MODERN CHURCH; a Satirical Poem; comprising Sketches of some popular and unpopular Preachers. By J. L. BICKNELL, Esq. F.A.S., Printed for T. Cadell, in the Strand; of whom may be had, by original MISCELLANIES, in Press and Verse, Price 9s. in

Just published, in 3 vols. 12mo, price 11. 4s. in boards,

Just published, in 3 vols. 12mo, price 11. 4s. in boards,

VALBRIUS: A Roman Story.

"They'll sit by the fire, and presume to know what's done i' the Capitol."—Shakespeare.
Printed for T. Cadell, Strand, London; and Wm. Blackwood, Edinburgh.

Just published, in 4to, price It. 11s. 6d.

PRIVATE CORRESPONDENCE of DAVID HUME, the Historian, with several distinguished Persons; now first published from the Originals in the possession of the Editor.—Printed for Henry Colburn and

THE SELF-INDICATIVE TIME TABLES; dedicated, by Permission, to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, by G. A. THOMPSON, Esq. of the Audit Office, and Translator of Alcedo. Printed for Longman, Hurst, and Co.; Carpenter, Old Bond Street; and Richardson, Cornhill.

Just published, for Carpenter, Old Bond Street; and Richardson, Cornnill.

Just published, for Carpenter, Old Bond Street, in five vols. 4to. price to Subscribers, 10l. 10s. boards, or with the Atlas, 22 guineas.

THE DICTIONARY of AMERICA and WEST INDIES; or, Thompson's Alcedo; affording a general Account of all that is interesting in the Western World, and a Complete Ficture of the Theatres of the present wars in South America.

"It is a work, (says the Quarterly) in which the impartiality of the narrative is not less to be admired than the variety and accuracy of the general information."

The British calls it " an indispensible appendage to every respectable

The British calls it "an indispensible appendage to every respectively."

"Whilst it was, even in the original," as the Edinburgh observes, "one of the best books in Geography."

As all the Government Departments and principal Subscription Libraries have been provided, it is impossible that an equally cheap and handsome edition can be again published. A very few copies are now remaining, the number printed having been regulated by the Subscribers, a list of whom may be had, by application as above, or to the author, No. I, Lambeth Terrace. Persons possessing the book, whose names are not in the list, are most particularly requested to intimate the same to Mr. T. that they may be recorded with the work.

NEW THEORY of the HEMISPHERE, pro-

the work.

By the same Author, A NEW THEORY of the HEMISPHERE, proposing to shew the exact time and manner in which America was peopled; price 6s. 0d.

A MODE of GUARDING DWELLING HOUSES, by their Construction, against ACCIDEN'TS by FIRE. By the late Right Hon. Warren Hastings; price 2s. 6d.

GUIDE to the CAPE of GOOD HOPE.—Just published, price 2s. 6d.
COMPENDIOUS ACCOUNT of the CAPE of GOOD HOPE, with its Productions and Resources; including, also, a variety of important Information for the use of Persons about to emigrate to that Colony.—Printed for Sherwood, Neely, and Jones, Paternoster-row.

15 This account of the Cape of Good Hope is extracted from a valuable Work entitled "Notes on Africa," by G. A. Robertson, Esg. of Liverpool; and, being obtained from the mest authentic sources, it is presumed that it will be found very useful to all persons desirous of establishing themselves in that country. SAY'S REPLY TO MALTHUS

ETTERS to MR. MALTHUS.—Just published in I vol. 9s. boards, LETTERS to MR. MALTHUS on several SUBJECTS of POLITICAL ECONOMY, and particularly on the Cause of the general Stagnation of Commerce: to which is added, A CATECHISM of POLITICAL ECONOMY, or. Familiar Conversations on the Manner in which Wealth is produced, distributed, and consumed in Society. Translated from the French of J. B. SAY, by J. RICHTER, Esq.—Printed for Sherwood, Neely, and Jones, Paternoster-row. Either Work may be kad separately, 2. LETTERS to MALTHUS, price 4s.

3. CATECHISM of POLITICAL ECONOMY, 6s.

ENGLAND, and the ENGLISH PEOPLE. By Jean Baptiste Say,

Also, by the same Author,

4. ENGLAND, and the ENGLISH PEOPLE. By Jean Baptiste Say, Professor of Political Economy at the Royal Athenseum of Paris. Translated from the French, by John Richter. Second Edition, price 2s. 6d.

NEW VOYAGES and TRAVELS, closely printed in 4 vols. royal Ismo-illustrated with Maps, price 1l. 10s. in boards, or, 1l. 12s. half bound.

THE FLOWERS of MODERN VOYAGES and TRAVELS: comprising those most worthy of Record, between the years 1896 and 1820.—By W. ADAMS, A.M.

These "Flowers," embracing Europe, Asia, Africa, and America, have been selected from the most valuable and authentic Sources; and are particularly adapted for such Persons as do not possess the means, or the opportunity, of perusing expensive ar voluminous Statements.—Each of the four volumes is complete of itself, and may be had separately.

By The Purchasers of "Dr. Mavor's Collection of Voyages and Travels are respectfully informed, these Volumes were undertaken principally with the view of perfecting his valuable Wilk; for, there is publication, large Accessions have been made to our general Stock of Voyages and Travels. With this Addition, however, it is hoped, "Dr. Mavor's Collection" will continue to rank as the most comprehensive and perfect of its kind.—Printed for Sherwood, Neely, and Jones, Paternoster row.

A LETTER to the Right Honourable LORD BYRON.

PURSUAN'S CAZITAS.

A LETTER to the Right Honourable LORD BYRON.—
"Some of Bull's friends advised him to take gentle methods with the young Lord; but John naturally loved rough play. It is impossible to express the surprise of LORD STRUTT, upon the receipt of this Letter."—Arbuthnot. This Letter is the first of a Series, to be continued occasionally.—The Second Letter is addressed to Mr. Thomas Campbell, the Third to His Majesty the King, and the Fourth is also to Lord Byron—London: Printed for W. Wright, 46, Fleet-street.

Just published.

AN ADDRESS to the IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT, upon the PRACTICAL MEANS of gradually abolishing the POOR LEWS.

AN ADDRESS to the IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT, upon the PRACTICAL MEANS of gradually abolishing the POOR LAWS, and educating the Poor systematically, &c. &c.—By WM. HERBERT SAUNDERS, Esq. 3s.

2. A LETTER from the KING to HIS PEOPLE. Twenty-third Edition, 2s.

Nearly ready, in one volume, 8vo. price 7s.;—3. A TEN YEARS' RESIDENCE in FRANCE, during the severest part of the Revolution, from the year 1787 to 1797; containing various Ancedotes of some of the most remarkable Personages of that time, &c. &c. By Mrs. CHARLOTTE WEST.—By William Sams, Bookseller (by appointment) to His Royal Highness the Duke of York, St. James's-street.

FOR PAYMENT IN ADVANCE.

T BAGSHAW, 34, Brydges-street, Covent-Garden, Son and Support that he sends the under-mentioned Newspapers to all parts of the United Kingdom, postage free, at the marked price.

DAILY PAREUS.

Morning Post
Morning Post
Morning Herald
British Press
Public Ledger
Morning Advertiser
Courler, and Globe
Statesman, and True Briton
Traveller
Sun, and Star.

Traveller Sun, and Star.

MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, & FRIDAY.

London Chronicle London Packet Evening Mail.

TUESDAY AND PRIDAY.

TUESDAY, TRURSDAY, & SATURDAY, Commercial Chronicle St. James's Chronicle St. James's Chronicle English Chronicle General Evening Post.

WEEKLY PAPERS.

SUNDAY PAPERS,
John Bull
Weekly Intelligencer
Bell's Messenger
Examiner
News
Independent Whig
National Register
Dispatch Dispatch
Observer
Englishman
Antigallican
Constitution Constitution Champion Sunday Monitor Sunday Advertiser Sunday Advertiser Literary Gazette.

SATURDAY'S GAZETTE, MAY 5.

CERTIFIC ATES—May 26.

T. Pickton, Hammersmith, tea dealer.—J. Adlington, Tottenbam, builder.—J. Saunders, Duke Street, St. James's, surgeon,—T. Leeds, Gerards, Cheshire, cotton spinner.—T. Gibbons the younger, Wells next the Ses, Norfolk, merchant.—J. B. Benson, Artillery Place, Finshury Square, merchant.—R. Knights, Gray's Inn Lane, livery stable keeper.—J. Acason, Valentine Farm Ridge, Hertfordshire, cow dealer.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTE.

Carlton Honse, May 5th, 1821.

His Majesty having been pleased to appoint Licut. Gen. the Hon. Sir E. Paget, G. C. B. to be Governor and Commander in Chief in the Island of Ceylon, he this day took the caths as Governor of the said Island.

WAR-OFFICE, May 11, 1821.

7th Reg. Drag. Guards—Capt. C. H. Semerset, from the Cape Corps, to be Capt. wice Fawcett.

7th Reg. Drag. Guards.—Capt. C. H. Semerses, from the cape corps, to be Capt. by Fawcett.

28th Reg. Lt. Drag.—Lieut. H. Georges to be Capt. by purch. vice Skelton.—Cornet G. B. Hall to be Lieut. by purch vice Georges.—W. J. T. Fagg. Gent. to be Cornet, by purch. vice Hall.

13th Reg. Foot.—Lieut. H. Waterman to be Capt. by purch. vice Light.—Ens. C. H. L. Tinling to be Lieut. by purch vice Waterman.

To be Ens. by purch.—Gent. Cadet H. King, from the Royal Military College, vice O'Ryan.—J. Jones, Gent. vice Tinling.

16th Ditto—Ens. William George Earl of Erroll, from 85th Foot, to be Lieut. without purch. vice Watton.

21st Ditto—Capt. G. Jack, from half-pay Royal West India Rangers, to be Capt. vice Orr.

Capt. vice Orr.

33d Ditto—Lieut. Col. S. Mosfatt, from 1st Ceylon Reg. to be Lieut. Col. vice Pelly.

37th Ditto—Capt. J. Thoreau, from half-pay 40th Foot, to be Capt. vice Taylor.

41st fitto—Brev, Maj, P. L. Chambers to be Maj., by purchase, vice Frend.

Lieut. W. F. O'Reilly to be Capt. by purchase, vice Chambers.—Ensign A.

Caldwell to be Lieut., by purchase, vice O'Reilly.—G. Todd, Gent. to be Ens.

by purch. vice Caldwell.

50th Ditto—Capt. J. Anderson, from half-pay York Chasseurs, to be Capt.

vice Patterson.

vice Patterson, 55th Ditto—Capt. C. Daniell, from half-pay 99th Foot, to be Capt. vice 56th Ditto—Lieut. W. Gun to be Capt, without purch, vice Barry.—Ensign N. Palmer to be Lieut, vice Gun.

82d Ditto—Capt. R. Martin, from half-pay 62d Foot, to be Capt. vice T.

82d Ditto—Capt. R. Martin, from half-pay 62d Foot, to be Capt. vice E. C. Meech.
85th Ditto—H. M. Gordon, Gent, to be Ens. without purch. vice Lord Erroll., 91st Ditto—Capt. J. Manu, from half-pay 98th Foot, to be Capt. vice A. J.
Callander.—Ens. E. Mallett, from half-pay 37th Foot, to be Ens. vice B. H.

Bunbury. 2d West India Reg.—Lieut. J. N. Fox, from half pay 99th Post; to be Payaster, vice Dely.

Ist Ceylon Reg.—Lieut-Col. H. Sullivan, from half-pay 56th Foot, to be Lieut-Col. Vice Moffatt, appointed to the 33d Foot.

Cape Corps (Cavalry)—Capt. F. De Visne, from half-pay 21st Light Dragoons, to be Capt. of a Troop, vice C. H. Somerset.

Hospital Staff—Staff Surgeon J. Clark, M. D. from half-pay, to be Surgeon to the Forces, vice Roy.—Hosp. Ass. R. Moir, from half-pay, to be Hosp. Ass. to the Forces, vice Bruce.

Hospital Staff—Staff Surgeon J. Clark, M.D. from half-pay, to be Surgeon to the Forces, vice Bruce.

Other Porces, vice Bruce.

Chaplain—Rev. J. S. Pering, M.A. to be Chaplain to the Porces.

Commissions in the North York Militia, signed by the Fice-Lieutenant of the North Riding of the County of York.

G. L. Thompson, Esq. to be Capt. vice Healey—E. Turton, Esq. to be do.—

G. Smith, Gent, to be Ensign.

Commissions signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the Gounty of Salep.

North Shropshire Regt, of Yeomanry Cavalry—The Hon. A. H. Trevor to be Cornet, vice Wardley—T. Bather, Gent, to be do. vice Edwards—R. Jones, Gent, to be do. vice Marriott.

Shredebury Regt, of Yeomanry Cavalry—Lieut, F. Walford—T. B. Farker to be Cornet, vice Baler—Ornet R. Burton to be Lieut. vice Walford—T. B. Farker to be Cornet, vice Burton—W. Burley, Gent, to be do. vice Dryden.

Commissions in the Durham Yeomany Cavalry—sired by the Lord Diestenant of the County of Durham.

W. Allan, Esq. to be Gapt.—G. Wood, Gent, to be Lieut.—T. Crollen.

Gent, to be do.

BANKRUPTCIES SUPERSEDED.

PREBBLE, J. the Younger, Stratford-Bow, miller.

LOWE, G. Manchester, cotton dealer.

BELL, J. R. Old Broad Street, London, ship and insurance-broker

BANKRUPTS.

BRUTON, G. N. Devizes, conchemaker.

VAUGHAN, E. Monythushyne, Monmouth, spothecary and coal-merchant.

HUNTON, G. Catestof irreet, London, Huranad woollen factor.

RICHARDS, W. Shorezwich, suap-maker.

HUNTON, J. Farnecomb, Surrey, Grape-manufacturer.

WETON, J., JAMES, W. and FANE, T. the Yeunger, Wood Silver, ribbon-manufacturers.

BLAKEY, J. R. Liverpool, vinegar-maker.

HULKES, T. E. Saint Margaret's, Rochester, miller.

YOUNG, J. the Younger, Romsey, Hants, upholsterer.

Digitized by GOOGIC

TUESDAY'S GAZETTE.

CROWN OFFICE, May 8, 1821.

Member Returned to Serve in this Present Parliament.

Borough of Ludgershak.—The Right Hon, George Charles Pratt, commonly called Earl of Brecknock, in the room of the Eight Hon, the Earl of Carhampton, deceased.

Commission in the Infuntry of the King's Cheshire Folunteer Legion, signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Chester, Lieutenant Samuel Hardey to be Captain, vice Holland, resigned.

PARTYRERHYS DISSOLVED.

Lettenant sander Hardey to be captain, view e Holand, resigned.

L. J. and R. Peirson, High Street, Shoreditch, silversmiths and salesmen.

Holmes and Farrer, Mount Street, Berkeley Square, hair dressers.—T. and G. Rimmer, and R. Lyon, Liverpool, timber merchants.—H, and J. Petty, Evershot, Dörsethlire, woolstaplers and farmers.—Wallace, Alston, and Gonnell, Glasgow.—Lax and Neeson, Manchester, tea dealers.—Lister and Pilkington, Blackburn, and Lister, Liverpool, merchants, so far as regards J. Lister.—G. and D. Williams, Chipping-Sodbury, Gloucestershire, linen drapers and grocers.—D. and T. Williams. Bristel, linen drapers.—Ramsay and Atkinson, Swalwell, Durham, maisters.—A. and E. M'Call, Heywood, Lancashire, drapers and grocers.—Armstrong and Flint, Warwick, woollen drapers.—Lance and Cripps, Liverpool, and Stubbs, St. Andrew's, New Brunswick, merchants.—J. Burgess and Co. Mitton next Sittingbourne, and Maidstone, millers.—Phelps and Kinsey, Evesham, Worcestershire, attorneys at law.—E. and C. Freeman, Wigmore Street, Cavendish Square, wax and tallow chandlers.—Hargreave and Robinson, Oxford Street, linen drapers.—Crusha and Gifford, Thetford.

BANKRUPTS. PARTNERSHIPS DISSOLVED.

Crusha and Gifford, Thetford.

ADAMS, J. Stamford, Lincolnshire, corn merchant.
BAVERSTOCK, R. Brompton, plumber.
FOWLER, G. Cullumpton, Devonshire, hosier.
GILBERT, G. Church Street, Mile-end New-town, victualler.
KYPFEN, J. Limchouse-hole, Poplar, dealer.
ROBERTS, H. Holywell, Flintshire, grocer.
SMART, W. Bishopsgate Street, carpenter.
WALLS, T. Webber Street, Lambeth Marsh, hat manufacturer.
WATMOUGH, J. sen. Orford, Lincolnshire, farmer.
DIVUDENDS.

WATMOUGH, J. sen. Orford, Lincolnshire, farmer.

DIVIDENDS.

July 3, W. Boyd, P. Benfield, and J. Drummond, London, merchants.—May 29, E. Batt, J. Backshell, and A. W. Batt, Witney, Oxfordshire, bankers.—May 29, W. Brock and B. Le Mesnrier, Warnford Court, Throgmorton Street, merchants.—May 29, J. Stubbs, Castle Street, Leicester Square, Jeweller.—May 12, R. P. Guyard, Throgmorton Street, merchant.—May 29, J. Bromley, Circus Street, New Road, Mary le-bone, ironmonger.—June 1, W. R. Gilbert, Leicester, woodstapler.—May 29, T. Lloyd and J. Winter, Bise Ball Yard, St. James's Street, wine merchants.—May 30, J. Collinson, Chorley, Lahcashire, shopkeeper.—June 2, J. Whitley, Dubb in Bingley, Yorkshire, worsted spinner.—May 29, H. Barton, Paul's Cray, Kent, miller. May 31, J. Larkworthy, Exeter, comb maker.—June 19, T. Smith, York, butter and bacon factor.

CERTIFICATES—May 29

Dutter and bacon factor. CERTIFICATES—May 29.

J. Macleod, Cernhill, boot and shoemaker.—W. Woods, Haughton Street, Clare Market, coal merchant.—A. Sarvis, Sloane Street, Chelsea, upholstere.—J. Russ, Derizes, Wilts, innkeeper.—W. Smith, Naburn Grange, Yorkshire, corn factor.—J. Boud, Blackman Street, Sonthwark, Surrey, innkeeper.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Paris Papers to the 8th inst. state, that Prince Ypsilanti, according to advices from the frontiers of Wallachia of the 12th ult. had made his entry into Bucharest, preceded by Theodore and the principal Boyards, who went to meet him at some distance from the city; an event which must be deemed of considerable importance, not only from the obvious advantage atchieved, but from the contradiction it affords to the statement in the Hamburgh Mail of an irreconcileable difference of sentiment and principle subsisting between those two eminent Chiefs. This entry was considered by the Wallachians as a real triumph.

About seventy Members of the Chamber of Deputies have received the decoration of the Legion of Honour. One hundred and seventy-two functionaries of the Ministry of the Finance have been created Chevaliers of the Legion of Honour.

The discussion of the affair of the 19th August will open in the Chamber of Peers to-morrow.

Yesterday, at three o'clock, the prisoners implicated in the charge of conspiracy were removed to the prison which has been prepared for them in the barracks occupied by the gens d'armes. The day before, a huissier gave them the list of 178 witnesses who will be before, a huissier gave them the list of 178 witnesses who will be examined in this affair; independently of the witnesses in favour of the accused.—(Journal des Debats.)

In the Chamber of Deputies on Friday, a debate arose on an amendment made by the Peers in the Projet of Law for circumscribing the Electoral Colleges. This was characterized as an infringement of the Charter, which decrees that no amendment can be made in a law without the consent of the Crown. The amendment was however utilimately advantaged on a division of 2014 to 20.

be made in a law without the consent of the Crown. The amendment was, however, ultimately adopted, on a division of 204 to 36.

A Madrid article, dated the 24th of April, says—"M. Bernaben proposed, in the Sitting of the 23d, to the Cortes, a Decree against the Bishops, who are enemies to the Constitutional System, and whom they had, or should, banish to their Sees, assigning them proper pensions. This Projet, which is in six Articles, is in substance as follows:—That the Government should make known to the Roman Pontiff the sad state in which several of the churches in Spain are from the exparing in our banishpurp of their Pastors. are from the expatriation or banishment of their Pastors; a measure which the temporal authority has been forced to take, in order to punish them for infringing the Laws and Constitutional System adopted by the King and the nation, whose confidence they have lost by their conduct. That it should represent to the Sovereign Pontiff the spiritual evils which must result to these churches from the deprivation of their Pastors, and how much these evils would be aggravated, to the detriment of the public tranquillity, if the be aggravated, to the detriment of the phone tranquinty, it the former Pastors are restored. That, in short, his Holiness would do well to exhort them to renounce their dignities, since they can be no more useful to their flocks, either spiritually or temporally.

—That his Holiness would also well exhort the other Bishops, who

(by disaffection to the Constitutional System, or the fetters they have put upon the dispositions of the Legislative Power, have lost all consideration in public opinion, and destroyed that which was salue to the sacred character) also to renounce their dignities. That immediately after the renunciation shall take place, Government shall assure them a sufficient pension.—That in cases where the said Prelates shall refuse to renounce their dignities, the Government ment shall use the means prescribed by law to avoid the evils which result from a long vacancy of Sees.—That the Sees once declared vacant by the renunciation or civil death of their Pastors, the Government shall proceed to the nomination of other Prelates, who have given proofs of their adhesion to the Constitutional System, and who possess the requisite religious gualifications. and who possess the requisite religious qualifications.—Seeing that the safety of the country is meanced by many Ecclesiastics, who, openly preaching against the Constitutional System, do all that they can to lead astray the public mind, the Government shall exercise the superstantial exercise the superstantial exercise. cise the severest surveillance, in order to act according to the law against these enemies of our political existence The Cortes gave a reading to the projet.

INDIAN AND COLONIAL

NEW YORK, April 10. FROM HAVIL. We learn from Capt Towne, of the brig Clarissa, says the Charleston Times of the 4th instant, that Colonels Cemetiere and Belzunce, and Cal tain Dominique, were fried on the 4th of March, found guilty, and sentenced to death. They were shot on the 5th, with General Richard.— Courts-Martial, held on Colonel Pierre Paul, and Lieutenant Lami-Courts-Martial, held on Colonel Pierre Paul, and Lieutenant Lamisere, had also convicted them; but, in consequence of some circumstances deemed of a palliating character in their offence, they were sentenced to hard labour for a term of years. Insisting upon their imnocence, and in hope of acquittal, they petitioned for new fials, which were gramed them; but, the new Courts, however, as merciful than the old, sentenced them to death, and they were hot on the 12th ult.—Several persons, implicated in the late atempt, were yet to undergo trials. It was reported, when Capt. T. sailed, that Government had rece, ved information relative to Gen. stant-transit loosterid

Romaine, (a principal in the conspiracy, who had fled) which warranted the expectation of his speedy apprehension.—President Boyer had abandoued his intended visit to Gonaives, his presence not being requisite.—All kinds of American produce dull, and at low rates.—Coffee, 32 sous; and sugar 8 dol. 50c. per cwt. Money plentiful.

CALLAO, Nov. 11.—As gallant and well executed a feat of valour was a few days ago performed by Lord Cochrane as was ever valour was a few days ago performed by Lord Cochrane as was ever winessed. It was the cutting out of a Spanish frigate, manned by 150 sailors, and 400 artillerymen, from under several batteries, mounting in all not less than 200 brass pieces of cannon, averaging 18 pounders, besides four vessels of war, mounting each twenty long guns, It was performed by eight boats, containing each 20 men, in the following manner:—About half-past 12 o'clock, on the night of the 6th inst. his Lordship pulled into the harbour at the head of his party (having previously obtained the watch-word by surprising the guard-boat) to board the Esmeralda, of forty guns; himself, with his little son by his side, being the first man on the deck. After a bloody conflict of about half an hour, (for the Spaniards fought with desperation) they succeeded in obthe Spaniards fought with desperation) they succeeded in ob-taining possession of the spar-deck, and immediately made sail upon the ship; the people that were driven from off the fore-castle into the water having cut her cables in hopes that she would driff on shore. The gun and birth decks, however, as we have since heard, were kept possession of by the Spaniards for as much as half an hour, upwards of one hundred men being killed and as many wounded. As soon as we perceived that the Esmeraida was likely to fall foul of us, we slipped our moorings and made soil; the captured frigate keeping within 100 yards of us, and hoisting the same lights that we had previously put up, in order to make it dubious to the soldiers on shore which of the two vessels to fire at. This well-adapted ruse de guerre had the desired effect; for the shot flew about our heads, and cut away our cross jack-yard, and a great deal of our running rigging. After sustaining their fire about a quarter of an hour we got out of the reach of their shot.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS. MONDAY.

The Royal Assent was given by commission to the Irish and Eng-lish Bank Cash Payments, the Irish Stamp Duties Bill, and the Royal African Company Bill.

TUESDAY.

Mr. Wilbraham, Booth, and others, brought up the Jurors Attendance Bill, and several Private Bills, from the Commons, which were read a first time.

WEDNESDAY.

The Marquis of Lansdowne presented a petition from the Mer-chants of London, praying that the Timber Duties Bill might not pass into a law, which was laid on the table.

THURSDAY.

Earl Bathurst said he should move the second reading of the Timber Duties Bill to-morrow se'nnight.

The Earl of Darnley noticed the hardships under which several persons residing in the Colony of Newfoundland stood, who com-plained of the improper administration of justice. He hoped their grievances would be redressed by his Majesty's Government.

Earl Bathurst had made some enquiries on the subject, and found that the proceedings in question took place in the absence of to the Chief Justice of the Colony. Directions had been sent out that corporeal punishment (which was the cause of complaint) should not be again inflicted.

The Earl of Carnarvon moved the second reading of the Grampound Disfranchisement Bill. The Noble Earl observed that the questions for consideration were these, whether the evidence taken at the Bar could justify this proceeding?—whether it ought to be adopted?—and whether the case made out did not call for some legislative provision? He thought the Bill would bring about a salutary change in the representation of the country, and would lead to the activation of country. lead to the extinction of corrupt practices in many boroughs where such principles had hi herto prevailed.

The Lord Chancellor had no objection to the Bill going to a Committee, but he hoped the ultimate decision of their Lordships would be that of saying, Non-Content.

The Earl of Westmarland objected to the Bill, as contrary to the spirit of the British Constitution and to Magna Charta, and went to confound the innocent with the guilty.

The Earl of Liverpool would vote for the second reading of the Bill, because the parties who were about to be disfranchised had abused the trust reposed in them, and therefore they could not complain of having been deprived of that trust. It had been clearly proved that the Borough of Grampourd was systematically corrupt, for it was proved that a sum of money was to be given to each in-dividual for his vote, and he never heard of a more complete case of corruption made out against any corporation.

The Earl of Lauderdale said there was not a tittle of evidence to prove them guilty.

The Marquis of Lansdowne was friendly to the Bill.

The Bill was read a second time and committed for Monday.

Earl St. Germains moved the third reading of Lord Gleraw-ley's Divorce Bill.—It was accordingly read and passed.

HOUSE OF COMMONS. MONDAY.

The Members went to the House of Peers to hear the Royal Assent to several Bills. Lord W. Bentinek postponed his motion on the Affairs of Sicily, from to-morrow to the 15th inst.

Lord Nugent postponed his motion relative to the Island of Tobago, till the 23d inst.

Petitions were presented from the Ship Owners and Merchants of London trading to the East Indies, and from those of Liverpool, and from other places against any alteration in the duties on sugars coming from the East Indies. A petition was presented from the Landholders and Proprietors of Land in the county of Cork, complaining of Agricultural distress, and preciate trish Whiskey, on its introduction into this country.—The attributing the same to the measures taken by the Legislature to de-

Mr. Courtenay gave notice, that he should move for a Committee on the 22d of May, into the claims of the American Loyalists.
Mr. M. A. Taylor moved the Order of the Day for the House going into a Committee on the Steam Engine Bill.

Mr. Littleton thought the Bill would be a hardship, if it was extended to the country. He wished the Hon. Member to postpone if.

Mr. T. F. Buxton moved that it be postponed for six months.— On this the House divided-For the original question, 83-Against it, 29—Majority, 54.

The Report of the Bill was ordered to be received to-morrow.

The Marquis of Londonderry moved the House to go into a Committee of Supply. The Noble Marquis took this occasion to allude to the march of the Russian Army towards Italy. He could now state with certainty that the Army were not to pass the dominous state with certainty that the Army were not to pass the dominate of the Russian Army towards the long to the fall that the Army were not to pass the dominate of the Russian Army towards the long to the fall that the Army were not to pass the dominate of the Russian Army towards the long to the fall that the Army were not to pass the dominate of the Russian Army towards the long to the Russian Army towards the long to the Russian Army towards are the nions of Russia. In giving this assurance to the House, he felt that he was only doing justice to the two great powers, whose system of policy was most curwarrantably attacked. He must protest against any imputation which went to charge either Russia or Austria with being actuated by a spirit of aggrandisement. He then stated the cause why the Russian Army was set in motion. stated the application made by the King of Sardinia to the Austrian Government;—the Emperor of Austria, as the interests of the continental powers were conjoined, recommended an application to be made to the Emperor of Russia, the latter Monarch was equally reluctant to interfere; but the events which had recently taken place in Italy, rendered all assistance from Russia unnecessary. With respect to Spain, there was no reason to suppose that the movement of the Russian Army had any reference to that country, he had reason to believe the country.

he had reason to believe the contrary.

Lord Milton felt great satisfaction on hearing the statement nade by the Noble Lord, still, he could not believe, but they enter-tained views which were no less dangerous to public peace and public happiness. The Noble Lord commented generally on the promises made by the King of Prussia to give his subjects a Constitution, but had not done so. It appeared to him that the Sovereigns having once succeeded in putting down the common enemy, were actually regardless of what was due to those who achieved the great object.

Mr. Warre thanked God that there was one corner of Europe The Marquis of Londonderry did not deny the right of discussing the policy of foreign powers, in this House.

On the question for the Speaker's leaving the Chair,

Mr. Hume made some observations on the Works at Sheerness, and wished that the estimates relating to them should be postponed. A sum of 1,147,000l. had been expended up to the present time, and a further sum of 955,421l. was demanded. He stated, that in the Dock-yard at Sheerness, a sum of 2,102,4211, had been required in the course of eleven years.

required in the course of eleven years.

Sir G. Warrender said, the estimate for the present year was for two distinct purposes—the erection of new works and repairs of old, for the latter object 30,000l. would be required.

Mr. Warre thought it extraordinary, that so large a sum as 955,4211. should be required for the completion of the Works at

Sir G. Warrender hoped the Hon. Member would bear in mind, that old as well as new works were to be paid for.

Mr. Hume moved a resolution to the effect; that since 1811, the Dock-yard at Sheerness, had cost the country 2,102,4211. and that an enquiry ought to be made before any sums were granted, into the expediency of the works.—On this the House divided—For the original motion, 82—For the amendment, 27—Major rity, 55.

The House then went into a Committee,

Sir G. Warrender moved, that a sum not exceeding 50,957l, be Agreed to.

He then moved a grant of 70,962l. 0s. 6d. for the expences of the Naval Medical Establishment. Agreed to: and a sum of 6,926l. for the Royal Naval School, and 129,395l. for the Wages of Officers, &c. of the Vessels in Ordinary, 83,140l. for victualling the same, 79,0001. for harbour mooring and rigging those ships.

Sir G. Warrender then moved, that a sum not exceeding 970,0001. be granted for the expences of the half-pay, superannuations, pensions and allowances granted to officers in the Naval rvice, their widows and relatives.

Mr. Bennett stated the case of two wives of two Naval officers whose husbands had become insane, that these ladies had received the half-pay of the officers for eight years, but that by an order of the Board of Admirally made in 1819, the allowance made to them was limited to half of the half-pay, being about 631, yearly each. He called upon the House to interpose that these ladies might be put in possession of the full amount of half-pay.

Sir G. Cockburn said, that a regulation had been made by which Government undertook to provide for Lunatic Officers at the public expence—in that case, as here, the ludies were obliged to abide by the regulation of half the half-pay. Mr. Croker said, that the ladies had received the half-pay irrewas the opinion of Lawyers, that the lunatic in case of coming to his senses could maintain an action against the Treasury for his half-pay, in case he had not given his sauction to those who had actually received it.

Mr. Bennett was surprised to hear a question of humanity got rid of by a legal quibble.

Mr. Croker could not allow the Hon. Gent. to engross all the humanity to himself. He (Mr. C.) had been the humble cause of an Asylum being provided for Lunatic Seamen at Haslar Hospital. He did not state this to claim any praise for himself, but merely to shew the looseness with which the Hon. Gent. shot his arrows against individuals.

Lord Milton asked, did the Hon. Secretary mean to say, that the ladies had obtained this money by fraud?

Mr. Croker said, that had the Board of Admiralty known the facts, these ladies would not have been allowed to receive the

Mr. Hume said, the peculiar grievance in this case was, that these old women, calculating upon the continuance of the half-pay, incurred debts which they could not pay, and this he thought was a case for the humane consideration of the Government,

Sir G. Clerk observed, that the allowance to these ladies was greater than to officers' widows.

Mr. Hume adverting to the situation of those educated in the Naval College, complained that very few indeed had been pro-

Mr. Croker said, that the whole of the vacancies in the Royal Marines since the peace, were filled from the Half-pay List, although very shortly they must cease to fill them up in that manner, as it would be necessary to introduce some young men into that body.—The Resolution was agreed to.—A sum of 142,0961, 13s. 3d. was granted for superamatations, pensions, and allowances for Officers in the Military line of the Naval Service, and 1,500l. as bounty to Chaplains attached to the Naval Service.

It was proposed to grant a sum of 7,000l. for Widows and Orphans on the Compassionate List.

Mr. Harbord was understood to compiain, that certain widow who had children were threatened to be struck off, if they re-peated their applications to have their children placed on the Compassionate List. Mr. Croker could not comprehend the Hon, Gent.; if the children ere struck off b sarily implied they must have been on. The Hon. Member then stated, that the Compassionate List was only of ten years standing — it began with 2,000l. to which Parliament added 1,000l. more-In the selection of objects, the First Lord of the Admiralty paid the greatest attention to individual cases.

In answer to a question from Mr. Harbord, Mr. Croker said, the children of deceased Marine Officers were eligible to the School at Greenwich Hospital. As to the Widows being put on the Compassionate List, that depended on the bounty of the House.—The Resolution was agreed to.—A sum of 32,000l. to make good the deficiencies in the Funds of the Charity for the relief of the Widows of Commission and Warrant Officers of the Royal Navy, was also agreed to.—A sum of 105,973l. 16s. 6d. proposed to be granted for superannuations, pensions, and allowances to Commissioners. for superannuations, pensions, and allowances to Commissioners, Clerks, &c. in lieu of half-pay to Naval Officers, was postponed on the suggestion of Mr. Hume.

The next Resolution was 1,094,5501. for Ship-building and re

Sir J. Yorke expressed his surprise that this vote was not diminished, as the wages of the workmen had been reduced one fifth.

Mr. Hume proposed to reduce the estimate to the sum of 794,5801. After some desultory conversation, the Hon. Gent ented to withdraw his amendment.

The next item was for 424,6481. for works and expences at Dock-yards.

Hume proposed to reduce this grant by half, substituting 212.3241, for the original sum.

Sir G. Warrender defended the grant, which be said was necessary to complete the works, and he argued for the necessity of keeping up a large fleet in consequence of the new Naval power of America, which had grown up.—On a division the numbers were:
—For the amendment, 39—Against it, 107—Majority, 77.

The original Resolution was then passed. The Report was ordered to be brought up .- Adjourned.

TURSDAY.

Mr. Dundas presented a petition from the County of Dumfries against the Scotch Jury Regulation Bill, which was laid on the

The following were selected to try the merits of the Warwick The following were selected to try the merits of the Warwek Rlection:—Load J. Townsend, Hon. H. C. Lowther, W. Grossett, Sir M. Chomley, Sir J. Yorke, J. W. Taylor, Joseph Pitt, Lord Barnard, Bransby Cooper, Sir J. Macintosh, F. Lewis, J. Ramsbottom, Marquis of Tichfield, W. H. Scourfield, Sir C. Hulse.

The following were sworn on the Aldborough Election:—M. W. Whitmore, H. Dawkins, C. F. Palmer, J. Cripps, E. J. Nichols, S. Scott, J. Calcraft, A. Moore, W. Heygate, J. Brown, Mr. Paxeon, R. H. Davies, J. H. Leigh, J. Raine, Sir H. Clinton.

Mr. Bennett called the attention of the House to a paragraph which anneared in the John Rull newspaper, which he con-graph, which appeared in the John Bull newspaper, which he considered to be a breach of the privileges of that House. An erroneous report had gone forth of what he had stated respecting the Lord President of the Court of Session in Scotlan!, which report he corrected in his place on Friday, the moment he heard that it gave pain to the feelings of an individual. In Saturday's Courier, an pain to the feelings of an individual. In Saturday's Courter, an advertisement appeared, of which, as it was a substantial, though not a literal report of his explanation, he did not complain of it.

The Hon. Member then read the paragraph in question:—

"The following reply, made by Mr. Bennett, in the House of Commons last night, who not distinctly heard in the gallery, and in conse quesice is very imperfectly reported in the Morning Papers. It was given by the Hou. Member on the observation of Mr. Mackenzie, that the public press, in reporting the discussion of the Army Estinates, which took place on a former evening, had erroneously attributed to Mr. Bennett, a serious reflection upon the conduct of the Lord President of the Court of Session: Mr. Bennett expressed himself much obliged to the Honourable Member, in affording him an opportunity of refuting what he had been misrepresented, in the Newspapers, to have said in the debate to which the Honourable Member Mr. Bennett denied that he had, on that occasion, cast any reflection on the conduct of the Lord President of the Court of Session in Scotland, or of those who had acted with him, in the matier that was under discussion. He regretted that any thing which passed should have occasioned any unpleasant feeling to the Lord President and his friends. Had any thing appeared to him in the conduct of the Learned Judge which called for censure, he would have brought it forward by the fair and manly course of making a regular motion on the subject."

" Now, the truth of this is, that the Lord President has a son. a gentleman of high honour and courage, who no sooner heard of Mr. Henry Grey Bennett's speech, in which he reflected upon his father, than he put himself into the Edinburgh mail, and started Grey Bennett a message. Mr. Henry Grey Bennett referred Mr. Mackensie to that general vouchee for the whole party, Sir Ronald Propagation to the general voscine for the whose party, sir Robald engusion, and the result of the communication was (as usual)—an apelegg: which was made, according to agreement, on Friday night, in the House of Commons, by Mr. Henry Grey Bennett, but in so low a tone of voice, that had it not been for the kindness of the Compton in the common than the common that the common that the common than the common that the common than the common than the common than the common that the common than the common than the common than the common that the common than the common than the common than the common that the common tha of the Courier, it might not have been so generally understood, and so perfectly appreciated, as we trust it is at present."

The Hon. Member conceived this passage to be offensive to the House generally, is well to the Member of that House referred to. It charged the Member with having uttered as natruth, in violation of good faith and honour, and that when called upon to acknowledge the base insinuations, he had not the courage to do so. If he were capable of conducting himself so, he would be unfit for a seat in that House. Taking the paragraph altogether, it was wholly false and malicious. He had no wish to curb free animalversion in his public conduct, for he had daily submitted to it, and he had always thought the press one of the great instruments of correction, to keep him and other Members under controll of opinion, and he should be sorry to shelter himself against any attack which might be made upon him in the way of opinion. If any thing could tend more than another to keep up the high honour of the public men in this country, and raise the standard of that honour still higher, it was that, wherever the English language was read, there were their follies, their errors, and their crimes, held up to public view. But, in this case, there could be no greater abuse of the liberty of the press, than to invent statements with a design of bolding up a Member of Parliament, as capable of degrading and compromising his bonour. The Hon. Member then moved that the paper do lie on the table, which was accordingly ordered. He then moved that the said paragraph is a false and scandalous libel, and a breach of the privileges of that House.

Mr. Mackenzie was of opinion, the paragraph aliaded to by the Hon. Member contained fulse and malicious insimuations—so such thing as therein stated did take place. There was no apology asked er given; nor was there any thing to apologize for. When the Hon. Member (Mr. Bennett) was informed that the words imputed to him excited painful feelings, he very handsomely apologized, de-clared that he never used the words, and his explanation was highly satisfactory to the persons concerned.

The Marquis of Londonderry said, there could be no doubt of the paragraph being a libel. Any comment discreditable to the mo-tives which actuated a Member in the discharge of his duty in that House, was a breach of privilege. It appeared that the Hon. Member for Shrewsbury had been asked for an explanation relative to an incorrect report, which had been given, and a paragraph in the paper in question said, that the Hon. Member had given an apolegy on account of a message. The Hon. Member had stated, there was no apology necessary, nor any thing to apologize for further to do than to call the printer to the Bar .- The motion was agreed to. It was then ordered, that R. T. Weaver, the printer of the paper, called John Bull, be summoned to attend the Bar of the House

Mr. Lennard moved for the repeal of the Acts of the 60 Geo. 3. chap. 6, and 8, which were passed to prevent seditious meetings, and the circulation of blasphemous and seditious libels. The Hon. Member entered into a long argument to shew, that the people had a right to meet to petition for redress of grievances, which right, by the late Bills, had been contracted almost to its total destruction. Alarm, the ground for passing the measures, no longer existed, and as a consequence, the law itself ought to cease. The country being in a state of perfect tranquillity, he hoped no objection would be made to the repeal of the Bill. He then described the privileges attached to the right of petition, and the restraint which these Bills imposed on that right. He was convinced that, by their passing, much of the energy, fire, and boldness of the British Constitution had been destroyed. He referred to a similar measure, passed in and drew a parallel between that period and the present, With respect to the Bill on the subject of Libel, he could not look at that part of it which gave the Judges the power of hamining on the second conviction, without fear and indignation. He shided to the case of Sir F. Burdett, and the conduct of the Judge. After some further observations, he moved the repeal of the first Act.

Mr. Scrieant Onelow was of opinion the Hon. Gent. had not shewn one ground for repealing the Bill. He (Mr. Serj. Onslow) still thought them necessary for the security of the Constitution He defended the conduct of the Learned Judge (Mr. Justice Best), and concluded his observations with moving the previous question.

Mr. Denman contended that the necessity for the continuance of the laws had ceased.

Mr. Hutchinson did not think the same necessity existed now, as when the Bills were passed.

Mr. Maxical was inclined to support the continuance of the firs Bill, but with respect to the second, he thought the liberty of the ss was most valuable to the Constitution; and he would, therefore, most cordially vote for the repeal of that Bill.

Mr. Abercrombic thought the Seditions Meetings Bill no longer necessary, and should vote for its repeal.

Sir J. Newport also supported the repeal.—The House divided—For the motion, 69—Against it, 89—Majority, 21.

On the Gallery being re-opened, Mr. Denman was speaking against the Seditious Libel Bill. He reproduted the principle of the Bill, which inflicted a severe, cruel, and barbarous punishment by transportation for a second offence. He hoped no Gentleman in that House would contend that it was now necessary. - On a division, the numbers were-For the motion, 60-Against it, 88-Majority against the motion, 22. Mr. Scarlett stated the grounds of the Bill, which he intended to bring on the subject of the Poor Laws. After much preliminary observations, he stated the outline of his Bill, the subject of which had occupied his attention for many years. The great evil, in connexion with the present Poor Laws, and which must prese on every man's mind was, that by law, an unlimited provision was made for the poor, which operated as a premium for poverty, indolence, licentiousness, and extravagance. Nothing could be more injurious than the adoption of a principle, which held out to man that he might obtain his bread by other means than by the swent of his brow. The Poor Laws held ont a prospect of relief to the labourer—not in old age—not in sickness—but a refuge from the con-sequences of his own indolence. They had a tendency to degrade his morals—to diminish his industry, and thus to bring affiction upon the whole mass of the population. The evil, in time, might become so great, that all the industry bestowed on the land, could not support it. At present, the heavy pressure of the poor's-rates made the farmer careless of cultivating his land. The Hon. Member then stated the amount of the poor's-rates in 1748, 1749, & 1750, to be 689,9711. In 1776, they were increased to 1,530,8041, being an increuse of nearly one million in 26 years. In 1783, six year afterwards, the poor's-rates were 2,004,2871, being an increase of 500,0001. In 1503, they were 4,207,9531, so that in 20 years, they had increased 2,200,0001. In 1513, their amount was 6,129,0001. being un increase, in 16 years, of nearly two millions. Member then proceeded to read some resolutions, entered into at Nantwich, which embraced his own ideas on the subject; shewing, that every additional shilling confributed to the rates, served to encourage pauperism, and to destroy the moral character of the poor. It became necessary then, in his opinion, to fix a limit to the provision, to be made from henceforth, and not to allow them to exceed the rate levied last year. The next part of the subject relate I to was, in what manner, and under what circumstances, paupers should be entitled to parochial relief. The practice at present was to relieve all who asked for assistance. Now, if Parliament enacted this should not be done, and that only those who were sick, aged, or incapable of work, should be relieved, it would go to correct the evil in a great degree, and it would induce those in work, who got large wages, to be more careful of them. In many parts of the country, a labourer, if he married, calculated, that his se-cond child would be provided for by the parish, by an ollowance of half-a-crown per week. The object of his Bill would go to remedy this evil, by refusing relief to any but those who, from sickness, old age, infirmity, or accident, should be rendered incapable of working. The next object respected the law of settlements: by the 13th and 14th of Cha. 2, a labourer might be removed from pa rish to parish, to fix his settlement, at a beavy expence to the parishes, oreating litigation ad infinitum, and becoming thereby pressive in the highest degree. He wished to remedy this evil, to make it unlawful to remove a man from any parish in which he might be found at the time of his being disabled from earning his bread. It might be said, this would throw great burthens on large towns, such as Manchester; but there, where the labouring poor were very numerous, it had been the practice to scatter them all over the country; and he (Mr. S.) had known conch-loads of paupers sent from thence up to London. In Manchester, the poor'srates had been less than in other places—they had never been higher than 8s. 6d. in the pound, and that was in 1815. In many parishes in the South of England, they had been at 20s, in the pound, in the rack rent, since 1815. The Hon. Member then recapitulated his three measures:—first, to fix a maximum of poor's rates; second, to deny relief to any except the impotent t third, to take away the oppressive laws of settlement and removal. He concluded with moving for leave to bring in a Bill to amend the law relating to the relief of the poor in Eugland.

The Marquis of Londonderry would not give a decided opinion on the subject, and hoped, on that account, it would not be thought that he wanted zeal on the subject. The House would be better able to form an opinion when they saw the Bill, which he hoped the Hon, and Learned Gentleman would bring in.

Major-Gen. Wilson deprecated any proposition taking away from the poor their subsistence. If the House wished to reduce paunerism, they must reduce taxation. Mr. Calcraft said, when the Bill was introduced, he would undertake to shew that, as the price of corn increased, wages dimi-nished; and thence had arisen the mischievous practice of paying a part of the wages of the agricultural labourer in the shape of poor With respect to the question of settlements, he was doubtful as to the effect of the repeal of the law on that head, and feared it would meet much opposition.

Mr. S. Baurne, in reference to the proposed alterations said, the maximum had been tried in the Isle of Wight, but application was de to Parliament to alter or remove the maximum. benefit to the country would arise from confining the relief to the impotent. The repeal of the law of settlements was liable to much objection.

After some further observations from Mr. Monck, Mr. Mansfield, Mr. Phillips, Mr. Ricardo, Mr. M. A. Taylor, leave was given to bring in the Bill, which was brought in, read a first time, and ordered to be read a second time on the 24th, and to be printed.

Copies of the instructions sent to Sir W. A'Court, respecting the evacuation of Sicily, were ordered to be laid before the House.

Mr. J. Smith obtained leave to bring in a Bill to amend the Bankrupt Laws, with a view to prevent Bankrupts from obtaining fraudu-lent certificates. The Blll was brought in, and read a first time.

The Audit of Accounts Bill was ordered to be read a second time on Friday, the 18th inst.

The Consideration of the Report of the Church Briefs Bill was postponed for a fortalght.—Adjourned. WEDNESDAY.

Mr. Littleten brought up the Report of the Committee on the Report of the Committee on the Alaborough Election, which declared that the sitting Member Mr. Antrobus, bad been duly elected.

Petitions were presented from Greenwich, Woolwich, Deputord, and various other places against the Metropolitan Road BM. Ordered to lie on the table.

ed from several Stage Coach Propriet A petition was present complaining of the state of the law with respect to the injuries don to Horses, which was laid on the table.

Mr. Byng moved for the appalatment of a Committee, to consider the propriety of granting a revisal of the Charter of the Metropolitan

Sir C. Domnille one sed the motion, as did Mr. Grenfell who expressed his intention to divide the House.—The House divided.— For the motion, 93—Again 4 it, 87—Majority, 6.
On the motion of Mr. B meets, R. T. Weaver, the printer and publisher of John Bull, was called in, and underwent an examination respecting the paragraph instruct in that paper of Sunday, the 6th of May. He was examined by Mr. Bennett, Mr. M. A. Taylor, Mr. Wynne, Mr. Scarlett, Lord Nugent, Major Gen. Wilson, Dr. Phillimore, Mr. Bernel and Mr. W. Smith. Mr. Weaver, in answer to the various questions put to him, replied, that he was undersonal multiple and for manifely held the contract of the said and the sunday and the said and the said to him, replied, that he was printer and publisher, and for nearly the last two months proprietor; that with respect to the article in question, he had not seen it until it. appeared in the paper; that the conduct of the literary department was confided to the Editor; that he was unable to say from whence was comment to the ratior; that he was extremely sorry it should have appeared in the paper, and for having given offence to the House. The Hon. Members then put some questions to him respecting the proprietorship in the paper, which he answered substantially by saying, that the paper was originally established by Messy. Shackelfand Arrowsmith, that he entered into an agreement with these gentlemen for the purchase of the same, and that they received and paid generally speaking, all debts due to, or demands made upon, the paper, until the pecuniary arrangements were completely satisfied. When asked particularly whether he did not make any enquiry how this paragraph came in the paper, or on what authority it was printed P this paragraph came in the papers of our winds and outputs it was particular paragraph; but I mean to say, that if I knew a man capable of writing a direct falsehood, no power on earth should induce me to conceat him. Again, questioned by Mr. Scarlett: was any money received for printing this paragraph? A. I think not; as far as I am concerned, I believe none has been received. The witness having been ordered to withdraw,

Mr. Bennett then said, as no evidence of a satisfactory nature had been received as to the author of the paragraph, he should move that the Editor Mr. Cooper, Mr. Shackell, and Mr. Arrowsmith, be ordered to attend forthwith. Ordered nem. con.

Sir J. Newport moved a variety of Resolutions with the object to censure the delay in certain enquiries going on in the Courts of Justice, with respect to abuses therein. He complained generally of the conduct of the Commissioners, two of whom were Masters in Chanconnect of the Commissioners, two or whom were masters in Chancery; although their object was to enquire into the abuses in that Court, they stated that they did not think it necessary to abolish a certain abuse, because it existed in another Court—fees they considered a gratuity. He moved the Resolutions, &c.

The Attorney-General objected to the Resolutions as conveying n censure first upon the Commissioners, and then upon the Lord Chan cellor, which was wholly uncalled for and undeserved. He contended, that no persons could have been properly selected for the purposes of examining the enquiries made by those Commissioners. Many of the fees adverted to, were possessed in right of freehold and by purchase.

After some observations from Mr. Abercrombie. Mr. B. Bathurst. Mr. Baring, Mr. Serjeant Onslow, &c.

The House divided.—For the motion, 58—Against it, 72—Majo rity, 16.

Lord J. Russell brought the subject of Parliamentary Reform before the House, and moved a variety of Resolutions in furtherance of the object which he wished to obtain. He entered into an exa-inination of the several cases to shew that undue elections for Messbers to Parliament, were constantly made by gross bribery and corruption, contrary to the spirit of the Constitution; that to strengthen the connexion between the Commons and the people, it was expedient to give the right of sending Members to certain large towns not nt present represented, and that it was necessary to appoint a Committee to consider of the propriety of extending the present electing franchise, and also to enquire into the mode of returning Members in the Boroughs complained of.

Mr. Whitmore seconded the motion.

Mr. Bathurst thought that the remedy should be considered dis-tinct from the grievance, and it was for the Noble Lord to show that the House in its present state was inadequate for its purposes.—The House divided .- For the motion, 124-Against it, 155

The Metropolis Road Bill was ordered to be reported on Friday se'nnight.— Adjourned.

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

A Census of the population, classified into ages and sexes, will commence taking on the 28th of this month; the returns to be made by the 1st of August.

On Tuesday a meeting of the Naval and Military Bible Society took place at the King's Concert Room, in the Hay-market. Admiral Lord Gambier was called to the Chair. The Scoretary read The Secretary read the Report, stating that Branch Societies had been formed in varithe Report, stating that Branch Societies had been formed in various parts of England, Ireland, Sociland, and Gibraltar, and the most solutary results were anticipated for the future from the success hitherto experienced. Upwards of 1600 Bibles and Testaments have been distributed amongst the several regiments stationed in Ireland. In Sociland, 1000 copies of the Scriptures had been cumuled to persons is need of them. Howards of Canal Bibles and supplied to persons in need of them. Upwards of 9000 Bibles and 4800 Testaments had been distributed by the Naval and Military Society of London.

Monday a meeting of the Female Penilentiary Society was held at Stationers' Hall; Mr. Henkey, the banker, was called to the Chair. He stated the object of the meeting, which was one of great benevolence and utility, to rescue those unhappy females who had fallen from the ways of virtue, and were hastening to de-struction, from their dreadful situation. The Secretary read a Report from the Committee of the Society, which stated that they had great reason to hope that their efforts to restore helpless females who were in imminent danger of irretrievable destruction, had in many cases been effectual, and represented the necessity of supporting the Society by an increase of subscription, had fallen 2001, short of the expences in the last year.

On Monday the Artists' Benevolent Society had a dinner at the On Monday the Artists' Benevolent Society had a dinner at the Freemasons' Tavern, Sir Thomas Baring, Bart. in the Chair; and Sir J. Swinburne, Bart. Sir T. Lawrence, P. R. A. Mr. Mulready, R. A. Mr. Stothard, R. A. Mr. Collins, R. A. Mr. Cooper, R. A. Mr. Ward, R. A. Mr. Jackson, R. A. besides many other distinguished artists were present.—The health of His Majesty-was given with three times three, standing. All the Royal Family.—Song, "Hail Star of Brunswick." The Arts of England, and may thay never want Patrons. were then successively drank. The Song, "Hail Star of Brunswick." The arts of England, and may they never want Patrons, were then successively drank. The health of the President was then given.—Sir T. Lawrence, in returning thanks, observed, that he received their kindness as President of the Royal Academy; but he conceived it far above the sident of the Academy's most desert as an individual. He assured them of the Academy's good wishes, and assistance to their utmost means, and every effort of his own, as a private person, in their behalf.—The subscription of the evening was very gratifying; it amounted to nearly 5001.—The Honorary Secretary stated, that the funds were above 4,0001, and that there was a constant accession to the number of the

(For continuation of Debates, see page 174.)

THE HE BEST IN LO WOOD NOOTHINGS TO EXCEPT HE THE SELECTION on life and manners. It is to the mind nearly what the camera observa is to the eye—it presents to us, is our closets, a picture of the external world in miniature, with all its movements and busile, s trouble and to more advantage which we thus observe with le than in any other way. Nor is ammenment the sole end of such productions. They may serve, if properly executed, many import-ant uses, and tend materially to instruction, correction, and improvement. When we mix in the crowd, we are too much taken up with our own "business and desires" to observe impartially the conduct of others; but when this is represented to us in a glass, we re in a fitter situation to appreciate the true salue of those objects for which the generality of mankind sucrifics their time and their ease, or, it may be, possessions yet more important. The Hermit in London will no doubt take its station among the classical works of the same description, that have so long adorned our libraries.

NEW ROOMS, HANOVER-SQUARE.

THE MESSRS. CRAMER most respectfully acquaint the Nobility Gentry, and their Friends in General, that their CONCERT will take place on MONDAY, MAY 21, 1821, at the above ROOMS. Principal Vocal Performers, Madame Camporese, Mrs. Salmon, Mrs. Ashe, Miss Stephess, Mr. Vaughan, and Signer Ambrogetti. Leader, Mr. F. Cramer, Plano Berte, Mr. Cramer, Harp, Miss Krumpholts (her first public performence.)

ACT I.—Sinfonia, No. 8, Haydir, Scena ed Aria, Signer Ambrogetti, "Tutto e disposto." (Le Noure di Figaro) Mozart; Concerto, Violin obligato, Mr. F. Cramer, Martini; Song, Mrs. Ashe, "Dove sel," Handel; Concerto Plano Forte, in B flat, Mr. J. B. Cramer, (by desire) Mozart; Scena ed Aria, Madame Camporese, "Deb parlate," Cumarosa.

ACT II.—Sinfonia, (Jupiter) Mosart.—Echo Song, Miss Staphens, "What ziry sound." Biskep.—Song, Mr. Vaughan, "Pleasure, my former." (Time and Truth, Handel.—Notturno, (composed for the occasion), Piano Forte, and Harp, Mr. J. B. Cramer.—Resit, and Song, Mrs. Salmon, "Sweet bird;" accompanied on the Violin by Mr. F. Cramer. Handel.—Overture (Prometheus) Beethoven.—Principal Instrumental Performers—Messrs. R. Lindley, Dragometti, Mori, Marsit, R. Ashbey, Ireland, Griesbach, Wilman, Mackintosh, the Petrides, Harper, Mariotti, and Jankinson.—Tiekets, Half-a-Guinea-asch, to be had of Mr. Cramer, No. 29, Oxford Street; Mr. F. Cramer, No. 39, Margaret Street; at Meesers. Birchall and Co.'s, New Bond Street; and Mr. Batts', Royal Eschange.

THE event of a Day may prove a Fortune for Life !- T. BISH THE event of a Day may prove a Fortune for Life!—T. BISH reminds his old and best Friends, the Public, that the whole of the 4,007 Prizes will be drawn NEXT THURSDAY (17th May), when every Ticket, and every Share Chance must be decided. The Price of Adventure is reduced nearly one half; as a Whole Ticket Chance only costs £14. 14s, and a Sixteenth only Twenty Shillings! 4,007 Prixes must be drawn next Tharraday, including two of £30,000, others of £4,000, £1,000, &c. &c. and 100 Chances of gaining Two of £30,000,—No Classes.—Every Ticket drawn singly, each deciding its own fate, and no other.

T. Bish solicits the favours of the Public, at his old established Offices, 4; Cornhill, and 9. Charing-Cross; where he sold, in the last Lottery, Three Prizes of £21,000, besides several minor Capitals.

The prices of Stocks are affixed, hourly, against Bish's Office in Cognitil, by which the Public can beet the fluctuations.

Corabili, by which the Public can see the fluctuations.

THE near approach of the Dawwing of the LOTTERY, and the whole of the 4,007 brings to be decided in One Day, NEXT THURSDAY induce J. and J. SiVEWRIGHT, the Contractors, to solicit their Friends to be immediate in their applications. The Price of Adventure being only half what it has usually been, has induced many Fersons to make double, Parchases, which has materially increased the demand, and makes it imperative on those who intend to adventure to do it jumediately, as J. and J. S. would be very sorry to see any of their old Patrons disappointed of Chances.—Ticket only 214. 14s. Sixteenth only Twenty Shillings! Two of £21,000, and 4,005 other Capitals and Prices, with 100 extra Chances for gaining two of £20,000; mast all be drawn in Que Day, Next Thursday.

Thekets and Shares are selling by J. and J. SIVEWRIGHT, Contractors, 37, Cornhill; 11, Holborn: and 38, Haymarket; where they sold in the two last Contracts, all the £20,000 Price! also, 2053, (Class B) £21,000!

CORONATION of HIS MAJESTY GEORGE THE FOURTH. CORONATION of HIS MAJESTY OBORGE THE FOURTH.

WAYTE, Furrier to the King, Robo Maker, &cc. late of Panton-street, Haymarket, has the bonour to acquaint the Noblity and Public in general, that he has REMOVED to more extensive Premises in Rageut-street, opposite the County Fire Office, whose he solicits a continuance of their favours

The Peers of England, the Knights Grand Crosses, and the Knights Communicate of the Bath, are cospectfully informed, that they can be supplied with every Article necessary for the CORONATION, of the best quality, properly fitted, in conformity to the official regulated Costume, on the very sweet possible Terms.

A Flames in the complete Coronation Habit may be inspected by the

A Figure in the complete Coronation Habit may be inspected by the Nability and Pe sons accompanying them; as also Coronets, Roben, and the White Satin Dresses richly trimmed with Gold or Silver Lace and Fringe, which take a considerable time in preparing; Orders cannot therefore be too

TO SAIL IMMEDIATELY.

FOR MADRAS and CALCUTTA, the fast sailing Coppered Ship, DAPHINE. Burthen 550 Tons. A. T. CHATFIELD, Cormander, (late of the Honourable East India Company's Service.) Carries a Surje, as a spep Deck, and very superior Accommodations for Passengers. New lying at Grarenend. For passage, apply to

Mr. H. BLANSHARD.

Mr. H. BLANSHARD, No. 1, Old Broad Street.

This day is Published, price 3s. in boards,

COUNTRY PARSON'S FIRST OFFERING to his MOTHER

CHURCH. In Mice Process Country Co CHURCH; in Nine Pastoral Sermons.
Oxford:—Frinted for J. Parker; sold by F. C. and J. Rivington, St.
Paul's Church Yard, and Waterloo Race, London; and J. Upham, Bath.

In seven handsome Volumes, price £2 2s. in extra boards,
WHITTINGHAM'S CABINET EDITION of SHAKSPEARE'S PLAYS; accurately printed from the Text of JOHNSON and STEENENS, and embellished with two hundred and thirty Engravings on Wood; inclinding the Sween Agas of Man, a Bust of the Immortal Burd, and a View of the House in which he was born, with a correct Representation of the Jubilee Procession in which he was commemorated by Garrick. To which are prefixed, a Life-of Shalkspeare, written expressly for this Edition by BOHN BRITTON, F.S.A. And a Proface by Dr. JOHNSON: there are also a Glossarial Index to, the Work, and a Critique on each Play by Johnson or Steevens.

Johnson or Steevens.

Johnson or Steevens.

Printed at the Chiswick Press, for Sherwood, Neely, and Jones, Palerassier.

rinted at the Uniswick Frees, for bletwood, Reely, and Jones, Paterassier-rew, and sold by all Booknellers.

(25. The P-op ictors of this Edition of BMAKSPBARE'S, PLAYS submit at 50 the Public, in full confidence that it has only to be seen, to be approved and admired. The Paper, Printing, and Embellishments, are unique, and present one of the most uniform and elegant Editions of the Plays of our Immortal Dramatist ever offered to the Public.

PRICE OF STOCKS AT THE CLOSE YESTERDAY.

The Funds dering the week have marry maintained the high prices after an advance of nearly 2 per cent. Consols for Account reached 74, and for the opening of Consols in July 75. The continuation of a and 3 per cent. from own Account to the other shews clearly that the public and the speculators generally extertain a very favourable spinion of the Public Funds. The steadheses of the market has defauted all efforts by the Jobbers and speculators to produce a fall of Stocks, and they seem new to be operating for a further improvement. The business done year fray was by no means extensive. There exceed an indisposition to speculate at all; but what business was done were supon the expectation of a rise. The last prices at the close of the day were the following:

NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

In answer to J. L. M. we will enquire into the appointments of the Magistrates by Lord Fitzwilliam. L.'s poetry is not quite delicate.

DAVUS NON CEDIPUS must excuse our errors about the supper at Coriton House; the account was capied from a fashionable Paper, and, at all events, it was but a Buil!

We are obliged to B. P. for his Ode; the turn is rather too serious for the subject. We are not aware of having received the pacquet signed B.A.T.

but we will make enquiries. We will keep an eye upon the new establishment our friend al-Indes to in his hint.

We will publish the majority on the Catholic Question the first favourable opportunity.

E. B. and Vinax have been received. It is curious that the emocdols of the Bedlamile has been prepared three weeks for insertion in this Paper, but has always given way to more pressing atters; we have another anoughts of the same person more rif the same person days, see some of these days. iculous still, which Tenas chall hi

We do not understand Sentieden. Cantus, J. G. a. weekly list of Clergymen who have projet for the Queen, and all that relates to them, must stand over till next week.

We doubt any good effect from the publication of the letters to Lord Gressoner. A private application would, use think, be

Our other numerous correspondents must forgive our emitting to notice them separately. We are generally much obliged. Mrs. H. has been received. The Letters from the late LOND FREDERICK CAMPBELL, and other persons, will be left at the office. The Letter to the Earl of Grosvenou has been disposed of properly to the best of our judgment.

We thank AMICUS, but we cannot drop the subject he alludes to Many other articles are unavoidably delayed.

We are obliged to delay AMICUS VENITAS, till next week from the evident press of matter. We trust his Lordship will not attribute the non-insertion to a delay in doing justice.

THEATRE ROYAL, COVENT-GARDEN. Monday, The Tempest.-Wednesday, The Frovoked Husban THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE. Monday, Marino Faleiro. Tuesday, The Duenna. Wednesday, The Kind npostor. Thursday, Artaxerxes. Friday, Marino Faleiro.

A Monday's Edition, containing the latest News, the Stock List, the London Markets, and the State of the Country Markets by that morning's post, is published at Three o'clock.

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, MAY 13.

It is sufficient to relieve us from any imputation of vanity that the subject which we are now about to discuss, although relating personally to ourselves, has occupied the attention of the House of Commons every day during the last week.

The circumstances in which we stand, and the unfeigned respect which we bear to the House of Commons, will limit, in some degree, the force of our observations on the proceedings in that House; we might complain, we might justify, but, as Doctor Johnson said, "that it was not for him to bandy compliments with his Sovereign," so it is not for the Editor of John Bull to bandy recriminations with the House of Commons.

To its decisions, to its opinious, we submit dutifully; aye, (and we will add,) and cheerfully; the pain which we individually may suffer; and the temporary anxiety of our wives and children are really of no importance when weighed against the great and paramount importance of the privileges of that House, which are, in fact, the privileges of all of us; and without which a House of Commons could not fail to become the butt of every libelier, and the jest of every enemy of our Constitution.

Young, in commemorating a favour of the Crown, said, "Twas meant for merit, though it fell on me :"

and when the House of Commons visits us with its censure we candidly confess,

"Twas meant for treason, though it fel! on us;" and we consider that the enquiry which has taken place into our conduct is of great public value; it will shew the world that the laws in this happy realm are equal; and that he, who should libel so mean an individual as the second son of the Earl of Tankerville, is as much, (if not more,) subject to the jeniousy of the law, as he who should libel his Sovereign himself.

It must give a great opinion of English liberty to see, that in these times, in which we have to lament that the sacred Majesty of the King has been degraded and reviled as far as faction could produce those effects, the character of an humble individual is (in his own eyes at least) considered so sacred, that a multitude of persons are kept for a week in jeopardy-jeopardy of their fortunes, their characters, and their liberty, because, in describing the conduct of such an individual, they have happened to use one word instead of another;—because they have said APOLOGY, when my Lord Londonderry thinks they should have said EXPLABATION!

Before we go a step farther, it is absolutely necess to say, that although we have been most reluctantly intraduced into
"The secrets of the prison-house," we beg to be understood not to speak one word of the House of Commons.

The House has condescended to a flirtation with us, and from us the public never shall know what happened in that rapturous moment of intercourse. Its proceedings were doubtless just and prudent, but they shall be as sacred with us as if they had been girlish indiscretious. Whatever we shall say upon this subject shall entirely, and absolutely, and exclusively refer to the report which has been made of the transaction by the Courier and the Marning Chronicle, which, however they may differ in political feeling, appear to us to have in common the vulgar taste of liking a BULL-BAIT!

Of the Chronicle we really have nothing to say, he labours in " his vocation," but on Master Courier, when we have disposed of the more important part of the question, me shall perhaps think it necessary to make a few observations; we must first, however, turn to the report of the Chronicle, which it pleases, by a gross breach of privilege, to call Preceedings of the House of Commons and we humbly hope, that if any observations we may make should be offensive to that Honourable House, or any Honourable Member of it, that it will call, not us, but the Editor of the Morning Chronicle to its bar, and make him responsible for the mass of folly and injustice which he has so libellously, and, we doubt not, so untruly attri-buted to the Honourable House.

In the first place we have to observe, that the original report of this transaction stated, that Mr. Bennett complained of a false and infamous libel; that Lord Londonderry supported the motion for the attendance of our Editor because the libel was gross; and that the House voted their attendance on a resolution that it was scandalous.

The Reporter of the Morning Chronicle seems here to have played upon words; infamone is a facon de pint and may be forgiven when put characteristically into the mouth of Mr. Bennett, who probably knows the full mean ing and value of the term; but between false and gross there is a manifest difference, as that may, in the opinions of some persons, be the grosser the further it is removed from false; and undoubtedly we ourselves think that any libel, or even any unpleasant truth, is always gross in direct proportion to its authenticity.

But we will admit that the Morning Chronicle is right. and that our paragraph is gross, false, scandalous, and infamous. Now, let us find out from the result what the meaning of these great words is.

WE HAVE USED THE WORD APOLOGY INSTELDIG THE WORD EXPLANATION.

Lord Londonderry is said to have stated that we were guilty of a gross libel, because we represented as an apology that which was only an explanation,—and Mr. Mackenzie, who it seemed was the channel of the communication with Mr. Bennett, said that our paragraph was false, because no apology was either asked or made, although an explanation was both REQUIRED AND GIVEN.

The public must therefore see, cum is we are quintisyllable explanation, instead of the quadracyllable appropriate to have complained The public must therefore see, that if we had used the logy, there would have been nothing to have complained of; and they will therefore readily believe, that, considering, as we do, the words taken with the context to be nearly equivalent, we wish that the word EXPLANATION had found itself an bout de la plume. But then, if we, in reporting, however erroneously, a transaction, and if in using one word for another (the two words being almost synonymous) have been guilty of a breach of privilege, what can be said of Mr. Mackensie himself, who seems to us, from all the reports, to have been himself the channel of a communication which no one appears to have denied to be a breach of privilege? Because the very report of the affair, with the alteration of apology for explanation, was deemed to be of that character.

Sir Francis Burdett, who has given much attention subjects of this nature, and who acts consistently with principle of justice, which he has established to himself. seems to us to have put the saddle upon the right horse. He is represented to have said, that if there were any breach of privilege in the affair, it was in those who had originally, and out of doors, questioned the conduct of Momber of Parliament.

Is this to be borne?—Is Mr. Mackennie, as a private fine dividual, to be allowed to question, either on his own account or his friends, words imputed to a Member, and ive poor Garretteer in Fleet-street, who tells the transaction in a way accurate in substance, but incorrect in phraseology, to be visited by the censure of the Commons of England, and, above all, with the censure of Mr. Mackense himself?

The words APOLOGY and EXPLANATION are certain different, but they are usually applied in this way. An explanation, when it is made not columnarity, but on requisition, is generally considered as an apology and an ap when spontaneously made, is called an explanation. Mr. Bennett's explanation was not spontaneous, -the offersive expressions were published in all the papers of the morning after he had spoken the speech which gave rise to the mis-interpretation. He might then, or within a day or two after, have explained his meaning, and denied the use of these terms which affected the character of the Lord President, but he did not do se!—he sat quiet under that imputation, and the report of his speech travelled down into the North uncorrected and unexplained.

What next happened?—and since the Honorable fist House of Commons condescends to notice our humble lucubrations, we beg to remind them, that we are not here talking of Members of Parliament, or of Parliamentary transactions, but of things which have passed out of doors, and between individuals, and without any reference to that Honorable House.-What then, we ask, next happened?

A son of the Lord President wrote (as every one was walks in St. James's Street knows,) a letter of enquiry (if not of expostulation) to Mr. Bennett. Mr. Bennett wrote an answer, which was so far from satisfying Mr. Hope, that he came up by the mail from Edinburgh, to procure a further EXPLANATION. We shall take good care not to be betrayed into the word APOLOGY.

On his arrival did he complain to the House by petti tion? or did he procure any of his friends to complain by motion of the injustice which had been done to his father? it seems not, but he employed Mr. Mackenzie to convey a message (we presume, that in talking of the private to actions of those persons, we may use the word massage), so Mr. Bennett on the subject of his reported attack on the Lord President, and then and not till then, (a fortnight, we believe, after the alleged offence,) Mr. Bennett is reported to have stood up in his place, and to have given that, which, ten days before, no one could have hesitated to have called an explanation.

But this is not all; this explanation, such as it was was not entirely spontaneous; for Mr. Mackenzie was referred, we understand, to Sir Renald Fergusson, with whom it was arranged, that Mr. Bennett should give an explanation in the same place in which he had made a charge.

Now, we put it to our readers first, whether such tary privilege, have been erroneously represented as an apology. We admit it was NO apology, but it was an explanation—not made on the first sight of the offensive publication-not made on the written requisition from Edinburgh, but given in consequence of the personal representation made by Mr. Mackenzie; and we ask, in the second place, and in the words attributed to Sir Francis Burdett, if there has been any Breach of Privilege, has it not been, in fact, committed by Mr. Mackensie, rather than by us?

We are very anxious that this matter should stand upon its right grounds. The House of Commons is a main part of the British Constitution—Its privileges are our privileges its dignity is our dignity. We are safe while it subsists, and we shall be lost whenever it is degraded; we, therefore, pay to it collectively, and to its Members individually the most unfeigned respect; we are not such hypocrites as to say, that we admire the conduct of the Bennetts, the Wilsons, the Nugents, "e sutti quants;" but as Members of Parliament, and as (if we may use the expression) balancewheels and checks in the political watch-work, we admit, that they are not without their humble utility. They are entitled to, and they receive from us, that degree of respect

Digitized by GOOGLE

; but is it because no new for the first time (se for as were limited apparent in the dehates of the Heuse, chooses to question the conduct of any of those individuals, that we — we poor inhabitants of Fleet Street, should be called to answer for a Breach of Privilege, which, if committed at all, was committed by the aforesaid Mr. Mackenzie himself, when he carried to Mr. Bennett the private message of the Lord President's son.

We honestly confess, that if Mr. Bennett, instead of explaining had complained of Mr. Mackenzic, we know not what we could have said in behalf of the latter gentleman; and we further confess, that we do not think it redounds much to the generosity of Mr. Mackenzie's private character, that he should have joined so cordially in the reprobation of our conduct who were really following his footsteps,

" Haud passihus equis."

Old Æsep tells us, that the lion and the man walking amicably together, met with a statue, which represented a man as victorious over a lion,—"Ah, my good friend," said the royal animal, "how would it have been if see lions had been sculpters?"

So it is with us. Members of Parliament make the law in this case, and the BULL, like the LION, must neces rity be vanouished.

The whole case is now before the public; it must judge for itself; it is the tribunal to which Mr. Bennett and Mr. Mackenzie, and even the House of Commons itself, is subject, and that public, in its justice, (we appeal not to its generosity) must decide whether, on the whole, we have been treated with that equitable consideration which those have, we think, a right to expect who can only judge of the proceedings of the Honourable House by the reports (erronesus and faise, no doubt,) which it permits the daily papers to publish.

There is one other point upon which we are desirons in vindication of our personal honour, to say a word. Mr. Bennett is represented to have said, that we were infumous and perjured persons. We will take the liberty of telling the reporters who have attributed such expressions to the Honourable Member, that the charge is false and calum-nions, and that we shall lose no time in bringing actions against them for those defamatory and libelious accusations; we shall see whether the laws of the country are not as powerful in one direction as the other; and if Mr. Bennett really used such words, and authorised their publiestion, we shall have him, as his friend Mr. Creevey was before, on the floor of the KING'S BENCH, to receive sentence for such a FALSE AND MALICIOUS LIBEL!

Mr. Bennett is also represented to have stated that we were "men of straw," and to have insinuated that there were other persons, richer and abler, at the bottom of this Paper. We repel this aspersion: we are, as we have stated, the sole proprietor and conductors of our Paper: we did not receive any encouragement to its commencement, and we have not received any assistance during its progress (except by letters received by the post) from any person not already known to the public as our associate;—and it may, perhaps, embitter the shaft when we inform these gentlemen, that the wound which rankles in their hearts has been inflicted by those very MEN OF STRAW, whom they have affected to despise, and whom they have actually committed.

Besides those expressions, the reporters have made Honour-able Members, in the speeches which they have put into their mouths, insist upon the commitment of our Editor, because John Bull has attacked helpless women and vir-

It is a fact incontrovertible, that we never noticed any female whose name had not previously been printed and published in the Times and Chronicle as associates and supporters of the Queen. In analysing those ladies' chasupporters of the Queen. In analysing those lattes' characters, after they had volunteered them for the sake of the most shandoned of her sex, we did justice to the thousands and tens of thousands of modest, unpretending formales who shuddered at the vices and profligacy of the Queen, and who, but for our salutary explanations, might have been induced by the high sounding titles of Duchesses and Countesses, to have wavered in their belief of the Oneen's quitt, and have been hetrayed into the infectious Queen's guilt, and have been betrayed into the infectious vapour of Brandenburgh House.

At the success of our efforts in the cause of morality we rejoice, and we promise our readers that every woman who is hold enough to brave the contaminating association with the Queen, and whose name shall previously appear blasened forth in the papers as her companion, shall in like numer be exposed, and laid open to public inspection.

public obloquy, and public contempt.

The reporters have made Sir Ronald Fergusson speak of our defaming "virtuous women after death."—We cannot believe that Sir Rouald Fergussou, who served so honourably in the House of Commons during the whole of the Peninsular war, could have made such an allusion to a case which is now coming to trial.—It is impossible to supse that the gallant General could have wished to bias a Jury by his cloquence.

But what has this to do with Mr. Bennett's explanation to Mr. Hope—(we should like very much to see Mr. Hope's first letter to Mr. Bennett)—what has this to do with a breach of privilege? The reporters say that Honourable Members insisted upon Bull's incarecration for breach of privilege, because he had wounded the feelings of Lady Jersey, Mrs. Barber Beaumont—the Duchess of Bedford, Lady Rush, &c. &c.

Now these reporters must make egregious blunder no men could have taken such a line of argument. We will wik Mr. Scarlett—not as Member of Parliament, but, as a Barrister, and pay him for his opinion too-whether he ever knew a Judge condemn a man for suggery who was indicted for sheep-stenling?

The reporters are correct enough, however, in one thing we are in Prison—and here we must remain till the ninth of next month; but we trust that our exertions in the cause of the King and Constitution will not be less effective while we are here than they were while we were

Supe we are of the justice of our intentions and the integrity of our principles; and the energy of that satire and ridicule, sucher the lash of which Vice and Folly shrink; and manable, shall not be lost because our hodies are in

NEWGATE, May 12th, 1821.

THE REPORTERS

WE were at first astonished to see the language which the Reporters have attributed to certain Members of Parliament while our case was under discussion; we were quite sure that:it never could have been used; but we were puzzled to know why the particular persons named should have been said to have been so severe. Upon turning to our file we find how the Reporters have fallen into the error. They have read our Papers, and have concluded (doubtless, without ever having heard) that such men as we had noticed would be violent in their attacks upon us; for, strange to say, every name which they have mentioned as belonging to our violent opponents during the last week, has been more or less handled by us. For instance, we have, relating to

HON. HENRY GREY BENNETT.

" Frothy Grey Bennett,
" That very day se'anight,
" Drove down in his dencett
" To Brandenburgh House."

Prose article respecting Mr. Henry Grey Bennett and Governor Macquarrie-with a promise of another (which, if possible, he shall have next week.) No. 10.

And Calcraft his ness cooked, and Grant cocked his eye,

"And hypecrite Beaucit pretanded to cry
"For the black wig and character white."

"Creevey's tripe, unsav'ry stuff,

" Fit ment alone for dog or cat he; "HENRY BENNETT is a puff, " And Ossulston a peut paté."

"Bennett is such a little gosslyping, waspish thing, that even the Shrowsbury cake-sellers themselves are sick of him."

No. 18,- et passim MR. SCABLETT.

" Scarlett offers his law, and his wit too, for Scarlett "Chimes in, as he pleasantly tells us, with Harlot."—No. 13.

MAJOR-GENERAL WILSON.

"Sir Robert Wilson, K. M. T.
"What's that?" says a Southwark wight,
"La!" says his neighbour, "don't you see,
"That means an M. T. Knight."

With a subsequent proof that Major-General Wilson is no

Kuight at all. No. 3. " From service retreated, (Sir H. Bunhury.)

"By Wilson out praied,
"Like him, self-created,
"His star is his sip."

No. 17.

Major-General Wilson abused us also; -we thank him:we hope he will continue to do so;—we would not have him speak well of us for the world."

"And Wilson the thanks in the field he had got." No. 13.

"Wilson, Bernal, Meore, and Ellies, "Make an economic hash."

And has she no General—Heigh, Ma'am, he, Ma'am?

" Has she no General, ho?

"Yes, poor prating Wisson,
"Who if he e'er kills one,

" 'Tis more by a word then a blow-'Tis more by a word than a blow."

No. 19.

This, however, is not strictly correct, for the Major-General being in the Lobby of the House the other evening, having in his hand one of the hammer-headed sticks, which are prohibited in Paris, some one asked him why he carried so formidable a weapon—" to knock down this JOHN BULL," said the Major-General.

There are hammers and ninny-hammers in this world, to which class the Major-General's stick belonged, we do not pretend to surmise.

SIR BOXALD FERGUSSON.

" By Fragusson backed, Michael Angelo Taylor, "Supposed that his Statesman-like views might avail her, &c."

"Sir Ronald Fergusson ought to have felt that, had it been our habit to consider political hostility as a justification for attacks of the nature he hints at, that there is a name in the Queen's list, which would have afforded us ample opportunity for little histories, anecdotes, and jokes, and scandal; but while the Times and Chronicle omitted certain distinguishing marks to that name, we with a contemporary faciling (which Sie Renald school) with a gentlemanly feeling (which fir Ronald should have given us credit for) disdained to rip away the veil prudence had thrown over the visit, and gave the lady the full benefit of the obscurity, in which a name so vulgar and common-place as hers had fortu-nately left her." No. 14.

"Sir Rosald's lobster, if you crack
"His scarlet shell and straggling claws."—No. 17.

"And had she no Commoners, heigh, ma'am, ho, ma'am.?
"Had she no Commoners, ho?
"I happened to look

"And could find in her book

"Only Fergusson, Taylor, and Co.——Co. Fergusson, Taylor, and Co."—No. 19.

" Fergusson his place may choose,

"In the bevy—in the bevy, "He's the real Taylor's goose,

"HOT AND HEAVY -HOT AND HRAVY."-No. 10.

HENRY BROUGHAM, ESQ.

BROUGHAM ANA, from first to swered, and unanswerable questions it contains—questions as to the time of his marriage—of the birth of his child-of his election for Winchilsea—of his offering to give up the Queen for a silk gown-nick-naming him TACITUSshowing him up for takking of bringing the Queen to the post sober—for his calling WOOB an Ass—for denying that he was returned for Winchilden when he was returned for jokes on his nove!—for publishing Mr. M'Kerrel's correspondence, whose statement ends with the words, " cool, deliberate, misrepresentation and falsehood!"laughing at him at all times and seasons-lowing little jeux d'apprit. and for the fol-

" All England praises me; but livid Brougham

"All England praises me; but livin providence."
"Is forced to give a still more flatt/ring doom:
"His sense-of taste, and truth, and bonour's laws,
"No. 9.

"Pray, remember, my Lords, pray, remember the nose
"Which Cuchi, the waiter, had on;—
"Said the great Mr. Brougham, as he drew to a close,
"And made the impression which ev'ry one knows.
"Said the Lords, "Pray, remember your own."

I perfectly general wildish. We constructed "What your horiships are willing to say

"But mine is a more which requires no relief; "For, suspicious of danger, it shifts, like a third

" Instinctively out of the way!" No. 13.

" Brougham's crooked shifts and talents boasted,

"His slippery tricks no more conceul; Dragged into light, cut up, and roasted, "What is he but spitch-cocked eel?" No. 17.

"And had she no counsellors, Heigh, Ma'am, Ho, Ma'am?
"Had she no counsellors, Ho?
"Yes: one Mr. Brougham,
"Who sneak'd out of her room,

" Pretending the Circuit to go-go,
" Pretending the Circuit to go.

" How fared he at Lancaster, Heigh, Ma'am, Ho, Ma'am?

" How fared be at Lancuster, Ho?

"They physicked and bled,
"And they blistered his head,
"And kept him uncommonly low—low,
"And kept him uncommonly low."

No. 19.

"I tell you, HARRY BROUGHAM, that in talents for any good or honourable purpose you have crowds of superiors; but in capacity for intrigue and apostacy, and in a power of self-degradation it has pleased Goo, for ends not yet scrutable, to give you unrivalled abilities." No. 12.

" Brougham on his tomb-stone would have writ-

' Here lies the enemy of PITT.'

"And half the line at least applies,
"For every one admits—' he lies.'"

No. 17.

MR. M. A. TAYLOR.

"Old Barber and TAYLOR!
"And WOOD couldn't fail her."

FERGUSSON, TAYLOR and Co. and such highly offensive insinuations scattered through many numbers.

"Taylor is chick for fricasses."

MICHABL'S DINNER in No. 19, including hard hits at his mutton, turkey, and spere-rib, on that famous day when the welfare of the nation was forgetten for the delicacies of his hospitable table.

"While ye thus in classt, Sirs,

"Loss your reason, less your messes,
"Eagland will recover her's
"Lost last season, last last season!

" Partion's mobs, Sedition's bordes

" Mint grow thinner, must grow thinner, "While plain common some records

" Michael's Dinnbr, Michael's Dinner!"—No. 19.

But "plain common sense" might have recorded that de-licious coaxing scene between Lambton-" yellow Lamb-ton" (as the poet has it) and little Cocky Taylor, after the bustle about the division that night, was over.

"Don't flurry yourself, my dear Lambton, (says Taylor, in the lobby) don't fret yourself, the thing is lost, and shere's an end of it—don't agitate yourself; come home with me to Privy Gardens, and Mrs. Taylor, herself, shall make you a cun of ten_do. there's a good fellow. shall make you a cup of tea—do, there's a good fellow. She has been called Mrs. Michael Angelo T. ever since.

LORD NUGENT. " Big Nugent bestowed all his graces upon her."
LORD JORN RUSSELL

"Bald Benrord his still balder eloquence gave." No. 12.
"Lord Tavistock stammered three words in her praise. 66d.

" The RUSSELLS came thick in " To greet the fat dame."

No. 5. "The Duckess of Benronn is a haly of the most refined sensibility—she was in mourning for the late Duke of Bestford, to whom her hand was engaged, when she accepted the hand of his brother!"

No. 8.

And so we could go on to justify the reporters in thinking that men so attacked would naturally be savage, when they had us in their power; but we savage, when they had us in their power; but we really do not believe a word of the report, as being a correct statement of what passed in the house:—as far as the animosity of all these gentlemen goes, if it were all true, we should say it was quite natural, and be much more inclined to laugh with them than be angry; but we are quite sure that it must be erroneous, becau the gentlemen whose names are mentioned are not out staunch advocates for the liberty of the press, but for th most part the associates and acquaintance of those mea-who, in the Morning Chronicle—the Twopenny Post Bag the Fudge Family-Crib's Memorial, &c. &c. first set the example of violence, and who, without feeling or decency, not only attacked with the grossest personality and beastly, malevolence the highest and the neblest amongst us, but entraged the characters of living ladies without any regard. to decency or truth. Let any man take up either of the works, the Twopenny Post Bug, or the Fidge Fundly, and read it, and then say whether in JOHN BUIL from the first hour of its establishment to this moment, there has ever appeared in its pages articles so grossly personal or so shamefully scandalous, as the libels which appeared in those classics of the opposition:—the truth is, we have they can pay us.

n asking a wag v beth ne Rditor n ment in his defence, replied, "If he did use any arguments, they appear to have been Newsateery ones."

A new work, called "The Annaus of the Paness," has been just published in Rdinburgh; it bears strong marks of genius and talent, and we strongly secondared it to our readers. As it will be reviewed in the next Number of "The Journal of Literature," a work seen by most of our subscribers, we shall abstate fi making any extracts here. In confirmation of our report of Lady Jersey's going abrood, we have to inform our renders, that it is understood Lord Jersey that week sold his hours at Tattersoll's.—We have an old regard for Lord Jersey, and camot help-exclaiming, as Bishop Burnet the Old Buke of Mariborough..." But he had such a wife."

Mr. Alderman Garratt will be, it is supposed, one of the Shes for the year ensuing.

ADVERTMENT.]-After viewing the Exhibition at Son House, and other Exhibitions, we would recommend the numerous desers of the Fine Arts, and their encouragers, to visit Tomkins's Picture Lottery, at 53 and 54 New Bond Street, where there is a most beautiful exhibition, open to the public gratts, from the bases of ten tillders. This Picture Lottery will be drawn in July, and a novel feature of it is, that the purchaser of a red ticket and a black ticket, must have a prize, the value of which may be some thousands.

Digitized by GOOGLE

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

(Continued from page 171.)
THURSDAY.

Mr. R. Martin complained of a Breach of Privilege in The

Mr. R. Martin complained of a Breach of Privilege in the Times newspaper, purporting to be a report of his speech on the subject of a Petition which he had presented; but on the suggestion of Mr. Tierney he withdrew the complaint.

The following were the names of the Committee on the Portsmouth Election:—W. Maberley, Sir E. Knatchbull, R. Newman, Sir W. Guise, R. H. Clive, W. Thompson, Lord J. Russell, J. W. Croker, W. Stuart, G. Bustard, Lord Stanley, J. Griffith, R. Carroll, T. Williams.

The Order of the Day was then read for the attendance of Thomas

The Order of the Day was then rend for the attendance of Thomas Arrowsmith, William Shackell, and Henry Fox Cooper.

Mr. Bennett moved that Mr. Arrowsmith be called in. In answer to the questions put to this Gentleman, he replied, that he was not the proprietor of John Bull now—he had censed to be so since the 10th of February—the proprietorship then vesting in Mr. Weaver, who receives a salary for some services independent of John Bull. Weaver pays the rent of the house in which the paper is printed.—[The rest of the examination related to the pecuniary arrangement of the concern.]

Mr. W. Shnekell was then examined, he stated that he had censed to be proprietor of the paper since February, in consequence of prose-to be proprietor of the paper since February, in consequence of prose-cutions not being pleasant; that Mr. Weaver then become proprietor. The witness then stated some minor matters respecting the accounts of the paper. With respect to the article now the subject of enquiry, he was clear that he had not seen it until it was in the paper. He appointed Mr. Cooper the editor, who has the sole management of the Paper, and examines the manuscripts. The editor is responsi-ble to Mr. Wenver, the present proprietor. Sometimes the editor was paid by the witness, sometimes by Mr. Arrowsmith, and some-times by Mr. Wenver.

Mr. H. F. Cooper was then examined. He stated that he is editor of John But!, and had been so since its first commencement; all manuscripts for insertion are submitted to him. [The paper containing the offensive paragraph was then put into the witness's hand, and he rend the paragraph.] The witness stated, that part of the article (which he pointed out) was an extract from the Courier; the observations were written by himself. The House would perhaps allow him to add, that understanding the facts therein stated were not true, he wished to express his regret that any thing which he had inserted in the Paper should have wounded the feelings of the Hon. Member, and that the article in question was of that nature as to have been deemed a breach of privilege of that House. He believed, from general rumour, that the facts contained in these observations were true, or he would not have inserted them. On being further questioned, he repeated that he had the facts from general rumour; that he had heard it mentioned by Mr. Shackell and Mr. Arrowsmith, as being generally current during the whole of Saturday. He (the witness) was in the office; it was on that rumour, and believing it to be correct, that it was written by the witness. They (Messrs. Shackell and Arrowsmith) did not know of the paragraph being inserted. He further stated, that the copy of the paragraph was given to the compositors. And what became of that copy? He believed the copies were generally destroyed; the article in question was delivered to Mr. Blackie, the printer. The witness states that he had nothing to do with the pecuniary arrangements. The witness having retired,

Mr. Bennett expressed his regret at bringing this painful subject before the House. The affair was closed, and he was sorry it had gone to such length; but he should not have done his duty, either to the House or himself, if he did not notice it. The House had had the printers, proprietors, and publishers before them—they had had the editor, who avowed himself the author of the paragraph in question. But he would not now go into a detail of the evidence given by these persons, nor point out the gross prevarications and perjuries they committed (for a perjury was committed, as he would shew by the affidavit made at the Stamp-office,) being convinced that the House saw they were but creatures of atras—and vile instruments in the hands of others. Of the Paper itself it was needless to say a word—its character was known to the world—every houset man condemned it, and none gave it the world—every honest man condemned it, and none gave it countanance but the lowest and basest of mankind. He disclaimed all vindletive feelings, and declared his only object was to clear his character to the world, if necessary, from the foul imputations cast upon it. He also wisted to extract from the confessions of the wretches who appeared at the bar, who had set them on, and by whom the materials of attack upon private character were fur-nished. In this he fuiled; and yet he was hardly sorry for his failure. He should, for the honour of human nature, be better pleased to find that these vile paragraphs were written by such wretches as appeared at the bar, than by men above them. He was aware, that by the practice of the House, a person committing a smaller offence against the privileges of the House than this defindant, might be committed to Newgate; but against that summary mode of punishment he had more than once given a decided opinion, and he would not now be inconsistent though it should serve his own case. A direct obstruction of a Member in doing his duty was clearly an offence punishable as a breach of privilege; but this savoured more of a construction than a direct obstruction. He was in doubt whether he ought to resort to the ordinary mode of punishment, and would therefore take a more lement course. Perhaps in doing so, he differed from some of his friends, whose judgments were superior to his own; but he had certain feelings on the subject, and he could not give them up. If than of the judgment. He would give these people an opportunity of defending themselves before a Jury of their country. The Hon. Member concluded by moving, "That Mr. Attorney-General be directed to prosecute Henry Fox Cooper, Weaver, Shackell, and Arrawsmith for a gross and scandalous libel upon the Hon. Henry Gray Report to Member of that House contained in a Naysympus Grey Bennett, a Member of that House, contained in a Newspap dated the 6th of May last, in violation of the privileges of that

The Marquis of Londonderry rose to oppose the motion. What-ever respect he had for the Hon. Member opposite, he should, in the observations he was about to make, merge those feelings with what be considered the dignity of the House, and the proper course which it ought to pursue on this occasion. What he requested of the Hon. Member, in the first place, was, that he should wait at least another day, and not press the motion which he had just made upon the House at the present moment. He made this appeal with more confidence to the Hon. Member, because he had entirely disclaimed all vindictive feelings towards the proprietors of the paper in ques-tion. Perhaps the Hon. Member would forgive him (Lord L.) for saying that he had placed the House in a great difficulty by bringing under its consideration a matter which deserved punishment. He served punishment. esummitted the House to a support of its privileges; but then turning round, he would have the House not proceed, but, by a theory of his own, contended that this was a same which called for prosecution by the Attorney-General. With regard to this sort of prosecution, it was one which the House never took up, but when it was unable by other means to assert its dignity. In the present case, it would not only be a hardship, but a crying injustice to send any individual before a Jury, loaded with the reprobation of a body such as the House of Commons. The Hon. Member would first condemn these individuals at the bar of the House, and then send them prejudged tate a Court of Law. Was this dealing fairly with them, or rather was it not taking away altogether that fair chance, which arose out of the old maxim. " That every man was innocent till he was shewn But he was not contending that the Hon. Member was wrong in calling them to the bar in the first instance—what he complained of was, that supposing mother trial was to take place elsewhere, the inquiry here had been pushed too far. If he had said that his object was only to search out the editor or author of the paragraph, and then recommend a prosecution against him, it would be fair enough; but when the Hon, Member had elicited from these individuals every thing which could tend to criminate them, it would be hard indeed to send them elsewhere with this evidence staring them in the face. Yet he was far from saying that there were no cases in which, after inquiry here, the parties could not be sent before a Jury; he admitted circumstances might arise to call sent before a Jury; ne administrative constances inight arise to can for such a proceeding, but he did not at present see the necessity for it. He asked this Hon. Member, therefore, to pause, and he was sure, on reflection, he (Mr. Bennett) would agree with him that his motion was a little basty. The Hon. Member had disclaimed vindictive feelings, and could not therefore be a sufferer from delay. And he (Lord L.) could not help saying, that when the Hon. Member has the health forward this motion, it was his injunton that the ber first brought forward this motion, it was his intention that the House should take the management of it entirely into their own hands. The Noble Marquis concluded by moving, as an amend-ment, "that the further consideration of this question be disposed of

Mr. C. Wynne thought the House ought to dispose of the busi-

Mr. Brougham said as this was a question of no ordinary impor--affecting as it did the dignity and privileges of the House, he should make no apology for making an observation or two upon it. Not standing in the same situation with regard to the parties as the Hon. Member for Shrewsbury, he would leave leniency to them entirely out of the question. But the House was bound to vindicate its own privileges, which would be lost for ever if, it followed the advice of his Hon. Friend. There were cases in which it was better to prosecute than commit; but this was a case calling fer the latter opinishment. The present was as great an obstruction as could be offered to an individual in that House. It came, therefore, within that description of Breach of Privilege, which in the best times was said to call for summary punishment. He could not negative a proceeding in the usual way, unless he surrendered all the rights of Parliament. If the House intended to send this matter to a Court of Law, they cush that the house group so for in adjusting forces. of Law, they ought not to have gone so far in eliciting from parties coming here under fear of punishment, evidence by which they criminated themselves. The evidence taken here would be received against them elsewhere. He thought, therefore, the House would abandon its best rights if they adopted the proposition of his Hon. Friend; but at the same time he saw no reason for their acting upon the suggestion of the Noble Lord. The House ought to proceed in the business without delay, and, indeed, where Cooper, one of the parties, avowed himself the author of the libel, he wondered hour the House could be to him at least the secret heart them.

dered how the House could, as to him at least, hesitate with regard to the course which they ought to take.

Sir Francis Burdett.—This House never took up a subject of this nature but it reduced itself to a dilemma. In the present case it was placed in a great difficulty. The Noble Lord was certainly correct in saying, that after the inquisitorial examination to which these individuals were subjected—after sifting from them every particular which confidence and trust would oblige them to conparticular which confidence and trust would oblige mem to con-ceal—after extorting from them every thing which could tend to criminate them, it would be most unjust to send them prejudged, and loaded with the censure of this House, to another tribunal. This course, therefore, could never be adopted. And with regard to a prosecution by the Attorney-General, he thought it not less exceptionable. This House could not order the Attorney-General to prosecute, for he was no officer of it; the fit course would be to address the King, praying his Majesty to direct the Attorney-Gene-ral to proceed. He thought no privilege was attacked by the present defendants. Writing such as that brought under the notice of the House ought only to be despised; but want was the fault committed by them? Unless the House declared that a false report of a speech was a breach of privilege, these defendants had done no wrong. One part of the paragraph merely stated that something was stated by a Member in that House, which was not stated in fact. Another part referred to something which was done by a Member not in the House, but connected with it. This cornection too was of the slightest nature; and, indeed, had scarcely more reference to the Hon. Member's Parliamentary conduct, than any other circumstance which might happen to a Member out of doors. other circumstance which might happen to a Member out of doors, It was, therefore, not an obstruction of his duties, but a construction of that obstruction. If any obstruction occurred, he that called the Hon. Member to account for his observations in the House was the guilty person. And if any person did so call upon him, there was no doubt but that he was guilty of a breach of the highest privileges of Parliament. For, if a Gentleman in his place, thinking it his duty to remark upon the conduct of a public man—of one who received a large share of the public money, was to be held responsible to all the relations of that public man, the consequence would be most dangerous. A Member would be then inquence would be most dangerous. A Member would be then in-timidated from doing his duty, and this intimidation would be an obstruction of the worst kind. It would be a direct obstruction, for he would be actually incapacitated by his fears from doing his duty; but the statement in the paper was only a construction of that obstruction. Had not the affair originated with some one else, mitted, the person most guilty was he who dared to notice what a Member, in the fulfilment of his duty, said in his place.

Mr. M. A. Taylor moved that the Minutes of the Evidence be possibly the paper would never have noticed it; and at most, its offence was of stating what had been done by another. It was, therefore, the first duty of the House to protect its Members from the foul species of direct obstruction; and as Parliament had been formerly a bulwark for the people against the Crown, so it ought to be now a protection for its Members against the public. He would therefore contend, that if any breach of privilege was committed the nerven most suits was to who desert to make the public whether printed. Mr. A. Baring opposed the motion, whilst the House was yet in doubt whether the question ought not to go before a Court of law. In that case the publication of the evidence would be most injurious to the individuals.

Mr. Taylor withdrew his motion.

Mr. Wodehouse agreed with the Hon. Member for Westminster condemning the system of prosecution by the Attorney-General. There was nothing in all the new Bills, about which to much had beon said, half so exceptionable as this mode of prosecution by the Attorney-General.

Sie R. Wilson defended Sir Ronald Fergusson from the attack ade upon him in the libel, wherein he was called the of the party." The character which that gallant General had made for himself in the field, would, he hoped, protect him from of the party." the insinuation, that he was a man, on any occasion, who would consent to sacrifice his own bonour, but still less that of his friend.

Sir T. Lethbridge thought the most proper mode of treating this vile publication would be to pass it by in contempt. He had himself been attacked in various newspapers, but he never com-plained to the House; not because he did not think there were grounds for complaint, but he entertained a sovereign contempt for such publications and their editors.

The question of adjournment was then garried without division.

Mr. Bennett asked the Noble Marquis if, having succeeded in adjourning the question, he would be responsible that the witnesses in attendance in the House to-morrow. The Marquis of Londonderry thought this a strange pledge,

Stating a practical of the numbers were:

On a division the numbers were:

Against it, 57— Majority, 16.

The Irish Tithe Leasing Bill was thrown out.

The Steam-Engine Bill was passed.

In a Committee on the Postage Act, the House divided on the further progress of the Bill. For it, 38—Against it, L5—Majority, 23.—The Report was ordered to be brought up.— Adjourned.

FRIDAY. The further consideration of the County Courts Bill was post-poned for six months.—Lord Althorpe gave notice of his intention which was demanded from him. He had said nothing like a wish to undertake auch a responsibility. He would remind the Hon. Member that it was in the power of the House to enforce an

Mr. Shackell, Mr. Arrowsmith, and Mr. Cooper were then or dered to attend the House to-movrow.

Sir F. Burdett presented a petition from James Mills, who simply styled himself "a free-born Englishman, interested in the freedom and purity of election," but without any connection with the Borough in question, against the return of the Marquis of Londonderry for the Borough of Orford. The Petitioner stated that the Noble Marquis extended that the Noble Marquis extended the state of the Sta that the Noble Marquis obtained his seat, not by the unbiassed suffrages of the Burgesses of Orford, but by the undue influence of the Marquis of Heriford. He complained, that in this instance the laws of election were grossly violated, and concluded by praying the House to refer his petition to a Committee of Privileges.

Mr. Wynne contended, that as it complained of the undus return of a Member, it ought to be referred to an Election Com-of Oxford, where a similar complaint was made against the undue influence of the Duke of Marlborough, and the petition there was Lord A. Hamilton brought the subject of Scotch Representation under the consideration of the House, and after several observations moved a Resolution, stating, "That it appears to this House that the number of persons having the right of voting in the several counties in Scotland did not exceed 2859.

Mr. Muckenzie opposed the Resolution, on account of its not stating a practical gringance.

stating a practical grievance.
On a division the numbers were:—For the Resolution, 41—

Mr. F. Robinson contended that this case was analogous to that attendance to its orders.

referred to an Election Committee.

The Petition was ordered to lie on the table.

The Chairman of the City of Warwick Election Committee reported that the sitting Member was duly elected.

The adjourned debate on the Breach of Privilege complained of John Bull was then resumed.

The Speaker then informed the House, the question for their discussion was, that his Majesty's Attorney-General be instructed to institute a prosecution for a wilful and malicious libel, isserted in the John Bull of Sunday last, against the printer, proprietor, and editor thereof, R. T. Weaver, T. Atrowsmith, W. Shackell, and H. F. Cooper.

Mr. Scarlett was apprehensive that the question before them would be found to be one liable to more inconveniences than the House might at first be aware of. It would not be amongst the slightest objections to this mode of proceeding, that the parties had already, by being subjected to examination, (arnished proofs against themselves of the offence with which they were charged. The insimutation conveyed was, that an hon. Member had been terrified into an apology. Any person acquainted with the character of his hon-friend (Mr. Bennett) must know that a more atrocious or groundless attack could not be made on the character of any gentleman than this. The House was much indebted to his hon, friend (Mr. Bennett) for bringing it under their consideration. This paper be had not seen before, it was only after this subject had been brought forward that he looked into it: and be must say, from the specimen he saw of the manner in which it was conducted, that it would be most desirable manner in which it was conducted, that it would be most desirable to ascertain who the real author was; suspicion had gone abroad that persons of high character, and deemed worthy even of grave and important situations gave countenance to this vie production. He could not bring himself to believe such a report. It would be most digraceful to the House if it could be supposed for a moment, this supperson who had the homour of a sent in it, would degraded intrables of ir as to become the author of a paragraph so fides and calumnious. With these feelings on the subject he did not however think that the Attorney General was the fittest person to be called upon, or that the mode of accessfulny proposed by his how friend CM. Remnest't was the mode of proceeding proposed by his hon, friend (Mr. Bennett) was the most advisable to adopt. He would recommend to his hon, friend to withdraw his motion, otherwise, if persevered in, he should feel it his duty to oppose it.

Mr. Benneti had no objection to withdraw the motion.

Sir. R. Fergusion expressed his subsaction that his hon friend had consented so to do.

Mr. Baring said his bon. friend (Mr. Bennett) had placed the House in an awkward situation by withdrawing his motion, with the Intention of not proposing any other mode of dealing with these individuals. If he intended to proceed thus, it would have been better to have taken no notice at all of the matter. He would admit the inex-pediency of sending the complaint before a Court of Law; first, because of what had taken place there; and, secondly, because in a Court of Law it might be decided that this was not a libel. Such a decision, it was apparent, would place the House in a very un-pleasant situation. He trusted there would be always found there a majority Willing to support their privileges; and that upon the prese occasion this matter, which was so serious an attack on them, would not be allowed to rest where it, was. The notion avowed himself, and with him it was now their duty to deal. With respect to any persons who might be belied the cartain he could form to any persons who might be belied the curtain he could form no opinion, for until the present occasion he never took the trouble of looking into this publication. For these reasons he would propose that Mr. H. F. Cooper should be committed to his Majesty's gool of Newgate. He should he situate to move for the commitment of the printer, if he had fairly given up the author at the outset; but there appeared so much prevarication in his evidence, that he was disjoned to commit him also. As to the other two, their examination was very little to their credit, but he had not looked into it sufficiently to make any proposition with respect to them. He hoped when any question of this kind occurred again, they would not be indused to act on his lon, friend's (Mr. Beanett's) neculiar notions be induced to act on his hon. friend's (Mr. Beanett's) peculiar notions of privilege, but do what they considered necessary to the support of

Mr. Banker suggested some verbal alteration in the last motion, which we could not hear in the gallery.

Str W. De Creepigny spoke in favour of the original proposition of Mr. Bennett. It was necessary, he said, to punish in the most exemplary way such a set of assassins. He was sorry the real author could not be discovered.

The Marquit of Landonderry was disposed for a more length punishment. The House would fargive him for calling their attention to a similar complaint, which; cause under their consideration the session before last. It was an attack made on a Right Hon. Friend of his (Mr. Cauning) calculated to give as much pain to the mind, and as derogatory to character as could possibly be imagined. Surely there could be no libel more flagitious than to represent his Hon. Friend as delighting in the sufferings of his fellow-creatures. He did not then find any anxiety on the other side of the House to nunish the offende by a committal to Newgate, and in fact he was committed to the custody of the Serjeant at Arms. The present offence could by no mean considered as more flagrant than the one to which he allusted. He thought they would let down the privileges of the House if they did not adopt some proceedings with respect to the persons who had been called to the ber; but he was not prepared to go the length of committing them to Newgate. Immediately to reprint and discharge them, if that there were attacks more infamous, directed against characters appeared to him to be too mild a proceeding, and to commit them to Newgate too strong a one. He could assure the House that he was so little inclined to tolerate such publications, that he was by no means disposed to show more charity on the present occasion, than even-handed justice required. He should have had no hesitation in voting to commit those persons to Newgate, had it not been for the lenity, well by ill-advised, which was exhibited in the particular case to which he had alluded. Under these circumstances, he thought it would be the cause of great misconception if a more severe course were adopted on the present occasion, although be certainly thought that to remain in custody for one night would not be too severe a punishment for the

The Clerk then read the entry on the Journals of the 15th June, 1819, to the effect that John Payne Collier, having been guilty of a libel on that House, should be committed to the custody of the Serjeant at Arms.

The Marquis of Londonderry said he would move, as an amend-ment, that Henry Fox Cooper be committed to the custody of the aut at Arms.

Mr. Searlett entered into some explanations on the subject of the committed of Mr. Collier. He thought there was a material difference in the two cases, and defended himself from what he considered an attrick of the noble Marquis. He never meant to cast the slightest imputation on any of the Honourable Gentlemen opposite, and would conclude by observing that if he had been in the House, and had conclude by observing that if he had been in the House, and had conclude by observing, that if he had been in the House, and had found that the fibel on the Right Honourable Member for Liverpool was as gross as the present, he certainty should have voted for sending the Author of it to Newgate.

The Marquis of Londonderry, in explanation, expressed his regret that any expressions of a warm character should have escaped him in the course of debate, but he felt the less upon it, as it had drawn forth the very clear explanation of the Honourable and Learner Member. From the nature of the observations used, he thought that an aspertion was likely to be cast either upon the councils of his Maan aspertion was likely to be cast either upon the councils of his Majesty or the council of the nation. He confessed that he had spoken under this delusion, but it was now entirely wiped away by the Honourable and Learned Member's explanation. What he meant to say in the first instance was, that the House in its decision should not give a party character to its proceedings. He could not, however, allow the distinction drawn between the present and the former libel.

Sir R. Fergusson rose to explain. The Noble Lout had in his first speech imputed political motives to him on this occasion. This he (Sir R. Fergusson) positively denied. Where the Noble Lout got his own iscience as to the motives and feelings of other men he could not guess: but he thought the Noble Lout had better look to his own ns ourness each to the motives and realings of other friend account not guess: but he thought the Noble Lord had better look to his own feelings and motives upon this question. He had spoken upon this subject from honest feelings of indignation at seeing the foulest calumnies published against the women of this country. He trusted the Noble Lord and the House would coincide with him in reprobating this new system of attack upon the women of the country.

The Marquis of Londonderry again explained. He wished that honourable gentleman would express the same indignation when other

Mr. W. Wynne observed, that the noble Marquis had selected the very weakest case of precedents on the Journals. In all cases of privilege, the honour and character of the House only were to be looked riege, the honour and character of the House only were to be looked to. It was said that libels were become more frequent, but this, in his opinion was the very reason why the punishment should be made more severe. He had seen in papers of both parties, libels, which were a diagrace to the country, and to those who administered public justice. But he must say, that he had seen, and that lately, wiful misrepresentations in the public papers, and particularly in the comments on debutes. But in this case they ought to look not to the general character of the paper, but to the particular libel complained of. If the House feltconcerned that they did not punish the last libel with more severity, and if they were to act upon that preceden upon the present occasion, the privileges of the House, the character of its with more severity, and if they were to act upon that precedent upon the present occasion, the privileges of the House, the churacter of its members, and the liberties of the people, which were closely interwoven with both, would suffer, and that most fatally.

Mc, J. PT. Ward said that the Libel alluded to, was even worse than the present. If he wans to induce the two outrages, he must say, that he would feel much more unplensant under that uttered against his Right Honourable Friend, than under that now before the House. On those grounds, therefore, in justice to his Right Honourable Friend as well as to the House, he thought they ought to follow the milder course. He knew it was said that the punishment in the former case was considered too light, but it should be recollected, that the motion passed sem com.

the motion passed sem con.

Lord J. Russell. With respect to the mode of punishing libels upon that House, he should not venture to pronounce an opinion, as he was not ready to consent to any measure of punishment; and in cases of privileges, the least punishment was the best. With respect to the words in the former misrepresentation, it was well known that Mr. Canning did use the words—" the revered and ruptured Ogden.' and that the House did laugh; and the Right Hon. Member was, in consequence, charged with turning into ridicule the sufferings of a follow-creature, when this properties. fellow-creature, when this paragraph was inserted by a person who had appeared at the Bar; it was stated, that the words were written without knowing that it was a misrepresentation, and the House gave credit to that statement. What he rose for was to protest against the insinuation that he or his friends who sat around him gave countenance to libels similar to those which had appeared in John Bull. There had been in other publications severe political libels; and he only pitied the Noble Marquis's discrimination in moral feeling, when he confounded political libels with attacks upon private character; one could be answered, but to the other none could be given. Sup-posing the Noble Marquis was charged with having during his holding office in Ireland given orders to flog men to death, he might appeal to his public conduct and character for his vindication; last if a libel, false as hell, were written upon any female of his fa-mily, would the Noble Marquis, in order to contradict it, wish to unveil her whole private life, and expose it to the world? How-ever pure might be the lives of women, there was a delicacy in the ever pure might be the lives of women, there was a delicacy in the female character which shrunk from public notice; and any woman of delicacy would have an extreme repugnance to a public investigation of her character. Such being the nature of the libels in the John Bull, he deaded that any of a similar kind had been countenanced by any person on his side of the House; but he could not acquit the noble Marquis and his particular of patronizing these libels, because he had authority to state, that when this paper was first published, it had been exact to his Maintenance and the second of the secon they making paper, they might be excusable in reading it; but if they paid money for it, they were paying money for moral assassination.

The Marquis of Londonderry, after congratulating the House on their high good humour, assured the noble Lord that he was as correct in his foreign politics, as in his Irish information. Where the Noble Lord heard the calumny, he (Marquis L.) did not know nor care. He disbelieved the statement respecting the transmission of the papers; but if the Noble Lord would point out to him the person in the Foreign Office, who had acted so, that person should be immediately dismissed.
With respect to the protection which the Noble Lord had offered to the fair set The Noble Lord would allow him (the Marquis L.) to offer self ash rival -- and he would not devolve upon the Noble Lord, nor upon any man, that duty which he, in common with all men of honour in the country, owed to the fair sex. He did not justify those attacks, at which he, in common with the House, testified the strongest indignation; but when he compared them with other libels, he must say, been sent out to his Majesty's Ambassadors abroad. It was well known that no papers, except through the Government, could be sent free of postage; and as these papers had been so sent, that was in fact patronage. If the Administration, or the friends of the Administration, had taken in this paper, he did not mind their reading it, because more sacred, and against stations which involved more public intere ts In some of those publications, even the sucred person of Majesty In some of those publications, even the sucred person of Majesty itself did not escape. He should be glad to know from the Noble Lord, who had denied that he or his friends countenance! such publications, whether he had ever read the publications of Mr. Hone? He now thought it but justice to state, that the brother of the Noble Lord had on a former occasion expressed as great indignation at the publications of Mr. Hone, as the Noble Lord had at the libels of John Bull. He was sorry that he was obliged, in vindication of himself, and in reply to a question of the Noble Lord, to say any thing which should implicate any person whose conduct was not under consideration; but he would again assert that there were libels not less flargered. iion; but he would again assert that there were libels not less flagrant directed against Majesty itself, unnoticed by the Noble Lord and his friends; and in this country an attack upon the Sovereign was considered at least as atrocious as an attack upon the female character.

Mr. Courtenay admitte!, that the libel ought to be visited with punishment. He thought the course recommended by the noble Marquis the most lenient and consistent with the former proceedings. Mr. W. Smith was disposed to vote against the mitigated

Mr. C. Hutchinson, as a friend to the liberty of the press, would not oppose a lenient punishment.

Mr. Wilmot supported the severer punishment.

Sir Thomas Lethbridge said, the licentiousness of the press had now arrived at such a pitch, that it was high time to put a stop

Mr. Buring said, the present question was not one of a party, but of a personal nature. With respect to the unfortunate person to be punished, personal facture. With respect to the unfortunate persons to be punished, personal feeling could have nothing to do.

Mr. Bankes hoped, if the house committed a gross error in a former case, they would not go too far at the present moment.

The Marquir of Londonderry said, he felt that to follow a bad precedent, would be seriously doing a wrong. He thought the proper mode of dealing with the present party was to commit them, whatever any former precedent might have warranted. He begged leave, therefore to withdraw his amendment.

begged leave, therefore, to withdraw his amendment.

Sir J. Macintosh maintained that it was necessary to assert the privileges of Parliament. No punishment could be too severe, when such conduct was so prevalent as in this paper.

Lord Nugent withdrew his motion.

Mr. Brougham said in this case, a most flagitious libel was proved, he would vote for the severer punishment.

A division then took place on Mr. Baring's motion, for committing Mr. Cooper to Newgate.

. For the motion . . . 109 Agninst it . . . . 23

On our return to the gallery, we found Mr. S. Bourne on his legs, making some observation as to the punishment to be inflicted on those individuals to be called to the Bar, as well as to the printing of the evidence.

of the evidence.

Sir. James Macintosh regretted the Honourable Member should have said be sat silent during a painful examination, merely on account of the obloquy that might pursue him. He lamented this for the sake of the Hon. Member, as well as for the sake of the House; and that, after irrevocable steps were taken, he made observations such as had fallen from him.

Mr. S. Bourne only menut to say that the House had gone further in this instance than in any other with which he was acquainted. If the case were his own, he should satisfy himself with the discovery of the party offending. He thought the mode of examination tended to make the parties aggreete their crime, contrary to all those principles that usually regulated courts of justice. In truth, he thought the inquiry altogether very unusual. When a mon was called to the bar, as few questions as possible should be put to him. One of the parties confessed himself the author of the libel, and that to him (Mr. B.) would have been enough. He did not say the house disgraced itself, as was stated by his Right Honourable Friend; but he was still of opinion the inquiry had gone too far. With respect to the alledged prevarication, he heard nothing material; although with respect to the property there was something of the kind. But that prevarication he could not consider as justifying the interference of the House. He never meant to say that the House incurred diagrace or infamy; while he was still of opinion, as he had before stated, that the while he was still of opinion, as he had before stated, that the House proceeded somewhat too far.

A desultory conversation then ensued between Sir J. Macintosh Mr. Scarlett, Lord Nugent, Mr. S. Bourne, Mr. Wynne, Mr. Den-

The Marquis of Londonderry (as we understood) expressed a wish that the evidence should be printed, before the House took any further steps.

Mr. Bernal felt fully satisfied that the House possessed the power of punishing for a breach of its privileges; but he thought that such a power had only to be exercised on grave consideration. He therefore should in the present case have been satisfied if the Hon. Member for Shrewsbury, after having vindicated his own honour, had taken no further notice of the case.

Mr. T. Wilson said, that he could in his own mind reconcile the statements which Mes-rs. Shockell and Arrowsmith had made with truth. He could easily believe that intimidated by the prosecution which had been commenced against them, they might wish to get rid of the Paper, and that they might have entered into a bargain for that purpose with the first witness. He thought that a good reason existed why no writing had been entered into on that occasion, because they had property on the premises, which, had it been transferred late the name of the man of straw, might have been lost to them entirely. Under these circumstances, and considering that much time had already been occupied by the subject, he did not think it advisable to press the matter farther.

Mr. W. Smith moved that R. T. Wenver be taken into the custody of the Serjeant at Arms, to be brought to the Bur and reprimanded by the Speaker.

Mr. C. Wynne moved an Amendment "that he be committed

For the Motion.....27 For the Amendment. . . 34

lajority for Committal to Newgate...

Upon our return to the Gallery, we found Mr. Brougham s, eaking upon a motion which had been submitted to the House, of printing the evidence which had been given by Messrs. Shackell and Ar. ow-smith. The noise occasioned by the entrance of strangers into the Gallery, prevented us from hearing the Hon. Gentleman. Sir J. Neuport was inaudible from the same cause.

Sir C. Long expressed great doubt whether prevarication had taken place. He had heard the whole of the evidence of Arrowsmith, and certainly he conceived that it had displayed no prevarications. After having gone so far, he thought that the House would best consult its n dignity by going no further. Strangers were ordered to withdraw, and the Gallery was cleared for a division, but no division took place

Mr. Ward moved, that the House should resolve itself into a Committee of Supply.

Mr. Hume took occasion to advert at some length to the onlinance department, and moved, as an amendment, a resolution founded upon the statements of his speech; first, specifying that the grant of the House for the Ordnance Department had, in the years 1817, 1618, and 1819, amounted to 3,764,0341. which by the regulations of the Appropriation Act amounted to 3,695,896L; but that the real expenditure appeared, from the finance reports, to be 4,357,2411, being no excess over the grant of the House in three years of 623,2071, and therefore directing the Committee in its deliberations to take the subject of retrenchment in the Ordnance Department into consideration.

The House divided: - For going into the Committee, 110 - Against it, 56-Majority, 54.

In a Committee, Mr. R. Ward entered into a variety of statements respecting the Onlinance Departments, and stated that he intended to move that a sum or grant of 48,7411, for the Master-General, Clerks, and officers of the Tower and Pall-mail; next a sum of 39,0001, separately. and officers of the Tower and Pall-mall; next a sum of 30,0001, separately, for the gratuity generally; next a vote for the Civil Officers at home; fourthly, for similar Officers abroad; and fifthly, for the service and supply of the Engineers, the Horse Brigale, and Sappers and Miners. He then moved the two first resolutions for granting to his Majesty a sum of 43,7411, for the maintenance of the Master-General of Ochanice, with the Clerks and Officers in the Tower of London, and at Pall Mall.

Mr. P. Moore moved that the Chairman report progress and ask leave to sit again, which was agreed to.

The other Orders of the Day were then disposed of, and the House adjourned at half-past one.

ndjourned at half-past one.

THEATRE.

On Monday, His Majesty was graciously pleased to honour Covent Garden Theatre with his presence, to see Goldsmith's laughable Comedy of SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER, and the Farce of A ROLAND FOR AN OLIVER.

The doors were opened on this occasion, at six o'clock, and in less than a quarter of an hour, the house was crowded to an overflow—never, perhaps, was a more elegant or splendid audience collected together. The whole of the front rows of the boxes were filled by ladies, which gave a brilliancy of effect to the building we never saw produced before; many persons fainted in the pit, and were lifted over into the lobbies; and hundreds, disappointed of seats, remained in the passages, peeping through the glass pannels in the box door.

Just before seven o'clock, two Ycomen of the Guards placed themselves on a platform, erected across the orchestra, immodiately under the Royal box, which was most elegantly fitted up, with a chair of State, and sumptuous crimson velvet canopy, surmounted by a Crown.

Precisely at seven, His MASESTY entered, accompanied by the Dukes of Chrence and Wellington.—Never—never did a more spontaneous shout of delight burst from the people than was raised at this moment; hats and handkerchiefs waved in all parts of the house, and each one vied with his neighbour in the expression of feelings of devotion and enthusiastic affection for the Monarch. "GOD SAVE THE KING," was then sung by the performers, who, on this occasion, were recruited by several amateurs, both ladies and gentlemen, who, anxious to see their King, had mingled on the stage with the professional people. Every line which could be applied personally to the Sovereign was distinctly cheered; and, as on the former visit to the Theatre, the verse-

" Scatter his enemies,
" And make them fall,"

called forth shouts of approbation, literaly tremendous.

At the conclusion of GOD SAVE THE KING, the Play commenced, but was not suffered to proceed; the audience inmenced, but was not sunered to proceed; the audience insisting on "God save the King" again, which call was mistaken, as it has been invariably, for a call for "RULE BRITANNIA," which song was sung; after which, His Majesty seated himself, as did, a Tew moments afterwards, the Duke of Clarence. His Grace the Duke of Wellington stood on the right of the King throughout the whole couring on the right of the King throughout the whole evening.

The Play went off uncommonly well. Fawcett was in high glee; Liston beyond measure, droll; Charles Kemble all that he ought to be; Mrs. Davenport inimitable; and Miss Foote

After the Play, "GOD SAVE THE KING" was again sung, with the same marks of rapturous applause it had previously called forth; and immediately after, a one-act Piece, which had not been commanded, but was unnecessarily thrust in, to lengthen the performance, and weary the audience, com-menced. "She Stoops to Conquer" is a long Play, and "The Roland for an Oliver" is a long Farce, and quite sufficient for an evening's entertainment, without the buttooneries of

Mr. Yates, which are at once vulgar, stupid, and malicious.

The excellent fun of the Roland for an Oliver, and the capital acting, delighted the Royal spectators, who remained till the end of the performances, when His Majesty retired amidst the shouts of the audience.

His Majesty was received with similar greetings of affection in his progress to, and return from the Theatre.

On Wednesday, His Majesty visited Drury Lane Theatre, where a box had been prepared for his reception in very good taste, and with much judgment. He was attended by the Duke of Clarence as before, and his reception, if possible, was more tumultuously rapturous than on Monday. We really never remember such a display of genuine feeling, un-mixed—undivided—not a murmur relative to the late unhappy events was heard; not a lip was polluted with the hated name of the degraded Queen: all was unanimity and joy.

Most gratifying must it have been to our beloved Monarch, to have seen these immense assemblies of the people, actuated by one great impulse towards him. He felt it—he shewed that he felt it. Long may he live to enjoy such testimonies of popularity! Let him, in this way, mingle frequently with his subjects, and they will learn to despise the lies and treasons of his enemies, or rather of the enemies of the country and constitution; for what enemies can King George the Fourth What point of his life has ever been marked, but with liberality, graciousness and kindness? What public act of his Government, from the moment he assumed the Regency to the present moment, has failed to add to the glory of England? Who could look upon him and on that illustrious hero, who stood on his right, and not recollect that those two individuals, one by his Councils, and the other by his sword, have, within ten years, raised England to a pitch tri greatness, she never before attained; and given us, at the end of an oppressive and mighty war, a perfect, honourable, and triumphant peace!!

" I would serve my King;
Serve him with all my fortune, here at home;
And serve him with my person in the wars—
Watch for him, fight for him, bleed for him, die for him?"

This is what every man felt who saw KING GEORGE THE FOURTH on Wednesday night; - and, shame be to him who does not feel it.

VOYAGES and TRAVELS.

THE JOURNAL of NEW VOYAGES and TRAVELS contiones its successful and useful career, and in twenty-six Monthly Numbers has published the following very interesting Modern Works, at only 3s. 6d. each, either of which may be had separately, and every Works is Numbers has published the following very interesting Medern Works, at only 3s. 6d. each, either of which may be had separately, and every Work is completed within the Part:

1. FISHRIES Voyage to the Arctic Regions, 4 plates.

2. PRIORS Voyage to the Indian Seas, 4 plates.

3. DUPIN'S Public Establishments of Great Britain, 2 plates.

4. CHATEAUVIEUX'S Travels in Italy.

5. FORBIN'S Travels in Greece and the Holy Land, 8 plates.

6. ANALYSES of Seven New English Travels.

7. FORBIN'S Travels in Egypt, 6 plates.

8. M'KREVOR'S Voyage to Hudson's Bay, &c.

9. DUMONT'S Thirly-four Years' Slavery in Africa.—Pertenger's Shipwreck and Adtentures, and Travels in Egypt and Nubin, 2 plates.

10. PRIOR'S Voyage in the Atlantic and Indian Compas. 4 plates.

11. CORIDOVA'S Voyage in the West Indies, 8 plates.

12. WALLER'S Voyage in the West Indies, 8 plates.

13. SANSOM'S Travels in Canada, &c. 1 plate.

14. MOLLIEN'S Travels in Africa, 8 plates.

15. PRINCE MAXIMILIAN'S Travels in the Brazils, 8 plates.

16. GRAHAM'S Travels in Moritagal and Spain, 8 plates.

17. CASTELLAN'S Travels in Hely, 8 plates.

18. BRACKENRIDGE'S Voyage to Buenos Ayres, 8 plates.

19. PERTUSIBLES Travels in Monte Negro, 6 plates.

20. GOURBILLON'S Travels in Scill and Etna, 4 plates.

21. SOMMIERE'S Travels in Monte Negro, 6 plates.

22. POUQUEVILLE'S Travels in Greece, 4 plates.

23. SCHOOLCRAFT'S Travels on the Missouri, and Ray's Cochia China. I plate.

24. KELSALL'S Tour from Rome to Avpline, 8 plates;

25. HALBERG'S Travels in Hely on the Missouri, and Ray's Cochia China. I plate.

26. FREDLANDER'S Travels in Hely on the Missouri, and Ray's Cochia China. I plate.

26. FREDLANDER'S Travels in Hely on the Missouri, and Roy's Cochia China. I plate.

27. Castellande Region Africa.

28. FREDLANDER'S Travels in Hely on the Missouri, and Partes, and Travels and Cochia China. I plate.

15, 1821.

Or the Whole may be had in 4 wish half-hound, at One Uninea each.

Printed for SIR RICHARD PHILLIPS and Co.; and to be had of all Booksellers in Town and Country.

If For Circulating Libraries and Book Societies, the Parts are done up in Boards, is. The Work is continued on the 15th of every Month, and several Voyages and Travels of great interest, are in praparation.

THE NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE.—The attention of the Public is respectfully invited towards the New Series of this Journal which was commenced the 1st of January, on a new and very improved plan; the Original Papers being printed similar to those in the Quarterly and Edinburgh Reviews, and the Misoellaneous Departments so atranged as to form a distinct Volume at the end of the year; thus combining in the same Work, the several characters of a Mugazine, a Review, and an Annual Begister.

Under the superintendance of its present Editor, this work will be devoted to the contributions of persons of the highest talent, it being the determination of the Publishiers to spare no expense in order to present to the world a Monthly Journal adapted in every respect to the present insproved state of society, and possessing a greater fund of amusement and information than has hitherto been attempted.

Among other Papers of peculiar interest now in the course of publication, are Mr. Campbellia. "Lectures on Poetry," the substance of which was recently delivered at the Royal Institution; and those who may desire to posses the New Series from its commencement in January, are requested to transmit their orders without delay to their respective Booksellers and Newsmen to prevent disappointment.

Printed for Henry Collumn and Co. Conduit-street; Bell and Bradfute, Edinburgh; and John Cumulag, Dublin; and retailed by every Bookseller and Newsmen throughout the kingdom. It may also be registarly transmitted abroad, by applying to any Postmastor.

CHEAP and FASHIONABLE CABINET and UPHOLSTERY CHEAP and FASHIONABLE CABINET and UPHOLSTERY FURNITURE, a variety of Four-post Double-accessed Bedsteads, with Chintz, Drapery Furnitures, and real seasoned Down and Goose Feather Beds, with Mattresses complete; Cottage, French, Tent, Sofa and Chair Bedsteads, with Furnitures and Bedding rends fixed for view; elegant Drawing-room Window-curtains made up. Families may see their Beds filled from the fitering room. Old Beds, or offensive and dusty new ones, stoyed, dressed, and made clean and awect. Mattresses cleaned and re-inade.—N. B. The Trade supplied as usual, at T. WILIMOTS MANUFACTORY, 16, John-atreet, two doors from Oxford-street.

TO ALL WHO VALUE THEIR SIGHT.—The sight of the aged TALL WHO VALUETHEIR SIGHT.—The sight of the nged restreme old age, by DIXON's IMPROVED SPHCTACLES. To be had only at 93, Newman street, two doors out of Oxford-street, Manufacturer to the late Mr. Bradberry, and since his death has commenced Business at its above place, where the Improved Spectacles can now only be had that is sanctioned by most of the Faculty, for this benefit of weak and Impaired islan.—Please to observe 93, Newman-street, as there are many humble instantents of his Improved Spectacles offered to the Public.

STATIONERY, of the best quality, to be sold, at the following low prices: Excellent copy, 7d. the quire, or 1h. the ream; good laid nost, 8d. superfine thick, 9d. and 1s. the quire, or 12s. 13s. 6d. and 17s. 6d. the ream; superfine Bath, 9d. difto, but pressed, 10d. and 1s. the quire, or 1.5s. 6d. 1.5s. and 17s. 6d. the ream; very test thick Bath gilt, 1s. 1d. the quire, or 20s. the ream; thick foolscap 1s. the quire, superfine, 1s. 2d. and 1s. 4d. aquire, or 20s. the ream; superfine large bank post, 1s. the quire, or 18s. the ream; also, a large quantity of the very best thick lined brief, 1s. 4d. the quire, or 26s. the ream; strong brewn, 8d. 10d. and 1s. 6d. amall hand, 4d. the quire; at H. and W. SMITH'S, 192, Strand, opposite St. Glement's Church—Account Books made to order, of any size or pattern, equally low in price. equally low in price.

dust published, priceds, by John Callow, 16, Prince's-street, S. DRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS on the USE of the CUBERS, on JAVA PEPPER, in the CURE of GUNORRHEA; with Cases.—
By HENRY JEFFREYS, Eag. Senior Surgeon to the St. George's and St. James's Dispensary, Assistant-Surgeon to the Lock Hospital, and formerly a Surgeon in the 3d Regiment of Guards.

The State of Containing a choice Selection of Second-hand Medical Mooks, in various Languages.

THE DECIDED ADVANTAGES of inspecting an entirely new Stock of TOWN PRINTED CHINTZ FURNITURES, MOREENS, DIMITIES, &c. and comparing the Patterns and Prices with old Goods, were never made more evident than at the NEW CHINTZ TURNITURE and MOREEN WAREHOUSE, No. 134, Oxford-street, nearly opposite Panoversepare; just opened by MILES and EDWARDS, from the Corner of Great Turnstile, Hallorn.

TPALTH.—This great gift of Heaven, so worthy of preservation, demands the most serious attention of every one, especially those who labour under Scrophula, Scurry, Laprosy, sore and ulcerated Legs, pimpled and scurry Faces, and all Eruptions of the Skin, are effectually cured by the sovereign and salutary effects of the KGYPTIAN TINCTURE, by impregnating the blood with qualities opposite to those with which it is infected, in a superior degree of force and power. The peculiar-properties of this Tincture, combining the essential and occult virtues of all scorbatic Vegetables, which likending and assimilating with the venous and arterial blood, generates, corrects, purifies, warms, animates, and impelse through the whole system, cleansing the glandular parts and stimulating the fibres, whereby the gastric juice and digestion are promoted; dissolving viscid hymnours, expelling infloations, restoring the natural perspiration, and promoting a more genial circulation. In all stages of the perplexing conjulates, the Egyptian Theture is an absolute specific; and as a preventive, observative, and parties of the bland, there is not the qualit in the world.—Sold in bottles, price 2s. (d. 4a. 6d, and 18s. at 45, Liquorpond-street, London.

DR. VAITHHORN on the LAVER and BELIARY SYSTEM

FACT'S and OBSERVATIONS on LIVER COMPLAINTS, and those various, extensive, and often complicated Disorders of the Constitution originating from this source: depicting the causes which lead to a morbid condition of the Digestive, Internal Organs, and Nervous to a morbid committed of the Digestive, internal Organs, and Nervous System; and upon other important points essential to health: with an Appendix of Caues, illustrative of the principles of Treatment. The Fourth Edition, considerably enlarged, just published, price 9s.—London: Printed for Longman and Co. Paternester-row: sold also by Cainstable, Edinburgh; Cumming, Dubin; Jagg, Swansea; Williams, Cheltenham; Elliston, Learnington; and Blackburn, Harrowgate.

PURGESS's NEW SAUCE for general purposes, having given DURGESS's NEW SAUCE for general purposes, having given such great approbation, and the demand for it continuing to increase, JOHN BURGENS and SON beg most respectfully to after this their best acknowledgments to the Public for their libral patronage of the same: its attitive and great convenience in aid climates, has recompended it to the most distinguished foreign connexions, who have all spoken highly fir its recommendation.—It is prepared by these WLLY: and for preventing disappointments to families, all possible care basheen resorted to, by each bottle being scaled upon the cork with their firm and address, as well as cach label having their signature, without which it cannot be genuine.

JOHN BY ROESS and SON'S long catabilished and much-esteemed ES-ENCE of ANCHOVIES, continues to be proposed by themsefter the same manner that has given the greatest satisfaction for many years.—Warehouse, UOT, Estand, covers of the Bavoy-steve, London.—The original Pish-Sauce-Warehouse.

CHEAP LOTTERY. ... HAZARD and CO. have on Sale Ticket THEAP LOTTERY. .-HAZARD and CO. have on Stell Tielet and Share Chances for the present Lettery. The Scheme contains 4,007 Prises, including Two of £21,000 Consols, Two of £4,000, &c..&c., ALL of which MUST be drawn NEXT THURSDAY, and may be gained for a much smaffer Sum than usual, as the Price of a Ticket Chance is only £14. Ms. Sixteenth Chance only Twenty Shillings. The first 100 Numbers drawn will each be entitled to a New Chance for another Number on the 6th June, for Two Prizes of £20,000 Consols, and 3,000 other Prizes. Hazard and Co. have reently sold Four Prizes of £30,000, and Eight of £20,000. Hazard and Co. so destablished Offices, Royal Exchange Gate; 29, Cornhill; and 334, Oxford-street, London; and by their Agents in all the principal Country Towns.

DATENT ECONOMICAL and UNIVERSAL LAMP. This Invention ceubraces every requisite to render it a domestic comfort in the more general use of Lamps instead of Candles, giving to the Public the choice of an improved light, in which there is perfect safety, at half the expense of Candles. The Chamber or Night Light being universally interesting to all families, and particularly to many professions, may be best appreciated by a fair comparison with others, which are most recorted to, viz, the Rush Light, an old servant, but it must be allowed, a throwsy one, and totally unfat for motion. The wax-wick, stuck upon cork, floating in oil upon water, of more modern date, but must be stationary, subject to the cork catching fire, breaking the glass it floats in, causing a suffocating smell, consuming much oil, and a constant expense for the wicks. The Patent Seconomical Chamber Lamp: no expense but for oil, and that only at the rate of a halfpenny for eight or nine hours, giving a brilliant light, always ready at the moment it is wanted, bearing any motion, and can be regulated to burn the longest or shortest night, disappearing in the morning without smoke or smell. The price 10s. in japan stands, and 20s. in fancy brooze and imperial metal. The same principle applies, with peculiar advantage, to the larger flassps, for the dhining table and sidebuard, upon a handsome scale, suited to the affluent, with elegant pedestals, 55s. to 65s.; and for the study, to write or read by (shambra) they are every thing that can be wished, at 35s. to 45s. and upon a smaller scale, 25s. to 30s. these are universally approved and patronised by Clerical and other Professional Gentlemen in every part of the kingdom, and for all minor uses they are equally desirable. The Grecian Glass Hanging Lamps for the Staircase, Passage, Conservatory, Hall, &c. are perfectly new in taste, and elegantly simple, from 30s. to 75s. the latter upon a lager scale. In all these Lamps the same perfection exists,—burning the whole evening without trimning, requiri PATENTECONOMICAL and UNIVERSAL LAMP. This Inven-

Spermacett.

N.B. Families or Persons residing in, or Passengers to, the East or West Indies, South America, &c. will find these Lamps a valuable acquisition, being calculated to burn Nut Oil as well as Spermaceti.

GREAT FALL in LINEN DRAPERY.—Only by inspection can the Public credit the immense sacrifice on those Goods.—Fine Irish Lines of the most durable quality, 1s. 4b, ery yard; very fine ditto, 1s. 6d, and 1s. 8d.; curiously fine ditto, 2s.; Mock Russia Sheeting, 1s. per yard; very stout ditto, 1s. 3d, and 1s. 6d.; Laucashir editta, 1s. 4d.; fine Irish Sheeting, 1s. 6d, and 1s. 9d.; ditto, yard and half wide, 2s. 6d.; twelve picess real Russia Sheeting, 2s. and 2s. 4d. per yard; tea pieces ditto, three yards wide, 4s. per yard, which provents the necessity of having a seam; stout Lines, 7d.; Huckaback, 9d.; ditto provents the necessity of having a seam; stout Lines, 7d.; Huckaback, 9d.; ditto double Damask, two yards and a half long, 3s.; ditto, two yards long, 6s. 6d.; ditto double Damask, two yards and a half long, 1s.; ditto India Damask, 15s.; ditto three yards long, 18s. all the proper widths; larger size equalty cheap; Damask Naphins, 12s. per dez; India Table Cloths, two yards and a half square, 9s. 6d. each; Furalture Dimity, 6d.; curiously fine ditto, 1dd.; Marseilles Quilts, 3 yards square, 20s. cach; Counterpanes, two yards square, 7s. 6d.; two yards and a half ditto, 10s. 61.; three yards long, full width, 14s.; Witney Blankets, 9s. per pair; do. very large, 12s. and 18s.; cl.-wide India Long Cloths, 1s. 2d.; per yard; curiously fine ditto, 1s. 4d.; Calleoes, 6d.; ell-wide Cambric Muslins, 9d.; fine Jacconots, 1s. 2d.; India Books, 1s. and 1s. 3d.; Tucked Robes, 6s. 6d. each; Worked ditto, 3s. 6d. each; Elich do. 9s. 6d.; llandsome Chiatz Rubes, 10s. each; Begant Embroidered ditto, 1s. 6d. each; Flich do. 9s. 6d.; Pine Twilled ditto, 1s. 6d. 25s. each; French ditto, of the newast Parishan designs; Robes a Neglige, and India Muslins of every quality; Printed Furnitures, 10d. per yard; Chinitz ditto, 1s. and 1s. 3d., Stuffs, 1s. per yard; Pine Twilled ditto, 1s. 6d. or 17s. per footen Hose, 1s. per pair, or 11s. per dozen; 50d superb Blik Shawis and Scarifs full sizes, from 12s. to 25s. each; Rich Cachemer GREAT FALL in LINEN DRAPERY .- Only by inspection can Regent Circus.

OFFBE and CHOUGLATE made in ONE MINUTE, by D. DUNN'S ESPENCE of COFFBE and COUGA-NUT; soldby F. Graham, corner after Beile Sauvage Inn. Luidgate-hill, in half pint bottles, from 3s 64, to 5s. each, and the Chocolate in pole at 2s. 64.—Directions for use:—Put a tra-spoonist of either of these Essences into a cup, with the usual proportion of sulk and angar, and fill it with boiling water, and you have instantaneously a cup of Oeffee or Chocolate of exquisite flavour. From the case and expedition attending this invention, it becomes a valuable acquisition to the Public, and more especially to Officers in the Army and Navy, to Captains of Vessels, Travellers, innkeepers, Public Assemblies, and particularly to Ludies or Gentlemen not keeping has establishment. Also, D Dunn's Essence of Oinger, Mace, Clores, Cinnamua, Nutasegs, Alispice, Popper, Cayrane, Coriander and Carraway Seeds, in glass bottles, is, 6d. each. These preparations will save much trouble in cooking, confectionery, &c. and in cases of illness are truly valuable, as a few drops poured into any light will listantly give its peculiar flavour. Of F. Graham may also be had the fine flavoured pulverized genutine Jamaica Ginger, prepared from the internal part of the root, of superior quality, in quarter pound tin cases, is, 2d. each. Real Pontefract Liquorice Cakes, Original and sole manufacturer of the much-esteemed ginger-flavoured Barley-sugar.—N.B. The tradesupplied.

GREY HAIR.

A BIGAIL'S GOLDEN METALLIC TINCTURE is the greatest

A BIGAIL'S GOLDEN MBTALLIC TINCTURE is the greatest Discovery in the Universe, for changing Grey, or Red Hair on the Head, Whiskers, Bye-brows, or on any other part, to a Brown Black. In short, a trial will convince that the Golden Metallic Tincture is the purest, innocent, and best Dye for changing the Hair immediately to no other colour than a Brown Black, and does not stain the skin.

In order to satisfy Ludics and Gentlemen of the great utility of the Golden Metallic Tincture, Lady may be convinced of it by calling on the Proprietor; or a Gentleman, having Red or Grey Whiskers, by also calling, may have the colour changed immediately.

Ask for the Golden Metallic Tincture, at 11, a bottle, or six bottles for 51. Directions are scaled up with each bottle, so that any one may Dye their own Hat without staining the skin, or the least strouble.—Sold, by appointment, wholesale, retail, and for exportation, by Mr. Prince, No. 9, Polandstreet, Oxford-street; also by Bacon and Co. 150, Oxford-street, opposite New Bond-street; Preut, 229, Strand; Davison, 59, Fleet-street; Rigg, 65, Cheapside: Johnson, 68, Cornhill: and by most principal Perfumers and Medicine Venders.

To accommodate Ladics and Gentlemen residing in any part of the Medicine Venders.

To accommodate Ladies and Gentlemen residing in any part of the country, by enclosing the money in a letter by post, directed to Mr. Prince, 9, Poland-street, Oxford-street, London, Mr. P. will send them by return of coach to may part of the kingdom. It is no prepared as to keep intall climates, the older the better. Merchants, Captains, also Country Shapkeepers, will receive liberal allowance for exportation.

HALL'S sublime TURKISH PASTR, CIRCASSIAN and PACE POWDER.—The above elegant preparations, which are so universally approved by Ladies of the first rank and fashion, as the most innocent and beautiful assistant to nature, by imparting to the skin that soft and inconceivable fairness, is now prepared, in the highest state of perfection; the Proprietor having lately imported a quantity of the necessary ingredients, will prevent his future any possible disappointment.—One Pound Note Packages, containing two large Pots and two Packets of the Powder, or four small Pots and four small Packets, are ferwarded to all parts of Town or four small Pots and four small Packets, are ferwarded to all parts of Town or Country, and warranted to arrive safe.

N. B. Observe the above are only to be had of the most respectable Dealers of Perfumery or Millimers in the Country, in single Pots, at 10s. 6d. and 5s. 6d.; and the Poweler is Packets, 2s. 6d. and 1s. 6d, and should be asked for in the name of the Proprietor, whose signature is on the outside of each. Patent Violet Snap and Chemical Laboratory, No. 28, Hadlow-street, Burton Crescent, London.—J. B. HALL.

SPENCE'S GENUINE TOOTH POWDER

SPENCE'S GENUINE TOOTH POWDER.

THE WIDOW of Mr. G. SPENCE, Inter of Old Bond-street, begs to inform the numerous Friends and Patients of her late Husband, and those of his deceased Father, that she continues the sale of Mr. G. SPENGE'S GENUINE TOOTH POWDER, so universally approved during nearly fifty years use in the first circles, as to render encommun here unnecessary. Mrs. G. Spance also begs to inform them, that in order to prevent the imposition of a delectrions indication attempted to be circulated by a Woman, formerly a Servant fir the Panilty, she will in future sign her name, "Elina Spence," with red ink, upon the wrapper of seach box, to distinguish it from the counterfoit.

Sold wholessic and retail, at 2s. 9d. a box, by Messts. Berry, Greek-street, Soho; Butler, Cheapside; Theremet, New Bond-street; Sanger, 150, Oxford street; Overton, New Bond-street; Decrotox, Old Bond-street; Raine, 129, Strand; Trafit, Burlington Areade; Low. Strand; Barclay and Son, Flockmarket; Rigge, Cheapside, and 52. Park-street, Grovenor-square; Price and market; Rigge, Cheapside, and 52. Park-street, Grovenor-square; Price and Gosnell, Three King's-court; Lombard-street; Rowney, Hatton Garden; Candler, 76, Oxford-street; Hawkins, 11, Old Bond street; and most of the respectable Perfumers, Chemists, &c.

BRIGHTON.

BRIGHTON.

No. 1, aktuate in Dorset Gardens, Brighton, with spackers Entry and lofty Rooms, comprising Front Parlour, 17 feet 2 luches by 15 feet 6 inches, with Recess in the centre; Back Parlour, 18 feet 7 inches by 15 feet 8 inches, brawing Room over the Front Parlour, 20 feet 2 inches by 15 feet 8 inches; Back Drawing Room, or. Bed Room, 17 feet 2 inches by 15 feet 7 inches; Back Drawing Room, or. Bed Room, 17 feet 2 inches by 15 feet 7 inches; six other Bed Rooms; Housekeeper's Room; a large light Kitches; Pantry, and other Offices; Wine and Beer Cellar, and an exceedingly good Cerl Cellar.—The House, being inhabited, may be seen on Tuesdays, Wedurevilaya, and Thursdays, between the hours of twelve and two. Further Particules—and Thursdays, between the hours of twelve and two. Further Particules—Prince's-place, Brighton; and of Messrs. Fronkes, Langford, and Walford, Southampton-street, Covent Garden, at either of which places Tickets to riew the House may be had.

CITY.—Elegant genuine HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, WINES, and

Trew me House may re may.

CITY.—Elegant genuine HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, WINES, arid

EFFECTS, of the Rev. G. C. Hogarth, deceased; large Turkey Breasels

Carpets, Rosewood Cabinets and Ottomans, three beautiful Chiatx Drawing Rosen Curtains with Gold Cornices, Card, Sofa, Loo, and Work Tables, in Rose and King Wood, real Rosewood Chairs and Conches, Patent Dining Tables, and Pedestal Sideboard, rich Cut Glass, Gold Watch, Chimney and Pier Glasses, splendid Fourpost Bedstoads and Furniture, Linen, &c. &c.

Chimney and Pier Glasses, splendid Fourpost Bedsteads and Furniture, Linen, &c. &c.

TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION (without reserve)
By Messrs. DUNCAN, SMITH, and CO.
On the Premises, No. 9, Lime-street, Landenhall-street, TO-MORROW, Monday, May 14, and following Day, at Twelve, 15 The Langings, White Goose and Down Beds, Blanketa and Quille to each, 16 Trafalgar Mahogany Four-post Bedsteads, twisted Gold Cornices and Chintz Hangings, White Goose and Down Beds, Blanketa and Quille to each, 16 Trafalgar Mahogany Chairs covered in Satin Horse Hair, Gentlemen's Dressing Case completely fitted up, and Sofa Bedstead with Cushicost, Dinner Service of Blue and White China, Mahogany Wardrobe and Chemis of Drawers, Reading and Writing Tables and Calshets, two excellent Tent Bedsteads with good clean Bedding, double and single Bronze Lusires and Gramments, large 6 feet 6 inch Mahogany Bagatelle Table, some beautiful Gut Glass, Chinney and Pier Glasses, with Mirrora to match, Prints and Boaks. Rosewood Screen Tables and Pole Fire Screens, with the usual description of Furniture.—Catalogues on the Premises, and of the Auctioneers, Regent-street.

PERTHSHIRE.

PERTHSHIRE.

PERTHSHIRE.

TO be SOLD by PRIVATE BARGAIN, the beautiful ESTATE of KINNAIRD, situate on the South Banks of the River Tay, about six miles above Dunkeld, and sixty one North of Bölmburgh, consisting of 890 English acres, all inclosed; about 200 of which are Arable, and 120 Acres of Wood, part of which is eak, and its for cutting.

The Mansion-house, which was built within these few years, contains three public Rooms (the Drawing Rooms 26 feet by 18), and seven Bed Rooms, besides Kitchen, Servants Rooms, Water Closets, &c. The Offices contains a Coach and Cart House, Stable, with Sealis for Seven Horses, Barn, Byre, Granary, Pigeon-house, Piggery, and Fowl House. There are due other two Dwelling Houses, containing five Rooms cach, which may be let to great attentage.

trainery, Pigeon-noise, Piggry, and rown rouse. Interested with a Stone two Dwelling Houses, containing five Rosms cach, which may be let to great advantage.

The Garden contains nearly two English Acres, included with a Stone Wall, about 12 feet high; the Trees are in full bearing, both in the Orchard and Garden. The River Tay runs through the Estate, affording several excellent draughts, for upwards of a mile, for Salmon and Trout, and the Estate abounds with Game of all sorts. There are several unites of Walks cut along the Banks of the River, and through the Wood, commanding several beautiful and romantic Views.

All the Farm Steadings are in good repair. The Manelon House, with the principal part of the Land, may be entered to immediately, being in the hand at a Valuation.

The Post passes the Porter's Lodge, and the Inversess Coach within half a mile; Carriers, almost daily, to and from different parts of the country. The public burdens are triding.—Payment of the Price will be made to suft the Purchaser.

For Partisulars application may be made to the Proprietor, at Kinonlad House, by Dankeld; Mr. Andrew Miller, W. S. 11, York-place, Edinburgh; or James Miller, Ess. Pleasant-hill, Copar Angus.

SELECT ARTICLES for the TOILET.

SELECT ARTICLES for the TOILET.

A TKINSON'S CURLING FLUID, long known to the Nobility and Gentry as an elegant substitute for Offs, Pennatums, and Extracta. It should never be omitted after cirring the halr; as it counternets the dryness which hot irous produce, makes the hair soft and glessy as the finest silk, and keeps the curl firm during exercise in dansing or walking, or in damp venther. It also removes dandriffe, proceeds the hair failing off or changing colour, and is so efficacious for restoring its growth, that it is usually prescribed by Physicians, when other means have proved ineffectual, price 3s. 6d.

scribed by Physicians, when other means have proved ununcount, present 10s, 6d, and one Guinea.

ATKINSON'S VEGETABLE DYE, changes gray or red hair on the head or whiskers to a brown or black, which washing, &c. instead of removing, renders more permanent, price 5s, 18 oft, and the first state of a freedom of the first state of all alkaline impurities; it makes the hands soft and white, and prevents them chapping in cold weather, price 1s, a square.

Sold by Jas. Atkinson, perfamer, 4d, Greard-street, Subsequare; Gattle and Pierce, 67, Bond-street; Davison, Fiest-street, Ringe, 65, Cheapelle, and most Perfumers.—CAUTION.—As there are several mintations, the genuine has the following signature, "James Atkinson, 44, Gerard-street, London."

inost Fernusers.—CAU 110N.—As taster are several minatous, the genuthe has the following signature, "Jumes Alkinson, 44, Gerard-street, Iondon."

[THE First Production in the World for the TOOTH ACHE, and preserving and beautifying the TEETH and GUMS.—Patrosized by the Royal Highness the late DUCHESS of YORK, his Excellency the AUEE Of SAN CARLOS, the Spanish Ambassador, and most of the Nobility.—ROW-LAND'S ALSANA EXTRACT, or ABYSSINIAN SPECIFIS for the Teeth and Gums.—This invaluable Specific has been in high esthmation for many years, and recombined by the first Physicians.—Its proporties are truly wonderful; it immediately relieves the most violent TOOTH-ACHE, cleaness and beautifies the Teeth and Gums, and preserves them from decay; prevents Decayed Teeth giving pain, removes the Tartar from the Teeth, fastens those that are loose, and makes the Teeth beautifally white and malform; cleaness the Scurvy from the Gums, renders them firm and healtby, refreshes the mosth during Disease after Medicine, and imparts a sweetness to the breath. It is perfectly innocent, SO THAT A CHILD MAY TAKE IT, yet contains those inestimable properties, that it constantly used, will remeder the Teeth and Gums sound, beautiful, and FREE FROM PAIN to the LATEST PERIOD of LIFE. It is an excellent stomachic.—Price 2s. M. 4s. 6d. and 10s. 6d. per bottle.—Sold, wholesale, retail, and for exportation, by the sole Proprietors, A. ROWLAND and SON, Corner of Eirby-street, Hatton garden, London; and most Perfumers and Medicine Venders.—Newders.—N

BIRTH.

On Friday last, at Tockington, Gloucestershire, the Lady of the Rev.
Jac. J. Cleaver, Rector of Holmo Pierropoint, Notts, of a sea.
At the Parsonage, Waltham Abbey, on the 9th inst, the Lady of the Rev.
Thus. Pickthall, of a daughter—her ninth child.

MARRIAGES.

On the 16th ult. at Morton, Surrey, Horatio L. Thompson, to Margaret Westcott Davidson, only daughter of John Davidson, Esq. Cousul of New Westcott Davidson, only daughter of John Davidson, Esq. Consul of New Orleans.

On Monday last, the Rev. Dr. Geldart, of Baruwell Friery, near Cambridge, Rector of Kirk Deighton, Yorkshire, to Eliza, daughter of the late and sister of the present William Cutfield, Esq. of Bayly's Court, Sunsex.

On the 7th inst. at St. George's, Manover square, Sir Henry Lambert Bart, to Anna Marka, youngest daughter of the late Hon. Edward Foley, and sister to Edward Foley, Esq. of Stoke Edith Park, Herefordslare.

At Springfield, Essex, J. W. Holgate, Esq., son of the Rav. Geo. Holgate, of Navestock, Essex, to Deborah, youngest daughter of R. Coates, Esq. of Springfield.

DIED.

Harly on Saturday morning, the 19th imit at his house in Cocksput-street, in Stark, of Cheapside, and of Chapton, Middlesex, in the 69th year of decessed was sincerely estemed, by his family and numerous friends, for integrity and personal worth, and admired by all his acquaintances for uncommon talents and attainments. At Stoke D'Abernon, Surrey, Lieutenant-Colonel Henry Rowland Fetherstonbaugh.

Major-General Thomas Saunders Bateman, of the Hon. Smt India Com-pany's service in Bengal, aged 60.

PRICES	of the	PUBLI	C FUN	D8.
STOCKS.	Mon.	Thees.	Wed.	Thur.	PHI.	Bat.
Bank Stock		. 2241	2005	225	2 75	! —
3 per Cent. Reduced	721	78 2	744	72	784	73
3 per Cent. Consols		734	739	732	73	134
31 per Cent. Consols	823	821	82	733 82	88	1 -
Comols for Account		74	79	73	73	TOP T
4 per Cent. Consols		903	200	91	51	91
5 per Cent. Navy		1001	100	1064	1004	100
Bank Long Annuities		184	181	164	184	184
India Bonds		43 p	42 P	12 p	(1) p	43
Exchequer Bills, 2d		3 p	2 p	1 1	Th.C	23 LAD
Ditte, 24d				l —	10	1 -
Omnium	l —	- ·	l	-	I — .	! —

LONDON: Printed and Published by R. T. WEAVER, at No. 11, JOHNSON'S COURT, FLEET-STREET, where only Communications to the Editor, (post paid) are received.

JOHN

RULL.

" FOR GOD, THE KING, AND THE PEOPLE!"

No. 23.

SUNDAY, MAY 20, 1821.

Price 7d.

NEW ROOMS, HANOVER SQUARE.

M.R. GREATOREX most respectfully acquaints the Nobility, Gentry, and his Friends generally, that his ANNUAL CONCERT is fixed for FRIDAY NEXT, the 25th inst. Principal vocal Performers:—Madame Camporeae, Miss Stephans, Miss Corri, Miss R. Corri, Miss Traver, and Mrs. Salmon; Mr. Vaughan, Signior Ambrozetti, Messrs, W. Knyvett, Hawes, and Bellamy.

Scheme of the Concert:—Ist ACT. Overture, Lodolski, Cherubiai; Selection from the Seaseas, Haydar, Duct, Miss Corri and Miss R. Corri, "Sularia," (Figaro) Mozart. Song, Miss Travis, "Midst silent shades," Bach. Quartet. "Benedictus," (Requiem) Mozart. Concerto Instrumental. Echo Song, Miss Stephens; "What was thy delightful measure," from the Passion, Dr. Cooke, newly arranged by Mr. Greatorex expressly for this occasion. Finale, (Figaro) Mozart. Song, Mrs. Salmon (by desire) "From mighty kings," (Judas Macc.) Handel. Air, Miss Stephens, and Grand Chorus. "The Lord shall reign," (Israel in Egypt) Handel.

ACT II. Grand Overture to Anacreon, Cherubini; Quartet, and Chorus, "Sing anto God," Dr. Groft and Mr. Greatorex. Song, Mr. Vanghan, "The Soldier's Dream," accompanied on the Organ by Mr. Greatorex. Favourite Glee and Chorus, "The Chough and Crow," Bishop. Song, Madame Camporese, "A Complir," accompanied on the Voilin, by Mr. F. Cramer. Glee. "If o'er the cruel tyrant Love," harmonized by Mr. Greatorex. Song, Miss Carri, "Questo sol," Zingarelli. Duet, Mrs. Salmen and Signier Ambroxetti, "Con pazienza," Floravauti. Grand Chorus, "Around let quelamations ring," (Athulia) Handel. Leader of the Band, Mr. F. Cramer. Grand Flano Forte, Mr. C. Knyvett. Organ, and Conductor, Mr. Greatorex. The Cancert will commence precisely at eight o'clock, Peace Officers will be in attendance.—Ticket Half a Guinea each, to be had of Mr. Greatorex. The Cancert will commence precisely at eight o'clock, Peace Officers will be in attendance.—Ticket Half a Guinea each, to be had of Mr. Greatorex. The Cancert will commence precisely at eight o'clock, Peace Officers w

NEW MUSIC. Sir JOHN STEVENSON.—" The Dry-beam is over the Sea," the Venetian Boat Song, sung with the most unbounded appliance at the London, Bath, and Dublin Concerts; arranged for one, two, or three voices; the words written by J. A. Wade, Esq. the Music composed by the celebrated Sir J. A. Stevenson, Mus. Doc. price 3s. This piece, from the rickness and the beautiful simplicity of the melody, has already ranked itself among the most admired productions of the day. Elinor's Song, "And canst thou bid my heart forget," from Glenarvon, as sung by Mrs. Ashe at the Bath Concerts with enthusiastic applause; composed by F. J. Kluse, price 1s. 6d. This is the third edition. "Dear Harp of Sweet Erin," Ballad; samg by Mr. Leoni Lee, with the greatest applause, at the Theatre Royal, Dubblin, written by Miss Chapman, composed by Bernard Lee, price 1s. 6d.—London: printed by Phillips and Mayhew, Music-sellers to H. R. H. the Duchess of Kent, 17, Old Bond-street.

STRYPE'S MEMORIALS OF THE REPORMATION.

Just published, beautifully printed in 7 vols. 8vo. price 51. 5s.; or 7 vols. 4to.

PICCLESIASTICAL MEMORIALS relating chiefly to Religion and its Reformation, under the Reigns of King Henry VIII, King Ed ward VI. and Queen Mary I, with Appendixes, containing the original Papers Records, &c. By JOHN STRYPE, M. A.—Printed for Samuel Bagster

LATIN GRAMMAR.

Just published, by Samuel Bagster, No. 15, Paternoster Row,

A LATIN GRAMMAR, by the RRV. FREDERICK NOLAN;

price 2s. 6d. where may be had, by the same Author, the GREEK, HEBREW, CHALDEE, SYRLACK, FRENCH, and ITALIAN GRAMMARS;
2s. 6d. each; foruding, with the Spanish, and German, now at press, a PULYGLOTT GRAMMAR, in which the genius of the principal Ancient, and Mo dern Languages, is explained upon an uniform plan; and by a new and simple principle of Analysis, applied to the improvements of the latest, and most improved Grammarians.

NIGHTS-BACHELORS being entitled to wear at all times a superb EQUESTRIAN GOLD COLLAR, of peculiarly elegant form, and to decorate their Shleids fArms with the same, thereby denoting their Rank and Dignity, a privilege they are evidently not aware of; an Antiquary, intimately acquainted with the subject, will communicate a particular Description with a beautifully gilt Representation of the Collar, and other Insignia, with reference to the legal Authority for the same, on receiving Twenty Pounds enclosed, post free, directed to F. Davidson, Esq. care of Messrs. Chard and Godwin, Goldsmiths and Engravers, No. 16, Burlington Arade, Piocoadilly, London. The several Knights, British and Irish, should immediately possess the above information, in order that they may be prepared to appear at the ensuing Coronation in a style bentting their Rank, Title, and Dignity.

PRIVATE TUITION.

Title, and Dignity.

PRIVATE TUITION.

A VACANCY IS NOW OPEN in the Family of a Married Cleagyman, who prepares a few PUPILS for the Universities. His Terms are 162 guineas per annum: his residence nine miles from London.—References can be given to Noblemen and Gentlemen, whose sons have been under his care. Letters to be directed for Rev. I. C. C. Mr. Warren, Bookseller, his care. Letters to be dire

MODERN LITERATURE TIOOKHAM begs to announce the Publication of a SUPPLE-MENT to his CATALOGUE, containing a Select and numerous Collection of the best Modern Publications in Biography, History, Travels, Novels, Poems, &c. From the number of Copies of every new work in the English, French, and Italian Languages, which are purchased for the use of subscribers, an immediate perusal of them is insured.

EMPARTIAL LITERARY PAPER, free from political bias, and whelly anconnected with Book Publishers, in 48 columns, 4to. price 6d. only; stamped, 10d. published every Saturday morning.

THE LITERARY CHRONICLE and WEEKLY REVIEW of westerday contains among other internal contains. yesterday contains, among other interesting Articles, a luminous Account of Captain Parry's Journal of the Polar Expedition; Memoirs of the Carbonari and secret Societies of Italy; Annals of the Parish, by the Author of the Ayrshire Legatees: History of Horticulture; Original Criticism on Miss Dance's Acting; Original Poetry, &c. &c.—Office, 355, Strand, two doers East of Exeter Change; and sold by all Newsmen.

Just published, price 6s. the New Number of THE EDINBURGH REVIEW; or, CRITICAL, JOURNAL,

THE EDINBURGH REVIEW; or, CRITICAL, JOURNAL, being No.LXIX.

GONTENTS.—Art. History of the English Legislature. II. Almanach des Gournands, and other books on good living III. Dissenters' Marriages. IV. Sketch of the late Revolution at Naples. V. Anastasius. VI. Effects of Machinery and Accumulation. VII. Spring Guns and Man Traps. VIII. Chandos Leigh's Poems. IX. Mrs. Maria Graham's "Three Months past in the Mountains East of Rome." X. English and French Literature. XI. English Conveyancing. XII, Education Bill.—Printed for A. Constable & Co. Edinburgh, and Longman, Hurst, Rees, Orme, and Brown, London: of whom may be had, all the former Numbers.

BECOND EDITION of MAURICE'S HINDOSTAN.

Just published, in two volumes, price 41.4s.

THE HISTORY of HINDOSTAN, as connected with that of the other great Empires of Asia, during the most ancient periods.

Embellished with numerous illustrative Engravings of the Avatars, and the Solar and Lunar Zodiacs of India, and brought down to the Death of Alexander the Great.—By the Rev. THOMAS MAURICE, A. M. Anthor of Indian Antiquities, and Honorary Member of the Asiatic Society.—
Printed for F. C. and J. Rivington, 62, St. Paul's Church-yard, and 3, Waterloo Place, Pall Mall.

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS in SURGERY and MORBID

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS in SURGERY and MORBID ANATOMY.—By WILLIAM WADD, Esq. P.L.S. Member of the Royal Gellege of Surgeons in London, and of the Societe de Medicine of Paris, and Surgeon Extraordinary to his Majesty.

Part I. On the Diseases and Malformations of the Cranium, 4to, price 168. 6d.—Part II. Diseases of the Bladder and Testicle; containing Practical Remarks on the Diseases of the Propute and Scrotum. 4to. 11s.

Printed for John Callow, Corner of Gerard-street, Prince's-street, Soho; where may be had, by the same Author,

2. PRACTICAL REMARKS on the best Mode of curing STRICTURES of the URETHRA, price 4s.: and,

3. CURSORY REMARKS on CORPULENCE, price 5s.

CONSOLATION to the TREMULOUS in WRITING.

A MOST effectual Solarce now exists in the PATENT WRITING RENOVATOR, a little instrument, inestimable to those who experience any difficulties in the command of the pen, arising from weakness of age or otherwise, and servous affection, heat of climate, excess and, over-exertion, agitation of spirits, sprain, or loss of thumb, or any other cause or difficulty in holding the pen.

The Patentee urges those whom this is intended to benefit, to a trial of it, assuring them that it is capable of giving firmness, confidence, and freedom, which a few minutes practice will evince. It is honoured by the recommendation of Surgeon Ashley Cooper, and other respectable professional gentlemen. In addition to this, it may not be improper to quote the expressions of two first-rate Writing-masters, on the trial of it:—" Hew extraordinary, that so long as this world has existed, this has not been produced before."—Dr. Kelly. "Millions yet unbarn will bless this invention."

Mr. Tomkins. Its appearance when in use is such as to escape observation, and will last a man's life time. Made in clastic gold, price Two Guineas.

Sold for the Patentee, by T. Pearce and Co. 6, Pickett-atreet, no. r Temple-

Sold for the Patentee, by T. Pearce and Co. 6, Pickett-street, no r Temple-

Just published, in 4ts. price 4s. sewed,
SPECIMENS OF GREEK METRES in the ENGLISH LAWGUAGE, as practised in a SERKES of ODES.—Printed by Munday and Slatter, Oxford; and sold by 6; and W. B. Whittaker, Ave Maria lane, London; and Deighton and Sons, Cambridge.

Just published, in 1 vol. 4to, with Pive Plates, price II. 18s. boards, PECOLLECTIONS of a CLASSICAL TOUR through various parts of GREECE, TURKEY, and ITALY, made in the Years 1819 and 1819—By PETER EDMUND LAURENT. Illustrated with coloured Plates.—Printed for G. and W. B. Whittsker, Ave Maria-lane.

NEW POEMS.—Just published, in footscap, price 7s. boards,
THE LORD of the DESERT; Sketches of Scenery, Foreign and Domestic: Odes: and other Poems.—By DAVID CAREY, Esq.
Author of "Lochiel; or, The Field of Culloden," a Novel; "Pleasures of Pancy," &c. &c.
The could in clime are could in blood,
Their love can recover deserve the name.

Their love can scarce deserve the name;
But mine was like the lava's flood,
That boils in Btna's breast of flame!"—Byron.
Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, Ave Maria-lane.

Just published, price 1s.

THE WEEKLY REVIEW, No. 8.—CONTENTS: 1. Captain
Lyon's Travels in Africa. 2. De Renzy: or, the Man of Sorrow.
3. Croly's Paris in 1815, Part 2. 4. Howles, Byron, &c. on the Character of Pope.

5. Croly's Paris in 1915, Pari 2. 6. Rowles, Byron, &c. on the Character of Pope.

Contents of Nos. 1 and 2:—Transactions of the Cambridge Philosophical Society: Waldegrave's Memoirs: Byron's Marino Fallero: Hazlit's Table Talk: the Bishop of Winchester's Life of Pitt.—No. 4 will contain Reviews of Craven's Tour and Staunton's Chinese Embassy.—Published by C. Chapple, Royal Library, Pall Mall.

Royal Library, Pall Mall.

GREGORY'S LECTURES ON PHILOSOPHY.
In 2 volumes 12mo. embellished with 35 plates, price 14s.

ECTURES on EXPRRIMENTAL PHILOSOPHY, ASTRONOMY, and CHEMISTRY; intended chiefly for the Use of Students and young Persons.—By G. GREGORY, D. D. Author of the Economy of Nature.—Second Edition, corrected and improved.

13 The object of this publication is to afford a useful companion te such students as may attend lectures in the Universities, at the Royal Institution or elsewhere; and also to enable the markers of private seminaties, with a very moderate apparatus, occasionally to indulge their pupils with a practical course of lectures on one or all of the important branches of Experimental Philosophy, Astronomy, and Chemistry.—Printed for Longman, Hurst, and Co.; Baldwin and Co.; Scatcherd and Letterman; Whittakers; and Sherwood, Neely, and Jones.

PATENTS for 1829—In constitutions.

PATENTS for 1820.—In one volume 8vs. embe lished with 20 plates, accurately drawn, representing 33 Mechanical Subjects, price II. Is, in boards, THE LONDON JOURNAL Of ARTS and SCIENCES for 1820, containing Reports of all New Patents, with a Description of their respective Principles and Properties: also, Original Communications on Subjects connected with Science and Philosophy; particularly such as embrace the most recent inventions and discoveries in practical mechanics. This volume will be found a copious Miscellany of Polytechnic and Scientific Information.

nation.

(b) Part 7 and 8, being Nos. 1 and 2 of Volume II. price 3s. 6d.:—the work will be continued every two months.—London: published by Sherwood Neely, and Jones, Paternoster Row, and W. Newton, Chancery Lane.

Neely, and Jones, Paternoster Row, and W. Newton, Chancery Lane.

In one volume, foolscap, price 6s, leards, the Second Edition of THE HOSPITAL PUPIL; or, Observations addressed to the Paternstof Youths intended for the Profession of Medicine or Surgery, on their previous Educatios, pecuniary Resources, and the Order of their Professional Studies, with Hints to the Young Pupil on the prosecution of Hospital Studies, on entering into Practice, and on Medical Jurisprudence.—By JAMES PARKINSON, Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, of the Medico-Chirurgheal and Geological Societies of London, and of the Wernerian Society of Edinburgh, Second Edition, enlarged and improved.—Printed for Sherwood, Neely, and Jones, Paternoster Row.

LAWRENCE'S FARMER'S CALENDAR .- In one large volume, 8vo

LAWRENCE'S FARMER'S CALENDAR.—In one large volume, 8vo price 12s. boards.

THE NEW FARMER'S CALENDAR; or, Monthly Remembrancer of all Kinds of Country Business.—Fifth Edition; with large Additions, containing a full practical Exposition of the Nature, Causes, and Effects of Blight, Smut, Mildew, and abler Diseases of Corn; and useful Hints on the most important Branches of Husbandry, the Row-culture, total Extirpation of Weeds, and the perperual Fallow of the Hoe.—By JOHN LAWRENUE.—Printed for Sherwood, Neely, and Jonee, Paternoster Row, and sold by all booksellers; of whom may sise be had, by the same Author, 1. A GENERAL THEATISE on CATTLE; the Ox, the Sheep, and the Swine. Second Edition; with large additions. Price 12s. boards.

2. The MODBRN LAND STEWARD; in which the Duties and Functions of Stewardship are considered and explained, with its several Relations to the Interests of the Landford, Tenant, and the Public. Price 10s 6d. dos.

3. A PHILOSOPHICAL and PRACTICAL TREATISE on HORSES, and on the Moral Duties of Man towards the Brute Creation. Third Edition; with large additions on the Breeding and Improvement of the Horse, the dangers of our present Travelling System, the Merits of Lord Erskine's Bill, &c. in 2 volumes, price 11. la. boards.

13. The Nr. Lawrence's Agricultural and Veterinary Works, Complete, forming five large volumes in 8vo. semprehend a vast body of useful practical information, relative to the Culture of the Soil, Political Economy, Veterinary Modicine, and the Management of Live Stock. Price 21. 15s. 6d in boards.

Just published, in 3 vols. 4to (the Third and concluding Volume in 2 Parts), price complete 71. 17s. 6d. boards,

ORIENTAL HISTORY.—A Chronological Retrospect, or Memoirs of the principal Events in Mallommedan History, from the Death of the Arabian Legislator, to the Accession of the Emperor Akbar, and the Establishmeut of the Moghul Empire in Hindustaun, from the Original Persian Authorities.—By MAJOR DAVID PRICE, of the East India Company's Service.

Service.

Purchasers of vol. 1 and 2, can now be furnished with the closing division of this Work, being Vol. 3, parts 1 and 2, price 3t. in boards, which also contains a general and embodied index to the whole.

Sold by J. Booth, Duke-street, Portland-place, Longman and Co. Paternoster-row, and Black and Co. Leadenhall-street.

noster-row, and Black and Co. Leadenball-atreet.

GRANVILLE'S REPORT of the PRACTICE of MIDWIFERY.

Just published, in 8vo, price $4, boards,

A REPORT of the PRACTICE of MIDWIFERY at the MESTMINSTER GENERAL DISPENSARY, during 1818; including new Classifications of Labours and Abortions, Female Complaints, and the Diseases of Children; with many Computations on the Mortality among Lyingin Women and Children, and the Application of the Doctrine of Chances to the occurrences of Abortions at different periods of Pregnancy. To which are added, various Medical Prescriptions.—By A. B. GRANVILLE, M. D.
&co. &c. &c. — London: Prisated for Burgess and Hill, Medical Booksellers, 55, Great Windmill-street, Haymarket.

A MEDICAL CIRCULATING LIBRARY and READING ROOM.

—Terms, Annual Subscribers, 11, 16s.; half a year, 11 is.; quarter, 13e; menth, 6s.

NEW VOCAL MUSIC.

Just published, by CLEMENTI and Co. 26, Cheapside,

LORENZO to JESSICA, an Original English Air, sung with great applause by Mrs. Salmen, at the Vocal Concerts and Oratorios; the Words (from a seene in the Merchant of Venice) by W. F. Cellard; the Symphonics and Accompaniments by J. C. Clifton; price 2s.

2. "The Millers's Daughter," a Ballad, adapted to an old English Air;
the Words and Music by the same; price 1s. 6d.

3. "The Maild of Valdarno;" the Words by the same, the Music by the celebrated J. Field, of St. Petersburg; as a Song or Duet, price 1s. 6d.

2. "The Maild of Valdarno;" the Words by the same, the Music by the celebrated J. Field, of St. Petersburg; as a Song or Duet, price 1s. 6d.

4. "Three Times Three, Hurrah!" a Glee for Three Voices, and Chorus calculated to promote mirth and festivity at all convivial parties: the Words by the same; the Music by Sir J. Stevenson, Mus. Doc.; price 2s.

5. A Fifth Set of Six Italian Canzonets, with an Accompaniment for the Spanish Guitar; by C. M. Sols; price 3s.

This day is published, in 8vo. Price 14s.

OLIVER CROMWELL and HIS TIMES.—By THOMAS CROMWELL, With a Portrait, from an Original Painting in the Author's possession, a Fac-Simile of Cromwell's Signature and Seed to the Warrant for Beheading Charles I. Original Memoirs of his Decomments.—Printed for John Warren, Old Bond Street.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That on the 14th day of May, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That on the 14th day of May, 1821, an Order was signed by the Rev. George Gaskin, Doctor of Divinity, and William Wix, Esq. two of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the County of Middlesex, for turning, diverting, and stopping up a certain PUBLIC FOOTPATH within the Parish of Stoke Newington, in the County of Middlesex, called the WILLOTT WALK, leading from Coach and Horses Lane, in the Parish of St. Mary, Islington, in the Coanty aforesaid, to the High Road from Newington aforesaid, to London; and that the said Order will be lodged with the Clerk of the Peace for the said County, at the General Quarter Sessions of the Peace to be holden at the Sessions House, Clerkenwell-green, in and for the said County, on Monday, the 16th day of July next: And also, that the said Order will, at the said Quarter Sessions, be confirmed and enrolled, unless upon an Appeal against the same, to be then made, it be otherwise determined.

ROBERT OLDERSHAW, Junior.

Con the 1st instant was published, price 1s.

THE MONTHLY GAZETTE of HEALTH, containing successful modes of trasting Pulmonary Consumption and Organic Pheeses; Remarks on the Causes, Cure, and Prevention of Platulence, the tumatism, Gout, Typhus Pever, Red Gravel, Hydrophobla, Palsy of the Bladder, Tooth-ache, Watery Head, Gutta Serena, Fluor Albus, Cancer, painful Monthly Indisposition, &c.; Description of the true Colchicum Seed, cases of failure of Cow-pock at Bromley, and the probable Cause; Means of counteracting the effects of an over-dose of Laudanum: a new preparation of Opium; Prevention of infectious Pevers; Instances of Error of Judgment; Remarks on the Report of the Brentford Dispensary; Effectual Means of destroying Bugs; Description of the dilierent Classes of Physicians, &c. &c.—Sold by Sherwood and Co. Paternoster-row; at 170, Piccadilly, opposite Boud-street, and all Booksellers—of whom may be had, price 1s. the Addition to the 64th Number, containing the Trial of Mr. Rymer, against the Editors of "The Gazette of Health," for an exposition of his Nostrum Trade, published on the 16th ultimo.

SATURDAY'S GAZETTE, MAY 12.

SATURDAY'S GAZETTE, MAY 12.

DIVIDENDS.

June 2, S. Rucker, Old South Sea House, Broad Street, merchant.—June 2, W. Alston, Heybridge Hall, Esex, farmer.—June 2, J. R. Benson, Russell Place, Fitzroy Square, and Lloyd's Coffee House, merchant.—June 8, Browne and Gregson, Charles Street, Groavenor Square, and Duke Street, Liverpool, upholsterers.—May 19, W. Davies, Caerphilly, Glamorganshire, woollen manufacturer.—June 2, A. Keating, Strand, silversmith.—May 26, A. Gonnertz, Great Winchester Street, London, merchant.—May 26, B. Foot, Half Moon Tavern, Gracechurch Street, tavern keeper.—June 12, D. Williams, Carmarthen, currier.—June 13, T. Marshall, Bramley, Yorkshire, clothier.—June 8, C. Norris, Bary, Lancashire, cotton spinner.—June 4, W. Scott, Liverpool, linen draper.—June 19, W. Godgs, Docking, Norfolk, grocer.—June 4, W. Scott, Liverpool, linen draper.—June 19, W. Goddard the younger, Lowestoft, Suffolk, miller.—June 7, T. Davison, Hinckley, Leicesterahire, draper.—June 2, C. Hully, Lancaster, twine manufacturer.—June 4, W. Quafe, Armadel, Sussex, timkeeper.—June 6, R. Riding the younger, Coine, Lancashire, cotton manufacturer.—June 29, J. Hudson, Birchin Lane, and Watworth, Surrey, merchant.—June 2, T. Blackburn, Mount Street, Whitechapel Road, master mariner.—June 1, J. Cooper, Cambridge, merchant.—July 14, F. and G Molling, Jerusalem Court, Gracechurch Street, merchants.—June 1, J. and J. R. Ray, Clare, Smfölk, bankers.—June 2, W. Bryon, Hammersmith, brandy and hop merchant.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTE.

WAR-OFFICE, 19th May, 1921.

2d Regt. of Life Guards—Lord F. Conyngham to be Cornet and Sub-Lieut, without purchase, vice Reed.

4th Regt. of Dragoon Guards—Cornet R. De Lisle, from the 4th Light Dragoons, to be Cornet, vice Richardson.

4th Regt. of Light Dragoons—Cornet M. Richardson, from the 4th Dragoon Guards, to be Cornet, vice De Lisle.

9th Ditto—Hon. G. Vangham, to be Cornet, by purchase, vice Jones.

13th Regt. of Foot-Gent. Cadet W. M. Brownrigg, from the Royal Military College, to be Essign, without purchase, vice Clayton.

26th Ditto—Brevet Major C. S. Campbell to be Major, without purchase, vice Farquharson—Lieut. J. Dunn to be Saptain, vice Campbell.—Ensign A. Fraser to be Lieut, vice Dunn—Wan. E. Hay, Gent. to be Ensign, vice Fraser.

A. Fraser to be Lieut, vice Dunn-wm. m. rmy, vessel 29th Ditto—Captain A. Kidd, from half-pay 69th Feot, to be Captain, vice Wilson.

36th Ditto—Ensign Clayton, from the 13th Foot, to be Essign, without purchase, vice McCabe.—Ensign J. McCabe, to be Quartermaster, vice Keap.

87th Ditto—Lieut. E. Cox, from half-pay of the Regiment, to be Lieut., vice Wilkins.

Commissions signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Southampion. Sir J. C. Hippisley, Bart. to be Deputy Lleutenant.—Sir R. Pole, Bart. to be ditto.—D. Quarrier, M.D. to be ditto.

be ditto.—D. Quarrier, M.D. to be ditto.

Commission in the Forfar and Kincardineshire or 11th Regiment of Brishib Militia, signed by the Colonei of the Begiment.

J. Jack, Gent. to be Quartermaster, vice Mouro.

Commission in the Forfar and Kincardineshire or 11th Regiment of Bristia Militia, signed by the Lord Licutenant of the County of Forfar.

J. Jack, Gent, to be Ensign.

J. Jack, Gent, to be Emain.

Commissions signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Haddington.

Berwickshire, &c. Militia.—J. B. Sydserff, Esq. to be Capt. vice Hunter.

—C. Sharp, Gent. to be Bnsign, vice Sharp.

Bast Lothian Yeom. Cav.—J. Hunter Gent. to be Lieut. vice Str J. Staffe, Bart.—A. Fletcher, Gent. to be Cornt. vice Sir J. Hall, Bart.—J. Bennie, Jun.

Gent. to be ditto, vice J. Rennie, san.—T. Lea, Gent. to be Adjutant, vice J.

Henning. R. Lewins, M. D. to be Surg. vice J. Welsh.

Commission in the Cardiff Troop of Gentlemen and Yeoman'y Cavalry, signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Giamorgan.

R. W. Williams, Gent to be Lieut.

BANKRUPTCY SUPERSEDED.
J. EASTWOOD, Liverpool, mercer.

HANRRUPTGY SUPERISEDED,
J. EASTWOOD, Liverpool, mercer.

BANKRUPTS.

BANKRUPTS.

BLUNSUM, W. B. Stamford, groeer.

KELSEY, B. Noneaton, Warwick, ins-keeper.

RICHARDSON, G. Horneastle, groeer.

WOLFERSTAN, J. Chichester, ironmonger.

THOMPSON, H. Sculcoates, York, merchant.

KING, W. Worcester, draper.

SPENCER, W. Bristol, corn-factor.

HANNINGTON. S. Putney, ironmonger.

MAYERS, M. Typer Fountain-place, City-road, merchant.

DEVERBUX, W. H., George Street, Manalon House Street, and Deverburg.

MORGAN, J., Strend, Glossester, Hinon-draper.

WILLIAMS, L. W., Fleet, Street, wine-merchant.

WALL, R., Sottles-street, Coba, carpaster.

STOBART, R., and STODART, M., Strand, backsalbers.

SHALY, E. W., Stamford, uphelsister.

TUESDAY'S GAZETTE.

TURSDAY'S GAZETTE.

CROWN OFFICE, May 15, 1821.

Member Returned to Serve in this Present Parliament.

County of Down.—Matthew Forde, of Senford, in the county of Down, Bag, in the room of the Right Hon. Robert Viscoust: Castlereagh, now Marquis of Londonderry.

PARTNERSHIPS DISSOLVED.

W. and J. Sheepshanks, Leeds, cleth merchants.—Mayer and Howard, Stockport, drayers.—Rawson and Forsyth, Liverpool, insurance brokers.—Bray and Ayers, Lower Thames Street, ship agents.—Rennison & Spencer, North Shields, tobacco and snuff manufacturers.—Cogan and Nichelson, London Street, ship and insurance brokers.—Bryan and Edwards, Clun, Shropshire, woolstaplers.—Brumby, Bronsby, and Clark, Kingston-upon-Hull—(no trade).—Stevens, officavitree, and Weatherdon, Newton Bushell, Devonshire, bridge-builders.—Rannie and White, Purtsmouth, millwrights.—Henshall and Jones, Whitchurch, line merchants.—Gibson and Hopkins, Bishopsgate Street Within, goldsmiths.—defrifith and Parry, Holyhead, surgeous.—Rathbone and Wilson, Liverpool, ship smiths.—Heyes and Orrell, Prescot, Solicitors.—Barns & Singleton, St. Peter's, Ipswich, cabinet makers.—Sarson and Baggerley, Leicester, hosiers.—Alexander & Marth, Clapton, brick makers.—Strachan and Chapman, Cheapside, warehousemen.—Barras, of Gateshead, Durham, and Marthudale, Jun. Horton, Nerthumberland—(no trade).—Hod-on, Hodson, Williams, and Williams, coffin furniture manufacurers.

BANKRUPTCY SUPERSEDED.

CARD, T. R. W. Boronek Mexica & Allenda & Dankers.—Barnas & Card.

BANKRUPTCY SUPERSEDED. CARD, T. R. W. Borough Market, tripe dresser. CARD, T. R. W. Borough Market, tripe dresser.

BANKRUPTS.
BARNETT, J. jun. West Street, West Smithfield, victualler.
FATE, W. Settle, Yorkshire, cabinet maker.
FRENCH, R. Wimpole, Cambridgeshire, shopkeeper.
LAWTON, R. Bottoms within Stayley, Cheshire, clothler.
LYON, J. Marsham street, Westminster, cooper.
PHILLIPS, B. Tong, Shropshire, butcher.
RIDER, J. sen. and RIDER, J. jun. New Malton, Yorkshire, merchants.
ROE, W. Lower East Smithfield, wheelwright.
WILKINSON, G. York, Jinen Eraper.

ROE, W. Lower Bast Smithfield, wheelwright.

WILKINSON, G. York, Jineu & Fraper.

DIVIDENDS.

June 9, P. Dixie, sen, P. Dixie, jun. J. Dixie, and B. Dixie, Goswell Street Road, smiths.—June 8, R. Neville, Colchester, dealer.—June 12, T. L. Tweed, Borelman, Essex, farmer.—June 9, J. Oliver, Branspath, Durham, wattle dealer.—June 5, H. and M. Daniels, Bury Street, St. Mary Axe, merchants.—June 5, W. Worboys, Butt Lane, Deptford, linen draper.—June 5, W. Crook, Beanacre, Wilte, farmer.—June 9, Wilson and Waugh, Aldersgate Street, wholesale hatters.—May 19, H. R. Plaw, Riches Court, Lime Street, merchant.—June 5, R. Rowutree, Holderness, Yorkshire, miller.—June 5, W. Johnson, Heybridge, Essex, salt manufacturer.—June 9, W. Taylor, Burham Street, Sirand, tavern keeper.—June 6, T. Webb, Warwick, horse dealer.—June 5, J. Wittou, Kingston-upon-Hull, (no trade)—June 11, T. Wright, Leeds, merchant.—June 7, J. Thomas, Bristol, wine and brandy merchant.—June 9, Watts and Rigby, Manchester, Linen drapers.—June 7, Mary, J. and R. Griffiths, Bristol, masonx.—June 7, J. W. Scott, Grantham, Lincolnshire, banker.

CERTIFICATES—June 5.

H. Farber, Plythouth, desler is chima.—J. Dignam, Warnford Court, Throgmorton Street, coal merchant.—H. and R. Treffry, Galstan, Lancashire, ohemista.—B. Stead, Huddersfield, corn dealer.—W. Eige, Rusward, York, corn merchant.—R. Anderson, North Sunderland, corn factor.—J. Robortson, Newcastle upon-Tyne, silversmith.—R. Lee, Kingston-upon-Hull, merchant.—J. Gunnery, Liverpool, dealer.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

· HOUSE OF LORDS. MONDAY.

Previous to the House going into a Committee on the Grampound Disfranchisement Bill,

The Earl of Lauderdale moved for the appointment of a Committee to collect and report to the House the names of the Mayor, Aldermen and Freemen of the Borough of Grampound, distinguishing those against whom evidence had been given at the Bar, and those against whom no evidence had been given. His object in so doing was, to shew the House the injustice which they were about to commit by passing this Bill. Evidence against eighteen voters only had been given, and there were thirty-two against whom not a title of evidence had been shewn, in addition to which, seven new fragment had lately have made. freemen had lately been made.

The Earl of Carnarvon was friendly to the Bill, which went to

The Earl of Curnarvon was friendly to the Bill, which went to reform systematic corruption.

The Lord Chancellor objected to the motion as well as the Bill, which would operate as an ex post facto Law, and a Bill of Pains and Penalties; the Corporators who abused their trust might be disfranchised, but not the corporation also, it was much better he thought to leave these matters to the coguizance of the law.

The Earl of Liverpool thought it competent to Parliament to withdraw the trust, when a case of systematic abuse was made out.

Rarl Rathurst objected to the Bill, being unfriendly to the prin.

Earl Bathurst objected to the Bill, being unfriendly to the prin.

ciple of entire disfranchisement. Lord Redesdale entertained similar objections.

The Marquis of Lansdowne thought any difference of opinion, might be settled in the Committee.—The motion was negatived.

On the question for going into a Committee,

Lord Sidmouth could not consent to the Bill going into the Committee, without agreeing to disfranchise the Borough of Grampound, and transfer the right of voting to Leeds; as that could not be done, he should oppose it.

After some observations from the Marquis of Lansdowne, &c. the Committee was postponed till Montay.—Adjourned.

TUESDAY.

The Earl of Derby presented a petition from the Journeymen Rope Makers of Liverpool against the extended use of Machinary in the making of Ropes.—Adjourned.

WEDNESDAY WEDNESDAY.

On the motion of the Marquis of Lansdowne, a return of all the imaginaported into this country from 1786 to 1820 was ordered to he laid before the House.—Adjourned. THURSDAY.

The House sat for some time in a Committee of Privileges, the Barl of Shaftesbury in the Chair, on the Molesworth Peerage.

Bari of Snaftesoury in the Chair, on the molesworth reerage. Further proceedings adjourned till this day week.

The County Rates Bill, the Millitia Pay Bill, the Ipswich Gas Light Bill, and the Worthing Market Bill were severally brought ap from the Commons, and read a first time.—Adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS. MONDAY.

Mr. Dentson presented a petition from the inhabitants of St. Marry, New ington, against the Newington Select Vestry Bill, which was laid on the table.—The Mon. Member then presented another petition, which he said was of a very extraordinary nature: the forme tion, which he said was of a very extraordinary nature: the former petition was signed by 1,965 persons, including the Rector, Churchwardens, Governors, and Guantians of the said parish—the present one was only signed by one person. James Corner, who complained that he had been middle with respect to the purposes of the Bill, to which he was decidedly adverse. The petition was ordered to lie on the table.—Other petitions were also presented on the same subject.

The Poor Law's Amendment Bill was postponed till Monday next.

Mr. H. Sumser oresented a petition from John Clutton, in favour of the Newington Pa, ish Bill, and complaining of the Select Vestries of the said parish. After some conversation, the further proceeding on the petition was postponed.

Mr. Creevey gave notice that he would, on the 24th inst. bring forward a motion on the 41 per Cent. Barbadoes Fund.

In a Committee of Supply—a Resolution was moved for granting the sum of 43,0711. 12s. 5d. for the Sciaries of the Master-General Commence Bull-Master-General the Ordnance, and the Officers in the Tower and Pall-Mall.

Mr. Hume, in reference to what he had said on a former evening, rved, that he had stated, that since 1816, . ot less than 67 clarks of this department had been appointed.

Col. Davies asked a question relative to the patronage enjoyed by the Ordnance Board.

Mr. Ward; in reply, said, that the Master-General post entire command, but that where he did not interfere, the Board acted. There were four officers under the Master-General, who received no salaries, and who had the power of appointing their own clerks.

Mr. Birck contended, with reference to the Estimates, that on the face of them there appeared an excess of expenditure of 5,500,000l.

Mr. Gordon very confidently believed that it was the custom in many public offices to employ clerks to make work for each other. Mr. Hume renewed his former objections to the appointment o clerks to fill up vacancies, who were not on the half-pay list. He complained of the great expence of the Ordnance Department, and said that at one time since the usurpation of Cromwell, the expense of this department had been only 25,000l. and it was now upwards of 1,000,0001. He maintained that a variety of the departments might be reduced. In the Tower department, the Lieutenant-General was an useless officer; the storekeeper and clerks of the delivery were useless; the saving in the Tower might at least be 7,0001. The Commissioners of Enquiry had recommended, that the Secretary should have no more than 8601. per annum. He has, however, at present 1,5001. and a house, which cost the country 6,0001. He thought the officers ought not to have servants. Was it a sign of the admirable management of the Ordnance Department, that the public had lost 93,000l. by Mr. Hunt, the defaulter. The system was alto-gether bad, whether the management was under Whigs or Tories. The sum granted in 1792, for the Tower and Pall-Mall Establish ments was 18,0001. now the sum demanded was 63,0001. He would propose a reduction on this vote of 25 per cent. which would leave 47,4571—more than double the expence of 1792. In other offices the same profusion existed; the Surveyor-General, for example, had 14 clerks in 1796; he has now 36. The expence of the office has increased from 2,0191, to 10,6211, a year. After a variety of observations of a similar tendency, he moved an amendment—that the sum of 27,253l. should be substituted for that of 43,000l. which had been first proposed.

Mr. R. Ward replied to the observations of the Hon. Member and insisted that the Duke of Wellington had, instead of making new appointments, applied himself to reducing useless ones. The Hon. Gent. had shewn on a former night, that there was no discre-pancy in the Ordnance Accounts as asserted by the Hon. Member (Mr. Hume.) With respect to the Committee of Enquiry Reports, the Board of Ordnance had not received them as a dead letter. The Hon. Gent. then entered into some minute explanations respecting some of the expences of the departments, and confuted several previous assertions of the Hon. Member (Mr. Hume,) which he (Mr. Ward) conceived, proceeded only from what Sterne called "honest gullibility;" indeed, he had never met with a man endowed with a greater share of it—a signal instance of which, had been displayed in the Hon. Member's late discoveries with regard to the Borough of Queenborough; for he had found out there were only 17 persons employed by the Ordnance in 1802, whereas the actual number employed by the Ordnance at that period was 56. With respect to the encrease of Clerks, to which the Hon. Member objected, he could only say that the business had excreased since 1792, to such an amount, that it could not be thought extraordinary if an additional number of Clerks were employed

Colonel Davies supported the statements of the Member for Aberdeen.

Sir U. Burgh observed, that the Duke of Wellington had been charged by the Hon. Member with creating 67 new appointments, now the fact was, that he had only made thirteen.

Mr. Maberley thought a great saving might be made in the Storekeeper's department.

Mr. Hume made some observations in reply to the Hon. Member, whom he admitted, he was not competent to vie with in wit and eloquence.—The House then divided.—For the amentment, 78— Against it, 134—Majority, 56.

The next Resolution was 20,1821. 3s. 4d. for the Storekeepers

Departments in the Outports.

Mr. Hume made some fuguer observations on, and objections to, this grant, and moved that $6,1221. 7s. 6d. be granted for the above

Mr. Ward in allusion to some part of the observations of the Hun. Member, stated, that the whole of the stores were not kept in the Tower, for those at Woolwich were worth one million of money. Sir W. Congreve assured the House, that he was not a sinecure holder in the Ordnance Department—the amount of his salaries for the two offices which he held in that department was 25s. per day. One office was Superintendant of Military Machines at the Repository, for which he received 5s. per day, the Hon. Member was welcome to inspect that department, and then he would see the utility of it. At the Repository was taught the Art of passing Artillery over rivers, canals, narrow roads, ravines, precipices, &c. In fact, he (Sir W.) spent more than double the salary allowed him upon it.

Mr. J. Smith bore testimony to the great services of the Hon. Baronet.

Sir G. Cockburne felt it necessary to state, that the Naval Service had been highly benefitted by the improvements made by the

After some further observations, the Committee divided.—For the amendment, 53—Against it, 110—Mujority, 57—Adjourned. TUESDAY.

The following are the names of the Committee on the Reduced

The following are the names of the Committee on the Reduced List of the Boroughbridge, Election:—Lord Duncannon, Hon. S. Mahon, W. A. Johnson, Sir C. Cole, S. Plumptre, J. H. Allen, Sir J. F. Boughey, E. B. Wilbraham, J. Fleming, C. E. Rumbold, J. Grattan, J. Calcraft, W. Rickford, E. Ellice, R. J. Wilmot, Esqrs. The House were afterwards occupied in receiving a great number of petitions from persons complaining of the conduct of the Yeomanry on the 16th of August, at Manchester, on the occasion of the tumultuous meeting in that town. multuous meeting in that town. Among the petitions were those of — Lees, brother to J. Lees, who had heen trampled on by the Yeomany in the general confusion in dispersing the mob; J. Green, who complained of being cut down by the cavalry; E. Jones, and J. Lancaster, J. Woolstanton, William Schoffield, — Rightwean, J. Tomilinson, Mary Black, Margaret Goodwin, J. Shields, J. Bertwith, W. Hebbert, D. Mellor, T. Kelly, W. Thompson, W. Barnes, T. Ashton, Elizabeth Neil, J. Coates, D. Dawson, (father of E. Dawson, who died of his wounds), W. Ogden, Margaret Horrocks, Biddy Marks, W. Booth, T. Grimston, Catherine Coleman, W. Steward, Elizabeth Gaunt, J. Crenagh, W. Bromley, J. Jones, I. Ingle, B. Johnson, J. Brierley, Margaret Booth, Ann Whitaker, and three sisters, viz. Elizabeth, Ellen, and Isabella Harvey. The petitions complained more or less, of being ill-used by the Yeomanry on the day in question. In addition to these, were several petitions from individuals witnessing, as they stated, the transactions; their names were:—J. Lees, J. Chisnell, S. Mellor, W. Broadhurst, D. Ellis, — Birch, W. Gerty, J. Boothby, Mary Fielde, R. T. Wylde, J. Bryerley, &c.

Mr. Harbord presented a petition to the same effect, detailing the circumstances which occurred at Manchester, and stating, that a political soldiery, and not the regular troops were employed to disperse the multiple. the multitude. The chief actor in the scene of blood was a clergyman, whose services were rewarded with a living of 2000l. a year.

Mr. Serieant Onslow denied that the soldiery employed on that occarion were a political party. He defended the conduct of the Rev. Mr. Hay, the clergyman alluded to.

Lord Millor, admitted the Yeomanry alluded to ought not to be designated as a political soldiery; but in the neighbourhood of Manchester there was too much reason to believe they were actuated by a political feeling. He wished to know if the living to which Mr. Hay had been presented was not given with the understanding that the Prelate who had patronized him, was to have the presentation of a living at the disposal of Government.

Certainly not-no such thing .- The Petitions . Bathurst. were laid on the table.

Maj.-Gen. Wilson then presented a petition from Henry Hunt, the chairman of the said meeting, the proceedings against whom could be considered in no other light than as vindictive, cruel, and

Lord Milton said, the case of Mr. Hunt stood on quite different

Major-General Wilson then stated, that Hunt complained that the Gaol (lichester) in which he is lodged, had been selected with a view of aggravating his punishment, and is one of the most up-healthy and worst regulated in the kingdom.

Mr. Scarlett in refutation of those charges said, it was sufficient to say, that the affidavits of Hunt had been discharged with costs.

The petition was then read, it described the keeper as a most cold Judges had sent him there, they might be impeached.

Mr. Bright deprecated in strong terms the language it contained, as containing statements filse and groundless.

The Marquis of Londonderry hoped the House would not suffer such a petition to lie on the table.—The petition was rejected.

Sir F. Burdett rose to move for the appointment of a Committee to enquire into the events of the 16th of August, 1819, at Manchester. The Hon. Baronet conceived that in bringing forward this motion for enquiry, he was doing no more than what the Government were bound to do, with respect to what had been stated on former occasions, in which it was alleged by some Hon. Members, that the Yeomanry had not turned round until they were attacked; he begged to say, that such assertions were wholly false. All the witnesses examined on the trials at York, with the exception of three, gave evidence of the good and peaceable conduct of the people previous to the attack made upon them by the Cavairy; two of these three were Mr. Hulton and Mr. Enturith. Mr. Hulton was the only person who described the shower of stones, which the Noble Marquis had asserted were directed against the soldiery, but even Mr. H. could not tell how the attack commenced, or from what motive, or by whose orders this spilling of blood took place. Seeing the Cavalry beaten, Mr. H. said, he ordered the 15th Hussars under Colonel L'Estrange to support them; but neither the Rev. Mr. Hay, nor indeed any other mortal could support that statement. It was evident that for a long time previous to the meeting, the Magistrates had been apprized of the intention of the people to march with banners, and of the drilling, &c. but yet they took no steps to prevent those things. The Hon. Baronet referred to various decuments on the table to have out his present at the Mail. documents on the tuble to bear out his assertion, that the Magis trates were not aware of the illegality of the meeting, particularly the conduct of the Birmingham Magistrates on the occasion of electing a Legislatorial Attorney, and the Smithfield meeting. From all of which be contended, that these meetings were not then held to be contrary to law. At the Smithfield meeting every thing passed off quietly, and though Mr. Harrison, the Chairman, was arrested, no attempt was made at resistance, therefore, he would insist that the Manchester Magistrates were not justified in their anticipation of violence at the meeting in that town. He next referred to the despatch of the Rev. Mr. Hay, which stated, that it was not that Magistrate's intention to stop the columns on their march, and described the military preparations made, the line of march, and described the military preparations made, the line of Constables extending from the hustings to the house in which the Magistrates lad assembled. He then denied that any pikes were used by the multitude. Mr. Nadin had stated that the Yeomany preceded him to the hustings. The case of Mr. Saxton was a flagrant one—one Yeoman had said, "There's that villain Saxton, run your sword through him." "No, said the other, I'll leave that to you." Mr. Saxton avoided the thrust by stooping, and thus escaped instant death, and this Mr. Saxton was one of the persons whom the Crayer had refused to revesents. whom the Crown had refused to prosecute. The law of England was founded upon the law of God, and until the blood which had been shed was expirited, this land would be defiled. It would be found in the sacred volume, that even in the case of one man killing another by accident, the bomicide should fly to the City of Refuge, from which he could not depart until purified by the High Priest. In the present case, although the Riot Act had been read, that was ne justification of the slatighter of the people, as there was no evidence that the people had been made acquainted with the circumstance. the countries of the co that it was so by instituting enquiry, and that whatever became of the people's money, show the world that their lives were not to be sported with. The Magistrates having committed all these out-rages, afterwards assembled together to ascertain what crimes had been committed. After this dreadful example, Ministers imagined they had terrified the people from proceeding further on the busness of Reform; but a meeting took place in Westminster, quite as large as the Manchester one, at which he (Sir F.) had the honour of presiding in order to subscribe for the relief of the Manchester sufferers, and with the money raised 600 persons had been relieved, among whom were seven police constables, one man suspected of being a spy, and 120 women. With respect to the numbers assess the people thought that numbers gave respectability to the meeting. He hardly knew a circumstance in history more calamitous, and more to be deplored than the fatal 16th of August, at Manchester, a day that would never be forgotten in the history of this country. He had a right to charge Ministers with the whole of the burden of the accusation, and passing by Magistrates and Constables, to demand of them an enquiry into the transactions of that day. It was a remarkable circumstance, that the number killed that day was double the number killed in the Victory of Admiral Sir J. Jervis-the return of killed and wounded on that bonourable day did not exceed three or four hundred. At Manchester the number of victims, men, women and children, was upwards of six hundred. Was it possible then that so fatal a day should not be visited with a Parliamentary enquiry? He referred to the letter of Lord Sidmouth to the Magistrates of Manchester -- a letter which he said contained no feeling in which the King of England could participate; for it stated, that "His Majesty returns his great satisfaction," a word which His Majesty never could have expressed on the occasion of a massacre of his people. The Hon. Baronet after commenting at some length on these topics, called upon the Noble Marquis and his col-lengues, if they had not lost all regard for justice and for their own characters, to consent to the enquiry, and concluded with moving, &c. Mr. Hobbouse seconded the motion.

Mr. B. Wilbraham replied to the Hon. Bart.'s statement, which he conceived he was in a great measure relieved from, by the verdict of the Jury at York. The illegality of the meeting at Manchester he conceived he was in a great form of the Jury at York. The illegality of the meeting at Manchester had been decided by that Jury. The Hon, Gentleman described the temper of the different meetings in the manufacturing districts, at which respect to the difference of an aluming nature were passed. With respect to the meeting at Manchester, the Magistrates had information that training and drilling were going iorward in the county of Lancaster, and, indeed, bad undoubted proofs of its existence. The Hon. Gent-pead several depositions to that effect from persons who had witnessed the drilling and training, sworn in to keep the peace In consequence, 300 constables were at the meeting, but the multitude had removed the hustings out of the line of constables, and that the Magistrates were called upon to protect the inhabitants, when it became mecessary to read the Riot Act, which was done by Mr. Ethelstone, from a window, and another Magistrate attempted to read it in the street, but was trodden down. He wished the House to understand that the meeting was not dispersed because it was riotous, but on account of its being an illegal one. He then rend a number of depositions, to shew that the multitude had collected a vast quantity of stones and brickbats, and that there was every disposition to maintain thereselves against the peace. It might be said, why was not this evidence produced on the trial at York. For this reason: the Learned Judge, who presided at the trial, had narrowed the question to the mere legality of the meeting. In adverting to the nature of the evidence produced by the defendant on that trial, he would ask what credit was to be given to the evidence of Carlile. The Hon. Gent: then produced some placards posted up on that day, to caution the Magistrates, whose conduct throughout was tempered by tenderness and humanity. It had been asserted that the meeting was quiet, and not at all disposed to rior. If so, he would ask in Gol's name, why was necessary then for the people to have armed them elves with sticks and bricks, and to have loaded their pockets with stones. The fact was, they hoped by their numbers to overawe the military, and had for that reason brought their women and children to swell the crowd. With respect to intimidation, how stood the fact? Why two or three days before, one of the constables was attacked by the mob while posting up the Prince Regent's Proclamation, and thus the Civil Power were intimidated. The Hon. Gent. eulogized the conduct of Major-Gen. Byng, and observed, that the dispersion of the meeting had not previously been determined on, but the Magistrates were urged on to it by the inhabitants, who apprehended fatal consequences might easue if the vast multitude were suffered to remain. Several of the Yeomanry and Constables were wounded by the mob, and with respect to the persons assembled, one woman was heard to say, that she hoped in God she should not return home alive, if the good cause did not succeed. This woman was afterwards pushed down, and lost her life. The account of the sufferers on that day was swelled by persons applying for relief who never were at the meeting. He did not see the accessity for inquiry at the bor of that House, as it should interfere with the area tribunals, and therefore a proceed the would interfere with the proper tribunals, and therefore opposed the motion.

Lord Milion insisted, that many of the persons called on Hunt's trial, had proved the sufferings inflicted on the people. The present, however, was a question which could never be set at rest without the intervention of Parliament, it was one which involved in it the law and Constitution of the country; it could not be settled by any of the lower tribunals. If Parliament did not take the matter up, a precedent would be established, by which the military would supersedent would be established, by which the military would supersede the civil power of the country. The question between the Manchester Magistrates and Yeomanry, and the country, had never yet been tried, for the Judge at York said, he was trying the mere question of whether Hunt and others had been guilty of a conspiracy. He admitted that the accounts of the sufferers might be exaggerated, but if a single person had died of a sabre-wound, it was sufficient to call for the interference of the House. Whether the meeting was legal or illegal, of this be was sure, that the dispersion of it, was an illegal Act; he contended, however, that the meeting was peaceable. As to the people of Manchester being alarmed, there was evidence to the contrary. If it was the wish of the House to preserve the Constitution, they were called on to interfere; otherwise the idea would go forth, that there was no protection for the lower classes; and if the people thought they could not get redress from the House of Commons, the bonds of society would be loosened in a most lamentable degree.

Mr. Wilmot desended the character of Mr. Hulton, and declared that a more honourable man does not exist. He denied that Government had ulterior objects in view than putting down the meeting at Manchester; other meetings of the people had been held about that time, and the idea inculcated at them was, that they could have no relief for their sufferings, but by overthrowing the Government—nothing was more unfair than to say that the meeting was peaceable. It might be so for a time; but it was the peace of a thunder-storm. With respect to the present motion, it was made too late; and he was sure that the ordinary tribunals were sufficient for all the purposes of inquiry into the transactions.

Mr. Denman expressed his surprise at the silence of his Majesty's Ministers under such heavy, dreadful, and unrefuted charges. The question at present was, how far indulgence ought to be shewn to the Magistrates; but the question was, to what share of praise they were really entitled. It had been said in behalf of the Magistrates, that they were compelled to use strong measures, and that though some accidents did take place, the mishaps were not attributable to them, for the people had fallen by the sword of justice. All Magistrates, then, were to go down to the country edified by this doctrine, encouraged by this countenance, and, with the sword in the hand, sheath it in the blood of their fellow-citizens, if by chance a meeting of doubtful politics occurred near them, of if they had force at hand to second their constitutionally merciful intentions. Adverting to the trial at York, the Hon. Gent. asked, what were the facts? A number of persons were charged with making a riot at a public meeting. If no riot took place, of course, they were guiltless; and it was an obvious course to enquire into the character of that meeting. This was the only question at issue. the character of that meeting. This was the only question at issue. The conduct of the Magistrates and Yeomany did not come under the enquiry.—The Hon. Gent. charged Government with wilfully holding back from an investigation into this notorious ourrage upon justice and law; and also, that the Magistrates had acted under instructions; in proof of which he contended, that they had departed from the ordinary modes of dispersing public meetings which were as effectual as this, and infinitely more humane. Magistrates would not have dared to depart from the beaten path, if they had not been sanctioned by higher authority. He referred to the Letter of Bord Sidmonth to the Magistrates as proof of the countenance which Ministers gave to the affair. If the conduct of the Magistrates was praiseworthy, then ought Ministers to come in for a trates was praiseworthy, then ought Ministers to come in for a share of praise; but if both were wrong, then they ought to answer at the bar of Parliament.

The Solicitor-General denied that Ministers were responsible for the acts of the Magistracy, but they need not be ashamed of the part which they took in the affair. The Hon. and Learned Gent. had introduced irrelevent topics into his speech, for the purpose of working on the feelings of the House and the country; but it were better that the whole of the melancholy transaction should be buried in oblivion. With respect to the meeting in question, the trial at York had proved its illegality; every advantage had been given to Mr. Hunt on that trial; the jury, on that occasion, were for the most part not friends, politically speaking, to Ministers, yet this jury found it to be an illegal meeting. Was it to be said that the Magistrates were not warranted in arresting Hunt on the spot ?-Would it be said by any impartial man, under all the circumstances would it be said by any impartial man, under all the circumstances, that the conduct of the Magistracy was improper?—The meeting was got up clearly in connexion with other meetings; that at Smithfield had connexion with meetings in the North, and the resolutions passed there were nothing short of treason. The Magistrates of Manchester, on the day in question, took up a station where they could watch the motions of the assembly, and in which they could be to concert measures to counterpart the designs of the discould best concert measures to counteract the designs of the dis affected. They were not the aggressors. Nadin could not, with all his assistants, execute the warrant put into his hands, and the military of necessity were compelled to interfere.—The Hon. and Learned Gent. here said, that the statements made by Hunt were false and groundless in respect of the proceedings at Mouchesers. He concluded with declaring his firm tonviction that the present was a question with which Parliament and nothing to do.

Mr. Phillips maintained that the assembled multitude were peaceable, even at the time they were attacked by the military. He asserted the arms found in certain places were deposited there by Government spies.

The Solicitor-General denied the assertion to be fact, and contended that several trials and convictions proved the contrary.

Mr. Phillips was ready to admit, that in the state of inflammation to which the public mind and been ruised by the events that had taken place, the people might have furnished themselves with arms finding they had do protection from the laws.

The House then adjourned the debate. WEDNESDAY.

The following were the names of the Committee on the city of Limerick Election Petition:—Sir L. V. Palk, Sir G. L. Cole, Sir P. Musgrave, Lord Walpole, H. Goulburn, C. Chaplin, Dr. Phillimore, J. H. Penrudock, J. Graham, A. Smith, G. Lucy, J. P. Mucqueen,—Right Hon. S. Bourne, and N. Calvert, Nominees.

The second reading of the Audit Bill was postponed till Friday selenicht.

The House were occupied for some time in a motion for discharging the Newington Select Vestry Committee from further proceedings, with a view to appoint another Committee. This motion was made by Mr. H. Sumner, and was opposed by Mr. Dennison and other Members. At length a division took place on an amend-ment for postponing the further consideration till Friday.—For the original motion, 67—For the amendment, 74.

The Marquis of Londonderry brought up a copy of the Convention between his Britannic Majesty and the Emperor or Austria, dated 4th May, 1795, relative to the Austrian Loan.

Mr. Shaw moved for a Select Committee, to take into considera-tion the Window Tax in Ireland. His object in moving for the Committee was, to obtain the repeal of the tax, the Irish Government having pledged itself that it was to be considered only as a wartux.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer could not consent to the repeal of the tax, without doing injustice to the other parts of the em-

Sir J. Newport said the people of Ireland grouned under heavy burdens, and yet there was a diminished revenue.

After some discussion, Mr. Shaw consented not to press his motion this Session.

In answer to a question from Mr. Hume, respecting a complaint from the Ionian Isles, Mr. Goulburn said a petition had been presented to that effect,

The debate on Sir F. Burdett's motion respecting the proceedings at Manchester was then resumed.

Maj.-Gen. Wilson entered into a refutation of the statements made by the Solicitor-General, and other Members, who were of opinion the constituted authorities had not exceeded their duty, and conceived that the Lancashire jury might have thrown out the Bills from an erroneous view of the law; conceiving that the Yeomanry acted under proper authority. He went over the whole of the state-ments of the transactions, and maintained that they were sufficient ments of the transactions, and maintained that they were sumerated to induce the House to institute an enquiry, which, if they did not, would be an additional proof of the indifference with which the unsullied majesty of the laws was treated, and a most melancholy proof of the debased and degraded state to which the country was

Sir W. De Crespigny read a detail of the events which he suid took place at Manchester on the 16th of August, and said it was ne-Descript to institute enquiry.

Mr. Tyrrell believed the Yeomanry to have acted under a sense of duty. It was his opinion the Government, the mob, and the mi-litary had been misled.

Mr. Becher supported the motion. He did not approve of the meeting, but he thought enquiry necessary

Mr. Egerton opposed the motion; thinking the Magistrates had ved Manchester from riot and disturbance.

Mr. Grenfell retained the opinions which he had formerly given on this subject, and differed with pain from those with whom he

Mr. Bernal denied that the subject had lost any of its interest; it was for those who advocated the Manchester Magistrates to show that they tried to execute the warrant on Hunt without the military, and found it impracticable. He were over the circumstances which ensued on the 16th of August, and admitted there was one circumfor Government had so mixed itself up with the transactions, that the enquiry could only be carried on with advantage by the highest tribunul in the country. He warmly supported the motion.

Mr. H. Twiss contended that there was now no better pretext for the motion than when it was rejected in the last Parliament.

Mr. Hobhouse supported the motion, and went over the same ground which other speakers in favour of the motion had gone over, with a view to enforce the necessity for its adoption. The Marquia of Londonderry was certainly not disposed to oc-cupy much of the time of the House, yet he was sure Gentlemen would feel, after the many allusions made to him in the course of would feel, after the many artistons made to min the course of debate, that, independent of the responsible situation he held, he should not stand justified if he withheld some explanation. In the first view of the subject, he collected from the Hon. Baronet, that it was not simply the Manchester husiness that was brought under re was not simply the addictions of the Executive Government. The Noble Marquis was prepared to defend the course the Magistrates took in that transaction, and he expressed a "hope that the House would allow him to state the course they did take." He wished first to recal to the recollection of the House what portion the Government had in this question. He was bound to oppose the accuracy of the statement made by the Hon. Baronet, who had asserted, that the melancholy transactions at Manchester were concerted by His Majesty's Ministers. He should not shrink from those transactions, yet he could declare that Government was entirely clear of all that happened, and that none of the circumstances would be controlled by his Majesty's Government.—Government had travelled out of its course in affording the parties protection; his did not know, perhaps, that they never presumed to try those serving under them; they left them to the laws of the country. Satisfaction with respect to the conduct of the Magistrates was expressed, but it was not that blood had been shed. If the Circular of Lord Sidmouth could have had the effect of saving them from trial, it might have occasioned the indignation of the country; but it was nothing more than an expression of approbation on finding the public had received that protection which the law provided. The Noble Marquis then went over the transactions of the 16th of Angust, and said, that the blood shed was not occasioned by the Magistrates, but by those who excited the people to tumult; by those who, under the mask of Reform, had no other object than rebellion. On such persons the churge of blood ought to fail, and not on the Magistrates who were performing a painful and difficult duty, and who had the manhiness to do that duty with firmness. He would not condescend to comment on the assertion that justice could not be obtained. He was confident that the good sense and manliness of Parliament would look at the question as an attempt—a feeble attempt, thank God, to revive the inflammation which had subsided. To that God, to revive the inflammation which had subsided. manliness and intelligence, which was its natural obstractoristic, he looked for the putting down of discord, and the discordepancing of treason and rebellion. We were delivered from the debusion of unother great question, and this was an attempt to nenew the excitement of the public mind. Whatever might be said to the disadvantage of Parliament, and whatever paus might be taken to degrade and vilify the House of Commons, and propagate an opinion that it was not respected, he would say that the voice of Parliament had a magical refluence on the public mind. The damger of treason had disappeared before the thunder of Parliament, and he was still confident that the confusion could never be revived by the Hon. Buronet, if the mantiness and wisdom of Parliament continued to manifest itself as it lad ever done.

Mr. Scarlett could not admitthat it was too fate to enquire into

The Attorney-General was fully persuaded there was no necessity for an enquiry at the bar of this House.

Mr. S. Wortley opposed the metion.

Sir F. Burdett replied, and then the House divided.—For the motion, 111—Against it, 235—Majority, 124.—Adjourned.
THURSDAY.

Mr. S. Wortley gave notice that he should, on the 30th instant, move that a sum of money be granted by way of compensation to the creditors of N. C. Burton, Esq. the late Member for Beverley, for lo-ses sustained by them in consequence of an Order issued by this House.

Mr. Calcraft reported from the Boroughbridge Election Com

Sir W. Curtis moved for a return of all Copies, Memorials, or Correspondences with the Lords Commissioners of the Trensury, relative to the establishment of an extra post, as far as the same relates to the Post Office.

Mr. Warre was glud his Hon. Friend had moved for these Papers, as he was decidedly hostile to the measure which they re-ferred to, and should oppose it in every stage.

Mr. Curwen thought the establishment of an extra post desirable.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. S. Cooper moved that Copies of all Correspondence between Judge Mayne and the Government in Ireland, relative to the conviction of Thomas Flannagan at Sligo, he laid before the House. He moved this in consequence of certain petitions having been presented to the House, containing libels on his character.

Mr. C. Grant could have no possible objection to the Papers being produced, but really his Hou. Friend's character was so far beyond the reach of attacks or suspiciou, that he thought it much better the motion should be withdrawn.

Mr. S. Cooper, after what had fallen from his Right Hon. Friend, had no objection to withdraw the motion.—It was accordingly withdrawn.

Petitions from a great number of places were presented, praying and also for a repeal of the for a revision of the Criminal Code, and also for a repeal of the Usury Laws.

The House went into a Committee on the Bankrupt Laws Amendment Bill.

The Attorney-General objected to the first clause, as rendering every man liable to be made a bankrupt (although he might ultimutely be able to pay his debts) in all cases where he should conract debts at twelve months' payment, and commit bankraptcy in be meantime.

This clause was negatived.

The next clause, which extended the Commissioners' powers, was opposed by Mr. Courtenay, and postponed, as were several other clauses of minor importance.

A clause was agreed to for making Bankrupts an allowance of not less than two and half per cent. and not exceeding five per cent. upon the sum divided among the creditors, provided, that in no case this allowance should exceed 2,0004. The House resumed, and the Committee is to sit again on Tuesday next.

The Sale of Bread Regulation Bill was passed.

The Bill for mitigating the punishment of Forgery was postponed, after some conversation between Sir J. Mackintosh, the Marquis of Londonderry, Mr. Baxter, the Solicitor-General, and Mr. F. Palmer, until Wednesday next. The same course was taken with the other Bills for mitigating the severities of the Criminal Laws.

The Chanceltor of the Exchanger moved the Order of the Day, that the Report of the Committee on the Postage Act be brought up. Mr. Warre objected to the motion. He was fully satisfied with the present Mail Coach Establishment. The establishment of an extra post was cruel, and a Bill for carrying it into effect would operate against the Act for punishing furious driving, for a vehicle going at the rate of eleven miles an hour must endanger the public sufety. He moved that the Report be brought up this day three

The Chancellor of the Exchequer said the whole expence of the experiment would fall upon the party making it; the only expence incurred by Government being the delivery of letters. With respect to inhumanity, he really did not see that it would be me inhuman to drive a light coach at the rate of eleven miles an hour. when a heavy one was driven at the rate of ten miles.

Sir H. Parnell objected to the measure as unnecessary.

Mr. James thought the question a matter of great moment to the merchants of Liverpool; and as to the inhumanity of the thing, he did not see much risk of that, for it would not be necessary for the horses to gallop, as that must be a very bad pair of horses which could not trot, with a two-wheeled carriage, at the rate of fourteen miles an hour.

Nugent, Mr. Hume, Mr. R. Martin, and Mr. F. Palmer, the House divided. For the Amendment, 16—For the Original Motion, 24—Majority, 8.—The Report was agreed to.—Adjourned.

(For continuation of Debates, see page 182.)

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

THE CORONATION. - Within the last two days the works in Westminster-hall have been resumed. When they were suspended last summer the arrangements within the hall had rapidly advanced towards completion. The floors—the several tiers of galleries, on towards completion. The floors—the several tiers of galleries, on either side of the hall- the grand music-gallery ever the great entrance—and the elevated station at the upper and of the hall with the royal table, were fixed; the coverings, draperies, and ornaments alone were required to complete them. These are now ornaments alone were required to complete them. These are now just commenced; men are engaged in covering the fronts of the galleries (or boxes) with tranvas to receive the paper, which also is: preparing for the decoration. The paper is of a large and noble patpreparing for the decoration. The paper is of a large and noble patern, in the gothic style, to correspond with the general character of the architecture and ornaments of the hall. The whole business is proceeding with the greatest activity, and positive and distinct orders to that effect having been forwarded to the Board of Works. Proclamations respecting the Coronation and the re-assembling of the Court of Claims, it is expected, will be published in a few days. It is usual, we understand, to give at least six weeks' notice in the Gazette of a Coronation, for the information of Foreign Ministers and Courts: and the time cannot be positively fixed till the proba-Gazette of a Coronation, for the information or rotein ministers and Courts; and the time cannot be positively fixed till the probable period for the prorogation of Rarliament may be ascortained.

His Majesty, it is said, has announced his intention to make. Buckingham-house his town residence in future. The descrive state of the foundation of Carlton-house, and the superior advan-tages of more open air and extensive grounds presented by the latter. rages on more open air and extensive grounds possessed by use introsper are the causes of the change. The persons, male and female, attached to the Court, who occupy St. James Palace, have, is consequence, seceived notice to quit, in order that the fine suite of rooms which it contains may be fitted up for the holding of Lavees.

Drawing-rooms, &c., now held at Buckingham-house,

The King was present on Friday se'unight at the ceremony of the baptism of the infant son of his Excellency Count Munster, the Last Sunday the King, the Duke of York, the Duke and Duchess of Clarence, and the Princess Augusta, attended Divine Service at the Chapel Royal.

On Tuesday, the Duke of York and the Duke of Wellington had audiences of the King. His Majesty inspected the different patterns of the regiments in the service.

THE LATE MARCHIONESS OF WORCESTER .- On Thursday, the mortal remains of this much-lamented amiable Lady were removed from the residence of the Duke of Wellington, Apaley-house, for interment in the family vault of the Duke of Beaufort, in the parish church of Badmington, near the seat of this nobleman, in Gloucestershire.—The funeral procession was followed by the carriages of the following distinguished individuals: - Marquis of Worcester, Lady A. Smith, Duke of Beaufort, Countess Mornington, Duke of Grafton, Duke of York, Duke of Wellington, Lord C. Somerset, Lord F. Somerset, Viscount Granville, Right Hon. Sir H. Wellesley, Right Hon. W. W. Pole, Lady W. Ponsonby, Hon. Gen. C. Fitzroy, Earl of Harrowby, Viscount Duncannon, Archbishop of York, Earl of Carlisle, Sir A. Macdonald, Dean of Salisbury, and Marchioness of Downshire.

It seems to be the general opinion, that since the "Cœlebs," Mrs. Hannah More, no action has appeared that can be read with so much advantage by the unmarried classes as the novel just published under the title of "Precaution; or, the Matrimonial Balance," and we have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to universal

PRICE OF STOCKS AT THE CLOSE YESTERDAY.

FRENCH FUNDS.

5 per ct. Div. 22 Mar. 83-55 | Bank Sh. Div. 1 Jan. 1560 Recon. Div. 22 Mar. 96-70 | Ex. Lond. 1m 25-65 3m 25-45

NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We have no personal animosity against the person C. O. S. M. alludes to, and shall receive with pleasure any favourable anecdotes

-we only seek to do justice. T.S. will find Mr. M'KBRBLL's statement and correspondence with BROUGHAM in No. 14 of our Paper.

The account of the fête at the MOAT HOUSE is mean and malicious; the writer little knows us, if she thinks our Paper is to be made a channel of attack upon private individuals and their

We cannot for the life of us think what KITTY CHAR means. As we cannot find out the misery, and wretchedness, and huma affliction which Mr. Parkins talks about in his letter, we cannot upwernum waten aux. earning takes about in ass letter, we cannot give it a place; the plan he proposes to adopt proves him to be as great a financier as he was a Sheriff.

"The lover of fair play" suggests exactly what we thought of doing—making extracts from the works of Hone, Anacreon Moore, Carlile, and the Holland-House Committee, to show who first adopted the past of attacks with which was are amounted. first adopted the sort of attacks with which we are represented in the conduct of John Bull; but, upon reflection, we shall desist, and our reason for deing so may in some degree strengthen our case—the libels and ribaldry published by the opposite party are literally too gross and too filthy to be inserted in this Paper.

Lord Rhrington is not worth so much paper as IGRA DAMNO-

NIENSIS has bestowed upon him.

C. D. is very amtable, but he does not know the man he writes about. We have no personal feeling towards him, and are only actuated by a proper sense of duty to those whom he has treated shamefully, basely, and meanly. We appreciate C. D.'s sentishamefully, basely, and meanly. We appreciate C. D.'s senti-ments, and thank him for his letter. We are greatly indebted to S. S.; he may rely implicitly upon us, and upon our faithfully observing his conditions.

We should like to hear from R. D.

THEATRE ROYAL, COVENT-GARDEN. Monday, Romeo and Juliet. Tuesday, The Tempest. Wed roveked Musband. Thursday, The Tempest. THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE. Monday, Pizarro, with Giovanni in London.

A Monday's Edition, containing the latest News, the Stock List, the London Markets, and the State of the Country Markets by that morning's post, is published at Three o'clock.

CARDINAL PESCA'S VALUABLE LIBRARY.

Just published, price 2s. Part the First,

A CATALOGUE of the extensive LIBRARY of his Excellency the CARDINAL FESCH, (Uncle to the Ex-Emperor Napoleon) particularly rich in Abbatial and Local Ecclesiastical History, Royal and Noble Genealogies; Versions of the Sariptures; Sacred Philology; Councils; Works of the Fathers; Theology; Canon and Civil Laws; Ancient History; and Biography; also, several early printed Books, Chronicles, and Manuscripts.—This extensive and valuable LIBRARY will be SOLD BY AUCTION, by Mr. SOTHEBY, as this House, Wellington-street, Waterloo Bridge, Strand, on THUBDAY, May 24, 1821, and the Tweive following Days, (Sandays excepted), at Tweive o'clock.

To be visued on Monday, May 21, till the Day of Sale.—Catalogues may be had at the Place of Sale; of Mr. Booker, Bond street; J. M. Richardson, Cornbill; Mr. Parker, Oxford; Mr. Thorpe, Cambridge; Messrs. Constable and Co. Edimburgh; and Newsrs. Hodges and MeArthur, Dublin.

MR. MUNIDEN'S BENEFIT, and the LAST NIGHT of HIS ENGAGR-MENT.

PHEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—On THUBSDAY,

MENT.

MENT.

MENT.

MENT.

MENT.

MAY 31, 1821, will be revived a COMEDY, (never acted at this Theatre) called SECRETS WORTH KNOWING! The principal Characters by Mr. Elliston, Mr. Munden, Mr. Cooper, Mr. Knight; Mrs. W. West, Mrs. Edwis, and Madame Vestris. Original Comic and other Songs, by Madame Vestris, Miss Paysy, Miss Cubit; Mr. T. Cooke, Mr. Knight, and Mr. Munden.—To which will be added (by particular desire) THE TURNPIKE GATE; Crack, Mr. Munden.—Boxes 7s. Pit 3s. 6d. Lower Gallery 2s. Upper Gallery 1s.

Tokets and Places to be had of Mr. Mundan, No. 2, Bernard-street, Russell-square; and of Mr. Rodwell, at the Box Office.

JOURNAL of LITERATURE.

THE Public are respectfully informed, that owing to the imprisonment of Mr. Cooper and Mr. Weaver, by the Hon the House of Commons, the publication of this Work is for the present unavoidably suspended.—The notice will be given of its resumption.

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, MAY 20.

MR. BENNETT, or his reporter, or his mis-reporter, are the best friends of JOHN BULL, for besides increasing our sale at least two thousand papers, (a matter of no small importance to four families, he heads of two of which are in Newgate, and the other two under a prosecution) they have brought our character so fully before the public that no reporter, nor mis-reporter—neither representations, nor misrepresentations, can any longer keep up the delusions which have been spread about us, or can support the vile insinuations of which we have been the objects and the victims.

Mr. Bennett has a character of being a great philanthropist—an indefatigable reformer of the criminal law of England. We know nothing of his philanthropy, or his reform, but through the medium of the newspapers; and through this same medium we, to our cost, and the public (we hope) to its advantage, have made one or two very important discoveries.

It has been somewhere observed, that the description which Virgil gives of the proceedings of Rhadamanthus is that of a hellish judge indeed.

- " Noscius hic Rhadamanthus habet jurissima Regna "Castigatque, auditque dolos subigetque fateri;" Or, in plain English,
  - " Here Rhadamanthus holds his cruel court, " And first be punishes, and then enquires,
  - "And lastly, tortures culprits to confess."

Thus, if we are to believe the reports in the newspapers. Mr. Bennett began by proposing a sentence of condemnation against us, and that being carried, he proceeded to examine whether we were guilty, and, in that examination, endeavours to make us prove our own culpability.

All this may be very false in the newspapers, or very right in Mr. Bennett; but, it seems to us, to be entirely at variance with the spirit and practice of the Laws of England, and we frankly confess, that it extremely lowers our confidence in Mr. Bennett, as a liberal reformer of those laws.

But the next point appears to us to be of still greater importance, for, if the reporters are correct, there has been a direct attempt to introduce again the long rejected system of TORTURE.

Mr. Bennett is said to have declared, that his object was not so much to punish the "infamous and perjured wretches at the bar," as to discover their accomplices. We can hardly believe that Mr. Bennett could have used such expressions: we think that if he had, not one, but fifty Members, must have arisen to repel, with indignation and horror, such a principle; for we hesitate not to say, that to subject men to the inquisitorial power of the House of Commons, and to send them to Newgate, to the injury of their fortunes and reputations, not because they are guilty, but in the hopes of forcing them to betray their accomplices, is neither more nor less than torture.

Ravaillac and D'Amien were justly put to death for the horrible crime which they committed; but every body knows that the dreadful and disgusting tortures, which preceded their final execution, had no other object than that of discovering their fancied accomplices.

The lawyers who directed those brutal proceedings admitted, that the victims were " men of straw"-wretches who (they said) could not be suspected of acting by their own impulses; and "Luke's iron crown, and d'Amien's bed of steel," were not the punishment of known offenders, but an inquisitorial attempt to discover offenders unknown.

A third observation is not less important. By the ordinary course of our law, every man is presumed to be innocentuntil he is found guilty; and it is a high misdemeanour to attempt to influence before hand the minds of the Judges or the Jury. In our case it is stated in all the papers, that after the House of Commons had voted that a certain paragraph was a crime, we were called in, and obliged to confess (as was the truth) that we had committed the offence, and the character of the offence being thus established, and our culpability admitted by ourselves, it was proposed that we should be sent to a trial before a Jury with that double weight upon our heads.'

If we had come before a Jury, how could we have denied that to be a libel, which the House of Commons had voted to be a libel; and how could we have said " Not Guilty" to a charge, which we had been already obliged to confess?

Fortunately, the principles of law and justice are still too powerful for any such attempts at reform; and the newspapers inform us, that this monstrous proposition was unanimously rejected: perhaps, indeed, it never was made, but the reporters so stated it, and we may be at least allowed to observe upon the report.

We now come to the charge which has been made against us of attacking females, and wounding private character. This, it should appear by the newspapers, was much insisted upon, as a good reason for sending us to Newgate; upon which we asked Mr. Scarlett, the Barrister, whether he ever knew a Judge condemn a man for forgery, who was indicted for sheep-stealing. But we will now ask all persons who have read any political writings, who began to attack females and female character?

We will answer, the Whigs-uniformly and at all times and seasons. We will pass over the stories about the Princess Dowager-we will pass over the libel upon her late Royal Highness the Duchess of York, for which the Chronicle—the same identical old Chronicle—was tried twenty or thirty years ago, -we will pass over the scurrilities with which her late Majesty was loaded by Peter Pindar and others, and we will come to the last ten years.

Let any man look at the Morning Chronicle, to which the whole nest of Holland-House contributed, let any man (we would not ask any woman to do it) read the things which appeared in that paper at the time of the King's assumption of the Regency, and then listen to the exclamations of horror and dismay at our conduct which that paper sends forth.

Let any man take up the Twopenny-post Bag, or the Letters of the Fudge Family, they will there see ladies of the highest rank and character branded with infamy, and held up, in terms of the most filthy invective, to contempt and ridicule, against whose morals and character nothing could have been adduced, save what was raked up from the black-hearted wilful falsehoods of disappointed ambition and bitter personal malevolence.

Look at JOHN BULL; -has he ever, in any one instance, indulged in private scandal ?-We fearlessly and boldly answer No-NEVER! unless it has been to expose the motives of those who have come forward to support profligacy, and countenance vice.

We can perfectly understand the anger of the Chronicle and the Times; we have taken them at their own weapons, and beat them. But Master Courier, we confess, puzzles us; -- Master Courier must have a shortish memory; and we think we can help him. It appears to us, that with respect to attacking females, the very first attack ever made upon a female for visiting the Queen, was made last November in the Comier newspaper itself. Indeed, we subjoin the Song it put forth on that occasion, which we think excellent.

How will Master Courier get over this? After all his fine sentiment, and high-sounding indignation at our unworthy conduct, it appears that he himself-the identical Master Courier, led the way, and that we are only his followers and imitators. Nay, we would go farther, and ask Master Courier whether he be quite sure that two or three of our Songs are not by the same hand as this which we quote from his pages?

BRANDENBURGH HOUSE FESTIVITIES; OR, THE LEINSTER TRIUMPH.

- " Now, shame on ely-guesses, heat up for address
- "Ye remnant of Rade in our Ireland green;
- " Each patriot Pat Riot, who hates peace and quiet, " Sing Willialoo for our virtuous big Queen.
- "First shout " whack for virtue," and then I divert you
- " By singing a glorious and marvellous scene;
- "With triumph I name it, let Leinster proclaim it, " Our Duke and his Duchess have dined with the Queen !
- "There was also Duncannon, the boast of our Shannon,
- " With Thanet, sat down to the prog and poteen; 4 How well their names tally with Serjeant Vassali,
- "His halbert exchang'd for the wand of the Queen! " There was ould Madame Damer, the Devil can't tame her!
- " With a foreign professor they called Thomasine! " Och! their talk of " belle arte" delighted the party,
- " And both hob-a-nobbed to the health of the Queen.
- Antaldo Antaldi, he grinn'd like Grimaldi,
- "And pledged the fair Duchess in right Maraschine, " And the Duke firted boldly with sweet Counters Oldi;
- " The widow bewitch'd who does jobs for the Queen!!! " Mister Hume, too, the Doctor, who acts as her proctor,
- " And bothers the Speaker with venting his spleen,
- " With the Mayor of the City, behav'd themselves pretty, " Delighted to dine with a Duchess and Queen.
- "Other Peers were invited, the summons they slighted.
- " Not feeling quite sure what the message might mean, "Whether rough blindman's-buff-o, or pantomime stuff o,
- "For " sans etiquette," was the phrase of the Queen "Och! wou'd they'd ask me, Pat; I'd go, sure, with glee, Pat;
- " My hod I'd abandon, and dress myself clean; " I could romp with the best, boy; and, then for a jest, boy,
- "Och! sure, I'd delight the warm heart of the Queen.
- " Tell Dan to kiss Dora; let Nick tumble Norak, " And Barney O'Brallaghan romp with Kathleen;
- "Don't be shy, girls, or guarded, for virtue's rewarded,
- " Our Duke and his Duchess have dined with the Queen ! " Sister Shelah, and Nancy, join girls of the fancy,
- "Turn out at the revel of Donnybrook Green;
- " Earn meat, drink, and clothing; a kise goes for nothing, " Our Duke and his Duch has have din'd with the Queen."
- · This would-be slasher acquired wealth and respectability in India, by a mode of slashing less clumsy and more creditab himself.—Ne sutor ultra crepidam.——Courier, Nov. 25, 182 -Courier, Nov. 25, 1829. NEWGATE, May 19th, 1821.

QUACK-QUACK-QUACK.

Our readers must have noticed a remark in the London T HIB MA sons who have obtained the honour of knighthood surreptitiously-it is quite necessary that these persons should be known.

-now accidentally Sir Charles-is a man who has written a book upon cancers. He married a lady at Hertford, and when he was about to publish his book, he thought, from the wonderful eclat which Sir Charles Morgan's honours have given him, and his erudite lady, that a similar title would not only elevate him, but sell his book.

Mr. Aldis, therefore, modestly applied to the Marquis of Salisbury to get him knighted. His Lordship very kindly humoured the man's folly, and actually applied in the proper quarter, and was refused, on grounds which we need not here recapiturate.

Never daunted, our hero goes to Court, with his cancer book in his hand, and a card, on which was written— "Mr. Aldis, by the Marquis of Salisbury, for the honour of knighthood," which he actually received .- So much for

Sir Harlequin Daniels, the other worthy, is known as the inventor of a "Life Preserver," which we remember some years ago to have seen him exhibit on the river Thames; at least we remember to have seen a middle-aged man naked, with a cocked hat upon his head, smoking and playing the fiddle, as he swam, bobbing and toppling through one of the arches of Westminster bridge, to the infinite relight of sundry small boys; but whether it was the prace Chevalier himself, or an Esquire, we are not quite certain.

At present Sir Harlequin Daniels is a Medical Board in the Blackfriers-road, with a back door, and a lamp in the passage. We believe he calls himself Sir Columbine Daniels—whether in compliment to the Queen or not we do not know.

THE QUEEN.

THE ersonage has made several entertaining little efforts at a revival of her mob-popularity during the last week. She received some people from Saint Luke's with an address; looked at a carpet, and went to Spital-fields and to the play, (and some people say, to the Opera House Masquerade,) but all in vain. The bubble has burst; and not even her printed declaration that she is settled in England, and has given directions to sell her Italian property, has had the smallest effect.

"Whether she stays, or whether she goes,

"Nobody cares, and nobody knows;

"Whether she's pleased, or full of her airs,

"Nobody knows, and nobody cares."

Her fifty-third birth-day was celebrated at the Eagle Tavern in the City-road, Major Cartwright in the Chair, who made a susech upon Parliamentary Reform. The who made a speech upon Parliamentary Reform. The Rev. Mr. Draper and Mr. Wooler made speeches too, and during the evening a liberal subscription was made for the relief of persons suffering under political prosecutions, which amounted, before the party separated, to fifteen pounds, nine shillings, and threepence-halfpenny.

A very grand entertainment was given on the same occasion at the Grove House, Camberwell, Mr. Favell in the Chair. Major-Gen. Wilson, J. C. Hobhouse, Esq. S. C. Whitbread, Esq. Alderman Wood, and many other very distinguished characters were—invited——but cent distinguished characters were-–invited--but seni apologies!

We have every reason to believe that her Majesty will very shortly quit England; our principal ground for think-ing so is, that in her second letter to Lord Liverpool, on the coronation, she has declared her intention of staying

ADDRESS OF THE MARRIED LADIES OF WORCESTER TO THE QUEEN.

THERE has always been in our minds a great doubt as to the genuineness of the addresses sent to the Queen, and in the only case where strict investigation has taken place, (that of the Leicestershire militia) it turned out that there was no address at all. The following letter, written by Alderman Wood to gentleman of Worcester, will show the eager anxiety of the faction to get addresses at any rate, and the value of them (if actually received) may be fairly estimated, when we inform our readers that the Lady who wrote to the Alderman is a woman known in Worcester by the name of MOLL SOCKER!!!

St. James's-square, Dec. 12th, 1820.

Six,—We received a letter signed "Mary Guile," dated Worcester, Nov. 17, and directed to Lady Ann Hamilton, informing us that she presided at a meeting of the Married Ladies of Worcester, and requesting to be informed how and when the address then voted could be presented to Her Majesty. We answered Mrs. Mary Guile, giving all particulars, but from that time to the present moment we have heard nothing further concerning it. We also requested a copy of the address to be sent. As no notice has been taken of our communication, we are affaid that the letter must have been interested. Monday next is the last day for the ure have been intercepted. Monday next is the last day for the pre-sentation of addresses to her Majesty till after the Christmas holidays, and, if it could be so managed, it would be preferable to have that from the Married Ladies of Worcester presented on that day.— I very much regret to hear of the death of Mr. Smith, as I am confident that we have in him lost a warm friend. And I am Sir, your humble servant,

LIST OF CLERGYMEN WHO HAVE PRAYED FOR THE QUEEN.

REV. JOHN SMITH, Curate of St James's Church, REV. DR. RAFFEES, Great George's Chapel, REV. W. CHARRIER, Duncan Street Chapel,—All in Liverpool.

REV. CHARLES JARVIS, Curate of Cheltonham.

We believe he has omitted to do so latterly.

REV. JOHN SAVILLE, of COLCHESTER.

This Gentleman has also discontinued the practice.
REV. E. DANIELL, Luton, Bedfordshire.
REV. DR. SHAW, Rector of Chelvey, Somerset.
REV. MR. NOTT, late Curate of Droxford, Hants.

Mr. Nott has been dismissed from his curacy, but not for praying for the Queen! The flag was flying, on the Queen's Birth-day, on Kingston Church—was this without Mr. Gandy's knowledge?

(To be continue

We have received the following Letter on the subject of Dr. Bengo Collyer, to which we are glad to give insertion: TO JOHN BULL.

Greenwich, May 3, 1821. SIR,—I read your Paper regularly (not on the Sabbath) because I like your political principles, but I was concerned to see the name of Dr. Collyer in the List of Clergymen who are said to pray for the Queen. Now, Sir, I know the Doctor's principles, and it is a maxim with me that a good Christian cannot be a bad subject. I don't yield in loyalty to John Bull himself, and yet I approve of my own Manister's praying for the Queen, not as Queen Consort, and (thank God) not as Queen Regnant, but simply because I think her a sinner of the first magnitude, and therefore she needs think her a simer of the first magnitude, and therefore she needs our prayers, and duty enjoins us to pray for all such. As I am not competent to write for the press, I do wish you would notice it in a future number. Do, my good Sir, separate, in your ideas, the Socinian radicals from the general body of Dissenters, who fear God and honour the King. Our Ministers defeated them at the Library in Red Cross-street, on the question of aldressing the Queen, by a very large majority; and we shortly after did the same at a meeting of Deputies of Congregations, at the King's Head in the Poultry.—I am, Sir, your humble servant,

W. C.

THEATRE.

In discussing this subject in our paper, we have taken a tone not likely to be soothing or satisfactory either to ma-nagers or actors. We have lamented in very plain terms, the obvious falling off in the attractive powers of both houses, and endeavoured to suggest the means by which public attention might be called to the stage—alas! in vain;—month after month has rolled away, and not one vivifying spark of genius has fallen upon either of the splendid fancs of Covent Garden or Drury Lane, to re-kindle the once brilliant flames which blazed upon their altars.

This, we fear, is not so much the cause as the effect of the present degradation of the stage—it is because the Theatre is deserted and neglected, that men of genius turn their talents into other channels;—it is not to be believed, that, in an age when the influence of refinement and education is forcibly (if not beneficially) felt in all classes, and when by the aid of Bell and Lancaster, we make politicians of our chimney-sweepers, and philosophers of our house-maids, that there are not men who could produce dramatic works if they chose.

Even Lord Byron, who writes a Tragedy, disclaims any in-tention of making it fit for representation; as he does so, we think all the Drury Lane managers deserved to be soundly horsewhipped (as one of them actually was the other day) for bringing it forward; but we must confess there is more of Byron than of common sense, in his Lordship's explanation on this point.

A man who writes a poem, writes it to be read; that is a truism as good as any of Hazlitt's; but surely, a man who writes a Drama, to write it well, should make it dramatic!

at least, it strikes ar so.

The only visible advantage (except to his Lordship and Murray the bookseller) arising from Lord Byron's last effort, is the revival, or indeed the first production of Walpole's "Mysterious Mother," which, at his Lordship's suggestion, has appeared upon the stage of the Surrey Theatre—it is said, "with great alterations." When the whole plot and interest of a Play turn upon the most appalling and unnatural inci-dent imaginable, we do not exactly see (and we must decline seeing the piece) how the alteration can be such as to justify the performance; and we take this opportunity of observing, with respect to the minor Theatres generally, that as they now invariably act regular Dramas, and bring out new bona fide Farces and Operas, without "let or hindrance," the same power to which all productions (even songs) of the Patent Theatres are submitted, should use its controul over those less ivileged places of public amusement.

Gloomy, however, as the prospect of theatrical affairs may be, we will trust, with the HARCOURTS, that "le bon temps viendra," and as a matter of consolation to persons interested, it may not be unpleasant for them to know, (if they do not,) that the French stage, in the year 1753, was reduced to a state very similar to that of England now; and that Covent Garden may find, in those days, precedents for such painful deviations from the classical path of the legitimate drama, as the introduction of mimics, tumblers, ceiling-walkers, and posture-masters.

It appears, by a smart and somewhat impudent address, spoken by Le Kain, at the commencement of the season, 1753, that the managers of the Theatre Français, (as it is styled, par excellence) were obliged to call in the aid of Ballets and Pantomimes, which the Thespian Aristocracy of Gaul held to be woefully infra dig.

"It is," says Baron Grimm, "for the sake of these Ballets, that the public bear with the best works of Corneille, Racine and Moliere; and it is to prevent, if possible, the total abandonment of the National Theatre, that the actors have been compelled to resort to expedients so humiliating to the national taste.''

Here, however, we beat them. The French, in 1753, actually did run after Bugiani and Maranesi; the English, in 1821, have scouted with contempt, at Covent Garden, the grimaces of two attitudinarians, and repelled, with disgust, the extraordinary and humiliating efforts of a man to imitate a fly and crawl upon the ceiling, and drink with his head downwards.

Considering, as we do, the dearth of dramatic novelty to be only the effect produced by the state of the stage, what is the primary cause of the desertion of the Theatres?

Late dinner hours—Argyle Rooms—French Plays—Al-mack's—Vocal Concerts—Ancient Music—Parliament—The minor places of amusement, where satisfactory entertainment for "the general" may be had at a much easier rate; and, bove all, an alteration in the modes of middling life, which though obvious to every one of us, has never been cited on this particular subject.

At the time when this country was flourishing, and until every body in England was ruined, tradesmen were satisfied to occupy the upper parts of their houses of business, (and let even a proportion of them), and the coteries of Holborn, the Strand, or Piccadilly, used to indulge themselves contentedly in the smoky delight of tea-ing with each other over their shops, on high days and holidays, and at ordinary times, in the snug and murky little parlours behind them. Now that the nation is beggared, and we are all starving, there is not a cheesemonger or linen-draper amongst them, who has not his villa, or his cottage, at Brixton, or Camden Town, or Kentish Town, or Islington, or Turnham Green, or some of those well-frequented retirements, to which, at his earliest convenience, he retreats, to indulge himself in training a dusty clematis over a brass-knockered door, or teaching scarlet beans to climb upon pack-thread up his highly embelished lamp-post!

In these rural amusements, the man forgets London and its charms—the wife occupies her time in assimilating pursuits; and the girls, polished up to the highest shine of Cockney education, play and sing so satisfactorily to them-selves and their enchanted parents, that they lose the desire for hearing any body else; and literally enquire as seldom, and know as little, about Miss Dance, or Miss Wilson, as if they were really persons of quality.

This is all good for the turnpikes, but bad for the plays; and accounts mainly, as we think, for the emptiness of our pits and upper boxes: and yet we might suggest, that a little more anxiety on the part of the managers, would be of utility, even in the present state of things. For instance, The Antiquary was played the other night, and neither Miss Stephens, nor Miss Tree acted in it. Miss Tree, we learn, is in ill health, and therefore, reluctantly, we must bear with her absence. But the joyous, laughing, bright-eyed, blooming Stephens is hale and hearty, and why is an audience to see the Antiquary without her, who originally formed its greatest attraction? Perhaps we shall be told, in a few weeks more, that the sceneshifters are tired of working the storm-scene, and that we are to do without that. These are carelessnesses, (at least, we hope they are not intentional affronts to the audience) which call for correction, and would call still more loudly, but that they bring their own punishment with them. There were not fifty people in the boxes, on the night to which we allude.

Carolina-Columbina has been to the Theatre. She has enlarged the circle of her amusements, which has hitherto been bounded by Belzoni and the Bonassus, and having " won & herself up," appeared (but not exactly as she did on the Con-tinent) " in a box," at Drury Lane Theatre, on Monday.—By Carolina-Columbina, we mean, that most injured, innocent, maraschino-loving, painted personage, who lives with Lord Hood and his wife, at Hammersmith,—the QUEEN!

She came privately, but was soon recognized by some of her Monday friends, who called out "Queen—Queen," and agreeably to their ordinary usage, made a considerable noise; upon which Elliston appeared, and inquired the pleasure of the audience, who intimated (as a compliment to her Majesty) a wish to hear "GOD SAVE THE KING!

It not being deemed expedient that Old Marino Faliero and his conspiring friends should sing, Elliston entreated the audience to wait till the end of the Play, when the vocal per-formers would be in attendance. Accordingly, at the conclusion of the Tragedy, the National Anthem was given, and received with the most heartfelt applause. This settled Ca-ROLINA-COLUMBINA, who tired to death of being only a spectator instead of an actor, voted it uncommonly dry stuff, and retired immediately (it is said) to dress for the Opera House Masquerade. Never was a more mortifying affair for the poor woman's vanity. If we except the persons engaged on purpose to applaud and cry Queen, not a hand stirred, not a voice spake; to be sure, as she did not commit any flagrant indecency, she was not actually hissed out of the Theatre, as it is in evidence she was at Naples, but her reception was such as, we think, will induce her to pass her Monday evenings in future at home.

We are obliged to postpone our observations on the Tempest, and other performances, till next week.

SADLERS WELLS,—We are happy to find the extraordinary attraction of Wilkinson in Hookey Walker, has tempted. the proprietor to re-engage him for a few nights more. whole of the various novelties are of that superior cast that cannot fail of producing a prosperous season. The serious Pantomime of Black Beard, surpasses any thing we have witnessed for some time; we trust, Mr. Egerton, will meet that reward due to his indefatigable exertions.

TO JOHN BULL.

SIR,—I AM glad to perceive by your spirited representa-tion last Sunday, that John Bull " is not afraid." Let him go on in the same way, and he need fear no want of support from those whose aid and countenance are worth having.

I am not to be deterred from reading, aye, and "paying for the reading," of John Bull, notwithstanding that all those who persevere in doing so have been described by some distinguished characters as "moral assassins;" and what is more, I am not to be taught morality by men who take their notions of it from the writings of Hone, Carlile, Cobbett, &c.

I have females in my family whom I am as desirous should steer the virtuous course" as those persons can be who prefer the path which leads to Brandenburgh House.

In the writings of John Bull, my wife, daughters, and female servants have seen that those of their sex, who, defying public opinion, have chosen to espouse the cause of the Queen, have not themselves been, and rould not have been, the best judges of what constitutes female purity.— Through your assistance, Mr. Editor, they have learnt that a Queen who is not virtuous, is sure, in this happy country at least, to have those only of her own sex inclined to pay her homage "whose praise is censure." Had your pages been devoted to the cause of vice—had you, like the Editors of the Times and Chronicle, toiled to prove that a woman might sleep in the same tent with her man-servant for nights and weeks, and yet not offend female delicacy, then might I indeed have admitted, that by allowing your Paper to be introduced into my house, I became "the assassin of the female morals of my family.

It seems that "the friends of vice" are again on the alert; because the editor of their scourge is in confinement, they venture to creep out of their shulking holes. We again heard Brandenburg bulletins! If any thing were wanting to convince the sound part of the British public of the utility of your labonrs, it would be the confidence with which these miserable writers return to their former filth, now they fancy that their enemy may no longer be able to watch and controul their actions. But I trust that, as long as these hypocrites, these bullies, these panders of vice, dare to present themselves to public view, the exertions of John Bull will be unceasing, and that his friends will not be afraid of affording him their support and open protection.—Yours, 18th May, 1821.

DEPUTY BULL.

TO JOHN BULL.

SIR-The reporters having made Sir James Mackintosh Il you base, and infamous, and venal, and mercenary, an dishonorable, &c. &c., I think it quite necessary to declare my disbelief of the statement. Sir James Mackintosh, who is all honor and integrity himself, never could have taken an opportunity to attack you, while you stood defenceless and at his mercy.

I have known Sir James Mackintosh for many years. I knew him before he went to India. I knew him personally, as well as by reputation; and at the time a subscription was raised for Mr. Gerald, I (at his instigation) put down my mite, and Sir James's conduct throughout the whole of that business has been so gentlemanly, so correct, and so amiable, that he never could have thought of speaking harshly to men placed in the circumstances you stood in the other evening.

While you are in Newgate, and have a little leisure upon your hands, you may perhaps like to see the correspondence which passed between Messrs. Parr and Perry (of the Morning Chronicle,) and Sir James, upon this very interesting affair. If you should, and will hint as much in your notice to correspondents, I may be inclined to indulge you.-Ium, Sir, yours, R. D .- A SUBSCRIBER TO GERALD.

> Joogle Digitized by

HOUSE OF LORDS. (Continued from page 179.) FRIDAY.

The Judges attented to deliver their opinions on the appeal of Smith v. Earl of Jersey; after which they gave judgment, and reversed that of the courts below.

The Jurors Attendance Bill, the Scotch Court of Admiralty Bill, and the Scotch Court of Session Bill were severally passed.

The Earl of Darnley gave notice of a motion for the 4th of June, on the subject of the supply of Stationery to the public offices in Ireland.

The Timber Duties Bill was committed for Tuesday next .- Adj.

HOUSE OF COMMONS. FRIDAY.

Mr. H. Sumner moved the Order of the Dny for resuning the debate on the Newington Select Vestry Bill; which was objected to by Mr. Wortley, and, after some conversation, the debate was adjourned till Monday.

Numerous petitions were presented against the above Bill; from several places in Scotland against the Scotch Jury Court Bill; from certain parishes in Essez, and other places, against the Metropolitan Road Bill; and from various towns on the subject of the Criminal Code, &c.

The House went into a Committee of Ways and Means.

The Chairman put a resolution for applying the unclaimed div. dends in the Bank to the public service, with the exception of 100,0001, which is always to remain unappropriated.

Mr. Grenfell noticed the large balances remaining in the hands of the Bank; last year upwards of four millions, and this year likely to be nearly as much; the loss to the country would be, in consequence, at least 100,0001.

Mr. A. Baring differed with the Hon. Gent. on the subject of public balance, the retention of which was stipulated by charter. He thought, therefore, the House, in justice, ought not to deprive

Mr. Hume said, this poor Company had divided, since 1796, exclusive of its ordinary dividend of seven per cent., a sum of twenty-six millions. He thought that there was no necessity for leaving so large a balance in the hands of the Bank.

Mr. Caleraft thought the balance was too large.

The resolution was agreed to.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer moved a resolution sauction. ing the issue of certain Exchequer Bills to carry on the public This resolution was agreed to, as was one for the issue of 500,0001, for the Bank of Ireland.

The House then resumed on the question for going into a Committee of Supply.

Mr. Chetwynd called the attention of the House to the distressed bright country, and said, if Estimates like the present were brought forward in another year, he thought the country night be expected to say, as an Illustrious Personage was reported to have said on seeing the head of Charles the First held up, when the coffin of that Monarch was opened at Windsor, "Take it away—it is too horrible to be looked upon." He recommended that money thould not be legisled away in times like these and normal morned. should not be lavished away in times like these, and moved an amendment, that " it be an instruction to the Committee, that, duly taking into consideration the present distressed state of the country, they proceed to enforce a system of the most vigorous economy, as far as the same can be effected without injury to the substantial interests of the state.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer had nothing to offer in opposi-tion to the general principle of the amendment; but he did not think the instruction necessary, as economy had been attended to.

Mr. Maberley thought that the reduction which the country had a right to expect had not been made. He considered it monstrous that 17,000,0001 should be required for the Government of the country to maintain a land force of 110,000 men. He thought a saving of 4,000,000 might be effected in the course of the year by proper attention; the reform should begin at the head, and go downwards,—he thought Ministers ought to retrench, and, in his opinion, his Majesty himself.

The Marquis of Londonderry observed, that these preliminary debutes afforded certain Members an opportunity of making high-sounding speeches, and round assertions, which they wouldnot ven-ture on in a Committee. With respect to the sum of 17,000,000l. which the Hon. Gent. complained of, he (Mr. M.) well knew that Government, but was paid as the reward of past services. Taking it for granted that 4,000,000l. of the 12,000,000l. could be saved, as the Hon. Gent. asserted, he would have the country so besotted as to believe that the Government of this great empire could be saved. carried on for 8,000,0001. The Hon. Gent. could not venture to state such an opinion in the Committee.

Mr. Caleraft said economy ought to be adopted.
Mr. Huskisson denied that there was any indisposition on the part of Ministers to reduce the expenditure.

Lord Milton censured the extravagance of Ministers; in which Lord Millon censured the extravagance of Ministers; in which he was supported by Mr. Huma.—The House then divided—For the amendment, 40—Against it, 65—Majority, 25.

In a Committee of Supply, Mr. R. Ward moved the grant of 14,6331, for the pay of the Civil Officers and Clerks of the Ordanace Establishment on foreign stations.

Mr. Huma moved to reduce this sum 25 per cent. and that the grant be only 10,9731. He took a view of the additions made to the tablishment on the Civil Officers and the contract of Grant Court of Grant the establishments at Malta, Barbadoes, Ceylon, the Cape of Good Hope, and Heligoland. He considered the charge at the latter place the most extravagant.

officers abroad to draw rations for themselves and families, which practice had been put an end to and the salaries encreased; but on the whole, comparing the present expence with that formerly, it had decreased, as great savings had been made on foreign stations.

Mr. Bennett said that the Hon. Gent. had made it appear that because certain persons had been robbing the country, it was necessary to give them compensation when the robbing was put an end to.

Mr. R. Ward declared no robbery had taken place by the Gentlemen who drew rations, who were quite as honest as the Gentlemen who sat on the other side of the House.

Mr. Hume said, the charges which he had made were specific.

for the Cape of Good Hope-that colony never cost the Dutch a single stiver.

Mr. Goulburn said, the statement of the Hon. Member as to the Cape of Good Hope, was not founded on fact.—The Committee divided.—For the amondment, 55—Against it, 86—Majority, 31.

The original resolution was carried, 56,0001. was then proposed for Barmeks and Garrison Stores in Great Britain, &c.

Mr. Gipps objected to this grant, as in 1817, only 29,000l. were charged for certain services, which now were charged 35,000l.

After some conversation the House divided.—For the resolution,

99—Against it, 04—Majority, 35.
A grant of 217,453l. 10s. 10d. was proposed for the balances and pay of the Officers in Ordnance Corps, which was withdrawn in order to propose the items comparing the sum separately.—4,2081. 8s. 8d. was then voted for 57 Gunners and Officers stationed in Garrisons and Botteries.—4,030l. 13s. 8d. for the pay of Engineers serving in Great Britain and Ireland, and 24,378l. for the Suppers and Miners, were agreed to.

The Report was ordered to be received on Monday.—Adjourned

PSALMODY.

TO JOHN BULL.
SIR,—I do not understand "STERNHOLD's" letter: probably he will have the goodness to explain it. His obscurity, I apprehend, is partly occasioned by an error which all hasty writers are prone to commit; by arguing on facts within their own knowledge, but which they do not sufficiently state to those whom they address.

"STERNHOLD" gives the preamble of Mr. Vernon's judgment, but not the judgment itself. Now, this preamble completely satisfied my mind, that the ostensible object of the suit in question, was that which I stated in my former

He adds, that Mr. Cotterill's selection of Psalms and Hymns was withdrawn in consequence of the Archbishop's suggestion. This was a compromise of the suit, and no decision; and, inerefore, I was also correct in saying, that the parties rested satisfied without the knowledge which they professedly sought.

In another place, "STERNHOLD" intimates, that the Arch bishop of York did not decide in favour of the defendant, (Mr. Cotterill,) because he ordered him to withdraw his new selection: the meaning of which is, if it mean any thing, that the Archbishop decided in favour of the parties complaining, which it is quite clear to me he did not do.

But all this, Mr. Editor, is mere quibbling. The case, as it appears to me is, that a suit was instituted, complaining of the introduction of unauthorized Psalms and Hymns into the service of the Church, which suit was not decided by the legal tribunal. If that decision had taken place according to law, I contend, that the selection of the Archbishop, and those of both the parties litigant, must all have been rejected; for I gather from "STERNHOLD'S" letter that Mr. Cotterill's parishioners, as well as himself, had their favourite selection, the rejection of which, and the substitution of his own, occa-sioned this litigation. Although the parishioners, according to "STERNHOLD's" statements, commenced these proceedings on account of the rejection of their own selection, the preamble of Mr. Vernon's judgment, if judgment it can be called, distinctly proves that the question raised was upon the admission of unauthorized Psalms and Hymns.

The position which I take is this; that, according to the law of the land, no Psalms or Hymns whatever can be lawfully introduced into the service of the Church of England. except the two versions of the Psalms of David, by Sternhold and Hopkins, and Tate and Brady, which have received the Royal Authority. I stated shortly the grounds of this position in my former letter, and if it be controverted, I shall rejoice in the opportunity for a more full explanation.

The consequences of the indiscriminate use of any Psalms and Hymns, which the Clergy individually may chuse to introduce, are highly detrimental to the Established Church. Notwithstanding, the question which has been put to "ORTHODOXUS," and which, to my astonishment, he has not answered, I say, and say boldly, that the doctrines of the Church of England are impugned in these unauthorized metrical compositions. To me, in many instances, their familiarity is distressing, their vulgarity disgusting; and instead of assisting devotion, they frequently present objects to the mind productive of any other feeling.

The truth, however, is, that of late years, there have crept into the Church of England, certain men who are very nearly allied to Dissenters; these unauthorized Hymns are one of the means by which they propose to undermine her founda-tions; and I need not give you a more decisive proof of the accuracy of this assertion, than by referring to the Curate of Attercliffe (mentioned by "STERNHOLD") who, when he experienced great difficulty in obtaining Priest's Orders, declared his determination to join the Dissenters!!!

With respect to the anecdote, in the conclusion of STERNHOLD's" letter, he must excuse my saying he has been imposed upon. REGULUS. been imposed upon.

9th May, 1521.

TO JOHN BULL.

SIR,-The continuation of your attacks upon Prince Leopold call upon me again to stand forth in his defence, and to vindicate his character.

In your last Paper there is a letter from one of your correspondents, signed Verax. The writer of it, in his at-tempts to lower the character of the Prince in the esteem of the people of this country, has had recourse to the pitiful and illiberal expedient of misdating facts. How comes it, he asks, that his Royal Highness should have waited till the moment of the Queen's trial to ask for a Peerage and a consequent Sea in the House of Lords, and feel so mightily offended that it was refused him?

I answer this question by denying the fact. Upon the Prince's marriage with the Princess Charlotte, the Peerage was offered him:—this honor, from motives which do the highest credit to his understanding, he at that time declined. But when the unhappy event took place which caused such grief throughout the kingdom, the situation of Prince Leopold be-came totally changed. The Peerage then was an object to him: and he was advised by his friends to ask for it. It was not thought proper to grant his request—Observe, Sir,—This happened some months before the late King's death, and many months before the return of the Queen to this country. So much for the candour and veracity of your Correspondent

Verax. And nov mor, a you are fond of putting questions, let me put a question to

Did you or did you not know that a reconciliation had taken place between the King and Prince Leopold, and that His Royal Highness attended the last drawing-room? If you did know it, why was a circumstance which must give pleasure to every good subject, suppressed? The name of the Prince was studiously omitted in the list of those personages who were at the drawing-room. I have not done with you yet, Sir. There is, in another part of your last paper, a most malicious attack upon the Prince in the form of a letter, signed by another Amicus Veritatis, which deserves the severest animadversion. An attempt is made to throw ridicule upon the character of the Prince, from the narrowness of his circumstances in the early part of his life. Is then, Sir, poverty a crime? In this state of supposed poverty was the conduct of the Prince marked by any dishonourable action? Has any thing been laid to his charge unworthy of a soldier, of a gentleman, of the Prince?

In the same letter, also, an attempt is made to throw a censure upon his character upon the ground of his hospitality. His invitations to his old friends to his public dinner at Marlborough house are stated to be no compliments to them, because these invitations are general.

Had he confined his invitations to those persons only whom he could as yet be personally known to, or intimately acquainted with, he would most probably have been severely censured for his parsimony and for the contracted scale***Jhis hospitality; but now that he opens his doors to receive and to entertain most sumptuously, men of eminence in all professions, and all the nobility and gentry of the country, without distinction of party, he is unaccountably held forth as an object of censure by the very man who one should have thought from his professions, would have been the first to have vindicated a much injured character from misrepresentation and unmerited censure. AMICUS VERITATIS.

The feelings which prompted the above letter are highly creditable to the noble writer, and we therefore give and to it, and we further say, that Prince Leopold's name was not intentionally omitted in our account of his Majesty's Drawing Room-more than this we cannot say.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Paris Papers to the 16th inst. have come to hand, the contents of which, with the exception of one article, are very uninteresting; but this, if its statement be correct, must be deemed highly important. A person of the highest distinction is reported to have effected ant. A person of the highest distinction is reported to have effected his escape from Madrid, and to have placed himself at the head of the anti-constitutional troops. If this report be well-founded, we may shortly expect intelligence of the greatest moment relative to the fate of unhappy Spain.—The King of Naples is said to have been taken ill at Rome.—The Paris Journals are principally filled with the reports of the trial of the conspiracy of the 19th of August, and the debate in the Chamber of Peers upon the project of the law relating to ecclesiastical pensions. Both subjects remain under discussions discussion.

PARIS, May 13.—We learn from the frontiers of Spain, that Gen.

Concept Officers who were arrested at Baroe-Labarre, one of the General Officers who were arrested at Barcelone, during the night of the 27th April, is arrived at Perpignan; that three Spanish Monks have likewise taken refuge in that city, having quitted their Convents, where they were apprehensive of being arrested. Some Spanish smugglers having opposed an obsti-nate resistance to the douaniers, one of their chiefs has had his thigh broken by a musket ball; he was immediately conveyed to the hospital at Perpignan.

PARIS, May 14.—We have received out of the usual course, the PARIS, May 14.—We have received out of the usual course, the Madrid Gazettes of the 5th instant. They announce that on the 4th the sentence condemning the Chaplain Vinuessa to ten years hard labour, was made known in the morning. This sentence does not please every body. A considerable number of people proceeded to the prison, and endeavoyered to force the gates. The guarding of them was confided to the national militia, which made some efforts to keep off the assailants; it did not, however, succeed; several indicates the protection of the Chaplain and Milital in an attention of the Chaplain and Milital in the service of the control of the Chaplain and Milital in the service of the control of the Chaplain and Milital in the control of the Chaplain and Milital in the control of the control of the Chaplain and Milital in the control of the control of the Chaplain and Milital in the control of the control of the Chaplain and Milital in the control of the dividuals penetrated to the chamber of the Chaplain, and killed him.

Vienna, May 3.—The Emperor of Austria is expected at Schoenbrunn on the 20th inst. His Imperial Majesty, to testify his high sense of the signal services of the General in Chief, M.M. Frimont and Bubna, has conferred the Grand Cross of the Order of the Iron Crown on the former, and on the latter the Grand Cross of St. Leo-

Letters from Bayonne state, that every day ecclesiastics arrive there, flying from Spain.

A letter from the frontiers of Catalonia state, that two Neapolitan frigates had entered the Gulf of Rosas.

Iltan frigates had entered the Gulf of Rosas.

The letters from Constantinople are to the 11th of April. The panic continued unabated. Two or three Greek Bishops had been beheaded, and numbers of Greeks had taken shelter on board of vessels bearing the Russian flag, which is respected.— Great preparations were making by the Porte to resist Prince Ypsilantl, who had crossed the Danube, but the Turks were not to move until an army was formed able to meet the insurgents.

MADRID, May 5.—After having accomplished the assashation of the Priest Vinuesa, the brothers and friends repaired to the Club of La Pontano de Oro. to prepare lists of proscription: each person of La Fontano de Oro, to prepare lists of proscription; each person put down the name of his victim.

The last Courier from Madrid narrowly escaped being captured at Burgos by the Guerillás. Several shots were fired at him. On the evening of the assassination of the ill-fated Vinuesa, the populace surrounded the residences of the authorities, and demanded the heads of 25 persons, who are all related to the first families of Spain.

FRANKFORT, May 7.—Letters from Naples contain the important news that the Chevaller D'Onis, Ambassador from Spain to tant news that the Chevalier D'Ouis, Ambassador from Spain to his Sicilian Majesty, had received his passportato quit that Capital. The Spanish Ships of War, Le Guerrier and La Perle, have at the same time received orders to quit the Bay of Naples.

According to letters from Rome, King Ferdinand will not return to Naples but with a Constitution in his hand, to be proclaimed immediately. It is added, that it is at the desire of Russia that Prince Russo, who has returned to Layhach, has been removed from the King's person, because that Minister, who is extremely in the interest of Austria, has always loudly declared against the establishment of any Constitution whatever. It is affirmed that the Allied Cabinets are very unfavourably disposed towards the Duke of Calabria, but that they protect his brother, the Prince of Salerno, who continues to reside at Laybach.

By yesterday's mail advices were received from the Morea, down

By yesterday's mail advices were received from the Morea, down to the middle of April. They are of an afflicting nature to the cause of the Greek insurrection. The Turks had received a considerable reinforcement of troops at Patras, and had completely subdued the Greeks in that place. The Archbishop and a number of his followers had fied to the mountains—and several thousands, men, women and children, had found means to escape by sea, an had arrived at Zante in the most destitute state, having fied with nothing but the clothes they were.—Their houses were plundered by the Turks, and all who fell into their hands were massacred in other Islands.

GENOA, May 5 .- A vessel arrived here in fourteen days from Smyrna, which brings the account of a dreadful massucre of the Greeks, both there and at Constantinople. The Turks, after bombarding the town of Patras, and burning many houses, had been reinforced from Lepanto and Trippolizza, and finally obliged the Greeks to fly to Zante in great numbers. Many Greek Priests and other inhabitants had been killed, and a churchdemolished.

By dispatches from Bombny, brought by the Castle Forbes, the report is confirmed that the expedition to the Persian Gulph of Kishen, after we had destroyed the holds of the pirates. It was not intended that this force should act on the offensive, but merely retain its position; but the commanding officer, assisted by a force from the Imaum of Muscat, proceeded to attack a fortress called Lascarry, which the pirates held. They were attacked by a large body of Arabs, treble in numbers, and we lost six officers killed, and about 500 Sepoys. The latter fought most bravely, but were overpowered by numbers.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

COURT OF CHANCERY, TURSDAY.

Lord Shaftesbury and others v. the Duke of Marlborough.— Mr. Hart presented a petition from James Blackstone, Esq. one of the trustees of the Blenheim estate, praying that the pension of 5,000l. granted by Queen Anne to the great Duke of Marlhorough, may be made liable to the payment of the assessed taxes due on the dienheim estate, and for which a seizure had lately been made. The pention stated that the late Duke of Marlborough, by his will, bequeathed to Lord Charles Spencer, and other trustees, his gold and silver plate, china, and furniture, at Blenheim, and appointed them upon trust to permit the person who should be enti-tled to the estates at Blenheim to hold and enjoy the same, and they were not to be removed without the consent of the trustees. By a codicil to the will the name of Lord Shaftesbury was substituted for that of Lord C. Spencer's. The testator died in 1817, and since that time his will had been proved, and his Grace, the the possession of the said trust effects. Since his Gruce had held the estates, assessed taxes to the amount of 1,8001, had become due, and these heirlooms had been seized for their liquidation; but masmuch as some of these taxes made a personal charge on his Grace, he conceived that this property could not be made answerable for them. taxes consisted of house and window-duties, and also of the impositions on borses and carriages, and these latter charges could only, in strictness, be made on the immediate property of the only, in strictness, be made on the immediate property of the Duke. A petition had been presented to the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, praying that the pension of 5;9001. out of the Post-office, granted by Queen Anne to the great ancestor of the defendant, may be made liable to the payment of those taxes, and the prayer of that petition was, that it may be referred to the Master to lequire whether the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury had reported that that pession was not liable, and whether it would be proper for the trustees to institute any proceeding in respect of such taxes, and for the Master further to report as to what property was liable.—Mr. Shadwell followed on the same side.

Mr. Rae appeared for the Duke of Marlborough, and he was instructed not to consent to the prayer of the perition.

Mr. Hart.—In this case it is not necessary that we should have the consent of the Duke of Mariborough. The Lord Chancellon.—Take your order; it is the duty of this Court to protect these heir-looms

COURT OF KING'S BENCH, MONDAY.

The King v. Hunt.—The defendant was found guilty at the last sitting of having published a libel on the Commons House of Pariliament, in the paper called the Examiner.

Mr. Denman moved for a rule to shew cause why the vertice that the parilian many that a parallel and the string was to should not be set aside, and a new trial granted. The trial was to have been by a Special Jury, but the Sheriff having omitted to summon the twenty-four special jurymen struck at the Crown Office, ten only answered to their names, and a tales was consented to. Mr. D. maintained, that for this neglect his client was cutitled to a new trial, under the Statute of the 3d Geo. 2. He cited several cases in support of his position.

The Court Seriatim, were of opinion, that as no fraud or collusion was imputed to the Sheriff or his officers, they could not in the absence of proof presume corruption. There was nothing to shew injustice had been done to the defendant, or that the verdict would have been different if twelve special jurymen had tried the cause.

THURSDAY .- The King v. Thelwall .- Mr. Blackburn, on the part of the defendant, moved for a rule to shew cause, why Mr. Murray, the Solicitor to the Constitutional Association, in Bridgeat whose instance a true bill had been found against the defendent, for a seditious libel, should not disclose the name or names of the prosecutor or prosecutors.

The Court was of opinion, that if a rule for a Special Jury was obtained by the prosecutors, then the defendant might more for a rule, calling upon Mr. Murray to give him a list of the names of the prosecutors who were eligible to sit on Special Juries, whose names were inserted in the Special Jury Book; and he was entitled to ask each Juryman at the trial, if he was one of the prosecutors in the case. - The rule was refused. SATURDAY .- This being the great Bail-day of the Term, a vast number of Bail attended to justify.

Mr. Justice Best sat to receive justifications. A number of individuals were rejected; amongst them was a tradesman residing in St. George's Fields, who offered himself to justify in the double of a debt of 50l. He was opposed by Mr. Cummins on behalf of the Plaintiff; and is reply to the questions of the Learned Counsel, confessed that his milk-score, his coal-bill, and a variety of other paltry demands against his credit remained unanswered. He at first stated, that he was bail in no other action except that (the subject of the present examination); at length he acknowledged he was ball in another action in this court, and ultimately confessed that he steed in the same situation in actions in the Exchequer and Common Pleus, but he could not recollect the names of the parties for whom he had rendered himself responsible. He assured his Lord ship he had no intention to deceive, or to misrepresent; but being macquainted with the nature of the business, and flurried with the questions of the Learned Counsel, his recollection falled him.

Mr. Justice Best observed he might be ignorant of the business but he appeared to be a wholesale dealer notwithstanding. His Lordship observed be might find it a bad trade, and advised him to get out of it as soon as possible. His bail would now be rejected.

Mr. Pollock said, being ignorant of these circumstances, he had allowed this man to justify this very morning; be trusted his Lordsbip would order the rejection to extend to that case also.

Mr. Pollock, he should be rejected; Mr. Justice Best.—I think, Mr. Pollock, he should be rejected; though, according to his own account, a beginner, he seems to have outered on his business eagerly enough.

Mr. Chitty expressed a hope, if the present bail was rejected, time would be given to add new bail. The Court would perceive the defendant had been taken by surprise.—(A laugh.)

Mr. Justice Best.—Oh, no doubt, Mr. Chitty,—your surprise was equal to your ignorance; but I cannot relieve you. The bail was accordingly rejected in both actions.

MISCELLANEOUS

Last Thursday Sir Abraham Hume entertained a large party of fashionables at his house in Hill-street, Berkeley-square, to witness the performance of M. Alexandre, the celebrated ventriloquist, who is now performing at the European Saloon, King-street, St. James's,

It is tout justice, to state to our readers that the John Bull, who has published a letter to Lord Bunon, (the first of a series) is in no way wondever connected with this paper.

KING'S THEATRE.—His Majesty on Tuesday, honoured the Opera with his presence in state, attended by the Duke of Clarence, Lord Cathcart, Lord Boston, &c.

The enthusiasm with which he has been received every time he has appeared in public, seems to ancrease with the opportunities his subjects have of seeing him. The applause on his entrance and quitting the House, was tremendous.

The opera was the Clemenza di Tito, the ballet Nina; we never saw a more crowded assemblage of fashion and beauty than that which filled this splendid theatre on this occasion. The ballet, which is somewhat too serious, was well | who acted in concert with him in the expedition. executed; and Noblet was never more charming.

We confess, although we have had a severe lesson upon points of privilege of Parliament, we think we are not yet perfect, for, to our view, the leading article in the Times newspape: of Friday is as complete a brench of privilege as we ever read. We are sure is as complete a breuch of privilege as we ever read. We are sure it is not; because, doubtlessly, some of those Hosourable Members who are said to be so jenious of their collective dignity, would have noticed it if it had been one. Certainly, from the fact that two ladies (whether of straw or not we cannot say) are entered as proprietors of that paper, the feeling of gallantry which has recently shown itself so decidedly may deter the putriots from strucking

The Duke of Glorcester went some short time since to s lam. After having traversed many words, he requested to be shewn some patients who were of the worst order of lunatics; accordingly be was shewn to a cell where a raving maniac was chained to th was snewn to a cell where a raving maniac was chained to the floor; the moment he saw the Duke he set up a loud largh, and cried, "Ah! silly Billy—silly Billy, is it you?" His Highness, hearing this familiar and generally used address, turned to the keeper, and said, "I see he is very mad indeed, but yet he seems to knew me."—"Oh, yes, Sir," replied the keeper, "he has his tucid intervals!"

The same Duke being at Lord Creven's, the conversation turned upon the scarcity of golden-pippins, which as every horticulturist knows are last disappearing from amongst the English apples. Lord Craven happened to say, that he had from curiosity preserved the last pure golden-pippin he had ever gathered from his last tree, to keep as a specimen hereafter of what golden-pippins were. This Highness begged to see it, and how it was preserved; it was brought to him cased in wax; he seemed highly pleased at the contrivance; but his innocent appetite prevailing over his good sense, he broke away the enriously cemented cout, and to the autonishment of every body, who did not know him, eat the last golden-pippin of the Cravens!

Mr. Canning was present during the sitting of the French Chamber of Depaties on Thursday. The Right Mon. Gentleman had a seat reserved for the Cerps Diplomatique.

The subscription towards paying the fine for Sir Francis Burdett, amounted in all England to about seven hundred pounds; a proof positive how far radical reformers go for their friends.

By letters from St. Helena, we find that the reports of Buonaparte's serious illness are totally unfounded, he lives very regularly, has no falling off of appetite, and takes exercise morning and afternoon in a placton.

THE APPROACHING CONFIRMATIONS BY THE BIEROP OF LON-

THE APPROACHING CONFIRMATIONS BY THE HISTORY OF LONTIME following is the order of time in which each Parish will be visited by the Metropolitan Bishop, viz.—Thursday, May 24—
St. John Hackney.—Friday, May 25—St. Mary-le-bone.—Saturday, May 26—Kensingson.—Monday, May 26—St. Paul, Cathedral.—Wednesday, May 39—St. Magnus the Martyr.—Monday,
June 4.—St. Botolph, Bishopsgate.—Tuesday, June 5—St. Mary, Whitechapel.—Wednesday, June 6—St. Andrew, Holborn.—Thursday, June 7—St. Martin in the Fields.—Friday, June 8—St. James, Westerning Constant Fine 0—St. Gargany & Reposers, square

Westminster.—Saturday, June 9.—St. George's, Hanover-square.
THE CLEMOV.—At an ordination holden by the Lord Bishop of Bristol, in Christ College Chapel, on the 6th instant, the following centlemen were ordained: - Deacons-C. B. Tayler, B.A. Trinity coll. and J. Barrow B. A. St. Peter's coll. Cambridge; T. H. White, B. A. University coll. Oxford; J. Conington, B. A. Jesus coll. Cambridge; W. Wilcox, B. A. St. John's coll. Oxford; E. Whiteley, B. A. Jesus coll. Cumbrigde.—Pricets—A. C. Minchin, M.A. Trin. coll. Dublin; C. B. Cookes, M.A. Pembroke coll. Oxford; T. Gronow, B.A. Brasenose coll. Oxford; C. Grant, S.C.L. St. Peter's coll. Cambridge; B. Powell, M.A. Oriel coll. Oxford.

The Rev. R. Hoblyn, M.A. rector of St. Leonard's and All Saints parishes, Colchester, has resigned the former living, and has been instituted to the rectory of St. Lawrence, Newland, Essex, void by the death of the Rev. T. Barslow; on the presentation of the Lord

The Rev. T. Mills, one of His Majesty's Chaplains in Ordinary, was last week instituted (by the Lord Bishop of London) to the rectory of Little Henny, in the county of Essex, on the presenta-tion of Nathaniel Barnadiston, Esq. of the Rye's Lodge, in that parish, void by the resignation of the Rev. T. Wright. The Rev. C. Grant, Student in Civil Law, of St. Peter's college, was last week instituted to the vicaring of West Basham, Norfolk, on the presentation of Mrs. Bilders.

on the presentation of Mrs. Balders.

The Earl of Morley has reduced his rents in Devonshire from 10 to 30 per cent.—General Popham has also reduced his rents in Somersetshire, 25 per cent.; and the Bishop of Peterborough has made a liberal reduction in the rent of the tithes in Sutton and Culton parishes.

The fine of 2001, imposed upon Mr. Hunt, for selling breakfast powder, has been remitted by the Exchequer. Some arrangements are made in the Police Establishment of the Metropolis. The officers are divided into three departments, the horse patrole, the dismounted patrole, and the foot patrole, who are divided into sixteen parties, each consisting of a conductor and four subalterns, and the courts, lanes and alleys in each department are accurately marked out. The dismounted patrole are appointed to guard the roads about London, beyond these are stationed the mounted patrole, who act on the same principle starting at an appointed hour in different directions. They are well acquainted with the different robbers of every description.

The 85th regiment, which has been stationed at Brighton, is about to sail for the Mediterranean.

The Company's Ships Duke of York and Watren Hastings, arrived off Portland on Friday. The Warren Hastings, arrived off Portland on Friday. The Warren Hastings left China the 5th January, and St. Helena the 26th March. The Duke of York left China the 12th January, and St. Helena, the 1st April. The day previous to her leaving St. Helena, the ships General Hewitt, Marchioness of Ely, and Lasy Campbell, arrived there.

A Supplement to the London Gazette was published on Friday. It contains two dispatches from India, the first of which gives the particulars of the operations of the force under the command of the Hon. Col. L. Stanhope, in the province of Okamundel (a pira-tical province of Guzerat) which led to the reduction of the fort of Dwarka. It was a most gallant enterprize, characterized by the judicious and prompt decision of the Commander and considerate judicious and prompt decision of the Communder and considerate humanity in the hour of victory, as well as the skill, discipline, and gallantry evinced by the Officers and troops of every rank and description. The force employed on this occasion was composed of a detachment of artillery, 1st cavalry, one squadron pioneers, one company of his Majesty's 65th regiment, six companies of the 2d and 3d regiments native infantry, and 1st and 5th ditto, ditto. The second dispatch is from Cap'. T. P. Thomson, of the 17th Light Dragoons, and details the circumstances of the unfortunate availability against the Arnhs of Alashbarah in the Gallah of Parsis expedition against the Arabs of Alashkarah, in the Gulph of Persia. The force engaged in this disgraceful affair consisted wholly of mative troops, who could not be brought to measure weapons with the Arabs. The loss of the detachment engaged was necessarily most severe, "as must always be the case," says Capt. Thompson, when troops wait to be attacked with the sword, and then give Lieut, Boswell, 1st battalion 2d regiment, and Captain Thompson himself, were the only ones known to have survived, at the time of writing the dispatch. The Sepoys were deserted, indeed, by two of their Officers, who have been reported to the Adjutant-General at Bombay for trial. The gallant Commander, Capt. Thompson, behaved himself on this distressing occasion in a manner every way worthy of the character of a British Officer; and he speaks in high terms of the conduct of the Imaum of Muscat,

Mr. Alderman Garratt, it is understood, will be one of the new We have been less annoyed by Waithman, during his Sheriffs. shrievally than we expected; his spirit is broken by his failure at the last election, indeed, we believe the story that he intends to stand for Lord Mayor next year, to be wholly groundless.

NEWMARERT FIRST SPRING MEETING, 1821.— Friday, May 11. Mr. Ramsbottom's Shreckhorn, 8st. 8lb. beat Mr. Bouverie's cby Haphazard, 8st. D. M. 100gs h. ft.—6 to 4 on Shreckhorn.— Sweepstakes of 150gs. each, h. ft. T. Y. C. Sir J. Shelley's Ivinihoe, 8st. 7lb.

Mr. Greville's Pacha, 8st. 7lb.

6 to 4 on Ivanboe.

(Third year.)-The Newmarket stakes of 50gs each, h. ft. Colts, 8st. 7lb. Pillies, 8st. 2lb. D. M. Mr. Huster's gr. c. Gustavus Mr. Bouverie's c. Tresillian

3 to 1 agst Gustavus. Sweopstakes of 100gs each, h. ft. 8st. 2lb. Ab. M.

Duke of Grafton's b. f. Zenl. VACCINATION .- In the Report made by the National Vaccine Establishment to the Secretary of State for the Home Department, it is acknowledged that "the pretensions of vaccination to the merit of a perfect and exclusive security in all cases, against small-pox, were admitted at first rather too unre-servedly." This acknowledgment, however, is accompanied with the assurance, that though vaccination does not always prevent small-pox, it never fails to mitigate its severity, and render it less

At the Surrey Sessions, on Saturday se'nnight, H. Footman and S. Bush, a master sweep and his foreman, were found guilty for assaulting a child in their employ, named John Thorp, aged eight years, apprentice to the former, on the 13th March last, at Lumbeth. equence of which Thorp died. They were ordered to be imprisoned for twelve months.

POLICE.

Bow STREET.—On Monday, Mr. Glossopp, proprietor of the Roy at Cobourg Theatre, was charged by Mr. Winston, acting manager of Drury Lane Theatre, with an assault upon his person. In the course of the enquiry into the charge, it appeared that Mr. Glossopp was in attendance on the King at Drury Lane, as Clerk of the Cheque Mr. G.'s servant in the lobby avenue leading to the King's box, called out to some of the great the called the control of the King's box, called out to some of the rervants of the Theatre, "Turn this lamplighter's boy out." The next day Mr. G. demanded an apology from Mr. W. which being refused, he soundly horse-whipped Mr. W. and compelled him to retreat within the doors of the Theutre. Mr. G. was ordered to find bail.

On Thursday, two ragged-looking boys, named Eastman and Green, complained to Mr. Birnie,—Eastman of having been robbed and attacked by several men and women, at a house in Swan Yard, Strand, and robbed of 151., and on his making resistance he was stabbed with a knife in the hand. On investigating the affair, it turned out that the money he complained of being robbed of, was the produce of a watch which Eastman had stolen, who was fully mitted for trial. Green was discharged.

MARLBOROUGH STREET. - Application was made to the Magistrates at this Office for advice, on Monday, by a Kentish farmer from the neighbourhood of Seven Oaks. He stated that his wife to the Elephant and Castle, and from thence to Pimlico, where she is living with a man of the name of George, who lodged in his house lately while he was superintending s. me works in Kent. had seen his frail rib, who refused to return with him to her home and her family of four young children. The husband was fold his remedy was by action for Crim. Con., for such a woman was not worth reclaiming.

The dashing Mrs. Smith, dressed in her usual fashionable style, was re-examined a fourth time, charged with uttering forged notes. A fourth charge was preferred against her by Mrs. Mercer, a libendraper in Goswell-street, where she passed a forged note, and gave her address in Back-lane, Islington. She ordered other articles to be sent her on the following Tuesday, this happening on the 16th of February. It turned out that the prisoner, as usual, had given a false address. She was fully committed to Newgate upon the four charges.

A credulous servant girl applied for relief, she having been defrauded of her last quarter's wages, and the greater part of clothes, by a pretended fortune-teller, to whom she entrusted her money and clothes by way of charm. She knew, however, neither where she resided nor where to find her.

· PROVINCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

BRIDLINGTON.—The workmen employed in preparing a piece of ground on the scite of the old monastery, discovered two coffins of soft white lime-stone; the one contained the remains of the twenty-fifth Prior of that place; on the tomb-stone were inscribed, " Hic jacet Rob Brystoyk quo da prior huj loci qui obilt ano dom iii. nonag iii. cuj acappcietur deus. Amen." The skeleton, at first sight, appeared to be nearly perfect; the hair and part of the serge in which the body had been enclosed are preserved. The other stone was inscribed "Hic jacet Robertus Chardor canonic."

CAMBRIDGE.—A novel Machine, invented by a gentleman of Christ College, was tried last week at Newmarket. In shape it is curist conege, was tree tast week at Newmarket. In sampe it is nearly that of an isosceles triangle, and moves with the broad end forward on four wheels. It has a boom 32 feet long and a very high mast. It will carry 12 persons at the rate of 30 miles an hour. To the axle of the hinder wheels is fixed a rather. It can wind and tack as a vessel at sen, and is capable of being so correctly guided, that the pilot at pleasure can run the wheels over CANTERBURY .- A most brilliant meteor passed over this city, on Monday se'might, from the west to the eastward. Its appearance was exceedingly luminous, it dissolved about mid-air in a number of beautiful corruscations. Its brilliancy, the softness of its light, and the rapidity of its motion, arrested the attention and excited the astonishment of all who witnessed its progress.

CHATHAM.—A poor man of the name of John Letts, who had been a respectable farmer in Essex, was killed last week, in our Lock-yard, by the breaking of the spindle of the crane, which he was oiling at the moment it was raising from a lighter a mooring block of 7 tons 400lb. weight, which falling upon the unfortunate man, he was literally crushed to pieces.

Downpatrick.—On Wednesday, the 9th inst. Col. Matthew Forde was elected Member for the county of Down, without opposition, on the proposal of Edward Southwell Ward, Esq. of Castleward, seconded by Roger Hall, Esq. of Narrow-water. On the motion of Sir Robert Bateson, Bart, seconded by Andrew Nagent, Esq. of Portaferry, the freeholders, previous to separating, unanimously adopted the following Resolution: - "That we deeply lament the great loss we have sustained by the death of our much esteemed and respected Governor of the County, the late Marquis of Loudonderry, whose strict integrity in the performance of his various duties, and whose many and eminent virtues, during his long and con-tant residence in this county, have deservedly endeated his memory to its inhabitants."

EDINBURGH .- On Wednesday, the 9th inst. the Court met for the trial of John M'Pougall and James Menzies, accused of having, off Jutland, in the month of June, 1816, feloniously sunk and detroyed, after having abstracted the cargo, the vessel called the Friends, of Giasgow, by means of boring holes in the bottom of that vessel, and for the purpose of defrauding and prejudicing the underwriters or owners of the vessel or goods. Menzies having failed to appear, was outlawed—The trial lasted until two o'clock on Saturday afternoon, when the Jury returned their verdict Guilty, and M'Dougall was sentenced to transportation for life.

M'Lucklan was then tried, and found guilty of sinking, off the Tuskar, in June last, the Mary, from Glasgow to Gibraltar and Leghorn. He was sentenced to transportation for fourteen years.

EXETER.—An elopement took place in this neighbourhood on Monday se'nnight, which is likely to prove a subject of discussion for the Gentlemen of the Long Robe. The parties are—a Lieutonant in the Navy, and a Lady residing within a few miles of this city; though young in years, both are married, and both have children.—A love attachment, we understand, was early formed between them; but parental authority prevented the wished-for union—the hand of each was shortly afterwards differently bestowed, but with which, it seems the heart did not bear company. The husband of the lady set off on Monday, in a post-chaise and four, accompanies nied by a police officer, in pursuit of the fugitives, but no intelli-gence has yet been received of their having been overtaken. LEEDS.—On Friday se'nnight a most tremendous storm of thun-

LEEDS.—On Friday se'nnight a most tremendous storm of thun-der and lightning passed over Harrowgate. The lightning struck to the ground a boy and two horses, which were waiting at the door of the Hope Inn; the horse on which the boy rode was killed on the spot, the other is not likely to recover; the boy escaped with little injury.

ACCIDENTS, OFFENCES, &c.

A shocking case of hydrophobia occurred lately in the Borough A child about seven years old, son of Mr. Wade, of Red Cross-street, was bit on the 11th of March by a dog as he was on his way to achool; the parents were not informed till two days after that a mad dog had done some mischief in the neighbourhood; a surgeon, on this, was immediately applied to, who cut out the part affected; the wound healed up, and the child appeared to be doing well, but on Friday se'nnight symptoms of bydrophobia appeared and after experiencing the greatest agony the child expired on Monday afternoon.

A melancholy occurrence took place on Saturday, the 12th, at the Crown Inn, Croydon, Surrey. A stranger, who had taken a bed there, put an end to his existence by shooting himself. He is quite unknown to any one in the neighbourhood, and has nothing about him to lead to his name, family, or residence. He is of a gentle-manly appearance, wore powder, about forty years of age, five foet eight inches high, of a fair complexion, sandy hair, and his little finger on his right hand turned back; dressed in a blue coat and pantaloons, and his neck-handkerchief marked M. M.

Last Sunday night, at seven o'clock, an inquest was held before T. Higgs, Esq. Deputy Coroner for Westminster, and acting Coroner for the Duchy of Lancaster, and a Jury of the most respectable inhabitants of the said Duchy, in the Stamping Room in his Majesty's Stamp Office, Somework House, as the held of I marked House on the held of I marked House at the held of Stamp Office, Somerset House, on the body of Leonard Huntingdon, Esq. one of the Chief Clerks in the Lottery Office, and Deputy Receiver-General; a gentleman highly respected, having been em-ployed in the above office more than forty years, who put a period to his existence on Sunday morning, by Cutting his throat. The Jury being sworn, took a view of the corpse, which had not been removed from the spot where he feil. After satisfactory evidence of his disordered mind, the Jury pronounced a verdict—" Died from inflicting several wounds in his throat with a pen-knife, being at the time in a fit of temporary insanity."

An inquest was held a few days since, at the Cross Keys, Longacre, on the body of Mr. Price, who took a bed there on the preceding night. He complained of being unwell during the evening, and requested the landlord to take down his wife's address, lest any thing should bappen to him, which he gave—" Mrs. Price, Reading, Berks." When a person went to call him up to breakfast next day, he was found dead, the body was opened, and the heart was found so much diseased, that it was conjectured he died from natural causes. Verdict—Died by the visitation of God.

Just published, in 3 vols. price 21s.

PRECAUTION; or the MATRIMONIAL BALANCE, a Novel PRECAUTION; or the MATRIMONIAL BALANCE, a Novel.

"I cannot forbear to flat er myself that prudence and henevolence will make marriage happy: bas what can be expected, except disappointment and repentance, from a choice made in the immaturity of youth—without judgment—without foresight—without inquiry after conformity of opinions—rectitude of judgment, or purity of sentiment."—RASSELAS.

Printed for Henry Colburn and Co. Conduit Street.

Just published, 8vo. 7s. 6d.

THE UNIVERSE. A POEM. By the REV. ROBERT
MATURIN, Author of Bertram, &c.

Printed for Henry Colburn and Co. Conduit Street.

Just published, price 5s. 6d.

A NESSAY on DISEASES of THE SKIN, containing Practical Observations on Sulphurcous Fumigations in the Cure of Cutaneous Complaints, with several remarkable cases. By SIR ARTHUR CLARKE,
M.D. Author of an Essay on Bathing; the Mether's Medical Assistant, &c.
&c.—Printed for Henry Colburn and Co. Conduit Street.

Just published, in 3 vols. 21s. a new edition of

Just published, in 3 vols. 21s, a new edition of
THE HERMIT IN LONDON; or, Sketches of English Manners.

"The pleasant through the loop-holes of retreat

"To peep at such a world; to see the stir

"Of the great Babel, and not feel the crowd."—COWPER.
Printed for Henry Colburn and Co. Conduit Street.

Also lately published, by the same Author,
THE HERMIT IN THE COUNTRY, 3 vols. 1bs.

Shortly will be published,

TALY. By LADY MORGAN.

Those who desire copies of this work on the day of publication, are requested to forward their orders immediately to their respective Booksellers.

Printed for Henry Celburn and Co. Conduit Street.

		SHIP N	EWS.
Arrived	Mails	Due	Arrived	Mails	Due
L	Oublin	—		.Malta
	Vaterford			.Prance
	inernsey & Jo			.Hamburgi	1 2
	Iolland			.Flanders .
	ottenburgh.			.Jamaica.	—
	Jehon			St. Thoma	s's

DEAL, May 18.—Wind W.—Canie down from the River, and sailed with the whole of the outward-bound, the John Barry, Dobson, for New South Wales; Cane Grove, Thompson, for St. Vincent's; Elizabeth, Carr, for Berbies; Glatton, Henry, for Honduras; and Integrity transport for Waterford. Arrived and remain, the Euxine, Hason, from Rio Janeiro for Hambro'.

Hambro'.

LYMINGTON, May 18.—The Purser of the Hon. East India Company's ship Warren Mastings. Larkins, landed here last night with dispatches; she sailed from China 7th January, and from St. Helena 26th March. She spoke on 22d January, in the Straits of Sunda, the American ship General Hamilton, from Amsterdam for China, out 104 days; on the 27th of January, in lat. 8 deg. 10 min. 8. long. 104 deg. 19 min. E. the Mary Ann, from Batavia for London; 7th March, in lat. 35 deg. 50 min. S. long. 21 deg. 36 min. E. the Cerberus, from Bengal for London.

Cerberus, from Bengal for London.

PORTSMOUTH, May 8.—Wind N.—Sailed the Rochester, Sutton, for Madras and Bengal; Regent, McDougal, for Berbice: Calypao, Jenkins, for Miramichl; Edgar, Swiney, for Jamaica; Zephyr transport for Cork; Fex and Caroline transports for Plymouth; Hawkesbnry, Hunter, for St, John's, New Brunswick; and Loyalty, Eldridge, for Antigua.

LIVERPOOL, May 17.—Arrived the John Taylor, Atkinson, from Calcatts; sailed 10th January, and from the Sand Heads 22d do. passed Ascension 1st April, and spoke the ship Ben Jonson, of and for London, from the Cape of Good Hope.

PLYMOUTH May 17. With Care.

ston 1st April, and spoke the ship Beu Jonson, of and for Loudon, from the Cape of Good Hope.

PLYMOUTH, May 17.—Wind S.W.—Arrived the Tamar from London for Rio Janeiro. The sloop Fortune, Badcock, from this port for Falmouth, was towed in here this afternoon by a Cowward pilot boat, having carried away her mast off the Loo Island. The wind being easterly the early part of the day, the whole of the outward-bound sailed, except the Dutch ship Franklin. Franklin.

ADVERTISEMENT. continues to prevail, indeed, it may be called an universal fashion the effect of a fine head of hair strikes every beholder with admir ation, and has always been a favorite theme for the artist's pencil, and the poet's muse, and of all modern inventions for displaying it in the most fascinating manner, Atkinson's Curling Fluid has long stood pre-eminent, by applying it after curling the hair, it counteracts the harshness which hot irons produce, makes it soft and glossy as silk, and keeps the curl firm during exercise in duncing or walking, or in dump weather. It also removes the dandriffe, prevents the balr falling off or turning grey, and is perhaps the greatest regenerator of hair in the whole arcana of nature. It is sold by most respectable Perfumers, but as there are some very near imi-tations, the following signature is on the label of the genuine "James Atkinson, 44, Gerrard Street, London."

TURNING LATHES, WORK BENCHES, and TOOLS for general Mechanical Purposes, the whole forming two complete Mechanical Elaboratories, TO BE SOLD, being the Property of a Gentleman residing Abroad. Also a choice Collection of curious FOREIGN WOOD JET, and about 5] Cut. of ELEPHAN'TS' TEBTH.—May be seen from ten till six o'clock, at 96, Pail Mail, where Catalogues, with the prices affixed, may be had. Letters post paid will be attended to.

PROGREMONEMENT of the DBAWEST.

o clock, at 96, Pall Mall, where Catalogues, with the prices affixed, may be had. Letters post pald will be attended to.

POSTPONEMENT of the DRAWING.

and J. SIVEWRIGHT, the Contractors, respectfully acquaint the Public, that the Lerds Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury having deemed it expedient to make new arrangements in the Lottery department at the Stamp Office, have ordered, by their Warrant of the 16th May, 1821, that the Drawing of the State Lettery, which was to have taken place on Thursday, 17th May, should be POSTPONED to MONDAY, 28th May, in order to give proper time for carrying the said arrangements into effect before the Drawing takes place.—On Monday, 28th of May, ALL the 4,007 Prizes must be drawn, including Two Prizes of £21,000, and 100 Chances for gaining Two Prizes of £20,200.—Ticket and Share Chances are now on sale by J. and J. Sivewright, Contractors, 37, Cornhill; 11, Holbors; and 39, Haymarket; where they sold in the Two last Contracts, ALL the £20,000 Prizes! also, 2,053, (Class B) £21,000!

POSTPONEMENT of the LOTTERY.

THE Public is respectfully informed, that in consequence of proposed alterations of importance in the Government Lottery Department at the Stamp Office, which it has been found necessary to carry into effect previous to the Drawing of the Lottery, the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury have been pleased to order, by their Warrant of the 16th inst. that the Drawing, which was to have taken place on the 17th May, shall be POSTPONED to MON DAY, the 28th of May, when all the Capitals of £21,000, and ALL the 4,005 other Prizes must be drawn. Those persons who have not yet availed themselves of the opportunity which the present popular Lottery affords them, of obtaining great Capitals at one-half the usual price of adventure, are lavited to take immediate advantage of this extension of time, which, added to the previous great demand, will inevitally cause a great scarcity of Chances.

The Price remains at the same unprecedentedly low rate of a Whole Ticket place.

Ticket and Share Chances are selling by T. BISH, Stock Broker, No. 4, Combill, and 9, Charing-Cross, who shared and sold in the last Lottery, 2,653, (Class A), 2,888, (Class A), 2,888, (Class B), Three of £21,000111 and several minor Capitals.

育子 The Prices of Stocks are affixed, hourly, against Bish's Office in Cornhill, by which the Public can see the fluctuations.

Cornhill, by which the Public can see the fluctuations.

STRIPE SARSNETS AND OTHER CURIOUS DRESSES.—

SRILEY ever grateful to the Public for their kind support, begs to inform them, that he has on Sale a boundless STOCK of RICH SILKS, WORKED MUSLINS, ROBES, FLOUNCES, TRIMMINGS, &c. at one half their value, viz.: Jamava Crapes, 25s. the Dress; Lapland Cords, 2s. 9d. per Yard; Plain Gros de Naples, 4s. 6d.; Rich Figured, ditto, 4s. 9d.; Imitation China Crapes, 4s.; Figured Taffertas, 3s. 6d.; Poplins and Lustres, 1s. 6d.; Rich ditto, 2s.; Irish ditto, 2s. 6d. and 2s. 9d.; Figured Poplins, 1s. 9d.; Rich Tabhinets, 2s. 2d.; Fire Coloured Bombazeens, 1s. 3d.; Black ditto, 1s. 6d.; Ditto the New French Black, 1s. 9d.; Ditto, Cariously Fine, 2s. and 2s. 2d. Vard Wide Sarsnets, 3s.; Rich Twilled ditto, 4s. 6d.; French Silks, 30s. the Dress; Pelisse Coloths, 3s.6d. per yard; Cachimere Twills, for Ladies Dresses, 6s. 6d. per yard; Seal ditto, 7s. 6d.; Worked Muslin Robes, 3s., 6d.; ditto, very rich, 6s. 6d.; Tucked ditto, 6s. 6d.; elegant Flounce ditto, 15s.; India Worked Muslins, 2s. 4d. per yard; fine Jacconots, 20d. and 2s.; India Table Cloths, two yards and half square, 10s. each; British Muslins, White and Coloured Trimmings, &c. unusually cheap; Velvets, 6s. per yard; very rich ditto, 1ls.; French Silk and Cachimere Shawls, 15s. 6d.; rich Scarfs, 2ls.; Norwich Silk Shawls, 16s.; some exact copies of India, 30s.; Edinburgh ditto, the most superb patterns, Two and Three Guineas each; Emmette Shawls, 2s.; Imitation Seal ditto, 28s.; Calvados ditto, 40s.; real Seal and Braganza Shawls, Polanais Scarfs and Tippets in great variety; Lapland Moss, 20s. per yard; Robes a Neglige; French Flounces ditto, of every new design; Bath Cloaks, 12s. each; Brighton Envelopes, and Tilbury Wraps, 15s. Every fashionable Article for the Season, with a Stock of Linen-drapery and Hoslerve qual to any, five Shops in London; and every kind of Goods taken by the Piece, or Demy Piece, sold at the Wholesale Price. No Patterns cut, or Country O

BY THE KING'S PATENT.

CHANGE of RESIDENCE induces the Patentee to acquaint the Nobility and Gentry, that in consequence of the counterfeits under the same name, he has confined the sale to such respectable houses (osly) who deal in genuine articles. THE PATENT VIOLET SOAP having a decided preference, both as a washing and shaving Soap, for its cleansing, beautifying, softening, and baisamic properties on the skin, that it was in consequence of these inestimable qualities His Majesty granted his Letter Patent. It should invariably be asked for as "Hall's Patent Violet Soap." It is soid in squares at 2s. 6d. and 1s. 6d. and in boxes containing twelve squares, at 25s or twelve small, at 15s.: the shaving cakes, at 2s. 6d. each, or in boxes, 4s. 6d. which are re-uiled, at 2s. 6d. and it is forwarded to all parts of town or country, warranted to arrive safe, by addressing a line by post to the Patentee. Observe his name and signature is on the outside of the wrapper.—J. B. HALL, No. 28, Hadlow-street, Burton Crescent, London. BY THE KING'S PATENT.

No. 28, Hadlow-street, Burton Crescent, London.

ESTABLISHED UPWARDS of TWENTY YEARS for the SALE of IRISH LINEN by the PIECE.

At the Factor's Price, No. 4, on the South Side of Bloomsbury square four doors from the top of Southampton-street, Holborn,

THE IRISH LINEN COMPANY beg leave to announce to the Public, that the above House is their only Establishment in the Country; where they continue to supply the Nobility, Gentry, and the Public with WARRANTED GRASS-BLEACHED LINEN, for Shirts and Sheets, of the best fabric and colour, at a price considerably lower than they can be procured through any other medium.

They also engage to return the Purchase-money should any fault appear. Good trish Bills and Babk of Ireland Notes taken as usual.

Country and Town orders punctually attended to by

JOHN DONOVAN, 4, Bloomsbury-square, London, Agents.

DATENT RCONOMICAL and UNIVERSAL LAMP. This Invention embraces every requisite to render it a domestic comfort in the more general use of Lamps instead of Candles, giving to the Public the choice of an improved light, in which there is perfect safety, at half the expense of Candles. The Chamber or Night Light being universally interesting to all families, and particularly to many professions, may be best appreciated by a fair comparison with others, which are most resorted to, viz, the Rush Light, an old servant, but it must be allowed, a drowsy one, and totally unfit for motion. The wax-wick, stuck upon cork, foating in oil upon water, of more modern date, but must be stationary, subject to the cork catching fire, breaking the glass it floats in, causing a suffocaling smell, consuming much oil, and a constant expense for the wicks. The Patent Economical Chamber Lamp: no expense but for oil, and that only at the rate of a halfpenny for eight or nine hours, giving a brilliant light, always ready at the moment it is wanted, bearing any motion, and can be regulated to burn the longest or shortest night, disappearing in the morning without smoke or smell. The price 10s. in Japan stands, and 20s. in fancy bronze and Imperial metal. The same principle applies, with peculiar advantage, to the larger Lamps, for the dining table and sideboard, upon a handsone scale, saited to the affluent, with elegant pedestals, 55s. to 65s.; and for the study, to write or read by (shambra) they are every thing that can be wished, at 35s. to 45s. and upon a smaller scale, 25s. to 30s. these are universally approved and patronised by Clerical and other Professional Gentleenen in every part of the kingdom, and for all minor uses they are equally desirable. The Grecian Glass Hanging Lamps for the Staircase, Passage, Conservatory, Hall, &c. are perfectly new in taste, and elegantly simple, from 30s. to 75s. the latter upon a lager scale, ip all these Lamps the same perfection exists.—burning the whole evening without trimming, requiring to PATENT ECONOMICAL and UNIVERSAL LAMP. This Inven-

Spermaceti.

N.B. Families or Persons residing in, or Passengers to, the Bast or West Indies, South America, &c. will find these Lamps a valuable acquisition, being calculated to burn Nut Oil as well as Spermaceti.

THE DECIDED ADVANTAGES of inspecting an entirely new Stock of TOWN PRINTED CHINTZ FURNITURES, MGREENS, DIMITIES, &c. and comparing the Patterns and Prices with old Goods, were never made more evident than at the NEW CHINTZ FURNITURE and MOREEN WAREHOUSE, No. 124, Oxford-street, hearly opposite Hanover-square, just opened by MILES and EDWARDS, from the Corner of Great Turnstile, Holborn.

TO ALL WHO VALUE THEIR SIGHT.—The sight of the nged restored, the weak sight strengthened, and the perfect sight leavered to extreme old age, by DIXON's IMPROVED SPECTACLES. In he had only at 93, Newman street, two doors out of Oxford-street, Manufacturer to the late Mr. Bratherry, and since his death has commanced Business at the above place, where the Improved Spectacles can now only be had that is sanctioned by most of the Faoulty, for the benefit of weak and impaired vision.—Please to observe 33, Newman-street, as there are many humble imitations of his Improved Spectacles offered to the Public.

URLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brussels fabric), 174, Strand, near Bomerset House, removed from 302, Strand,—6. F. URLING and CO, beg to inform the Fashionable World, that they have prepared for the Seanon a various and extensive Assertment of their PATENT LACE DRESSES, from four Guineas to one hundred Guineas es 1/2, some of which, from recent improvments, they humbly pressure to companie with the most perfect foreign productions. Also a great variety of Veils, Searfs, Squares, Luces, Nets, &c., of every description. This peculiarly clear and transparent Article lawing, in the higher-ricles, superseded the use of common Lace, which becomes rough and full of fibre on the first washing, the Patentee respectfully apprise the Public, that the latter is frequently starched to conceal its defects, and make it resemble Urling's Lace, which, therefore, can only be relied upon as genuine at their Wholesake and Retail Establishment in Lendon, or of the Country Dealers supplied by them.—Every Article is distinguished by a Seai, with the Patentee's initials, "G. F. U. and Co." and the words, "by the Clate) Queen's authority." Specimess, shewing the superiority of Urling's Lace over common Lace, may be seen in Ackermann's Repository, La Belle Assemblee, and other fashionable works, and may be had gratis, by application, post-paid, to G. F. Urling & Co. Country Dealersampplied upsn the most liberal terms.—Manufactery, Basford, Nettinghamshire. TRLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brussels fabric), 174, PRINCE'S celebrated RUSSIAN OIL is the best Oil for dressing, preserving, and promoting the growth of Hair, and if used constantly, not a Hair will fall off or turn grey; clears the Searf, and keeps the Head and Hair clean, and by using it regularly for a few months, will restere the Hair on the bald part, if the least signs of roots are remaining. Even Medical Gentlemen have published, that Prince's Russia Oil is superior to any Oil for the Hair, and will do, in cases of Baldness and weak Hair, what can possibly be done.

Ask for Prince's Russia Oil, at 4s. the small bottle; or a bottle, containing the quantity of nearly five small ones, at 11s. which is a great saving; or two 11s. bottles for 1l. or a dozen for 5l. which is a still greater saving; and observe "Prince" on the wrapper and seals of each bottle; without, it is not genuine, and cannot answer the purpose.

Sold wholesale, retail, and for exportation, by the sole Proprietor, A. Prince, removed to No. 9, Poland-street, Oxford-street, near the Pantheon. Be particular as to the address, as several have gone to 9, Portland street.—Observe 9, Poland-street, near the Pantheon; and by appointment. Mr. Smyth, Perfumer to his Majesty. New Bond-street; Hendrie and Sons, Perfumers to the King, Titchborne-street; and by most principal Perfumers and Medicine Venders.

[5] Latlies and Gentlemen will be particular, as there are several Hairdressers and others in town and country who sell counterfelts, and say they are genuine. PRINCE'S celebrated RUSSIAN OIL is the best Oil for

MOST IMPORTANT DISCOVERY for CONVULSION and BPILEPTIC PITS, SPASMS, &c.—DR. HADLEY'S CONVULSION POWDER, a certain Remedy for Convulsion Fite in Children, and for all Spasmodic Complaints.

Patronized and sanctioned by Her Grace the Duchees of Rutland Right Hon. Lady Arnherst.
Right Hon. Lady Lismore.
Right Hon. Lady G. Cavendish.
Lady Caroline Lamb.
DR. HADLEY'S POWDERS, although not publicly known, have for many years and and a proud characteristic as a never-failing remedy in the worst cases of Convulsions is Children, or Adults; also Epileptic or Falling Fits, which they completely extirpate; removes the most violent Spasmodic Affections. These Powders are equally efficacions in all climates. Sold in bottles at 4s. 6d. 11s. and 22s. each, by appointment of the Propriet or, by Mr. Sanger, Medicine S'archonse, 150, Oxford-street; Messrs, Barclay and Sons, 95, Fleet-market; Messrs, Newberr and Sons, 45, St. Paul's Church-yard; Edwards, 66. St. Paul's Church-yard; Stradling and Nix, Royal Exchange; Johnstone, Cornhill; Ward, 324, Holborn; and by their appointment by most respectable Medicine Venders in every Town throughout the United Kingdom.

BIRTHS.
On the 15th inst. in Beaument-street, the Lady of Capt. Wm. Fitch Arnold, of a daugnier.

At Truco, on Sunday last, the Lady of Lieut. Colonel John Austin (late of 58th Regt.) Brigadier-General in the service of his Majesty the King of Portugal, of a son.

On Monday last, at Twickenham, the Lady of Capt. Wibraham, R. N. of a on montay tast, at I weetham, the hand of open washada, its Notadaughter.

Wednesday evening at his house in Lincoln's Inn-fields, the Lady of David Pollock, Esq. Barrister-at-law, of a son.
At her father's house, at Craven Cottage, Fulham, on Tuesday last, the lady of the Rev J. H. Randolph, of a son.
On Friday last, the lady of Richard Norris, Esq. of Basing Park, Hants, of a still-born child.

MARRIAGES.

On the 7th inst. the Rev. Br. Geldart, Rector of Kirk-Deighton, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, to Elisa, daughter of the late and sister of the present William Cutifield, Esq. of Bayly's Court, Sussex.

Yesterday, at St. George the Martyr's, Charles Power, Esq. to Frances, third daughter of Nicholas Power. Esq. of Queen-square, Bloomsbury.

Lately, at Quebec, W. C. Langmead, Esq. 78th Regt. brother of J. C. Langmead, Esq. of Derriford, in the County of Devon, to Mary, only daughter of R. Flening. Esc.

At Wolsingham, in the county of Durham, on the 10th May, at an advanced age, the Rev. P. Ionn, head master of the grammar school in that town. His death will be severely felt by his parishioners, to whom he was endeared by his benevokent and affectionate disposition.

On Tuesday, near Bristol, that colchrated musician, Dr. Calcott. In the composition of catches and glees he has long been eminent, but independently of his professional abilities, his general attainments were very extraordinary. He has left a family to inment him, who are all known to the public by their talents in the various departments of the fine arts.

On the same day, John Bonaycastle, Esq. Professor of the Mathematics in the Royal Academy at Woolwich, a man justly celebrated for his singular eminence in his profession.

On Sunday last, at his house in Newton, Norwich, after eight menths severe affliction, in the 72d year, of his age, beloved and lamented hy his family and friends, respected and regretted by all, who, during his long and useful life, had the opportunity of knowing him, William Stevenson, Esq. F.B.A. mywards of 35 years a proprietor of the Norfolk Chrontele.

At the residence of his brother-in-law, Lieut.-Colonel Casement, Military Secretary, Calcutta, Bengal, on the 16th December, 1820, John Dyer, Esq. Superintending Surgeon on that Establishment, regretted by all who knew him, a loss to the public service, and deeply deplored by his family.

At Glanclywedog, Montgomeryshire, on the 14th instant, after a few hours illness, Charles Cole, Esq.

On the 27th April, at Sheal House, in Kintail, at the advanced age of 112 years, Ann M'Rae, widow of Mr. M'Rae, farmer.

PRICES of the PUBLIC FUNDS.
Bank Stock.  3 per Cent. Reduced. 3 per Cent. Consols. 3 per Cent. Consols. Consols for Account. 4 per Cent. Consols. 5 per Cent. Navy. Bank Long Annutities. India Bonds. Exchequer Bills, 2d. Ditto, 24d.	Mon. 2251 731 74 913 109 18 43 p	Tues.  73 74 83 74 83 74 83 109 189 43 P		DS. Thur. Holiday.	2264 734 744 834 742 914	736 3 6 742 3 6 918 2 1092 6 183 6 43 45 par 2 p
Omnium	_		i —	1	_	ı —

LONDON: Printed and Published by R. T. WEAVER, at No. 11, JOHNSON'S COURT, FLEET-STREET, where only Communications to the Editor, (post paid) are received.

TELESDAY O'VARISTINA

" FOR GOD, THE KING, AND THE PEOPLE!"

No. 24.

May 27

ti sol little

He mineral reflectible Bill by committee

SUNDAY, MAY 27, 1821.

Price 7d.

MR. BRAHAM'S NIGHT.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.—TUESDAY, June 12, will be presented an OPERA (not acted these Six Years), entitled, FALSE ALARMS. Edgar Gayland, Mr. Braham: Lady Gayland (first and only time), Miss Wilson; Caroline (first and only time), Miss Wilson; Caroline (first and only time), Madame Vestris; Susan, Miss Povey. In-the course of the Opera the following Songs, &c. will be introduced:—'The Mid Watch,' Said a Smile to a Tear,' a new Song, composed by an Amateur, entitled, 'The Maid of Yarrow,' The Death of Nelson.' Is there a heart?' Several new Songs by Miss Wilson; 'Vive Ie Roi,' Madame Vestris and Mr. Braham; the celebrated Duet from the Opera of Preserpina, Miss Wilson and Madame Vestris; 'Dilitanti Palpiti,' by Mrs. Salmon (who has kindly promised her assistance); the Duet of 'Sweet Echo,' Mrs. Salmon and Miss Povey; 'Roy's Wife,' by Signora and Miss R. Corri (who have kindly offered their assistance); the Duet of 'La ci darem Ia Mano,' by Miss R. Corri and Mr. Braham; and the 'Echo Duet,' from Zuma, hy Miss Corri.—After the Opera, will be presented, THE SØNS OF ANACREON, when the following Pieces will be performed:—The Ofd Anacreontic Song revived, 'To Anacreon in Heaven where he sat in full glee,' by Mr. Braham; Glee, 'Glorious Apollo:' Song, Mr. Horne, Mozart; Glee, 'When shall we three meet again;' Song, Mr. Horne, Mozart; Glee, 'When shall we three meet again;' Song, Mr. Horne, Mozart; Glee, 'When shall we three meet again;' Song, Mr. T. Cooke, Stevenson; Couvivial Glee, (Arst.time), 'Heptchee,' with wine glasses, Obligati; Duet, 'All's Well, Mr. Hers and Ar. Braham; Italian Glee, 'Beviamo tutti tree; Song, Mr. G. Snith (who has kindly offered his assistance), 'The Wolf;' Glee, 'Here's a health to all good lasses;' and Bruce's Address to his Army, 'Soots wha hase wi' Wallace bled, Mr. Braham; the whole to conclude with a favourite Entertainment.—Tickets and places for the Boxes to he had of Mr. Rodwell, at the Theatre; and at Mr. Braham's, 3, Tavistock-square.

NEW MUSIC.—Just publish

Mr. Rodwell, at the Theatre; and at Mr. Braham's, 3, Tavistock-square.

NEW MUSIC.—Just published, by the Royal Harmonic Institution, Lower Saloon, Agyil Rooms, Regent-street,

"THLL me, boy, as deep a draught," Glee, for Four Voices, 5s.

"This is love," Song, 2s. "I wish I neer had seen him," Song, 2s.

"This is love," Song, 2s. "I wish I neer had seen him," Song, 2s.

"I'll love thee still," Song, 2s. all composed by T. Cooke "Give me life's ease," Song, 2s. "What's heauty's love," Song, 2s. "When Anna's gone," Song, 2s. "When Anna's gone," Song, 2s. "Whith eating the celebrated Northamptonshire Peasant, and the Music composed by P. W. Crouch, "Bid me not forget thy smile," Song, 2s. "Forget me not," Song, 2s. composed by W. Knyvett. "I think on thee,"Song, 2s. Second Edition of the celebrated Song of "The Beason," 2s. buth composed by W. H. Awes. "The stilly night," a favourité Scotch Air, arranged for the Harp, Piano Forte, and Flute, by J. B. Cramer, 7s. 6d. "Le Bergerette," an Air, with Variations for the Harp and Flute, 3s. by W. H. Stell. "Al Boscia si faccia conore," arranged as a Rondo for the Piano Forte, with Accompaniments for Violin and Violoncetto, each 5s. A Selection of Handel's favourite Chornsses, arranged as Duets for the Piano Forte, by M. Holder, Mus. Bac. Oxon, each 2s.

MR. MUNDEN'S BENEFIT, AND LAST NIGHT OF HIS ENGAGE

MR. MUNDEN'S BENEFIT, AND LAST NIGHT OF HIS ENGAGE MENT.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE. — On THURSDAY, May 31st, 1821, will be revived (never acted here) Morton's celebrated COMEDY, called SECRETS WORTH KNOWING! or, the Way to set Money. In the course of the Evening, a number of Comic Songs and other Entertainments. To conclude with THE TURNPIKE GATE.

Tickets and Places to be had of Mr. Munden, No. 2, Bernard-street, Russell Square; and of Mr. Rodwell, at the Box-Office.

UNDER AN ESPECIAL PATRONAGE.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.—Miss SMITHSON and Mr. KNIGHT most respectfully inform the Nobility, their Friends, and the Public, that their BENEFIT is appointed for THURSDAY, the 7th of June, 1821; when will be performed Sheridan's celebrated COMEDY of THE RIVALS. Performance Entraordinary; Cremons Playing, by Mr. J. Cooke; Eccentric Singing, by Mr. Harley; Comic Singing, by Mr Knight; Bravura Singing, by Miss Povey; Buffo Singing, by Miss Cubitt; Ballad Singing, by Mrs. Bland; and the Dance of Tempeindere, by Miss Tree. The whole to conclude with a highly popular MELO-DRAMA, not acted these three years, in which Mr. H. Johnstone will (for this night only) sustain his original Character.

Thekets to be had of Mr. Knight, Garden Cottage, Covent Garden Grand Chambers; and of Miss Smithson, 4, New Bond-street. UNDER AN ESPECIAL PATRONAGE.

Tickets to be had of Mr. Knight, Garden Cottage, Covent Garden Grand Chambers; and of Miss Smithson. 4, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC. Sir JOHN STEVENSON.—" 'The Day-beam is over the Sea," the Venetian Boat Song, sung with the most unbounded applause at the London, Bath, and Dublin Concerts; arranged for one, two, or three voices; the words written by J. A. Wade, Baq. the Music composed by the celebrated Sir J. A. Stevenson, Mus. Doc. price 3s. 'This piece, from the richness and the beautiful simplicity of the melody, has already ranked taself among the most admired productions of the day. Blinor's Song, "And caust thou bid my heart forget," from Glenarvon, as sung by Mrs. Ashe at the Bath Concerts with enthusiastic applause; composed by F. J. Klose, price 1s. 6d. This is the third edition. "Dear Harp of Sweet Erin," Ballad; sung by Mr. Leoni Lee, with the greatest applause, at the Theatre Royal, Publin, written by Miss Chapman, composed by Bernard Lee, price 1s. 6d.—London: printed by Phillips and Mayhew, Music sellers to H. R. H. the Duchessa Kent, 17, Old Bond-street.

Just published, in Medium 4to. price 2ss. neatly coloured and half bound, "THE IMPERIAL SCHOOL ATLAS; contuining distinct Maps of the Empires, Kingdoms, and States of the World, with the Boundaries of Europe, as settled by the Treaty of Paris and Congress of Vienna: to which are added, the most useful Maps of Ancient Geography, &c. &c. — By JAMES MILLAR, M.D. Editor of the "Encyclopedia Edineusia," &c. &c. Engraved from original Drawings, made expressly for the Work, by W. and By. Linars, Edinburgh.—Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, Ave Maria-laue, Bendon; and Peter Hill and Co. Edinburgh.

KING'S CONEERT ROOMS, HANOVER-SQUARE.

WALLER Season en the Plan of the Vocal Concerts. The Orchestra of the Grand Scale of former Years) will consist of the entire Vocal Concert Band.

SCHEME of Mr. VAUGHAN'S CONCERT..

SCHEME of Mr. VAUGHAN'S CONCERT., ACT I. Recit. Mr. Vaughan, "Comfort ye."

Recit. Mr. Vaughan, "Comfort ye."

ACT I.

(Messiah) ... Handel.

Air, "Every valley."

Chorus, "And the glory of the Lord."

Chorus, "Bignor Ambrogetti. ... "Cimarosa.

New Grand Concertu, Harp, Mr. Bochsa, composed expressly for this Concert. ... Mozart.

Parourite Trio, Messrs. W. Knyvett, Vaughan, and Bellamy, "Soft Cupid."

accompanied on the Organ by Mr. Greatorex ... ... Mozart.

Sang, Master Smith, "In infancy." ... (Artszerzes) ... Arne.

Yautasia, Grand Piano Forte, Mr. J. B. Cramer ... J. B. Cramer

Secret from the Oratorio of Joshua, Mrs. Salmon and Miss Stephens Handel.

Selection from a Grand Mass, (never publicly performed in this Country.),

The Solo parts by Miss Corri, Messrs. W. Knyvett, Vaughan, and J.B. Sale, Mozart.

Mozart.

Mozart.

**Cheuden's Ode.) Handel. Recit. acc. Miss Stephens, "But bright Cecilla." (Dryden's Ode.) Handel, Afr and Grand Chorus, "As from the power." ... (Dryden's Ode.) Handel, ACT II. Symphony Beethoven.

Song, Miss Stephens, "Bid me discourse." Bishop.
Seena in Idomeneo, "O voto tremendo;" and Grand March Mozart.
Ballad, Mr. Bellamy, "Farewell to the nymph." Cooke.
Glee, for Four Voices, Miss Stephens, Mr. W. Knyvett, Mr. Vaughan, and Mr. J. B. Sale, "Herc awa." "" "" Knyvett
Aria, Mrs. Selmon. "Gratias agimus tibl;" Clarinet Obligato, Mr. Willman, Guelielmi. Bible may be found;—t in Tables; shewing in we found;—t in Tables; shewing in we for Six Voices, and Chorns, "The Red Cross Knight;" with Accompaniments for a full Band, by Mr. Greatorex. Dr. Calcott. Aria, Signora Corri, "Della tromba." Pacitia. Dr. Boyce. Tickets, Half-a-Guines each, to be had of Mr. Vaughan, No. 89, Great Portland-street; atthe Roys! Harmonie Institution; and at the Music Shops of Messre. Birchall and Co. New Bond-street; and Messre. Clementi and Co. Cheapside.—The Doors will be opened at Seven, and the Performance begin and Coloran, No. 149, St. Edinburgh, Dublit, &c.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That on the 14th day of May, 1821, an Order was signed by the Rev. George Gaskin, Doctor of Divinity, and William Wix, Esq. two of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the County of Middlesex, for turning, diverting, and stopping up a certain PUBLIC FOOTPATH within the Parish of Stoke Newington, in the County of Middlesex, called the WILLOW WALK, leading from Coach and Horses Lane, in the Parish of St. Mary, Islington, in the County aforesaid, to the High Road from Newington aforesaid, to London; and that the said Order will be lodged with the Clerk of the Peace for the said County, at the General Quarter Session, of the Peace to be holden at the Sessions House, Clerkenwell-green, in and or the said County, on Monday, the 16th day of July next: And also, that he said Order will, at the said Quarter Sessions, be confirmed and enrolled unless upon an Appeal against the same, to be then made, it be otherwise determined.

ROBERT OLDERSHAW, Junior.

Lower-street, Islington.

POEMS and TRANSLATIONS from SCHILLER.—London:
Printed for Rodwell and Martin, New Bond-atreet.

Printed for Rodwell and Martin, New Bond-street.

Just published, in ito, price 31. 13s. 6d. boards, embellished with numerous Engravings, Vol. II. of "RAVELS in VARIOUS COUNTRIES of the BAST, more particularly PERSIA.—By Sir WILLIAM OUSELEY, LL.D. Private Secretary to his Excellency Sir Gore Ouseley, Bart. K.L.S. His Majesty's Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary at the Court of Persia.—London: Published by Rodwell and Martin, New Bond-street; of whom may be had Vol. I.

be had Vol. I.

BUROPBAN SCENERY.

On the lat of June will be published,

VIEWS IN GERMANY, No. 1, from Drawings made by Capt.
BATTY, in a Tour through that Country in the Year 1820. To be completed in 12 Numbers. Contents:

ULM, Bridge and Walls,
AUGSBURG, Karolinen Stranse.

VIENNA, Church of St. Charles.

The UNTERSBERG, near Salzburg.

The UNTERSBERG, near Salzburg.

London: Printed for Rodwell and Martin, New Bond-street; of whom may be had the following

VIEWS IN EUROPE,

PUBLISHED UNIFORMLY WITH THE FOREGOIMG:

VIEWS IN EUROPE,

PUBLISHED UNIFORMLY WITH THE FOREGOING:

1. ITALY,

From Drawings by Miss BATTY. Complete in 12 Nos. Imperial Svo.

Price 6l, 16s. 6d, roan.

From Drawings by Major COCKBURN. Complete in 12 Nos. Imperial Svo.

Price 6l, 16s. 6d, roan.

III. FRANCE.

Consisting of Views in Paris, and the snort picturesque Parts of France, by Captain BATTY. Imperial 8vo. Nuc. 1 to 9. To be completed in 12 Nos.

IV. SICILY,
From Drawings by Mr. DEWINT, from the Original Sketches of Captain LIGHT. Imperial Sco. Nos. 1 to 3. To be completed in 12 Nos. A few captes of proof impressions of the alove Works, Royal quarto, may yet

NEW POEMS, by a SAILOR.—Iust published, in foolscap, 8vo. price 7s.

I AYS on LAND.—By ISMAEL PITZADAM, formerly an Able Seaman on board the — Frigate.—Also, by the same Author, price 5s. 6d.

2. The HARP of the DESERT, containing the BATTLE of ALGIERS, &c.—Printed for John Warren, Old Bond-street.

THE CORONATION.—Just published in 8vo. price 2s. 6d.

OBSERVATIONS on the PUBLIC LIFE of the KING.—By the Rev. GEORGE CROLY. A.M.—Printed for John Warren, Old Bondstreet; and William Blackwood, Edinburgh

NEW NOVEL.—Just published, in 4 vols. 8vo. price 11 8s. boards.

NEW NOVEL.—Just published, in 4 vofs. 8vo, price Il 8s. boards,
THE SISTERS; a NOVEL.—London: printed for Baldwin, Cradock, and Joy, Paternoster Row.

ON TELESCOPES AND SPECTACLES.
Just published, in one portable volume, neatly printed,
PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS on TELESCOPES, OPERA
GLASSES, and SPECTACLES.—By W. KITCHENER, M.D.—The Third Edition, price 5s. In boards.
We feel persuaded that few persons, who take any pleasure in Astronomical Observations, or need the aid of Spectacles, will remain unprovided with this most useful guide.—Printed for Samuel Bageter, 15, Paternoster-row.

GRERK COMMON PRAVER

GREEK COMMON PRAYER.

Just published, in one very small volume, beautifully printed, price 5s, A GREEK TRANSLATION of the BOOK of COMMON PRAYER.

A GREEK TRANSLATION of the BOOK of COMMON PRAYER.—Printed for Samuel Bagster, No. 15, Paternoster Row. Where may be had, in uniform volumes, price 5s. each, Translations into Latin, German, French, Spanish. Modern Greek, or Italian; or the Eight Volumes in One Set, including the Inglish; price 2l.

THE LAST VOYAGE TO THE ARCTIC REGIONS.

Just published, the 3d Edition, in 1 vol. 8vo. with Maps, &c. price 12s.

A JOURNAL of a VOYAGE of DISCOVERY to the ARCTIC REGIONS, in His Majesty's Ship: Hecla and Griper, under the Command of Capt. Parry.—By ALEXANDER FISHER, Eq. Surgeon to the Hacla.—Printed for Longman, Hurst, Rees, Orme, and Brown, London.

Just published, in 2 vols. 8vo, price 1l. 1s. in boards, the Fourth Edition, of A SERIES of SERMONS, on various Subjects of Doctrine and Practice.—By the Hev. G. MATHEWA. M. Chaplain to the Right Hon. the Earl of Bristol, Alternate Morning Preacker at the Parish Church of St. James's, Westminster, and Vicar of Greenwich.—Printed for F. C. and J. Rivington, No. 3, Waterloo Place, Pall Mall, and 62, 8l. Paul's, Church-yard, Just published, the 2d Edition, price 5s. in beards, of Volume the First, of CRANTER.

Rivington, No. 3. Waterloo Place, Pall Mall, and 82, 8t. Paul's, Church-yard, Just published, the 2d Edition, price 5s. in beards, of Volume the First, of THE VILLAGE PREACHER; a Collection of Short, Plain Sermons; partly original, partly selected, and adapted to village instruction.—By a Clergyman of the Church of England.—Printed for F. C. and J. Rivington, 62, 8t. Paul's Church Yard, and 3, Waterloo Place, Pall Mall. RIVINGTON'S ANNUAL REGISTER. COMMENCING WITH HIS PRESENT MAJESTY'S REIGN.

In the course of the present year will be sublished, in one volume, 8vo.

THE ANNUAL REGISTER; or, a View of the History, Politics, and Literature, for the Year 1820.—A Prospectus of the work will be shortly issued by the Publishers, at 3, Waterloo Place, Pall Mall, and 62, 8t. Paul's Church Yard.

In the press, and will be published next Month, inscribed to the Lord Bishop

St. Paul's Church Yard.

In the press, and will be published next Month, inscribed to the Lord Bishop of Durham, price, is boards, 7s. the Second Edition of SERMONS.—By the late Rev. JOHN BOUCHER, M.A. some Dinne Fellow of Magdaleu College, Oxford, Vicar of Kirk Newton, and Rector of Shaftesbury.—Printed for F. C. and J. Rivington, 62, St. Paul's Church-yard, and 3, Waterloo-place, Pall Mall.

Church-yard, and 3, Waterloo-place, Pall Mall.

In a few days will be published, in Two very large Volumes, 8vo. Inscribed by permission, to the Lord Bishop of London,

THE OLD TESTAMENT, arranged on the basis of Lightfoot's Chronicle, in Historical and Chronological Order, in such manner, that the Books, Chapters, Psalms, Prophecies, &c. may be read as one connected History, in the very Words of the authorized Translation. To the showe will be added, Six Indexes—the First containing an Account of the Periods, Chapters, and Sections into which the Work is divided, with the Passages of Scripture comprised in each;—the Second, in Columns, enabling the Reader to discover in what Part of the Arrangement, and Chapter, or Verse of the Bible may be found;—the Third and Fourth of the Psalms and Prophecies, in Tables; shewing in what Part of the Arrangement, and after what Passage of Scripture every Psalm or Prophecy is inscried; and likewise on what Occasion, and at what Period, they were probably written—with the Authority for their Place in the Airangement;—the Fifth containing the Dates of the Bvents according to Dr. Hales;—and the Sixth a general Index to the Notes.—By the Rev. GEORGE TOWNSEND, M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge.—Loudon: Printed for F. C. and J. Rivington, No. 62, St. Paul's Church-yard, and No. 3, Waterloo-place, Pall Mall: seld also by Rivington and Cochran, No. 149, Strand; and by the Booksellers at Oxford, Cambridge, Edinburgh, Dublin, &c.

LACKINGTON'S CATALOGUE.

Just published, price 2s.

THE FIRST PART of a NEW GENERAL CATALOGUE of BOOKS, in the Ancient and Modern Languages, and in every Claus of Literature, with low prices affixed. By Lackington, Hughes, Harding, Mayor, and Lepard, Finsbury square.

L'As an inducement to large Purchasers, a discount of 10 per Cent. for prompt Payment will be given.

Of L. H. and Co. may be had, just published.

I. ATHENÆ OXONIENSIS: the History of all the Writers and Bishops who have had their Education in the University of Oxford, from the year 1500. To which are added, FASTI OXONIENSIS: or, the Annals of the said University.—First written by ANTHONY A. WOOD, M.A. of Merton College, and now very considerably augmented, in Text and Notes, by the Rev. PHILIP BLISS, B.C. L. Fellow of St. John's College, Oxford, 4 vels. royal 4to. price 15a. 15s.

2. ANNALS of the COINAGE of BRITAIN and its Dependencies, from the earliest period of anthentic History to the Death of George the Third.

—By the Rev. ROGERS RUDING, F.S.A. In five large Volumes 8vo. and one 4to. volume, containing a Series of Coins, extending through a period of 1800 years, including the late issues of Sovereigus and Crown Piecos, price 61.6w. boards.

3. A GENERAL, SYSTEM of NATURE through the three grand Kingdoms of Animals, Vegetables, and Minerals. Translated from Gunethi's and Wildenow's last Editions of the celebrated Systems Natures. By Sir CHARLES LINNE. Amended and enlarged by the Improvements and Discoveries of later Naturalists and Societies, by WILLIAM TURTON, M.D. F.L.S. &c. Seren very large volumes, 8vo. price 51.5s. or with the plates elegantly coloure4. 61.6s.

Just published, elegantly printed, in 2 vols. 8vo. price 51.5s. or with the Places where the preposed Communication with the Two Oceans can be effected.—

MEMOIRS of the MEXICAN REVOLUTION; including a MEMOIRS of the Propress of the Campaigo, and the effected.—

effected.—
MEMOIRS of the MEXICAN REVOLUTION; including a Narrative of the EXPEDITION of GENERAL XAVIER MINA, and Observations on the Practicability of opening a Communication between the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans, and of the vast Importance of such opening to the Commerce of the Civilized World.—By WILLIAM DAVIS RO-and Observations on the Practicability of opening a Communication between the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans, and of the vast Importance of such opening to the Commerce of the Civilized World.—By WILLIAM DAVIS ROBINSON.

BY The Memoirs of the gallant but unfortunate Mina, cannot be read without exciting the deepest interest; independent of which, this work offers entertaining views of the present History, Manners, and Customs of the People of Mexico, and much valuable information connected with the Author's Project of uniting the two Oceans by means of Navigable Canals,—a scheme which, in this age of commercial and political enterprize, has become no longer visionary, but opens an unbounded prospect to the genius and industry of the mercantile world

London: Printed for Lackington, Hughes, Harding, Mavor, and Lepard, Pinsbury-square; of whom may be had, just published, in 2 vols, prize 14s.

2. TRAVELS through ENCHAND, WALES, and SCOTLAND, in the Year 1816—By Dr. S. H. SPIKER, Librarian to his Majesty the King of Prussia, dedicated te the Friends of England.

19 The Author of these Travels was well known to an extensive literary circle during his residence in England, and was as remarkable for the quickness of his observations and the diligence of his inquiries, as for the candour of dis remarks, the urbanity of his manners, and the friehdly disposition he invariably manifested towards this Country.

Holland, By LOUIS BUONAPARTE.

Q This important Historical Work is interapersed with original Letters from, and Anecdotes of, Napoleon, &c.

Various commendatory Criticisms upon it have appeared in Continental Publications; among others, The Hermes, a German Review in high estimation, concludes a long article by "recommending it to the attentive perusal of all lovers of Modern History, as an important and remarkable book, which throws much light on a most eventful period."

The Monthly Review for March last, says, "These volumes form a valuable addition to the historical materials of the age, and they will be perused subjects."

Loxdon: Printed for Lackington, Hughes, Harding, Mavor, and Lepard, Finsbury-square: of whom may be had,
2. A SYSTEM of EDUCATION for the INFANT KING of ROMB, and other FRENCH PRINCES of the BLOOD. Drawn up by the Imperial Council of State, under the personal superintendance of the Emperor Napoleon. Blegautly printed in 8vo. with a fine Portrait, price 8s.

[15] This extraordinary production was found in the Cabinet of Napoleon, at St. Cloud; it is printed with the strictest falelity; and the original MS, may be seen at the Publishers.

may be seen at the Publishers.

THAT COLD BATHING is neither useful nor safe, has long been a doctrine with the Writer; and the recent death of a person of distinction said to have been occasioned thereby, is a proper opportunity to warn against so doubtful and dangerous a practice. That slight indispositions are often made serious disorders, by officious interference, is well described in a Pamphlet now much read and approved, "Advice to Physicians, and their Patients," by a Physician; sold at Fearman's, in Bond street, and all other Booksellers; in page 22 of which there is an infallible mode of ascertaining, not the virtues of various fashlouable medicines, but the miseries they are capable of producing.

ORIENTAL LITERATURE.

Just subblished, in one volume 8vo. price 10s. 6d, in boards.

ORIENTAL LITERATURE.

Just published, in one volume 8vo. price 10s. 6d. in boards,

THE LUTA, IFI HINDEE; or, Hindoostanee Jest Book, containing a choice Collection of Humorous Stories, in the Arabic and Roman Characters.—Edited by W. C. SMYTH, Esq.—Seld by J. M. Richardess, 23, Cornbill, W. Sams, No. I, St. James's Street, and M. Sams, Hoddowska, Herts.

SATURDAY'S GAZETTE, MAY 19.

DIVIDENDS.

May 29, R. R. Ward, Maiden Lane, Battle Bridge, mustard and blue manufacturer.—June 9, W. P. Weise, Tooley Street, Southwark, hat manufacturer.—June 9, A. Richardson, York Street, St. Mary-le bone, and T. Welch, Cleveland Street, builders.—June 12, A. Cheap and A. Loughnan, New Court, Swithin's Lane, merchants.—June 12, T. H. Smith, Chancery Lane, tailor.—June 13, J. Cottin, Broad Street, merchant.—May 26, P. Grose, Commercial Road, victualler.—June 9, J. Mills, Water Lane, Tower Street, wing merchant.—July 2, J. and R. Bradshaw, and J. Winder, Lancaster, merchants.—June 9, G. Backhouse, Kendal, Westmoreland, irsumonger.—June 19, C. Nossiter, Grimsbury, Northamptoushire, tanner.—June 16, E. Waliams, Edmonton, grocer.—June 18 W. Parkia, Nafaferton, Yorkshira, miller.—June 13, R. Walson, Leyland, Lancashire, farmer.—June 20, C. L. Walker, Leeds, worsted spinner.—May 22, J. S. Rains, Wapping Wall, merchant.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTE.

[This Gazette contains a Proclamation, relative to the issuing of Severeigns and Half Severeigns, bearing the Arms and Effigy of His Majority Geo. IV. which are commanded to be received as the current coin of the Realm.]

BANKRUPTCIES SUPERSADED.
HALL, H. and HALL, J. San Wharf, Upper Thames

hants.
PITT, E. Manebester, woolstapler.
BANKRUPTS TUTHILL, C. Mecklenburgh square, merchant.

JACOBS, I. Bristol, glass manufacturer.

JACKSON, J. Halifax, shoe-maker.

WHIFE, H. Gracechurch-street, merchant,

TROLLOPE, H. Reading, linen-draper.

SKINNER, O. Gorleston, Suffolk, gracer.

MASON, J. Manchester, hat-manufacturer.

PETERS, J. and WESTON, F. Bristol, maltaters,

EDWARDS, E. L. Cardigan, linen-draper.

ROWE, of Amen Corner, London, bookseller and printer.

BAKER, G. A. Borough, cheesemenger.

CARBERY, R. and HOWKLL, D. Saint James's Street, Westmingtor, atters.

atiers. ARCHER, J. Ware, Heriford, miller. EDINGTON, J. Lowar Thames Street, stationer. BOLDEN, G. J. Duke fitret, West Smithfield, painter and glopter.

TUESDAY'S GAZETTE.

Commissions signed by the Lord Lieut. of the County of Southampton, and also of the Town of Southampton and County thereof.

F. L. Beckford, Esq. ti. Atherley, Esq. J. S. Moody, Esq. S. Lintott, Esq. T. S. Moody, Esq. to be Deputy Lieutenants.

Commission in the North Somerset Yeomanry Cavalry, signed by the Lord Licut. of the County of Somerset.

J. Nicholls, Gent. to be Lieut. by Brevet.

Commission in the North Derbyshire Yeomanry Cavalry, signed by the Lord Lieut. of the County of Derby.

Cornet J. Gardom to be Lieut. vice J. Swettenham, resigned.

Cornet J. Gardom to be Lient. vice J. Swettenham, resigned.

Erratum in the Gazette of Saturday last.—In the Commissions of Deputy Lientenants for the county of Southampton, for Sir Robert Pole, Bart. read Sir Peter Pole, Bart.

PARTNERSHIPS DISSOLVED.

R. and T. and R. I. Jenks, Fleet Street, looking glass and cabinet manufacturers.—Yarker, Wilkinson, and Yarker, Ulverston, Lancashire, common brewers.—Noakes and Harton, Wadhurst, Sussex, drapers.—Hall and Rostill, Birmingham, manufacturers of tortoise shell goods.—J. and G. Franklin, Rochester, coach masters.—Catterall and Wilding, Poole Side, within Thoraton, Lancashire, spirit merchants.—Muddiman and Thompson, Coventry, ribbon manufacturers.—James B. and John B. Waight, Winchester, common brewers.—Lambert and Phillips, Manchester, to trade.)—W. and J. Leeson, Nottingham, hoslers.—J. P. and I. Hewlett, Parcham, Southampton, brewers.—Saunders and Page, Liverpool, tailors.—Seaton and Tippetis, Bristol, shipwrights.—Millar, Ewing, and Wingate, Glasgow, (no trade.)

BANKRUPTCY ENLARGED.

JONES, W. Handsworth, Staffordshire, farmer.

BANKRUPTCIES SUPERSEDED.

Bristol, shipwrights.—Millar, Ewing, and Wingate, Glasgow, (no trade.)

JONES, W. Handsworth, Staffordshire, farmer.

BANKRUPTCIES SUPERSEDED.

BEEVERS, W. East Ardsley, Yorkshire, farmer.

BLWELL, W. Birmingham, chemist.

BANKRUPTS.

ATKINSON, J. Holme, Westmoreland, manufacturer.

BROWN, A. J. Portsmouth, grocer.

DAY, T. Blackman Street, stock broker.

EASTWOOD, J. Liverpool, haberdasher.

FAIRCHILD, J. L. Thurlby, Lincolnshire, farmer.

FORD, G. S. Great Bush Lane, Cannan Street, wine merchant, PORD, W. Holt, Worcestershire, farmer.

GIBBONS, J. and HIBBERT, R. Great Prescott Street, Goodman's Fields, bricklayers.

HENLEY, J. Sols Row, Hampstead Road, rectitier of spirits.

HUGHES, J. Cheltenham, whine merchant.

IRVING, J. jun. Carlisle, grocer.

JENKS, F. Bromyard, Herefordshire, tauner.

RAMSAY, T. Mark Lane, wine and brandy merchant.

SAVELL, J. Copenhagen Wharf, Limehouse, timber merchant.

SHAW, J. Stratford, Essex, dealer in flour.

STORR, J. Churwell, Yorkshire, clothier.

SMITH, J. Frome, clothier.

TINY, M. Southgate, corn dealer.

WARNEFORD, J. York, grocer.

June 14, T. Bleasdale, Chorley, fronmonger.—June 26, T. Sisley, Isle of Thanet, merchant.—June 14, R. Ainley, Doncaster, silk mercer.—June 14, T. Bleasdale, Chorley, fronmonger.—June 15, J. W. and W. Wilkinson, Blackburn, Lancashire, cotton manufacturers.—June 16, J. M. Master, Norfolk Street, New Road, Mile End Old Town, master mariner.—June 16, T. West, Gracechurch Street, wholesale perfumer.—June 16, W. Fincham, Epping, banker—June 9, L. Moses, Great Prescott Street, merchant.—June 16, W. Scott, Pali Mall, tailor.—June 9, G. Hardisty and J. Cowing, Bedford Court, Covent Garden, woollen drapers—June 30, W. Miles, Oxford Street, linen draper.—June 14, R. Hunt, King's Lynn, tailor.

P. R. Philipps, Carmarthen, druggist.—J. Baggott, Bromyard, Herefordshire, skinner.—W. Ayton, Macclesfield, cotton spinner.—J. Parsons, Long Aere, coach lace manufacturer.—J. Pordham, Bishop Stortford, Herefordshire, skinner.—W. Ayton, Macclesfield, cotton spinne

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

PARIS, May 19 .- We learn, by letters from Bayonne, dated the 12th inst. that the liberaux of Galicia have succeeded in obtaining the arrest of nearly three hundred persons, whom they designate as the most eminent Anti-Constitutionalists of that pro-Amongst them are many Ecclesiastics; it appears that this plan was previously concerted. The persons arrested have been conducted, under an escort, to the prisons of Corunna.

A Roman Journal, of the 3d of May, contains the following, under the head of Ancona, April 24:—" The latest news from Epirus states that the famous Ali Pacha of Janina has been killed hy his Secretary.'

PARIS, May 20.—Yesterday, died, the Marshal Duke de Coigny Peer of France, Governor of the Invalides and Fontainebleau.— M. Camille Jordan, Member of the Chamber of Deputies, who has long suffered from a grievous complaint in the stomach, died last FRANKFORT, May 15 .- The most recent intelligence respecting the Greek Insurgents, continues to be very interesting. Numerous detachments of Greeks continually arrive in Moldavia and Walladetachments of Greeks continually arrive in monavia and water chia, and augment the force under the command of Prince Ypsi-lanti. This chief is abundantly provided with money, and pays his soldiers largely. The privates receive monthly 24 francs each, and the officers 500. At Bucharest, he was joined by upwards of a thousand young Greeks, relatives of wealthy families, principally from Vienna, Buda, and Odessa. It is known that there is among the Insurgents, a certain number of European officers of different States; and even recently, many of the military belonging to the Austrian regiments stationed on the borders of Transylvania, deserted from their corps, and proceeded to Wallachia, some of whom have obtained the rank of officers in the Greek service.—It is asserted that the Porte is about to march an army of 40,000 men against the Insurgents, of which the Pacha of Braila, who has been made Seraskier, will have the chief command. According to general opinion, he does not possess great military talents.

VIENNA, May 9.—According to letters from Laybach, dated the 6th inst. the departure of the Monarchs and their Ministers has been anew deferred for an indefinite term. The motive of this delay is not known; the rumours which are in circulation are too rashly anced to merit repetition here. MADRID. May 8 .- Couriers from the different provinces arrive every moment, and the accounts they bring are not in the least of a pacific character. Insurrection is manifesting itself in various quarters, arrests multiply, and proscription lists circulate. The popular ferment at Carthagena was very great. They demanded the arrest and exile of seventeen persons, amongst whom were the Judge of the Preliminary Court, the Governor of the Province the Treasurer of Finance; the others were principally Ecclesias-tics and Navat Officers. At Algesiras, the exile of various persons was called for; eleven of whom were arrested and put into solitary

Extract of a letter from Rome :- "Some remarkable fine statuary and other marble quarries have lately been discovered at Scravazza, in Tascany, much superior to any thing of the kind at Carram, which threatens to rival und lower the pride of the lattermentioned place. His Royal Highness the Grand Duke of Tuscany gives great encouragement and protection both to commerce and the fine arts within his dominions."

The town of Zurich was thrown into the greatest distress on the 7th instant, by a deplorable event. A company, consisting of sixteen married and single ladies, embarked on the Liamath, to proceed to Dictition, a neighbouring village, for the purpose of admi-mistering comfort, and contributing their mite to the subscription for the benefit of the sufferers in the fate destructive fire, which consumed nearly the whole village. An impredent young man amused himself with rocking the boat to and fro; this so alarmed the ladies, that they clung to each other, and in the confusion, the boat upset, and fifteen were drowned.

THE PLAGUE. - Extract of a letter from Malta, dated March 29. -" On the 19th inst. arrived the Maltese brig Castanza, Lupini, with a cargo of beans, from Alexandria in 22 days; the crew consisted of 14 persons, besides 11 passengers. Three days after leaving Alexandria, one of the passengers, a Maltese woman, was attacked by the plague, and died; her child also died 15 days after; soon after a Maltese boy also died; and another person died since the arrival of the vessel here. Five others have also been attacked with the plague. The remainder of the passengers and crew are landed in the Lazaretto without any symptoms of infection.—The vesse has been cleared of every susceptible article which has been burnt The Captain's cabin, &c. have been whitewashed, and a fresh crew put on board. The cargo is still on board and will be landed in the magazines of the Lazaretto after a certain time is allowed to ascertain whether any new case of infection appears. Every pre-caution which prodence and past experience suggest will be adopted."

The latest news from the Brazils by the way of France, in letters, from Bahia, is of so recent a date as the 3d April. It s that the greatest tranquillity prevailed in that place and throughout all the northern provinces. Great rejoicings took place on its being ascertained at Babia that the King and the people, at Rio Janeiro, had joined the Revolution, as it was suspected that naval and military forces would have been dispatched from thence, to oppose the late innovations. At Bahia, the number of regular troops amounted to 3,000 men, and the militia to about 10,000, and all had declared in favour of the new order of things.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS. MONDAY.

The House went into a Committee on the Grampound Disfranchisement Bill.

The Earl of Liverpool moved to postpone the preamble of the Bill. The first enactment of the Bill, which provided that Grampound should cease to elect Members to Parliament, entirely met his concurrence.

The Lord Chancellor could never consent to deprive a number of innecent electors of their rights; and therefore moved, that the words which declared that the Borough of Grampound should cease to elect Members, he left out of the Bill. He proposed to extend the franchise to the adjoining hundred, in common with those electors not convicted of bribery.

Lord Erskine considered the Bill, not as a Bill of Pains and Penalties, but one intended to purify the Constitution.

Lord Sidmouth would not consent to any Bill which went to punish persons not convicted of crimes. He would recommend a proceeding similar to that adopted in the Aylesbury, Shoreham, and Cricklade cases, viz. extending the franchise to the adjoining districts.

The Earl of Harrowby was disposed to support the Bill, on account of corruption having been the practice of the voters.

The Earl of Westmortand conceived it was grossly unjust to confound the innocent with the guilty. The Bill, in his opinion, went on a principle which justified every species of innovation.

Lord Melville thought that the Bill would not inflict an unjust punishment.

Lord Redesdale opposed the Bill, as being founded on a revolutionary principle.

The Earl of Liverpool contended that the views which his Noble and Learned Friend took of the Bill were erroneous. It went to remove a specific grievance. As to punishing the innocent with the guilty, that was done at the revolution; for the innocent de-scendants of James the Second were punished for the public good. Where a trust held for the public good was abused, it became ne cessary to take it away from the persons holding it. He thought to throw the right of voting into the hundred, would be more objectionable than the plan proposed by this Bill.

The Marquis of Lansdown supported the Bill, as protecting the system of representation. He highly approved of that provision which removed the franchise to a place where corruption was not likely to exist.

Earl Bathurst and the Earl of Lauderdale opposed the Bill. The Earl of Carnarvon supported it.

Marquis of Camden supported the Amendment.

The House then divided on the question for leaving out the words as proposed by the Lord Chancellor.—For the amendment, 26—For the original clause, 60-Majority, 34.

The Earl of Liverpool saw no reason why the right of election should be transferred to Leeds: he should propose, instead, that two more Members be added to the County of York, by transferring the right from Grampound to that county. The Noble Earl concluded with moving a clause to that effect.

The Earl of Harewood was of opinion that great inconvenience and heavy expence to Candidates would arise in the county of York from the proposed addition of two Members.

The Marquis of Lansdown thought the inconvenience would be emoved by the two additional Members representing the West Riding of the county of York.

Earl Fitzwillium declared that the addition of two Members would be a great inconvenience. At the same time, he could not accede to the proposition of dividing the county into two countles. With respect to transferring the right to Leeds, or any other great town, he had no objection

Lord Rederdale thought it would be better to divide the county of York.

The proposition for adding two Members to the county of York was then carried.—Adjourned.

TUESDAY.

he Irish Gaol Fees, and the Irish Law Courts Bills, were passed. On the Report of the Grampound Disfranchisement Bill, some conversation arose between the Eurl of Lauderdale, the Lord Chancellor, Earl Fitzwilliam, the Earl of Liverpool, &c. on the transfer of the right of voting to the county of York. The Lord Chancellor said, he would wait to see whether the county of York liked this Bill or not .- The Report was agreed to.

On the question for going into a Committee on the Timber Duties

Earl Bathurst adverted to the circumstance which gave rise to the present Bill. In 1609, we were excluded from any trade with thought necessary to encourage our own lonies, and additional duties were laid on timber imported from the Continent; these duties expired in 1820, and then it became necessary to give notice of new arrangements: the effect of the notice that very large quantities of timber were imported in 1817. into England; in the whole, amounting to 333,000 loads; whereas the quantity imported during the last year, was only 77,900 loads. and subsequently, still greater importations took place, and yet there was no increase of demand. It was admitted on all hands, that some protection ought to be given to the Colonies, on account of the exertions that had been made to export timber from the Continent. It was not to be understood that the imperative duty at present laid on was to be a permanent arrangement. He then moved, &c.

The Earl of Lauderdale observed, that it had been a subject of complaint, that the people of this country had a bad article forced upon them at a low price, in consequence of the discouragement held out to the trade from the Baltic, which had effected our exports to that quarter. He quoted the opinion of Sir R. Seppings, who thought that ships built of American fir did not last half so long as those built of Norway fir; and besides, they were generally affected by the dry rot. He moved "that the Bill be committed this day six months."

Lord Ellenborough considered the present measure a Bill for introducing the dry rot into every building in this country.

Lord King regretted that the Bill should have been introduced.

The Earl of Liverpool contended, that the Bill placed the trade on a more advantageous footing than before; it reduced the duty on Baltic timber. It was the principle of this country to give protection to its Colonial industry, which was at least an intelligible principle, but he could not understand that principle which afforded protection to the industry of a foreign country.

After some observations from the Marquis of Lansdown, and Earl Bathurst, the amendment of the Earl of Lauderdale was negatived, and the Bill went through the Committee.—Adjourned.

The Timber Duties Bill was passed.
THURSDAY. WEDNESDAY.

The Strathmore Peerage was further postponed till Monday.

The Foreign Witnesses Bill was passed.

On the third reading of the Grampound Disfranchisement Bill, the House (after some conversation between the Earls of Carnarron, Liverpool, Harrowby, Harewood, and Westmorland, &c.) divided. Contents, 39-Non-contents, 12-Majority, 27.-The Bill was massed .- Adjourned. FRIDAY.

Mr. Cranstoun was heard at the Bar on the Strathmore Peerage

Bill. Further proceedings on Tuesday.

The Westminster Improvement Bill went through a Committee. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

MONDAY. Mr. T. Wilson presented a petition from the Merchants and Traders of the vicinity of London Bridge, against the London Whers It was laid on the table.

The House then went into a Committee on the Bill.

Mr. T. Wilson wished the Bill to go to a private Committee, as the interests of trade were materially concerned in it.

Mr. C. Calvert denied this to be the fact.

A division was called for, but none took place. Lord W. Bentinck postponed his motion respecting Sicily, till the 6th June. Mr. Ellice presented a petition from several Tide Waiters, who had been dismissed from their situations, praying for relief.

Sir W. Curtis bore testimony to the good conduct of the petitioners. The petition was laid on the table.

General Gascoyne presented a petition from the Inhabitants of Liverpool, against the Bill for building Gaols and Penitentiaries, and complaining of the increase of county rates. The petition was referred to the Committee.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer moved the House to go into a Committee of Supply.

Mr. Creevey called the attention of the House to an item in the Ordnance Estimates, respecting the repairs of the fortifications of Burbadoes, in which a sum of 5,900l. was appropriated for that purpose, which repairs he contended ought to be paid for out of the per Cent. duties. He complained that Gentlemen should come down to the House and vote in favour of a grant of this nature, who obtained yearly pensions out of this very fund. He cited two cases from Hutsell's Reports to shew, that persons having an immediate interest in any question ought not to be allowed to vote. He then moved a Resolution in effect, censuring the application of the sum of 5,000l. for the repairs, until this House is satisfied, that the fund in question, the 44 per Cent duties are inadequate to the purpose.

Sir C. Long said, that the grant referred to by the Hon. Gent.

was a positive grant to the Crown, and in fact approached to the character of its hereditary revenue. Its present application had been recognized by Parliament, during the last century; and, therefore, it was too much for the Hon. Member now to change its application. The Finance Committee of 1797, distinctly stated, that the Crown might apply it for any object, and no lawyer in this Country for the last century had given a contrary opinion.

Sir F. Burdett maintained, that the fund in question, was applied for corrupting the Members of this House, during the last century. It was the duty of Parliament to see it was not misapplied. He should therefore vote for the motion. Mr. Goulburn denied the charge of corrupt application. His Right Hon. Friend had sufficiently answered such a charge.

Mr. Monck supported the motion. The House then divided.—
For the resolution, 58—Against it, 86—Majority, 28.

In a Committee.—On a motion for granting the sum of 94,3461.

for the Staff of the Artillery,

for the Staff of the Artillery,

Mr. Monck rose, and said it would be in the recollection of the House, that 100,0001. were voted last year towards the expenses of the Coronation. The Queen had since that period arrived in this country. He wished, therefore, to put a question or two to Ministers respecting the appearance of her Majesty at the approaching ceremony—first, he would ask whether any provision was made by Ministers for the appearance of the Illustrious Person to whom he had alluded at the Coronation; and succeeding whether those had alluded at the Coronation; and, secondly, whether those arrangements necessary to be made would require any additional expense. He would not believe the rumour out of doors, that no seat was provided for the Queen, and that her name was not even mentioned as connected with the approaching ceremony. Such a rumour was scandalous to the Government. Any vote for this purpose he was sure would be well received by the public if well applied; but if it was only to be used for party purposes, if a feetival of this kind was only to be used for the purpose of degrading the Queen, the money would not be granted with a good will.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer considered the question quite irrelevant, but replied, that it was not intended to ask in the present Session for any additional sum for the expences of the Coron

After some further conversation between Mr. Monck, Mr. Hume, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer,

Mr. Henry Grey Bennett said, as the Right Hon. Gent. had not thought fit to give an answer to the question, it might be repeated when the Speaker was in the Chair, and when the matter of form now interposed would be nugatory. The practice of the House had been, that not a shilling could be voted to the Crown, without is being competent to any Member to bring forward any matter of grey near a this same time. It leads house of the course are small. grievance at the same time. Indeed, heretofore, there things as long notices and motions, for the practice was to take every discussion on the votes of the public money, so that grants and redress of grievances went together. He did not know that this practice might not be revived with dynamage by which, before a shilling of the public money was granted there was a full array displayed of all the grievances of the country. The House of Co mons might then be accused of what James the First charged it with of sending an Oyez ! through the country to collect grievances, but it was to this sort of Oyez! that England owed its hierites.

The Marquis of Londonderry said, that even according to the idea of the Hon. Member as to the proper mode of Parliamentary. proceeding, it would require a great deal of ingenuity to bring the subject respecting which the question had been under the definition of a grievance. He did not know whether it would be called a griev ance that the Queen should not be crowned. However, he should not feel any difficulty in answering the question put to his Right Hon. Friend. It was clear, in point of law, that it required an act of the Crown to enable her Majesty to be crowned. the prerogative could be more clear or undoubted that this. He could also say, that he and the other advisers of the Crown were not prepared to advise the King to take the steps which were necessary before her Majesty could take part in the ceremonial. Hon. Gent. or any other Hon. Member were prepared to revive the dying, or to should rather say, dead embers of the painful contro-versy in which the country was lately involved, they must take on themselves the responsibility of their discretion, or he should rather say of their indiscretion.

Mr. Brougham said, though it was undoubted that any matter of grievance might be with perfect order discussed in a Committee of Supply, he should then abstain from entering at large into the question which had then been discussed. He only begged to protest against being supposed to assent to the principle, that the Queen had not a right to be crowned. That question not being regularly before the House, he did not wish to give an opinion one way or the other. (Here the conversation dropped.)

The Resolution having been again read,

Mr. Hume proposed to reduce the grant by 25,0001. and moved secondingly. He thought no sound reason could be adduced for continuing the same number of Officers on the Staff.

Colonel Hardinge said, the Hop. Member's proposition would go to confirm that unfortunate quality which belonged to the Artillery service—slowness of promotion. He should, therefore, oppose the amendment.—The Committee divided.—For the amendment, 16— Against it, 43-Majority, 27.- The original motion was then

Mr. R. Ward proposed a grant of 17,590l. for the Corps of Artillery drivers consisting of 1,030 men, officers included, and forage for 115 riding horses. Agreed to.

A sum of 8,3771. 4s. 9d. was moved for the pay of the Medical Establishment of the Military Department of the Ordnance.

Mr. Hume proposed to reduce the sum by 3.7781. by which cans they would get rid of the Director-General.—On a division. —For the amendment, 18—For the original motion, 47—Majority, 29.—The original Resolution was then carried.

A sum of 0,8101. 9s. 1d. was proposed to pay the Establishment of Civil Officers, Professors, and Masters of the Royal Military Academy, at Woolwich.

Some conversation ensued on this grant, Mr. Hume proposing to reduce the number of boys at the Academy from 150 to 50, which would save the country 12,000l. The House divided.—For the amendment, 20—Against it, 63—Majority, 43.—The original Resolution was then carried.

Mr. R. Ward then moved to grant a sum of 1,4581. 10s. for fees on the sum of 907,3611, being the amount of the Ordnance Estimates for the year, which after some conversation was agreed to.

Mr. R. Ward next proposed a vote of 39,1241.7s. ld. on account of balances of the extraordinaries remaining over the whole estimate after deducting 232,0001, produced by the sale of old stores.

Mr. Hume went into several minute details to justify himself for objecting generally to voting sums on the bulk.

Mr. R. Ward defended the mode of voting the money, and after some observations from Hon. Members, the Committee divided.—
For the Resolution 99—Against it, 53—Majority, 46.

The Resolution was agreed to, as was one for granting a sum of 11,1321.7s. 4d. for certain items unprovided for in the grunt of

The next Resolution was for a grant of 111,8371. 2s. 10d. for Civil and Military expences of the Ordnance Department in Ireland Mr. Hume opposed the grant as being larger than voted for other efficies in the empire. He moved an amendment to reduce the grant by 4,750l. On this the Committee divided.—For the amendment, 53—Against it, 92—Majority, 39—The Resolution was then

The following sums were then voted: 209,6531.8s. 3d. for Su peramuations, Pensions, Hulf-pay, Allowances, Widows' and Childrens' Pensions on the Ordnance Establishment of Great Britain-11,2791. 11s. 2d. for retired officers of the late Irish Artillery-36,1381. 11s. 3d. for Charitable allowances, Half-pay, &c. to Widows on the Civil Establishment of the Ordnance, (Mr. Hume proposed to reduce this latter sum by 4,7801, which was negatived without a division,) 4,5811. 18s. for Superannuated allowances, Half-pay, Widows' Pensions, &c. for Ireland—1,5061, 17s. ld. for Great Britain, for the like purpose. The House then resumed.—

TUESDAY.

A Ballot was to have taken place for a Committee to inquire into the merits of a petition, complaining of an undue return for Peters-field, but there being only 85 Members present at four o'clock, an field, but there were Adjournment took place.
WEDNESDAY.

Dr. Phillimore brought up the report of the Limerick Election Committee, which stated the right of voting to be in the resident freemen, their eldest sons, in persons who married the daughters of freemen, and persons having served an apprenticeship of seven years to freemen resident within the city. The report was laid on the table.

Mr. Hume gave notice for the 17th of June of a motion res ing the Ionian Islands; also of one for the 12th of June for an humble address to the King, praying for a reduction of the public expenditure, particularly as it regarded the army.

The following are the names of the Petersfield Election Com-action Comparition Com-action Comparition Comparition of the Petersfield Election Com-action Comparition Comparition Com-action Comparition Comparition Com-action Comparition Comparition Com-action Comparition Comparition Com-comparition Comparition Comparition Comparition Comparition Com-comparition Comparition Comparit w. A. Johnstone, W. Holmes, E. S. Cooper, C. Tennyson, T. Wilson, H. Gurney, G. R. Phillips, R. Challoner, W. L. Hughes, G. Cipps, and Lord Folkestone.

On presenting a Petition from Birmingham, praying for a revision of the Criminal Laws,

Mr. Brougham took occasion to offer some observations upon the official proceedings adopted by the King's Attorney and Solicitor General against all persons offending against Church and State.

What he complained of principally, was the association calling itself "the Constitutional Association," which prosecuted for po-Statical offences; which association was supported by a common fund, and without giving to the public a single individual accountable for its acts. A great number of respectable names were on the list of contributors, and to those persons he addressed the language of expostulation only. He would put it to them whether private individuals should or ought to be allowed to proceed against persons libelling the Government of the country. He would rather see offences of this nature prosecuted by the proper officers of the Crown. He did not wish to see offences against religion prosecuted by persons actuated by that spirit peculiar to different sects and forms of worship. On this list appeared the names of not less than forty peers, who must have joined the association unintentionally, and without due consideration. Forty judges of the realm in the last resort joining such an association, could not have reflected on There was not one offence for which this what they were doing. There was not one offence for which this society prosecuted which these peers might not ultimately be called upon to deckle. He should not be surprised to find counter-asso-ciations formed to repel the attacks of the Constitutional Association, but this would afford no remedy, and thus, in a short time, political discussion would be put an end to.

The Petition was laid on the table. Mr. Henry Grey Bennett moved for leave to bring in a Bill for the more effectually preventing the rescue of persons who may commit felony. By the 16th of Geo. II. ch. 21, persons attempting to rescue prisoners charged with felony were punishable with transportation for seven years, but those persons who actually rescued a prisoner, no punishment awaited their crime. There were other defects in the law which required remedy.

The Solicitor-General observed that the Hon. Member had maer ially mistaken the law, as the Act provided that the actual ress a felony. - Leave was given to bring in the Bill.

Mr. Courtenay postponed his motion respecting the American Loyalists till the 6th of June.

Sir J. Mackintosh moved the House to go into a Committee or the Forgery Mitigation Bill.

The Solicitor-General opposed the motion. He thought that the report of the Committee, on which this Bill was founded, took but a very partial view of the subject. Many inaccuracies appeared in that report. It was stated therein, that stealing in dwellinghouses to the amount of 40s. was a capital offence by the law as i now stood. The fact was, there was no law extant in that respect nor was there any law which made it a capital offence to steal in ships and vessels on unvigable rivers. The report also reflected on the character and memory of a venerable Judge, who was represented to have acted in a barsh and cruel manner in the trial of person, convicted at the Essex Assizes of baving cut down some timber, who was executed. It was charged that this man suffered more on account of other crimes of which he had been suspected. That very individual was actually charged under eight other indictments, one being for a burglary; in four of these indictments he was convicted. Now, with respect to the Bill before the House, it went to take away the punishment of death for forgery of description, save that of forging on the Bank of England the Bill therefore applied to forgeries of wills—a crime easily com mitted, and by which families might be stripped of their entire property; again, it applied to the forgery of marriage-settlements crime which went to destroy, not merely the property of families, but to affect the legitimacy and character of its members. It also applied to the forgery of deeds of conveyance of property, and to transfers of stock—cases so very important, and which involved property to a great amount. The law in such cases, he conceived, property to a great amount. The law in such cases, he conceived, ought not to be altered without the House having the strongest reasons before them.—The Hon. and Learned Gent. then stated the law previous to the last enactment on the subject of forgery in the reign of Geo. II. which was passed to prevent the crime, which had greatly increased; since which, down to 1805, various alterations had been made in that particular law. He then noticed the reasonnow adduced for altering the law, which rested principally on the ground that the law, as it at present stands, is ineffectual for the prevention of forgery. He must, however, dissent from such a proposition; for the object of punishment was the prevention of crime Transportation, the punishment intended by this Bill, was not considered in the light of a punishment—it was not regarded with terror, for the criminals sentenced to transportation often bowed to the Judge and thanked him. He concluded with moving

That the Bill be committed this day six months."

Mr. F. Buston admitted that transportation was not considered as any punishment; on the contrary, he was aware that it was a sort of privilege open to as many of the poor subjects of the King as chose to qualify themselves for that transportation by committing an offence of that description. But there was a mode of secondary punishment—the hulks; and though he was not prepared to state that that punishment was in a perfect state, yet he protested against the assertion that imprisonment, with rigid labour and occasional solitary confinement, was not an applicable punishment—it was in fact the punishment that was required.—The Hon. Gent. then went on to reason on the inefficacy of the penal statutes. It appeared from the papers on the table, that there had passed through the prisons of the United Kingdom, in the year 1818, no less a number than 107,000 persons. Was this a proof of the efficiency of the laws? In this metropolis there were not less than from 8 to 10,000 juvenile delinquents, who earned their daily bread by their daily enormities, who lived now indeed by petty pillering, but who in time must rise up into most destructive enomies to the community. Within the last ten years crimes had multiplied three and four-fold. Every foreigner was struck with the enormity of our crimes. In France there were twenty-nine millions of people, with a Police which detected all crimes; in England there were ten millions of people, with a Police which neglected all crimes; yet there were more persons committed to prison in England than in France. He thought that in respect of prevention of crime, the system which had been tried for a century had lasted long enough, for it had not tended to decrease crime. Were our houses safe?—our streets safe?—had crime diminished?—Certainly not. The law of England shewed no unnecessary nicety in the apportionment of punishments. To kill your father, or to catch a rabbit—to destroy the three kingdoms, or to destroy a hop-bine—to kill a gypsey, or to keep company with the said gypsey, the penalty was the same.—The Hon. Gent. then went on to show that seame applies he had to the company with the said gypsey. went on to shew that severe penalties had not the effect contended for by those who were unfriendly to the Bill, and instanced the case of bankruptcy; there had been since the severer penalty of death was adjudged 38,000 bankrupts, and the Lord Chancellor said, it was monstrous to suppose that nine out of ten were not fraudule ones, and yet only three bankrupts had been executed. The same with respect to the Revenue.—He then adverted to the operation of excessive punishments in the reign of Henry VIII. History told them that Monarch had put to death 72,000 persons for robbery, to say nothing of his religious nurders. On an average, Sundays included, six men were executed per day during his reign. Sir T. More expressed his surprise that, after so many thieves had been hanged, so many should remain. In the reign of Elizabeth they greatly increased, so severe were the laws, that the Magistrates could not be induced to put them in force. In a speech to the House of Combe induced to put them in force. In a specia to the riouse of Commons, among other curious matter, that Princess said, "Laws without execution are nothing but pep, ink, and parchment." 500 persons were executed annually, and yet she complained that this number was not sufficient. In the reign of Alfred it was said, "that a child might go from one end of the kingdom to the other with a purse of gold round its neck without any danger;" and it must be recol-lected that Alfred abolished all capital punishments except for treason. The Danish kings persevered in the mildest system of punishment, and he read an Ordinance of King Canute, recommending the tenderest respect for the life of man. The most remarkable proselyte to this doctrine was William the Conqueror, represented by the historians as of a most rapacious and cruel disposition—as caring but little for the lives of his subjects, but that "he loved the tall stags as if he had been their father." Yet this bloody-minded man concluded his two Codes of Laws with these remarkable expressions: "and I further declare, that no man is to be put to death in England for any crime whatever." In favour of this doctrine he had Coke, Blackstone, and Spelman. He was warranted then, in denying that the present system had any antiquity in it. He begged to remind the House that all their enactments passed one silentie, without a word of debate—at least so far as the absence of any thing like discussion in the Parliamentary History of the time could be evidence. He might state the anecdote of Mr. Burke—that he was stopped one night by the serjeant at the door, requesting him to stop in the House, as his presence would only be required a few minutes, the subject being a Bill creating a felony without benefit He could likewise state an anecdote told by Sir W. Meredith, that he saw a gentleman sleeping on a table up stairs, one night, with a clerk beside him, reading something from a parchment. Sir William's attention was caught by the repetition of the words, "and the said person shall be adjudged gullty of death, without benefit of clergy." He inquired, and found that the sleeping gentleman had got leave of the Minister to protect his turning in the country by awarding the number and death to the turnips in the county by awarding the punishment of death to the unfortunate persons who might steal them. The Hon. Gent, then proceeded to notice the anomalies in cases of conviction, and stated ing a pair of leather breeches; the clerk reminded the magistrates that this was a case requiring the penalty of death; upon consulta-tion, and taking the advice of the Lord Chief Boron, they salength scratched out the original words, and brought in the prisoner zuilty of manslaughter! So that there stands upon record the extraordinary conviction of a man for manslaughter for having stolen a sair of leather breeches! Having described at some length on these topics, he concluded by recapitulating his arguments.

. Bright could not agree that capital posishment should be abolished, particularly with respect to the crime of forgery.

Mr. J. Smith defended the conduct of the Committee formed by the bankers, who had always acted with lenity.

Mr. R. Martin supported the motion.

Dr. Lushington observed, in reference to what had been stated by the Solicitor-General, that the forgery of wills was very rare. In his long experience he had known but three charges of the kind. He implored the House to come to the resolution of repressing crime, not by severe and unequal punishment, but by preventing the commission of it, and that was the general feeling throughout

Mr. Nolan observed, that the present was not the time to consider whether the police of the metropolis was adequate to the prevention of crime. The object of all punishment was to deter example, from the commission of crime. Death was the punishment, in the opinion of most persons, most proper for forgeries on the Bank of England; he would therefore ask, why the forgery of other instruments should be considered as deserving less punishment?—Did the Hon. Member for Weymouth (Mr. Buxton) distinguish between the guilt of forgery on the Bank of England and on country Banks? Were the forgeries of the latter to be considered less criminal than the forgeries of the former? He could not agree with those who thought there was an indisposition manifested through the country to prosecute for forgery, on account of the severity of the punishment. And it was his firm conviction, that forgeries were multiplied on account of the number of persons who were allowed to plend to the minor offence. Juries of the country were not guilty of those pious perjuries ascribed to them; and he thanked God that Jurors had it in their power to interpose effectually, when the circumstances of the case required it, by recommending the individual to the mercy of the Crown. The Hon, and Learned Gent, concluded with supporting the amendment of the Solicitor-

Mr. C. Wynne supported the motion for going into a Committee. Mr. Courtenay was of opinion, that in certain cases the penalty of death ought to be removed.

The Marquis of Londonderry conceived the question for the The Marquis of Londonderry conceived the question for the consideration of the House was—ought they to pass this Bill for remitting capital punishments in all cases of forgery, save those of the Bank of England? With respect to Bank of England notes, be did not see why a greater degree of punishment should be inflicted on the forgers of these, than on those of any other negociable securities; for he could not agree in the assertion, that it ever had been compulsory on the public to take Bank of England notes in payment. But he must say, that the great cause of the commission payment. But he must say, that the great cause of the commission of forgery, was the lenity of the Bank in not prosecuting persons for the capital offence, but allowing them to plead guilty to the minor offence, for which the punishment was transportation; and as transportation was admitted not to be a punishment, it must be evident to every body that there was no check whatever at this time to the crime of forgery. His Majesty's Government had repentedly turned its attention to the subject of a secondary punishment, which might tend to the prevention of crimes; and as yet it did not appear that any adequate punishment short of death could be found. In some classes of forgery it might be proper to mitigate punishments; but at a moment when it was declared there could be no secondary punishment of forgery, that surely was not the time to take away the capital punishment; particularly so, when the crime was every day increasing in proportion as the punishment was mitigated. For these reasons be would oppose the proposition then before the House.

Mr. Wilberforce was disposed to think that there was a secondary punishment for capital crime, that of hard labour, to which culprits might be subjected. He supported the motion.

Sir J. Mackintosh was then heard in support of the Bill, and the Attorney-General against it.

On a division, the numbers were, for the Committee, 118—For the Amendment, 74—Majority, 44.

(For continuation of Debates, see page 190.)

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

His Majesty suffered a slight operation on Friday se'nnight, by having a small tumour removed from the head. Mr. Astley Cooper performed the operation with his usual ability, and it was accompanied by no pain or inconvenience.

THE CORONATION.—The preparations for the Coronation are now carrying forward in Westminster Hall with great activity. All the smaller galleries, butteries, pantries, and other erections, are completing, and the fronts of the side galleries are covering with canvass, which is afterwards to be painted with Gothic ornaments. The roof of the Hall is also in a state of forwardness. The old lantern, which was in the centre of the roof, and which was coeval with the building, was taken down a few days since, it was in a deplorable state of decay. A new lantern is immediately to be cted. Even with the galleries in the Hall, platforms are outside, into which doors open from the Hall, so as to afford the necessary facilities of ingress and egress for the female spectators. There will be side-entrances to those platforms in Palace-yard, and elsewhere. The arrangements in Wastminster Abbey are complete, with the exception of the ornamental part, which may be completed in a few weeks.—The Coronation Robes are finished, and were yesterday exhibited to many persons of distinction. No words can convey an adequate idea of their splendour and magnificence.

The Marchioness of Salisbury gave a splendid rout on Wednesday evening, at her house in Arlington-street. The four supper rooms on the ground floor were thrown open, which were most brilliantly illuminated. The company began to arrive soon after-nine o'clock, and by half-past eleven upwards of 400 distinguished. fashionables had assembled.

BIRTH-DAY OF THE PRINCESS OF VITTORIA. Thursday being the anniversary of the birth of the Princess Vittoria, the same was observed at the residence of the Duchess of Kent, in the King's. Palace at Kensington, by morning visits of congratulation to the Royal Duchess and the infant Princess from the Duke and Duchess of Clarence, Princess Augusta, Princess Sophia, Princess Sophia, Matilda, dc. who severally presented the infant Princess with presents on the occasion, with which the beautiful and interesting Princess seemed highly delighted.

The Royal London Militai finished their annual training on Monders Of dismission than Sin C. Manter, their Colonel, ordered day. On dismissing them, Sir C. Hunter, their Colonel, ordered every man a liberal supply of beer to drink the King's health, and the Officers had their last dinner, where loyalty, moderation, and good humour prevailed.

A very extensive failure in the spirit trade took place on Monday in the City. It is feared that the consequences of it will prove very serious, from the large connexions of the parties.

The Board of Excise have issued orders, directing no table beer to be henceforth sold at a higher rate than 18s. per barrel exclusive proceeded to notice the anomalies in cases of conviction, and stated; of duty. Betallers charging more than 14d, per quart are there one of a man indicted before the magistrates at Pevensey for steal. I fore liable to a penalty of 50t,

The Rev. Mr. Buonavita, an Italian Jesuit, seventy years of age full of piety and Christian seal, set off, two years ago, to St. Hehems, for the purpose of administering to the ghostly conforts of his countryman, Buonaparte; but finding his health affected just in the manner a person of his advanced age might expect it to be, by such an imprudent change of habit, for his time of life, had wit enough left to come back to Europe, on board the Orwell, East India ship; and arriving at Gravesend, like all other aliens, who arrive at that place by sea, was provided for on board the alien ship, (a vessel handsomely and commodiquely fitted up for that purpose,) until his rank, quality, and business in this country, was reported at the Alien Office; when, it appearing that his arrival there was only in his way to the Continent, the proper Authorities, to facilitate the ostensible object of his return to Europe, ordered the Alfred cutter to take, and land him on the Continent.—The Chronicle tells this to take, and kind him on the Continent.—The Chronicle tells this pathetic tale in a grieving and lamentable tone; and seems to be at a loss whether the crew are under instructions to scuttle the catter, and drown themselves, together with the old Jesuit, tackle, apparel, and furniture, and all-or not.

In the account of a supposed dinner party which the Queen is said to have given, The Times mentions some names as of persons who were invited. As we are not certain whether those persons actually accepted the disgraceful invitation, we shall delay their exposure till we know if they really went to Cambridge House.

We are requested to state, that the Second Letter from the King sounced for publication in the daily papers, is not from the author of the first. And we are desired by him to state, that nothing but the momentous crisis at which his letter from the King appeared, could justify its publication. That crisis being happily gone by renders a Second Letter highly indecorous.

Amongst other rare and valuable articles which will be submitted to the public on Tuesday next, by Mr. Phillips, at his Rooms, in Bond-street, is a complete and genuine set of the Napoleon medals in bronge. And a series of 150 Sulphur Impressions from the Paris collection of Antique gems; both being very perfect are well worthy the attention of the virtuosa, they are well arranged in elegant cases.

Major Cartwright, the staunch advocate of the liberty of the Press, has actually commenced proceedings against the Editor of the little pamphlet noticed in a former number of John Bull, and influied "The Book of Wonders." It is reported that the old gentleman has expressed his intention of plending his own cause. If so, the public may expect to be amused with a speech of two or three days' length.

This day is published,

BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE. No. L. For

BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE. No. L. For MAY, 1821.

Contents:—I. Vanderdecken's Message Home.—II. Familiar Letter from the Adjutant, containing Projects, Promises, and Imitations.—III. Letter from Dr. Olinthus Petre.—IV. Caroline Matilda, Queen of Denmark.—V. Twilight Musings.—VI. Biblical Sketches. No. IV. The Death of Ahealem. No. V. The Olive Bough. No. VI. Hagar in the Wilderness.—VII. Sketches of Scottish Character. No. VI. Parson Willie: Willie Herdman; Preacher Geordy; Additional Notices of Geordy.—VIII. The Steam-Boat. No. III. Vovage First. (Concluded.) Tale IV.—The Wearful Woman. Tale V. Spittsbergen.—IX. Henry Schultze, and other Poems.—X. On Vulgar Prejudices against Literature.—XI. Campaigns of the British Army at Washington, &c.—XII. The Leafies Tree.—XIII. Translations from the less Pamiliar Latin Classics. No. VI. Prodentius. The Martyrdom of St. Eballa. On a Baptismal Font.—XIV. Mary Queen of Scots.—XV. Manchester poersus: "Mauchester poetry."—XVI. Annals of the Parish; or, the Chronicle of Dalmailing.—XVII. Narrative of the Chinese Embassy to the Chronicle of Dalmailing.—XVII. Narrative of the Chinese Embassy to the Khan of the Tourgouth Tarters.—XVIII. Extract from Herodotus.—XXI. On Parliamentary Reform.—XX. Ripvanwinkle.—XXI. Letter from Rio de Janeiro.—XXII. Lord Byton and Pope.—XXII. Works preparing for Pablication.—XXIV. Monthly List of New Publications.—XXV. Monthly Register, &c.

Printed for T. Cadell and W. Davies, Strand, London; and W. Black.

Register, &c. Printed for T. Cadell and W. Davies, Strand, London; and W. Black wood. 17, Prince's street, Edinburgh.

PRESENT FOR A NEW MARRIED LADY.
Just published, price 5s. 6d. a New Edition of

GUIDE to MATRIMONIAL HAPPINESS, in a Series of Letters, written by a Lady of Distinction to her Relation, shortly after her marriage.
Contents: Of the Disposition of a Wife.—Disposition of a Husband.—

CONTENTS: Of the Disposition of a Wife.—Disposition of a Husband.—
Visitors of Ceremony.—Intimate Acquaintances.—Continuance of Affection.

—Weakness of Temper.—Disputes which arise on Trivial Occasions.—Absolute Quarreis.—Fickleness of Disposition.—On Confidence and Secrets.—
Natural Imperfections.—Agreement of Thoughts in the Concerns of Life.—
General Behaviour and Deportment.—Conformity of Tempers and Sentiments.—Of being in Public and in Private in the presence of a Husband.

—On the Management of Conversation.—Of the Management of Sentiments.—Conformity of Tempers and Sentiments.—Of the Management of Conversation.—Of the Management of Conversation.—Of the Management of Sentiments.

Ac. &c. Printed for Henry Colburn and Co. Conduit-street.

Just published, price 7s. 6d.

PRACTICAL ECONOMY; or, the Application of Modern Discoveries fo the purposes of Domestic Life.—Also new Editions of the following useful Works:

2. ART of PRESERVING the SIGHT, 5s. 6d.

3. ART of PRESERVING the PEET, 5s. 6d.

4. ART of FRENCH CONVERSATION By Boileau, 4s. 6d.

5. The FLORIST'S MANUAL, or Hints for the Construction of a Gay
Flower Garden, with Plans, 4s. 6d.

6. The MOTHER'S MEDICAL ASSISTANT. By Sir Arthur Clarke,
M.D. 4s. 6d. Also, by the same Author,

7. ESSAY on DISEASES of the SKIN, 5s. 6d.

8. ESSAY on BATHING, 5th Edition, 5s. 6d.

9. The PHILOSOPHY of LIFE. By Sir C. Morgan, 12s.

10. GUIDE to MATRIMONIAL HAPPINESS, 5s. 6d.

11. PRIVATE EDUCATION, or a Practical Plan for the Studies of Yeang Ladies, by Miss Appleton, 7s. 6d.

12. NEW LETTERS of the Great Lord CHESTERFIELD, 5s.

(Printed for Henry Celburn and Co. Conduit-street, and retailed by all

Printed for Henry Celburn and Co. Conduit-street, and retailed by all

MR. HAYDON'S PICTURE of CHRIST'S AGONY in the GARDEN, with Solomon, Macbeth, Dentatus, Romeo and Juliet, his Drawings from Bilgin Marbles and from Nature, and the Drawings of his PUPILS from the Cartoons, with some of THEIR FIRST ATTEMPTS in PAIN'TING, are NOW OPEN at the Gallery next deer to the British Institution, Pall Mail, from 10 till dusk.—Admittance, is. Catalogues, 6d.

THEATRE ROYAL, COVENT-GARDEN.

nday, A New Tragedy, called Damon and Pythias. Tuesday, Henry

o. Thursday, The Honey Moon.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE. Monday, A Bold Stroke for a Husband. Tuesday, The Road to Ruin. Colnesday, A New Serious Opera, called Direc. Thursday, Secrets Worth

A Monday's Edition, containing the latest News, the Stock List, the London Markets, and the State of the Country Markets by that morning's post, is published at Three o'clock.

PRICE OF STOCKS AT THE CLOSE VESTERDAY

PRICE OF STOCKS AT THE CLOSE YESTERDAY.

During the past week considerable purchases have been effected in the Punds, and a considerable rise has taken place; indeed, the increase, towards the latter part of the week, has been greater than might have been anticipated by those most interested in a rise. This is probably owing to the present favourable state of the Continent, and no loan being wanted by our dovernment; added to which, we may be allowed to notice the favourable statements lately received from the manufacturing districts; and it is asserted by many well-informed persons that Cossols will, ere long, reach 80. Thursday was Account-day, and the day following Pay-day, but both passed off without any defaulter. The Continental securities are also improving, and, by the ascaunts from Paris, we learn that the French 5 per Cents, have been done as high as 83. 99. Consols opened yesterday morning at 75; for Money, and 75; for the Account; shortly after they opened they reached 754 for Money, and 755 for the Account, with every prospect of a further improvement.

Reduced Ann... 742 5 4 1 Navy 5 per cent ... 1104 9 1

FRENCH FUNDS

5 perct. Div. 21 Mey $41-641 | Bank St. Div. 21 Mey Recon. Div. 21 May | Ex. Lend. 25-65

NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Bocton Thompson, wheever he may be, is an ass.
We personally knew Joseph Humn's Fir-Fir, who was dressed up as a boy. By non did the same thing, which only proves that a clever man and a blockhtad may take pleasure in similar

A THEBAN is quite right about the green bottle upon the Queen's table.

Montmorence's story of Silly Billy and the water-pipes at Versaillas is genuine. He did not know any thing about expansion:—how should he? Whether he is likely to get any information on the subject in Bryanstone-street we cannot say. If he does not it will not be for want of application.

The Ode by Robert Gordon in a passion, signed "BOMBARTES FURIOSA," is rather too broad.

The Letter from Sir J. M.'s friend shall be attended to. confess, considering his present standing in life, it is right to pause before we publish R. D.'s valuable Letter and enclosures, for which, however, we here offer our thanks.

We will let VERAX stand over for another week. The story of Sir Ronald Pergusson and the Chambermaid shall be looked after. Three shillings and threrpence-halfpenny appears rather too little; but, to be sure, there is no knowing he is such a follow.

KITTY is a wag. The shortest way for the "Loven or Truth" is to give the little corcomb a horse-whipping. We beg he will not spare him on our account.

The Indian is received. Any further communication with that subject will be welcome.

We wish VRRITAS would send us the name of the town or village where the very creditable occurrence he mentions took place. We should be sorry to lose the friendship of a LOYAL BRITON but we have mude it a rule not to notice the attacks of any such Papers; their object is to be noticed—we defeat by neglecting

The "Shower of Snow" eame too late, though, from the state of the thermometer, it might have been looked for earlier in the

We never received the remarks S. P. V. mentions. C. O. S. M. in our next.

Our numerous other friends must excuse our not mentioning them separately

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, MAY 27.

WE very seldom notice any thing our contemporaries say except to expose their fallacy and inconsistency, but upon that principle the leading article in the Old Times newspaper of Tuesday last calls for a few remarks.

The subject of that article is the approaching CORONA-TION, upon which the Old Times descants exactly in the tone one might expect, but it is so very unfortunate in its illustrations, that we really think it had better give up the Queen as a " bad joh."

"Whatever part the Queen takes upon this occasion, she is sure to be abused; she has no doubt upon that subject-a Paper is set up on purpose to abuse her, and abused she must be," so says the Old Times. Now WE are the Paper set up on purpose to abuse her; but it is a great consolation to know, under the circumstances, that if there be a Paper set up to abuse her, there is another Paper hired to praise her, so that it will be only affording sport to the bye-standers, and a fine field for the literary disportings of the rival champions.

"The Queen possesses a clear judgment (according to Brougham, only in the morning) "and undaunted courage either to act or suffer." What is courage in one woman is impudence in another; and as for her capacity for acting and suffering, we have no proof better than her acting Columbine, and suffering Bergami to be her Harlequin, unless, indeed, we except the boldness of going last week to Covent Garden Theatre, after having met with a reception at Drury Lane, which, to a delicate or feeling mind, would have told the dreadful tale of degradation too plainly to need a repetition.

The Old Times then talks what, if it were not the Old Times, we should call nonsense; but nonsense it cannot be, because the Old Times is not only the most widely circulated, but the best, and, in fact, the leading journal in Europe.

Nevertheless it says, "that the considerate part of mankind, whatever course she adopts, will be disposed to acquiesce in the propriety of her decision." Really-they must be very considerate, indeed, and partaking not a little of the disposition of the Old Times' people themselves, who made up their minds in the earliest stage of the business, with a due, and, most probably, valuable consideration.

The Old Times goes on to speak of the delicacy, dignity, and refinement of the King, and says, " that it would un-" questionably not be esteemed delicate, dignified, or re-"fined, if any husband, in a station inferior to his, should " unnecessarily press himself into ceremonies which his wife, from some offence imputed or real, could not partake " with him. A citizen of London, for example, of what-"ever wealth or consideration, would hardly seek the "office of Lord Mayor, if his wife had so demeaned herself "that she could not take the Chair as Lady Mayoress; "and men have been known to refuse the honour of the " Pecrage, because the partners of their bods, and the mothers of their children were not in a condition to par-" ticipate in the honour."

We do not pretend to enter into the feelings of such exalted personages, as Lord Mayors—but it is very certain, that many of those men who have most distinguished themselves in that illustrious station, have not shared their honours with their wives. Fifty such examples might be quoted—but Wood himself will content us.

How Mrs. Wood "demeaned herself" previously to her husband's election to the Civic Chair, we really do not know; but most certain it is, that she never did act as Lad Mayoress !- it is, therefore, an unfortunate allusion which the Old Times makes; for the important personages cited as examples of such " sweet communion," have very frequently excluded their help-meetes from the Regal dignities of Cornhill, merely from caprice, or because they were perhaps too old, or too fat, or too vulgar, to be presentable, Surely, if to age, fat, and vulgarity, we add profligacy, shame, and dishonour, we may grant, at least, as much privilege to a KING, as is so quietly allowed to Mayors, in cases where, however disagreeable to look at, their wives had nothing stronger against them than their personal appearances.

Now with respect to the allusions to persons who have " refused the Peerage, because the partners of their beds. " and the mothers of their children were not in a condition " to participate in their honours:" it is more unfortunate than the former one.

No wife, the partner of a man's bed, and the mother of his children, could be in a situation not to share in the honours of the Peerage with her husband; but, if the Old Times means to say, that men have refused the Pecrage, because the partners of their beds, and the mothers of their children were not their wives but their concubines; then the Old Times takes up a new ground to argue that, because the Queen is infamous, and not in a condition to be crowned, His Majesty ought, out of compassion, to forego the ccremony of a Coronation.

This is admitting more than the Old Times was in the habit of admitting, during what it calls the "late conflagration;" but it shews, that a little cool reflection has brought the young ladies who conduct that paper to a proper sense of what is due to their own sex.

Our readers will perceive, by the report of the Debates in Parliament, that the Grampound Disfranchisement Bill has passed the Lords, and has been sent down to the Commons with amendments.

If the principle of throwing a disfranchised borough into the neighbouring hundreds is to be departed from, (the policy and justice of which are, in our opinion, very questionable) we clearly think it is much better to give the right to such a county as York than to throw, periodically, the town of Leeds into the confusion and ferment which would naturally attend a popular election there.

We confess, we think the elective franchise more likely to be properly exercised by the freeholders of a county than by the scot and lot people of a large manufacturing

It will be seen that an important alteration is proposed to be made in the punishment of a crime, at present but too prevalent in this country, by means of a Bill brought in by Sir James Mackintosh, to mitigate the severity of the law in regard to forgery.

It is a measure of such doubtful policy, and so dependent upon the state of society, that it is very difficult to come to any satisfactory conclusion on the subject; on the one hand, many persons will be deterred from the commission of the offence by the knowledge of the certainty of the severe punishment attendant upon it, and thus the crime will often be prevented; while on the other hand, that same certainty will have the effect of preventing persons prosecuting offenders, and from the numbers who will thus escape, encouragement is given to the mose daring and confident to commit or even repeat the offence.

We own we are inclined to try the experiment proposed, but entertain great doubts of its success.

Mr. Scarlett's " poor relief" bill is in so crude and unfinished a state, and is likely to undergo so many modifications, that we scarcely feel it ripe for any opinion, except that we are quite convinced that his principle of a maxiis altogether erroneous, and cannot at all times be reduced to practice.

That amount of poor-rates to be raised, which might appear this year amply sufficient, may, from natural and other unforeseen causes, be wholly inapplicable to the state of the poor ten years hence; and we conceive the better mode would be to leave it to the discretion of those who have to pay the rates, the amount necessary for the relief of the poor.

THE KNIGHTS.

WE have, as might be expected, received a letter from each of those Chevaliers sans tache, Messrs. Aldis and Daniels, in which they both do every thing but explain the mysterious manner in which they obtained their titles.

Sir Charles Aldis tells us, that he has been a Mer Royal College of Surgeons for twenty years, and does not think that the three great Quirchs, which appeared at the head of the article concerning him last week, at all applicable to his case.

He states, that he did not marry a Hertford Lady-" that circumstance" (meaning his marriage) "took place not less than forty miles OF that town." We give his own orthography. And he moreover adds, that he never took a liberty with Lord Salisbury's name.

We are bound to believe all this; but if we do so, we felt into the difficulty of discrediting the veracity of half the county of Hertford, and of my Lord Salisbury into the bargain.

Sir Harlequin Daniels is more ridiculous than Sir Charles Aldis; and his Letter is so importinent, as well as stupid, that we subjoin it.

"Charlotte House, Surrey, May 25, 1821.

Sir F. C. Daniel's compliments to the Proprietors of the Bull—has enclosed them the copy of a Letter, which has appeared per paid, although not subject to duty, will give them und for its insertion in their Paper on Sun doubt they will favour Sir Francis with a Paper of the day; at the same time Sir Francis begs their acceptance of the enclosed Me-

The Proprietors will, at their lefsure, send a scale of the prices of the advertisements to Charlotte House, when the same will be laid before the Board on Monday, Wednesday, or Friday."

Having inserted, we proceed to answer it.

The Proprietor and Editor of John Bull, highly flattered by the aftention of Sir Harlequin Daniels, return him their thanks for a very hearty laugh at his Memoir, which really is almost good enough to publish. With respect to the liberal offer which he makes of payment for its insertion, great as is the temptation, they have fortitude enough to resist it.

They beg, at the same time, to decline sending the scale of prices of which Sir Harlequin speaks, because, from the first establishment of John Bull to the present moment, it has been a rule with the Proprietor, for decency's sake, to exclude from its columns all filthy and disgusting advertisements of the nature of those which emanate from the establishment to which Sir Harlequin is attached.

NEWGATE, May 26, 1821.

TO JOHN BULL.

SIR-Among the Clergymen whom, in your last Number, you describe as praying for the Queen by name, I am sur-prised to find myself classed. It is true, you afterwards announce that I have discontinued the practice. But, as such a statement might lead to the conclusion, that there had been a time when I disobeyed the positive injunctions of my superiors in Church and State, and had ceased so to offend, because, happily, the Queen's revolutionary faction can no longer madden the public mind, I beg, as an act of common justice, that you will give publicity to the following statement of facts.

On the first Sunday after the demise of our late beloved and venerable Monarch, and the consequent accession of his present Most Excellent Majesty, I felt myself placed in a di-lemma. The Prince Regent had ceased to be; and so had the Princes of Wales. The one had become King, the other Queen. Upon consulting with my reverend brethren in the neighbourhood, (all of whom entertained the same opinion of the Queen's unfortunate line of conduct as I did myself,) we thought we could not omit the name of the King, who, constitutionally, never dies, and ought to introduce that of the Queen, till we received directions from authority.

This we all did, as number less of our brethren, in various parts of the kingdom, also did. But as soon as the dangerous illness, which at that period threatened the valuable life of our present Gracious Sovereign, was removed, and a Council held to fix the necessary alterations in the Liturgy, we, one and all, scrupulously complied with its injunctions, and have continued to do so, never varying a letter of the order PROM THAT HOUR TO THIS. For the truth of this statement I solemnty pledge my word.—I am, Sir, your obe-dient humble servant, CHARLES JERVIS,

25th May 1821. Minister of Cheltenham

TO JOHN BULL.

DEAR BULL,-Deeply interested, as I am, in your welfare at all times, I feel particularly anxious that your paper should be free from every thing like the shadow of an error, however trivial or unimportant it may appear. I think, therefore, it would be well, if you would correct a mistake which you admitted into your last number, where you state last Thursday to have been the fifty-third birth-day of our delectable Carolina-Columbina. If you consider one moment, you will find it was the fifty-fourth: she was born in 1768; therefore, the first anniversary, in 1769, was her second birth-day. You must be well aware, that at a certain period in the life of a female, the difference of a year on either side is a matter of some importance; I would not, therefore, that any of your numerous readers should be led to suppose that the personage in question is yet a frisky young lass, who has only just completed her fifty-second year; nor can I imagine you would wish to rob her of any of the weight, respectability, and importance, which eught to be inseparably attached to one who has entered on her 54th year.

I am, Sir, your loving friend, May 23, 1661.

TO JOHN BULL.

DEAR JOHN,—I write, because I know it will give you pleasure to learn that the Queen's bubble here has completely burst; and never before did Whiggery stand at so low an ebb in the estimation of the Norfolk public. The Radicals, who were formerly employed by the Whigs, only to do their dirty work, but not admitted into their society, after having fairly bitted and backed their long-cared quondum masters, and exhibited them in all their points and paces, have left them to the ridicule and scorn of all their neighbours. Now the poor animals begin to feel the natural effects of their ahameless prostitution of principles and character. Scarcely any of them affect to talk of the Queen's innocence, or to deny her notorious profligacy. We have, however, two notable exceptions; and I will give you two as notable proofs of the impressions their conduct has made on the minds of those who were once in the habit of knowing them.

You are already acquainted with the violent attachment Pug, the Archdencon of Norwich, conceived for her gracious Majesty, after the King's Ministers would not bid an Irish Deanery for and the stagaries at Brandenburgh House are well known in Norfolk; and it is there also well known, that no man has a more amiable, virtuous, or obedient wife, and that she was forced, contrary to her will and better judgment, to pay a hateful visit to the Queen. Nothing else has occurred during the last year, to alter the opinion the public had formed of

The Clergy, at his visitations, had hitherto considered it a mark of respect due to him to dine with him at the ordimary prepared for the occasion. After the business of the visitation at Norwich, the other day, was over, almost all the Cleagy retired to their own homes, and only five persons sat down to dinner with Pug; one of these was obliged to attend in an official capacity; and two of the remaining four invitation, and for whose dinners the Archdeacon pays. He, expecting a larger company, had "studied a speech of some dozen or sixteen lines;" and determining his labour should not be lost, after having given the King's health in so slovenly a manner, that part of the small company were not aware it had been given at all, rose to eulogize, and propose a bumper to her Majesty. No one but himself drank the toast, and they all very soon left the table—so soon, that another dinner was served up to a large party in the same room. So much

And now a word or two of my Lord Albemarle. This Peer, only a little before the Whig faction "had marked her for their own," said of the Queen, that he hnew she was a bad woman; and that he had received such information concerning her, as would for ever prevent him from sanctioning any address, in which her name should be mentioned with respect. And yet, after all the evidence his Lordship heard in the House of Lords, in addition to his own authentic Whig information, he lately, at one of our public dinners, declared his conviction of her Majesty's innocence. His Lordship never made a declaration which lowered him more in the estimation of both friends and opponents.

I am aware of no other occurrence during the last twelve months, either of a public or private nature, that can have altered men's opinions of him. And yet we read in the public papers, that such is the diminution of respect in that time, that the attendance, the other day, at the celebration of his Lordship's birth-day was " much thinner than usual." And of this scanty number it does not appear there was one real

The Whigs seem to have forsaken the meeting; and we hear of nothing but Radical speakers and Radical sentiments. No one could be found for the chair, but a Baronet of the name of Beevor, just out of his swaddling-clothes, who, with studied disrespect, that would go further if it dared, gave 'The Chief Magistrate of the State!"-" The Queen, with three times three," but (avoiding Lord Albemarle's rock) not a word of her innocence. Afterwards followed "Radical Reform," with all the rest of the cant of the most thoroughpaced Jacobinism. Some of the speakers openly acknowedged themselves Radical Reformers; and the chairman asserted that Lord A. " had at last declared himself a convert to the doctrine of Radical Reform.'

Thin as the company was, no pains had been spared to make it numerous. Last year, Mr. Coke, by way of bribe, invited them en gros, tag-rag, and bob-tail, to his sheep-shearing: and he did the same this year, through my Lord's head toad-eater, who officiated, not only as chief butler, but as chief speaker; and at last, forgetting he had himself traversed every point of the political compass, hickupped out something in praise of consistency. An Irish Barrister was also retained as an orator. He has attended our circuit for many years, but I never heard of his having more than one brief, and that so astonished him, that he did not seem to know the right end of it. For the want of an abler hand, he consented to become Jack at a pinch—and laboured hard in his new vocation. After many attempts, in which his conclusions generally lost sight of his premises, he at last concluded the whole in a most lugubrious strain, or Irish howl; in which he "made a few observations on the diminution of the meeting, putting it to the company present, to consider what would be the feeling of Lord Albemarle, should he be induced to think that the diminution of numbers this year, argued a diminution of respect and esteem. And he concluded by entreating them to bring each man his two or three friends on the next occasion.

If this pathetic appeal—if the good cheer of the Holkham sheep-shearing—and above all, if the observations of John BULL do not stir up the Norfolk Radicals another year, to do more honour to their champion, I shall consider them totally unfit, as Mr. Flanagan says, "to pour vinegar or oil of vitriol into the cup of life."—I am, your humble servant, Norwich, May 22d, 1821.

F. B.

THEATRE.

THE Tempest has been revived at Covent Garden with equivocal success, at which we are not surprised; the system of making Tragedies Operas, and singers actresses, is an abourd one, and only serves to shew how much in the way of combination is required, in these times, to make a house; in this instance, however, the effort has failed, for the audiences have not increased in number at all since this revival, so that getting up The Tempest, even with additional airs, has failed to Raise the Wind.

We should think Macready does not like the part of Prospero, at least it appeared no pleasant task to him to get through it, which he did so carelessly and so quietly that he was nearly inaudible in many parts of the dialogue. Miss Stephens did all she could with music not adapted to her

Emery's Caliban is a powerful performance, and when contrasted with his rich broad Yorkshiremen, places him (on the score of versatility) higher than any actor of the day. But turning from the terrible, what shall we say of Ariel?—That we never saw such an Ariel-Miss Foote looked more beautiful than ever, but the part does not suit her; there is, in the midst of her natural playfulness, a pensiveness (and more of it latterly than usual) which makes her, in parts half serious and half comic, bewitching; but Ariel should be lighter than she made it. Miss Tree should have played it, and probably would have played it had she been in good health; and she would have made more of the songs; and, above all, she would not have worn trowsers, which are as ill suited to a spirit as wings would be to a sailor.

On Thursday, a new farce, called "THE GRAND TOUR, was performed for the first time. It is, we believe, taken from the French, and adapted to the English stage, by Morton, whose last effort at farce writing, the Roland for an Oliver, gave promise of a goodly night's annuement.

Comparisons are invidious, and therefore, the less we say about a Reland for an Oliver the better. The Grand Tour will not rank with it; there is a good deal of bustle and trick about it, but it wants that most striking feature of farcesituation. The dialogue is smart, and in two or three places narrowly escapes being witty. Liston appeared not quite to cotton to the Varnish-maker, who is just the same sort of person as has appeared, under similar circumstances, in every were the preacher and reader, who are always present by special; farce since Liston has been upon the stage; but Jones, always zealous, bustled through his character with his wonted acti-Yates (who has little to do except to play Wall to Jones's Moonshine) was very good in the Frenchman, and Miss Beaumont, a very pretty girl, sang a very ugly song, which the audience (having heard Miss Stephens in the play) -encored.

Upon the whole, however, the farce was successful, and we trust it will be of use to the theatre.

The only novelty which has appeared at Drury Lane is the horse-whipping of Mr. Winston by a Mr. Glossop, who was kind enough, after having belaboured the poor harmless man for half an hour, to insinuate that he should repeat the dose whenever he met him. The cause of quarrel was, that Mr. Winston insinuated that Mr. Glossop was a "lamplighter," which he, being Clerk of the Cheque to the Honourable band of Gentlemen Pensioners, voted by no means according to Hoyle .

The gentleman has since been bound over to keep the Elliston is about to close Drury Lane on the 15th of next month, and re-open it for a summer season. We are ready to admit that a man, paying a large rent for a concern, as Elliston does for Drury-Lane, is quite justified in making as much money as he can; but there certainly is (or rather has been hitherto) a line drawn between winter and summer theatres, and, upon the principle of " live and let live," we cannot but complain of the hardship under which the Hay-market and the Lycoum labour, if a winter theatre is to be open in the summer.

The Haymarket particularly suffers, because at that house the regular drama is acted, and, till now, was acted exclusively during the summer months. The Proprietor has this season spared neither pains nor cost to raise a new and beautiful theatre for the accommodation of the public, and his prospects of remuneration for anxiety and expence, are now to be cut off by this innovation of Drury-Lane, which, if even legal, is surely unjust.

We were unfortunate enough not to be present at Covent Garden on Saturday, when her Majesty graced that place with her presence.

This interesting and important Personage having determined upon sporting her

" Black wig and her character white" at that Playhouse, in hopes of finding the audience more civil than those of the rival Theatre, took a front row in the name of Mrs. James! and came into the house with an order talk of the Order of Saint Caroline, the order of James Brandon has eclipsed it completely. But when she entered, the effect was melancholy; there were almost as few decent females in the house as if it had been publicly announced that she was coming. No notice was taken of her till those who were engaged to come to her aid at half-price got into the gallery, who called out, as usual, QUEEN! QUEEN!

The audience then, to check this discordant yell, called for GOD SAVE THE KING, which was sung, and had the desired effect. "The bagpipe singing i the nose" has not a stronger effect upon some, than this air has upon Carolina Columbina, who made good her retreat amidst the mingled hisses and noises of the company.

It has been reported, and asserted, that upon these occasions the performers substituted this woman's name for that of His Majesty in singing the national anthem. Those who are paid for praising the Queen are quite right to do their duty, but they should not calumniate public servants with unfounded accusations. The Queen's name was NOT substituted for the King's in the song, and, if we know the principles of the Proprietors and Manager of Covent Garden Theatre, is never likely to be.

What! omit a fervent prayer for our Monarch, to sing the praises of Carolina Columbina, alias Mrs. James!-No, no, thank God, we are not come to that yet.

KING'S THEATRE.—The unfortunate Queen has at length met with the last sad proof of her wretched degradation. After having sneaked into the playhouses as Mrs. James, and having been tolerated under a feigned name, she announced publicly her intention of visiting the Opera House for a benefit on Thursday.

When she came no notice whatever was taken of her, and the people, as the Old Times tells us, paid her their "ailenst homage." Some persons, however, dissatisfied with her appearance amongst them, called for "God Save the King, which never fails of acting as an expellent upon such oc-

Some of her low-lived partisans, who blend with their zeal for injured innocence a ravenous desire for watches and snuff-boxes, called out Queen; and one or two noblemen were actually outraged by some of these ruffians; their names, however, have been ascertained by the Police, and they will, of course, be legally punished.

Cold, however, as has been the reception of the Queen at other places, where, as Mrs. James, she ventured to sit amongst decent women; the mortification that neglect and silent contempt gave her must have been light, compared with the pangs which she must have suffered when she heard the cries of "OUT! OUT!" "SHAME! SHAME!" "BE OFF!"
"GET OUT!" which were loudly and unsparingly shouted forth by the husbands and brothers of the respectable females present. That she felt this marked and positive reprobation of her scandalous life, we fully believe, for she got away before the end of the second act of the Opera.

If her Majesty was sufficiently sober when she came to the House to remember what happened while she was in it, she will perceive, that however hirelings, in a one shilling gallery, may be inclined to cheer wantonness, and support, profligacy for pay, that in an assembly of women of virtue and men of honour SHE must not show her face.

Like poor MRS. PIOZZI'S Old Man, she has had her three warnings, and we verily believe (as was the case with him) that the third will carry her off!

LINES, BY LORD BYRON, ADDRESSED TO HIS WIFE ON THE SIXTH ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR MARRIAGE. This day of all bath surely don :

Its worst for me and you; Tis now six years since we were onn, And five since we were TWO.

HOUSE OF COMMONS. (Continued from page 187.) THURSDAY.

Sir J. Graham presented a petition in favour of the Poor Laws Amendment Bill.

Mr. H. Sumner brought up the Report of the Newington Select Vestry Bill, which prayed that the petitions for and against the Bill might be allowed to be withdrawn.—Agreed to, and leave was given also to withdraw the Bill.

The House divided, on the motion of Mr. Hume, respecting laying the Minutes of Evidence taken before the Public Wharfs' Committee on the table.—For the motion, 13—Against it, 64—Majori-1y against the motion, 51.

Mr. Creevey submitted some resolutions to the House on the subject of the 41 per Cent. Duties; the object which he had in view was, that no further pensions should be granted from these funds, and to refer the Colonial Acts of the Leeward Islands to a Select Committee, that the House might have the opinion of that Committee laid before them.

Mr. Goulburn said, the history of those funds was much misrepresented. In 1820, the net produce of the 41 per Cent. Duties was 25,5001, and of that sum 15,6501, was applied to purposes strictly colonial. The fund was given by the colonists in lieu of a poll tax, and other taxes that prevailed in the island. He moved the previous question.

Mr. Bernal, Mr. Bennett, and Mr Hume supported the motion Sir C. Long observed that this fund was not included in Mr. Burke's Bill for regulating the Civil List.

The House divided—For the previous question, 76—Against it, 2—Majority against Mr. Creevey's motion, 24.

Mr. Chetwynd obtained leave to bring in a Bill to amend the laws relating to the Apprehension, Punishment, and Passing of Vagrants. It was stated by the Committee on the subject, that the mere passing of vagrants from one parish to another stood the country in not less than 100,0001, per annum. Great abuses prevailed under the present system, as an instance of which a vagrant in the North Riding of Vorkshire, having obtained a pass to Scotland, with the usual allowance of is. per day, prevailed upon the Clerk of the Overseer to sign a pass for a monkey, which with him, and the monkey was actually passed from parish to parish by the name of John Strange. He meant to propose a more extended term of imprisonment, the abolishing of rewards, and to bind over constables to prosecute vagrants, and, lastly, to abolish walking passes.

The Bill was supported by Mr. Scarlett, Mr. F. Lewis, Mr.

Cripps, &c.

The Marquis of Londonderry deprecated discussion at the present

Mr. Scarlett moved the second reading of the Poor Laws' Bill. The present Bill was founded on three principles-first, the compulsory and unlimited provision made for the poor; secondly, the misappropriation of the funds, by administering to the indolent and vicious; and, thirdly, the restrictions imposed on the free circula-tion of labour.—The Hon. and Learned Gent. repeated the argu-ments which he had formerly used in bringing forward the measure. Among the evils, he observed, one was very common among farmers, viz. to give a certain allowance from the poor's rates, say a week to poor men with families, and then to employ them as labourers for the sum of 5s. per week. The law, as it at present stood, gave a direct premium to pauperism. He thought that we ought to come as soon as possible to the principles upon which the statute of Elizabeth was founded.

Major-Gen Wilson objected to the Bill, because it went to abrogate the statute of Elizabeth, which Judge Blackstone bad declared to be founded upon the first principles of civilized society. Mr. F. Lewis supported the motion.

Mr. Benet (of Wiltshire) thought the alteration of the Law of Settlements would be productive of great evils.

Mr. Courtenay was for letting the Bill go to a Committee, yet he thought the measures at this moment not beneficial for the object in view. In future he should be prepared to contend that the poor had a claim, in a moral point of view, upon the country.

Mr. Harbord was of the same opinion. Lord Milton supported the Bill.

The Marquis of Londonderry expressed his satisfaction that the measure had been brought forward. It was desirable that the diffi-Parish Settlement, and clearing it of all ambiguity. This might be done by discussion, which might be managed in a Committee.

The Bill was read a second time, and ordered to be committed.

A division took place on receiving the report of the Metropolis

Mr. Calcraft moved that the Committee should sit that day three months.—Ayes, 34—Nos, 33—Majority, 1—The Bill was lost.—

FRIDAY.

Mr. Williams brought in a Bill for regulating the Votes of Freeholders at Elections. Ordered to be read a second time on Sir M. Cholmondeley brought in a Bill to enable Justices of the Pence to act in certain cases out of their own counties. To be read a second time on Monday.

Sir William Curtis asked the Hon. Member for Surrey, v ther he intended to more for a Committee on the subject of the Orphans' Fund, of which he had given notice. He was anxious that this subject should be brought forward with as little delay as possible, as his character was concerned. The Hon. Member would neet with no opposition; and, therefore, he hoped he would not delay registre the motion. not delay making the motion.

Mr. H. Sumner said, he had delayed bringing the subject forward in consequence of the Hon. Bart.'s indisposition-it was too late now in the Session to bring it forward; but he should do so in the next Session.

Mr. Courtenay brought in a Bill to facilitate the transfer of trusts pon trustees becoming lunatics. To be read a second time on Monday.

The Land Revenue Bill was passed.

A Petition was presented by Mr. Henry Grey Bennett from a person named Trimmer, complaining of some unfair conduct on the part of the Commissioners of Woods and Forests, in letting certain lands in Wales to Ludy Penhryn, after Trimmer had made the first offer

Mr. Huskisson said Lady Penhryn had applied three years pre vious to the Petitioner.

Mr. Bennett was satisfied with the explanation.

The Petition was ordered to be printed.

A message from the Lords announced their Lordships' concurrence on the Grampound Disfranchisement Bill, with some amendanents, to which they desired the concurrence of this House. The Amendments were ordered to be taken into consideration on Wed-

Mr. Hume presented a Petition from Dr. Thorpe, complaining or having been dismissed from the Chief Justiceship of Sierra Leone, in consequence of having transmitted certain complaints to Government against Governor Maxwell.

After some conversation, in the course of which Mr. Goulburn served that Dr. Thorpe's case had been frequently before the House, the Petition was ordered to be printed.

On bringing up the Report of the Forgery Punishment Bill,

Sir J. Mackintosh proposed an amendment, by inserting the ords, "except the forging of any last will, codicil, or testamentary paper." His object in so doing was to except the two forgeries created by the Marriage Act, forgeries of entries and registers of marringes, and forgeries of transfers of stock.

Mr. Cripps objected to the Bill, as not extending the punishment of death to forgeries on country bank notes.

Mr. Grenfell concurred in the objection of the Hon. Member.

Mr. J. Martin was friendly to transportation in every cas Mr. Henry Grey Bennett said transportation would operate a bounty on the commission of the crime; the generality of prisoners transported were, he believed, much obliged to Government for sending them out of the country.

Mr. Baring agreed with his Hon. Priend the Member for Shrews bury, (Mr. Henry Grey Bennett) that transportation was no punishment, and should vote against the Bill on the third reading.

The Amendment was agreed to.

Sir J. Mackintosh then proposed an amendment in cases of forgery—that the imprisonment inflicted in cases of forgery should not be less than three, nor more than fourteen years

After some conversation (in which it was suggested that a specific punishment should be inflicted in cases of forgery) it was agreed, that the punishment for forgery should be ten years' imprisonment with hard labour.

Mr. Cripps moved to extend the exception with respect to Bank of England notes to country bank-notes, but it being informal to move it in this stage of the Bill, he withdrew it till the third read-ing.—The Report was then ordered to be taken into further coneration on Monday.

Mr. Hutchinson postponed, till the 13th of June, his motion respecting the state of Europe, and Mr. Hume his motion on the state of the lonian Islands, until the 14th of June.

In a Committee of Supply,

Col. Davies objected to the provisioning the army on foreign stations, and thought, by an alteration in the system, a saving of 10,000 might be effected. He was against continuing the riding establishment at Pimlico.

Capt. Maberley thought the accounts between the East India Company and the Government should be taken into consideration

Mr. Arbuthnot said, he had been considering the means of ringing the accounts forward on an improved plan in future years Mr. Baring complained of the manner in which these accounts vas kept; there was a sum of 140,000l. drawn upon Government, but the accounts furnished no detail as to the uses to which it was applied. Mr. Arbuthnot stated his readiness to afford every information. Sir J. Yorke wished to call the attention of the Committee to an item of 8,000l. for the expences of keeping in order the Break-water at Heligoland. Now, he was of opinion the whole island was not worth that sum. Mr. Goulburn said the 8,000l. covered the whole expence, the orn' Breakwater' was inserted by mistake.

Dr. Lushington said, the establishments on the island were not worth keeping up, and ought to be reduced. Mr. Goulburn said, it was in the contemplation of Government to remove the principal part of the establishments as soon as pos-

Mr. Hume also alluded to the Heligoland Establishments of which he complained. He also asked why in the Army Extraor-dinaries a sum of 7,000l. was charged for the Islands of Guernsey and Jersey—charges for inspecting the Militia in the Ionian Islands although not a militia man was kept up—charges for private Secreturies to the Governors of the different islands, and among other items a charge of $3,6001. for detaining Buonaparte. Upon this latter head he wished to ask, whether it were true as had been reported, that the British Government supported the persons deputed by Austria, Russin, and Prussia, to reside in the Island of St. Helena. He concluded by moving a reduction of 36,6121. from the estimate before the Committee.

Mr. Gouldwan in answer to the latter query said, the British Government does not provide for the support of the Russian, Austrian and Prussian Commissioners-the sum of 2,600l. was for the expences in improving the house in which Buonaparte lived, and which became necessary in consequence of the complaints of that individual.

The Marquis of Londonderry said the Commissioners of foreign powers, at St. Helena, were supported by their own Governments. He understood two of the Commissioners had been withdrawn. The Committee divided on the amendment. For the Original Motion, 84—For the Amendment, 32—Majority, 52.

A resolution was then moved of 401,5651, for the expences of the Commissariat department.

Mr. Maberley thought that there ought to be one general military depôt in the country. He thought that considerable saving might be effected the Barrack department, as the present expense of lodging the army cost 201, per man upon an average.

Mr. Arbutanet said a reduction had been made in the Commissariat department of 4,000k, and a further reduction was contem-

Col. Davies proposed a reduction in the item of 6.2381.

For the reduction, 40-Against it, 89-Majority, 49

The Committee reported progress.

Mr. Arbuthnot gave notice that his Right Hon. Friend (the nancellor of the Exchequer) would bring forward the Budget on Priday, the 1st of June.—Adjourned.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A new edition is just published of the Guide to Matrimonial Happiness. This little volume, which could only have been dictated by the most anxious affection, forms a most valuable present for a new-married lady, though no one can look into it without being benefitted by the soundness of its principles, and the knowledge it displays of the human heart, as well as of the usages of society, more especially of that higher class of it, to which the author belonged.

THE LATE MARQUIS OF LONDONDERRY .- The following anecdote of this truly good and amiable Nobleman may be relied t as authentic: -On certain parts of the Marquis's estates he had, until the late dreadful shock came, a contented and thriving tenantry but the majority of them were not, of late, able to pay their rents. He sent for his Agent, inquired the cause—the Agent told him. He desired his tenantry to be assembled—demanded from them what they were able to pay-they made their estimate; he ordered the old leases to be cancelled, gave them all receipts in full, and desired new ones to be made out according to the fair value of corn; and under the new leases his tenantry at present derive the utmost com-But his Lordship did not stop here. Some of the tenants had paid above the fair value of the land, in accordance with the terms of their agreement. "These tenants must," said the venerable " have deprived themselves of the comforts and even Nobleman, the necessaries of life. We must refund them a proportion of the rents." A great part was accordingly refunded. One widow lady renis. A great part was accountily lemane. The water had received two hundred and odd pounds back, and with the rest has ber land at present on easy terms. This is doing the thing like a Nobleman—like a man of humanity. It was almost the last act of the late Lord Londonderry's life. He will surely receive his re-

The estimates for the three Government Churches to be built at Leeds, instead of amounting to 100,000l. each, do not much exce the sum of eleven thousand pounds each, including the Architect's Commission, &c.

QUEEN HITHE WARD.—Thursday Mr. Venables was declared duly elected Alderman for this Ward. The numbers at the final close of the poll were- for Mr. Venables, 50--for Mr. Capel, 31-

Majority, 19.—Both Gentlemen returned thanks.

A meeting was held on Tuesday in Billingsgate Ward, in consequence of the resignation of Sir W. Leighton as Alderman, when T. Hearsny proposed Mr. Anthony Browne, as the successor of Sir William, which was carried unanimously.

Royal Cambrian Institution, for promoting Welsh Literature,

Poetry, & Music.—The Anniversary festival of this laudable society was held on Wednesday last, at the Freemasons' Hall. There were seven candidates for the silver medal, but out of the different poems transmitted the judges recommended only three, two of which possessed great merit; they, however, unanimously decided that the ole written by Mr. Thus. Jones, of Long Acre, London, was the best. The medal was accordingly awarded to him. After dinner "Non Nobis. Domine" was sung in Welsh. — The health of His Majesty, Patron of the Institution, was given, followed by God save the King, sung by Messrs. Collyer, Smith, Parry, and Master Smith, the latter of whom delighted the company in the course of the course with The Combains. the evening with The Cambrian Minstrel Boy, and The wounded Negro Boy. Singing with the Welsh harp, after the manner of the ancient Britons, in alternate stanza, called Pennillion, by Messrs. Griffiths, O. and E. Jones, E. Lloyd, and Parry, quite enchanted the company; it was a novel entertainment to strungers, and dear to the hearts of the Cambrians, who for patriotism and loyalty will yield to no men.

The Morning Chronicle of yesterday has the following paragraph :- Birth of a Portuguese Princess .- Accounts have been received of the delivery of the Princess Royal of a Son, on the 6th of March.

FRAUD IN SOVEREIGNS .- Government has lately detected a most extraordinary fraud, which threatens great loss to the currency. Sovereigns to a great extent have been counterfeited, by casing platina with gold, the specific gravity of the two metals being pearly equal. In melting down some Sovereigns, the platina was detected at the bottom of the crucible.

On Thursday last, the venerable Archdeacon of London held his Visitation at St. Sepulchre's Church, Skinner-street, when he gave visitation at St. Seputene's Currin, Skinner-street, when he gave an admirable charge to the Clergy, after an appropriate discourse delivered by Mr. Wrench, Rector of St. Michael on Cornhill.

ROTATION.—In the dairy of John Evelyn, Esq. for the year 1703 is the following entry: "Corn and provisions so cheape, that the farmers are unable to pay their rents."

Thirteen hundred guineas was the sum given by Prince Ester-hazy, at the sale of the late Sir Charles Bunbury's stud, for the brated borse Smolensko.

Baron Nicolay will act as Charge d'Affaires from the Court of St. Petersburgh, in the absence of his Excellency Count Leven. The Baron is not yet arrived in this country, but is daily expected.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Munden closes his theatrical career on Thursday next, not intending after that night to accept of any engagement.

CURIOUS OCCURRENCE.—A contention of a curious nature took place at the Toll-gate of Waterloo Bridge. Two men, the one wheeling a wheelbarrow, and the other mounted upon it, demanded to pass the gate without payment for more than one person and the wheelburrow (three halfpence), urging as a right that it was precisely the same as a passage in any other carriage. The Tol-keeper, however, resisted, and demanded the payment of the toll for the man also. After some altercation, one of the men (at the suggestion of a Gentleman present) took up the wheelbarrow, and threw it upon his shoulder, and then claimed the right to pass the toll without paying for the wheelbarrow (one halfpenny); sill, however, the Gate-keeper insisted upon the toll for both men and wheelbarrow, nor would be suffer them to pass without. The men, however, after much dispute, paid the charge. There is no doebt (says our Correspondent) but that these men have done this merely with a view to make a trifle of the unsuspecting Toll-keeper, as they promised him most faithfully to lay the matter before the Magistrates.

University Intelligence. — Cambridge, May 25. — T. Thorp, Esq. B. A. Fellow of Trinity College, was on Wednesday appointed Travelling Bachelor on Mr. Worts's foundation.—The following gentlemen were on the same day admitted to the under-mentioned degrees:—MASTERS OF ARTS: Rev. H. Venn, Fellow of Queen's college; Rev. W. Walter, of Sidney Sussex College.— BACHELORS OF ARTS: R. Barker, of St. Peter's college; T. Blakeway Bray, of Magdalen college.

Oxford, May 19.—On Thursday the remains of the Rev. Dr. Griffith, late Master of University college, were interred, with the usual solemnities, in the chapel of that college. Same day, W.B. Williams, B. A. of Queen's college, was elected a Vinerian Scholar, in the room of N. W. Senior, Fellow of Magdalene college. On Saturday last, the Rev. J. Carter, M. A. Fellow of St. John's college, was admitted Bachelor in Divinity.

On Thursday, the Rev. J. Taddy, M. A. some time Fellow

On Thursday, the Rev. J. Taddy, M. A. some name removed Trinity college, Cambridge, was admitted ad eundem.—Same day, the following degrees were conferred:—MASTERS OF ARTS: Rev. D. Hughes, All Souls' College; Rev. William Servante, Exeter; Rev. W. N. Pedder, Fellow of Worcester; D. Walton, Worcester; T. Butler, Scholar of Pembroke; P. Erle, Fellow of New College; W. Ives, Magdalen Hall; C. C. Clerke and D. Veysie, Students of Christ Church; J. D. Lewis, Oriel; Rev. G. Cunliffe, Balliol; Rev. C. Phelips and Rev. W. Vallance. Finiusceliv — Rachellong of Arts: C. Part. Rsg. Mag. Vallance, University.—BACRELORS OF ARTS: C. Parr, Esq. Mag-dalen Hall, Grand Compounder; A. H. R. Baillie, Lincoln; J. Cowherd, Scholar of Lincoln; H. A. Holden, Worcester; J. Abbott, Balliol; E. L. Bennet, P. Knapp, Merton; A. S. Berry, W. Cleminson, Queen's; R. Bingham, Magdalen Hall; J. S. Townsend and W. B. Baring, Oriel; A. H. Gower, Christ Church; and C. T. Plumptre, University.

CURIOUS DISCOVERY .- A short time ago, while working a piece of converted timber in the Dock-yard, for a first futtock rider of His Majesty's ship Kent, of 74 guns, the workmen had to take of about three inches from one of the ends, in which a small hole was red, and on cutting it out with a mallet and chisel, a bird called the willow-wren, was found in a perfect state of There was not the least appearance of defect in the wood, until the three-inch piece was cut off.

The discovery ships, with the Nautilus transport in company, were all well off Kinnaird Head, on the east coast of Scotland, on the east coast of Wednesday the 18th inst. They had encountered some very blow-ing weather; but both the Fury and Hecla, notwithstanding their crowded state, and being so bound and hampered with the necessary strengthenings against the ice, both sailed and steered well, and answered the expectations of their commanders in every respect. Having received their pilots on board for the Shetland Islands, they were proceeding on their voyage all in the highest spirits. From Cochin China intelligence has arrived of the dethe death of the King Kin-Long, and of the accession of his eldest son to the will, for three years, under the guardianship of the Eunuch Taquan.

Accounts have been received at Lisbon from Rio Janeiro, of the delivery of the Princess Royal of a son, on the 6th of March, and of the King's intention to take his departure for Europe on the 12th 4 of April.

WINTELLIGENCE.

COURT OF CHANCERY, THURSDAY.

The Barl of Westmonth v. the Countess of Westmeath.—Mr. Horne said he was requested to ask his Lordship for his judgment in

The Lord Chancellor-" Let it be put in the paper for Tuesday next. This is one of that class of cases in which I had hoped it would not be necessary to ask for judgment."

Mr. Blake, Counsel for the Countess of Westmeath, stated, that the Earl of Westmeath had instituted a suit in the Ecclesiastical Start for the restitution of conjugal rights.

Mr. Horne said, that the statement of his Learned Friend was correct; it was a fact which he did not wish to keep back from his Lordship.

The Lord Chancellor-" This will create a new difficulty, if the deed of separation between the Noble Parties does not go far enough to enjoin such a suit in the Ecclesiastical Court. aware there was a case in which Lord Bathurst went the length of granting an injunction to restrain such a sult in the Ecclesiastical Court. I will give you my judgment on Tuesday next." I will give you my judgment on Tuesday next.

COURT OF KING'S BENCH, MONDAY.

The King v. Benbow, and the King v. Dolby.—On the motion of Mr. Tyndali, both these defendants were called up, and pleaded Not Guilty, to the several indictments against them.

The King v. Francis and James Jolly.—This was an indictment for libel, for having published in the Carlisle Journal, of which the defendants are proprietors, an article, imputing to the Marquis of Queensberry cruelty, oppression, and inhumanity towards his tenantry.—The trial took place at the last Assizes for the county of Cumberland, and there was a verdict of Guilty against the de-

Mr. Courtney prayed judgment on both the defendants, who ap-peared in Court, and handed up an affidavit, in which they stated, that they had received from a correspondent, the obnoxious article, on the very day on which their paper went to press, and had not, therefore, time to examine its contents, or observe its evil tendency The affidavit further stated, that they had no malicious feeling in giving insertion to the paragraph in question, and knew not of its being offensive until the indictment was preferred against them, when they offered the Noble prosecutor to make any reparation in their power, and to give up the author, in case the proceedings commenced against them were relinquished.

Mr. Alderson then addressed the Court in mitigation of punishment, urging very forcibly the allegations contained in the affidavit.

Mr. Courtney replied in aggravation of punishment, and banded up to the Court a Journal published by the defendants subsequently to the trial, and referred to an article in it, appealing to the judgment of the public "whether they or the Noble prosecutor were most degraded by the result of the trial," &c.

stice Bayley, after a solemn and very impressive address to the defendants, pronounced the judgment of the Court, which was, that both the defendants be committed to the custody of the Marshall of the Marshalsea Court, for three calendar months, and, at the expiration of that term, to give security for good behaviour for three years, each in 3001. and two others in 1001. each.

THURSDAY, May 24.—The King v. Turner.—The Defendant appeared to plend to an indictment charging him with publishing a scandalous and seditious libel. Being called on to say whether be was guilty or not, be stated that his name was not in the indictment-it was William, not Thomas.

The Court allowed the misnemer to be amended, and after the Defendant had pleaded Not Guilty, he was told his trial would come on at the Sittings after Term.

The King v. Cartwright, Wooler, and Others. - The Court delivered their opinion on the application for a new trial in this case

Their Lordships unanimously decided no new trial could be had.

Mr. Denman prayed the Court to allow the judgment to stand over for a week; the Attorney-General consented, and the Chief Justice appointed Wednesday next.

The King v. John Hunt.—The Defendant appeared upon the floor strends by his some and coursel friends but the Ludge's notes.

floor, attended by his sons and several friends, but the Judge's notes not being in Court, the cause was postponed. The King v. Thomas Evans.—The Attorney-General prayed the judgment of the Court on the Defendant, as Proprietor of The Manchester Observer, for a libel inserted in that Paper, of and concerning the King's Government, and of and concerning his Majesty's Troops. The libel was contained in a statement published in the Observer, purporting to be an account of an outrage committed by the troops at Oldham, on the occasion of the celebration of the King's Birth-day at that place.

Mr. Williams now addressed the Court on behalf of the defendant, either for a new trial, or in arrest of judgment, on the ground that in the first, second, fourth, and fifth counts of the indictment, there were variances between the publication and the indictment, which must prove fatal to those counts. The Learned Counsel argued at great length in support of his application, but the Court held that at least the third and sixth counts were free from legal objection. and the Attorney-General said he would take the judgment on those

Affidavits were then put in by the defendant, but nothing was offered in the spirit of contrition,

Before the Court gave judgment they heard a second case, in which the defendant was to receive sentence for a private libel, reflecting on the character of Doctor Conneley, by accusing him of an adulterous intercourse with his servant. For the first libel the defendant was sentenced to be imprisoned one year in Lancaster Jail; and for the second, six months in the same prison. FRIDAY.— The King v. The Rev. Mr. Blacow.—Mr. Brougham was heard this day in support of the Rule for filing a criminal information against the defendant for a Libel on the Queen, his friend Mr. Park's opposition to the criminal information relied entirely on the absence of affidavits on the part of her Majesty, denying the charges imputed to her by the defendant. The case alluded to by Mr. Park were easily distinguished from the present. He ofted these cases, the King v. Bickerton, the King v. Webster, the King v. Sir J. Fielding, &c. in all which the crimes imputed were, he said, of a specific nature and not general charges, as in the prewas unnecessary to enumerate before their Lordships the dignities, privileges, and prerogntives which belonged to the Queen Consort of these realms. It was perfectly inconsistent with the dignity of the Queen Consort, to come into Court to tender an affidavit; and if others of His Majesty's subjects were required to do so, yet it by no means followed that the Queen Consort was obliged to comply with that rule. Her case was distinguished from that of any other individual; and if his friend Mr. Park would show him any case in which any person of equal dignity and pre-rogative with the Queen had tendered such an affidavit, he (Mr. Brougham) would then be ready to admit that the Queen Consort was bound in the same rule. Lord Coke, in page 133 of his In-stitutes, after describing some of the Queen Cousort's prerogatives, says, "Such a Queen hath many other prerogatives, as she shall fad no pledges, for such is her dignity, as she shall not be amerced." And again, Lord Coke says, in the same page, "If any bailiff of the Queen's bring an action concerning the hundred, be shall say, Inconfemptum Domini Regis et Reginæ." And again, "in case of aid prier of the King, it is said, Domino Rege inconsulta." And, "in case of aid prier of the Queen, it is Domina Regina inconsulta, and the cause of the aid prier shall not be counter-pleaded so more than in the King's case. The Learned Gentleman then cited some passages in Fitsherbert's Natura Brevium, page 101, and Computs Diggs, in order to show how the Queen was held to be distinguished from all other subjects, and have peculiar rights and prerogatives. The Queen night file, through her Officers, proceedings in Chancery and the Exchequer but he begged not to be understood as maintaining that she could file ex-officio informations by her Attorney-General in her own name. Those dignities were bestowed on the Queen Consort for the public good, and because she ought to have rights independent of the King, who was supposed to be always engaged circa ardua Regni. It was for a base and slanderous attack on her under those privileges and dignities that she was advised to bring this action and if she has the sanction of this Court that it is not below her dignity and peculiar prerogatives, she is ready to come into Court with the required affidavit. She claimed the interposition of the Court, in the first instance, because she thought she would be descending below her exalted station in coming into Court to tender an affidavit denying charges so vague and general. Her case stood alone, without a precedent, and distinguished from all those cases relied on by the other side.

Mr. Denman was heard on the same side.

The Court took time to consider of their decision on the appli-

COURT OF ARCHES, MAY 19.

CHETTLE AGAINST CHETTLE.—This was a case of separation or divorce, by reason of adultery, instituted by Mr. Thomas Chettle, of Granthum, in the county of Lincoln, against Mrs. Mary Chettle, his wife. From the whole of the evidence, it appeared that these parties were married on the 11th of May, 1804; that they lived at Nottingham for some time, and afterwards at Grantham, until the month of August, 1819, when Mrs. Chettle, who was alleged for some time previously to have treated her husband with great inattention and indifference, insisted upon a separation; to which Mr. Chettle, by the advice of his friends, was induced to consent, making her an allowance of $01, a-year for her separate mainte-nance.—Some time in the year 1919, Mr. Chettle detected an adulterous intercourse between his wife and a Mr William Marshall, who lived at Grantham.

Dr. Swabey and Dr. Lushington admitted the fact of adultery but contended, on behalf of the wife, that Mr. Chettle was not entitled to the remedy for which he prayed, he having been himself blameable in taking improper notice of his female servants, and also in severities towards her.

Sir John Nicholl said, that though there could be no doubt that what had taken place between Mr. Chettle and his female servants was highly improper and unbecoming in him as a married man, and the master of a family, yet it could not be contended that any actual connection of an unlawful description was at all proved to have existed between them. The evidence bore no construction of the kind. As to the recrimination which it was attempted to plead in the allegation of the wife, it was clear that acts of cruelty were spoken to as having been done by Mr. Chettle; but no fact of infidelity was made out against him. The Learned Judge recited the whole of the facts alleged in evidence; and after expressing his opinion that the defence set up on the part of Mrs. Chettle was untenable on the plea, either of condemnation or of recrimination, be pronounced for the prayer of the husband.

POLICE.

MARLBOROUGH-STREET .- An affair, which occurred a few evenings since at a Gaming house in St. James's, has occasioned much stir and inquiry. Information was laid at the office by persons who had I st money at play, and were otherwise disap-pointed. These persons undertook to assist the officers in getting into the house by opening the first floor windows, as the house was so barricaded that it was impossible for them to get in by the reguhar entrance. The whole of the officers, with an addition constables, assembled near the house at the appointed hour, with ladders in reserve. The striking of St. James's clock was the signal for the attack, when some persons within were to throw up the sashes. The ladder for scaling being brought, the watchman on the beat gave an alarm, and all was spoiled.

The watchman, in his defence, states, that he did not know but the party meant to commit a robbery, they were strangers to him.

The Managers of the Gaming-house attended before the Magistrates, upon one of the inquiries into the conduct of the watchman, who was, they urged, doing his duty. They said it was a house for they had no objection to admit a Police officer at any time, but they did not choose to have the house plundered by a mob. This expression was in ullusion to those who laid the information, and who were described as disappointed people from other houses of play. There were 4,000l. in the bank, and that was too much for a scramble. Here the affair rests.

HATTON-GARDEN.- Attempt to Assassinate.—Friday a case of the greatest atrocity came on at this Office. John Russel, a youth of a Jewish appearance, was charged by Mr. John Marson, a gentleman of about seventy years of age, living on his property, and occupying the first floor in the house of Mr. Sibley, in Red Lion-street, Clerkenwell, with attempting to murder him with a knife. The following are the circumstances of this horrid transaction: The prisoner came that morning to Mr. Marson's lodging, saying be came with a message from his father, who is a tenant of Mr. Marson. He was shown up stairs to Mr. Marson's sitting-room, where he said he was ordered by his father to wait for him, as he was to come to pay Mr. Marson four pounds rent, which he owed him. The prisoner waited above an hour, during which time Mr. Marson was sitting at his desk, writing. At length the prisoner told Mr. Marson that he did not expect his father, who gave him (the prisoner) the four pounds to pay the preceding day, but that he had lost it, and he came to him to get a receipt for the money. Mr. Marson teld him he should not give a receipt before he was paid the money; on which the prisoner jumped up from his seet, and laid hold of Mr. Marson by the collar, while a should be should be the before he was paid the money; on which the prisoner jumped up from his seet, and held hold of Mr. Marson by the collar, pulled a sharp knife out of his bosom, and held it to Mr. Marson's breast. Mr. Marson warded off the knife, a struggle engage Mr. Marson warded off the knife, a struggle ensued, and both fell. Mr. Marson, finding that the prisoner was likely to overpower him, kicked with his feet against the floor and the door; the noise brought the people in the house to his assistance; the prisoner was secured, and given in charge to a constable. On inquiry, it was ascertained that the prisoner purchased the knife at a s shop on Mutton-hill, when he was going to Mr. Marson's. -Mr. Marson not wishing to try the charge capitally, so as to affect the prisoner's life, the Magistrate committed him for the assault, with notice that he should give twenty-four hours notice of ball, to afford the complainant time to ixquire if they were good and suf-

Town Hall, Southwark .- Alleged Murder .- On Friday, a Lady named Eliza Harmer, the wife of Mr. Harmer, ironfounder, Tooley-street, Borough, was charged before Alderman J. J. Smith. on suspicion of murdering her husband the night before, by shooting him with a pistol, the ball of which entered the orbit of his right eye and penetrated into his brain, which produced his instant death. The prisoner is about thirty years of age, and of most interesting ap-

Hannah Studd, the servant girl, was examined, and she detailed the unfortunate affair:—The mistress had been out nearly the whole of the day, and on her return, found her (the servant) and the eceased taking ten together, which was unusual. The deceased was in the babit of playing with the platols, and had frequently pointed them at the head of the prisoner. About night e'clock last night, the deceased said to the prisoner—"G—d b—t you, I'il shoot and she heard the snap of a pistol, but no report. In a few minutes afterwards a pistol went off and the prisoner exclaimed "I have shot him, I have murdered my husband. Good God! I did not know the pistol was loaded; go fetch a Surgeon imme-dia tely." Mr. Harmer fell dead on the spot.

John Kinsey, the officer, stated, that he was sent for between eight and nine o'clock on Thursday night to the deceased's house, No. 6, Weston-street, Maze-pond. Mr. Jamieson, the surgeon, admitted him, and he found the prisoner in the back-parlour, crying and stamping like a maniac. He inquired what was the matter; and she replied in the greatest distruction, "I have murdered my In the next room be saw the body of the deceased on a chair, with a handkerchief over his face; he pulled the hundkerchief off, and found he was dead. Several gentiemen were in the room, and three pistols were placed on a table with the cocks all down, them had the appearance of baving been recently discharged; the others did not appear to have any priming in them; at all events there had been no flask in the pan. They were both loaded with ball—[Here they were produced]—and the charges were still in them. After the surgeon had retired, witness, with the assistance of Joseph Welch and W. Kinsey, took the body of the deceased up stairs, and laid it on a mattress, and searched the nockets. They found on his nerson a silver watch which the pockets. They found on his person a silver watch, which was also going; also 19s. in silver, and is. 10d. in copper, and amongst the latter five pistol balls and a piece of lead; the bullets fitted the pistols. In his great cont pocket, they found two pair of pistol hags, containing two bullet-moulds, and two powder.flasks full of powder, and also a pocket-book. He then sent for a coach and took the prisoner to the Borough Compter.— The officers took charge of the house and furniture, and Mr. Bunny, The oncers took courge of the parish, sealed the doors and property, till the sealer of the present charge should be ascertained.—The unthe result of the present charge should be ascertained.—The unfortunate prisoner was called on for her defence; but, by the advice of her solicitor, she declined saying any thing. She was then ordered to be remanded till Monday, and was accordingly conducted into the Magistrate's private parlour, where she remained till four o'clock, when she was conveyed in a coach to the Compter, attended by Mr. Law, the keeper of the prison, two Marshalmen, and the parish officers. Mr. Alderman Smith had given particular orders for rendering her situation as comfortable as the circumstances of the case would admit of. The curiosity to obtain a view of her person was so great, that on the way the coach-windows were all broken by the obtrusive crowd.

PROVINCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

BATH .- A public bothing place is about to be focused near the Folly House, at Hampton, near this City; it is to be excavated in the form of a crescent, with a semi-circular wall, which will serve as a landing-place for the bathers, who will be sheltered from the public view by another wall, to which are to be attacted sheds for the convenience of dressing; and the front of the bath next the the convenience or dressing; and the front of the bath next the river is to be defended by strong guard-posts and rails to prownt accidents. This undertaking, when completed, will prevent the disgusting scenes which every summer disgrace the banks of the Avon and the Caual.

Bradford — His Majesty's Commissioners for building New Churches, have engaged to build two churches in this parish, one at Shipley, and the other at Wilsden, each to accommodate 1400

BRIGHTON.-By the able management of the Overseers, the Poor-rates here, happily, are the reverse of being on the increase— a 3s. rate, instead of one of 9s. like the last, it is said, will be sufficient to meet the exigencies of the current quarter

CHESHUNT.—Mr. Cromwell of this place, has now in his possession the hat of his ancestor Oliver Cromwell, by which the skull supposed to be the Protector's, which, with two others, were, after the Restoration, affixed over the entrance to Westminster Hall, matil the reign of Queen Anne, has been tried, and no doubt is now entertained of its identity.

entertained of its identity.

Cheherster.—A basking shark, which measured 9 feet in length, was taken a few days ago, in Bracklesham Bay, south of this town, by some fishermen, who with difficulty brought it on shore, entangled in their nets. On opening it four young ones were taken from it, which weighed about seven pounds each.

DONCASTER.—This town is at this time very gay, in consequence of the Yorkshire Hussar Yeomanry being quartered there, under the command of Lord Grantham. His Lordship has already given a ball to the ladies at the Mansion House.

EDINBURGH.—A robbery was effected on the mail from hence to Glasgow a few days since. Places for four were taken on the preceding evening, but only one person appeared the following morning; another was taken up as the coach passed St. Andrew-On the arrival of the coach at Midcalder one of the two alighted with the guard, and went in with him to the post-office, inquiring if there were any letters for Mr. Williams. He was nu-swered in the affirmative, and a pretty large letter, scaled with black wax, was produced with that address, which he immediately opened, besides a smaller letter, the postage of which he paid. At this juncture the individual who had been left in the coach appeared in sight, when Mr. Williams, with an air of sorrow, called out to him—" See, read that, it is what I was somewhat prepared for we must return to Bdinburgh immediately." They then gave orders for a post-chaise, and the mail coach, of course, proceeded On its arrival there it was discovered that the money box belonging to the Bank of Scotland, which is deposited below one of the seats, secured with a lock, had been abstracted, and a good deal of alarm was consequently created. It luckily turned out, however, on communicating with the Bank at Edinburgh, that the box sent to Glasgow that day was entirely empty, a circumstance which very seldom happens. The box of the Royal Bank occupies the same place in the coach, but on this occasion it was full of specie, and of considerable weight, which no doubt prevented their choosing it.

GLASGOW .- Swan (a culprit, who was executed here on Wednesday, the 16th instant, for uttering forged notes), is said to have teld one of the town officers. On the morning of his execution, that he was in the hay-loft along with the Cato-street conspirators, and made his escape by a back window.

HAILSHAM .- A most singular circumstance has occurred here; which offers a problem worthy the investigation of the curious. bail of hair, of a hard substance, and of a glossy black colour, has been taken from the stomach of a bullock belonging to Mr. Kennett, of that place.

LEWES .- A botanical curiosity has been exhibited here. It is a polyanthus, with more than sixty flowers on the same stem, but perfectly separate from each other, which had been gathered at Asham.

There is, in some hop grounds, at Rotherfield, in the eastern part of this county, a hop-pole, which has been used for no less a time than 35 years!

Lvn.—Mr. Christopher Allcock, who served in the first draught of the Norfolk Militia, when raised in the year 1759, dued here, a few days ago, at the advanced age of 91. He was so much attached to the service, that when no longer able to do duty, he carefully preserved his regimentals; in which, by his own desire, he was LYME.—Two magnificent organized fossils have recently been found on the coast, between Charmouth and this town. They apfound on the coast, perween charmouth and this town. They appear to be of the species called lehthyosaurus vulgaris, and lehthyosaurus Platyodon. The skeleton of the former lies in high relief upon a mass of indurated blue marble; the remains of the latter beast measures nearly 20 feet in length. Its vertebre are 9.5 in number; its head five feet long, and its teeth round and sharp at the point, and full three inches in length.

MACCLESFIELD.—Singular Occurrence.—On the 21st of April last, a Serjeant of the 29 h Regiment of Foot, stationed here, escorting a party of men of the 12th Regiment, thence to Portsmouth, was quartered at the King's Arms Im, Bishop's Waltham, the next day being (Sunday) a halting day; and on which day he left the house, and never returned. Search was made, but without effect, until the 25th, when he was found in a dich, having formed a determination to startly himself to death, and had actably heavy them. termination to starve himself to death, and had actually been there the seven days without food. He had got a curious bed, made in the ditch, with sticks laid across, and a large quantity of moss. He was taken to Mr. Clarke's house, who gave him some food, which he ate very little of, and he was allowed to depart, and was not heard of again until Saturday, the 12th of May, being three weeks, and during which time he had also been without food, having been in the wood, about a mile from Bishop's Waltham, the last fourteen the wood, about a mile from Bishop's Waltham, the last fourteen days without any sustenance whatever, except a little muddy water which was near the place where he made his bed. He rose up on the morning named, with a determination of beginning a new life, that being his hirth-day (the $2d year of his age), and came wandering, like a skeleton, to the King's Arms again. He told Mr. Clarke that it was his intention to place himself under his protection; he said he had got the better of his weakness, as he found he could not put an end to his existence, which he had tried to effect, by making incisions in his arm to bleed himself to death, as he did not die with humer, which he thought he should in ten days: the not die with hunger, which he thought he should in ten days: the means he had used to prevent his feeling the pain of hunger wasmeans he had used to prevent his recting the pain of punger was— by tearing the sleeves off hissbirt, and binding them round his body, and drawing them closer, as his body decreased in size, by which means, he thinks he could have lived fourteen days longer. The reason for his committing this act was, as he states—on his march from Macclesfield, with the party of men under his command, he took two one-pound Bank of England notes, which he considered to he bad, by their being refused, which notes he had in his pos-ression, and finding that he had not receive accept to now the ways session, and finding that he had not money enough to pay the men, it burt his feelings so much, that he could not bear it, having been in the regiment ten years without the least stain on his character; which appears to be correct, by the commanding officer's letter, which has been since received, stating him to be one of the most trust-worthy men in the regiment, and was particularly selected for the purpose.—He is recovering as fast as nature will allow.

MAIDSTONE.—A packet, containing one hundred one pound forged Bank of England notes, was found in a booth at our fair, doubtless intended for circulation here.

MANCHESTER.—Major-Gen. Lord Edward Somerset, on Thursday se'nnight, reviewed the 19th Lancers about four miles from here, in the presence of thousands of spectators. During one of the rapid movements, three of the horses fell with their riders, who were much burt; but the animals, the instant they recovered their feet, resumed their places in the ranks, without their riders.

MONTROSE.—H. Shuttleworth, keeper of the Hope Tavern, in this town, was found murdered, a few days since, at the back of his own house. A precognition has been held; the murderer is supown house. A precognition has been held; the murderer is sup-posed to be his own wife, and the weapon of destruction used on the occasion to have been a poker.

NEWCASTLE —Mr. George Browne, solicitor, of this town, was attacked and robbed by four foot-pads, a few nights since, on the West Turapike road, of 31. 17s. 6d. and—α law case! v had Mr. B. pleaded hard to have returned, but the reprobates took the case

NORTH BERWICK .- On Wednesday se'nnight, about eight o'clock in the morning, a novelty unknown in this place before, attracted the attention of a numerous assemblage of spectators. A bont manned by four men, proceeded from this harbour to Canty Bay, a distance of two miles, and after refreshing the crew, proceeder round the Bass Rock, and returned about a quarter past nine, having performed their voyage in the space of an hour and a quarter, gross time, being upwards of six miles, the whole performed without either sails, oars, or any steam apparatus. The invention is entirely that of a respectable mill wright here, who expects a patent before he publishes the means of impulsion.

Oxford .- Female Impostor .- "A short time since, a gentlement of this city met a female beggar in the Parks, dressed in rags which rendered her appearance indecent in the extreme. seemed to be 19 or 20 years of age, and was walking towards this city. He advised her to remain where she was, until the evening. when she might go to a lodging house, less exposed to observation. She told a most piteous tale; she was hungry, weary, and without money to procure food and lodging. Knowing the tricks of vagrants, he watched her, and saw several shillings given to her by some ladies. Some bours afterwards, he met a boy with a bundle, proceeding towards the place where the ragged female was stationed. He stopped him, and inquired what the bundle contained the boy was unwilling to reply, but by threats, and the promise of a small sum of money, the boy at length confessed that the bundle contained the girl's clothes. He acknowledged, that in the morning she stripped herself in a neighbouring hovel, and put on the rags she then wore; and that he was returning with her clothes from the lodging-house, in order that she might dress herself, and proceed to Oxford. It appears, that this was her usual practice at all the towns she visited. This trick is found profitable, and is often had recourse to."-Oxford Herald.

SUDBURY .- A few days since a disgraceful circumstance occurred here: Henry Frost, a weaver, sold his wife (with the customary practice of a halter tied round her neck) to one Robert Whiting, for 2a.; but the bargain being offensive to a number of females present, they would have given the new bridegroom a summary chastisement, had he not taken shelter in a cottage, into which they pursued him, and he was obliged at last to make his escape by jumping out of the chamber window.

ACCIDENTS, OFFENCES, &c.

ROBBERY .- Monday morning, between three and four o'clock, the dwelling-house of Colonel Eglington, in the City-road, was en tened by means of false keys, and plundered of plate, linen, &c. to the amount of 501. with which the thieves got clear off.

In the course of the night of Friday se'unight, the Old Slaughte Coffee-house, St. Martin's lane, was broken into by thieves, who effected their entry by means of forcing up the iron grating over the area, and succeeded in carrying off plate and money to the amount DIABOLICAL CRUBLTY .— Two men, late servants of Mr. Hitch-cock, of Allcannings, have been in custody for the last three weeks, charged with having destroyed a horse belonging to their muster by forcing down its throat a quantity of small nails and pebbles. This cruel not was perpetrated on Friday; and it is singular, that or the Schurdny the Lorse are its food, and worked as usual, the nails having possed into its stomach. On the Sunday morning, however, it diel; and on the animal being dissected, it was soon found what oc-entioned its death. The servants have not yet been committed, from the want of stronger evidence against them, but which is expected to be obtained.

SHI	P NEWS.
Arrived Mails Du
1 Dublin
2 Waterford
Guernney & Jersey -
Helland	Flanders
Gottenburgh	—Jamaica —

DEAL, May 25.—Wind S.W.—Came down from the River last night and ailed, the Pame, Engstgate, for Madras and Bengal. Came down to-day and main, the Mary, Harly, for Miramichi; and Triane, Smale, for Trieste rrived and sailed for the River, the Dryad, Fell; and Charles, Milne, from ohago.

HARWICH, May 25 .- Arrived the Henry Freeling packet, with a mail

HARWICH, MRRY 25.—Arrived the Son, Allow His Majesty's ships from Cukhaven.

PORTSMOUTH, May 25.—Wind W.S.W.—Arrived His Majesty's ships Indigenia from Plymouth, and Brisk from the Eastward, Also the Hyary Clay, Potts, from the Downs. Passed by for London, after landing her passengers, the Lady Campboll, Marquis, from China. Sailed the Barbadoes packet, Garrick, for Bremen; Agnes, Cundy, for London; and Hero, James, for Hull.

NEVER DESPAIR. A Comedy, by the Author of "The Letter from the King to his People."

The Author expected that the unprecedented sale of the "Letter" would have served to establish the sale of "The True Blue." a weekly Journal conducted by him. In this expectation he finds himself grievously disapnointed

The publication, therefore, of this Comedy has two objects: First, to enable tim to overcome some temporary difficulties; and, if possible, to resuse The True Blue," which, for the operate, he is obliged unavoidably to use on suspend.

The Author thinks it due to himself to state, that a Second Letter from the Kine, is not from his pen; nor has he the least remaining interest in his own production. At the time of publishing his own Letter, he deeply felt, how necessary it was so to canduct it, as not to bring the King's name wantonly or unnecessarily before the public. Nothing but the momentous crists at which it appeared could alone justify the act. That crisis being happily gone by, the public assumption of the Royal Title is, in his humble opinion, indecent and improper.

The publication of this Comedy under the circumstances stated, will also tend to prove, that the Author of the "Letter" was no parasite, no Court dependant, and wholly unconnected with Administration. He trusts, that those who have been pleased with his late political conduct, will patronize his first afteunpt at a Comedy, which has, (perhaps too partially) received the approbation of many adequate judges.

NEVER DESPAIR, is in the press, and will be published within a fortingth, by Wm. Wright, 46, Fleet-street, and is to be had of every Bookseller in town and country, price 3s.

in town and country, price 3s.

Any communication to the Author may be addressed to Mr. Wright,

Just published, under the Patronage of Prince Leopold, the Duke of Gloucester, and the Duchess of Kent, with Engravings, No. 1,

THE NATIONAL MONUMENT of ROYAL VIRTUE, at CLAREMONT, KENSINGTON, and WINDROR; or, Visit to these interesting Scenes just after the Demise of their illustrious Inhabitants, by a Party of Friends,

"There is much matter to be heard and learnt."

Sold by Sams. 1, St. James's-street; Simpkin and Marshal, Stationer'scourt; and Wright, 46, Fleet-street.

Yesterday was published, price 1s.
THE WEEKLY REVIEW, No. 4. CONTENTS:—1. Concealment.—2. Mrs. Cognwell Baron Wilson's Poems.—3. Staunton's Chinese ment.—2. Mrs. Cornwell Baron Wilson's Poems.—3. Staunton's Uninese Binbassy.

Contents of Nos. 1, 2, and 3: Waldegrave's Memoirs.—Transactions of the Cambridge Philosophical Society.—Byron's Martino Paliers.—Harlitt's Table Talk.—Tondine's Life of Pitt.—Lyon's Travels.—De Renzy.—Croly's Paris in 1815.—Bowles, Byron, &c. on Pope.

Published by C. Chapple, Royal Library, Pall Mall.

Just published, 12mo, price 5s, extra boards,
THE SECRETARY'S ASSISTANT; exhibiting the various and most correct modes of Superscription. Commencement, and Conclusion of Letters to Persons of every degree of Rank: including the Diplomatic Clerical, and Judicial Dignitaries, with Lists of the Foreign Ambassadors and Consuls. Also, the Forns necessary to be used in Applications or Petitions to the King in Council, Houses of Lords and Commons, Government Offices, Public Companies, &c. &c.—By the Author of the Peerage and Rassonatons Charts &c.

etage Charts, &c. paroneringe Charts, etc.

"Give unto every man his proper title, lest he be offended, and ye betray our ignorance."—*Paulus.*Printed for G. and W. B. Whittaker, Ave Maria-lane.

THE KING'S SECOND LETTER TO HIS PEOPLE, This day is published, in 8vo, price 2s, printed uniformly with the 21th Edition of the former Letter.

A SECOND LETTER FROM THE KING TO HIS PEOPLE.
Published by William Sams, Bookselter to H. R. H. the Duke of York, I. St. James's Street, of whom may still be had the First Letter from the King, a new Edition of which (being the 24th) is now ready

This Day is published, in termo, price 2s, bds.

A NNALS of the PARISH; or, the CHRONICLE of DALMAILING, during the Ministry of the Rev. Micab Balwhilder; written by Himself. Arranged and edited by the Author of "The Ayrabite Legatees," Printed for T. Cadell, Strand; and W. Blackwood, Edinburgh.

And in a few Davs will be published, in 12mo.
AYRSHIRE LEGATEES; or, the Correspondence of the Pringle

CAMPHOR LOZENGES, for LOWNESS of SPIRITS, &c CAMPHOR LOZENGES, for LOWNESS of SPIRITS, &c.

THESE LOZENGES have been highly approved, and confidently recommended for some years past, in lowness of spirits, and increased irritability of the nervous system, in the sick or nervous head-ache, inflammatory and purit sore throats, thirst and dryness of the tengue and palate, and in all cases where the Camphor Julep is advised, these Camphorated Lezenges may be taken with superior advantage: they are also a powerful Antisceptic, and are therefore an admirable preventive against infection, and the effects of tamp weather.

Prepared and sold by J. Shepherd, at his Warehouse for the true special processing the search of the search of F EEHOLD to be SOLD or LET, at MAIZE HILL, GREENWICH, A N unusually convenient HOUSE, adapted for a small Family, (however enlargeable at a triding expense), with Coach House, Stable, excellent Garden, and small Field. For variety of interesting Prospects and healthy Spot, the Concern is rarely to be equalled; and part of the Purchase Money may remain for a Term at the usual Interest.—Apply to Mr. Johnson, Boot-maker, Park-place, Greenwich.

TO ALL WHO VALUE THEIR SIGHT.—The sight of the aged restored, the weak sight strengthened, and the perfect sight preserved to extreme old age, by DIXON's IMPROVED SPECTACLES. To be had only at 93, Newman street, two doors out of Oxford-street, Manufacturer to the late Mr. Bradberry, and since his death has commenced Business at the above place, where the Improved Spectacles can now only be had that is anctioned by most of the Faculty, for the benefit of weak and impaired vision.—Please to observe 93, Newman-street, as there are many humble imitations of his Improved Spectacles offered to the Public.

BURGESS's NEW SAUCE for general purposes, having given such great approbation, and the demand for it continuing to increase, JOHN BURGESS and SON beg most respectfully to offer this their best acknowledgements to the Public for their liberal patronage of the same: its utility and great convenience in all climates, has recommended it to the most distinguished foreign connexions, who have all spuken highly in its recommendation.—It is prepared by them ONLY; and for preventing disappointments to families, all possible care has been resorted to, by each bottle being sealed upon the cork with their firm and address, as well as each label having their signature, without which it cannot be genuine.

JOHN BURGESS and SON'S long established and much-esteemed ESSENCE of ANCHOVIES, continues to be prepared by them after the same manner that has given the greatest satisfaction for many years.—Warehouse, 107, Strand, corner of the Savoy-steps, Lendon.—The original Fish-Sauce Warehouse. BURGESS's NEW SAUCE for general purposes, having given Warehouse.

HALL'S sublime TURKISH PASTE, CIRCASSIAN and FACE POWDER.—The above elegant preparations, which are so universally approved by Ladies of the first rank and fashion, as the most innocent and beautiful assistant to nature, by imparting to the skin that soft and inconceivable fairness, is now prepared, in the highest state of perfection; the Proprietor having lately imported a quantity of the necessary ingredients, will prevent in future any possible disappointment.—One Pound Note Packages, containing two large Pots and two Packets of the Powder, or four small Pots and four small Packets, are forwarded to all parts of Town or Gountry, and warranted to arrive safe.

N. B. Observe the above are only to be had of the most respectable Dealers of Perfumery or Milliners in the Country, in single Pots, at 10s. 6d. and 5s. 6d.; and the Powder in Packets, 2s. 6d. and 1s. 6d, and should be asked for in the name of the Proprietor, whose signature is on the outside of each.—Patent Violet Soap and Chemical Laboratory, No. 28, Hadlow-street, Burton Crescent, Lendon.—J. B. HALL.

PATENT ECONOMICAL 404 TYPERPAL LAMP.

DATENT ECONOMICAL and The REAL LAMP. This Invention embraces every requisite to sended. It a domestic comfort in the more general use of Lamps instead of Candles, giving to the Public the choice of an improved light, in which there is perfect safety, at half the expense of Candles. The Chamber or Night Light being universally interesting to all families, and particularly to many pracessions, may be best appreciated by a fair comparison with others, which are most resorted to, viz, the Rush Light, an eld servant, but it must be allowed, a drowsy one, and totally unit for motion. The wax-wick, stuck upon cork, firsting in oil upon water, of mare modern date, but must be stationary, subject to the cork catching fire, br aking to glass it floats in, causing a suffocating amell, consuming much oil, and a constant expense for the wicks. The Patent Economical Chamber Lamp; no expense but for oil, and that only at the rate of a halfpenny for edition line hours, giving a brilliant light, always ready at the moment it is water bearing any motion, and can be regulated to burn the longest or shorted night, disappearing in the morning without smoke or small. The price is in janus stands, and 20s. in fancy bronze and Imperial metal. The superinciple applies, with peculiar advantage, to the larger Lamps, for the dimensional as sideboard, upon a handsome scale, swited to the affuent, and elegant pedestals, 55s. to 65s.; and for the study, to write or read by (shapera) they are every thing that can be wished, at 35s. to 45s. and option and all minor uses they are aqually desirable. The Grechus Glass Hanglage Lamps for the Staircase, Passaye, Conservatory, Hall, &c. are perfectly ney in taste, and clogantly simple, from 30s. to 75s. the latter upon a larger scale, and they are supported by simple from 30s. to 75s. the latter upon a larger scale, in taste, and clogantly simple, from 30s. to 75s. the latter upon a larger scale for the supported and other Professional Gentlemen in every part of the kingdom, and for all minor uses t

Spermaceti.

N.B. Families or Persons residing in, or Passengers to, the East or West Indies, South America, &c. will find these Lamps a valuable acquisition, being calculated to burn Nut Oil as well as Spermaceti.

Strand, near Somerset House, remeved from 392, Strand.—G. F. UR.

LING and CO. beg to historia the Fashionable World, that they have prepared for the Season a various and extensive Assortine at of their PATENT LACE DRESSES, from four Quineas to one hundred Guineas each; some of which, from recent improvaements, they hundry pressume to compare with the most perfect foreign productions. Also a great variety of Veils, Seark, Squares, Laces, Nets, &c.; of every description. This peculiarly clear and transparent Article having, in the higher circles, superseded the use of common Lace, which becomes rough and full of fibre on the first washing, the Patentees respectfully apprise the Public, that the latter is frequently starched to conceal its defects, and make it resemble Urling's Lace, which, therefore, can only be relied upon as genuine at their Wholesale and Retall Establishment in Lemion, or of the Country Dealers supplied by them.—Every Article is distinguished by a Seas, with the Patentee's Initials, 24. F. U. and Co." and the words, "by the Clate) Queen's authority." Spadmens, shewing the superiority of Urling's Lace over common Lace, may be seen in Ackermann's Repository, La Belle Assemblee, and other fashionale works, and may be had grafts, by application, post-paid, to G. F. Urling & C. Ceuntry Dealers supplied upon the most liberal terms.—Manufactor, Basford, Nettinghamshire. IJRLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brussels fabric), 174,

A ROWLAND and SON respectfully caution the Public against A sparrous Articles. Under their Names Impostors have signed their Imitations. A. Rowlandson, which deception-renders it necessary to observe the true signature. A. RowLaND and SON, in Red Ink, which is wrote on each Bottle of their Genuine Articles, as follows:—11

ROWLAND's MACASSAR OIL, the Original and Genuine, which for many years has been universally admired, and is acknowledged to be the best and cheapest article for usurishing the Hair, promoting a luxuriant growth, and rendering it elegant and beautiful. Its superior and tried virtues have gained it the patronage of Royalty and many Noble Personages, and is attested by an immense multitude of witnesses. Price 3s. 6d.; 7s.; 10s. 6d.; and One Guinea per Rottle.

Also, ROWLAND's ESSENCE ORTYRE.—By merely wetting the flate with this Preparation, the Proprietors warrant to produce immediately a perfect change in RED or GREY HAIR, WHISKERS, EYE-BROWS, &c. to a beautiful glossy and permuent Brown or Black, initiating the exact natural colour. Washing makes this Dye the more durable. Ladles or Gentlemen may dye their Hair with ease and secresy. Price 4s. 7s 6d. and 16s 6d.

Sold, Wholesiae, Retail, and for Experiation, by the Sole Proprietors, A. ROWLAND and SON, corner of Kirby-street, the first turning on the right in Hatton-garden, Holborn, London; and by appointment, by all Perfusers and Medicine Venders throughout Europe.

**G** Ask for Rowland's Oil, or Rowland's Dye, and observe the Signature on the label to cach bottle.

**Towledge Signature of the Rowland's Dye, and observe the Signature on the label to cach bottle.

**AROWLAND and SON.**

BIRTHS.

On Friday, the 25th inst. the Lady of Thomas Wenham, Req. of Bruspiesow, of a daughter.
On Monday last, Mrs. George Battys, of Camden Hill, Kensington, of a daughter.
On Monday last, Mrs. William Maunder, of Dover-street, Philipped

a son.

At Baugalere, on the 6th of December, the Lady of Lieut.-Cal. Ed. Garry Fleming, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

MARRIAGES.

On Wednesday, at the New Church, Mary-le-Bone, the Rev. Civistopher Parkins, of Gresford, in the county of Denbigh, to Anne Arabella, second daughter of the late William Boscawen, Esq.

On Tuesday, at St. George's, Hanover square, G. Tufnell, Esq. late of the 3d Regt. of Guards, to Maria Newton, second daughter of the late C. H. Korright, Esq. of Hylands, Essex.

On Tuesday, the 15th inst. at Clifton Church, Captain Long, late of the Royal Horse Guards (Blue), and eldest son of John Long, Esq. of Thehead Lodge, Wilts, to Mary, eldest daughter of Edward Daniel, Esq. Barrister at Law.

On Tuesday last, at Turvey Beds, Col. J. G. Scott, of the East India Company's Madras Establishment, to Harriet, eldest daughter of the late John Higgins, Esq. of Turvey House.

DIED. On Monday morning, at his house an Bernard-street, Russell-square, to the 3d year of his age. Alexander Auldjo, Esq.
On Sunday, the 13th inst. at her apartments in Michael's place, Brompton, firs. Storace, at a very advanced age.
On Thursday, the 10th inst. aged 58, the Rev. P. Jonn, of Walsinghota, Durham.

On Thursday, the 10th inst. ageu no, was assumed to Durham.
On Monday aftermon, at about five o'clock, at the house of the Noble East, in Portman square, after an indisposition of nearly two years, the Countess of Chatham. Her Ladyship's name was Mary Blizzheth, second daughter of the late Viscount Sydney, and sister of the present Viscount.
On Wednesday, William, youngest son of Mr. John Murray, of Alberticett.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Kaye, wife of Joseph Kaye, Esq. of New

On Wednesday, Mrs. Kaye, wife of Joseph Raye, Esq. of buildings.

On Friday se'nnight, after a short illness, Mrs. Partridge, the Law of Roger Partridge, Esq. of Queen Anne-street West, Cavendish-square.

On Monday last, Miss, Lee, of Sloane-street, ged 75.
On Saturday se'nnight, Mrs. Charlette Lewis, wife of Mr. Thomas Law, of Turnham Green, in the 71st year of her age.
On Tuesday last, in the 25th year of her age, Mary, the eldest daughter of Robert Gibson, Esq. of Upper Tooting.
At Hydrabad, the 2d of last December, Lieut.-Col. Henry Mason, of the Madras Cavalry, sincerely and deservedly regretted.
On Monday last, at her residence, Stafford-row, Pimlico, Mrs. D. Bratall, aged 83.

On the 12th inst, at Chelsea, aged 72, James Stevens, Esq.
On Sunday, the 20th inst, after a short illness, at his house if States have Cannon-street, Francis Smith, aged 83.
Cannon-street, Francis Smith, aged 83. At Schwerin, after a short illness, on the 6th inst the Duke Adolphus Frederick of Mecklenburg, to the great sorrow of the Grand Ducal Family, and of the numerous persons to whom he was a generous benefactor.

				- ++
PRICES	of the	PUBLI	C FUN	DS.	الد فان معلى سامة و
STOCKS.	Mon.	Tues.	Wed.	Thur.	Fred .
Bank Stock	228	2274	228	224	2284 22
3 per Cent. Reduced	748	135	74	743	741 74
3 per Cent. Consols		75	74}	25 }	75 75
31 per Cent. Consols		63 ۇ	834	759	75 761
Consols for Account		75	7.5		92 92
4 per Cent. Consols	92	921	929	923	110 1101 91
5 per Cent. Navy	1103	1458	1094	1097	19 19
Bank Long Annuities		18	18	47 P	49 D -
India Bonds	45 p		46 p	2 p	1 D 3 42P
Exchequer Bills, 2d		3 p	3 p	2.5	_   _
Ditto, 21d	_			_	العند
Omnium	- 1

LONDON: Printed and Published by R. T. WEAVER, No. 11, JOHNSON'S COURT, FLEET-STREET, where only Communications to the Editor, (post paid) are received.

" FOR GOD, THE KING, AND THE PEOPLE!"

No. 25

Some S.

SUNDAY, JUNE 3, 1821.

Price 7d.

NEW MUSIC. Sir JOHN STEVENSON.—" The Day-beam is over the Sea," the Venetian Boat Song, sung with the most unbounded applianse at the Lendon, Bath, and Dublin Concerts; arranged for one, two, or three voices; the words written by J. A. Wade, Esq. the Masic composed by the celebrated Sir J. A. Stevensan, Mus. Boc. price 3s. This piece, from the richness and the beautiful simplicity of the melody, has already ranked "If among the mest admired productions of the day. Blinor's Song, "And thou bid my heart forget," from Glenarvon, as sung by Mrs. Ashe at the Bath Concerts with enthusiastic applianse; composed by F. J. Klose, price 1s. 6d. This is the third edition. "Bear Harpof Sweet Erin," Ballad; sung by Mr. Leosi Lee, with the greatest applianse, at the Theatre Royal, Publin, written by Miss Chapman, composed by Bernard Lee, price 1s. 6d.—London: printed by Phillips and Mayhew, Music sellers to H. R. H. the Duchess of Kent, 17, Old Bond-street.

"A ULD lang Syne," "Auld Robin Gray," "Charlie's my darling, "Sc. for the Plano Forte, by J. F. Burrowes. Also a Series Caledenian Airs, as Piano Forte Duets, by the same Author, comprising, "Scots wha hae," "John Anderson," "Duncan Gray," &c. Sold by Gaulding and Co. 20, Scho-square; Chappelland Co. 50, Bond-street, and all the Music Sheps.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That on the 14th day of May, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That on the 14th day of May, 1821, as Order was signed by the Rev. George Gaskin, Doctar of Divinity, and William Wix, Esq. two of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the County of Middlesex, for turning, diverting, and stopping up a certain PUBLIC FOOTPATH, within the Parish of Stoke Newington, in the County of Middlesex, called the WILLOW WALK, leading from Coach and Horses Lane, in the Parish of St. Mary, Islington, in the County aforesaid, to the High Read from Newington aforesaid, to London; and that the said Order will be ledged-with the Clerk of the Peace for the said County, at the General Quarter Sessions of the Peace to be holden at the Sessions House, Clerkenwell-green, in and-for the said County, on Monday, the 16th day of July next: And also, that the said Order will, at the said Quarter Sessions, be confirmed and enrolled, unless upon an Appeal against the same, to be then made, it be otherwise determined.

ROBERT OLDERSKAW, Junior.

the same, to be then made, it be otherwise determined.

ROBERT OLDERSKAW, Junior.

ROBERT OLDERSKAW, Junior.

CORONATION OF HIS MAJESTY GEORGE THE FOURTH.

C WAYTE, Furrier to the King, Robe Maker, &c. late of Panton-street, Haymarket, has the homour to acquaint the Nobility and Public in general, that he has REMOVED to more extensive Premises if REGENT-STREET, opposite the County Fire Office, where he solicits a continuance of their favours.

The Peers of England, the Knights Grand Crosses, and the Knights Commanders of the Bath, are respectfully informed, that they can be supplied with every Article necessary for the CORONATION, of the best quality, properly diffed, in conformity to the official regulated Costume, on the very lowest possible Terms.

A FIGURE in the COMPLETE CORONATION HABIT may be inspected by the Nobility and Persons accompanying them; as also Coronets, Robes, and the White Satin Dresses, richly trimmed with Gold or Silver Lase and Fringe, which take a considerable time in preparing; Orders cannot therefore be too early given.

TOMKINS PICTURE LOTTERV

TOMKINS' PICTURE LOTTERY.

MR. TOMKINS begs respectfully to inform the Public, that his LOTTERY will be drawn on the
TWENTY-FOURTH OF JULY NEXT,

TWENTY-FOURTH OF JULY NEXT,
the Trustees appointed by the Act having certified in the London Gazette their entire approbation of the ability and skill displayed in the finishing of the various Works constituting the Prizes.
Tickets, 3f. 3s. each, may be had at Nos. 53 and 54, New Bond-street, where Specimess of the Prizes are exhibited, gratis, and at all the Lottery Offices.
The Purchaser of a Red Ticket, and a Black Ticket, is sure to gain a Prize.

POPULAR NOVELS, LATELY PUBLISHED.

Fancy, by Miss Burney, 3 vols. 24s,
2. CLARENTINE; by the same Author, Second Edition, 3 vols. 21s.
3. PRECAUCION, or the Matrimonial Balance, 3 vols. 21s.
4. SCHEMING, a Novel, 3 vols. 21s.
5. PALMYRE of FLAMINIE, on Ic Secret. Par Mad. de Genlis, Second tion, 2 vols. 8s. Also, by the same Author, PETRARCH and LAURA, 2 vols. 10s. 6d. French, 8s.

ADVENTURES of JULIEN DELMOUR, comprising many frious Ancedores, connected with the French Revolution, 4 vols. 24s.

8. FLORENCE MACARTHY, by Lady Mergan, 4 vols. 28s.

8. FLORENCE MACARTHY, by Lady Mergan, 4 vols. 28s.

10. GLENARVON, Fourth Edition, 3 vols. 24s.

11. RHODA, by the Ingenious Author of "Plain Sense," and "Things by heir Right Names," 4 vols. 28s.

12. HAROLD the EXILE, 3 vols. 18s.

13. The HEROLNE, or Adventures of a Fair Romance Reader. By E. S.

13. The HEROINE, or Adventures of a Fair Romance Reader. By E. S. Barrett, Esq. 3 vols. 18s.

Printed for Henry Colburn and Co. Conduit-street; Bell and Bradfute, Edinburgh; and John Cumming, Dublin.

MEDICAL BLANK LABELS, 5s. 6d. a Thousand, or 4,000 for 1l. They are made by an Engine, nearly embossed, and ready to tie on. Gentlemen in the country remitting 1l. post-paid, will receive the above carriage free. Direct to H. Burtonshaw, Stationer, 132, St. Martin's-lane; or T. Woodham, Stationer, 34, High Helborn.

In a few days will be published, price 12s. 6d.

THE SELF-INDICATIVE TIME TABLES, by the Translator of ALCEDO.—Longman, Hurst, and Co.; Carpenter, Old Bond-street; and Richardson, Cornbill.

and Richardson, Cornbill.

GREEK COMMON PRAYER.

Just published, in one very small volume, beautifully printed, price 5s,

GREEK TRANSLATION of the BOOK of COMMON

PRAYER.—Printed for Samuel Bagster, No. 15, Paternoster Row.

Where may be had, in uniform volumes, price 5s. each,

Translations into Latin, German, French, Spanish. Modern Greek, or Trailin: or the Bight Volumes in One Set, including the English; price 21.

MEVER DESPAIR; or. THE ELDEST DAUGHTER.
In the Press, and will be published on Monday, the 11th, with a suitable Preface,
THE COMEDY of NEVER DESPAIR; or, The ELDEST DAUGHTER, from the Pen of the Author of The LETTER from the ENG to his PEOPLE.

THE DECIDED ADVANTAGES of inspecting an entirely new Stock of TOWN PRINTED CHINTZ FURNITURES, MOBBENS, DIMITIES, &c. and comparing the Patterns and Prices with old Goods. were never made more evident than at the NEW CHINTZ FURNITURES with old Goods. were never made more evident than at the NEW CHINTZ FURNITURE and MOREEN WAREHOUSE, No. 134, Oxford-street, mearly opposite Hanover-square, just spened by MILES and EDWARDS, from the Corner of Great Turnstile, Holborn.

CONSOLATION to the TREMULOUS in WRITING.

CONSOLATION to the TREMULOUS in WRITING.

MOST effectual Solace now exists in the PATENT WRITING RENOVATOR, a little instrument, inestimable to those who experience any difficulties in the command of the pen, arising from weakness of age or otherwise, and nerrous affection, heat of climate, excess and over-exertions, agitation of spinits, sprain, or loss of thumb, or any other cause or difficulty in holding the pen.

The Patentee urges those whem this is intended to benefit, to a trial of *A, assuring them that it is capable of giving firmness, confidence, and freedom, which a few minutes practice will evince. It is honoured by the recommendation of Surgeon Ashley Cooper, and other respectable professional gentlemen. In addition to this, it may not be improper to quote the expressions of two first-rate Writing-masters, on the trial of it:—"How extraordinary, that so long as this world has existed, this has not been produced before."—Dr. Kelly. "Millions yet unborn will bless this invention."—Mr. Tomkins. It appearance when in use is such as to greape observation, and will last a man's life time. Made in clastic gold, price Two Chulness.

Sold for the Patentee, by T. Pearce and Co. 288, opposite the front of St.

Sold for the Patentee, by T. Pearce and Co. 268, opposite the front of St.

AMBROSIAL PASTILLES.

"See spicy clouds from lowly Sharon rise,
"And Carmel's flow'ry top perfumes the skies!"

THE Nobility are very respectfully informed these AROMATIC PASTILLES, are of an exquisitely fragrant and luxurious ocour, being composed of the most costly Orientzl Guns. Spices, and rich Perfumes, which, from their Ambrosial Qualities, seem like "a thorsand fragrant posies," and are therefore admirably calculated for diffusing "sweet smelling odours" in the Drawing Room, and Ball Room, truly constituting

"The perfumed chambers of the great," and considered highly delectable and exhibit atting at Balls, Routs, and all Assemblies of Fashion, producing "sweets as from the myrtle and citron groves," for

"Tis hard to say what seem the same the same line."

groves," for

"Tis hard to say what scent is uppermost;
Nor this part musk, ar civet can we call,
Or amber, but a rich result of all."

They are of essential service in removing any unpleasant exhalations, or noxious effluvia, that may prove offensive to the olinectory nerves, when the cloth is removed from the dinner table, and in the rooms of sick persens.—
Prepared and sold only by J. SHEPHERD, 176, Pleet-street, London, boxes at 5s. and 10s each.

THE KING'S SECOND LETTER TO HIS PEOPLE,

Just published, in 8vo. price 2s. printed uniformly with the 24th Edition of the former Letter,

A SECOND LETTER from the KING to his PEOPLE.—
Published by Wm. Sams, Bookseller to His Royal Highness the Duke of York; 1, St. James's street, of whom may still be had,

2, The FIRST LETTER from the KING, a new Edition of which, (being the 24th) is now ready for delivery.

(3) In reference to an Advertisement in the John Bull of Sunday last, Wm. Sams is desirous of declaring, most explicitly, that a "Second Letter from the King to his People," is not from the people of the Author of the "First Letter from the King to his People," is not from the people of the Author of the "First Letter from the King to his People,"

W. Sams is furthermore induced to add, that he should willingly have attached such notice to his Advertisements of the "Second Letter," had he not conceived it might have been supposed an invidious discrimination between the two productions, which, from disintenested and loval motives, have aimed at the self-same object—the vindication of the Royal Personage whose name has been assumed (he trusts not disrespectfully) to countenance the sentiments which both Letters have displayed.

TO BE SOLD, HOE-PLACE, SURREY.

TO BE SOLD, HOF-PLACE, SURREY,

A very handsome convenient FAMILY HOUSE, with every domestic Office attached, a good Garden, Lawn, Plantaffon, and a running Stream passing through the Ground, which consists of 20 Acres, with a Farm, if wanted, of between 90 and 100 Acres, situated in the Parish of WOKING, 25 miles from London, and three from Ripley. Particulars at Mr. Bates's, Welbeck-street.

A LADY, or Steady SINGLE GENTLEMAN may be accommo-A dated with APARTMENTS in a highly respectable PRIVATE FAMILY, situated in the most desirable part of Peckham.—Letters ad dressed, (post-paid) to K. H. Mr. Webling, High-street, Peekham.

BRIEF OBSERVATIONS upon the Bill now before Parlinment, "To Amend the Laws relating to the Relief of the Poor in England,"—By W. H. BODKIN, Esq. Honorary Secretary to the Mendicity Seciety, &c. &c.—To be had of Hatchard and Son, Piccadilly: J. M. Richardson, 23, Cornhill: Crew, Grenville-street, Brunswick-square, and all other Booksellers.

Lately published, in 2 vols. rayal Svo. price 2l. 2s, in boards,

A TREATISE of the LAW of PROPERTY arising from the RELATION of HUSBAND and WIFE, comprising inter alia, Curtesy, Dower, Jointures, Settlements, Wife's Separate Property, Separation, Separate Maintenance, &c. with Precedents adapted to the Work.—By R. S.
DONNISON ROPER, Esq. of Gray's lun, Barrister at Law.—London; printed for Henry Butterworth, Law Bookseller, 7, Fleet-street, between the Temple Gates.

Just published, in Svo, price 14s.

OLIVER CROMWELL and HIS TIMES.— By THOMAS CROMWELL. With a Portrait, from an Original Painting in the Anthor's possessien, a Fac-Simile of Cromwell's Signature and Seal to the Warrant for Beheading Charles I. Original Memoirs of his Descendants, Letters, and other interesting Documents.—Printed for John Warren, Old Sond-street

Just published, in foolscap 8vo. price 7s.

THE GARDEN of FLORENCE; and other POEMS.—By JOHN HAMILTON,—London: Printed for John Warren, Old Bond-parish Tale, with other Poems.—By the Rev. G. CROLV, A.M.—Alse, by the same Author.

2. The ANGEL of the WORLD, an Arabian Tale; SEBASTIAN, a Spanish Tale, with other Poems, Svo. 8s. 6d.

3. PARIS in 1815, a Poem, second Edition, 8vo. 5s. 6d.

4. LINES on the DEATH of the PRINCESS CHARLOTTE, 8vo. 3s. 6d. Printed for John Warren, Old Bond-street.

MR. HAZLITTS NEW WORK.

Just published, in 8vo. price 14s, in heards.

Just published, in 8vo. price 14s. in boards,

TABLE-TALK; or, ORIGINAL ESSAYS.—By WILLIAM

TABLE-TAIR; OF, ORIGINAL ESSAYS.—By WILLIAM HAZLITT.

CONTENTS:—On the Pleasure of Painting—On the Fast and Future—On Genius and Common Sense—Character of Cobbett—On People with one Idea—On the Ignorance of the Learned—The Indian Jugglers—On Living to One's Self—On Thought and Action—On Will-making—On certain Inconsistencies in Sir Joshus Reynolds's Discourses—On Faradox and Common-place—On Vulgarity and Affectation.

Printed for John Warren, Old Bend-street.

Printed for John Warren, Old Bond-street.

NEW POEM, WITH ILLUSTRATIONS.

Just published, in royal 8vo, with 26 plates, price $1s.

TAKINGS, or the LIPE of a COLLEGIAN: a Poem; illustrated by Twenty-six Etchings, from Designs, By R. DACLEY, Author of "Select Gems from the Antique," a Compendium of the Theory and Practice of Drawing and Painting, &c.

"Perhaps it may turn out a Song,
"Perhaps itmo out a Sermon,"—Burns.

London: Printed for John Warren, Old Bond-street, and G. and W. B.

Whittaker, Ave Maris-lane.

BURMHAN EMPIRE Just published in 8vo. with coloured plates, 18s. hoards,
JOURNAL of a RESIDENCE in the BURMHAN EMPIRE, and more particularly at the Court of Amarapoerah.—By Captain HIRAM COX, of the Hou. East India Company's Bengal, Native Infantry.—
London: Printed for John Warren, Old Bond-street, and G. and W. B. Whittaker, Ave Maria-lane

GEORGE THE FOURTH.
Just published, in octavo, price 28, 6d. OBSERVATIONS on the PUBLIC LIFE of the KING.—By the Rev. GEORGE CROLY, A.M.—Printed for John Warren, Old Bond-street; and William Blackwood, Edinburgh.

PROSE TRANSLATIONS OF LATIN AUTHORS.

Just published, price b. 6d. beards,

CÆSAR'S COMMENTABLES,—By DUNCAN; with Wood

CESAR'S COMMENTARIES.—By DUNCAN; with Wood.

2. VIRGIL. By J. Davidson. 6a. 6d.

As it has ever been considered superfluous to print a Work, which is only intended as a book of reference, in a large type, in order to swell the Volume, the present Translations have been published in such a form as to be seed at a moderate price.

It is intended to form a Series, on a similar plan, of Translations of other Latin Authors, for which a general order may be given by any Gentlemen who wish to continue them.

Each Author, as published, may be had separate.

Printed by A. J. Valpy, and sold by Sherwood and Co.; Stapkin and Oc. Leadon; Parker, Oxford; Barrett, Cambridge; Maeredie, Edinburgh; Oursening, Publia; and of all other Becksellers.

Just published, hot-pressed, price 2s. 6d. (continued monthly),
SELECT BRITISH DIVINES.—Part III. containing ArchbyLeighton's Theological Lectures. With a Portrait. Edited by the Rev.
C. BRADLEY, Curate of High Wycombe, and Author of Two Volumes of

C. BRADLEY, Carate of High Wycombe, and Author of Two Volumes of Sermons.

No. IV. will centain Leighton's Commentary on Peter. After which will succeed some of the Works of Hall, Hopkins, Horne, Howe, Doddridge, Watts, W. Jones, Flavell, Charnock, Owen, Baxter, &c. &c.

This Work will consist of a uniform Reprint of all the most valuable Pieces in Devotional and Practical Divinity. The Authors, from whose Writings they will be selected, are those who have either been consistent Members of the Established Church, or whose Sentiments have been in strict accordance with the general tenor of its Liturgy and Articles. The Pieces will occasionally be taken from those Divines, who were the ornaments of the English Church in the century preceding the last.

A short Biographical Sketch of each Author will be given, and, in some instances, a Portrait.

The Work may be comprised in 40 or 50 Volumes, but any Author may be purchased separately. Parts I. and H. making a Volume, and centaining Bishop Beveridge's Private Thoughts, with a Portrait, may be had, price 5s. Printed by A. J. Valpy, and sold by Longman and Co.; Rivington and Co.; Hamilton; Hatchard and Son, London; and all other Booksellers, of whom the Work may be had regularly with the Monthly Reviews and Magazines.

Just published, price 6s. 6d.

THE PAMPHLETEER, No. XXXVI.; or Record of the best
Pamphlets (entire) of the day, on both sides of every Question.

Ou the NECESSITY of STRIKING OFF PART of the NATIONAL

L. On the NECESSITY of STRIKING OFF AND DEBT. Original.

11. TWO LETTERS TO LORD BYRON, in answer to his Lordship's Letter on the Rev. W. L. Bowles's Strictures on the Life and Writings of Pope. By the Rev. W. L. Bowles.

111. On CRIMINAL JURISPRUDENCE, with the Braft of a New Penal Code. By J. T.B. Beaumout, F.A.S. Continued from the last No. IV. A LETTER to the SECRETARY to the BOARD of AGRICULTURE, &c. in reply to his Letter to the President of the Board of Trade, &c. By Capt. R. E., Broughton. Original.

V. On. the PRESENT DEPRESSED STATE of AGRICULTURE. Original.

&c. By Capt. R. E. Broughton. Original.
V. On the PRESENT DEPRESSED STATE of AGRICULTURE. Original.
VI. SURE METHODS of attaining a LONG and HEALTHFUL LIFE; with the Means of correcting a bad Constitution. By Lewis Cornaro. Translated from the Italian, 33d Edit.
VII. BRIEF OBSERVATIONS on the COPY-RIGHT BILL; in a Letter to the Bishop of Norwich. Original.
VIII. FURTHER CONSIDERATIONS on the CORN QUESTION, &c. Original, continued from No. 31.
IX. On MARRIAGE and DIVORCE; with reference to the Pamphlet in No. 34. Original.
X. A LETTER to LORD BYRON, protesting against the Immolation of Gray, Cowper, and Campbell, at the shrine of Pope.
Printed by A. J. Valpy; sold by Sherwood and Co.: Black, Kingsbury, and Co. London; and all other Booksellers; where it may be had regularly, by giving a general order.
Each Number on the average, contains ten or twelve Pamphlets, thus reducing the price of each to about 6d.
The peculiar advantage of this plan is, that it forms an imperishable Record of the most valuable Pamphlets.
Complete Sets may be had bound, or in Numbers, 6s. 6d. each. Four Nosare published annually.
RC This Work is particularly adapted for Clubs and Institutions.

HARRISON WILKINSON'S NEW SYSTEM OF Calculated to save the Nation annually £24,500,000, and enancipate it from difficulty, danger, and distress; just published, by C. Chapple, at the Royal Library, Pall Mall, and sold by all town and country Booksellers, page 326

THE PRINCIPLES of a NEW EQUITABLE and EFFICIENT SYSTEM of PINANCE. Also,
2. PROPERTY against INDUSTRY, price 1s, 6d.

2. PROPERTY against INDUSTRY, price is 6d.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.

A LADY, who for many years has had the charge of a very small and select Society of grown up YOUNG LADIES, has a YACANCY. This Establishment will particularly suit such, who for the want of a Parent, stand in need of a friend and protectress to act that part. Their religion and morals are strictly attended to, and care is taken that they should practise any talent they may have acquired as part of their education; they are, according to age, initiated by degrees to a most respectable Society, their manners much attended to, as well as their health. The Ladies are treated with the greatest kindness and liberality, and are, in all respects, and under a parental roof. They have many advantages not to be met with in other Families. The situation is salubrious, and in the neighbourhood of London. References to persons of the greatest respectability will be given and required. Address (post-paid) to C. M. Messrs. Hatchard's, Booksellers, Piccadilly.

SATURDAY'S GAZETTE, MAY 26.

DIVIDENDS.

June 16, H. and W. Cutbush, Maidstone, carpenters.—June 19, A. Humphrys, Worcester, merchant.—June 19, W. Rust, Sheffield, hair seating manufacturer.—June 18, W. P. Hatch, Shipham, Norfolk, tanner.—June 19, J. Garland, Austin Friars, merchant.—June 16, J. Lawrence, Hatton Garden, weollen draper.—June 16, J. Sparkes and A. Coles, Pertland Street, Saint Mary-le-bone, coach makers.—June 16, G. Webb, Cornhill, dealer.—June 16, C. Hand T. Little, Carlibeliand, cotton manufacturers.—June 16, T. Stunt, Allen Street, Goswell Street, and Ludgate Street, carpet manufacturer.—June 18, B. Fincham the elder, W. Fincham, and B. Fincham the offer, W. Fincham, and B. Fincham the June 23, G. and F. Wardale, Allballows Wharf, Upper Thames Street, oil crushers.—June 20, B. Bewley, Manchester, slateg.—June 19, G. Harris, Birmingham, and J. Edmonds, Aston, near Birmingham, Japanners.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTE.

[This Gasette contains a Proclamation, continuing the prohibition for ex-orting Guapowder, Arms, and Ammunition for six months from the Siet of Crown Office, June 2, 1821.

Member returned to serve in the present Parliament.—Berough of St.

Ivea. Sir Christopher Hawkina, of Trewithen, in the county of Carawall, Bart, in the room of James Robert George Graham, Esq. who has accepted the Chiltern Hundreds.

Commission in the Royal South Gloucester Militia, signed by the Lead Licutenant of the County and City of Gloucester, and of the County and City of Bristel.

David Newman, Gent. to be Ensign.

Commissions in the King's Own Stafordshive Militia, signed by the Vine-Licutenaut of the County of Staford.

The Right Hon. C. T. C. Tallest, commonly called Viscount Ingestre, to be Capt, vice Talbot.—Ensign W. Booth to be Lieut. sice Whateley.

57

Capit vice Taibot.—Ensign W. Booth to be Lieut. vice Whateley.

BANKRUPTCLES SUPERSEDED.

PARK, R. the younger, St. George's-aquare, Portsea, coal-merchant.

RYDE, W. Cannon-street, grocer.

BANKRUPTS.

BYOME BY Cannon-street, grocer.

BYOME BY Cannon-street, grocer.

BANKRUPTS.

BURROWS, E. Warson, Notta miller.

WOFFINDIN, T. and W. ELLIOTT, New Malson, core-factors.

PILLING, J. Huddersfield, currier and heather-cultur.

WHEATLEY, Coventry, silk-dyer.

HARDWICK, Clare-street, butcher.

PARK, R. Jun. Portsea, coal-merchant.

NICOLL, T. Wars, sack-maker.

HANCOCK, W. Bury St. Edmand's, cabinot-maker.

ROBINSON, S. Huddersfield, hosier.

MUNK, W. High-street, Southwark, brandy-merchant.

CHEETHAM, L. Stockpart, surgeon and apothecary.

RAVIS, N. Gracecharch-street, the-plate-worker.

BUMPUS, J. Helborn, bockseller.

BATTLER, J. J. Hinsing-lane, broker.

TUESDAT'S GAZETTE.

CROWN OFFICE, May 29, 1821.

Member Returned to Serve in this Present Parliament.

Baire of Stirling—Henry Weine Drummend, Esq. of Blair Drummend, in the room of Sir Charles Edmonstone, Bart. deceased.

Shire of Stirling—Herry Wome Drumwond, Esq. of Blair Drummond, in the room of Sir Charles Edmonstone, Butt. deceased.

Omnomissions in the Westmorland Yeomanry Cavalry, signed by the Lord Lieut. In Westmorland.

William Clapham, Gent. we be Cornet; John Rumney, Gent. to be Surgeon. Commissions signed by the Lord Lieut. of the East Riding of Yorkshire. George Schonswar, Esq.; Joseph Coltman, Clerk; William Robinson Gilby, Clerk; two Deguty Lieuterants.

Commissions signed by the Lord Lieut. of Bedfordshire.

Milition—Ensign Blackett Robert Harrison, Esq. to be Lieutenant, vice Sweeting, resigned.

Yeomanry Cavalry.—William Hillersdon Colquboun, Gent. to be Cornet. Commission in the Anglesey Militio, signed by the Lord Lieutenant of Anglesey.

Edward Owen, Gent. to be Surgeon, vice — Pritchard, deceased.

PARTNERSHIPS DISSOLVED.

J. and M. and J. Jackon, and O'Leary, Liverpool, general merchants.—Hunt and Bluns, Stockport, cotton spinners.—J. and D. and J. Colling, jun. Gatesbead, and Newcastic-upon-Tyne, hat manufacturers.—Elliott and Avison, Nettingham, Johners.—Blakey and Mitchison, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, milliners.—J. and J. Grace, Bristol, corn factors.—Ackland and Wright, Cannon Street, wine merchants.—J. and J. H. Cooper, Watling Street, muslin manufacturers.—Leyland and Sharples, Aspull, Lancaster, cotton spinners.—Wilcoxon, Stanton, Harding, and Owes, Lombard Street, looking glass manufacturers.—Woolley and Large, Canterbury, millers.—Gater, Knapp, and Paul, bargemssters on the River Itchen.—T. Percival, jun. and G. Percival, Warrington, grocers.—Porrit, Furniss and Fox, Oldham, iron founders.

BANKRUPTS.

BANKRUPTS.

GORELY, T. W. Dover, Kent, felt maker.
HART, W. B. King Street, Cheapeide, merchant.
HOLLIS, J. P. Bolingbroke Row, Newington, Surrey, tailor.
M'CORQUODALE, H. Liverpool, merchant.
NICHOLLE, T. Birmingham, dealer.
SIMPSON, R. Newcastle-upon-Tyne, perfumér.
JONES, F. Redeliffe Hill, Bristol.
WARD, J. Beech, Staffordshire, farmer.
YOUDEN, S. Dover, Kent, carpenter.
DIVIDENDS

WARD, J. Beech, Statiordshire, farmer.
YOUDEN, S. Dover, Kent, carpenter.

DIVIDENDS.

June 22, J. Outram and W. Weish, Liverpool, common brewers.—June 19,
J. Houliston, Thayer Street, Manchester Square, tailor.—June 19, W. J.
Porter, Chelsea, coal merchant.—June 30, G. Royde, Newgate Street, upholsterer.—June 23, T. Courtney, Oxford-Coffee House, Strand, coffee house keeper.—June 25, M. Sweet, Taunton St. Mary Magdalen, Somersetshire, Inn-keeper.—June 25, I. Hill, Rotherhithe, merchant.—June 29, V. Hankinson, Manchester, grocer.—June 30, J. Birch, Manchester, cotton spinner.—June 19, T. Booker, Einsworth, Southampton, miller.—June 20, J. Fullarton, Manchester, suddier and harvess maker.—July 12, T. Marshall, Bramley, Yorkshire, clothier.—June 26, R. Maltby, Mortimer Street, money scrivener.

—June 21, W. and J. Durkin, Southampton, ship builders.

CERTIFICATES—June 19.

W. and J. Bryan, Old Compton Street, Soko, haberdashers.—J. Taylor,
Moreton-in-Marsh, Gloucestershire, wine merchant.—W. L. Houghton, Kingston-upon-Hull, stationer.—J. Hincheliffe, Bradley, Yorkshire, wood merchant.—P. Watkins, Bristol, oil and colourman.—J. Boydell, Bethnal Green, coal merchant.—T. Ward, Warwick Row, Coventry, si k manufacturers.—B. Troughton the elder, and J. Troughton, Wood Street, Cheapside, silkmen, side, silkmen,

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

PARIS, MAY 26.—According to the latest letters from Naples, the august Monarch of the Two Sicilies was to make his solemn entry into the capital of his kingdom on the 15th of this month.

CONSTANTINOPLE, APRIL 19.—The Grand Vizier and the Reis succeed the former; and Achmet, Erib Effendi, the latter. The armaments against the insurgents proceed with great activity: all the Janissaries have taken up arms.

The Moniteur contains a third document issuing from Laybach is a Circular Despatch of the Courts of Austria, Russia, and Prassin, addressed to their respective Legations at Foreign Courts, principles upon which they acted, and the results that have taken place, particularly in the Italian Peninsula.

Count Pezzo di Borgi was expected at Paris, and Baren Vincent had already arrived. Lord Holland had arrived at Rouen, where had already arrived. Lord Holland had arrived at Rouen, where he was passing some days, and was expected at Paris. A person, calling himself Louis Frederic Perrin, has been tried by the Tribunat of Correctional Police, after a mysterious imprisonment of some days. It appears that he was supposed to be Louis Buonaparie; but it turned out that he was the very person whom he represented himself to be. From some suspicious circumstances, however, he was placed at the disposal of the Government.

The King of Spain has used his prerogative of withholding the Royal Assent from a projet relative to Patriotic Societies; and the Minister, in communicating the fact, urged it as a proof of the King's entire liberty of action.

An article from Frankfort, of the 21st, brings some further ac-

An article from Frankfort, of the 21st, brings some further accounts of the affairs of the Greeks. A fresh insurrection, it states, Government had taken refuge within the Austrian territory. No particulars are stated. The Greek corps at Galatz is stated to have received strong reinforcements, so as to be enabled to blockade Brailow. The Tarks had not, as rumoured, arrived at the latter place. Theodore is at Bucharest, awaiting the Turks, who are not yet in sufficient force to attack him.

yet in sufficient force to attack him.

A private letter says—"A report circulates here (Frankfort,) that at the rising of an Extraordinary Council of War at Vienna, a scourier was sent off with despatches of the highest importance to the Commander-in-Chief of the Austrian Army of Observation on the frontiers of Transylvania.

The Moniteur contains a Royal Ordinance, stating, that on the solicitation of the Marquis Barthelemy to be succeeded in his office of Vice-President of the Chamber of Peers, on the grounds of illhealth, the King has accepted his resignation, and, in consideration of his eminent services, has appointed him an Honorary Vice-President. The The same Ordinance appoints the Marquis de Pastoret to Paris Journals down to the 31st of May have arrived. All the intelligence received from Turkey confirms the previous accounts of the deplurable state of Constantinople. We are assured that even the diplomatic Envoys have not been exempt from the insults of the Mussulmen and Janissaries. It is said that Baron Strogonoff was obliged to make his escape in a woman's dress. The Envoy is said to have been roughly treated.

The Count de St. Clkebere, the Russian Ambassador to Eng-nd, arrived yestenday, with his suite, at the Hotel de l'Empire, Rue d'Arlois, No. 13.

NAPLES, MAY 16 .- The King has entered his capital to-day amidst the acclumations of his subjects. One of the brothers of the Rothschilds, who is now at Naples, has recently obtained the title of Marquis from his Sicilian Majesty Lisbon Papers to the 19th ult. reached us yesterday. The Diario of the 16th contains a Decree of the Cortes, regulating the importation of grain and pulse into Portugal. By the first of these articles the importation of all foreign corn, flour, bread, and pulse, is entirely probibited by land, and by sea, except in the ports of Lisbon

M. LAVALETTE. - The Ex-Director of Posts, Las published the following declaration:

"In presence of Almighty God, the avenger of perjury, I declare that, during the eleven months of the year 1814, I never had any correspondence, direct or indirect, with any of the persons who inbabited the Island of Elbs at that epoch, and that I never caused any letter to be written, or received any letter from them.

I declare that I never went, or caused any one to be sent, to the Island of Elba; and, finally, funt I was an entire stranger to the events which prepared and consummated the enterprise of the 20th March, 1815. I make this public declaration, voluntarily, without being moved to it by any arriere peace; without being instigated iny feeling of resentment, but only in the interest of truth had resolved to rend it aloud on the scaffold, and to place it in the hands of the attending ecclesiastic; and I require that it may be presented to me again for signature at the last moment of my life.

"14 May, 1821." "M. M. LAVALETTE."

"14 May, 1821. "M. M. LAVALETTE."

"Except the letter of compliment on new year's day, that I myself communicated to my judges."

LAYBACH, MAY 12.—At the moment when the Congress separated, the following Document was published in the name of the Courts of Austria, Prussia, and Russia :-

" DECLARATION. " Europe is acquainted with the motives of the resolution taken by the Allied Sovereigns to suppress conspiracies, and to terminate disorders which menaced the existence of that general peace, the establishment of which has cost so many efforts and so many sa-

"At the very moment when their generous objects were accom-plished in the kingdom of Naples, a rebellion of a still more odious character, if possible, burst forth in Piedmont.

er the ties which had, for so many generations, united the reigning House of Savoy with the people, nor the benefits of an enlightened Government, administered by a wise Prince, and nadepaternal laws, nor the sad prospect of calamities to which the country was exposed, could restrain the disaffected from their designs.

"The plan of a general subversion was prepared. In this combi-"The plan of a general suprension was prepared. In this constraint against the repose of nations, the conspirators of Pledmont had their part assigned them. They were eager to perform it.

"The Throne and the State were betrayed—oaths were violated—military bonour tarnished—and the contempt of every duty soon produced the scourge of every disorder.

Every where the pestilence exhibited the same character; every re one uniform spirit directed these fatal revolutions.

"Not being able to assign plausible motives in their justifica-tion, nor to obtain national support to maintain them, it was in false doctrines that these contrivers of anarchy sought an apology they founded, upon criminal associations, a still more criminal hope In their eyes, the salutary supremacy of the laws, was a yok which must be destroyed.

"The Allied Sovereigns saw the dangers of this conspiracy in all their full extent, but they had also discovered the real weakness of the conspirators, in spite of their well of declamation and deceit. Experience has verified their unticipations. The resistance which legitimate authority has encountered, has been useless, and crime has disappeared at the sight of the sword of justice.

"It is not to accidental causes—it is not even to the conduct of men, who behaved so ill in the hour of battle—that this easy success should be attributed. It has resulted from a more consolatory principle; from one more worthy of attention.

"Solely employed to contend with, and to put down, rebellion, the Allied forces, far from pursuing any exclusive interests, have arrived to the aid of the people who were subjugated, and the people themselves have regarded the employment of those troops as a support in favour of their liberty, not as an aggression upon their independence. From that moment the war ceased—from that moment the States which revolution had assailed, became the friendly States of those Powers which never wished any thing but their tranquillity and their prosperity.

"In the midst of these grave occurrences, and in a situation thus delicate, the Allied Sovereigns, in concert with the King of the Two Sicilies and the King of Sardinia, have judged it indispensable to adopt temporary measures of precaution, indicated by prudence, and called for by the general good. The allied troops, whose presents for the restoration of order, have been placed in suitable positions, solely for the purpose of protecting the free exercise of legitimate authority, and to assist it in preparing under this ægis, those benefits which may efface every vestige of such portentous misfortunes.

"Filled with these sentiments, the Allied Sovereigns, in termi nating the conferences at Laybuch, have wished to announce to the world the principles by which they have been animated. They are determined mover to abandon them; and all the friends of order will constantly see and find in their union, a sure sufeguard against the enterprises of anarchy.

" Austria—METTERNICH.

" The Baron DE VINCENT.

" Prussia-KRUSEMARK.

" Russia — NESSELEODE.
" CAPO D'ISTRIA

" Pozzo Di Bergo."

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS. MONDAY.

The Royal Assent was given, by Commission, to the Scotch Revenue, the Timber Duties, the Scotch Admiralty Courts, the English and Irish Militia Pay, the Irish Bankrapt Laws Amendment, Public Notaries Regulation, Lunatic Asylum, Holyhead Road, and to several private Bills.

The Westminster Improvement Bill was passed.—Adjourned till Wednesday.

WEDNESDAY.

The Jurors Attendance Bill was passed.

A Petition was presented by the Marquis of Lansdowne from certain inhabitants of New Lanark, praying that the House would take into consideration the plan of Mr. Owen for the relief of the poor. It was laid on the table.

The Earl of Donoughmore moved for certain papers connected with the Irish Courts Regulation Bill, with a view to a better understanding of that measure which went to take away the emoluments of the officers of the Law Courts, and to pay them for their services by stated salaries, and created patronage of 45,000l. a-year. Lord Sidmonth observed, that the Bill merely provided a limited income, in lieu of most exorbitant, undefined, and unlimited fees, which these officers were in the practice of exacting.

The Barl of Limerick and the Marquis of Landowne felt the strong necessity of passing this Bill. The motion was then agreed to.—Adjourned.

FRIDAY.

The Earl of Limerick gave notice that he would move the Se-cond Readings of the Irish Rutes of Interest Bill and the London Wharfs Bill on Tuesday next .- Adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS. MONDAY.

The Irish Election Expence Bill was pased.

Sir J. Mackbatask presented a petition from the inhabitants of St. John's, Newfoundland, complaining of the manner of administering justice in that Colony, and of the severe and extraordinary mode of administering punishments, and praying for the establishment of a local Legislature. The Courts called Surrogate Courts were principally composed of officers in the navy; one man, named Nambert, was cited before them for contempt, for not attending to a suramons, and sentenced to receive 36 lashes; he actually received 14, when he fainted, and the surgeon was of opinion it would be dangerous to proceed with the punishment. The man brought his action in the Supreme Court, but the Judges were of opinion that is would be dangerous to interfere with the decisions of another Court. The Hon. and Learned Gentleman said he had many other cases equally oppressive.

Sir J. Coffin observed, that when he was in the Island of Newfoundland, the cat-o'-nine tails was the only law known there.

Mr. Goulburn conceived the appointment of a local Legislature. to be a question of great delicacy. In some cases, local Legisla-tures were beneficial; in others, pregnant with evils. The mode of administering punishment was a mode that ought not to exist—indoed, the moment His Majesty's Government at home was made acquainted with the circumstance, they issued an order to a recurrence of such a mode of punishment. He did not mean to defend severe punishment, but justice, he contended, was generally administered in the Colonies with impartiality. In the instance complained of, the Court was not composed wholly of Navel officers, for these officers were assisted by one of the Missionaries.

Dr. Lushington condemned in strong terms the mode of punishment complained of ment complained of

ment companied or.

Mr. W. Smith hoped the petitioners would find redress.

Mr. Marryatt supported the petition, which, after some observations from Mr. Wilberforce, was laid on the table.

Sir J. Mackintosh presented another petition to the same effect, from the district of Ferryland, in the said Island.

Major-General Wilson wished to know whether torture was permitted in Demerara. Mr. Goulburn said that general instructions had been given that no punishment should be inflicted in the Colonies unknown laws of England .- The petition was ordered to be printed.

A petition was presented by Mr. Hume, from a person name! Wilkinson, on the subject of Finance, recommending a property tax, as a measure of economy.

On the third reading of the London Wharfs' Bill,

Mr. Hume wished to introduce a clause for the purpose of saving to individuals their right of access to the river.

Mr. C. Calvert was of opinion the clause would nullify the Ball.
The House divided—For the Clause, 7—Against it, 52—Majorih, 45.—The Bill was passed.

The Poor Relief Amendment Bill wont through a Committee, and the further consideration of the Bill was fixed for the 5th of June In a Committee of Supply, Mr. Arbuthnot moved the grant of 137,5001 for the use of the Barrack Department of Great Britain.

Col. Davies objected to the increase in the grant for Barrack Masters and Serjeants, which he thought unnecessary, for the dut, in many places, was done by Barrack Serjeants. The sum of in many places, was done by Barrack Serjeauis. The sum of 13,5001, for pensions and allowances to retired officers did not meet with the gallant Colonel's concurrence. There was also a sum of 74,0001, for building new barracks; this he thought unnecessary. He therefore proposed to amend the vote, by proposing to reduce the grant to 59,5001.

Mr. Arbuthnot admitted, that the sum demanded for Barracks and the salaries of Barrack-Masters was considerable, but when the and the sataries of Darrack-Massers was considered, he was sure a would be trifling. With respect to the appointment of Barack-Massers, he could assure the Committee, that no new appointment had been made, except from the reduced list. After the late was, Barracks were ordered to be prepared sufficient for the accommoda-tion of 150,000 men, but that number had been gradually de-creased; last year, they were reduced to 40,000 men. New Barracks had been constructed, only in the disturbed districts. It was dangerous to allow the soldiery to mix with the people in those districts. A sum of 88,000l. had been voted last year to this purpose, and of this sum 75,000l. remained to be applied to that object.

Sir J. Newport protested against the principle of keeping the people in order by a perpetual burrack establishment.

Mr. Hume observed that in 1792, the whole of the expeace of the barrack department was but 45521, the present year it was 227,0001. A great part of this sum in his opinion, ought to be struck off. He would urge his Hon. Friend to press his amend-

Sir R. Heron protested against the increase of the barrack de

Mr. Bright thought it abourd to make this nation a military one; we were not so by nature, and could not be made so by lat. He re-commended economy, and then we should continue to be the great-est of naval powers, as we had been the freest of people.

Mr. Maberley thought the grant ought to be reduced at less

On a division the numbers were: -For the original motion, 53-

The motion for granting 137,5001. was of course carried.

The next vote was for 280,0001. in which was included a sum of 43,0001. for the expences incurred on the trial of the Queen.

Mr. Henry Grey Bennett objected to this vote for defraying the expenses of an inquiry the most ill-advised, wenton, abandoned, and fingitious, that ever disgraced this country. From its outset, the people rose against it, reproduced it, and curs d it; the children's children's children's those who opposed it, would bless the memories of their parents, whilst the recollection of the supporters of it, would, to the end of time, be associated with ideas of every thing that was been unconsequences as a support of the supporters of it. base, mean, ungenerous, and unmanly. He detested and abhorred the proceedings against the Queen, and he thought it a great hardship that the people should be called upon to pay the expense. He would sooner have died last year, then have voted the sum of 280,0001. for secret services, if he thought any part of it would have been turned against the Queen.

The Chanceffor of the Exchequer expressed his concern that the Hon. Member for Shrawsbury should have been lastrayed into language which was intemperate, when speaking of the proceedings against the Queen. Ministers had never shrunk from responsibility, and were ready to answer for their advice on that occasion, either in that House, or in any constitutional manner.

Mr. Hume was not surprised at the lofty tone assumed by the Right Hon. Gent, when he considered the overwhelming majorific which Ministers possessed. But he had not answered the charges of his Hon. Friend, who, he did not think, had used intemperate language, for the trial of the Queen was the greatest blemis which this country had ever experienced. But he was a little surprised that Ministers should come to that House to ask it to defray the experience of a personal come to that House to ask it to defray the experience of a personal come to that House to ask it to defray the experience of a personal come to that House to ask it to defray the experience of a personal come to that House to ask it to defray the experience of a personal come to that House to ask it to defray the experience of the company to pence of a proceeding instituted by themselves, and in which they had failed. A Noble Marquis, not now present, had said, that as he and his colleagues had begun this proceeding on their own re sponsibility, they must stand or full by the result. It was also said, that if the charres were unproved, the Queen would be emitted to all the privileges of an acquitted person. That pledge, so given by the Noble Marquis, had been violated.—(No, no! from the Ministerial Results). terial Benches.)—He knew not what this mennt; the question was, whether the Noble Marquis had used the words, or whether he had not. He himself (Mr. H.) heard him give the pledge, and, ne the min see in see i he was irregular in alluding to what was said by an absent Mem-Ler in a former debate.

Mr. Hume was of opinion that he could refer to the speech of a Member when that speech had been made in another Session. Mowever, without saying where he heard the Noble Marquis we the words, he would assert that he himself (Mr. H.) did hear the Noble Marquis speak them is a respectable Assembly, though, perhaps, he was lardly warranted in calling it respectable.

Mr. Brogdin.—I must appeal to the Committee if the expectable.

sions of the Hon. Member are not an aspersion upon the charack of this House. I need not repent that such expressions are exceedagly irrogular.

Mr. Beanett observed that he thought the Chairman was t basty in applying his Hon. Friend's words, for he (Mr. Bennett) had him name this or any other Assembly.

Mr. Hume.—Sir, I can easily attribute your calling me to order see, facility with which you applied my words to this House. I Fer mentioned the House of Commons.

Mr. Brogden.-The expressions were too pointed to be misunderstood. I thought them highly disrespectful to this House, and I therefore thought it my duty to call the Hon. Member to order.

Mr. Hume then resumed. With regard to the grant before the Committee, he would not vote one shilling of it until the most sa-tisfactory explanations were given. He wished to know what was become of the property of the late King; if there was any, it might he applied to paying the proceedings in the Queen's case. The Hon. Member then went on, objecting to the several items, and among the rest, to that of 0,000l. for the composition of actions brought against Governor Maxwell, of the Colony of Sierra Leone, who, as the Hon, Gent. stated, had employed the power of his Government to destroy the property of individuals, one of whom, when he got to England, found an honest Jury of Englishmen, who had given a verdict of 12, or 13,0001. against the Governor; and be called upon his Hon. Friend (Mr. Brougham) to support that fact.

He then concluded with moving to reduce the vote to 80,0001, having no objections that Ministers should have at their disposal #60,0001. Mr. Brougham being called upon by his Hon. Friend, agreed with him in the principle which he had laid down, with respect to civil contingencies. He then defended the character of Governor Manwell, and observed, that his Hon. Friend was mistaken in his conclusions in the case of that gallant and meritorious officer. The facts were, a person named Cooke, who brought the action, and two others, all notorious slave dealers, were tried for slave dealing, and Cooke was sentenced to fourteen years' transportation. While on board the hulks, after being brought home, it was discovered the Court had no jurisdiction to try him, though Cooke admitted the fact at Sierra Leone. In England, he brought his action of damages, and pleaded he was an American, and not a British subject, and damages were certainly given to the amount of 12, or 13 thousand pounds, but the persons who got the award were glad to compromise the matter, and take 6,0001. These were the real facts of the case, and he hoped this was the last time he should hear any thing on that subject.

Mr. Arbuthnot entirely agreed with the Hon. Member as to the real merits of the case of Governor Maxwell. Mr. Wilberforce justified the conduct of Governor Maxwell.

Some further conversation took place, in the course of which, Mr. Arbuthaot said his Noble Friend (the Marquis of Londonderry) had found means to reduce the amount of presents to the Persian Ambassador and his Sovereign from 21,0001. to 11,0001.

On the suggestion of Mr. Denman, the amendment of Mr. Hume was withdrawn, and the vote was proposed to be reduced to the sum of 145,0001. This amendment, after some conversation, was withdrawn, and the original amendment proposed by Mr. Hume was re-introduced. On this the Committee at length divided— For it, 77- Against it, 106-Majority, 29.

The original proposition was, of course, agreed to.

A sum of 10,0001, was then voted for the works at the College of Odioburgh.

The next vote was for 40,000l. for completing the Penitentiary at Milbank.

Mr. J. Smith said, he did not see the use of that prison, it was built on an unwholesome site, and was very expensive. He would oncose this grant. Mr. Maberley opposed the grant on the same grounds. Each prisoner cost the country 801. a year, while the prisoners on board the bulks were kept for 171. a-year, each, and the expense of sending convicts to Horany Bayswan only at the rate of 91-per hand. He orosed that no sum be granted for the Pentientiary this year.

Mr. Holford differed from the Hon. Gent. as to the small exprace of sending prisoners to New South Wales. The prison in question would be attended with much benefit, in correcting the morals of culprits.

Mr. Heavy Grey Beanch thought that transportation had ceased to be considered as a punishment. The Penitentiary Houses, as they were called, entailed a heavy expense on the country.

Mr. J. Smith was certain if the 500,0001, expended in the build ing of the Penitentiary prison had been applied to the education of the children of the poor of the metropolis, there would be no occasion for such a prison.

Sir C. Long, in reference to the charge of expence, oh that it was impossible to correct the morals of offenders, without confining them, and that necessarily brought on a heavy expence. He knew that this confinement had been attended with the best effects. Many of the women convicts had gone out from the Penitentiary perfectly reclaimed.

Mr. Maberley at length withdraw his opposition, and the vote was

The House then resumed.

On the motion of Mr. Henry Grey Benucit, an account of the number of advertisements inserted by order of Government in the Dublin re-waspapers, with the names of those papers, was ordered to laid before the House.—Adjourned. WEDNESDAY.

Mr. Wharten brought up the Report of the Committee on the Petersfield Election, which decided the right of voting to be in the burgeses, and in the freehold proprietors of lands, houses, or tene-ects of a certain yearly value in the same.

The second reading of the Bill for establishing an Extra Post was postponed till Monday.

Mr. M. A Taylor moved for leave to bring in a Bill for making same alteration in the mode of administering justice in the Court of Chancery, so as to give more efficient relief to the suitor. He stated, that in 1811 there were 330 Appeal causes set down in the paper of the House of Lords, which, taking the average of proceeding in causes of that description, could not be heard in less than ten years. In Chancery there were 106 original causes and 35 apat present there were no fewer than 116 appeals ing, although a Vice-Chancellor's Court had been established. The n. Gent. then stated various cases which had been a long time before the Court, and protested that he would sooner pay a litigated sum of 4 or 5,000l, than go into Court. In 1758 the money in the hands of the Accountait-General was 2,800,000l. In 1818 the sum was 33,560,000l. He wished to see the different branches in the Court consolidated into one; the Lord Chancellor paid by a salary, and not by the uncertain, and, to the suitors, often harassing, snode of fees. He then adverted to the Court of Exchequer, and proposed to make it a permanent Court of Equity, the Lord Chancellor to be permanent President, &c. He concluded with moving, "That this House will, early in the next session, take into its most serious consideration the present state of the High Court of Chancellor and the Court o cery of England, as well as the appellant jurisdiction of the House of Lords, with a view to the adoption of such measures as may tend to facilitate the general business of both those Courts.

The Marquis of Londonderry thought the House ought to be extremely cautious how they resolved in one Session what they should do in another, especially when the proposition went to make a sweeping change in the Court of Chancery, and to dissolve that which had existed for ages. His object would have the effect of separating the Lord Chancellor from the Cabinet, and deprive the Members of the Ministry from the guidance of such an Officer in all cases of legal difficulty, and give even a new character to the House of Lords. It would be extremely rash for the House to pledge itself to enter upon any such State reform. Besides, various returns on the subject had been moved for, which were not yet before the House, he therefore suggested to the Hon. Member to withdraw his motion for the present (which the Hon. Member declined). The Noble Marquis then moved the previous question.

The Attorney-General contended, that the erection of the Vice Chancellor's Court had contributed to expedite the business of the Court of Chancery.

Mr. Lockhart thought reform was necessary in the Court of

Mr. Serjeant Onslow and Mr. W. Smith made some observations and then the House divided.—For the motion, 52—For the previous question, 56—Majority, 4. The motion, of course, was lost.

The Murquis of Londonderry (on our entering the gullery) was making some observations on papers which related to the office of Lord Registrar of Scotland. The Noble Marquis stated, that a Bill was now in preparation that after the death of the present Lord Registrar the office would merge in that of the Keeper of the Signet, without any addition of salary; the fees would go to remunerate clerks and under agents, who would be deprived of their situations in consequence of the office being abolished. Early in the next Session be would move for a Committee to enquire into the subject.—The papers were then laid on the table.

Mr. J. P. Grant asked whether it was intended to bring forward any measures this Sassion respecting the Timber Duties, in order to complete what had already been done:

Mr. F. Robinson replied in the negative. Government felt, how , that the arrangement had not gone far enough, but it was now too late to propose any thing this Session.

Mr. J. P. Grant then gave notice that early next Session he should bring the subject before the House

Mr. W. Smith gave notice of a motion next Session respecting Extents in Aid.

Mr. S. Wortley moved for a Committee of the whole House to consider of an Address to the King, that his Majesty would be pleased to apply a sum of money towards the remuneration of the pleased to apply a sum of money towards the remuneration of the creditors of Christopher Burton, Esq. Member in the last Parliament for Beverley in Yorkshire. This gentleman had been returned for that place while in the custody of the Warden of the Fleet for debt, and the House had discharged him out of that custody, which stopped all further proceedings. His creditors commenced actions against the Warden for conniving at the prisoner's escape. This matter being a high breach of the privileges of the House, the creditors were ordered to answer at the bar for their conduct; but the native warden against the surface of the surface parties were excused on condition of paying all the expences of the Warden of the Fleet. By this decision of the House the parties were excluded all further redress. The Act upon which Members founded their privileges was made in the reign of James II. on the arrest of Sir John Shirley; but that Member was arrested after his return, so that the case was not like that of Mr. Burton, who was actually in prison at the time of the election, and had been taken in execution. The creditors stated that their own expences, and those of the Warden, exceeded 30001. If his present motion sucexcluding persons elected under circumstances similar to Mr. Burton's from sitting in that House.

Mr. C. Wysne contended the Hon. Member had made out no case to cell for the interference of the Hosse. The Member in question had been six years in custody, and was actually in this country at the present moment. The Act is question gave the creditors the power of seizing when the Member's privileges ceased. Besides, the precedent was bad, for a Member might contract debts, collude with his creditors, and then saddle the House with his debts. He thought, to call upon Members to take the property qualification oath was a sufficient guard.

Mr. Baring opposed the motion, which was negatived.

Mr. Baring opposed the motion, which was negatived.

Mr. Maberieg moved a resolution, declaring the inexpediency of allowing the same interest to be paid upon Irish Trensury Bills as upon Exchequer Bills. He entered into a variety of statements to show that it was a most improvident arrangement to pay 4 per cent, on these Bills, when in England money could be had at 3 per cent, and that it was exceptionable to lodge them in the banks of England and the land, instead of selling them is open market. By this arrangement the public must lose 12,000l. a year.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer objected to the motion, and denied that any thing would be saved to the country by altering the system. With respect to a public sale, it was well known that Irish Treasury Bills never had been publicly sold—an experiment had been made to be sure, but it had failed.

Set I. Menaget said the apprinted was never fairly tried.

Sir J. Newport said the experiment was never fairly tried. On a division, the numbers were-For the motion, 31-Against it, 64—Majority, 33.

Mr. Hume moved for certain papers respecting the Ionian Islands some of which were negatived, and an amendment moved by Mr. Gaulburn for extracts of any dispatches from Major-General Sir Prederick Adam to the Lord High Commissioner, respecting the insurrection at Santa Maura in October, 1819, was agreed to.

Lord Milton moved that the Lords' Amendments in the Grampound Disfranchisement Bill be agreed to. The motion, after some conversation between Mr. C. Wynne, Mr. S. Wortley, the Marquis

On bringing up the Report of the Committee of Supply,

Mr. Brougham called the attention of the House to a circular issued by the Constitutional Society to the Magistracy of England instructing them (as the Hon. Gentisaid) as to the nature of tical libel, enclosing the copy of a pamphlet, written and published by the said Committee, with their opinions, or, in other words, a digest of the law of libel for their guidance. The Society stated, that it was lawful for one or more persons to prefer a bill of indictment; and he (Mr. B.) would deny their right; but he would con-tend, that when such indictments were preferred by large bodies question assumed a different shape Was such co would ask, legal? The Circular went on to state that the Society had commenced several prosecutions for selling libelious publications, some of which had been abandoned on the accused persons expressing contrition and surrendering their stock of the libels or caricatures, and engaging not to rell any more. The Hon. and Learned Member observed, that forty Peers of the Realm were Members of this Society.

Mr. Scarlett was of opinion the proceedings of the Society in question were contrary to law. The effect of their institution was, by implication, to stigmatize the Attorney-General.

Mr. Warre considered the society to be illegally constituted The Marquis of Londonderry thought, in the absence of the Attorney-General, the question as to what he ought to do, was a little irregular. The Noble Marquis conceived it rather extraordisary that Hon. Gentlemen on the other side should consider this Association as illegal, when history furnished instances of many similar Associations that had never been deemed illegal. No person had ever charged the Society for the Suppression of Vice with being an illegal Association; and the only difference between that Society and the one now alluded to was, that the former carried on prosecutions for acts of indecency and immorality, and that the other prosecuted for acts of sedition, and acts that bordered on treason. But it seemed as if the sensibility of the Hon and Learned Gentleman opposite was excited in an extraordinary degree by a Society which had opposed itself to sedition and disloyalty. It was, indeed, rather unfortunate that the character of the libels prosecuted by this Association had called forth more eloquence and legal learning in that House, then any other question that had been agitated for a long time.

Sir John Sebright disapproved of the act of sending round instructions respecting the law of libel, to the different Magistrates of the country, which he considered as most unconstitutional.

The Solicitor-General said, he would take it on himself holdly to affirm, that there was nothing in the lastitution contract to law, or to the spirit of the Constitution. Were the House of Commons, or the established Tribunals of the country to determine what was the law? The Hon. Member then affirled to a prosecution a few days ago in the Court of King's Bench, in which the legality of the Institution was determined. The Judges had not declared it un-constitutional or illegal, as they would have done if that was their

After some observations from Lord Milton and Mr. C. Wynne, (who admitted the Society was a legal one) the Report was agreed to, and ordered to be taken into further consideration to-morrow.

The House then adjourned (on the motion of Mr. James that the House be counted) there not being forty Members present. (For continuation of Debates, see page 198.)

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

HIS MAJESTY'S CORONATION ROBES .- These splendid appendiges of sovereignty were received at Carlton Palace on Friday last. There are, as is customary, two changes of Royal costume for the occusion. The one to be worn by His Majesty before he is crowned afterwards becomes the property of the Master of the Robes. This consists of an under dress, with sleeves and trunk hose, of the richest silver tissue, made in the fashion of "days of old," over which will be worn by the King a sur-coat of the most costly crimson Genoa velvet, lined with white silk, and superbly embroidered. The state-robe, or mantle, is twenty-one feet in length, lined and bordered with the most beautiful ermine, with a deep cape of the same: within the border of ermine is another, about five inches in breadth, uniquely embroidered with medallions of the British Crown, surrounded with rays of glory, naval and military trophies, and other appropriate ornaments; over the whole of the robe are disposed at equal distances, in alternate order, and beautifully em-broidered in gold, the Rose, the Thistle, and the Shamrock. The other suit, to be worn by His Majesty after being crowned, and in which he will be seated on the throne in Westminster Hall, consists of an under dress, trunk hose, and sur-cont of gold tissue, embroidered with roses, dc. in their proper colours. The state robe, or mantle, now of Royal purple, is lined and embroidered as the former. Both the armillas for the neck correspond with the robes in richness, and tie in front with large gold cords, from which are pendant tassels of the richest bullion. His Majesty's swordbelt is also extremely superb, the scabbard of the sword of crimson velvet, and the hilt studded with brilliants. It is impossible, in description, to convey even a faint idea of the combined effect of these magnificent robes, &c. which do infinite credit to the superior taste of his Majesty, and are said to exceed every thing of the kind in Europe. When graced by his Majesty's dignified figure and princely demension, they must excite the admiration of all ranks who may be so happy as to witness the grand national ceremony of the Coronation

The robes of their Royal Highnesses the Dukes of York and Clarence are extremely rich and elegant.

FUNRAL OF LADY CHATHAM.—On Wednesday the remains of this amiable Lady were removed from her house in Hill-street, Berkley-square, for interment in the family vault in Westminster LONDON PITT CLUB.—The Anniversary of the Birth of the late Right Honourable Wm. Pitt was celebrated on Monday at the City of London Tavern.

The Chairman, T. S. Gooch, Esq. was supported on his right by the Lord Chancellor, and the Duke of Wellington on his left. The cloth having been removed the Chairman gave "The King, God bless him." This toast was received with the most unbounded onthusiasm, and drank standing, with three times three .- "The Duke of York, and the other brunches of the Royal Family," was the next toast; it was received with similar satisfaction, and drank with the same enthusiastic approbation.

The Chairman then rose and said, that it was to the principles of Mr. Pitt, and to his steady adherence to those principles, that they were in his conscience, he believed, to attribute the present independence of the English nation. His firm resistance to French principles. ples, and his skilful and well-concerted policy, when immense effocise on the part of the enemy abroad, and dismay and faction at home seemed to paralyse the country, saved it from impending ruin, and raised it to a beight unexampled even in our most favoured anuals. It was their duty, as he was sure it was their inclination, to relie by every possible and practicable means, the extent or the security of popular distress; but whatever means were calculated to diminish it, he was sure that its reduction did not depend upon molern patriotism or revolutionary doctrines. He proposed "The immortal memory of the late Right Hon. William Pitt, with these times

This toastwas drank with three times three. The cheering which followed it continued for a considerable time.

The Chairman then proposed as a toast "The House of Brunswick; and may they never forget the principles which seeted them on the throne of England." This toast was received with much eut husiasm.

The Chairman then proposed a toust, which, as an individual, he should drink with the most heartfelt satisfaction; he meant " Protestant Ascendancy.

The Chairman said it was now his intention to propose the health of those men who, following the illustrious example of Mr. Pitt, had brought the war to a most fortunate and favoured termination: homeant "His Majesty's Ministers." This tous was received with loud cheering: it was drank with three times three. The hord Chancellor, the Duke of Wellington, Lord Sidmouth, the Barl of Westmoreland, and Earl Bathurst rose, and the cheering continued for several minutes.

The Lord Chabcellor said, in the absence of the Earl of Licer-pool, which he regretted, but which he believed to be unavoidable, it hecame his duty for himself, and on behalf of his wallengues, to express their gratitude for the manner in which the maching had be pleased to honour their humble effects to serve the country. It happened that he had had the honour of having a shere in the Gon any other Member vernment of the nation much longer, perhaps, th of the present Administration. It had been his fortune to know in-timately the views and principles of that great statesman whose birth they were that day assembled to commemorate. He might therefore take the liberty to say, that if any thing could increase the gratification which he and his crallengues felt at the compliment received, it was the circumstant of its coming from those who were not assembled to commemorate the birth of Mr. Pitt a short time after the body of that grout man had been consigned to the grave, but who now, at the end of fifteen or sixteen years had met to manifest their gratitude to 'aim who had deserved more, perhaps, of his country than any me, a who had ever lived. He believed that he spoke the sentimen's of all His Majesty's present Ministers, when he declared, that, but heir opinion, if any merit at all was due to them, it grew out of "...eir following up the principles and carrying into effect the plans of Mr. Pitt, for the salvation not only of this country, but of Europe and the world. Much had been said of late on the subject of Purliamentary Reform. He would state what had falled from Mr. Pitt the inst time be (the Lord Chancellor) had talked with him on that question. Mr. Pitt had then said, "We have a Constitution which has enabled me to save the country in the manner in which I have saved it from enemies abroad, and from those who, aiming at a revolution, have made it their business to disseminate revolutionary principles at home; and, knowing this, I saust say, that whatever my opinions were formerly, I now feel that such a Constitution ought not to be rashly sacrificed." If this opinion was justified by what had transpired before Mr. Pitt went to was justified by what had transpired before Mr. Pitt went to his grave, how which more was it borne out by what had occurred since. It was by persevering in the course which Mr. Pitt had marked out, that those who had since been entrusted with the Goremment and been enabled to save the country. Much of what had been accomplished was owing to the steady perseverance of his Noble Friend near him (Lord Sidmouth), in the principles of Mr. Pitt. But the system of that great man, though founded in infinite wisdom, had never been so proudly triumphant but for the valour and skill of the Noble Person on his right (the Duke of Wellington), to whom this country was indebted in a degree which he would not trust himself to express in the presence of that illustrious Nobleman. He had ennobled this country by a blaze of glory, the fame of which had spread from one end of the world to the other, and had established not only the liberties of England, but those of every other to the country by a blaze of course the country by a blaze of every other to the country by a blaze of course the country by a blaze of the country by a blaze of country by a blaze of glory, the fame of which had spread from one end of the world to the other, and had established not only the liberties of England, but those of every other than the country by a blaze of glory, the fame of which had spread from one end of the world to the other, and had established not only the liberties of England, but those of every other than the country by a blaze of glory, the fame of which had spread from one end of the world to the other, and had established not only the liberties of England, but those of every other than the country by a blaze of glory the country by a blaze of glory. blished not only the liberties of England, but those of every other country, if they were wise enough to avail themselves of those principles for which we had successfully contended. At his advanced age it could not possibly be long before he should be called upon to quit this scene. He had nothing to ask of the Great Ruler of the Universe but this, that the country might remain in the state in which it was at present, with respect to its liberties, laws, and Constitution—In that state in which he had seen it for three score and

The Chairman then gave the following toast, " May the principles of Mr. Pitt ever have an influence upon the Councils of Great Britain."

The Chairman rose and said, that the toast which he was then about to propose was one which he was sure would be received with universal enthusiasm. He meant the health of the Illustrious Duke of Wellington, and he begged to propose it with nine times

This toast was received with the most general applause. It was drank with nine times nine.

The Duke of Wellington rose amidst loud applause. He begged leave to thank the Gentlemen assembled on that occasion for the almost unexampled kindness with which they had received his name, and still more perhaps ought he to thank the Chairman for the introduction of his name on an occasion so interesting as the present. Whatever humble services be had rendered to his country had been more than compensated, by that most durable of all things,

St. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL .- The repairs which were intended to take place in this edifice, must, it is found, be upon a more extensive scale than was at first thought necessary. A rope-ladder has been for some days slung over the cross and ball; several eminent architects have been up to view the state of those ornaments, who found so much decay as to require immediate repair. A scaffolding has been attempted to be raised from the iron gallery to the cross, and although doubts were entertained of the possibility of such a project, yet a great number of the poles were raised on Wednesday, which had a curious effect from the street

St. Paul's Church-yard was much crowded during the day, and immease numbers went up to view the scaffolding and other preparations. It is said that the scaffold alone will take a month in finishing. A cradle is to be exected round it to prevent accidents, the same as at Bow Church.

The Marchioness of Salisbury's party, on Wednesday, was attended by a select circle, when the apartments on the ground floor only were thrown open. There were present Prince Cimitelli, several Foreign Ministers, Duchess of Leeds, Marquis of Exeter, Earl and Countess of Clare and Lady Isabella Ftizgibbon, Marquis Graham, Countess Munster, Count and Countess Ludolph, Lord and Lady Langford and Miss Rowley, Sir George Gunning, General and Captain Capel, Marchioness Downger of Downshire, the Ladies Hill, Lord Arthur Hill and Lord Marcus Hill, the Ambassador from the Netherlands. Earl and Countess of Verulum, Earl of Winchil-

The Novel entitled "Precaution, or the Matrimonial Balance," which deservedly attracts so much attention, is written, we understand, by a distinguished American. No writer of modern times has given a stronger proof of superior talents for this species of writing.

Lady Morgan's long expected work on Italy, the result of two years have and marriy trades months; subacquent study will appear in travels, and nearly twelve months' subsequent study, will appear in the course of a few days. It must undoubtedly be considered as the most curious literary production of the present season.

The East India Company's ship Castle, Huntly, arrived off Scilly the 30th ult. She was dispatched from China, in company with the Prince Regent, on the 27th January; arrived at St. Helena on the 10th April, and sailed from thence for England on the 15th.—The Prince Regent parted company for Table Bay on the 21st March in lat. 34 deg. 10 min. South, and long. 26 deg. 45 min. East.—The Repulse left St. Helena for Bencoolen on the 15th April.

PRICE OF STOCKS AT	THE CLOSE YESTERDAY.
Reduced Ann 75 44 51
Consols 751 4 64 1 1	Exchequer Bills 2d2p3d
Dit Acct 761 1 7 64 71 1 771	Exchequer Bills 2d2p3d India Bonds 4640
4 per Cents 944	Omnium
	H FUNDS
5 per ct. Div. 21 May 841-841	Bank Sh. Div. 21 May
Recon. Div. 21 May	Ex. Lond. 25-65

NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We are obliged to A. B. for his kint, which he will perceive we

Ma. Ex-Sunning Parkens is as ignorant of the subject of which he treats as he is impudent. We would advise him, for his own sake; to put up with the character of a blockhood, but he drive us to show him up for comething worse.

Mr. D.'s plan document appear forward enough to be noticed. He are obliged to B. but we think it would be time wasted to motice the thing he alludes to. We have very little doubt that Browshom is mad and madence at all the Lord Policies. Brougham is mad, and none at all that Lord Brakine is .

The hand-writing of the Letter signed CLBRICUS, from South-amplon, is recognized, and every core will be taken that the writer's politics are understood and appreciated. The ancedote of the Queen. P.S. like many other anecdotes, the cannot insert; its intrinsic fith and immerality

The long account of the Ball and Supper, sent yesterday, is, with its enclosure, left at the office for the servant when the Lady chooses to send. If people are such fools as to puff off their own dishes, and dances, and daughters, and drawing-rooms, they must do it in some other Paper than this.
thank us for not exposing the whole of the tom-foolery.

If the "FRIEND TO JOHN BULL" will tell us where the echo is to be found that returns "Face" for "Place," "Brand it" for "Stand it," "Chronicle" for "Comical," and "Elephant" for "Cauliflower," we will insert his waggery.

The "Wipow Boskins," from Leatherhead, is duller than Surrey widows usually are.

The Parson and Volunteer Officer, at Sitle Hedingare really below our notice; we satirize such partisans of the Queen generally, and class them as "infatuated mobs," and "besotted animals," but we never mention their names.

To C. C. C. we can only say OH! OH! DH! We thank S. S, but, if he recollects, he promised us some thing else.

Oxoniensis, Bungaiensis, A Constant Reader, Philo PATRIM, PATRIM AMICA, LINES TO FANNY BIAS AND LORD FIFE, HEA PROH, and many others, are delayed We have received a most silly and impertinent Letter from a Mn. George Martin, a Tea-dealer and Grocer at Lane-End, in Staffordshire, to which he only affixed his initials; but this person should know that neither obscurity of person nor remoteness of place can conceal the truth from us. We only notice him to let him see that we know him; as for his Letter, it has more of the style of Betty Murtin in its composition than of George. We would advise the dunce to stick to his grocery, and take a fig for his politics—it is the most we can offer.

THEATRE ROYAL, COVENT-GARDEN.

Monday, Damen and Pythias. Tuesday, for the Benefit of Mr and Mrs. C. Kemble, School for Scandal. Wednesday, for the Benefit of Miss Poote, She Stoops to Conquer. Thursday, Undine. Priday, for the Benefit of Mr. Maeready, Hamlet.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.

Monday, for the Benefit of Mr. Harley, a favourite Opera. Thursday, for the Benefit of Miss Smithson and Mr. Knight, The Rivals.

A Monday's Edition, containing the latest News, the Stock List, the London Markets, and the State of the Country Markets by that morning's post, is published at Three o'clock.

NEW MUSIC FOR THE FIANO PORTE. NEW MUSIC FOR THE FIANO PORTE.

THE highly popular National Air, "Britons, strike home," by Purcel, with an Introduction and Variations composed by J. F. Burrowes, price 3s. 6d. Select Airs from Rossini's Opera, "Il Tancredi," in Two Books, price each 3s. 6d. The same Airs as Duets, for Two Performers on the Piano Ferte, in Four Books, price each 4s.; and the Overture to "La Gazza Ladra," as a Duet, arranged also by J. F. Burrowes, price 4s. The popular Set of new Quadrilles, selected from the Compositions of H. R. Bishop, by Mos. P. Musard, and are the favourite Set performed at Almack's this season by Messrs, Collinet, Michau, and Musard; dedicated, by permission, to the Countess Grey, price 4s.—Published by Goulding, D'Almaine, Potter, and Co. No. 20, Seho-square.

CRAWFORD'S SLIDING TUBE PARASOLS. OWING to the late severe Weather, many Ladies have been prevented from seeing this much approved Article, now so well known, that description is unnecessary. Ladies of Fashion, the Nobility, and Public in general, are invited to inspect the most elegant and extensive Assortment of PARASOLS ever before offered to their notice, and on much more reasonable terms, at the inventor and maker's, CRAWFORD, 28, Cheapside. Common Parasols of every description, commencing at the low price of 8s. 6d.

Shippers and the Trade supplied as usual. To prevent impositions and imitations, the Name and Address round a Crown is struck on the handle of each.

JOHN BULL.

LONDON, JUNE 3.

Our readers will perceive that Mr. Vansittart, brought forward the Budget on Friday night, we have to congratulate them upon the gratifying state of the public resources. Amongst other important features, which it presents, is the actual reduction of expenditure to the amount of one million six hundred and fifty thousand pounds. Indeed the whole statement of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, is calculated to cheer and satisfy the country at

The financial statement of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, communicated to Parliament on Friday evening, produced the utmost confusion at the Stock market yesterday, and as it is considered, by a large party of speculators, rather less favourable than was auticipated, the Public Funds have declined very materially, so much so that Consols for Money, which were sold at one time on Friday at 773, and for the Account at 784, were sold yesterday 2 per Cent. under those quotations: the bustle was so great that it was impossible, in the ordinary way, to transact business. The first price yesterday of Consols for the Account was 764. and rapidly fell to 764. By the middle of the day there was a material reaction; Consols for the Account again rising to 771, but very soon afterwards a great quantity of Exchequer Bills and India Bonds were thrown on the market; the former were done so low as 4 Discount, owing to a considerable demand for money, rendered more scarce by a heavy payment made by the East India Company to Government, for which purpose it is understood much Stock was sold yesterday. This circumstance much depressed the Funds, and before the close of business Consols for Account fell to 764.

THE QUEEN.

Our feelings, with respect to the Addresses which were sent up to Brandenburgh House, during the infatuation of the mob about the Queen, seems to have been pretty correct. Every day brings new disavowals from all the respectable inhabitants of the places which were accused of having offered their tributes to vice and profligacy; and we shall continue, with much pleasure, to lay them before our rea

"Speen Vestry Room, May 5, 1821.

"It having been stated in the public newspapers, that 'An Address to the Queen from the Parish of Speen, in the county of Berks, had been presented to ber Majesty by J. B. Monck, Esq. M.P. We, the undersigned, the Minister, Churchwardens, Overseers, and principal inhabitants of the parish of Speen, in the county of Berks, in behalf of ourselves and a large majority of parishioners, do hereby publicly disavow any participation in the said Address, or knowledge of the promoters of it.

Henry Majendie, Vicar.

RICHARD BASING, & JOHN NEALE, Churchwardens. WILL STANDBROOK, THO. WADE, JOHN FIDLER, SER. THO. BENHAM, } Overseers. JOHN FIDLER, Sen. Wm. Bulpit, George Wyld, Charles Bull, Frederick Page John Porter, Joseph Pierce, John Starkey, D. D. John Hott, Thomas Porter. James Franklin, John Dale, Richard Lovelock, Gabriel Dando, Joseph Ward, Nathaniel Cook George Goddard. Thomas Bance Abner Clarkson. J. Shaw, Henry Seymour, Wm. Bunce, Thos. Darling

WE have been a little surprised at the refusal to acc to Mr. Parke's application in the case of the Queen w. Blacow, in the King's Bench, and certainly do feel that an indulgence has been granted to the plaintiff, to which, we cannot perceive, she has the smallest possible claim.

It is true the Queen has been found guilty of adultery by a majority of her judges, and upon that principle, it might have been held dangerous to the safety of her soul, to have tendered to her an affidavit of her innocence; but upon that very principle the prosecution surely should have fallen to the ground.

In a common case—it would stand thus: A. accuses B. of adultery—the former is prosecuted for making a false charge; he requires, as is usual in all such cases, that an oath should be taken that the charge is false. The Counsel for B. argue against this being done. What would be the opinion of lookers .n? We will not offend our readers by adding an answer.

But Brougham and Denman after objecting to the cath, bluster, and say, the Queen is quite ready to take it. We do not believe Mr. Brougham, when he talks about the Queen, and we will explain why we do not believe Mr. Brougham.

Mr. Brougham solemnly declared in the House of Lords, that he would place at the Bar Dumont's sister as a witness for the Queen.

-Did he do this?

Mr. Brougham declared, he would prosecute some of the witnesses against her for perjury!

-Has he done this?

As for Mr. Denman, he stated, " that it was unheard of, and unprecedented to permit a man charged with adultery to be an evidence on the trial for it." Nay, he added, that nothing but the want of such a precedent kept him from producing Bergami as a witness; it was immediately shewn in Hook's case and several others, that such evidence had been adduced—but Bergami was never placed at the Bar.

As to the credit the Queen has gained by the resistance to Mr. Parke's motion, that is another point; but as we are in the habit of measuring Messrs. Brougham and Denman, rather hy what they prove than what they assert, we confess, we are sorry for the exception which has been made to a fixed and general rule in favor of a woman, who deserves neither pity, respect, nor indulgence.

THE QUEEN'S VISIT TO THE OPERA.

A gentleman walking in Arundel-street, Strand, on Thursday se'nnight, was accosted by a person, who begged pardon for the intrusion, but said, if he would like to go to the Opera that Evening a ticket was quite at his service. The gentleman told him he must be mistaken in the person he addressed. "No," replied the man, "I have not the pleasure of your personal acquaintance, but the ticket is at your service if you will use it."

Partly out of curiosity, the gentleman (who communicated the fact to us) accepted it, used it, and went to the Open

It was a pit ticket, signed by Camporese herself, and we know that sixty such tickets were purchased on account of her Majesty, for that evening. We really confess our surprise, that a woman like the Queen, who is full of low trick and cunning, should not manage her matters better than to employ such bunglers as her present creatures appear to be, and who so clumsily betray her underhand schemes for sham popularity.

THE QUEEN'S CARPET.

Every body who reads The Times (and we are glad to say much fewer people read it than did a twelvemonth ago) will have heard that the Queen received a present of a great carpet from Kidderminster, which was said to be of exquisite workmanship, and a tribute from three thousand persons, who contributed one shilling each to its formation. The Globe, an Evening Paper, mentions, that a deputation of gentlemen went to Brandenburgh to present it to her Majesty.

Now, it appears that the carpet is of coarse workmankip, such as a decent manufacturer would not acknowledge; that its extreme value is sixty pounds; that the deputation from Kidderminster consisted of a Mr. Coates, a linen-draper, and no one else, who brought up the address, which was concocted by a dissenting minister of the name of Fry.

The best proof of the interest the Queen created at Eidderminster is, that when Coates returned with her answer, hardly any persons were assembled to hear it; at six o'clork, however, a considerable number of the lower classes mustered for the purpose; but fatally for Carolina-Columbina's reply, some wags at the Lion Inn threw out halfpence in a ferent direction from that of the place in which the ornior was standing, which entirely diverted their attention; and, to add to the joke, the last shower of coin had been previously heated in the fire, so that the apostates from the cause of virtue had the additional pleasure of burning their fingers.

TO JOHN BULL.

SIR,-I happened to dine one day at a Tavern, where I met with a large party of Queen's men as they called them selves .- But, when I put the following question to them, I did not find one real Queen's man amongst them: who ever is agreeable that his wife shall have a Bergami, will signify the same by holding up his hand? Not one hand was held up, therefore, I told them not one of them were real Queen's men. I am one of your readers, and you may, or may not insert this letter. -I am, Sir, yours, &c.

A FEW QUERIES FOR JOSEPH HUME.

IT is said—heaven knows how truly—that you are very angry that any man should hold two appointments at the same time. And it is said that you very eloquently exposed the impropriety of such a combination of offices in any one person.

Will you just simply say whether, when serving under Colonel Martindell, in Bundlecund, in the year 1803 or 1904, you were not acting in the Commissariat for the supply of grain?

Whether you were not Post-Master??

-AND PAY-MASTER ???

-AND PRIVATE SECRETARY ????

-AND ASSISTANT SURGEON?????

And whether you then saw the impropriety of holding a plurality of offices ??????

Did you, or did you not, tell Colonel Martindell, at that period, that he was wrong to let such a good opportunity slip of making money by his Bazaars, or markets, while he had so large an army; and did you not offer him a certain sum per month if he would allow you to MANAGE THEM?

Did not Colonel Martindell reject your proposal with contempt and indignation?

Pray, Joseph Hume, what did you pay per month HIRE (that's the word Joseph) for Brinjara Bullocks, and what did you charge Government?

Pray, Joseph, did the number you hired, and the number you charged to Government CORRESPOND?

The Courier, a well-meaning, blundering sort of paper. talked to you about the prices charged for the purchase of these bullocks, and you answered him boldly. Now do. my pretty Joe, answer us as distinctly relative to the hire of them.

What did you pay for Gram and Ottah? and what did you charge Government?

Come now, Joseph Hume, answer these questions like a man, and an Assistant-Surgeon, as you are: do not be cowed, as Brougham is, nor shrink from us as Wilberforce does ;-speak up, Joseph-answer us-refute us-put us to shame; -only give us a little NOTTICE, and your reply shall have a place.

SIR CHARLES ALDIS.

WE have been favoured with a visit in Newgate from the above gentleman, who politely presented us with his prospectus, or plan of an institution for the cure of the diseases moticed in his book.

Sir Charles appears a good-tempered fellow, but no conjurer. The object of his visit was, to impress us with the belief that he is not a Quack. Had he wished to persuade us that he is no Knight, we could have assented more readily. As for publishing his Letter, we are bound to do so, having been paid for it as an advertisement. We believe it was Lord Cranbourne's name he made free with instead of Lord Salisbury's; and his acquaintance with the family commenced with his trying to cure one of the maid-servants, at Hatfield, of a cancer, after she had been given over by Cline; she died in the Middlesex Hospital, and there ended that But we cannot worry ourselves or our readers with such people or things:—if Mr. Aldis will explain how or why he was knighted we will insert his explanation.

TO JOHN BULL.

Sin-When I gave my Letter at the beginning of last week into the hands of a gentleman at your Office, it was my wish, that as you had made free with my name, you would afford me the opportunity of replying. As you did not insert it last week, may I beg your insertion of it in your next number.

your insertion of it in your next number.

The following is my letter, and I may take leave to add, that the book I had the honour to present to His Majesty was about two months prior to the time stated in your observations. John Bull's misrepresentations may, however, produce a good effect. I wish John Bull could be made to believe, that it would do him credit with the world to avow openly that he himself had been deceived. The honour I received from our beloved Sovereign was conferred, not only for the book I published on the Nature and Cure of Glandular Diseases, but also for having carried into effect an Establishment for the cure of such unfortunate complaints, which has been ment for the cure of such unfortunate complaints, which has been honoured with the sanction of many of the most distinguished personages; having devoted at least fifteen years unremitted attention to glandular diseases, during which time I have not only given advice to the sick poor, but distributed medicines at my own expense.

These are circumstances not unlikely to meet the sanction of our Sovereign, whose feelings are meat benevotent towards his suffering subjects; nor would it be extraordinary that his favour should be extended to encourage my exertions, more particularly as my labours have been expensive and arduous.

I am, Mr. Editor, your obedient Servant

Nelson Square, May 29. CHARLES ALDIS.
P. S. I thank you for noticing ef, instead of from. It was " of great pith and moment" to the subject under consideration.

HUMBUG.

WE cannot avoid calling the attention of our readers to the proceedings of a Meeting, held at the Great Room of the Thatched House Tavern, for the purpose of considering the propriety of founding "A Society for the Moral and Intellectual Improvement of the Natives of British India."

The Right Hon. C. J. Villiers took the Chair at twelve o'clock, and the Earl of Clare, Sir J. Mackintosh, Mr. Wilberforce, Sir William Burroughs, and Lord Teignmouth. supported him.

A Mr. Harrison pointed out the necessity of founding an institution for establishing moral principles among the Hindoos, who are, be it ever remembered, at this moment preverbially, the most faithful, the most abstemious, and the honestest ruce of people on the face of the earth.

Sir James Mackintosh, (ci-devant Treasurer of the Fund subscribed for Mr. Gerald), in a "luminous" moral speech, proposed to establish the Society. His harangue went direct to the hearts of every one present; for, however fine oratory may win for the moment, it is only in cases like that of Sir James Mackintosh, where pure and brilliant cloquence is the result of real principle, and where the decils of a long life have truly corresponded with the words of a long speech, that it is powerfully and fully effective.

A Missionary, of the name of Ward, ranted much incoherent stuff, in which he declared it to be his opinion, that Eugland was under an "anoful responsibility" " to lift

190,000,000 of people from their vices.'

Had Mr. Ward looked about him, before he came to this Tavern Meeting, he might have found many objects more worthy his benevolent intentions than the hundred millious of Hindoos, whose " redemption from immoral vassalage," he seems so anxious about.

Is there not an abundance of Deists and Atheists to be found here in our own realms? have we not tens of thousands of Roman Catholics amongst us, whose religion, to the delicate sensibility of such men as Ward and Wilber-force, must be very nearly as idolatrous as that of the Hin-Have we not in Ireland, flocks of such blinded and infatuated devolves, upon whom Mr. Ward's reclaiming voice might have some effect? Does not the Holy Land, the land where our Saviour lived and died, teem with Idolaters -might not Mr. Ward exert his Bealthful influence over persons, without disturbing whole nations of peaceful, excellent subjects, with whose morality England has as little to do, nationally, as Mr. Ward has personally.

If people are to be saved, why should not Mr. Ward's charity "begin at home?" For however selfish the principle is in most cases, it certainly would be as well for us to set all things to rights amongst ourselves before we go to work upon the religion and morals of the Hindoos.

Saint Wilberforce, of course, made a speech; and urged, amongst other topics—what—what do our readers suppose?—the state of the female character in India, as a reason for establishing the society. We have very recently heard this same old gentleman gravely talk of compromising the national character of ENGLAND by tolerating adultery as a political expedient, and we now find him preaching up the state of morality in Hindoo jemales as a reason for interfering with the great establishments of a country, in which the English are upon sufferance!

Does not Mr. Wilberforce recollect, or if he has not forgotten, did he ever know, that in all capitulations it is understood, and in most capitulations expressed, that no violence shall be done to the private property or the reli-gious opinions of the conquered. By what right then, we ask Mr. Wilberforce, would he send forth the canting creatures of Methodism to disturb and destroy, if possible. institutions older far, and held as sacred by the natives of India as our religion is by us? Indeed, we have been told, (we do not youch for the truth of the report) that seven Brahmins are on their voyage to England in the ship "Good Intent," with a plan for converting the English Bishops to Brahminism, and we have little doubt, if they arrive, that in a month or two we shall see Saint Wilberforce (such is his versatility on all points) going about the streets under a mane of flowing locks, and decorated with the sacred thread of the caste!

Lord Teignmeuth, who reconded (four of the gentlemen had done the same thing before) Sir J. Mackintosh's resolution, told a story which happened fifty years ago, of a request being made by a native in his service, that he should write to a friend of his in another part of the country to send him a particular stone, out of which he wanted to make a God!—(Hear, hear, hear, cry the people at the Tavern.)

Suppose Chantry, this very day, were applied to by his Grace the Duke of Norfolk, to execute a Virgin Mary for his Grace's Chapel at Arundel; and suppose that Lord Teignmouth had any estate, or (which is more probable) that his Lordship had any friend who had an estate upon which fine marble was to be procured, and Chantry was to ask him to write a civil note to such friend, requesting a block of it to make an image, to which the said Duke of Norfolk, and twenty thousand other unpulightened persons, were to kneel and pay their worship, would Lord Teign-mouth shudder, or jump, or start, or tell the story, and be cheered for it?—Oh dear, no!—in this enlightened age, civilized people may worship Virgins is brocade hoops, or Saints in full bottomed wigs, and it would be the height of illiberality to interfere with their prejudices; but the poor Hindoos, who are harmless and helpless, cannot be robbed with perfect security, till they are taught to believe that Sir James Mackintosh is a sage, and Mr. William Wilber force a saint.

Sir William Burroughs spoke of his experience as Su preme Judge at Calcutta, and spoke as to the prevalence of perjury amongst witnesses in the Courts of India. Mr. Ex-Sheriff Parkins, who is of about the same standing on the score of talent with SirWilliam, and has also had the advantage of a residence in India, tells us that the same crime prevails most extensively in England; so that little is to be hoped for upon that score by a change of religion. One atives of India certainly commit to they gamble enormously,; and we are surprised that Sir William made no allusion to that desperate and degrading vice in his speech;—it was probably from a conviction that, like perjury, it prevails with similar force amongst Chris-

A fat Jew-like personage of the name of Shaw, talked of the necessity of disseminating civilized habits in India. He, like the others, ought to begin at home, and set us an example; but he told a story that the people of Sumatra fatten their children, and sell them as human food!

Ever since the Queen brought Humbug into fushion, it has been very prevalent, and it is pleasant to see its gradations, its wheels within wheels; for while Wilberforce and the grand Humbugs are Humbugging the world with their hypocritical trash, some wag, who chooses his own mode of throwing ridicule upon the whole affair, stirs up Mr. Benjamin Shaw to tell a story, for which there is not the slightest foundation, and which, if it were true, does not bear the least upon the subject.

Mr. Thornhill, the Earl of Clare! and several other genelemen seconded Sir J. Mackintosh's resolution, but as our

Although the subscriptions were tardy, and they Had nothing to give, they had plenty to say;
And the meeting broke up without any thing having been subscribed;—had any contributions been made, Sir James Mackintosh, (to crown all), would probably bave been requested to take charge of the funds.

Having thus reviewed the proceedings of this Meeting, we have a word or two to say upon the subject much more seriously, and to declare our conviction that the whole pretence and avowed intention of the Society is a gross and shameful imposition.

The object of the Society is. nominally, " The mored and intellectual improvement of the natives of British India; the real aim of its operations nothing more nor less than the introduction of Christianity amongst the Hindoos .-We are quite as well aware as Mr. Wilberforce that nothing is more certain eventually of improving their morals and intellect than the dissemination of the doctrines of our religion; but we should be surprised, if we did not pretty well know that sanctified personage, at finding the Society cloaking its real designs under a fictitious title. We can see the aim of it; all the Saints know how he zardous the policy is of trying to introduce Christianity amongst the native ludians; and they know, that if they declared their object, that every man skilled in Indian politics, or careful of our influence in India, would set his face decidedly against any measure likely to induce the experiment; they therefore borrow a milder name, and try to overcome the prejudices of Indians and Europeans by a sneaking modification of terms. They are, in fact, the Peters of this day, who, full of seal and activity in the cause of Christianity, find it convenient to deny their Saviour.

THEATRE.

In our second Number we said, "We have plenty of tra-" gedies, all much about equally good, and equally successful. " Charles Kemble and Macready act them up, and, aided by "occasional processions, and the production of trophies and " banners, a new play lingers out its five or six nights, and " then is gathered to the tomb of the Capulets."

This we said on the 24th of December last year; since which period six or seven more plays of the same sort have, like the Weird Sisters' kings, appeared like shadows, and like shadows have departed, and the last, Damon and Pythias, produced on Monday at Covent-Garden, having been successful in the usual degree, holds up to our affrighted eye the fatal mirror, which threatens us with a long line of ephemeral productions of a similar nature.

The story of Damon and Pythias is familiar to every schoolboy, and is not new even to the stage—more than one play has been founded upon it. It appears to us always a disadvantage to an author to work upon a story, the denoument of which must be anticipated by every one of his auditors; and we think where a writer contrives, under such circumstances, to keep up any thing like an interest, he displays a considerable degree of merit.

That Damon and Pythias excites interest we do not deny but if, as Burdett said in our case, we were to put the saddle on the right horse, we should yield the palm to the actors rather than the author. Charles Kemble's Pythias was a very masterly performance, and Macready exerted himself man-fully in Damon.

Miss Foote as Hermione was interesting beyond measure, and the feeling of distress for Damon was not a little heightened by the notion, that in quitting the world he would have to leave so fascinating a wife. Miss Dance was respectable in Calanthe, and Mr. Abbott and Mr. Egerton did their best.

Damon and Pythias has succeeded as well as Montalto, or Mirandola, or Conscience, or any such things: and we give it a run of nine nights, if it should be cool weather; but if the glass gets up as it has done within the last twenty-four hours, we limit it to five, or, if the manager is very liberal, six at the utmost.

After noticing this harmless tragedy, one cannot fail to remark that the play-going part of the town lean to comedy very decidedly; and that if comedies were to be had, acted as they might be at Covent-Garden by Fawcett, Emery, Farren, Liston, Jones, Mrs. Davenport, Miss Foote, Mrs. Davison, Mrs. Gibbs, and others, audiences would be found to follow

The " Provoked Husband," has been revived with great success; and though we have laughed heartily at the absurd puffs of Drury Lane, about the impetuous rush fer places, to witness the seventy-ninth representation of the re-vived play, of Wild Oats, it is most certain that Covent Garden has been excellently filled to see Cibber's play.

It would perhaps be more gallant to say that Miss Dance, in Lady Townly, draws the town, but certainly not so true; we think Miss Dance an extremely inoffensive actress, handsome enough, and lady-like enough in all conscience; but we suspect the compliment to the actors, in the Provoked Husband, to be a general one.

Charles Kemble's Lord Townly is a very excellent piece of ting; and, by his researches into modern history, equa zealous with those of his brother into ancient lore, he has satisfactorily established the fact, that Lord Townly was a diplomatist, one who had a turn for foreign affairs, however much engaged in the home department; at least, so we conclude, from the mark of courtly favour which he bears about Fawcett, in Sir Francis, was highly entertaining; Mrs. Davenport as good as ever; and Emery inimitable.

We think Count Bassett might have found a better representative than the gentleman who executed him before his time; and we would have had Miss Foote for Lady Grace; she seems made for it; but it perhaps was thought more advantageous to Lady Townly's personal appearance, to avoid a comparison, which is at all times invidious, and which, therefore, we ourselves desist from making, even in idea. We must allow Mrs. Faucett every merit in the character; she is a very clever actress, and, if she never reaches preeminence, never offends.

DRURY LANE. - Same as per last.

LIST OF CLERGYMEN WHO MAVE PRAYED FOR THE QUEEN.

The REY. Mr. SLANEY, of Penkridge, requests us to sny, that he only prayed for the Queen till the Order in Council was published.

TO JOHN BULL.

-If it is your intention to hold my name forth to the public as a disloyal subject, because I have prayed for the Queen, I beg leave to inform you it did not proceed from any political motive; as in loyalty and attachment to my King and country, I will yield as in loyalty and attachment to my King and country, I will yield to no man, ever having from my earliest days been brought up to bonour the King and all the Royal Family.

But your statement, which I only read on Monday last, is subject to be mizunderstood. As Curate of Droxford, I have never prayed for the Queen, except in the Litany, the first Sunday after the death of our late revered Sovereign. After the proceedings in the House of Lords were terminated by that great statesman the Earl of Liverpool thinking it probable the Queen's name would be restored. Liverpool, thinking it probable the Queen's name would be restored to the Liturgy, I did, as Curate of Carhampton, mention her for two Susdays in my prayer before the sermon, not from any political motives, as your informant may imagine, but from thinking it right every branch of the Royal Family should be held in honour and regard by the people. Finding there was no intention to restore her name to the Liturgy, of course, after those two Sundays I omitted ber Majesty's name, never having regarded her in any other point of view than as one of our Royal Family.

It is far from my intention to enter into any literary discussion but I consider your object is to convey correct information to your numerous readers; therefore I have sent you this statement, which I request you to insert, without loss of time, in your Paper.

I am, Sir, your obedient, &c. &c.

EDWARD NOTT. Chalcombe, Banbury, May 30, 1821.

(To be continued.)

TO JOHN BULL.

SIR-There is no end to the inconsistency and folly of these Whigs. That sprig of our Scots sristocracy, Lord A. Hamilton, came down from London to Stirling to vote for Mr. Home Drummond, the Deputy Advocate, who, he is reported, (observe, Mr. Bull, that I only say reported,) to have, in the House of Commons, "laughed in his face," when he called on him to give some important information on the subject of the intended insurrection at Glasgow last

But this is not all. This same democratic-aristocrat, or aristocratic-democrat, I don't know which compound best describes him, is further reported, (for mark, Mr. Bull, that I won't venture to affirm even what I know and heard an M. P. say, even out of the House of Commons, for fear it should be considered as a breach of privilege, and procure you another month's lodging in Newgate,) therefore I only say that it is reported that this said sprig of nobility, at the election dinner, gave as a toast, the health of the said Mr. Home Drummond, prefacing it by saying, that he was politically opposed to him and might, perhaps, be personally opposed to him in the House of Commons, but, nevertheless, he would always vote for him in the county of Stirling, as long as he stood forward to rescue that county from the domineering and aristocratic influence which had been so long lorded over it-meaning that of the Duke of Montrose.

I happened, Sir, at the moment of this monstrous explosion of folly to be sitting next a gentleman, who is also a free-holder in the county of Lanark, in the interest of Lord Archibald, and I could not resist being so malicious as to whisper to him, that I trusted his Noble Friend would be consistent and patriotic enough to support some independent gentleman, who might stand forward to free Lanarkshire from similar domination.

I wish you had seen the agony of vexation and contempt with which my neighbour eyed his worthy representative. am much mistaken if he has not converted him into an independent freeholder in that county; and that my Lord Archi-hald may find, to his loss, that the aristocratic influence of the Duke of Hamilton is not more impregnable than that of the Duke of Montrose, when foolishly exerted in favour of an unpopular candidate.

But, Mr. Bull, I have not done with this said northern Lord. You may remember, as I have already said, his account, as reported, of Mr. Home Drummond having laughed in his face. Now, Sit, this is quite true, for I heard that gentleman tell it next morning; but when Lord Archibald told (or rather I should say is reported to have told) of this insult, which he pocketed, from Mr. Drammond, he should not have suppressed the cause of his laughter, which would liave sufficiently excused that gentleman's apparent rudeness, though not so entirely Lord Archibald's civility on the occa-

Sir, Mr. D. did not laugh in Lord A.'s face at his report of the intended rising, of which he had before heard the ac-counts, but because Lord A. seriously and solemnly assured him, that he had good information that there were three or four French Generals in disguise in Glasgow, ready to put themselves at the head of the insurgents.

This certainly did discompose the gravity of Mr. D., as it probably will now do yours, Mr. Bull, and most of your readers, and as it did the numbers to whom Mr. D. told the ridiculous story at the time,—Yours, Edinburgh, May 26, 1821. STIRLINGUS.

HOUSE OF COMMONS. (Continued from page 195.)

Lord Milton gave notice that he would move for a repeal of the Wool Tax on Wednesday next.

The House divided on a motion for hearing a Mr. Stephen in supet of a Petition against the Maxwell Slave Removal Bill.—Ayes, —Nos, 154—Majority against the Motion, 109.

In answer to a question from Mr. S. Wortley respecting the de-chration issued by the Allied Sovereigns,

The Marquis of Londonderry said he had reason to believe it was an authentic one, it having been communicated to the Government of this country from the Congress at Laybach.

ment of this country from the Congress at Laybach.

Mr. Henry Grey Bennett moved for leave to bring in a Bill for better securing the independence of Parliament. It was the object of his measure to exclude from the House all what he called the underlings and clerks. He thought, if he left the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and one clerk from the Treasury for England and one for Ireland, it would be quite enough. The Vice-Treasurer for Ireland, he would not allow to sit. With respect to the India Board, they had at present four Members; he would only let one remain, viz. the President. The Hon. Member then went on sweeping out all the officers civil or legal, and confining the return of Members, for each department, to about one third of their pre-

Mr. F. Rubinson, in answer to the Hon. Member, observe that in Sir R. Walpole's time there were 200 placeme House; a far greater number than at present; therefore, the ques-tion was, there being so few in comparison with former times, it was necessary to bring in a Bill to expel them. He opposed the

Col. Davies supported the motion, and the House divided.—For the Motion, 52—Against it, 76—Majority, 24.

Lord Millon brought in a Bill for facilitating the taking of polls in success of contested elections in the county of York, by opening booths for receiving votes in different parts of the county. It was rend a first time; second reading on Monday. Some conversation took place on the Report of the Forgery Punishment Bills, between Sir J. Mackintosh, the Marquis of Londonderry, dec. after which it was agreed to read the Bill a third time on Monday.

Lord J. Russell gave notice of a Motion on the subject of the Austical Lung and time to the part reads.

Austrian Loan early in the next week.

On bringing up the Report of the Ordnance,

Mr. Hume moved to reduce the first grant from 43,6711. to 27,3711.—For the Amendment, 72-Against it, 92. The Original Grant was carried.

A division took place on a Motion for reducing the grant for Incidental Expences for the Barracks, &c. to 22,0001.—Ayes, 62-Nos, 98. The Original Grant was carried.

Mr. Bernal moved that the sum of 137,0001, proposed to be granted for the Barrack Department, be reduced to 78,0001.—For the Amendment, 61—Against it, 101.

The House, after agreeing to some other resolutions, resumed

FRIDAY.

The Irish Inland Navigation Bill was passed.

Mr. Buzton gave notice of a motion for the 14th inst. for Copies of the Correspondence between the British Government and the East India Directors, relative to the practice of widows burning themselves on the tombs of their husbands.

Some discussion took place on the second reading of the Maxwell Slave Removal Bill, which was opposed by Mr. Goulburn, on the ground that the removal of slaves from insular to continental posssions ought not to be Countenanced. He moved that the Bill be read a second time this day three months.

On a division—For the Second Reading pow, 47—For the Amendment, 98. The B.ll is, of course, thrown out.

The Bungar.—The Chanceller of the Exchequer moved the House to go into a Committe.

After some words from Mr. Hume the House went into a Com-

The Chancellor then observed, that the House having already voted, with some slight exceptions, the various Estimates for the year, he was now called upon to present the usual annual ex-position of the Ways and Means to meet those Supplies. He would therefore endeavour to state, as clearly and as shortly as possible, the estimated expenditure for the year, with the resources forth-coming to defray that expenditure; and first he would recapitulate the Supplies. For the Supply of the Army, the Heuse had voted, according to the Estimates, 9,750,000l. which was 693,243l. less than the vote of last year, that vote being 9,443,243l. For the Navy 6,176,700l. which was 409,993l. less than the vote of last year, that yote being 6,586,6951. The vote for the Ordannee was 1,195,1001, which was 1:ss than the vote of last year by 4,5501, that vote being 1,999,6501. Of the miscellaneous services, the much greater part had en already voted, but some items still remained for consideration The total estimated amount of this head of service was 1,900,000l. are user estimated amount of this need of service was 1,900,000l, which was less than the note of last year by 544,000l, that vote being for2,444,100l. The total of these supplies then was 18,021,500l, while that for last year was 19,673,888l. So that the total reduction of the public expence since the last year was 1,652,869l. The amount of interest upon Exchequer Bilds was the same for the present, as it was for the last year, namely, one million. Upon the Annual Taxes be had taken a credit of 4,000,0001. instead of 3,000,0001., as was the previous practice, for a reason which he would explain to the Committee. In the next article, therefore, he proposed to take a credit of only 1,466,0001. spon the Excise Duties, instead of 2,500,0001., which had been granted in the preceding year, a por-tion of them being transferred to the Annual Taxes. The amount therefore of the Annual Taxes and the Excise Duties, taken collectherefore of the Annual Taxes and the Excise Duties, taken collectively, would still be 5,580,0001. For the Lottery he took a credit of 200,0001. instead of 240,0001. For the Lottery he took a credit of 200,0001. The next item was one of a novel and extraordinary kind. This was the surplus of pecuniary indemnity, payable by the French Government, amounting to a sum of 500,0001. The total amount of the sums received had been nearly 125,000,000 livres, amounting to about 5,000,0001. sterling. From these sums the bounty of Parliament had bestowed a donaion of 1,000,0001 upon the army employed in the later offcious exploits. The expenses of the Army of Occupation the late glorious exploits. The expences of the Army of Occupation were to have been met entirely by the produce of the French indemnity, but as there were some incidental expences and allowance on the footing of pay to the foreign armies, a considerable increase of expenditure had attended the residence of the British army on the Continent. After providing for all these charges, and a far-ther payment of 2,000,000l. sterling for fortifications in the Netherlands, there still remained applicable to the service of the pre-sent year, a surplus of 500,0001, payable by the French Government. Having enumerated some of the minor items, he said the total amount of the ready money produce of the resources of the total amount of the ready money produce of the resources of the year was 6,570,0301. In order to meet the services of the year, which amounted to 20,018,0001., it had been necessary to take a loan from the Sinking Fund of 13,000,0001. that is, 12,500,0001. from the Sinking Fund in England, and 500,0001. from the Sinking Fund in Ireland. The whole amount of the Ways and Means was consequently 20,031,5691. leaving an excess of about 12,0001. From the services of the year, which amounted to 20,018,2001. From this statement it would appear how large the reductions had been in the course of the present year. The East India Company had applied for a settle ent of their claims upon Government, which nominally amounted to 2,000,0001. and Government were not indisposed to listen to them. With respect to the mode in which the Sinking Fund Loan operated upon the purchases made by the Comctory to per Funds to learn, that by the present arrangement, although 12,000,0001. only were taken in the course of twelve months, from July, 1620, to July, 1621, yet 12,400,0001, were taken from January, 1620, to January, 1621, so that the sum taken from the Sinking Fund in the course of the last year amounted in fact to a greater sum than it would do in the present year In 1820 the revenue actually received in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Iraland empanded in the whole to $6.840.6861. Great Britain and Ireland amounted in the whole to 54,640,6881. With respect to the actual expenditure for that year, the charge upon the Consolidated Fund amounted to 48,597,1671. for interest on the Sinking Fund of the Unfunded Debt, 2,300,169l. making in the whole a sum of 50,897,335l. for charges, exclusive of the Supplies of the year. Taking the whole amount of expenditure at 71,199,8541. and deducting from it the amount of income, there appeared an excess of expenditure over the Revenue amounting to 16,559,1761. But the Sinking Fund applied in the course of the year amounted to 17,509,7731. so that, in point of fact, there was a surplus of income over expenditure amounting to 950,5971. This was not, however, a fair way of stating the account of the services of the year, for it must be observed that the interest of the Sinking Fund of the Unfunded Debt was 2,300,000l. and the actual amou of a year's interest of the Unfunded Debt, did not exceed 1,800,000 There was a large arrear for the interest of outstanding Exch Bills amounting to 900,0001, making a total sum applicable to the liquidation of the debt of 17,190,0001. It appeared, therefore, that in the course of the year 1820, our situation with regard to the amount of our incumbrances was only improving by the sum of 17,180,0001. He would assume, that the net produce of revenue for the present year was the same as in the last year. Taking it therefore at 5,422,7141. and adding 200,0001. for Lotteries, 163,0001. Old Stores, 500,0001. French Indemnity, and 125,0001. Tepayment of Exchequer Bills, the whole would amount to 5,511,1141. The charge upon the Consolidated Fund, taking it at 100,0001. short of last year, would amount in round numbers to 48,500,0001. The interest of the Sinking Fund of the Unfunded Debt was 1,700,000). and the whole services of the year, without going through the details, would amount to 58,221,000l. Deducting the amount of revenue for the payments already enumerated, there would be an expenditure of 13,209,8181, beyond the income. With respect to the Sinking Fund, the nominal amount this year was 16,500,000f, and the actual amount of the reduction of debt would be 3,580,000. Adding a sum of 4,000,000l. for interest of Exchequer Bills, which were overdue, it appeared that the excess of income over expenditure for the present year amounted to about 4,000,0001. It would be recollected that a clear surplus of 5,000,0001, was contemplated last year; and although that point was not likely to be reached, unless the revenue increased very considerably, there was every reason to suppose that they should approach to it in the proportion of 4 to 5. In the course of the present year the actual payments for Great Britain into the Exchequer amounted to 15,338,3221, and for Ireland to 1,435,2121, making in the whole 16,623,0341. Respected, therefore, that in the five months already clapsed the revenue of the present year exceeded that of the last by a sum of 240,000i. after deducting from the revenue of 1980 the amount of the Malt Duties which belonged to the preceding year. Un-less some unforescen circumstances should arise, there was every exceed that of the last year. In the year 1819 Parliament resolved upon making an addition of 2,000,0001 to the taxes, for the purpose of producing a clear surplus of 5,000,0001, over the expenditure. Since that time a period of extreme difficulty had interened. A large re-payment had been made to the Bank, amounting to 9,000,0001, and there was this difference in repayments made to the Bank from all other repayments, that whatever was repaid to the Bank was so much taken out of the circulation of the country. The House and the country had reason to congratulate themselves that the Bank of England had begun to pay in cash. There was now no apprehension of any further restriction upon the circulation.— Every thing would be left to its natural channel, life and animation would be given to every branch of our trade and commerce, and the industry and talent of the country would be employed in a thousand diversified ways in the reproduction of national wealth. The beneficial effect of this change had already appeared in the increased value of funded property, and the rise of the funds was sure to give animation to all other property. It increased the facility of obtaining money upon mortgage, and every other species of accommodation. The Right Hon. Gent. concluded by moving that a sum not exceeding 13,000,0001. be raised upon Annuities for the Supply of the year 1821, 12,500,000L of which to be on Great Britain, 500,0001. cn Ireland.

Mr. Maberley had no objection to the Ways and Means; his objection went to the Supplies. He would now state what the real financial state of the country was, and contrast it with what it might be; he would, therefore, now state the interest of the Funded and Unfunded Debt, &c. and he reckoned 48,328,7071. as the amount of the interest of these debts, including the Dutch and Russian loans, the Irish Annuities, and the Arrears of the Consolideted Fund, up to the 5th of January, 1821. This was a debt which must be provided for, unless we showed ourselves to be equally unjust and ungenerous. It was borrowed on specific terms, and a certain sum was appropriated as a Sinking Fund to make a payment of five per cent. on which, by a certain reduction, there neight be a saving of 1,500,000t. The Hon. Gent. then noticed certain departments in which considerable savings might be made.

Mr. Astell contended, that the East India Company were estitled to the repayment of their demands, for the expences incurred at St. Helena, which amounted to between 2 and 3,000t, and ought to be paid by Government.

Mr. Calcraft expressed his dissatisfaction at the statement of the Right Hon. Gent. although the Rouse scenned fully satisfied with that statement.

Sir J. Newport entered into calculations to show the increased taxation in Ireland.

Mr. Ricardo was of opinion the accounts laid on the table did not afford an accurate view of the state of the finances.

After some observations from Mr. Maberley, Sir H. Parnell, Ma.

Hume, &c. the Resolution was carried for voting 13,000,000k in aid of the Supply.

The Committee divided on the resolution for granting 200,000k.

by Lottery. For the resolution, 123—Against it, 65—Majority, 56.
The other resolutions were agreed to.
In a Committee on the Bill for preventing ill-treatment of Horses, Mr. Ald. C. Smith proposed to add "Asses" to the humanity of some gentlemen might suggest protection for their dogs and cats.

some gentiemen migut suggest protection to the received that day six months.

On the Report being brought up,

Mr. Ellice moved that it should be received that day six months.

On a division—For the amendment, 31—Against it, 34—Majority for the Bill, 3.—Adjourned till Monday.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

COURT OF CHANCERY, TURADAY.

Westmeath v. Westmeath.—This was an application by Lord Westmeath to restrain the Countons and her Trustees from proceeding against him at law under deeds of separation. The Chancelor and the deeds were impeached on two grounds; first, on a state-ment that they were improperly obtained; and, secondly, on a charge that they were against the policy of the law. He had read the bill, and answers, and the other documents attentively, and he must put the first ground entirely out of the question. Unless the deeds were vold in their nature, there was no circumstance in the case as it then stood before him on which equity ought to interfere. Upon the question of law, if he had had to decide the points as a common law Judge thirty years ago, he should have held all deeds of separation absolutely illegal and void, but dictum after dictum, and case after case, had since been in their favour; and Lord Kenyou, who had brought a vast body of knowledge with him into the Court of King's Bench, had decided, that where a husbard charged estates through a trustee, with a separate maintenance for charged estates through a trustee, with a separate maintenance for his wife, that charge was good in law. Now, what the Countesi's counsel insisted was, that there being such a charge in this case, she ought not to be prevented by a court of equity from enforcing it, and this they proposed doing by a distress. Why then should be interfere to prevent her, there being in the case no circumstance on which he could say that equity cought to restead her from using any which he could say that equity ought to restrain her from using any legal remedies which she might possess for recovering her allowance? Taking this view of the case, he must refuse the motion.

Sir G. Humpson pressed his Lordship to send a case to a Court of common law, for its opinion on the deeds, but the Chancellor refused it. He said he had carefully shatnings from noticing the particular facts which were before him; but if he directed a case, en he must direct admissions to be made, which he could scarcely think possible.

Digitized by Google

Sir G. Hampson said Lord Westmenth had commenced a sui against the Countess for a restitution of conjugul rights.

The Chancellor asked whether there was not a covenant in the deeds to restrain him from doing so?—but Mr. Blake, on the part of the Countess, said she had been advised to meet the suit in the Ecclesiastical Court.

COURT OF KING'S BENCH, MONDAY.

The King v. John Hunt.—The defendant in this case is the Printer of the Newspaper called The Examiner, and was brought up to receive judgment for a libel on the House of Commons.

The defendant wished to address some observations on the mode of forming Special Juries, but with a view of shewing that the system wasinjurious to the public as well as to himself.

The Chief Justice.—We cannot hear you, because you are arraigning an Act of Parliament, which the Legislature might, if they saw it proper and convenient, repeal; but it is our duty to defend the law which is established, and I cannot, therefore, in this place, hear your complaints of the system.

The defendant then said, that it was against the corruption of that branch of the Legislature that his attempts were directed, and the motive by which his conduct was actuated was a most ardent wish to rescue that body from the contempt into which it had fullen in consequence of the corruption of some of its constituent Many illustrious individuals had with impunity, in and out of that House, given their opinions of its corruption, and his (Mr. Hunt's) description was only an echo of their sentiments. Lord Chatham, who had the best opportunity of knowing the constitution of the House of Commons, had asserted, "that unless it should be reformed from within, it would be reformed from without with a vengeance." The House of Commons could be injured in the vengeance." The House of Commons could be injured in the public estimation by its own conduct only. If sales of seats in that House were as clear as the sun at noon—if nomination of Members by the Treasury, by Peers and Peeresses, were to be permitted—if the House consisted, for the greater part, of venal borough-mongers and place-men, must they not be a body containing a far greater pertion of public criminals than public guardians?

The Chief Justice—We can't bear this attack on the House of

Mr. Hunt-I am only putting the argument hypothetically. say, if such practices be in existence my conclusion was right, and in that I only echo the opinion of others.

ha that I only echo the opinion of others.

Mr. Justice Bailey—The Members of the House of Commons have a privilege of speech, which the House itself could punish, but no person out of the House can use that freedom of speech.

The Solicitor-General was heard in aggravation.

Mr. Justice Bayley then passed sentence on the defendant.—The Learned Judge, after commenting at some length on the words of the libel, observed that the virulent language alluded to might have been often used in the House of Commons by its own Members; notwithstanding it did not therefore follow that every other person out of the House, not even the very Member who used the language in the House, could be at liberty to circulate that language through the medium of the press in any other place. The liberty of the press would be best preserved by correcting those excrescences in which that liberty is exceeded. The judgment of the Court was, that the defendant be confined in the House of Correction, in Cold Bath-fields, for one year; and at the expiration of that term, that he give security for good conduct for three years, himself in 5001. and two others in 2501. each.

The King v. Thomas Flindelt.—The defendant in this case is Proprietor of the Western Luminary, a paper published at Exeter, and he was found guilty at the last Assizes for the county, of a publication in his paper to this effect: "Shall a woman, who is notoriously devoted to Bacchus and to Veaus—such a one who, if found riously devoted to Bacchus and to Venus—such a one who, if found in the streets of our city would be committed to Bridewell—shall such a woman ever be held up as a model of virtue and purity?" This publication had reference to the Queen, and was alleged to be a libel; the Jury who returned a verdict of guilty, strongly recommended the defendant to mercy.

The defendant put in a long affidavit, which stated, that he had twelve children, nine of whom are dependent on him for support, and that if he were imprisoned for any length of time in a place, distant from Exeter where he carries on his business, it would be supposed.

He then addressed the Court at some length from a written He then addressed the Court at some length from a written paper. He stated that his attention had been called to the subject by the publication of the Report of the Committee of the House of Lords, appointed to investigate charges against the Queen, which report impugned her Majesty's conduct in severer terms than he had used in commenting upon it. He was, therefore, utterly at a loss to understand how he was to be selected by His Majesty's Attorney-General for prosecution "against the peace of our Sovereign Lord the King," for using this language, when the Law Officers of the Crown had used more violent expressions respecting the Queen in the presence of the House of Lords. As to the insinuation that his (the defendant's) expressions were calculated to prejudice her Majesty in the even of the House of Lords, he thought it was a libel Majesty in the eyes of the House of Lords, he thought it was a libel upon the hereditary Counsellers of the King, to make such an insinuation upon their judgment and character. The defendant then called the attention of the Court to the injury he had also sustained by assault and popular violence, in consequence of this prosecution. He submitted, that he had already suffered enough for his offence, which was not intentional. His object merely was, in his capacity as a public Journalist, to uphold the moral character of his country. He had uniformly been the supporter of the Royal Family, try. He had uniformly been the supporter of the Royal Family, the Luws, and Government of his country; and the Jury before whom he was tried, and who knew his character in the country, had most earnestly and particularly recommended, that he should suffer the most lenient punishment which the law could possibly He was now extremely sorry for the offence he had com

(The defendant appeared here to be so overpowered by his feelings, that he sat down.)

The Solicitor-General made some observations upon the n of the publication in question. It would be recollected that when the publication took place, a Committee of the House of Lords had brought in a Report recommending an inquiry into the conduct of her Majesty, and the form, and mode, and time of that inquiry had been fixed by the House of Lords. At such a moment, and before the inquiry took place, was it befitting that the defendant should not only have assumed the guilt of her Majesty upon the charge then in progress, but have superadded to it other charges of a degrading nature, to which the Lords' Report had no reference? It was true he had been recommended, by a Jary of his neighbours, to great mercy and lenity. He (the Solicitor-General) had no desire to reduce the value of that recommendation, which, he preswund, was given by persons well qualified to form a proper judg-ment of his general character and conduct. He had also sworn that he had a family of twelve children dependent upon him for These were circumstances upon which the Court would exercise their discretion; and, as the defendant had expressed his contrition for the offence, he had no wish to aggravate the circumstances of the case.

Mr. Justice Bayley made some observations in the course of possing sensence on the nature of the charge, and in conclusion said, healthy.

that the Court had taken seriously into its consideration the very strong recommendation of the Jury, who must have known the defendant's character in his neighbourhood, and that that recommendation had materially weighed with them in pronouncing their judgment, which was.—That the defendant should be imprisoned juagment, which was.—That the defendant should be imprisoned in the county gaol of Devon, at Exeter, for the space of Eight Calendar Months, and that, at the expiration of that term, he should give sureties to keep the peace for three years, himself in 500l. and two sufficient surelies in 250l euch.

WEDNESDAY .- The King v. The Rev. R. Blacow .- The Chief Justice, at the sitting of the Court this morning, declared the opi-nion of himself and his Learned Brethren, upon the objection made by Mr. Parke in this case, that her Majesty had not negatived the slanderous matter set forth in the alleged libel for which the defendant was called upon to answer by criminal information, and said, "We have conferred together in the case of the King v.

said, "We have conferred together in the case of the King v. Blacow, and considering the tendency of this particular libel, and the exalted station of the object of it, we think the objection taken by Mr. Parke ought not to prevail, and that the Rule for the criminal information ought to be made absolute."—Rule absolute.

The King v. John Cartwright, Esq. and Others.—The Attorney-General rayed the judgment of the Court on the defendants, John Cartwright, Esq. G. Edmonds, Thomas Jonathan Wooler, Wm. Greathend Lewis, and Charles Maddocks, convicted at the last Summer Assizes for the county of Warwick before the Lord Chief Baron Bichards. of a consumer to elect Sir Charles Wolsetast summer Assizes for the county of warwick before the Dora Chief Baron Richards, of a conspiracy to elect Sir Charles Wolse-ley, Bart, as Legislatorial Attorney in Parliament for the populous town of Birmingham, and to excite disaffection towards His Ma-jesty's Government, by means of geditious speeches delivered at a public meeting at Birmingham, on the 12th of July, in the 59th year of the late King's reign.

All the defendants, except Mr. Levis (who is now in confinement under a former sentence) immediately came into Court, attended

The Chief Justice -On account of Major Cartwright's advanced age, let him sit down.

The Major was immediately accommodated with a seat.

Mr. Justice Best proceeded to read the Lord Chief Baron's Report of the Trial, which occupied a considerable portion of time After the Report was concluded,

Mr. Edmonds put in an affidevit of some length, in which, al-though he declared his readiness to submit with patience and forti-tude to the judgment of the Court, he declared his utter unconsciousness of the truth of the allegations contained in the indictment.

Mr. Maddocks, late School-master of Birmingham, then put in an affidavit, in which he complained of having been wrongfully convicted by a picked, pucked, or selected Special Jury. He had suffered greatly in his pecuniary affairs, was reduced to a state of beggary by this unjust proceeding, had been greatly harassed in his mind by the protraction of the final result of the prosecution, from time to time, was the father of three helpless infants, and had a wife almost broken-hearted, and in the utmost state of misery in consequence of his misfortunes.

Major Cartwright then put in .an-affidavit of very considerable length, in which he protested in strong terms against the mode of impanelling Special Juries in Crownsprosecutions, and arraigned the manner in which the Jury who titled this case was picked and pucked, declaring that he had not had a fuir trial.

The Court interposed several times, and observed that they could not suffer such remarks to be made, and ultimately directed that the objectionable passages should be expunged. The worthy Major accordingly retired with his Solicitor, Mr. Pearson, to comply with the orders of the Court, and on his return, the affidavit, as amended, was read.

was read.

Several affidavits were put in as to the character of the Major. After hearing Mr. Edmonds, the Court adjourned.

FRIDAY.—The King v. Major Cartwright, Waoler, and others.

—The Court, after hearing the defaulants, in mitigation of punishment, sentenced Major Cartwright to pay a fine of 1001.; Wooler to imprisonment in Warwick Gaol for fifteen months, and then to give security for five years, himself in 4001, and two sureties in 2001, each; Edmonds to be imprisoned nine months, and Maddocks eighthen months, in the same gaol; and each to give securities for five years, themselves in 4001, and two other sureties in 1001, each. Major Cartwright immediately paid down his fine, shook hands with co-defendants, and respectfully yettred.

MISCELLANEOUS.

We extract the following paragraph from Professor Christian's Appendix to his Treatise on the Game Laws:—

The lamentable state of our gadls at present, and the calendars "The lamentable state of our gadls at present, and the calendars at the Assizes, is such as was never known before by any man now living. The causes certainly are, the continuation of the law to prevent the legal sale of Game, and the indiscreet and fatal relaxation of the criminal law. Notwiths and ing the learning, integrity, diligence, and sound discretion of our Judges, the people of England are now more exposed to danger in their lives and property, from the commission of crimes, than any other nation within any of the four quarters of the globe. Liberty has been defined (by Sir J. Mackintosh) to be security from wrong; and if the reverse is slavery, it is certainly true, that there were was a time when Englishmen were reduced to such a state of slavery, and retained so little of their ancient liberty.

"After long experience, I have faithfully discharged my duty; but my warning voice has unfortunately been disregarded; and when the progress of the terrible consequences will now be stopped or retarded, all conjecture and calculation are set at defiance. All we are sure of is this, that—

Res aspera est; spes muko asperior!
Our condition is dreadful: our expectations much more dread-

The new cavalry barracks in the Regent's Park are just com-pleted. There are stabling for 424 horses, and replete barrack ac-commodation for as many men. The Royal Horse Guards Blue, now at Windsor Barracks, are 10 take possession of them on the

The Earl of Chichester has now in his possession a thumb-ring, of pure gold, but of very rude manufacture, which was ploughed up a few days ago, on his Lordship's estate in Sussex.

AGRICULTURE.—Monthly Report for May,—The weather has continued variable throughout the month, with sudden alternations of heat and cold, which assuredly must have had an ill effect on every species of vegetation to a certain degree; and the blossoms of all fruit-trees have suffered from the blight; but as they were in such luxuriant plenty, a sufficiency is said to remain for an abundant crop. Of grass the shew is great, both in the feeding and hay districts. The same with lucern, clover, and other grasses. Some clovers, which it was supposed had failed, have lately recovered from the showery weather, and now exhibit a strong plant. Tares also are improved, and the potatog plants are improving. The wheats, generally, appear strong and b althy, and although a month since they were remarkably backward upon some good lands, on others they are at present in the opposite extreme. All the spring crops have a thriving and luxuriant appearance, and the beans which were cut by the frosts now want but the genial warmth of the sun for their full recovery. The thin set wheats, within the last two or three weeks, have tillered away luxuriantly. The turnip lands are getting into order. Hops have received some check from the variable and cold weather, but the bine is generally strong and EXTRAORDINARY DISCOVERY, - A novel and curious method of self-substitution of arithmetical numbers, or making any and every number thequatient of innumerable questions, at sight, and without calculation, has been effected by a simple mechanical contrivat The method, which is aptly styled anteriorizer, is, it is understood, about to be published, and said to be the invention of a gentleman of literary notoriety, holding an office under Government.

THE HERMIT IN THE COUNTRY.—This work forms as appropriate companion to the Hermit in London. It displays the same priate companion to the Hermit in London. It displays the same knowledge of human nature in all its departments, those habits of quick observation, that keen sense of propriety and moral feeling which so eminently distinguish this writer. Among other amusing subjects in these volumes will be found—A Trip to Richmond.— Man Traps.—Watering Places—Leaving Home.—The Packet Boat.—An Exquistic's Life in the Country.—A Fishing Scene.—My Landlady.—A Party of Pleasure.—The Top of a Stage.—A Child's Burial.—The March—The Rough Diamond—The Navy Lieutenant—Love and Matrimony.—The Rusticated Londoner—Scotland—Hogmans, or New Year's Morn in Edinburgh—The Foy—The Drage, &c. &c.

In the lately published "Transactions of the Literary Sockety of Bombay," is an account of a curious surgical case, in which the loss of a portion of bone, in the arm of an Arab has been supplied, through the dexterity of a native surgeon, by a silver tube.

Accounts have been received of the arrival of the following con-vict ships at New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land, with the number of convicts against their names, expressed, without the loss of a single life:—Lord Wellington, with 123 female convicts; Morley, with 118 female convicts; Caledonia, with 150 male convicts; and the Guildford, with 190 male convicts, including the Cato-street

Letters from Stockholm mention, as a singular fact, that, according to the Russian Court Almanack, there exists, at present, only two Grand Crosses of the Order of St. George, which are—the King of Sweden and Norway, and the Duke of Wellington;—also, that the Russian Empire has actually but one Field Murshal, viz. the Duke of Wellington. The last Russian Field Marshal died about six weeks are dled about six weeks ago.

MR. CROMWELL'S "OLIVER CROMWELL AND HIS TIMES,"-We are accused, by our enemies of political partiality. With the impartial, and the friends to good order and good government, this accusation carries with it its own reply; but we are willing, at all times, to afford such (for with others we disdain communication) the means of effectually repelling imputations, to which they may possibly attach more importance than ourselves. Mr. Cromwell's political deductions, appearing in his just-published work, are certainly not such as we should draw from the "times" of which be treats; but as he writes with temper, ability, and evidently from his own convictions, we have suffered no political considerations to interfere with the pleasure we have derived from the perusal of his-

The Eary and Hecla, Discovery Ships, accompanied by the Nan-tilus transport, put into Widewall harbour, in the island of South Ronaldsha (one of the Orkneys) on the 17th ult. is consequence of contrary winds. On the 19th they had completed their water, and were to put to sea again the moment the wind became more favour-

A Mr. Leinberger, of Nuremberg, has resolved the prob giving a horizontal direction to balloous, and offers to make a jour-ney from Nuremberg to England in a balloon, as soon as the Royal Academy of London shall have guaranteed the payment of the pre-mium of 20,000l. offered for the discovery.

SCROPULA, &c. -- Of all the discoveries made in the healing art that of the virtues of Jodine as a remedy for scrofula in every form, and wenny tumours is the most important. The 66th Number of the Monthly Gazette of Health (published on the 1st inst.) contains some extraordinary cures it has affected, with directions for its exhibition. Among the other intelligence this Number contains, may be noticed an interesting article on the cause and treatment of indigestion and flatulence, cases of rheumatism, it deloarus, croup, scald head, liver cough cured by the colchicum seeds, carbonate of iron, dec.; efficacy of palsumism in affections of the liver; the scientific exposure of a plausible species of targonic writing of some medical scribblers, which had tended to check the progress of medicine, by inducing the ignorant to attend to technicalities and flights of fancy, more than to the science of medicine; and the comparative view the Editor has taken of the works of Des. Solomon, James Johnson, Jordan, dec. We recommend to the serious perusal of those members of the profession who feel interested in the promotion of science, and indeed to every person who may ber of the Monthly Gazette of Health (published on the 1st inst.) in the promotion of science, and indeed to every person who may wish to be acquainted with the arts of medicine, and of dealers in words as well as nostrums. The plan of treating pulmonary con-sumption, in the 65th Number, we are happy to find has been adopted in many desperate cases with complete success.

New Publications.—The following works have been recently published by Messrs. Colburn and Co.:—1. The Universe, a Peem; published by Messrs, Colburn and Co.:—1. The Universe, a Peem; by the Rev. R. Maturin. 2. Practical Economy, or the Application of Modern Discoveries to the purposes of Domestic Life. 3. Precaution, or the Matrimonial Balance, a Novel. 4. Palmyre et Flaminie ou le Secret, par Mad. de Gealis, 2 vols. 5. The Hesmit in the Country; by the author of the Hermit in London, 3 vols. 6. Secret Memoirs of the Court of Westphalia, 8vo. 7. Memoirs of Granville Sharp, by Prince Hoare. 6. Private Correspondence of David Humer the Historian. 9. Prince Maximillian's Travels in Russil. 10. Memoirs of Hellst Michael Michael Counce Charlette by D. Bruzil. 10. Memoirs of Her late Majesty Queen Charlotte, by Dr. Watkins. 11. Mollien's Travels in the Interior of Africa, edited by T. E. Bowdich, Esq. 12. Scheming, a Novel, 3 vols. 13. Sa Arthur Clarke's Essay on Diseases of the Skin, 12mo.; and 14. The 6th volume of Lord Orford's Works, comprising the Letters to Montagu, Cole, &c.

ADVERTISEMENT.]-GENERAL REDUCTION OF TAXES. ADVERTISEMENT. —GENERAL REDUCTION OF TAKES.—The necessity and expediency of striking off a portion of the National Debt is very ably argued in the "Pamphleteer," No. 36, just published—by which, it is proved, that the injury to the public creditor will be very little felt. The subject is expected to be brought under consideration during this Session of Parliament. In the same Number, are published, Bowles' Letters to Lord Byron; B. Beaumont on the Criminal Code; Cornaro on Longevity; with several other eating Pamphlets.

On Monday the 28th ult. No. 14,041 was drawn a Prime of 21,0001. Consols, and sold by Bish, in Shares, viz:—

One Quarter at Carmarthen One Sixteenth at Edinburgh One Quarter in London One Sixteenth in London One Sixteenth at Maidstone One Eighth in London One Sixteenth at Bath One Sixteenth at Marlburough One Sixteenth at Margate.

Вівн	also	sold	tb	e f	ollo	wing	Prizes, all	drav	v.D	th	e 58	me	d	nv :-
							1 7,20
1,61	6.					220	19,5	54						200
3,31	7.					250	11,4	76						110
11,36	7.					2 20	18,5
16,67	3.					220	1 1	đ	c.	de	e.

BISH also sold, in the Lottery drawn in Murch, Three Prizes of £21,000, and several smaller Capitals.—Every Ticket or Share Chance bought on or before the 28th of May, was finally decided on the 28th of May. Ticket and Share Chances are on Sale at Bish's Offices, 4, Cornhill, and 9, Charing Cross, London; and by his Agents in the country.—All the 3,002 Prize, including the £20,200 Prizes, must be drawn the 14th of this Month, (June.)

Digitized by Google

THE MELANCHOLY CATASTROPHE IN THE BOROUGH. Saturday se'nnight an inquisition was held by Mr. Shelton on the body of Mr. Harmer, who was shot on Thursday by his wife. The Jury first met at the Hat and Shears public-house, Weston-street, whence they adjourned to the Vestry-room in Tooley-street. Having been sworn, they proceeded to Mr. Harmer's house, to view the body. On their return to the Vestry-room, Hannah Studd was examined. She repeated the evidence which she gave before the Magistrates at the Town-hall, adding, that she heard her mistress, who had been to a banker's in the City, and received 40 sovereigns, adrising Mr. Harmer to convert his notes into gold as soon as possible. Mr. Harmer, she said, was in respectable circumstances, and acted as town agent to his father, an eminent iron-founder in Cross-examined .- When witness saw her mistress behind the parfour door she smiled at her, on which the prisoner turned round and smiled again. No conversation passed, and witness went down again to the kitchen. She then heard her master and prisoner talking, and the deceased laughing. The prisoner spoke loud. Witness did not hear what they then said. They appeared to be wrangling; but whether in jest or earnest witness could not say, but thought it was in play. After some time the deceased uttered a shocking oath, and said he would shoot her mistress; on which she heard the latter say, "Oh! you coward, is that what you have got to fly to? why don't you use your hands as I do??" Witness then heard the snapping of an unloaded pistol, as she had frequently keard before, for they were always playing with pistols and frightening each other. Mr. Hurmer sometimes kept the pistols in a cup-board near the fire-place, behind where his chair was; but they were generally lying about. Soon after the snapping which witness described, she heard a report as of loaded fire-arms.—Witness then detailed the results to the same effect as in her examination in chief. In answer to further questions, she stated that on Wednesday the deceased had requested his wife to remain in bed with him during the whole day, as he knew he should not live long; and in the course of the same day he was heard talking incoherently to himself. Witness had often heard her mistress say she was alraid she should be shot, in fun or in earnest, some time or other. On Saturday week witness, by desire of the prisoner, carried the pistols to Mrs. Harmer's mother's, Mrs. Harmer saying she was afraid to he in the house with the deceased, lest he should shoot her. With the sess continued her evidence as follows:—When the deceased missed the pistols, he asked me what had become of them, and I told him they were at Mrs. Delahunt's; he replied, "On! d—d nonsense—go for them, and fetch me a pennyworth of crocus, and I'll clean them." I went, but Mrs. Delahunt and Mrs. Harmer (who was there with some ladies) prevented me from taking them kome. The following day I fetched them away by order of my mistress. My master was displeased when he missed the pistols.

Mr. W. Jamieson, of No. 7, Weston-street, surgeon, deposed that about eight o'clock on Thursday evening he saw Mrs. Harmer run and the servant following her; he heard the servant exclaim, "Oh, God! send for a doctor." Witzess went to the house of the deceased, whose situation he proceeded to describe. Mr. Harmer died in about a minute or two after witness entered. Witness as-sisted in opening the head. The frontal bone was fractured over the left eye, and the ball was found lodged in the back part of the the deceased. On the return of Mrs. Harmer, she said, "Oh, God! is it true—is he dead?" and her grief was most distressing.

Mr. O. Atkinson, of 76, Tooley-street, surgeon, proved his having found the ball about an inch and a half behind the right ear. It was a small bullet, and had driven the eye into the cavity of the brain. In other respects this witness corroborated the statement of the foregoing witnesses.

A boy named Gilby proved his having, by his master's direction cast ten bullets, his master and mistress being present. His muster (the deceased) remarked in a jocular tone, "Is it not a pity one of these is not in my brain?" The wife of deceased replying in the same tone, "I wish it was."

One or two neighbours, who were present immediately after the transaction had taken place, were called; but nothing material was elicited from their testimony.

The Coroner then charged the Jury in a very intelligent and able manner; he recapitulated the whole of the evidence to the Jury, who, after some consultation, returned, at 11 o'clock, a verdict of-Accidental Death.

POLICE.

Town Hall, Southwark .- On Monday, Mrs. Elizabeth Harmer underwent a final examination at this office before Mr. Alderman J. J. Smith. Mr. Alley appeared as Counsel for the prisoner. She arrived in a coach at 20 minutes before one o'clock, accompanied by her mother, her husband's father and brother (who had arrived that morning from Sheffield) and her solicitor, with a number of particular friends. Mr. Harmer's father is a venerable grey-haired gentleman, and was frequently in tears during the examination. He expressed his full and entire satisfaction that the melanticular and offered to give heal choly occurrence was the effect of accident, and offered to give bail to the amount of 10001. for his daughter-in-law. The majority of the gentlemen who sat on the Coroner's Jury were present. Mrs, Harmer was conducted to a chair, and took her seat as upon her former examination; she was dressed in black, and was overwhelmed with grief. The Clerk delivered to the Magistrate a Certificate of with grief. The Cierk delivered to the magistrate a Certificate of the verdict of the Coroner's Jury. The Alderman then asked the Overseer of the parish if there was any more evidence forthcoming? The reply was in the negative. The worthy Magistrate then addressed the prisoner in a very feeling manner. The opinion of the Jury, he said, coincided with his own: it was unnecessary to caution her against playing in future with dangerous weapons, and he hoped a would be a salutary warning to every one present, and to the public, not to meddle unnecessarily with deadly weapons. He now called upon her to enter into recognizances, herself in the sum of 1001, and two sureties in 501, each. Her father-in-law, and Mr. Watson, of Clifford's Inn, her attorney, entered with herself into the required sureties, and she was discharged.

SUDBURY.—The wife of Henry Frost, weaver, of this town, some time since sold to one Win. Whiting for the small sum of 1s. 6d. her husband, the purchaser having given him has return guineas to take her back.

WINSTER.—A fatal duel took place in this town, which arose out of the following circumstances:—Mr. Cuddie, a Scotch apothecary, having taking up his residence here, paid his addresses to Miss Brittlebank, the daughter of an eminent solicitor, but the lady's relations informed Mr. C. that they decidedly disapproved of the attentions paid by him. On Monday se'nnight one of the lady's brothers, finding her walking with Mr. C. took her away, on which latter used such language that caused Mr. Brittlebank to demand either an apology or a lostile meeting. Mr. C. at first refused to do either; but at length, on the interference of a mutual friend, Mr. Spencer, a surgeon, he consented to meet Mr. B. who, in company with his two brothers, had repaired to the house of Mr. C. The duel took place in Mr. C.'s garden, and the result was, that Mr. C. received his antagonist's ball in his bowels, and died the fol-lowing day.—Verdict of the Coroner's Jury, Wilful Murder against Mr. Brittlebank's three sons, Andrew, William, and Francis, and also against Mr. Spencer.—Mr. W. Brittlebank (who killed Mr. C.) is not yet in custody, but the others are now confined in the county

Mails Arrived Arrived Mail 1....France Mails Due 1.....Vaterford Guernsey & Jersey Holland .Hamburgh..

- Guernsey & Jersey - Hamburgh. - Hamburgh. - Holland - Hamburgh. - Janaica. - Janaica. - Janaica. - St Thomas's - Arrived today and sailed for the River, the Amelia, Storey, in 64 days from Trieste. Arrived off the South Foreland, the William Harris, Harris, from Jamaica.

PLYMOUTH, May 31.—Wind E.—Arrived the Iphigenia frigate from Portsmouth; Maria, Fregarthen, from Mogadore for Londou; and the Commercial, Dalbot, from Mauritius for London. Sailed the Tom Cod, Burnec, for Naples.

PORTSMOUTH, June 1.-Wind Westerly.-Sailed His Majesty's ship tedwing, on a cruize; Hutton, Montgomery; and Lively, Mitchell, for GRAVESEND, June 1 .- Sailed the Catharine, Knox, for Madras.

SCARBRO', May 31.—The Jean, Williamson, in working out of the harbour, struck on the rocks, and has received so much damage as to put sack to repair.

Back to repair,

FALMOUTH, May 39.—Wind E.—The Blue Eyed Maid, which upset at sea, was brought in hero this morning by the Active cutter. Arrived the Ben Jonson, Smith, from the Cape of Good Hope in 30 days, for London; and Nassau, Tremayne, from Lisbon in 17 days, for London.

The Castle, Huntly, from China has arrived off Falmouth.

On the 1st of June was published, No. VI. of

THE NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE (New Series) printed on a new and very improved plan, and containing, besides the usual varieties in Art, Science, Criticism, Policies, and Commerce:

I. Digested Account of Captain Parry's Expedition.—II. On the Writings of Quevedo.—III. Morality of Newspapers.—IV. On the Choice of a Profession.—V. Sonnetomania.—VI. Kissing.—VII. Jonathan K-ntacky's Journal,
No. 3.—VIII. The Harp, a Tale, from the German of Kærner.—IX. Presentiments and Associations.—X. The Prophecy of Dante, by Lord Byron.—
XI. Title Pages.—XII. Field Flowers.—XIII. First Fruits of Australasian Poetry.—XIV. Walks in the Garden, No. 2.—XV. The Universe, a Poem, by the Rev. R. Maturin.—XVII. Narrative of the Captivity of Alexander Scott.

—XVII. Origin of the Debasement of the National Spirit in Italy.—
XVIII. Poems of Mad. de Surville.—XIX. Stanzas written during Sickness.—XX. Sannets, Epigrams, &c.—XXII. Correspondence—Lard Byron and the Literary Gazette.—XXII. Remarks on Marino Faliero—Mr Elliston, &c.

ness.—XX. Sannets, Epigrams, &c.—XXI. Correspondence—Lord Byron and the Literary Gazette.—XXII. Remarks on Marino F. liero—Mr Elliston, &c.
Printed for Henry Colburn and Co. Conduit-street; Bell and Bradfute, Edinburgh; and Joha Cumming, Dubliu; and retailed by all Booksellers, Newsmen, &c.

DUBOST'S ELEMENTS OF COMMERCE.

The Element's of Comments of Schange, Speculations in Exchange and Banking Operations, Bachange Circulations, Operations and Arbitrations of Exchange, Speculations in Exchange and Banking Operations, Exchange Circulations, Operations of Specie and Bullisn, Pars of Exchange and of Coins, Practical Speculations in Merchandize, Description and Tables of Monies, Weights, and Measures, and Tables of Logarithms: being a complete System of Commercial Calculations, -By GHRISTOPHER, DIBOST, Second Edition, greatly improved, and corrected to the present time, by the Esitor of "Mortimer's Dictionary."

Lonson: Pristed for Boosey and Sons, Broad-street, Exchange; Longman and Co and Sherwood and Co. Paternoster-row; Whittakers, Ave Maria-lane; J. Richardson, and J. M. Richardson, Cornhill; and C. Brown, Duke-street, Lincoln's Inn-Fields.

Just published, price 2s. by John Callow, 16, Prince's street, Sohe, PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS on the USE of the CUBRBS,
or JAVA PEPPER, in the CURE of GONORRHEA; with Cases.—
By HENRY JEFFREYS, Esq. Senior-Surgeon to the St. George's, and St. James's Dispensary: Assistant-Surgeon to the Lock Hospital, and formerly a Surgeon in the 3d Regiment of Ghards.

17 Shortly will be published, J. CALLOW'S MEDICAL CATALOGUE, Part II, centaining a choice Selection of Second-hand Medical Books, in various Languages.

Part II. centaining various Languages.

Just published, price 12l. 12s. in boards,
REMAINS of a ROMAN VILLA, at BOGNOR, in SUSSEX, containing Thirty-four Plates on Columbier Paper (many of them on whole Sheets) being the third and last Volume of RELIQUIE BRITANNICO-ROMANÆ, containing Figures of Roman Antiquities discovered in England.—By the late SAMUEL LYSONS, Esq. F.R.S. and F.A.S.
Sold by Messrs Cadell and Davies; Payne and Foss; and Rodwell and Martin.

Martin.

Complete Sets of this Work may be had, price 371. 16s. in boards; or with the Volume of WOODCHESTER ANTIQUITIES, 481. 6s. The number of complete Sets is necessarily limited to Fifty. The Plates of Vol. 1, Vol. 2, and of the Woodchester Volume having been destroyed. Part Third of Vol. 3 may be had separately to complete Sets, price 61. 6s

Lately were published, by Professor CHRISTIAN.

CHARGES to GRAND JURIES in the ISLE of ELY. One contains a full Vindication of the Criminal Law from the gross misre-presentations upon the subject; and another, a full Explanation of the Vagrant Law, price 10s.

Sold by Messrs. Clarke, Portugal street, and Messrs. Rivingtons, Water-

DISSERTATION upon EVIDENCE before the HOUSE of LORDS with a Postscript, containing a full Explanation of the Law respecting the Prayers in the Liturgy, price 6s. 6d. The Postscript is sold alone, price 1s. 6d. It put an end to the public discussion of the subject.

3. A TREATISE on the GAME LAWS, with an Appendix, containing the latest decisions and Observations upon the sale of Game, price 11s. 6d.—The Appendix is sold alone, price 1s.

BY THE KING'S PATENT.

CHANGE of RESIDENCE induces the Patentee to acquaint the Nobility and Gentry, that in consequence of the counterfelts under the same name, he has confined, the sale to such respectable houses (only) who deal in genuinc articles. The PATENT VIOLET SOAP having a decided preference, both as a washing and shaving Soap, for its cleansing, beautifying, softening, and balsamic properties on the skin, that it was in consequence of these inestinable qualities His Majesty granted his Letters Patent. It should invariably be asked for as "Hall's Patent Violet Soap." It is sold in squares at 25. 6d. and it boxes containing twelve squares, at 25. or twelve small, at 15s.; the shavig cakes, at 2s. 6d. each, or in boxes, 4s. 6d. which are re-filled, at 2s. 6d. and it is forwarded to all parts of town or country, warranted to arrive safe, by addressing a line by post to the Patentee. Observe his name and signature is on the outside of the wrapper.—J. B. HALL, No. 28, Hadlow-street, Burton Crescent, London.

ESTABLISHED UPWARDS OF TWENTY YEARS

For the SALE of IRISH LINEN by the PIECE,
At the Factor's Price, No. 4, on the South Side of Bloomshury square four doors from the top of Southampton-street, Holborn,
THE IRISH LINEN COMPANY beg leave to announce to the Public, that the above House is their only Establishment in the Country; where they continue to supply the Nobility, Gentry, and the Public with

WARRANTED GRASS-BLEACHED LINEN,

For Shirts and Sheets, of the best fabric and colour, at a price considerab lower than they can be procured through any other medium.

They also engage to return the Purchase-money should any fault appear. Good Irish Bills and Bank of Ireland Notes taken as usual.

Ceantry and Town orders punctually attended to by JOHN DONOVAN, 4, Bloomsbury-square, Løndon, JOHN DONOVAN, 4, Bloomsbury-square, Løndon, 3 Agents.

TO ALL WHO VALUE THEIR SIGHT,—The sight of the aged TO ALL WHO VALUE THEIR SIGHT,—The sight of the aged restored, the weak sight strengthened, and the perfect sight preserved to extreme old age, by DEXON'S IMPROVED SPECTACLES. To be had only at 93, Kewman street, two doors out of Oxford-street, Manufacturer to the late Mr. Bradberry, and since his death has commenced Business at the above place, where the Improved Spectacles can now only be had that is sanctioned by most of the Faculty, for the benefit of weak and impaired vision.—Please to observe 93, Newman-street, as there are many humble imitations of his Improved Spectacles offered to the Public.

NO FIXED PRIZES!!!- 3.002 PRIZES, including

NO FIXED PRIZES!!!—3.002 PRIZES, including
TWO PRIZES OF £20,200

must all be Drawn 14th of THIS MONTH, (June). Every Chance bought between 28th of May and 14th of June, will be decided 14th June. No Fixed Prizes!—No Classes! Every Ticket drawn singly, each deciding its own fate and no other.

The Tickets are issued in Chances of Tickets, Halves, Quarters, Eighths, and Sixteenths, which are now selling by

J. & J. SIVEWRIGHT, THE CONTRACTORS,
37, Cornhill; 11, Holborn; and 38, Haymarket; and by his Agents in the Country.
J. and J. Sivewright seld in the Drawing which took place the 28th ult.
No. 1,446, a Prize of £4,000, and several minor Capitals; and several £21,000 and £20,000 Prizes in the last Four Months.

PATENT ECONOMICAL and UNIVERSAL IAMP. This Invention embraces every requisite to render it a domestic comfort in the more general use of Lamps instead of Caudes, giving to the Public the choice of an improved light, in which there is perfect safety, at half the expense of Caudes. The Chamber or Night Light being universally interesting to all families, and particularly to many professions, may be best appreciated by a fair ecoparison with others, which are most resorted to, viz, the Rush Light, an old servant, but it must be allowed, a drowsy one, and totally unfit for motion. The wax-wick, stuck upon eart, floating in oil upon water, of more modern date, but must be stationary, subject to the cork catching fire, breaking the glass it floats in, causing a suffecating smell, consuming much oil, and a constant expense for the wicks. The Patent Economical Chamber Lamp; no expense but for oil, and that only at the rate of a halfpenny for eight or nine hours, giving a brilliant light, always ready at the moment it is wanted bearing any motion, and can be, regulated to burn the longest or shortest ingith, disappearing in the morning without smoke or smell. The price 10s. in japan stands, and 20s. in fancy bronze and Imperial metal. The same principle applies, with peculiar advantage; to the larger Lamps, for the diffuent, with elegant pedestals, 55s. to 55s.; and for the study, to write or read by (sinambra) they are every thing that can be wished, at 35s. to 45s. and upon a smaller scale, 25s. to 30s. these are aniversally approved and patronised by Clerical and other Professional Gentlemex in every part of the kingdom, and for all mimor uses they are equally desirable. The Greetan Glass Hanging Lamps for the Staircase, Passage, Conservatory, Hall, &c. are perfectly ewint taste, and elegantly simple, from 30s. to 75s. the latter upon a larger scale. In all these Lamps the same perfection exists,—burning the whole evening without trimming, requiring to be replenished with cotton only snee in two or three menths, and PATENT ECONOMICAL and UNIVERSAL LAMP. This Inver Syevmaceti.

N.B. Families or Persons residing in, or Passengers to, the East or West Indies, South America, &c. will find these Lamps a valuable acquisition, being calculated to burn Nut Oil as well as Spermaceti.

URLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brussels fabric), 174. URLING'S LACE (of the real Point and Brussels fabric), 174.

Strand, near Somerset House, removed from 392, Strand.—G. F. URLING and CO. beg to inform the Fashionable World, they have prepared for the Season a variousaxd extensive Assortment of their PATENT LACE DRESSES, from Four Guineas to 100 Guineas each; some of which, from recent improvaments, they humbly presume to compare with the most perfect foreign productions. Also a great variety of Veils, Searfs, Squares, Laces, Nets, &c. of every description. This peculiarly clear and transparent Article having, in the higher circles, superseded the asc of common Lace, which becomes rough and full of fibre on the first washing, the Patentees respectfully apprise the Public, that the latter is frequently starched to conceal its defects, and make it resemble Urling's Lace, which, therefore, can only be relied upon as genuine at their Wholessale and Rena Establishment in Lendon, or of the Constry Dealers supplied by them. Every Article is distinguished by a Seal, with the Patentee's Initials, "G. F. U. and Co." and the words, "by the (late) Queen's authority." Spechnens, shewing the superiority of Urling's Lace over common Lace, may be seen in Ackermann's Repository, La Belle Assemblee, and other fashiesable works, and may be had gratis, by application, post-paid, to G. F. Urling & Co. Ceuntry Dealers supplied upon the most liberal terms.—Manufactory, Basford, Nettinghamshire. ford, Nettinghamshire,

A BIGAIL'S GOLDEN METALLIC TINCTURE is the greatest A BIGAIL'S GOLDEN METALLIC TINCTURE is the greatest Discovery in the Universe, for changing Grey, or Red Hair on the Head, Whiskers, Eye-brows, or on any other part, to a Brown Black. Other Dyes are generally made from Lunar Casstie, from Silver, which will always turs the Hair of a purple hue; but the Golden Metallic Tincture, which is extracted from Gold, is sure to change it to a Brown Black. In short, a trid will convince Ladies and Gentlemen that the Golden Metallic Tincture is the purest, most innocent, and hest Dye for changing the Hair Immediately to a Brown Black, and does not stain the skin. Several Gentlemen who have used it, have declared that it is not only the best Dye for changing the Hair, but it also thickens the Hair and Whiskers, and has made the Whiskers double the thickness.

Ask for the Golden Metallic Tincture, at II, a bottle, or six bottles for 51. Birections are sealed up with each bottle, so that any one may Dye their own Hair without staining the skin, or the least trouble.

It is so prepared as to keep in all climates. The older the better. Merchants and Captains will receive liberal allowance for exportation.

Sold, by appeintment, wholesale, retail, and for exportation, by Mr. Prince, No. 9, Poland-street, Oxford-street; Swift, 28, Holborn; and Messrs. Howel and James, No. 9. Regent-street, Pall Mall; also by Bacon and Co. 130, Oxford-street; Prant, 229, Straad; Davison, 59, Fleet-street; Rigge, 85, Cheapside; Johnson, 68, Cornhill: and by most principal Perfumers and Medicine Venders.

To accommodate Ladies and Gentlemen residing in any part of the

To accommodate Ladies and Gentlemen residing in any part of the country, by enclosing the money in a letter by post, directed to Mr. Prince, 9, Polaud-street, Oxford-street, London, Mr. P. will send them by retara of coach to any part of the kingdom.

BIRTHS.

At Liverpool, May 29th, the wife of High Thomas James, Esq. Surge

of a daughter.

On Saturday se'nnight, in Great Cumberland-street, the Lady of Trehawke Kekewich, Esq. of a daughter.

On Monday last, at the Principal's Lodge, East India College, Herts, the Lady of the Rev. Dr. Batten, of a son.

On Friday evening last, Mrs. Frederick Pollock, of Bedford-row, of a seq.

MARRIAGES.

May 26th, Mr. G. W. Prichard, widower, of Salop, to Miss Franklin, of Cannen-street, London.

On Thursday, May 24, at Crawley, Hants, John Latham, Esq. Fellow of All Souls College, Oxford, to Elizabeth Anne, eldest daughter of the late Hou. Mr. Justice Dampier.

On Monday, at Mary-le-bone New Churck, Frederick Webb, Esq. of Langham-place, Westwick, county of Durham, to Mary, eldest daughter of Mrs. Shiels, of South Audley-street.

On Monday last, at St. George's, Hanover-square, Thomas Baldock, Esq. to Charlotte youngest daughter of the late Lieut.-Col. Robert Ross, of the Royal Marines.

By Banns, on Thursday se'nnight, at Carlmel Church, in Furness, in the County of Laneaster, William Legh, Esq. second son of Thomas Peter Legh, Esq. late of Lyme, in the County of Chester, to Mary Ann Wilkinson, eldest daughter of the late John Wilkinson, of Castlehead, in the County of Laneaster, Esq.

on Wednesday last, the Earl of Sheffield. His Lordship closed a long and On Wednesday last, the Earl of Spended. The Editable closed and an active life at his house in Portland-place, in the 86th year of his age. He is succeeded in his titles and estates by his son, George Augustus Frederick Charles Holroyd, Viscount Pevensey.

On Friday, in Spring-gardens, the Earl of Stair.

On Wednesday last, in Somerset-place, aged nine years, Catherine Mary, the second daughter of Stephen Lee, Esq. Clerk and Librarian to the Reyal Society.

ociety.

Henry Morton Eden, brother of Lord Auckland.

On Tuesday last, Francis James Douglas, Esq. Lieut. Coldstream Guards, econd son of the late George Douglas, of Cavers, Esq.

S. G. Bicknell, of St. John's College, Cambridge.

At Florence, on the 3d of May, James Wentworth Murray, Esq. aged i years.

At Florence, on the 3d of May, Same5 years.
Mrs. Storace, mother of the late Signora.
On Tuesday morning last, at Greenwich, Mrs. Whybrough Ripley, reliet of the late Richard Ripley, Esq.
Rev. Sir H. Poole, Bart.
At Wimbledon, on the 38th inst. the Rev. Joshua Ruddock, M.A. Vicar of Hitchin, and late Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge.
Miss M. Naylor, youngest sister of Sir G. Naylon.
On Sunday last, William Mumford, Esq. of Sutton-place, in the county of Kent aged 75.

On Sunday last, Whitain Kay, Esq. Deputy of the Ward of Aldersgate.
On Sunday last, Daniel Kay, Esq. Deputy of the Ward of Aldersgate.
At Paris, on the 14th inst. after a lingering illness of two years and a half,
Catherine Mary, wife of Lieut-General Hodgson, son of the late Field-Marshal Hodgson.

Marshal Hodgson:
At Cheshunt, O. Cromwell, Esq. aged 79.
On Thursday, Mr. Stothard, jun. the artist, in consequence of the step of the ladder giving way, at the church of Bere, in Devonshire, where he was corring the window of the church, by which he fractured his skull.

PRICES	of the	PUBLI	C FUN	DS.		windered.
STOCKS.	Mon.	Tues.	Wed.	Thur.		Sat.
Bank Stock	75 1 76 1 85 1		757 774 857 773 981	Но	223 76 762 863 774 943	75 43 5 6 75 6 6 4 76 6 77 1 943 1
4 per Cent. Consols 5 per Cent. Navy Bank Long Annuities India Bonds Exchequer Bills, 2d. Ditto, 2\(\frac{1}{2}\)d. Omnium	110	Holiday.	110g 19 52 p 2 p	liday.	109.3 193 49 p 3 p	191 i 46 40 2d 2p

LONDON: Printed and Published by R. T. WEAVER, of No. 11, JOHNSON'S COURT, FLEET-STREET, where only Communications to the Editor, (post paid) are received.

ATTEXAD STATES

" FOR GOD, THE KING, AND THE PEOPLE!"

No. 26.

original in.

o they today, or

SUNDAY, JUNE 10, 1821.

Price 7d.

NEW MUSIC. Sir JOHN STEVENSON.—" The Day-beam is over the Sea," the Venetian Boat Song, sung with the most unbounded applause at the London, Bath, and Dublin Concerts; arranged for one, two, we three voices; the words written by J. A. Wade, Esq. the Masic composed by J. Selebrated Sir J. A. Steyenson, Mus. Doc. price 3s. This piece, from the tichness and the beautiful simplicity of the melody, has already ranked itself among the most admired preductions of the day. Elimor's Song, "And canst thou bid my heart forget," from Glenarvon, as sung by Mrs. Ashe at the Bath Concerts with enthusiastic applause; composed by F. J. Klose, price ts. 6d. This is the third delition. "Dear Harp of Sweet Erin," Ballac, sung by Mr. Leeni Lee, with the greatest applause, at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, written by Miss Chapman, composed by Beriard Lee, price 1s. 6d.—London: printed by Phillips and Mayhew, Music sellers to H.R. H. the Duchess of Kent, 17, Old Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

view Laurings and the approximate of species to

Marchael Broom a being most ten ligh at T

Duchess of Kent, 17, Old Bond-street.

Just published, by the Royal Harmonic Institution, Lower Saloon, Argyll Rooms, London.

THRRE ITALIAN DUETS, with an Accompaniment for the Fiano Forte, dedicated to her Excellence the Duchess of Frias, by F. Sor, price 5s: "La Bergerette," furnduction and Pastorale, for the Harp and Flute, prica 3s. Fantasia for the Harp and Flute, prica 3s. Fantasia for the Harp and Flute, prica 3s. Fantasia for the Harp and Flute, in which is introduced the celebrated French Air of "Te Bien Almer," price 4s. both composed by W. H. Steff. "I'll love thee still," 2s. "I wish I ne'er had seen him," 2s. "This is leve," 2s. three faveurite Ballads, all composed by T. Cooka. "The green spot that blooms o'er the desart of life," Song, composed by W. Hawes, the poetry by the late John Philpot Curran, Eso, price 2s.

Speedily will be published, the while of the Music in the Opera of DIRCE, now perferming with increased success at the Theatre Royal Drury Lane, principally composed, selected, and adapted for representation by Mr. Hore.

MRS. DAVISON'S BENEFIT, COVENT GARDEN
THEATRE.
ON FRIDAY JUNE 15th, the COMEDY of THE SCHOOL
FOR SCANDAL:—Sir Peter Teakle, Mr. Farren; Lady Teazle, Mrs.
Davison. After the Camedy (by permission of the Proprietors of the Opera House) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the favourite Duetto of "Do Re, Me," from the Opera of "Il FanaHouse) the Common of the Proprietors of the Opera
House) the Common of the Proprietors of the Opera
House) the Common of the Proprietors of the Opera
House) the Common of the Proprietors of the Opera
House) the Common of the Proprietors of the Opera
House) the Common of the Proprietors of the Opera
House) the Common of the Proprietors of the Opera
House) the Common of the Proprietors of the Opera
House) the Common of the Proprietors of the Opera
House) the Common of the Proprietors of the Opera
House) the Common of the Proprietors of the Opera
House) the Common of the Proprietors of the Opera
House) the Common of the Proprietors of the Opera
House) the Common of the Proprietors of the Opera House) the Common of the Proprietors of

THEATRE ROYAL, ENGLISH OPERA HOUSE, STRAND.

THEATRE ROYAL, ENGLISH OPERA HOUSE, STRAND.

By Permission of the Right Hon, the Lord Chamberlain.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF MRS. GLOVER

MRS. GLOVER respectfully begs leave to announce to the Mobility, her Friends, and the Public, that her BENEFIT will take place at the above Theatre, on MONDAY, JUNE 19th, 1821; on which occasion will be performed Shakespeare's TRAGEDY of HAMLET, PRINCE of DENMARK. The Character of Hamlet, (first time, and for that night only) will be attempted by Mrs. Glover. With a vericty of other ENTERTAINMENTS. Further Particulars will be duly announced. Boxes, 5s. Pit, 3s. Lowery Gallery, 2s. Upper Gallery, 1s.—Tickets and Places to be had of Mrs. Glover, No. 29, Bow-street, Covent Garden; and of Mr. Stevenson, at the Box-Office, Strand Entrance.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANS,

FOR THE BENEFIT OF MR. WALLACK.

MONDAY NEXT, JUNE 11, 1821, His Majesty's Servants will perform by desire, and positively for the last time this Scason, the Crand Serious OPERA of ARTANEIXES. After which (by way of Interlude) will be presented the TRIAL SCENB from Shakespeare's Play of the MERCHANTO VENICE; in which Mr. Wallack will undertake the Part of Shylock, after the manner of Mr. Kaan. In the course of the Evening, a Pas Seul, by Miss Tree. To conclude with (first time at this Thratre) the planted did Mebodram of The BLIND BOY; Katig, (first time, and for that Night sully) Mr. Wallack.—Boxes, 7s. Pit, 3s. 6d. Lower Gallery, 2s. Upper Gallery, is.—Trekets and Places to be had at the Box-Office of the Theatre; and of Mr. Wallack, No. 106, St. Martin's-lane.

NOPICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That on the 14th day of May,

NOPICE IS HEREBY GIVEN. That on the 14th day of May, 1991. Let a Green was signed by the Rev. Goorge Gavkin, Doctor of Divinity, and William Wix, Esq. two of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the County of Middlesex, for turning, diverting, and stopping up a certain PUBLIC FOOTPATH, within the Parish of Stoke Newington, in the County of Middlesex, called the WILLOW WALK, leading from Coach and Horsea Lane, in the Parish of St. Mary, Silington, in the County aforesaid, to the High Read from Newington aforesaid, to London; and that the said Order will be lodged with the Clerk of the Peace for the said County, at the General Quarter Sessions of the Peace to be helden at the Sessions House, Clerkenwell-green, in and for the said County, on Monday, the 16th day of July next: And also, that the said Order will, at the said Quarter Sessions, be confirmed and enrolled, unless upon an Appeal against the same, to be then made, it be otherwise determined.

ROBERT OLDERSHAW, Junior.

CORONATION OF HIS MAJESTY GEORGE THE FOURTH.

FOURTH.

WAYTE, Furrier to the King, Robe Maker, &c. late of Panton-street, Haymarket, has the honour to acquaint the Nobility and Public in general, that he has REMOVED to more extensive Premises in REGENT-STREET, opposite the County Fire Office, where he solicits a continuance of their favours.

The period for the Coronation being now fixed, the Peers of England, the Raights Grand Crosses, and the Knights Commanders of the Bath, are respectfully informed, that they can be supplied with every Article necessary for the CORONATION, of the lest quality, properly fitted, in conformity to the efficial regulated Costume, on the very lowest possible Terms.

A FIGURE in the COMPLETE CORONATION HABIT may be inspected by the Nobility and Persons accumpanying them; as also Coronets, Robes, and the White Satin Dresses, richly trimmed with Gold or Silver Lace and Fringe, which take a considerable time in preparing; Orders cannot therefore be too early given.

TOMKINS' PICTURE LOTTERY.

TOMKINS' PICTURE LOTTERY.

M.B. TOMKINS begs respectfully to inform the Public, that his LOTTERY will be drawn en the his LOTTERY will be drawn en the TWENTY-FOURTH OF JULY NEXT, that Trustees appointed by the Act having certified in the London Gasette their entire approbation of the ability and skill displayed in the finishing of the rarious Works constituting the Prizes.

Tiekets, 3l. 3s. each, may be had at Nos. 53 and 54, New Bond-street, where Specimens of the Prizes are exhibited, gratis, and at all the Lottery offices.

Offices.
The Parchaser of a Red Ticket, and a Black Ticket, is sure to gain a Frize.

Pank and FASHION; or, The Mazes of Life; a Characteristic and Eventul Novel, in Three Volumes, in which will be introduced, CHARACTERS NOT CARICATURED.—By Mr. FRERE, "Satre——not malevolence."

Printed for W. Fearman, Library, 170, New Bond Street.

Printed for W. Fearman, Library, 179, New Bond Street.

MEDICO-CHIRURGICAL REVIEW, No. V. June, 1821.—
CONTENTS: 1. Belectic Review on the Digestive Organs.—2. Dr.
Cohern's Pathology of the Urine.—3. Dr. Conquest's Outlines of Midwifery.

—4. Indianmation of Arteries.—6. Messra. Swan, Kerrison, and Villers, on Affections of the Nerves.—6. Mr. Hoyle on Indian Cholera.—7. Dr. Prout on Gravel and Stone.—9. Mr. Travers on Diseases of the Rye.—9. Dr. Nicholl's Elements of Pathology.—10. Dr. Ramsbotham's Midwifery.—11. Dr. Weatherhead on Leasnington Walters.—12. Mr. Haden on Colchicum.—13. Military Surgery by Guthrie, Hennen, Percy, Laurent, &c.—14. Mr. Sandwith on Fever.—15. Biographia Medica.—16. Miscellautes and Extra Limites; the whole consisting of 240 pages of concentrated Analytical Reviews, and forming a Periodical Cyclopedia of Medical Science, of the utmost importances to Practitionary in the Com. 117, Colonies, and Public Services. Price Gunzierly. Con. of by Dr. James Johnson; and published by Burgeas and Hill, Grea. — mamiliatreet, Haymarket.

Also, by the same Auther, Thirt Edition, greatly improved, price 8s. 6d.

begods, 2 TRRATISE on BERANGEMENTS of the LIVER, INTERNAL ORGANS, and NERVOUS SYSTEM.

ORNAMENTAL CLOCKS, BRONZES, AND ORMOULU,
SELLING OFF, AT No. 68, PALL-MALL, OPPOSITE THE BEITISH GALLERY,
J. T. VULI IAMY, BRONZE and ORMOULU MANUFAC-

J. T. VULUIAMY, BRONZE and ORMOULU MANUFAC-TURER to His Majesty, RETIRING from BUSINESS, offers his Stock for Sale under Prime Cost. This Stock, which is select rather than extensive, comprises Ornamental Clocks, Bronze and Ormoulu Candelabra, Bronze Lamps, Vases, Jazzas, Paper Weights, &c. in good taste, and of su-perior workmanship.—4th June, 1821.

BENJAMIN L. VULLIAMY, CLOCK and WATCH MAKER to His Majesty, respectfully informs the Public, that having DIS-SOLVED HIS PARTNERSHIP with his Brother, he intends henceforth to confine his business to making Pocket Chronometers, and Watches of all descriptions and prices, and Regulators and Plain Clocks, No. 68, Pall Mall. 4th June, 1821.

MEDICAL BLANK LABELS, 5s. 6d. a Thousand, or 4,000 for 11. They are made by an Engine, noatly embos-ed, and ready to the on., Gentlemen in the country remitting 11, post-paid, will receive the above carriage free. Direct to N. Burtonshaw, Stationer, 132, St. Martin's-lane; or T. Wondham, Stationer, 33, High Helborn.

GREEK GRAMMARS."

Just published, by Samuel Bugster, No. 15, Patermoster Row,
A GREEK GRAMMAR; by the Rev. FREDERICK NOLAN, price 2s 6d.—Where may be had, by the same Author, the Latin, Hebrew, Chaldes, Striack, Frouch, and Italian Grammats, 2s. 6d. each; forming, with the Spanish and German, now at press, a POLYGLOTT GRAMMAR, in which the Genius of the principal Aucient and Modern Languages is explained, upon an uniform plan; and, by a new and simple principle of analysis, applied to the improvements of the latest and most approved grammarians.

Lately published, Second Edition,

A SERMON on the EPISTLE for TRANITY SUNDAY, inscribed to the Rev. T. Budge, B. D. Archdeacon of Gloucester, and Chancellor of Hereford.—By JAMES RUDGE, D. D. P. R. S. Chaplain to His Royal Nighness Prince Leopoid, and the Duchess of Kent.

1. A SERMON on the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper; eighth edition.—2. On the Lord's Days; second edition.—3. On the Parable of the Prodigal Son,—4. An Address to a Parishioner; second edition.—5. Considerations on the Sea; second edition.—6. Memoir of John Vartie, who was executed for forgery, with his letters to Dr. Rudge; fourth edition.—To be had at Hatchard's, Piccadilly

ORIENTAL EDUCATION.

THE HINDOOSTANKE & PERSIAN LANGUAGES TAUGHT, by a Gentleman educated at the College of Fort William, in Bengal.—For Cards of Address, apply to Mr. Ginger, Bookselfer, 21, College street, Westminster.

Just published, price 12s. proof impressions, 18.

A SMALL whole-length PORTRAIT of HENRY HOWARD A SMALL whole-length PORTRAIT of HENRY HOWARD BEARL of SURRY, engraved by SCRIVEN, frem an original Picture by HOLBEIN, in the King'S COLLECTION at Whindsor.—Published by James Carpenter, Old Bond-street, and sold by A. Molteno, Pall Mall; where may be had, lately published,
2. A PORTRAIT of THOMAS LORD CLIFFORD, Lord High Treasurer to King Charles the Second, engraved by SCHIVEN, from a Miniature by COOPER; price 10s. 6d. proof impressions, 15s.

Just published, price 6s. bound,
THE HACKNEY-COACH DIRECTORY. By JAS. QUAIFE,
Surveyor to the Beard of Hackney-Coaches, Essex-street, Strand
London: Printed for the Proprietor, and sold by permission of the Commissioners, at the Hackney-Coach Office only.

Just published, price 9s. the Fourth Edition of

A DISSERTATION upon the SAGRAMENT of the LORD'S

SUPPER; or, a REFUTATION of the HOADLYAN SCHEME of th.—By the Rev. II. CARD, M.A. F.R.S. and F.A.S. Vicar of Great Malvern, Worcestershire.

Worcestersnic.
Printed for P. C. and J. Rivington, 3, Waterlee-place, and St. Paul's Church-yard, London; of whom may be had the Author's ether Works.

Church-yard, London; of whom may be had the Author's ether Works.

Just published, in two very large volumes, 8vo. Inscribed, by permission, to the Lord Bishop of London, price II. 16s. in boards.

THE OLD TESTAMENT, arranged on the basis of Lightfoot's Chroniele, in Historical and Chronological Grdet, in such manner, that the Books, Chapters, Paalms, Prophecies, &c. may be read as one connected History, in the very words of the authorized Translation. To the above are added, Six Indexes—the First containing an Account of the Periods, Chapters, and Sections into which the Work is dryded, with the Passares of Scripture comprised in each;—the Second, in Colomus, enabling the Reader to discover in what part of the Arrangement any Chapter, or Verse of the Bible may be found;—the Third and Fourth of the Paalms and Prophecies, in Tailes; shewing in what part of the Arrangement, and after what passage of Scripture every Paalm or Prophecy is inserted; and ilkewise on what occasion, and at what period, they were probably written—with the Authority for their Place in the Arrangement;—the Fifth containing the Dates of the Events, according to Dr. Hales; and the Sixth a general Index to the Notes.—By the Rev. GEORGE TOWNSEND, M. A. of Trintty College, Cambridge, Lendon: Printed for F. C. and J. Rivington, N. 6.2, St. Paul's Charch-yard, and No. 3, Waterloo-place, Pall Mall; sold also by Rivingtons and Cochran, No. 148, Strand; and by the Boeksellers at Oxford, Cambridge, Edinburgh, Dublin, &c.

Just published, in three super-royal ectave volumes, price 101. 10s. to non-

Just published, in three super-royal ectave volumes, price 101. 10s. to nonnuberibers.

THE REV. MR. DIBDIN'S BIBLIOGRAPHICAL, ANTIQUARIAN, and PICTURESQUE TOUR is FRANCE and GERMANY. Embelished with One Hundred and Porty Copper-plate Engravings, and a considerable number of Wood Cuts. All the Copper-plates are destieved, upon the completion of the given number of Impressions from each.
Published by Messra Payne and Foss, Longman, Hurst, and Co. John and Arthur Arch, R. H. Evans, R. Triphook, and J. Major.

This is a most delightful and instructive work, bringing home many recollections of foreign scenery, in a manner almost as perfect as art can accomplish. The typographical execution, the exquisite style of the Engravings, and their picturesque effect, are well worthy the present age of British art. With all its elegance and attraction, we are sorry to flud, that it is not to be dispersed over the word to anurse andenilghten; the number of copies struck of being limited, to remer the words perhaps an object of more value in the eyes of the Roxburgh Club, the Members of which,
'fundamentally, althor's plurality of impressions. We confess, however, more value in the eyes of the Roxburgh Club, the Members of which, fundamentally, above a plurality of impressions. We contest, however, that we are vulgar enough in our ideas to prefer its beautiful typography, engravings, hot-pressed vellum paper, and amusing contents, to the first Missal ever printed by Caxton, or to a primeval immression of a Homily from Wynkyn de Worde's virgin types. —New Monthly Magazine, June. 1821.

AN EXCELLENT SPORTING RESIDENCE IN SUFFOLK.

SUFFOLK.

TO BE LET, with immediate possession, the substantial MANSION of BRANDON HALL, well furnished, with Offices of every description, sultable for the accommodation of a genteel Family; Gardens, Pleasure Grounds, and Orchards, inclosed by lofty Walls, with the Landlord's Right of Sporting over 3,000 Acres of Land abbanding with all sorts of Game, of which nearly 300 Acres are thriving Plantations dispersed over the Estate, affording ample Covers. Also the Right of Fishing in the Little Ouse River, abongside the Estate, bordering on Norfolk nearly four miles, in which is plenty of Fish and Wild Fowl. The situation is 78 miles from London, one from the Post Tawn of Brandon. The Mail and eiter Stage Conches pass through every morning and evening. There are 112 Acres of Meadow, Pasture, and Arable Land near the Hall, out of which the Tenant may be accommodated with what quantity he may think preper.

Further Particulary may be had upon applicating, to Alexander Marry, Esq. Symond's Inn, London; or to Mr. Thomas Carr, at Weeting, near

MONEY. TO MEN of FASHION, PLACEMEN, and Others,
-Noblemen, Ladies of Fortune, Gentlemen of known large Estates, or their immediate Heirs, and the Holders of superior Public Appointments, instantly ACCOMMODATED, on Personal Security, with means to raise any SUM, from 101, to 10,000, to meet a sudden emergency, or otherwise. Bankers and Agents Bills, for large or small sums, discounted. Tradesmen or Money Agents will not be attended to.—Apply from one to three o'cleck, or address, post free, to Mr. X. Y. 6, Carlisle-street, Soho square.

In a few days will be published, price 12st Gd.

THE SELF-INDICATIVE TIME TABLES, by the Translator of ALCEDO.—Longman, Hurst, and Co.; Carpenter, Old Bond-street; and Richardson, Cornhill.

TO ALL WHO VALUE THEIR SIGHT,—The sight of the aged restered, the weak sight strengthened, and the perfect sight preserved to extreme old age, by DIKON'S IMPROVED SPECTACLES. To be had only at 93, Newman street, two doors out of Oxford-street, Manafacturer to the late Mr. Bradberry, and since his death has commenced Business at the above place, where the Improved Spectacles can now only be had that in sanctioned by most of the Faculty, for the benefit of weak and improved sinitations of his Improved Spectacles aftered to the Public.

THE DECIDED ADVANTAGES of inspecting an entirel new Stock of TOWN PRINTED CHINTZ FURNITURES. MOREENS. DIMITIES, &c. and comparing the Patterns and Prices with old Goods. were never made more evident than at the NEW CHINTZ FURNITURE and MOREEN WAREHOUSE, No. 134. Oxford-street, nearly opposite Hanover-square, just opened by MILES and EDWARDS, from the Corner of Great Turnstile, Holborn.

HALL'S sublime TURKISH PASTE, CIRCASSIAN and FACE POWDER.—The above elegant preparations, which are so universally approved by Ladies of the first rank and fashion, as the most innocent and heautiful assistant to nature, by imparting to the skin that soft and inconceivable fairness, is now prepared, in the highest state of perfection; the Proprietor having lately imported a quantity of the necessary ingredients, will prevent in future any possible disappointment.—One Pound Note Packages, containing two large Pots and two Packets of the Powder, or four small Potsand four small Packets, are forwarded to all parts of Town or Country, and warranted to arrive safe.

N.B. Observe the above are only to be had of the most respectable Dealers of Berdunsery or Milliners in the Country, in single Pots, at 10s, 6d, and 5s, 6d.; and the Powder in Packets, 2s, 6d, and 1s, 6d, and should be asked for in the name of the Proprietor, whose signature is on the outside of each.—Patent Violet Soap and Chemical Laboratory, No. 28, Hadlow-atreet, Burton Crescent, London.—5. B. HALL.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES, FOR LOWNESS OF SPIRITS, &c.

THESE LOZENGES have been highly approved, and continuer and the stream of the arrows system, in lowners of spirits, and increased irritability of the aervous system, in the sick or nervous head-ache, infammatory and putrid sore threats, thirst and dryness of the tongue and palate, and in all cases where the Campber Juley is advised, these Campberated Lozenges may be taken with superior advantage; they are also a powerful Antisceptie, and are therefore an admirable preventive against infection, and the effects of damp weather.

Prepared and sold by J. Shepherd, at his Warehouse for the tree species and sold by J. Shepherd, at his Warehouse for the tree species and 10s. each.

-

4s. 6d. and 10s. each.

Just published,
THE SECRETARY'S ASSISTANT; exhibiting the various and most correct modes of SUPERSCRIPTION, COMMENCEMENT, and CONCLUSION of LETTERS to Persons of every degree of Rank; including the Diplomatic, Circleal, and Judicial Dignitaries: with Lists of Fo eign Ambassadurs and Consuls. Also the forms necessary to be used in Applications or Petitions to the Kisse in Council, Houses of Lords and Commons, Government Offices, and Public Companies; with a Table of Presedency, and the Abbreviations of the several British and Foreign Orders of Knighthood.—By the Author of the Peerage and Baronetage Charts, &c.

"Give unto every man his proper thie, lest he be offended, and ye betray your ignorance."—Paulms.

London: Printed for the Author, and sold by G. and W. B. Whittaker.

Ave Maria-lanc; and John Warren, Old Bond street.

LAST NIGHT'S GAZETTE

Crown-Office, June 9, 1821.

Member returned to serve in this present Partiament.—Borough of Lymington—William Manning, Heq. of Combo Bank, in the county of Kent, the room of George Pinch, Esq. who has accepted the Chiltern Hundreds.

the room of George Pinch, Esq. who has accepted the Chillern Hundreds.

Commission in the Royal North Gloucester Militia, signed by the Lord Lieutenaut of the County and County and City of Gloucester, and of the County and City of Brissol.

W. Paul, Esq. to be Major, vice the Hon. T. Cocks, resigned.

Commission in the East Battation of Dorsetshire Local Militia, signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Dorset.

E. B. Portman, Jun. Esq. to be Capt. vice R. Lewis, deceaved.

Commissions signed by the Lord Lieut. of the County of Southsmoton.

North Hante Yeomanry Cavalry—J. I. M. as, Esq. to be Adjut.

South Hante Yeomanry Cavalry—J. Heming, Esq. to be Capt.

Commissions in the Corps of Coquotdale Rangers Yeomanry Cavalry, signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Northmberland Capt. A Atkinson to be Major-Commandant.—W. L. Smart, Esq. to be.

Capt. vice Atkinson.—H. Collingwood, Esq. to be ditta.—G. H. Pringle, Gent. to be Lieut. vice Smart.—W. Tewart, Gent. to be Corpet, vice Swath.—W. Tewart, Gent. to be Corpet, vice Swath.—O. Spoulton, Gent. to be Corpet, vice:

Corpost G. Carter to be Lieut.—O. Spoulton, Gent. to be Corpet, vice: Carter.

BANKRUPTCIES SUPERSEDED. BROWN, J. Great Cambridge-street, Hackney-road, timber-merchant
BANKRUPTS.

HALL, H. and HALL, J. Sun Wharf, Upper Thames-street, iron-incr-

GLOVER, G. Lower East Smithfield, off and colourman. PRANKLIN, F. Leamington Priors, surgeon and apathsony, HAYNES, S. Liverpool, Sour-dealer.

DOWNS, W. Chendle, Cheshire, calloc-printes. BEANE B. Hickling, Norfolk, shopkreper.

DEAN, J. Accrington, Lancashire, cettoe-spinner, CROFT, J. Kingstos-upos-Hull, draper. HOLLAND, S. Bezhill, Sussex, coal merchant.

MOLLAND, S. Bezhill, Sussex, coal-marchant.
REX, G. Grean Driffield, Yorksbire, grocer and draper.
WILLIAMS, J. P. Thomas-street, New Kent Road, Stater.
SHOGBRIDGE, G. Cheapside, teflor.
KIRKMAN, C. F. Deal, linea-draper.
TURTON, J. the younger, Roll's Buildings, Fetter-lane, farrier.
CORRI, D. Percy-street, Bedford-square, dealer in music.
BOARD, W. Britch, postmaster.
PAINE, L. Warmyoud-street, Bishopsgate-street, smith and bell-hanger.
WESTON, M. London Wall, livery-stable-keeper.
WARTON, R. E. and BROCKES, M. Bridge Road, Vanxhall, plumbergs.
CHAPMAN, S. Greenwich, linea-draper.
FOSTER, W. Liverpool, greer.
REILY, R. Southampten-rww, Bloomebary, man-million.

Digitized by Google

TUESDAY'S GAZETTE.

Commission in the Fifeshire Regiment of Milkin, signed by the Lora Lieutenant of Fife. Capt. Andrew Mitchell to be Major, vice Rutherford, deceased.

Capt. Andrew Mitchell to be Major, vice Rutherford, deceased.

Commissions signed by the Lord Lieutenantes the West Riding of York.

Robert Chaloner, Esq.: Thennse Lodington Fairfax, Esq.: William Lister
Fenton Scott, Esq.: William Merkham, Esq. to be Deputy Lieutenants.

Yorkshire Hussar Ycomaney.—Major Richard York to be Lieutenant.

Colonel, vice Lord Hawke, resigned; Caption George Lane Fox to be Major, vice York, promoted; Lieut William Lister Penton Scott to be Captain, vice Fox, promoted; Cornet Thomas Dowker to be Lieut. vice Scott, promoted; the Hon. John Hobart Cradock to be Cornet; Sir John Vanden Bempde Johnstone, Bart, to be ditto, vice Greaves

Southern Regimentof Yorkshire (West Riding) Yeomanry Cavaley.

John Staniforth Beckett, Esq. to be Captain, vice Edmunds, resigned;
Joseph Clarke, Gent, to be Lieut. vice Cattle, resigned; John Childers, Gent.

So be Cornet, vice Brown, deceased; Richard Cuttle, Gent, to be ditto, vice Schofield, resigned; Robert Saunders, Esq. to be Adjutant, vice Missmack, resigned; Adjutant Robert Saunders to be Captain, by Brevet.

So be Cornet, vice Brown, deceased; Richard Cuttle, Gent, to be dilito, vice Schodeld, resigned; Robert Saunders, Esq. to be Adjutant, vice Mismusck, resigned; Adjutant Robert Saunders be Captain, by Brevet.

PARTNERSHIPS DISSOLVED.

Osburn and Pattinson, Leeds, spirit merchants.—Thomson and Geddes, Manchester, drapers.—M. and J. and W. B. Dadley, woollen drapers.—H. and C. Boulton, & J. Polly, Chatham Blace, Norway merchants, so far as concerns H. Boulton. Makins and Green, Leeds, tobacco mannfacturers.—Whittaker and Shaw, Ashton-under-Lyne, manufacturers of jacconetts.—Mills and Hatch, Asylum Buildings, blacking and ink manufacturera.—Payne, Manon, Price, and Simms, Bath, common brewers.—Barton, Rhodes, and Aspinwall, Preston, Joiners.—Fluring, Brooke, and Hawson, Green Mile Lane Farm, Babworth, Nottinghamshire.

BAIRRY, J. Liverpool, soap boiler.

BAIRRY, J. Liverpool, soap boiler.

BAIRRS, N. Water Lane, Fleet Street, printer.

DAVIDSON, A. G. Racquet Court, Fleet Street, merchant.

GIR DLESTONES, M. Norwick, baker.

GORDON, J. Liverpool, merchant.

